Bakker trial put on hold

The fraud trial of former PTL evangelist Jim Bakker was put on hold Thursday when Bakker, suffering from what his psychiatrist called "psychiatric and emotional regression," failed to appear in court.

U.S. District Judge Robert Potter ordered Bakker committed to a mental institution in nearby Butner, N.C., to undergo psychiatric evaluation.

Seminole loses in jamboree

Seminole High School got the season off on a sour note Thursday night, falling to Oviedo, 14-7, in a two-quarter scrimmage game at Lyman High School.

All was not bad news for the Seminoles. They moved the ball well but couldn't seem to capitalize on scoring opportunities. Seminole head coach Emory Blake said it's better to go ahead and get that kind of thing out of the team's system now before the real season starts.

Ryan: Dolphins are 'patsies'

The Miami Dolphins, winless in three pre-season football outings, have a bit more incentive for Saturday's final exhibition game at home against Philadelphia.

Eagles head coach Buddy Ryan, not bashful about expressing his opinion on a number of topics, said the Dolphins are "patsies."

Bogus repairman strikes again

CHULUOTA — A bogus telephone repairman who for several years has harassed Central Florida women with attempts to rob them by phone, took a different twist Thursday, when he involved a second victim in a single incident.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies report that a 43-year-old woman received a call from the suspect at about 5 p.m. Thursday she told him she was receiving another call at that time. He took the phone number of the other caller and told the first victim to hang up on the caller, so he could "repair" the victim's phone.

The victim did as she was told, but when the suspect told her he was going to rob her and was outside her house, the woman put the phone down and fled to a neighbor's house.

The suspect called the second victim, who had tried to call the first victim when the scam began. The suspect told the second victim that he was at the first victim's house and was holding a gun to her head. He demanded that the second victim, a 49-year-old woman, bring valuables to the first victim's house to keep him from killing her.

The women didn't follow the orders and sheriff's deputies were called.

Sgt. Greg Burnett, said this is the first time in hundreds of similar area incidents that the fake telephone repairman has involved an outside victim, although he has victimized more than one occupant of the same house during a single call.

Jobless rate holds steady

WASHINGTON — The nation's unemployment rate remained at 5.2 percent in August and total non-farm employment rose by 110,000 despite the effects of a wave of telephone company strikes, the Labor Department reported Friday.

The number of new jobs created by businesses other than farms would have been about twice as large as 110,000 if not for the strikes at several regional phone companies, the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

People on strike are not counted on company payrolls used in measuring employment, meaning the jobs of the 108,000 strikers were subtracted from the total, the bureau said.

Labor Day weekend filled with air, water and land activities

SANFORD — The plane drops over the water, but pilot Greg Brauning is not worried. The unairconditioned cabin accounts for the only sweat on his brow.

As it hits the water, the plane bounces as if it just hit some nasty turbulence.

Then, Brauning smiles and guns the accelerator before saying, "Look what this thing can do on water." He races the Lake Buccaneer amphibious plane around Lake Monroe like a speedboat, then creeps up a makeshift plywood ramp to the marina.

Brauning is leasing his aircraft to the Lake Monroe marina Holiday Inn for its Labor Day celebration.

The marina event is one of a number of leisure activities scheduled for the long Labor Day holiday weekend as residents of Seminole County and elsewhere in Central Florida are expected to crowd area roads, beaches and other waterways as well as parks for organized and informal picnics and other leisure activities.

The Florida Highway Patrol predicts that 36 people will die on Florida roads over the 78-hour Labor Day weekend which officially begins tonight at 6 p.m. and ends at midnight on Monday.

Gas prices over the weekend will be lower, according to the American Automobile Association.

The National Weather Service predicts sunny mornings, partly cloudy afternoons with a chance of showers and temperatures in the low to mid 90s.

For the Lake Monroe event, Brauning will be

UPS driver Doug VanAllen responded to call for help from victim's wife.

Driver rescues swimmer

SANFORD — A United Parcel Service driver yesterday saved an elderly man who nearly drowned in a backyard swimming pool.

Doug VanAllen, 26, Orlando, was delivering a package on Airport Boulevard at about 9:30 a.m. when he heard a woman call for help from the backyard of 105 E. Airport Blvd. He said Eva Tigner was unable to lift her husband Charles from the pool, so he ran to help.

Van Allen said he lifted Tigner from the water, then checked for a pulse. After he confirmed a heartbeat, he cleared the Tigners' lungs of water, and had Eva Tigner call 911 for emergency medical service. Within four minutes, medical help had arrived.

Charles Tigner was transported to the emergency room at Central Florida Regional Hospital where he was treated and stabilized. He was then transported to Florida Hospital South in Orlando where he was reported in intensive care this morning.

Rob Conten, an employee at Bill Knapp's on Silver Lake, said VanAllen was drenched with sweat when he made his deliveries there.

"I had to ask him why he was so wrung out," Conten said.

"With all the repercussions these days, a lot of people wouldn't have helped," Conten said. "I would want somebody to help if that were my dad."

Jim Britton, UPS supervisor who trained VanAllen on his route, said, "He definitely knew where his priorities

Roads key topic at Lake Mary city-county meeting

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — Roads and land were the main topics of discussion last night at a joint meeting between Lake Mary and Seminole County commissioners.

The meeting is one of a series the county board is holding with other governmental bodies in the county to discuss issues of common interest.

Discussion of county plans for north-south roads between Highway 46 and County Road 46A in conjunction with proposed Interstate 4 interchanges and the expressway, and how those projects will affect Lake Mary, took up much of the meeting.

Discussion of an area along Lake Mary Boulevard the city wants to annex brought the only disagreement in the meeting.

Matt West, Lake Mary planner, told county commissioners about four areas the city is interested in annexing. Three of the areas should present no problem to annex if possible drainage and maintenance problems can be worked out with the county.

Talk of annexing of commercial property along the south side of Lake Mary Boulevard in The Crossings area, however, met with strong opposition from County Commissioner Bob Sturm, who lives on the north side of the street in that area.

Lake Mary Commissioner George Duryea said many people in The Crossings think they live in Lake

Mary and said the city might want to annex all of the development some day, which brought a firm "no way" from Sturm.

Duryea said both sides of the boulevard from I-4 to the eastern city limit should be in Lake Mary city limits to simplify fire and police protection.

Mayor Dick Fess agreed, saying "We are not at all happy about spending $200,000 to $300,000 to purchase an 800 megahertz com-

Lame-duck official predicts increase in gasoline taxes

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Florida residents can expect an increase in the gasoline tax immediately after the next general election, according to lame-duck Transportation Secretary Kaye Henderson.

Henderson, who returned to private life today, also said he is pessimistic about solving the state's transportation problems in the current political climate.

In a summation interview published Thursday in the Florida Times-Union, the 57-year-old Henderson laid a large part of the blame for the state's road problems on House Democrats and legislators from South Florida.

The House leadership, especially Speaker Tom Gustafson, D-Fort Lauderdale, are responsible for the impasse on transportation funding because they are trying to ensure Republican Gov. Bob Martinez's defeat in next year's election, said Henderson.

South Florida legislators are also a factor because they continue to refuse to share revenues from the Florida Turnpike with other areas of the state, he said.

Henderson became the head of the Department of Transportation in January 1987 and soon ran into conflict with Martinez for saying the state needed to raise the gasoline tax, which pays for transportation improvements.

His troubles escalated from that

SANFORD — Florida's alligator hunting season opens at sunset today for 229 lucky trappers including eight from Seminole County, and a lot of unlucky alligators.

The trappers were randomly chosen by computer from among about 20,000 applications for the hunt, which runs through September and is confined to some 40 "management units" identified by the State Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

Jim Logue of Oviedo will be an agent for trapper Jerry Ragsdale, also of Oviedo. "It's going to work year after year. I don't think we're ever going to run out of alligators."

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Blue Cross: End mandated coverage

United Press International

ORLANDO — If government-mandated insurance was repealed, insurance companies could sell cheaper benefit packages offering essential care and increase the number of people who have coverage, an insurance executive said Thursday.

State-mandated health benefits are the enemy of labor and management, Robert Pralle, vice president of key accounts for Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Florida, said at the company's National Labor Conference. He said mandates often provide care people don't need and always drives up prices.

"Mandates are supposed to increase people's access to care. But, in fact, they have the opposite effect," he said. "They leave more people without coverage and drive up health costs."

About 31 million, or 13 percent, of Americans have no health insurance. More than 9 million of those lack coverage because state laws that mandate specific coverages have made the cost of health care too expensive for many companies, Pralle said.

Mandated insurance is not only a problem in Florida; it is a problem nationwide, said Pralle, who pointed to Massachusetts as an example. He said Massachusetts mandated outpatient treatment for alcoholism and mental disorders in 1976.

"More than 1,000 providers were affected and it cost Blue Cross and Blue Shield members about $2 million," he said. "Six years later, there were 7,000 providers and the cost to Blue Cross and Blue Shield was over $42 million."

When the Florida Legislature required groups electing outpatient coverage to provide visits to psychologists, claims jumped from about 1,500 to 10,000 in just two years, he said.

"An effective solution to the problem would repeal all government-mandated benefits and give insurance companies more flexibility to offer lower-cost, no-frills benefits packages covering essential care," he said. "It would offer small businesses tax incentives to buy basic health coverage for their employees. And it would expand Medicaid coverage to more of the poor."

The rest of the solution to rising health costs involves those who are covered by insurance, he said.

American workers and their families spent about $1,800 per person for health care in 1985. That's 50 percent more than the average in Canada, twice the Japanese level and triple the British, yet people in all four countries have about the same life expectancy levels, he said.

Two charged in deputy's murder

PENSACOLA — Two South Carolina brothers have been found guilty of second-degree murder in the death of a Pensacola sheriff's deputy killed during a chase.

A jury found James Robert Parker, 24, and Johnny Walter Parker, 29, guilty Thursday night in the December death of Escambia County Deputy Don Cook. Each faces up to 27 years in prison.

The brothers, from Simpsonville, S.C., had robbed a man at a rest stop on Interstate 10 near Pensacola, court testimony indicated. A high-speed chase ensued, involving patrol cars from several agencies.

Cook was struck and killed by one of the patrol cars that was chasing the Parkers. Sentencing has been set for September 26th.

Finance clerk faces new charges

ARCADIA — A former school finance clerk already charged with embezzlement has also been charged with plotting to kill her ex-boyfriend's wife and kids.

Gale Dyal Anderson of Fort Charlotte is accused of soliciting Raymond Lanier to carry out the killings. Lanier, who had lived in Arcadia, was not charged in the murder-for-hire case.

Anderson already faced charges of embezzling more than $24,000 dollars from the DeSoto County school district. She was jailed in lieu of $100,000 bond.

Chemical company wants permission

LIVE OAK — Water analysts have recommended that Occidental Chemical be prevented from discharging water into two additional creeks, although the company claims doing so could keep the Suwannee River cleaner.

Occidental runs a chemical plant in Hamilton County and discharges some material into two local creeks. The company promised to install better anti-pollution equipment if allowed to dump into two more Suwannee River tributaries. The company said that would improve overall water quality.

But scientists with the Suwannee River Water Management District urged the district to reject the plan Thursday, saying the additional discharges into Roaring Creek and Camp Branch could harm hatching fish.

Occidental officials said they must study the scientists' opinion before making a public response. A water authority decision on the requested permits could come next week.

Gainesville bar gives away free booze

GAINESVILLE — A Gainesville bar delighted college students by giving away free booze all night long.

Police were less thrilled, but said there was nothing they could do to halt the liquor giveaway so long as recipients are at least 21.

The Central City bar had its license suspended earlier in the week for selling alcohol to minors. Owners of the nightclub near the University of Florida campus decided to give away their liquor for the next week, as long as customers can show proper identification.

The law requires only that the bar eliminate its cover charge if it wants to give away free alcohol.

Zoo officials honor bridge reopening

GULF BREEZE — A Siamese ape born Monday at a zoo east of Gulf Breeze will be named in honor of the most important local event that occurred that day: the reopening of all four lanes of the Pensacola Bay Bridge.

The three-mile bridge, which links Pensacola to Gulf Breeze, was struck by a barge in January and completely closed for more than two weeks. When it reopened in early-February only two of the four lanes could be used.

Officials from The Zoo said the bridge problem hurt zoo attendance.

Zoo officials do not yet know if the ape is a male or female, and will not be able to tell for a few days. But they said that if it is a male, it will be named after television and movie star Lloyd Bridges.

If the ape is a female it will be named after actress Bridgette Bardot. But in this case, it will be pronounced Bar-DOT in honor of the Department of Transportation.

Man convicted of second-degree murder

DEFUNIAK SPRINGS — A Ponce de Leon man will be sentenced Oct. 13 after being convicted Wednesday of second-degree murder in the death of a DeFunia Springs woman.

Marc Edward Roberson, 20, had been charged with first-degree murder in the Jan. 15 death of Deborah Ann Gladue, 22. But the jury found him guilty of second-degree murder.

Gladue had been tossed in the Choctawhatchee River. Three concrete blocks were tied around her arms and legs, authorities said.

Court upholds vehicle forfeiture

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Supreme Court ruled 4-3 Thursday that police may seize vehicles in which they find even small quantities of drugs intended for the personal use of the driver.

The majority opinion by Justice Ben Overton said a plain reading of a 1980 amendment to Florida's forfeiture law indicates the Legislature intended to overrule earlier court opinions requiring police to prove the vehicle played some part in drug trafficking.

"We hold that the Legislature intended for forfeiture to be an appropriate penalty where an individual possesses a felony amount of drugs while in a vehicle, even if the drugs are intended solely for personal use," Overton wrote.

The ruling overturns a decision by the 1st District Court of Appeal in Tallahassee.

In an opinion by Justice Gerald Kogan, the dissenters said the 1980 amendment is more ambiguous than the majority perceived. Kogan said the Legislature meant to give suspects a chance to prove the drugs were not intended for sale or distribution.

He added that he was worried the state's right to battle drug use was overwhelming personal liberties, saying "the scales have tipped decidedly against the rights of the individual."

"Although I recognize that society's drug-related problems have escalated in recent years, I do not believe that an abandonment of basic legal principles is justified," Kogan said.

Richard Crenshaw, a convicted drug dealer stopped in his Volvo by the Pensacola police with less than a gram of cocaine intended for his personal use in his possession, did not raise constitutional issues in his appeal.

But Kogan said he might well have. He cited the constitutional double-jeopardy clause, a proscription against punishing an individual twice for the same offense.

"This forfeiture is, in my view, a second punishment and is prohibited by the double jeopardy clause of the 5th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution," Kogan wrote.

Officials meet on regional waste plan

United Press International

ATLANTA — Environmental officials from North Carolina and Florida proposed building incinerators in their states to help ease the South's hazardous waste crunch during a regional meeting Thursday.

Officials from eight southeastern states met at Environmental Protection Agency headquarters in Atlanta during the afternoon in an ongoing attempt to work out a regional waste disposal plan by Oct. 17.

The federal government has said states must prove by that date they are capable of handling hazardous waste for the next 20 years or risk losing Superfund money to clean up dump sites. The eight states stand to lose an estimated $117 million if they do not comply with the order.

Officials who attended the closed meeting said beforehand that they are confident the states will come up with an agreement before mid-October, but conceded there was a tangle of ill feelings between the states that needed to be worked out.

"The states who have capacity (to handle waste) want to see the states that don't have capacity making a good faith effort to do their fair share," said Richard Wilkins, Florida state director of the division of waste management.

He said this was one of the reasons Florida, which now ships virtually all of its waste out of state, is willing to build a facility that will handle its own hazardous materials and those of some other states as well. Sites in Polk and Union counties are being considered.

"We are committed that in the future we will treat our own waste," he said.

Florida was one of 22 states that Alabama banned two days ago from using its waste treatment facilities.

Alabama and South Carolina are the region's dumping grounds for hazardous waste, and state officials have said repeatedly that they do not want to bear the brunt of the South's future waste problems.

Gov. Guy Hunt said the ban was necessary to prevent Alabama from "becoming the waste dump of the nation."

John Taylor, chief of the land protection branch of the Georgia Environmental Protection Board, said the officials hoped during the meeting Thursday to figure out exactly how much waste each state would produce over the next 20 years and determine how many dump sites and treatment facilities are needed.

Georgia has proposed building a hazardous treatment plant in Taylor County that has met stiff opposition from residents.

Officials from North Carolina, which also ships its waste out of state, said the governor's office was now willing to construct a solid waste incinerator by 1994.

Linda W. Little, executive director of the governor's waste management board, said two-thirds of the waste treated at the proposed facility would be from North Carolina and the remaining third would be from neighboring states.

"We are looking at a regional approach because we have a statute that says we must work through regional agreements when we are able," Little said. "We have not chosen a site but we are looking for one of an appropriate size."

Water districts want coordinated usage regulations

United Press International

BROOKSVILLE — Informal discussions among representatives of the state's five water management districts could lead to a formal meeting to bring uniformity to water use regulations, a spokesman for the Southwest Florida Water Management District said Thursday.

John Walkinshaw said some residents live near boundary lines of two water management districts that may have different restriction regulations, leading to confusion.

"For example, half of Marion County is in our district and half is in the St. Johns District," Walkinshaw said. "In St. Johns, the days when (lawn) watering is allowed are opposite from ours. It does lend itself to some confusion."

"I think the biggest concern we have is there are big differences between each district for lawn and landscape restrictions," said Richard Owen, planning director for the Southwest Florida District.

MIAMI — Hurricane Gabrielle marched westward across the eastern Atlantic today while fierce Tropical Storm Felix was downgraded for the second time to a tropical depression.

Forecasters were still watching Felix, which they had downgraded to a tropical depression Wednesday when its maximum sustained winds dropped to 30 mph and it began to lose its tropical circulation pattern.

State auditor to review Kelley file

By J. MARK SANFORD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Florida's assistant auditor general said Thursday he will review information regarding the Seminole County Expressway Authority mailed last week by Seminole County commissioner Jennifer Kelley, but there may be little he can do with it.

"We may look at some of things during our next routine audit," said Bob Stem, assistant state auditor general. "In reading through the information, I have a sense of a complaint, but we are not a regulatory agency, we are a reporting agency."

On Aug. 23, Kelley sent a letter to Florida Attorney General Bob Butterworth and Florida Auditor General Charles Lester with copies of 55 memos, meeting minutes and other information about the expressway authority.

The following day, she sent the two state officials another packet containing 63 copies of a report, documents, newspaper legal notices, expressway rules and other information. Together, the two packets form a pile of paper more than an inch thick.

The packets prompted Lonnie Groot, assistant county attorney and attorney for the authority, to respond on Aug. 29 with a follow-up letter to the two state officials.

Groot's letter states in part, "I genuinely regret that your time must be expended on a matter which, frankly, evolves from motivations that are unclear to me, but seems to be an attempt to degrade and discredit the activities and actions of the Seminole County Expressway Authority...."

In the Aug. 24 packet, Kelley included information about a meeting held by the expressway authority on Jan. 4 to consider the purchase of land from Gulfstream Housing Corp. The meeting was called by expressway authority chairman Fred Streetman Dec. 27, eight days before the meeting. The meeting was advertised in two local newspapers Dec. 30.

"This appears to conflict with (expressway rules) which the SCEA adopted in November 89 ...requires 14 days notice," Kelley's computer-typed report in the packet stated.

Florida and expressway rules require expressway authority meetings be advertised in a local newspaper at least 14 days before the meeting unless it is an "emergency" meeting. An emergency meeting can be called by the chairman without prior newspaper advertisement, but at least one newspaper must be notified of the meeting and any action must be advertised after the meeting.

On Jan. 4, the four expressway authority members present at the meeting — Kelley was not — voted 4-0 to approve a $3.5 million purchase of land from Gulfstream for the expressway. Also present at the meeting were representatives from three newspapers, about a half dozen residents and Rep. Art Grindie.

Authority director Gerald Brinton said the authority had committed to resolving a Gulfstream lawsuit before the end of the year and a resolution was reached days before the meeting, Kelley said she was out of town and had not been informed of the meeting.

The $3.5 million was about $600,000 above the authority's appraisals for the land, but more than $1 million less than Gulfstream wanted. Brinton said the appraisals were incomplete because they did not include a payment for the potential business losses Gulfstream might be eligible to receive.

Groot said the price was fair because if the case was taken to court a jury might award additional business-loss damages to Gulfstream.

Kelley said Thursday she heard about the meeting when she returned to the county after the holidays and Seminole County commissioner Pat Warren asked her "Did you hear about the meeting the authority had while we were out of town?"

Kelley said she is not trying to get the decision of the authority overturned, although she said she thought the price was too high.

Groot said Thursday the meeting was held legally. He noted although the meeting was advertised as a "special" meeting, it was an "emergency" meeting. He said the authority published an advertisement on Jan. 29 with the results of the meeting, following the state emergency requirements. He said the authority exceeded the state's advertising requirements for emergency meetings.

AIDS turnabout

Unexpectedly successful trials of the anti-viral drug AZT have raised hopes that AIDS may one day become a treatable disease instead of an inevitably fatal infection. At the same time, AZT's promise will impose major challenges for the nation's health-care system, adding potentially hundreds of thousands of new patients for whom there was no treatment in the past.

AZT is not a cure. But the drug showed in recent tests that it is possible to intervene effectively early in the course of AIDS infection.

Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan has stressed that the latest trial results provide hope for the millions of people worldwide who are infected with the HIV virus. It is apparent that AZT can delay the onset of the disease in people whose infection with the virus but as yet show no symptoms. Furthermore, the drug can halt progression of the infection in patients who are only mildly infected with AIDS.

Largely because of the increasing success of early intervention strategies such as AZT, the Gay Men's Health Crisis, New York City's largest private organization providing AIDS services, has reversed a long-held position and endorsed widespread voluntary testing for the AIDS virus.

The organization joins a growing nationwide shift among groups formerly opposed to testing on grounds that doctors could do nothing for those who test positive. AZT's successes have now refuted this rationale.

Dr. Anthony Fauci, director of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Disease, the lead federal agency in the AZT trials, stresses that it is vital that people in high-risk categories be tested, even if they show no symptoms. The HIV virus can infect a patient for years before outward symptoms are apparent.

About 40,000 Americans with AIDS are using some 95 different drugs to fight the AIDS virus or related diseases. The success of AZT in delaying the progression of the disease strengthens the case for compulsory reporting of new infections and more aggressive contact tracing, on an anonymous basis, of sexual partners and needle sharers.

But the wider use of AZT will add additional financial strains to the health-care system. Supply an AIDS patient with the drug now costs up to $8,000 a year.

Until a cure is found for AIDS, it is obvious that early detection holds promise of delaying the spread of the disease. As new medical discoveries bring ever more hope for prolonging lives and assuring a more normal existence for AIDS patients, the benefits of reporting, tracing and voluntary testing become more obvious all the time.

NYC race is two-man contest

NEW YORK — If New York Mayor Ed Koch survives the Sept. 12 Democratic primary, a possible runoff, and then goes on to win a fourth term in November, it will be the greatest political comeback since Truman overcame Dewey in 1948.

A year ago everyone was writing Koch's political obituary. He had lost the backing of some of his most important political supporters, including organized labor. Public opinion polls indicated that less than one-fourth of all New York residents thought he was doing a good job.

But now, as the Democratic primary enters its final weeks, most of the experts believe that it has come down to a two-man contest — and one of the contenders is Ed Koch.

There are four candidates vying in the Democratic mayoral race: Koch; Manhattan Borough President David Dinkins, who is trying to become New York City's first black mayor; City Comptroller Harrison Goldin, a longtime Koch foe; and former city transit system chief Richard Ravitch.

Dinkins has inherited much of the institutional support that helped elect Koch to his three terms. He has also received endorsements from many of the city's most prominent figures. He is ahead in the polls, and must at this point be considered the favorite.

Goldin's campaign staff admits that his strategy has been based on the idea that voters would largely abandon Koch, that Ravitch would not be a serious candidate and might even withdraw, and it would come down to a two-man contest between him and Dinkins. But Koch has come up in the polls, and Ravitch has hung in. In recent days Goldin — and to a lesser extent Ravitch — has been reduced to making ever more strident personal attacks against Koch.

Still, the race is now between Dinkins and Koch. Dinkins clearly has the black vote sewed up. Koch appears to have at least partially rehabilitated his shattered image with his traditional Jewish constituency. The swing vote in this election will be the Hispanic vote.

Major figures within the New York Hispanic community have just about split evenly in their endorsements of Dinkins and Koch. But in the past, Koch has received two-thirds, or more, of the Hispanic vote. That, coupled with long-term black-Hispanic animosity, would seem to make Koch the favorite to capture this vote.

The experts believe the major factors that will decide the race are how the Hispanic vote goes, whether white union members will vote in large numbers for a black candidate, and, above all, which candidate is able to get the highest percentage of his supporters to the polls.

This last factor may be Koch's salvation. Traditionally, in New York elections, minority voter turnout is low. Koch's supporters, however, do go to the polls and pull the lever.

The survivor of the Democrats' Sept. 12 primary — or a runoff two weeks later if none of the candidates gets above 40 percent of the vote — will almost certainly face former U.S. attorney Rudolph Giuliani.

Reduced to making ever more strident personal attacks.

Perestroika works — in some sectors

UOLICH, U.S.S.R. — A watch factory in this city of 40,000 on the Volga River is a shining example of the magic of perestroika (economic restructuring) at work. Unfortunately, it is an island in a sea of centralized planning, long lines, red tape and empty shelves.

The factory produces relatively high quality watches.

And while the term Russian workmanship may still be a laughable oxymoron, this factory of 10,000 workers may be the model for a different future. The fact that it already turns a profit and workers are benefiting is nothing short of revolutionary.

A visit to this factory was arranged within hours of our request to see it, an extraordinary occurrence in a country where, only five years ago, the request would have languished.

The factory's Deputy General Director, Vladimir Krylov, explained that they are the only plant producing "Chaika" ("Seagull") brand-name watches, primarily for women. And he was proud to say that perestroika had allowed them to profit. Under perestroika, he explained, the focus is on consumer demand, not state orders. And his watches sell rapidly in Russia, as well as in 47 other countries.

The bottom line: Annual wholesale income is 77 million rubles. Krylov says they reinvest about 11 million rubles back into the business. Another 7.5 million is funneled to the workers in the form of housing construction, vacation resorts and other fringe benefits. The remaining 7 million can be distributed in salary hikes and bonuses.

Krylov is an ardent champion of Gorbachev's reforms. He and other Soviet officials fear that the shortage of goods — the workers' inability to spend their money — is the most dire pitfall posed for perestroika. The Soviet Union is in the middle of its worst consumer-shortage crisis in years.

Waiting in line is more than an inconvenience: it is a subculture in Russian life, the ugly face of a faltering society.

One Soviet government statistician estimated that more than 65 million man-hours will be spent by Soviet consumers shopping for phantom products. Sales clerks will spend only 11.6 billion man-hours waiting on them. In all, their shopping time is equal to full-time annual employment for 35 million people.

We came across two examples of what might be called line-lore.

First, the right to stand in line can be inherited. If a parent, who is registered for a piece of furniture or a car, dies, one of the children can inherit the place in line.

Second, an article in 1979 by an author of children's books, Yuri Druzhnikov, depicts lines with humor and pathos: "I was born in a line." It seems his mother was waiting in line to be registered to give birth when labor pains struck. The poor woman had forgotten her papers. She quickly dispatched her husband for the papers, but he returned to find Druzhnikov had been born in a hospital corridor. With some seriousness, Druzhnikov has implied that if Russia didn't have lines, they'd have to invent them. The billions of hours are important "dissipation of energy," a mind-numbing order that keeps many Soviets busy when there is little else to do except drink vodka at home.

The infamous Soviet lines almost instantly form and stretch for blocks on word that a shop has new shoes or some other items available. Young wives to older grandmothers routinely carry just-in-case string tote bags, because they never know when they might jump into a line waiting for fresh meat or other goods.

The term Russian workmanship may still be a laughable oxymoron.

Polish sphinx cracks a smile

WARSAW — Poland's president, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, is also Poland's sphinx. His eyes hidden behind tinted glasses, the usually stony set of this mouth betraying no emotion, he certainly does not smile promiscuously. But at a recent meeting with five Americans, the stone cracked and he smiled, even laughed.

A man, he said musingly, is on a tightrope stretched high above a street, with no net below. It is raining, the wind is gusting. And he is playing a violin. (Jaruzelski crooked his left arm and with his right he vigorously drew an imaginary bow across an imaginary violin.) "And people say, 'He's no Paganini!'" The general laughed at his jest.

The tightrope metaphor is a tantalizing exercise in reticence, a quality essential to survival in the Soviet orbit. Toward what is the tight rope walker edging? Democracy? The general, dressed like a banker, does not say that. But he sounds like a Polish patriot as he favors his American guests with a litany of the difficulties — civil war, racial strife, depression — American democracy has experienced in 200 years. Again, his message is — at most — implicit. It seems to be: We are doing, quickly and stealthily, what you have done with much turmoil when you were less constrained by time and circumstances.

Jaruzelski sounds like a conservative Republican when giving examples of excessive entitlements — long, paid pregnancy leaves, for example — that must be pruned if Poland is to become productive. The rococo system of controls must be dismantled and the thick fabric of subsidies must be unraveled. But this means a blast of inflation. Because things must get worse before they can get better, Jaruzelski speaks like a Chicago alderman bent on assembling a broad social base for the government.

Poland is suffering shortages of almost everything — meat, machinery, poetry — but perhaps its most pressing need is a new, more inspiring metaphor to replace the medicinal metaphors. Everyone here talks about the coming doses of "bitter medicine."

When necessities such as milk and meat are, in a blink, four to ten times more expensive, it may seem unfeeling, even fatuous, to call for a more cheerful vocabulary. However, another name for the bitter medicine Poland has just begun to taste is: freedom. And over the long haul, freedom is fun. It works.

A foreign-ministry official, pausing with a forkful of Baltic herring, reminds a visitor, "We are not alone in the world." Reticence about the Russian bear to the east comes naturally in a nation that has had themisfortune to exist (when it has existed, it disappeared from the European map from 1795 to 1981) near large, voracious neighbors.

Someone once said, rather hardheartedly, of Poland's history: If you pitch your tent in the middle of Fifth Avenue, you should expect to be hit by buses. Tanks, in Poland's case, Europe's northern plain is perfect for blitzkriegs.

But today East German's population is leaking westward through the porous papier-mache curtain between Hungary and Austria. And between Poland and Russia, the Baltic states are in a rolling boil. They are reminding the world, at exactly the right moment, of this exquisitely embarrassing — to the Kremlin — fact: The Soviet Union is the only nation that was allied with Hitler when the war began but did not as a result suffer a rupture of its regime.

The Soviet regime, with all the troubles piled on its plate, probably cannot afford to think much about, let alone intervene in, Poland. But Soviet pressure need not come noisily, with clanking tanks. It could come silently, in reduced flows of iron, oil and cotton.

And Solidarity now faces an identity crisis. It cannot be both what it has been and what it now is: both a trade union and a government, a militant arm of an interest and a conciliating institution.

Poland's Communist Party has acquiesced, so far, in Solidarity exercising power. Is Poland still a communist country? If by that phrase one means a country with a majority of convinced communists, there never has been a communist country, anywhere. However, today the aims and values of Poland's government more closely resemble those of all the NATO governments than those of any Warsaw Pact government, with the possible exception of Hungary's.

However, Poland's communist apparatchiks still control enough institutions to cause the new government to fall. Do the communists want it to? We come back to the sphinx, The Man Who Is No Paganini.

One logs to insinuate this thought in among Jaruzelski's information about the United States: The eyes of visitors to Washington are drawn irresistibly to the towering monument to a general. His greatest act was one of renunciation, a refusal to keep or receive powers that would have had a stunting effect on his nation's nascent democracy.

A tantalizing exercise in reticence.

Blood drive fails to reach goal; effort extended through weekend

By LARRY L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A blood drive Thursday failed to net the number of units needed for the Labor Day weekend, a representative from the Central Florida Blood Bank said yesterday.

Sandy Winkler said 38 donors gave at the bank's Sanford branch Thursday, down from 39 donors last year. The donors helped contribute to the 1,000 units collected in Central Florida during the Blood Brotherhood Day drive.

Central Florida Blood Bank will continue its drive in Seminole County at the Sanford branch today until 7 p.m. and through the weekend at Flea World. Donors who give at Flea World will receive "Lotto Picker" or "Pick 6" T-shirts. Hours for donation are between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. Saturday through Monday.

Although the bank met last year's goal of 1,000 units, Winkler said, this year's goal was set at 1,100 units to accommodate the area's growth. The blood bank serves 30 hospitals in seven central Florida counties, including three hospitals in Seminole County.

The bank serves a need of 200 units per day for the seven-county area, Winkler said.

Ray Bartholomew of Central Florida Regional Hospital said the hospital calls in its daily inventory to the blood bank. The bank sends extra units when the hospital falls below its standard supply, she said.

Central Florida Regional Hospital does not plan ahead for the Labor Day weekend, Bartholomew said, but keeps a close count of its supply.

Winkler said the drive is held in anticipation of an increase in auto accidents. Because the holiday is the last chance many families have to get away before school kicks into high gear, she said, many more drivers are on the road. She said the bank has to expect that many of the drivers will be celebrating with alcohol, contributing to highway hazards.

Summer months create a crunch for the bank, Winkler said. Memorial Day, July 4 and Labor Day all carry a heavy demand for blood, she said.

munication system so our law enforcement can respond to property in the county." He said Miami and Chicago had problems with the 800 mhz system and there were problems with it in this county.

Sturm retorted that he has heard of no problems with the 800 mhz system in this county, and said if Lake Mary is interested in discussing an interlocal agreement on law enforcement in that area, it could be worked out. He said there are only about four properties along the boulevard in that area, and it is doubtful that any of the owners would see any advantage in coming into the city.

Other proposed Lake Mary annexations mentioned are: The Highland Court area off Country Club Drive, where some properties on Parr Place and Highland Court are split between the city and county; a small parcel near the junction of County Road 427 and Highway 17-92 to square up city boundaries; and a small parcel on the north side of 427.

The county transportation plans affecting Lake Mary consist of extensions of Rinehart Road north of 46A to Highway 46, and International Drive north to Highway 46 on the west side of 1-4.

Jim Bible, deputy county administrator, said right of way the two projects would be purchased by the end of the year and contracts should be let next year. "Traffic studies indicate much of the southbound traffic from Volusia County on I-4 is looking for a way to get over to Highway 17-92 and continue south and we will be looking at roads between Highway 46 and 46A to facilitate this," Bible said.

Duryea said funneling traffic into Lake Mary from that area could create a bottleneck in the city if plans are not made for south of Lake Mary Boulevard. He said Rinehart Road is already becoming congested, and extending it to Highway 46 will increase traffic on it.

The two commissions decided to set up a committee consisting of representatives of the county, Lake Mary and Sanford to discuss road projects and problems in the area between Highway 46 and Lake Mary Boulevard east of 1-4.

One of the proposed roads to be discussed is the so-called Hospital Road, which only exists on some maps. The road would extend from an extension of Main Road at Five Points north through county and Seminole Community College land to connect with Lake Mary Boulevard.

Sturm said the county owns a 25-foot-wide right of way through most of the proposed route, and would have to buy additional land if the road is to be built. He said the county does not want the project to be a county one, but a joint one between Sanford, Lake Mary and the county.

Lake Mary officials expressed interest in relieving the traffic on County Road 427 and Country Club Road generated by Seminole Community College.

Doug Robinson of Lake Mary asked about improving the traffic light synchronization on Lake Mary Boulevard just east of 1-4. He said during morning rush hour it takes a long time to get through those two stop lights and on to 1-4 as it does to drive the rest of the way to Orlando on the interstate.

Steve Decker, county traffic engineer, said the lights are controlled by a clock and are set to make sure traffic can get off the ramps from 1-4, and can turn onto Lake Emma Road. He said since the speed limit on 1-4 has been raised to 65 mph in that area, it is even more important to make sure traffic on 1-4 can get off onto Lake Mary Boulevard and not back up onto the freeway.

The clocks have just been reset so the lights will be flashing from 10 p.m. to 9 a.m., which will relieve morning rush hour traffic getting on 1-4 from Lake Mary Boulevard, he said. Traffic will be monitored and adjustments made as needed over the next month, he said.

Fesa closed the meeting by urging the county to move forward on a recycling plan in compliance with the new state law mandating such plans. He also urged the commissioners to adopt an arbor ordinance similar to Lake Mary's "that not only requires the replacement of trees destroyed, but puts more emphasis on trying to save existing trees."

point, but Henderson said he did not feel like Martinez abandoned him.

"There were a lot of lonely days and nights when I felt like I was in this by myself," Henderson said. "I never felt neglected or isolated from the governor, personally."

If he had it all to do over, Henderson said, he would take a "meat-ax" approach to DOT's top management. Instead of retaining some officials who were later found to be responsible for mismanaging the department's budget.

In the last year, DOT has had to postpone a majority of its road-construction program because it lacked funds.

"My experience the last year was the best argument for meat-ax management — meaning, clean them out early — that I know of," Henderson said.

Henderson said he was too kind-hearted when he took over the department by allowing the assistant secretary and comptroller to remain in their positions.

Later, he said, the department learned that its spending plan — a responsibility of the assistant secretary and comptroller — bore no relationship to the money available.

For all of DOT's problems, Henderson said the strategic plan calling for $40 billion-worth of projects during the next 10 years is a sound plan. Some of the responsibility for road construction, however, should be turned over to local governments, he added.

Henderson said his successor will have an advantage in trying to resolve the state's transportation problems because he or she will not have to contend with the sort of criticism that drove him to resign two months ago.

Martinez has appointed Ben Watts, a veteran DOT administrator, to serve as acting secretary while a permanent replacement is sought.

Henderson said he plans to open a consulting business in Tallahassee that will provide services to developers who need help on environmental matters.

flying guests and entertainment to the hotel from Orlando, and offering rides to the public. Divisional Jim, a disc jockey at Q98 radio, was to land on Lake Monroe with Braunig today at 3 p.m. for a party at Fitzgerald's bar. He will host the party until 7 p.m.

From 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. tomorrow through Monday, Braunig will offer 30-minute rides to the public for $39 per person.

Braunig recommends proper attire for the flights: bathing suits. "It gets real hot up there. You have to dress for it," he said.

Braunig, 40, is a 727 pilot with more than 12,000 flight hours for USAir. His idea for Braunig Aeromarine, an instruction, leasing and sightseeing firm in Daytona Beach, came out of his thesis while studying at Embry-Riddle Aeronautical Institute in Daytona. He began his sea plane career flying between Miami and the Bahamas.

The LA-4-200 plane holds three passengers, can travel 130 miles per hour and can go up to 14,000 feet. The plane, approved by the Federal Aviation Administration and Coast Guard, can take off in only 700 feet on land and 1,100 feet on water.

Jeff Blackstone, Holiday Inn manager, said the hotel is booked for the entire Labor Day weekend. Some of the activities for hotel guests and local residents will be barbecues, bikini contests and live entertainment.

Other Labor Day weekend activities planned for Seminole County are:

• The Central Florida Labor Council will sponsor a Labor Day picnic tomorrow at 10 a.m. at Campdown in Orlando. The picnic will be open to all members. The picnic site is located off Boggy Creek Road between SR 528 and the Bee Line expressway.

• The Veterans of Foreign War Post 5405 and its Ladies Auxiliary will host a barbecue Monday at noon at the post, 420 N. Edgemon Ave., Winter Springs. Tickets are $5 for adults, $3 for children.

• Anheuser-Busch wholesalers will sponsor a Pit Stop at the I-4 rest stop in Longwood from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. today, and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. tomorrow through Monday. Free soft drinks, coffee, snacks and alcohol education materials will be available to travelers. Pit Stops are offered during peak travel times, such as Labor Day and spring break, in an attempt to prevent traffic accidents and fatalities.

Highway Patrol Lt. Chuck Williams said 76 percent of the holiday fatalities last year were alcohol related and he encouraged weekend parties to take advantage of free ride programs or to use the designated driver program.

American Automobile Association (AAA) surveys in Central Florida show that the average price for a gallon of regular unleaded gas at a self-service station is $1.03.4, which is down 4.5 cents from July. Mid grade gas at the same station is down 3.1 cents to $1.13 per gallon and premium unleaded is down 3.4 cents to $1.22.6 per gallon.

At full service stations, regular unleaded gas is down only 4 cents per gallon to $1.39.2, mid range gas remained the same at $1.45.1 per gallon and premium unleaded is up .4 cents to $1.55.7 per gallon.

"Normally gas prices go up at this time of year," noted Kathleen Wilkins of the AAA public affairs office in Miami.

"but this year, the prices were artificially raised due to the Alaska oil spill and the drop we're seeing now is probably a reflection of the true value."

Volusia County law enforcement officers will be cracking down on speeders, drunk drivers and strictly enforcing parking rules and speed limits on the county's beaches this weekend, said Sgt. Tammy Caruso of the county's beach department.

"Labor Day Weekend is always one of the busiest weekends of the year and all of our part-timer and rearsers, as well as all our part-time people will be working," Caruso said.

Enforcement of beach rules will be even more involved that usual, she said because of new jet ski zones which just went into effect Thursday. The driver of all vehicles coming onto the beach with a jet ski will be handed a pamphlet explaining where jet skiing is allowed.

Sgt. Caruso said beach deputies will be busy, not only on the beach, but also in boats, enforcing the new jet ski zones.

Radar will be in use on Volusia County beaches and the 10 mph speed limit will be strictly enforced, she said. "There are a lot of children running back and forth to the water and drivers need to be especially careful and the speed zone will be strictly enforced," she said.

Another beach rule that is not always enforced will be this weekend — the rule that says beachgoers cannot sit beside their vehicles which are parked on the beach.

"With the expected crowd, we are going to need all the parking spaces that are available, so no one will be allowed to sit next to their vehicle and take up parking space," she said.

Herald staff writers Brad Church and Vicki DeFornier also contributed to this report.

Recession fears eased

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The government said today that its gauge of future economic activity, the Index of Leading Indicators, increased 0.2 percent in July and did not fall in June, as previously estimated. In another indication that the economy has slowed down but is not recession-bound.

The Commerce Department's Bureau of Economic Analysis said that the index grew by 0.3 percent in July to a level of 144 on a base of 100 in 1982, but it is still below its December 1988 level of 145.

In the first seven months of 1989, the index fell at an annual rate of 1.2 percent in contrast with a 4.9 percent advance in the same period of 1988, a year in which the economy grew by 4.4 percent.

July's gain in the index, which anticipates the direction of the economy six to nine months in advance, was a little below economists' expectations of a 0.3 percent growth for that month.

The fluctuating behavior of the index since January prompted fears that the economy might go into a recession in the second half of the year. The index, after increasing in January, fell in February and March, then recovered in April but dropped again in May.

The bureau today revised its previous estimates.

On the basis of revised estimates, the index was unchanged in June. Last month, the bureau reported that the index dropped 0.1 percent in June and fell 1.3 percent in May.

said Logue, who participated in the hunt last year.

Trapping in the Seminole County area will be at Lake George, Lake Harney, Puzzle Lake and south of SR 520, Logue said.

The hunt is the second one organized by the state since it lifted last year a 26-year ban on alligator hunting, and as the number of applications demonstrates, it has become a very popular event, officials said Thursday.

"It's hard to say exactly why, but one reason is there's a good deal of money to be made," said Scott Ball of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission in Tallahassee.

"A good-sized alligator, say a 10-footer, can bring in $500 for a trapper," said Ball, noting that there is a market for the hide, meat, skulls, teeth and even some organs.

"One guy called here last year asking that we tell the trappers he'd buy the gall bladders," he said. The caller explained only that he wanted them for "scientific use."

The bag limit is 15 alligators per trapper for the month-long season, and only alligators that are four feet or longer can be taken. Hunting is allowed only at night, and baited hooks are prohibited.

Ball said the most common method used by trappers is a snare or harpoon "or even a bow and arrow." "The alligators must be killed immediately, and the only firearm that trappers are allowed to use is a "bangstick," a tube that contains a single shotgun shell.

According to officials, the state-sponsored hunt does not appear to have had much effect on illegal poaching, which is an increasing problem in protected areas.

For instance, federal officials in Jacksonville earlier this week charged four men with poaching alligators from a Citrus County wildlife refuge.

The four are charged with taking three alligators from Chassowitzka National Wildlife Refuge earlier this year during night-hunting expeditions.

Each of the counts carries a penalty of one year in jail and a fine of $100,000.

U.S. personnel to leave for Colombia

WASHINGTON — Military support personnel were packed and ready to depart for Colombia today to await the arrival of the first U.S. military equipment under President Bush's $68 million emergency anti-drug aid package.

Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams described the first contingent as a "small group" of "support personnel" that will begin logistical preparations for the unloading of U.S. military equipment for the Colombians.

Defense officials declined to specify the size of the group, its home base or the time it was scheduled to leave the United States or arrive in the South American nation.

"We hope to begin the process of shipping equipment to Colombia on Sunday. That's our target date," Williams said Thursday, adding that two C-130 cargo airplanes likely would be the first to go.

The Pentagon was reviewing a list of the military equipment requested by Colombia to combat drug cartels. The list is expected to include helicopters, small A-37 attack planes, reconnaissance craft and various weapons.

Flag burning issue still alive

WASHINGTON — Supporters of a constitutional amendment against flag burning tried to reignite passion in their cause by showing off more than 1 million signatures supporting the move, but conceded they face a very tough road in the House.

The signatures were collected by the American Legion, the nation's largest veterans' organization, and the group's national commander, R.F. Gierke, said Thursday between 40,000 to 60,000 new signatures are being rounded up each day.

"These signatures are from citizens from every state," Gierke said. "They are just the beginning of a nationwide outpouring of support."

Despite that backing, however, President Bush's proposed constitutional amendment to outlaw flag desecration faces a difficult road in Congress, where Democratic leaders in the House believe it would improperly curtail free speech.

Instead, they have suggested a simple bill to make flag desecration illegal, which they say will accomplish the same goal without tampering with the Constitution.

Bush, Japanese leader to discuss trade

WASHINGTON — President Bush, breaking away today from his vacation in Maine, arranged to meet with new Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu to reaffirm ties and discuss a growing rift in trade relations.

Bush planned to fly in from Maine for the Oval Office meeting and a luncheon in honor of Kaifu. After a few hours in the nation's capital, Bush was to return to his summer estate in Kennebunkport, Maine, to finish his vacation on Labor Day.

Besides trade, high on the agenda for the talks was the U.S. demand for a greater sharing of the defense burden by Japan in the Pacific Ocean. The two leaders also were expected to discuss differences over human rights abuses in China.

While Japan is more inclined to accept the status quo in Beijing, the United States has condemned the crackdown on student protests earlier this year.

Also to be reviewed were the problems of Cambodia and debt issues of the Third World.

Bakker evaluation underway

United Press International

BUTNER, N.C. — Jim Bakker, once accustomed to preaching to an enormous and generous television audience, will have few freedoms while in custody at a federal psychiatric hospital. He may not even evangelize among his fellow inmates.

"Patients here are under the same constraints as inmates," said Dr. Sally Johnson, chief psychiatrist at the Butner Correctional Institution. "They are not allowed to leave. They can make phone calls, if a phone is available. They are locked in their rooms at night."

"Mr. Bakker will not be allowed to minister because we do not allow any interaction between the patients," Johnson said.

Bakker, 49, was committed to Butner Thursday by U.S. District Judge Robert Potter for psychiatric evaluation after the lawyers representing the evangelist in his federal fraud and conspiracy trial in Charlotte said the PTL founder had suffered a nervous breakdown.

The lawyers and his psychiatrist agreed that the stress of his trial on fraud charges stemming from his money-raising tactics at PTL sent him into psychotic depression.

"Mr. Bakker, at the present time, is manifesting evidence of severe psychiatric, emotional regression," the psychiatrist, Dr. Basil Jackson of Milwaukee, testified at a competency hearing. "When I left him 10 minutes ago he was lying in his attorney's office in the fetal position with his head under the couch."

"(Wednesday) he was actively hallucinating," Jackson said. "Mr. Bakker reported when he left the courthouse suddenly the people outside took on the form of frightening animals which he felt were bent on destroying him."

The people Bakker faced outside the courthouse were reporters, photographers and television film crews from around the world.

Benzine removal ordered

Service stations must control emissions when tankers unloaded

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Environmental Protection Agency moved to reduce industrial emissions of benzene, a cancer-causing chemical released in a wide variety of manufacturing processes and at gasoline stations.

The EPA said benzene emissions from factories would be cut by 90 percent by new pollution-control requirements affecting, among others, the steel, petroleum, chemical, drug and rubber tire industries as well as the nation's gasoline marketing network, including 390,000 service stations.

At a news briefing Thursday for reporters, however, EPA officials acknowledged industrial facilities accounted for only 20 percent of the total benzene pollution in the nation's air. They said the remaining 80 percent of the benzene problem comes from motor vehicles, either in the form of exhaust or evaporative emissions from the fuel system. EPA officials said they were addressing that problem through other rules requiring changes in the composition of gasoline, which contains benzene.

The agency said benzene is one of the most common toxic air pollutants found in the nation's air and poses health risks to roughly 100 million people living near industrial plants.

The EPA's rules are intended to ensure that those facing the biggest exposure to benzene — an estimated 300,000 people — would have no more than a one in 10,000 risk of contracting cancer. The remaining 99 percent of the exposed population would face a cancer risk of one in a million or less.

The new rules primarily affect industrial plants, but they also will require gasoline station owners to control benzene emissions released when gasoline tanker trucks fill underground storage tanks.

World War II outbreak noted

United Press International

BONN, West Germany — East and West Germany began commemorations to mark the 50th anniversary of the outbreak of World War II, emphasizing that war and fascism should never again "emerge from German soil."

"The main historical lesson of Sept. 1, 1939, is that we should never again allow fascism to emerge," the official East German newspaper, Neues Deutschland, said Thursday in an editorial marking the anniversary.

The newspaper quoted a recent statement by East German leader Erich Honecker, who said the ruling Communist Party had sworn "that never again will war emerge from German soil."

Wolfgang Mischneck, a senior West German Foreign Ministry official, used exactly the same words in an article published Thursday to mark Adolf Hitler's Sept. 1, 1939, invasion of Poland that triggered World War II.

Several religious and other events were scheduled for Thursday and today to mark the outbreak of the 5 1/2-year war that devastated much of Europe and killed 55 million people, including about 6 million Jews exterminated in Hitler's infamous death camps.

Speaking at a ceremony in West Berlin, the leader of the West German Jewish community said the Nazis' extermination campaign reduced the once important Jewish community in Eastern Europe to "a tiny group of people."

In a message to his Polish counterpart, Wojciech Jaruzelski, West German President Richard von Weizsaecker said, "The victims are innumerable, the suffering beyond description, which affected people during and after the war."

"Who could ever forget the fate of the Polish and European Jews in Auschwitz, Majdanek, Treblinka, Sobibor and elsewhere on Polish territory," he said.

Von Weizsaecker also assured the Polish leader West Germany had no territorial claims on Poland.

The statement drew sharp criticism from the extreme right-wing Republican Party, which claimed only a reunited Germany — East and West — would have a mandate to resolve Poland's borders with Germany.

Legally, the German empire continues to exist within the 1939 boundaries, which include large parts of modern Poland, because there has been no treaty ending World War II and settling sovereignty over territories.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, who is due to visit Poland this year, is expected to deal with the subject in a major speech to parliament today at a special session to mark the outbreak of the war.

Another row erupted in Bonn over a peace group's plan to put up a statue dedicated to World War deserters on the capital's Freedom Square, formally called Adolf Hitler Square.

The group had obtained permission to put up the monument, but Bonn's conservative City Council asked the high court to reverse the decision. By Thursday afternoon no final decision had been reached on the matter.

Noriega names new president

PANAMA CITY, Panama — The government dominated by Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega appointed controller Francisco Rodriguez as president after international mediation failed to help negotiate a change of power before a constitutional deadline.

Rodriguez Thursday became the seventh president named during Noriega's regime, which has resisted two years of U.S.-backed opposition efforts to oust the general accused of drug trafficking.

Moldavian language adopted

MOSCOW — Moldavian lawmakers defied veiled warnings from the Kremlin and the demands of more than 80,000 striking Russian and Ukrainian workers and established Moldavian as the Soviet republic's official language.

"The Moldavian Supreme Soviet today adopted an amendment to the constitution of the republic, which determines that the state language of the Moldavian republic is the Moldavian language," the official Tass news agency said.

The action Thursday means Russian no longer is officially the primary language of government and commerce in the tiny southwestern republic.

In passing the constitutional amendment, the parliament also voted to replace the Russian Cyrillic alphabet in which Moldavian had been written with the native language's original Latin letters.

Paint factory bombed

United Press International

BOGOTA, Colombia — A dynamite blast made the "earth shake" outside a paint factory in the Medellin drug cartel's hometown, wounding 12 people in the Colombian cocaine traffickers' newest offensive against the government.

Drug-financed hit squads also were blamed Thursday for two bombings overnight in Medellin, where police were enforcing a dusk-to-dawn curfew following a rash of attacks on government-owned businesses and political offices.

Police in Medellin initially said the Thursday morning explosion at the Pintuco paint plant was caused by a ground-to-ground rocket fired from a nearby hill, but authorities later said the blast came from a 33-pound dynamite bomb.

The bomb, which touched off a huge fire at the factory, wounded 12 people and damaged 50 cars and 12 other buildings, police said. Only three of the injured remained hospitalized Thursday night, they said.

"I felt the earth shake and I fell to the ground," a candy vendor who was working in the area told a Bogota radio station.

B*IN BRIEF*AMERICAN LEAGUE*Gladden lifts Twins over Texas

MINNEAPOLIS — Dan Gladden collected two hits and two RBI to back the pitching of David West and Jeff Reardon Thursday night, helping the Minnesota Twins hang on to a 8-6 victory over the Texas Rangers.

West, 2-0, allowed three runs on five hits in seven innings. He walked three and struck out six in his second win since coming from the Mets in trade for Frank Viola. Jeff Reardon pitched the ninth for 28th save.

Texas starter and loser Bobby Witt, 10-12, gave up six runs on nine hits in seven innings. He walked six and struck out three.

Minnesota jumped to a 1-0 lead in the first when Al Newman walked, advanced on Wally Backman's walk, and scored on Brian Harper's single.

In other action Thursday it was Toronto clubbing Chicago 5-1; Milwaukee sinking Seattle 6-1; Cleveland belting Baltimore 11-0; Boston clipping California 5-2; and Kansas City downing Detroit 3-0.

BOXING*Zaragoza defends title easily

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Daniel Zaragoza of Mexico City retained his WBC super bantamweight title Thursday night with a 10th-round TKO of veteran Frankie Duarte.

Zaragoza, 121 pounds, dominated Duarte the entire fight, mauling him with combinations to the head and body until referee Dr. Jen Kin stopped it at 1:54 of the 10th round of a scheduled 12-round bout.

Zaragoza improved to 39-4-1 with 22 KOs. Duarte, Los Angeles, dropped to 45-8-1 and said after the fight that it was his final bout.

Zaragoza, 31, making his fourth defense, won the 122-pound title with a 10th-round knockout of Carlos Zarate in February 1988. Duarte, 35, who turned pro in 1973, was never a world champion. He was the No. 2-ranked bantamweight in 1976.

IN COURT*Canseco signs no contest plea

SAN FRANCISCO — Oakland Athletics slugger Jose Canseco signed a negotiated plea of "no contest" and was found guilty Thursday of a misdemeanor charge that he carried a loaded pistol in his car.

Canseco signed a waiver of his rights and agreed to the plea in exchange for three years of unsupervised probation, 80 hours of visits to hospital pediatric wards and a pledge he will take 100 underprivileged children to ballgames.

He also agreed to be searched by police at any time, according to the decision by San Francisco Municipal Court Judge J. Dominique Olovenady.

Olovenady warned, however, if Canseco felt he was being harassed by needless searches he could ask to have that condition dropped.

Canseco did not appear for the brief court session.

The Oakland outfielder and 1988 American League Most Valuable Player is the only major leaguer ever to hit 40 home runs and steal 40 bases in the same season.

NATIONAL LEAGUE*Rasmussen, Grant quiet Phils

SAN DIEGO — Dennis Rasmussen and Mark Grant combined on a five-hitter and Benito Santiago hit a three-run home run Thursday, leading the San Diego Padres to a 5-1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Rasmussen, 8-9, retired the first 16 batters and held the Phillies hitless through six innings.

The Phillies first hit in the seventh also led to their only run. After Lenny Dykstra had walked, Tom Herr lined a single and Dykstra scored when John Kruk followed with a single.

Rasmussen, Grant went the rest of the way allowing three hits and gained his second save.

San Diego took a 1-0 lead in the second. Jack Clark led off with a double off Don Carman, 4-15, and scored on Chris James' single.

In the sixth, consecutive one-out singles by James and Garry Templeton put runners at first and second. Santiago then belted his ninth homer of the year off Carman to give the Padres a 4-0 advantage.

Oviedo cashes in 'Noles

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

LONGWOOD — Oviedo's offense thrived where Seminole's faltered as the Lions posted a 14-7 victory in the fall football jamboree before 2,501 fans at Lyman High School.

Seminole marched up and down the field but could not put the ball in the endzone. Oviedo came up with two scoring opportunities and cashed in on both of them to take the win.

"I'd rather be lucky than bad," Oviedo coach Jack Blanton said. "We need to work on our tackling."

Seminole racked up 202 yards offense, 189 coming from the arm of junior quarterback Kerry Wiggins, but had trouble turning its drives into points.

Seminole fumbled the ball through the endzone on its last possession with just under a minute to play and had another touchdown called back on a penalty.

"We didn't get any breaks tonight," Seminole coach Emory Blake said. "We had the right calls at the right times and Kerry (Wiggins) executed well but we just didn't have any luck. When Oviedo fumbled the ball bounced right back to them, when we fumbled we lost the ball, but that's the way it goes sometimes."

Seminole opened the scoring on the games initial drive, starting at its own 33-yard line. After a yard loss on the opening play Wiggins found Brandon Cash for a 14-yard gain. After a short gain on the ground Wiggins again found Cash, this time for 48 yards and a touchdown with 9:40 to play in the opening quarter.

A Jimmy Franklin interception gave Seminole the ball right back on its 37-yard line with 7:27 remaining in the period. The offense shifted right back into high gear, moving the ball to the Oviedo 12 before Wiggins was dropped for a 12-yard loss. Pat Parlow then attempted a 34-yard field goal that was long enough but hooked left.

Seminole's defense then stopped the Oviedo offense again and moved the ball down to the nine-yard line where Henry Williams darted into the endzone. The play, though, was called back due to a holding penalty.

Oviedo's Hector Diaz then came

Lyman's ground game overruns Deltona

By DEAN SMITH
Herald correspondent

LONGWOOD — The Lyman Greyhounds overcame a sluggish start with two Cedric Bouey touchdown runs and scored a 14-0 win over the Deltona Wolves in the second half of the Lyman Jamboree before 1,501 fans at Greyhound Field Thursday night.

Bouey, a 6-1, 195 lb. junior, picked up where he left off last season with 89 yards on 12 carries including touchdown runs of 2 and 27 yards. Also running well were seniors Marvin Reed and Kennis Morris. Reed rushed for 38 yards on three carries and set up Bouey's first touchdown and Morris carried six times for 25 yards. As a team Lyman rushed for 156 yards on 23 carries and 11 first downs.

The Lyman passing game also looked good despite completing just 2 of 8 passes. At least three passes were dropped making the stats look less impressive. Junior quarterback Jeff Jackson showed a good arm as he completed 2 of 6 passes for 25 yards.

The Lyman defense played very well holding a good Deltona running attack to 12 yards on 10 carries and one first down. Defensive linemen Steve Perry, Len Anderson, and Kane Kettles were constantly in the Deltona backfield making it virtually impossible for the Wolves to get anything started. They came up with one quarterback sack and forced an interception that was picked up by Brian Grayson.

"We got to look at a lot of kids. Everyone got to play," said Greyhound head coach Bill Scott. "We're a young team and it showed early. I think we got good performances out of some people. We'll have to wait to see the films tomorrow to be sure."

When asked about the quarterback battle between Jackson

Dolphins look to get rid of patsies role

United Press International

MIAMI — The Miami Dolphins play Philadelphia Saturday night in a preseason finale speiced by remarks by Eagles' Coach Buddy Ryan that the Dolphins are "patsies."

Early in the week, Ryan told WCAU-TV in Philadelphia that he would like the Eagles to play the Dolphins twice a year because "you want as many patsies on your schedule as possible."

Miami Dolphins Coach Don Shula did not respond, except to say he had other things to worry about besides reacting to Ryan's statements.

Most of the other Dolphins also refused to react, and so did Eagle quarterback Randall Cunningham.

"Ryan does that to everyone," Cunningham said. "I'll try to stay out of that one."

Although the Dolphins hold a 4-2 edge over the Eagles and beat them once in the preseason and once in the regular season in 1987 — the last time they played each other — the Dolphins really have been looking like patsies recently.

Miami is 0-3 in the preseason after a 6-10 record a year ago, while Philadelphia is 3-1 and last year won the NFC East with a 6-10 record before losing a playoff game to Chicago. The Eagles are assured their first winning preseason since 1985, the year before Ryan took over from Marlon Campbell.

A Dolphin loss would give them their worst preseason record at 0-4. The only other time they finished without a win was in 1966, the first year of the franchise.

They are already assured of the worst exhibition record under Shula. Since he took over in 1970, the Dolphins have finished under .500 twice, at 2-3-1 in 1971 and 2-3 last year.

"We realize we've got a long way to go," Coach Don Shula said.

"Defensively, we're not anywhere near where we have to be. Our run defense and pass defense never stopped them," he said, looking back on last weekend's 35-21 loss at Washington. "Offensively, we saw some good things happen, but other times we just fell apart."

The Dolphins are still playing without four key holdouts in starting linemen John Offerdahl and

Lendl, Edberg advance to third round in Open

United Press International

NEW YORK — Ivan Lendl, rushing along to what would be a record-equalling eighth consecutive appearance in the U.S. Open final, brushed aside John Fitzgerald with consummate ease Thursday to gain the third round.

The top seed converted seven of 10 break point opportunities without dropping his own serve once in completing a 6-2, 6-1, 6-1 victory over Australian John Fitzgerald.

Third seed Stefan Edberg, the losing finalist at both Wimbledon and the French Open, was in crisp form during a 6-2, 6-2, 6-2 wipeout of fellow Swede Peter Lundgren.

American teenagers Michael Chang and Andre Agassi also were impressive in straight sets victories. Chang, the French Open champion and No. 7 seed, crushed Swede Thomas Hogstedt, 6-1, 6-3, 6-3, and No. 6 Agassi beat South African Neil Broad, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3.

Agassi said later he expects the young group of American players to be dominant in 1990.

Coming one day after defending champion Mats Wilander and four-time champion John McEnroe both lost, and No. 2 seed Boris Becker was taken to five sets, the sweet successes of Lendl and Edberg further magnified their championship hopes.

Lendl, making his first visit of the week to Center Court, spent merely 1 hour and 18 minutes under a hot sun.

"Don't worry, it's going to get more difficult all the time," Lendl said. "You just take anything that you can while it's there."

Lendl, with a 3-4 record in the last seven finals, would tie a record set by Bill Tilden between 1918-25 if he made it to the championship match for the eighth year in a row.

"Sure, I'm proud of a track record like this," the 29-year-old Lendl said. "I'd be silly not to. But I don't worry about getting to the finals. The only thing I look forward to in getting to the finals is that it means I have a crack at

Lake Mary to host annual cross country jamboree

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

The annual summertime cross country jamboree will continue tomorrow at Lake Mary High School for the first time since its long stint at Seminole Community College.

The meet will feature some of the states best teams and runners. Tampa Leto's boys, the defending state champs, will be on hand to begin the new season.

Other boys teams that have turned in entries are Deltona, Edgewater, Lake Howell, Cocoa Beach, Lake Brantley and host Lake Mary. Other teams have showed interest and are expected to show on the day of the race to register.

Anyone wishing to participate may register till 8:00 a.m. Saturday morning the time for the first race to be run.

"We want everyone to know its not to late to register," Lake Mary's girls cross country coach Mike Gibson said. "We don't have to many people registered in the 19-and-over and 12-and-under races as of yet, we're hoping they show up on the day of the race."

The girls race also has Leto, Edgewater, Deltona, Lake Howell and Lake Mary entered along with Titusville Astronaut and partial teams from a variety of different schools.

The first competition of the day will be the 12-and-under one-mile race. The race will also be split into three different age groups, 8-and-under, 9-10, and 11-12 with awards being separated into each group.

Awards will be a medal to the winners of each age group and with the top five receiving a ribbon. In the 13-18 division medals will go to the top ten with ribbons given out to places 11-50.

The 19-over race, with age groups of 19-29, 30-39, 40-49, and 50-and above will have the same award system as the 12-and-under competition.

At 8:30 the 13-18 year old girls, or high school division, will run its two mile race. The 13-18 boys will follow at 9 with the last race, the 19-over, to be held at 9:30. The awards ceremony will be immediately following the last race at 10.

The event so far has 115 entries and Gibson is looking for an improvement on that by Saturday when the races are scheduled to begin.

Those who want to register before the final day the cost will be $3 with it going up to $4 on the day of the race. Registration on the final day will begin at 7:30 behind the high school.

Any athletes or coaches wishing any further information should contact either Gibson or Willie Calloway at the high school at 323-2110.

Irish live up to top ranking

United Press International

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Ricky Walters ran for 80 yards and Tony Rice passed for 147 more Thursday night, leading No. 1 Notre Dame to a 36-13 thumping of Virginia in the Kickoff Classic.

Rice, named the game's Most Valuable Player, completed 7 of 11 passes and ran for a touchdown and Anthony Johnson ran for two more scores as the Fighting Irish scored on their first five possessions and were never challenged.

The Fighting Irish racked up a 333-60 advantage in total yardage by halftime. Rice left the game with 4:24 left in the first half, but returned in the fourth quarter to direct the Fighting Irish to a field goal.

Raghib Ismail caught 5 passes for 121 yards, and Walters had 2 receptions for 42 yards with 3 punt returns for 67 yards. Rice also ran 8 times for 70 yards.

Shawn Moore led the Cavaliers

by completing 10 of 22 passes for 80 yards and Virginia's only score. Marcus Wilson led Virginia in rushing with 15 carries for 80 yards. Freshman running back Terry Kirby ran 11 times for 31 yards.

Notre Dame needed all of nine plays and 4:14 to take a 7-0 lead. On the third play of the game, Todd Lyght intercepted a Moore pass and returned it to the Virginia 31-yard line. Six plays later, Walters went around right end for the touchdown.

The Fighting Irish pushed their lead to 13-0 on a 1-yard drive by Anthony Johnson. Walters returned a punt 34 yards to the Notre Dame 43, and Rodney Culver ran 12 yards and Walters 10 to set up the score.

Rice's first pass of the game went 52 yards and helped give the Irish a 19-0 lead with 1:26 left in the opening quarter. On the first play of the possession, Rice went over the middle for Ismail, who wrested the ball from Jason Wallace and went down at the Virginia 2. Culver went over for the touchdown on the next play.

Notre Dame marched 87 yards in 14 plays on its next possession, with Johnson going over from one yard out for the score. Rice hit Ismail with a 24-yard pass on the drive.

Rice completed passes of 26 yards to Ismail and 30 yards to Walters to complete the first-half onslaught. Rice scored on a 3-yard keeper to give the Fighting Irish a 33-0 halftime lead.

The Cavaliers, who failed to penetrate Notre Dame territory until midway through the third quarter, broke the shutout in the opening minutes of the final period with the help of an Irish penalty.

Virginia drove from its own 20 but was stopped four times from inside the Notre Dame 5, including two tries from the 1. But the Fighting Irish were called offside on the fourth-down play, giving Virginia another chance. Marcus Wilson scored on a dive, but the Cavaliers were flagged for illegal motion.

Kulwicki shakes memories to earn pole at Southern 500

United Press International

DARLINGTON, S.C. — Alan Kulwicki, who spun three years ago during his rookie test at Darlington Raceway, mastered the track Thursday to earn the pole position for this weekend's Southern 500.

It was the Ford driver's fourth pole this season and the 11th of his NASCAR Winston Cup career.

"This is one of the best ones," Kulwicki said about claiming his first pole at the 1.366-mile track. "This has been one of my worst ovals and to make that kind of progress really is a great feeling of accomplishment."

Kulwicki made his Darlington debut in the spring of 1986. He spun during his rookie test but still was allowed to qualify for the race.

"I didn't hit anything," recalled Kulwicki, 34. "I guess they figured if you spun here and you didn't hit anything, you were good enough to be in the race. They passed me."

By winning his second straight pole, Kulwicki qualified for the Unocal 76 Challenge bonus of $144,400. In order to collect the money, Kulwicki must also win the 500-mile race. If he doesn't, another $7,600 will be added to the total.

"You think about it a little bit when Sunday comes," Kulwicki said about the bonus. "But all you can do is go out and do your best. We try to do our best whether it's for $25 or $145,000."

Kulwicki also called winning the pole for the Southern 500 a matter of pride and prestige.

Joining Kulwicki on the front row is Ken Schrader in a Chevrolet. He posted a lap of 100.021 mph.

The car felt OK for qualifying, but I wouldn't want to race it like that," said Schrader, who had to use his race engine after his qualifying powerplant blew during a Thursday morning practice session.

"It was just a little sideways all the way around the track, but it was fast. That was about a tenth and a half faster than we'd been in practice."

Darrell Waltrip, who will receive a $1 million bonus from R.J. Reynolds Tobacco USA if he wins the event, qualified ninth with a lap of 158.479 mph in a Chevrolet.

winning."

Gabriela Sabatini, confident enough that she feels ready to capture her first major, defeated 18-year-old Cathy Caverzasio of Switzerland, 6-3, 6-2, to gain the third round along with French Open champion Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario.

"The way I'm playing I'm ready to win the tournament," Sabatini said. "I'm playing very good tennis now and on a very good level. I just need to concentrate more, to play the whole match the same and not just a few games well."

"I have to try to be tough on every point."

Sabatini, the third seed, was disappointed with her serve, hitting a poor 41 percent of her first serves. However, she was broken only once, in the fourth game of the opening set.

The 19-year-old Argentine has held the No. 3 world ranking since March, and in a bit disappointed she hasn't improved it since then.

"I thought I had a chance to be No. 2 this year," she admitted. "At the beginning of the year I thought I would be. I realize I need a little more time to learn things and to improve."

Ederberg required only an hour and 36 minutes to win his match, breaking service nine times.

"I feel I have a tough draw," Ederberg said. "I just have to work my way through it and see how I do. If I can improve in each match, then I am looking forward to the Open. It will be tough, but I feel positive going into it."

Agassi, suffering through a disappointing year, required only an hour and 28 minutes to dispose of Broad, delivering 10 aces and sealing his service broken once, in the final set.

Later, he sounded an upbeat note about the state of U.S.

tennis.

"I think Chang already has proven himself to be a great player, you have to be a great player to win a Grand Slam event," Agassi said. "But now (Jim) Courier and (Pete) Sampras have played well here against top players."

"Next year you're going to see the Americans come to the forefront. It will be a good year as far as Americans go."

Chang totaled only 15 unforced up with an interception in the endzone and ran it out to its own 12-yard line. Brian MacInnes then moved the Oviedo offense to the Seminole 46-yard line before he found Simon Harper Jr. all alone in the flat for a touchdown.

Harper, a 6-6 sophomore, slipped behind the Seminole secondary and outraced everyone to the endzone with 6:13 left in the second quarter. Ron Worst drilled the point after to even the score at 7-7.

"The defensive back came up and tried to cover a running play," Blake said. "He just blew his assignment and left the guy (Harper) all alone."

Oviedo's Kevin Gutch then came up with a fumble on Seminole's first offensive play and the Lions took over at the Seminole 30-yard line.

Oviedo then punched the ball up the middle twice for no gain before MacInnes found Dana Aiken at the five-yard line before Frank Diaz went in on a sweep to give Oviedo the lead. Worst added the PAT to give the Lions a 14-7 advantage.

"We're young and we're learning," Blanton said. "We don't lack confidence, but we're young and untested."

Blake was happy with Seminole's performance although they, for the most part, beat themselves.

"I think we learned something tonight," Blake said. "We may have lost, but I'll take this kind of loss if it will help us later. Like McArthur said, we shall return."

and senior Paul Bowen Coach Scott still was undecided. "It's still up in the air. I thought they both played well. This (the sideline) is probably the worst place to judge anything. It's been a good healthy competition. They are both good friends and are real competitors. They both will play we're sure of that."

Coach Bob Wallace of the Wolves was not totally displeased with the outcome. "I'm pleased with the effort but not the result. Lyman has a good team. We've made a lot of strides since last spring. Last spring was an embarrassment and the team took it personal. All of the kids got to play and they all worked hard. I'm glad to see them come out and play with intensity they did. I'll have to look at the films before I can point out individual performances."

"I thought we did some good things early in the game when we had the first team in," added Wallace. "We had a couple of plays early that would have gone for big gains if we would have had a little more savvy. Next week we will be much smoother for the season opener."

Deltona star running back senior Les Hewitt carried six times for 14 yards to lead the Wolves offense. The only first down was picked up by junior fullback Matt Headlee who used his only carry to gain 12 yards. Because of the pressure by the Lyman defensive line senior quarterback Tony Niemech was held to 0 for 5 passing and one interception.

The first score of the evening came after a 10 play 72-yard drive. Most of the damage was done by Reed who carried for three straight times for 38 yards.

Anti-spasmodic drug likely not her answer

DEAR DR. GOTT: Several months ago, my 10-year-old was prescribed dicyclomine to be taken three to four times daily for constant stomachaches. X-rays have been negative. Her doctor tells me I'm stressing her and causing her intestines to have spasms. Can you explain the medication and his reasoning?

ought to be addressed. It seems to me the doctor has identified your relations with your child as a problem, but has chosen to virtually ignore them, preferring instead to push pills as an antidote for her symptoms.

DEAR READER: Dicyclomine (Bentyl) is an anti-spasmodic drug used to treat irritable-bowel syndrome. This affliction is attributed to excessive nervousness and stress, resulting in chronic diarrhea, bloating and gas. Your daughter's doctor evidently believed that the emotional pressure you are putting on your child is contributing to bowel spasms. To counteract the spasms, the physician prescribed an anti-spasmodic.

I don't agree with this approach. First of all, dicyclomine has many side effects, including nervousness, drowsiness, dizziness, dry mouth, headache, nausea, insomnia, blurred vision and allergic reactions. Therefore, like any medicine, its use should be carefully monitored and its risk/benefit ratio clearly understood.

Second, I would hesitate giving this medicine to a child because these potential dangers are likely to be exaggerated in a youngster.

Third, I am uncomfortable with the philosophy that states there is a pill for every ailment. This is not the kind of message I want to give to young people, who are basically healthy and, in my opinion, need to be encouraged to avoid taking substances that are not absolutely necessary for good health.

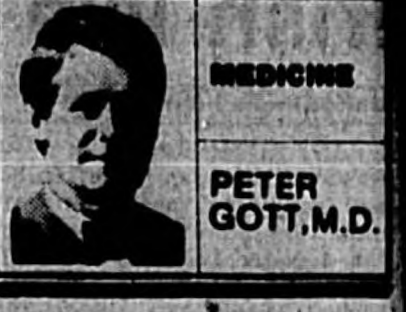

Fourth, if your daughter's problem results from her interaction with you, her mother—and I'm not at all sure it does—I think this interaction

WHAT IS THE TRICK?

By James Jacoby
If declarer had known for sure that West did not hold K-J-10-9-8 of spades, he would have won with dummy's spade ace at the first trick. He could then have come to his hand with a heart to take a diamond finesse. Even if that lost, the defenders would not have been able to take enough tricks to set him. Since the spade king might have been with West, declarer should not be castigated for playing low from dummy at trick one. However, East won the king and switched to the club eight. Declarer covered with the club nine. West won the jack and played another club, ducked by declarer. East played the third club. Declarer won, discarding a diamond from dummy. Declarer could now give up a club to East, and that would give him eight tricks. He would still need the diamond finesse to succeed for his ninth trick. Is there a proper play for the contract? This is a deal that cannot be played from a newspaper diagram. Instead, the declarer must back his judgment at the table. If he thinks it likely that East also holds the diamond king, he must cash the queen and ace of spades and three rounds of hearts ending in his hand. He then throws East on lead with a club. If East has nothing left but diamonds, the contract is made. But if East has a fourth heart, he will cash that trick for down one. More than 20 years ago, Bee Schenken, many times women's national champion, did take the play of cashing out her major-suit winners before throwing East on lead with a club. That was the winning play.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Cool
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Sept. 2, 1989

New vistas will open for you in the year ahead, because you'll discover how to use to your advantage obstacles which previously worked against you. What was once negative will now be transformed into the positive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Usually you're not stingy towards people who historically treat you in a generous fashion, but today this characteristic might surface. Don't let it tarnish your image. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail #2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Family members will respond to you today in the same manner that you treat them. If you are demanding or hypercritical, they'll show you areas where you lack perfection as well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your ability to focus on positive aspects of issues is numbered among your greatest assets. Today, however, you might zero-in on the negative instead of the positive and thereby impair your judgment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Friends with whom you'll be socializing today won't be too eager to pick up your end of the tab. It will make you look rather petty if you fail to pay your fair share.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you hope to achieve your objectives today, you will have to be resilient and thick skinned. If you are too soft or sensitive, you'll get knocked out of the fray in the early rounds.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Realism is essential in order to do well in commercial matters today. Be logical without being a defeatist and don't dwell on shadows where they do not exist.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) An enterprise in which you are presently involved could be subjected to unnecessary delays if you bring a non-contributor into the act. Limit participation to contributors.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In an area where staunch allies are required today use your best judgment to determine how much actual support you truly have. Don't proceed if you are uncertain.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your imagination will be in high gear today, but unfortunately you might use it only for finding clever excuses and rationalizations to set aside duties that you should be attending.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Poking your nose into matters that do not directly concern you could prove to be a sorry mistake today. It might end up penalizing you socially or monetarily.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Unresolved family issues could turn out to be problematic for you today. Try not to say anything that could be interpreted as offensive and, above all, let sleeping dogs lie.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This is one of those days when you may not accomplish anything of real significance. Your goals might be too scattered and you could have a hard time bringing objectives into focus.

SANFORD — Thwaa! Thwaa! Thwaa! Recollections of M*A*S*H go through your head as the chopper lifts you off the ground.
Your pilot, Ken Otto, grins at you. "There's no streetlights or stop signs up here," he comments to you through his headset. Glancing down at the traffic below, you too begin to exult in the aerial freedom.

The helicopter rocks from a draft off of a lake, but Ken reassures you.
The control stick moves easily in his practiced hand as he takes you lower for a look at Seminole High School players doing football scrimmages. Actually, the craft could land on the field with them, since it needs no runway.

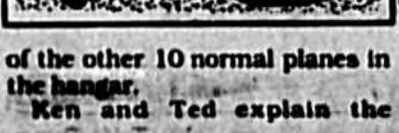

After noting area landmarks and a few dirty swimming pools at ritzy homes, you're back at the Sanford Regional Airport, a little windblown, but not shaken up by the ride.
Ken and his brother, Ted, owners of Aviation Training Associates, give helicopter and airplane rides for the curious and the fun-lovers. Rides are offered at the Sanford Regional Airport from Monday through Saturday from 7:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m., and Sundays by appointment.

Sanford's Monroe Harbor and the Grand Romance riverboat are seen from a bird's eye view.

"It's a very docile, gently-flying aircraft," Ken said of his helicopter.
But Ken's chopper is to a Ferris wheel what Ted's airplane is to a roller coaster.
"It would beat any roller coaster ride in the country as far as thrills and chills," said Ted, an aerobatics pilot.

The Brothers Otto have plenty of experience with them in the pilot's seat.
Ken achieved the rank of captain in the U.S. Army, flew an attack helicopter for six years in Vietnam, and was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Slothful daughter needs help, not life of loafing

EDITOR'S NOTE: Abby is off on a two-week vacation, but she left behind some of her favorite letters taken from her best-selling book, "The Best of Dear Abby."

DEAR ABBY: How can parents get rid of a fat 20-year-old daughter who refuses to look for a job? She says that we gave birth to her for reasons of our own, so we can keep her for the rest of her life.
Eating, sleeping, reading, listening to the radio, doing volunteer work at the local animal shelter and urging her little brother to hang himself is all she has done since graduating from high school 2½ years ago.
Her skill with animals has brought her many good job offers from veterinarians, but she says she refuses to work for money as long as her brother is alive, and she fiercely resents not being an only child.
The police say they cannot help us because she is neither a criminal nor a lunatic. Two doctors have told us they cannot help us because they can't fund anything "wrong" with her. So where do we go from here? We aren't millionaires and we're fed up with...

had dropped out of her mouth while she was in our bed, but later I found the pacifier in the drawer of our nightstand table, and I couldn't for the life of me figure out how it got there.
Then one morning I woke up early and saw my husband sound asleep with the pacifier in his mouth! We had a good laugh over it, and that evening when I fixed the baby's bottle I jokingly asked him if he wanted a bottle too. He said yes, so I fixed him one.
He loved it, so I kept fixing him a bottle right along with the baby's. I took the baby off the bottle when she was 14 months old, but my husband still has one every night, and he is 37. Please don't use our names as my husband is well known here. He works on the space program. Thank you.

Christian groups torn over abortion issues

United Press International

WASHINGTON — An officially sponsored theological consultation in the United Church of Christ said that while "abortion involves death ... for some this choice becomes a decision for life."

In a 960-word "written statement," issued following the consultation held in Craigville, Mass., the 80 participants said they could not reach a consensus on the morality or legality of abortion.

The 1.7 million-member United Church of Christ has, since 1971, repeatedly taken the position that it is a woman's right to choose whether or not to terminate a pregnancy and participants in the Craigville meeting appeared to support that position by about a 5-1 ratio.

But the strong views of the minority also indicate how torn most religious bodies are by the issue, no matter what side of the issue official church pronouncements endorse.

Among Roman Catholics, for example, while the church's hierarchy is strongly opposed to legal abortion, opinion polls generally show Catholics as divided as the rest of the nation, with large numbers of church members opposing the bishops' stand.

The issue is likely to surface again, when the year-old Evangelical Lutheran Church in America holds its first churchwide assembly and begins to formulate its social policy stance and in November, another denomination firmly in support of the right to abortion, the Presbyterian Church (USA) will hold an official "dialogue on abortion."

The Craigville statement said: "Since we couldn't reach consensus about the moment and meaning of personhood, we could not agree on the following issues: the rights of the unborn; the rights of the unborn in situations where rights of the mother, father, grandparents or others are in conflict; whether or not abortion is an acceptable option and the role of civil law in matters pertaining to abortion."

But the participants said they all affirmed "the sanctity of God's whole creation and of human life as uniquely made in the image and likeness of God."

Christian Sharing Center receives food

SANFORD — The Christian Sharing Center received over 600 items of food as a result of a food collection drive by SunBank, WFTV Channel 9, and ARA Linen Supply, according to Kit Carson, Christian Sharing Center food coordinator. The food is worth "roughly $400," Carson said, and will last at least three weeks. The food distribution program was announced on WFTV, and delivered to SunBank in the area. ARA picked the food up and delivered it to needy organizations, of which the sharing center is one.

"All the food went into whatever area it was donated," Carson said. This means that food donated at Seminole County SunBank went to Seminole County charitable organizations, he said. The sharing center also receive a check for $300. This came from the cash donations of people who chose not to give food.

The Christian Sharing Center conducts food drives during the Thanksgiving and Christmas seasons, and this is the first time they have received food donations during another time of year. "We need it, too," Carson said. "People eat 365 days a year, not just on special occasions."

Catholic Bishops support workers' rights

United Press International

The U.S. Catholic Conference, the action arm of the nation's Roman Catholic bishops, says government and business should re-examine policies aimed at breaking or blocking the development of labor unions.

"We need to examine how government policies encourage or discourage employers from campaigns to dismantle established unions, unilaterally rescind health and retirement benefits or restructure so as to block organizing efforts," the bishops said in their annual labor day message. The message was issued by Auxiliary Bishop Joseph Sullivan of New York, chairman of the conference's Committee on Domestic Policy.

Sullivan's statement noted that the church's view that labor unions are "structures that can foster the human development and dignity of workers" has been shown by recent events in Eastern Europe, Africa and Asia.

But in the United States, the statement said, "workers are measurably worse off than they were 10 years ago."

He pointed to "structural changes in the economy," increased reliance on imports, union-breaking efforts and a growing shift to lower-paid, part-time employment."

These changes, he said, have "left millions of Americans without the protection of union" and that has meant "lower living standards, no health benefits and less security for their families."

"A strong trade union movement, with widespread collective bargaining, can strengthen all of society," Sullivan said.

"Strong democratic unions can be the training ground for community leaders," he added. "That is one reason unions have been resisted by totalitarian regimes and why they should be fostered in democratic societies."

Sullivan noted that Catholic social teaching for the past 100 years has supported the rights of workers to organize and bargain collectively and the church believes the right to form unions is not only desirable but necessary "to defend the vital interests of workers and to lead in the struggle for social justice."

Alabama mayor vows to defend football prayer stance

United Press International

MONTGOMERY — The Alabama chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union says it will sue Montgomery Mayor Emory Folmar for leading a pre-game prayer at a public high school football contest last week in apparent violation of a Supreme Court edict banning such action.

The Civil Liberties Union of Alabama said it will sue Folmar for violating a Jan. 3 decision by the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals saying that public prayer before high school football games is unconstitutional.

Folmar, a conservative Republican who recently headed the state GOP, led a prayer session prior to Thursday's season-opening football game between Robert E. Lee and Jess Lanier high schools at Cramton Bowl, a city-owned stadium in downtown Montgomery.

During the prayer, six people who loudly objected to Folmar's action were thrown out of the stadium by police and one man was arrested for resisting arrest during a scuffle over an air horn.

Folmar said his prayer in the stadium did not violate the Supreme Court's edict because it wasn't on school property.

CLUA lawyer Mark McCaffery disagreed. "Emory Folmar broke the law last night," McCaffery said.

Folmar said he's ready to be sued but he won't use taxpayer's money to defend himself.

His secretary said the mayor has been receiving calls of support from across the state, which is predominantly Southern Baptist.

"There's been an outpouring of support," said Ruby Wade. "There's been overwhelming response from all over the state."

Olivia Turner of the CLUA said her office, too, has been swamped with calls. But, she said, those callers are opposing Folmar's stance.

"We continue to get calls from people all over the state who are outraged at the mayor's flagrant violation of the law."

Some say saying grace makes the dinner table more civilized

When Fulton Oursler, the author of "The Greatest Story Ever Told," was a small boy, he noticed that Nettie, the old family retainer, always said grace before she ate.

He once said to her, "Nettie, you would still get your vittles if you didn't pray. So why do you pray?"

Nettie looked at the boy with her wrinkled face and said, "Master Fulton, praying always makes it taste better."

Well, maybe. Paul O'Dwyer, with his own memories of childhood, would be prepared to argue that.

Now a rich Wall Street lawyer, O'Dwyer grew up as a poor farm boy near Galway in Ireland. He never looked forward to Friday night meals because he had an aversion to fish which his mother served on that day with potatoes and "some variety of creamed onions."

Before supper, "seated at her customary place at the head of the table," as O'Dwyer tells the story in his autobiography, "Counsel for the Defense," "my mother would cross herself reverently and, eyes cast upward, thank the Creator for all he had provided: 'Thanks be to God for this lovely meal.'

RELIGION

O'Dwyer recalls that "it had an air of faith but no ring of truth. It was pure propaganda and went down no better than the onions."

Grace at mealtime goes back a long way. At the Last Supper, Jesus "took bread and, when he had given thanks, he broke it and gave it to his disciples." Now we hear that grace has gone out of style. Most families, we are told, don't even eat together any more.

Grace at meals adds tone and civility to the dinner table. Nobody starts eating until grace has been said — and, in the case of the house of my boyhood, nobody left the table after supper until thanks had been given for what we had just eaten.

Vividly, I can recall occasions when, as a teen-ager intent on getting to more urgent concerns, I would get up from the table after I had finished eating, only to hear my mother or father say, "We haven't prayed yet." The only concession that was sometimes accorded my youthful impatience was that I was allowed to say, "We thank thee, Lord, for meat and drink..." before anyone else and I would be excused while the others went on eating.

Mealtimes were certainly not formal occasions at our house. The milk bottle was on the table and we helped ourselves from bowls and platters. But we were civilized. We had to wash our hands before eating and we ate what our mother put before us without complaining. We weren't allowed to say "Yuk!" if some dish didn't appeal to us.

And there was no horseplay or loud talking among us children.

Writer Robert Allen remembers that when he got too rambunctious at the dinner table, his mother would crack him behind the ear with her knuckle and says sternly, "Robert, you're at the table!"

My mother never actually did that — but we were often admonished with those words of Robert's mother. We knew what that meant.

At family gatherings today, I often use this prayer of my own making:

"Oh God, we thank thee for those thou hast given us in this world to love, for those who have loved us and who love us still, both in heaven and on Earth. Bless be the tie that binds our hearts in Christian love. And God be with us till we meet again."

But when I am alone I still use the prayer I learned at home: "Come, Lord Jesus, be our guest, and let these gifts to us be blessed."

Nettie was right. It does make it taste better — unless, in Paul O'Dwyer's case, it's fish and creamed onions for supper.
