

School Breakfasts: No Second(s) Handy, Proposal Shelved

By LEONARD KRANSDORF Herald Staff Writer

A motion to establish a school-supervised breakfast program in Seminole County died for lack of a second Wednesday night.

The motion was made by the only board member in favor of the idea, Roland Williams. When he made the motion, his four colleagues remained silent, killing the issue.

The four school board members opposed to a breakfast program in the schools: Pat Telson, Allan Keeth, William Kroll and Robert Feather, board chairman, agreed unanimously breakfast for school children is the responsibility of parents.

After almost 20 speakers took about 45 minutes for pro and cons on the program Williams moved to establish a pilot program. Silence followed.

"I just believe it is the parents' responsibility to feed, clothe and care for the child," said Kroll. "If you can show me a child who cannot pour milk on cereal then there has to be something wrong with the child if there is food in the house.

"If there is no food in the home, then it is the parents' responsibility to get it through food stamps, but it is not the school board's responsibility," Kroll added.

Mrs. Telson agreed: "We are here to educate, and I think we are taking care of our obligation. I think the one thing we should do which we do, is to educate the child on what is good nutrition. But it is up to parents to feed them. The proposed program would have been funded through federal monies and would have consisted of orange juice, milk and cereal, school food personnel said. Breakfast would be available to any student and those

For schools who do not have clinics, Kroll suggested the student could be given the food in another office, such as the assistant principal's.

An office employee at Southside Elementary School said the program has been in effect about two months, "but it's too soon to tell if it adequately replaces a school breakfast program as such."

Seminole County Commissioners within the next 30 days will decide the fate of 141 county employees whose salaries have been funded under the federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) now that funding cut-off is certain for 66 of those slots on Sept. 30, according to Commission Chairman Bob French.

Sanford Development Goal: Landscape Architect

By MAX ERKILETIAN Herald Staff Writer The Greater Sanford Downtown Development Corp. (GSDDC) hopes to have a landscape architect within 30 days to begin development of a landscaping program for the central business district. The first step in the search will be to contact Foster, Contant and Associates, Orlando landscaping firm, to see if they are interested in the project. That company was selected about 8 months ago to act as landscape architects for the GSDDC for a fee of $2,500. Foster, Contant developed the preliminary plans for the landscaping project, according to Sara Jacobson, GSDDC

"We thought we would have been able to begin the landscaping sooner, but we've found the buildings didn't get done as quickly as we thought," said Shirley Moak, GSDDC member.

At that meeting with the commission, plans to block off downtown streets to create a pedestrian mall were abandoned, according to Miss Jacobson.

The GSDDC received a grant to spend the funds on landscaping in 1978. However, because renovations of downtown buildings took longer than anticipated, the period in which the EDA funds were to have been spent expired, according to Mrs. Moak.

Approval to spend the EDA funds in 1979 is expected in the near future, said Mrs. Moak.

Two GOP Conservatives

Ask Amendment On Taxes

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Two Republican conservatives introduced a constitutional amendment today that would limit federal spending to one-third of national income.

The proposal was introduced by Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, and Rep. Phillip Crane, R-Ill., an announced candidate for the Republican presidential nomination. McClure told reporters the proposal "is aimed at freeing the American taxpayer from the burden of continuously increasing taxation."

Carter: 'Austere Budget'

WASHINGTON (UPI)- President Carter says his 1980 anti-inflation budget — $1 billion under his cost-cutting goal - cut everything but defense to the bone to spare human needs programs sought by liberals. Carter said Wednesday the new budget which goes to Congress Monday will include only about $29 billion in deficit spending, compared with $30 billion estimated earlier. It's the smallest federal red ink total since 1973. The president called it a "very austere, stringent, tough fiscal policy."

'Gasahol' Ready For Sale

WASHINGTON (UPI)- Some filling stations soon will be selling "gasahol" as a substitute for unleaded gasoline. Rep. Avin Baldus, D-Wis., said the Environmental Protection Agency has approved the substitution. Gasahol is blend of alcohol and unleaded gasoline that generally sells for less than regular unleaded gasoline

The preferential treatment afforded Carter's peanut business was revealed in a special report by two directors of the bank.

Doing Right

By Taiwan

Whether by drift or design, the president seems to be letting the dust settle a bit before defining precisely the future relationship between the United States and Taiwan, that is the Republic of True enough, Mr. Carter has been distracted by more urgent matters, such as the continuing revolution in Iran, the fall of Cambodia to Viet namese forces, and the Guadeloupe summit meeting, but he may be following a calculated China course.

"He may have decided that his inaction would divert Congress away from opposition to his surprise recognition of the People's Republic of China last month into affirmative action on the future of Taiwan.

Such a plan has obvious merit because senators and congressmen are already pawing the turf on the China issue.

The most important question for the administration and Congress to decide immediately is how the United States and the Republic of China shall relate.

Be. This messy problem arises from the fact that both Peking and Taipei insist there is only one China, of which Taiwan is a part that, accordingly, only one China be recognized.

After 30 years of pretending Taiwan was the real China, Washington has yielded to reality and recognized the existence of 900 million citizens on the mainland.

The issue now, therefore, is this: If the failure to recognize the reality of 900 million mainland Chinese is wrong, is not the failure to recognize the reality of 18 million Taiwanese, who have been loyal allies, also wrong?

In addition to the legal challenge being mounted in the courts to the president's abrogation of the mutual defense treaty with Taiwan by Sen. Barry Goldwater. R-Ariz., there is already congressional opposition to the administration's proposal to deal with Taiwan through a corporation.

It has been correctly observed that in recognizing mainland China, President Carter was motivated by opportunity.

Well and good. But the Taiwan side of the China coin represents U.S. responsibility, moral and material - responsibility to a trusting and helpful

And because responsibility is seldom as alloring as opportunity, it is particularly important that the administration and Congress do the right thing by Taiwan.

They call it "gallows humor." No, not Gallo humor, drinking is one of my more serious subjects. Gallows humor, to be good, requires a touch of the macabre

And, it's about the only kind of humor you get if you hang out at places like the Seminole County jail and local courtrooms.

For instance, I was at the Seminole County jail recently and outside were a man and woman waiting anxiously. "They haven't found him yet?" the woman asked. "No, they must have taken him out to be beaten," the man replied. Seminole County jail officials may not think that's funny, but it got a chuckle out of a group of bystanders.

At a recent evacuation of more than 300 people near Longwood because of a train derailment, it was obvious humor kept the evacuees in good spirits throughout the night.

Moravian church, in various stages of dress, the evacuees were discussing how little time they had to prepare for the event. "I never know what to wear to these evacuations," one woman said. That may not be funny to you, but at 4 a.m., they tell me, it was a screamer

Another good example of gallows humor came up during a recent docket hearing. With a dozen lawyers sitting around discussing cases with a judge, one of the attorneys announced he was prepared to go to trial. His client was charged with ossession and delivery of drugs. "There's only one roblem," the attorney told the judge, "my client's in the hospital."

"He overdosed," someone quipped. Some of the funniest, and in some ways the addest, of gallows humor comes from police

ANGLE-WALTERS Needed: A Shift To Thrift

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Anyone who has thought of buying a home lately, especially in a large metropolitan area, can testify to the fact that inflation in the housing market is enough to curl your hair.

The soaring prices are no deterrent to existing homeowners looking to "trade up;" a modest house purchased five years ago for $50,000 is probably worth at least $75,000 today. and the profit will go a long way toward making up the downpayment on a bigger and bette

But what about individuals and families seeking to buy a house for the first time? How do they swing it when the median purchase price is now over $50,000 in large metropolitan areas and indeed exceeds $70,000 in cities like San Francisco and Washington, D.C.?

The answer is that it's getting harder all the time; if current trends continue unabated, firsttime home buyers may soon be virtually frozen out of the market.

Already, more than half of all first-time buyers are two-income families. They tend to purchase older, cheaper homes and to sink more than the traditional 25 percent of household inpayments, real estate taxes, insurance and

Obviously there is a limit to the sacrifices amilies can make in other living expenses lood, clothing, medical costs, etc. - in order to keep up the house payments. And with a 20 percent downpayment still the dominant requirement for obtaining a conventional mortgage loan, it is becoming ever more difficult to scrape up the cash needed to buy a house.

A study by the U.S. League of Savings Associations shows four out of five first-time home buyers rely exclusively on savings to meet new cars after World War II who made them the downpayment. Savings are crucial not only for home-buying, but for the formation of investment capital in general. But as inflation and taxes combine to rob savings of their value, consumers are spending and borrowing instead; consumer debt is at an all time high, and still climbing.

As a new League study demonstrates, other stions do far more to encourage saving -aspecially for homebuying - then the United people went on long auto trips they stopped either at posh downtown hotels or tourist cabins, depending on the state of their finances.

The early tourist cabins were filmsily constructed, had minimal conveniences and little heat. As prosperity improved so did the tourist cabins. The fancier ones began to call themelves tourist courts or motels. But it took the name motel some years to gain any luster.

VIEWPOINT Lesson From

Iran

It is just possible that there is something positive to be derived from the Iranian

Not for the country itself - at least not yet. Whatever new order emerges from the smoke and destruction of revolution, it cannot recover lives already lost or erase damage already done to a society in transition between a still powerfully influential past and an uncertain future. And it is likely to be quite some time before the economic ground lost is recovered. Oil-rich Iran has become an oil importer. In shutting down the oil fields through strikes, terrorism and sabotage, the Shah's opponents have interrupted the flow of $20-plus billions in revenues and brought fuel rationing to a country which has been the world's No. 2 oil exporter.

For Iran, the consequences have been imsomewhat longer term. The effect upon estern and Japanese supplies may not be apparent for some months, and will be moderated to a considerable extent by a step-up in production by other major exporters. But it will be felt, both in curtailed supplies and possible higher prices.

John Wayne: His Cancer Spreads Throughout Body

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - Michael Wayne, one of John Wayne's sons, told a news conference his father "was informed by the doctors" that the cancer found in the actor's stomach when he was operated on last Friday had spread to his gastric lymph nodes before it was discovered and the disease may be spreading to other parts of his body.

A spokesman for UCLA Medical Center said the cancer was discovered in lymph nodes "that were removed along with the stomach." and it had not been determined whether cancerous tissue remained in Wayne's body, or whether further surgery would be needed.

The family of the late Mr. Issac N. Clark extend to our numerous friends our sincere appreciation and thanks for all the acts of kindness during our bereavement. Many of you we did not see, though you prayed quietly for my family and me. Many of you we did not touch, but the power of your prayers we felt very much. Some brought food, some brought flowers. some brought cards and some brought cheer. But, whateve you shared with us, we knew God was near. Thank you so very much. The Idyilwilde Elementary Parent Teacher Association (PTA) executive board will hear a proposal next month that the PTA set aside some money so food can be purchased to feed any hungry student who wants it, according to Dr. Richard Dunn, PTA president. "Our program would be designed for the children who are chronically sent to school without proper nutrition," Dr. Dunn said, "and this is our way to help those children who absolutely have no food in the house." The program would be similar to one currently i the program for several months but has been waiting to see what the result would be of the attempt to get a breakfast program in the schools. That attempt failed Wednesday night when the motion to establish such a program failed to get a second. The motion was made by Member Roland Williams. The other four members, Kroll, Pat Telson, Allan Keeth and Robert Feather noted they feel feeding breakfast is a parental responsibility and not one for the school district. "We will call for the charter and go back to being part of the county," Mrs. Griffin said Thursday night following the council's vote to hire a city manager.

"We will have plenty of time and we will work plenty hard to call for a re-call elec-cars," added Dorothy Hanna, a leader in the petition drive opposing the hiring of a city manager. "We're going all out for this."

Mrs. Griffin said the effort to gather names for the petition will begin next week after she has had a chance to confer with an attorney. Mrs. Griffin also gave Mayor Walter Sorenson notice to remove city equipment from her property. While a member of the council, Mrs. Griffin had allowed city road equipment to be parked on her land.
