Earthquake rattles Alaska

PALMER, Alaska — A midnight earthquake shook Anchorage awake, but there were no reports of injuries or serious damage, the Alaska-Tsunami Warning Center reported early Wednesday.

The moderate quake rattled Alaska's population center at 11:56 p.m. Alaska Standard Time Tuesday and measured 5.5 on the Richter scale, said geophysicist George Carte.

Carrier accident kills sailor

WASHINGTON — One man was killed, another was seriously injured and six airplanes were damaged when a gun undergoing maintenance on the carrier USS Nimitz in the Arabian Sea accidentally went off Wednesday, causing a fire on the flight deck, the Pentagon said.

Pentagon spokesman Maj. John Smith said the accident occurred Wednesday morning in the north Arabian Sea.

Murder suspect hangs himself

BUCKLAND, Mass. — The body of a murder suspect whose taste for Hollywood horror films may have played a role in the grisly stabbing death of a female college student was found swinging from a tree Tuesday, police said.

The death was "tentatively ruled a suicide by self-inflicted hanging," authorities said.

A hunter discovered the partially decomposed body of Mark Branch, 19, of Greenfield, off Route 112 in nearby Buckland.

Mayor's race heats up

Smith, Morris lock horns in tight race

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Mayor Betty Smith and businessman John Morris are locked in a tight race to serve as mayor for the next four years.

Smith, who is completing her first term as Sanford's first woman mayor, said she is proud of the accomplishments of her administration over the past four years.

Morris, a veteran of nine and one-half years on the city commission and eight years on the planning and zoning commission, accused Smith of not representing citizens' wishes at City Hall and not exercising leadership on the commission. He said the city's operating budget has increased 25 percent and city taxes have gone up 25 percent in the past four years. He also contends the current administration has wasted tax dollars.

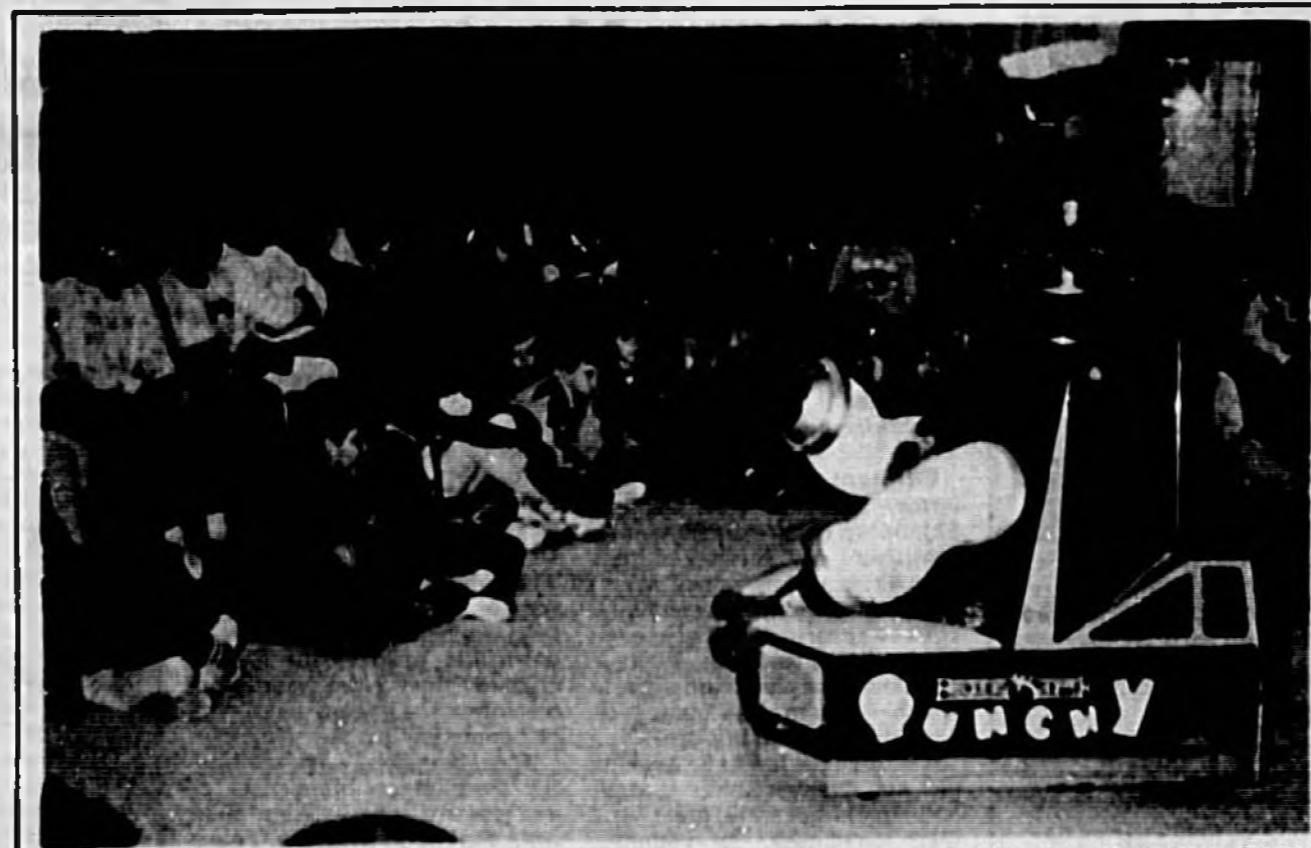

Smith said she has helped foster a change of attitude among residents of the community. People have more pride in their city than at any time in the past several years, according to Smith. She cited beautification programs which have improved the waterfront area downtown, as well as other public areas, as part of the reason for that pride.

Smith has represented the city on several Central Florida and Seminole County organizations, and has visited and spoken to church groups and students throughout her term in office. "I think citizens like their mayor taking part in their activities," she said. She said she has visited 51 churches during the past four years and spoken to students at all Sanford schools several times, stressing themes of drug abuse, self image and young people's future.

Smith said she is also proud of helping to foster an improved relationship between blacks and whites in the community. "I think most people in

'Punchy' brings drug message to Seminole County students

SANFORD — He's called Punchy and he's visiting six Seminole County schools this week to talk with students about drugs, decision-making, and high self-esteem.

No, the ideas aren't new, but the spokesperson is. Punchy is a robotic character complete with bells, video displays and music. The 600 pound robot makes his entrance to a thumping rock beat, accordion-like arms outstretched in welcome, pleiglas head spinning, lights flashing, and lips and voice synchronized.

The 45-minute program, known as the Million Dollar Machine, kicked off Monday with a stop at Midway Elementary School. Children in grades three through six sat cross-legged watching, listening and talking with Punchy. The robot selected children

Temporary youth center opens doors

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A temporary youth recreation center now is open in the ground floor of the south wing of City Hall.

The move was necessary because the former Youth Wing of the Civic Center soon will be remodeled into a senior activity center, displacing the young people.

Jim Jernigan, parks and recreation director, said billiards and table tennis tables were moved from the Youth Wing to a game room in the city hall space.

The Recreation Department is using about 4,500 square feet of the city hall area. A large area at the south end of the wing is being used for aerobics and cheerleading classes, Jernigan said.

Three recreation offices also were moved to City Hall from the Youth Wing. Several officials have offices in the new youth center space: Jeff Munson, recreation superintendent; Jim Adams, athletic supervisor; and Mike Kirby, director of special projects. A receptionist was also transferred to the center.

Jernigan said the game room is open from 2:30 p.m. until 7:30 p.m. with part-time employees supervising the activities. Those hours may be extended if parents approve, he said.

The youth center quarters are meant to be temporary until a permanent site can be found, or built.

Jernigan has proposed using a lease-purchase arrangement with a

School union director to accept job with state

By CAROL J. RUMSEY
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Marshall Ogletree, executive director of Seminole UniServ — a union organization of teachers, bus drivers and educational support personnel — will leave that position Jan. 3 to begin work as a legislative specialist.

Ogletree said Tuesday his new position will allow him to bring local issues to the state level. He will serve on the Government Relations Division of the Florida Teaching Profession-National Education Association, UniServ's state affiliate in Tallahassee.

For three years Ogletree has been active in lobbying, negotiating, and consulting. This includes yearly collective bargaining negotiations for teacher salaries — salaries that Ogletree says increased 30.25 percent in three years. $40 million was paid last year in an effort to keep teachers salaries competitive with other school districts.

Still, Ogletree and UniServ members agree teaching is an underpaid profession. "We've had some good increases, and haven't had to haggle too much over money," he said. "The association and administration have entered into a kind of gentlemen's agreement to solve problems as simply and quickly as possible."

He credits this new team approach with producing better schools and happier employees. This is not to say that he doesn't see problems. In fact, more grievances were filed this year than ever before, but according to Ogletree the majority concern employee insurance.

"We've been crying loud and hard about insurance," he said. "There needs to be a greater sensitivity to needs. You don't just cancel a policy because someone's a day late with a

Winds and rain will test new shuttle guidelines

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — The rain and high winds threatening Thursday's launch of the shuttle Atlantis could pose a stern test for NASA and tough new weather guidelines established in the wake of the Challenger accident.

The launch weather criteria were written to eliminate some of the guesswork involved in clearing shuttles for flight and set strict wind, rain, lightning and temperature limits for shuttle launch, abort and landing sites.

As the zero hour for the secret military flight neared, the Air Force, charged with monitoring the weather at the Kennedy Space Center, predicted rain, cloud cover and winds gusting to 28 mph if a cold front sweeps through the area late Wednesday or early Thursday as predicted.

"The worst season, if there is such a season, is usually the summer because of the thunderstorms that blow in here," Capt.

Ken Warren, an Air Force spokesman, said in an interview Tuesday. "This time of year the main concern is usually wind and that is true to form because that's what we're concerned about now."

NASA launch director Robert Sieck said Tuesday the space agency would base its decision to load fuel into the shuttle's external tank on Wednesday on the weather.

"We don't want to tank if there's a low probability but if there's a good shot, and that's a judgment call, then we'll go ahead and tank and see what it looks like come Thursday," Sieck said.

But he added: "If we felt we had a reasonable chance of making it we would go for it."

"If we'd already had one scrub under our belt due to weather, particularly if it was as predicted ... then I don't know that we would be any more or less conservative" with

WEATHER TO LAUNCH BY...

Shuttle launch guidelines passed following the Challenger disaster include:

WINDS: No winds greater than about 28 mph, or about 19 mph if winds are from the south because they would hit the shuttle broadside to its wings, tending to push it in such a way that would put stress on the ship's redesigned booster rockets.

Upper atmosphere winds must conform to computer programs that direct the shuttle's flight into space.

RAIN: No rain at the pad or within the shuttle flight path.

LIGHTNING: No lightning within 11.5 miles of the launch pad or below 100,000 feet within the flight path a half-hour before launch.

CLOUDS: No clouds thicker than 4,500 feet; the greater the thickness of a cloud, the greater the chance of electrical activity.

TEMPERATURE: Temperatures at launch time must be no lower than 37 degrees or higher than 99 degrees, and must be no lower than 41 degrees when the shuttle is being fueled the night before launch.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Lottery OK for state, not vets

JACKSONVILLE — A group of Vietnam veterans has decided to call off its house raffle after being told by state officials the contest was a violation of state law.

The Vietnam Veterans Foundation of Florida had started selling tickets for a chance to win a $150,000 house. The organization had hoped to come out of the raffle with a $40,000 profit that would go toward veteran's support efforts.

But prosecutors this week informed the vets that the raffle constituted an illegal lottery. Veterans at first said the tickets were not being actually sold but were being given away with a request for donations, but prosecutors said that reasoning was not enough, and threatened legal action.

The veteran's group said Tuesday it is now returning the so-called "donations" to an estimated 650 people who bought tickets.

Tractor-trailers collide in Everglades

DELRAY BEACH — The highway known to many as "Bloody 27" claimed another life Tuesday night and another victim is hospitalized in critical condition.

Two tractor-trailers collided head-on on an isolated stretch of U.S. 27 in the Everglades just north of the Broward-Palm Beach County line in the Everglades.

The highway was closed for several hours after the accident, which occurred at 8 p.m. EST.

Last year, nine people were killed in wrecks on U.S. 27 in Palm Beach County but no statistics are available for Broward. The highway is a commercial link between Miami and central Florida.

Midway ride not inspected in Florida

HALLANDALE — Two months before the collapse of a midway ride and the death of a teenager at the Broward County Fair last week, the ride manufacturer sent out a national bulletin warning of problems with two of its other rides.

Florida's chief inspector Wally Rich said Tuesday he did not order any special testing for the ride, called the "Monster," because it is so different than the other two. But officials in South Carolina did inspect the "Monster" because they say it was similar. It passed the testing.

Meanwhile, state officials have discovered they are powerless to examine the ride to answer some questions about the accident. They are hoping the federal government will be able to get some answers.

The ride is now in possession of a metallurgist hired by the midway's insurance company, Hallandale Rep. Steve Geller said it is "a clear case of the fox guarding the chicken coop."

Cooper City High School senior Christie Schafale was killed six others were injured last week when an arm on the ride broke off.

Two killers get execution stays

TALLAHASSEE — The Supreme Court Tuesday granted stays of execution to condemned killers Michael Lambrix and Amos Lee King, both of whom had been scheduled to die in the electric chair early Wednesday.

Lambrix's stay is effective until noon Friday, but his death warrant is good through Dec. 6. His execution has been rescheduled for 12:01 p.m. Friday, said prison spokesman Bob MacMaster.

King was given an indefinite stay, meaning he will not be put to death under the warrant Gov. Bob Martinez signed on Sept. 27.

Capital Collateral Representative Larry Spalding, who represents Lambrix and other indigent death row inmates, said the court essentially had given Lambrix 72 hours to appeal to the federal district court in Miami.

Toll road protests gets DOT's attention

GAINESVILLE — A strong protest Tuesday by residents in the Melrose area prompted the Department of Transportation to seek out alternative routes for the proposed Tampa-to-Jacksonville toll road.

A DOT spokeswoman said the decision to conduct further research was made after a group of residents turned up in Lake City Tuesday to protest the route of the proposed $371 million turnpike.

She said an indefinite stay was placed on the final decision, pending another study and more public meetings.

About 50 vehicles drove to Lake City to register their protest. The group was led by Sinclair Eaton, a Republican candidate who unsuccessfully ran for a state House seat. He said the stay by the DOT shows "the pressure of hard working citizens who are not necessarily activists has paid off."

One proposed route the residents opposed goes from Jacksonville west around Camp Blanding, just east of Starke, through part of Hampton, east of Gainesville and south to Dunellon.

Forecast now 4 to 1 against launch

Rain and high winds cause revised time

By WILLIAM HARWOOD United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — NASA engineers, faced with threatening weather, pressed on Wednesday with preparations for the shuttle Atlantis's scheduled blastoff Thursday on a $375 million flight to launch a costly spy satellite.

NASA's new post-Challenger mission management team met Tuesday and reported Atlantis was on track for blastoff, weather permitting. A final review was scheduled early Wednesday to assess the weather outlook, progress overnight at launch pad 39B and plans to fuel the shuttle later in the day.

"Preparations for launch are going very well," astronaut Robert Crippen, chairman of the management team, said Tuesday. "We are closely watching a frontal system which could arrive in the area Wednesday evening or Thursday morning, bringing high winds and some rain showers."

Air Force meteorologists said Tuesday the approaching cold front threatened a 70 percent chance of violating tough new post-Challenger weather guidelines.

Wednesday morning, however, they said the forecast had improved to a 60 percent chance of acceptable conditions at launch time. But a few minutes later, Capt. Ken Warren, an Air Force spokesman, said his initial forecast was incomplete and that NASA actually faced an 80 percent chance of high winds at the Kennedy Space Center's emergency runway that would violate launch weather criteria.

Asked if that meant NASA faced an 80 percent chance of not being able to launch Thursday, he said yes.

In any case, engineers pressed on with Atlantis's secret 79-hour countdown, which sources said was scheduled to end about 7 a.m. Thursday with blastoff of the second post-Challenger flight, a high-priority mission to launch a radar surveillance satellite, code-named Laccrosse, to spy on the Soviet Union.

Assuming an on-time liftoff, Atlantis could land as early as Sunday morning at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., based on an analysis of the shuttle's presumed trajectory, requirements for a daylight touchdown and other factors.

The shuttle's five military astronauts — commander Robert

"Hoot" Gibson, co-pilot Guy Gardner, Richard "Mike" Mullane, Jerry Ross and William Shepherd — faced a light schedule Wednesday and planned to review their flight plans before turning in for the day in expectation of an early launch-day wakeup.

Launch director Robert Steck said Tuesday a final decision on whether to load fuel aboard Discovery and proceed toward blastoff would not be made until late Wednesday during a final nighttime meeting to assess the weather outlook.

"Right now, it's a lot for us to advance to call what it's going to be, particularly when you're dealing with weather associated with a fast-moving cold front," said Steck, a former meteorologist. "If we felt we had a reasonable chance of making it we would go for (fuel loading)."

Graham, Mack vow unity after campaign

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Florida Sen. Bob Graham and Sen.-elect Connie Mack, bitter opponents before Mack's narrow victory over Rep. Buddy Mackay, insisted Tuesday they have much in common and promised to work together to represent the state.

Graham, the Democratic former governor, and Mack, a Republican congressman, met for breakfast early Tuesday to "talk about having the most challenging job in America — representing the state of Florida," Graham said.

Following a close campaign in which Graham was quoted repeatedly as calling Mack an "ideological whacko," Graham did not apologize, but said he and Mack have "a great deal more in common" on economic, foreign policy and environmental concerns.

"There are times in a campaign that things get said in the heat of battle," Mack said. "But Bob's a professional and what I've said here is behind us now."

Graham called Mack an "ideological whacko" during an Oct. 28 speech to the Tallahassee Tiger Bay Club, a business-political group. Graham noted Mack's "bizarre voting pattern" in the House, including votes for amendments to reduce funding for the Older Americans Act, against the hazardous waste Superfund and against the Clean Water Act of 1985.

"We in Florida cannot afford to have an ideological whacko as half our team in the U.S. Senate," Graham said at the time.

But Tuesday, Graham said he was "very pleased that Rep. Mack is now Sen. Mack," and when Mack noted that the senior senator traditionally escorts the new or newly elected senator down the aisle in the Senate chamber during the swearing-in ceremonies, Graham said, "I'll be honored to."

The lawmakers said committee assignments were "not in our control," because of their low seniority in the Senate. Mack will be 94th or 95th in seniority, Graham is 86th.

But Graham noted he "likes the ones I'm on now" — the Banking, Environment and Public Works, and Veterans Affairs committees — but added he would like a seat on the Appropriations Committee.

Mack refused to specify which committees he'd like to join, but noted he preferred those that deal with economics and foreign policy issues.

Martinez proposes election reforms

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Bob Martinez proposed Tuesday a series of sweeping government and election reforms he said would make elections fairer and government more accountable to the public.

Chief among Martinez's reforms was a proposed constitutional amendment that would bring the Legislature under the state's Sunshine Law. Common Cause is already gathering petition signatures for a similar amendment, and Senate President Bob Crawford has appointed a special committee to study possible legislation.

Martinez also proposed a constitutional amendment that would prohibit former state administrators from lobbying their former departments until two years after leaving.

The governor proposed legislation to open legislative public records, abolish the "closed" legislative committee shop funds and prohibit candidates from using contributions received for a specific campaign in a campaign for a different office.

Martinez said bringing the Legislature under the Sunshine Law would keep lawmakers from making secret deals far from the eyes of the press and public. The law, which already covers most other governmental bodies, would require legislators to meet in public places, post notices of those meetings and let the public and press attend.

"It will make it possible for the public, and in this case often the public means (the press) having access to the information, to the meetings, to report on," he said. "That in itself will inform the public and perhaps give the public cause to be present at those meetings."

Martinez's proposal would apply to any meeting of four or more legislators with a Cabinet member, governor or legislative presiding officer or committee chairman. He said the plan had not been constitutionally worded so as to exclude meetings between the Governor, House Speaker and Senate President.

The leadership funds have long been criticized by Republicans, whose leadership funds are constantly smaller than Democrats'. Martinez is a Republican.

High court rejects Chappell's appeal

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Supreme Court denied Wednesday an election challenge filed by Democratic Rep. Bill Chappell, a narrow loser in the 4th Congressional District.

The decision, the text of which was to be released later in the day, gives the election to Republican Craig James, a political newcomer who in an attorney in DeLand.

Kay Thomas, a spokeswoman for Chappell, said the congressman was discussing the court's decision with his lawyers in Washington.

Chappell sought to have the nearly 10,907 votes in Flagler County disqualified, which would mean a victory of 288 votes for Chappell, a 20-year veteran, rather than a 732-vote loss.

The high court's decision came one day after the state said tossing out the county's votes would illegally disenfranchise the county's voters.

Chappell challenged the Flagler voters on grounds the printed results arrived at the state Division of Elections after a statutory deadline had passed.

"The Flagler County vote should count because of the constitutional right to vote," said Ken Rouse, a lawyer with the Division of Elections. "The voters of Flagler County should not lose that right because of a technicality."

In arguments filed on behalf of the canvassing board, attorneys Mitchell Franks and Alan Sundberg said the deadline was only a "directive" intended to encourage county elections supervisors to tally votes quickly. The rule was not intended to wipe out legitimately cast votes, they said, and to do so would violate both the state and federal constitutions.

"Indeed, blind adherence to this statutory language has the effect of depriving citizens of their most precious right — the right to vote," the state's brief said.

Last week, the court enjoined the Elections Canvassing Board from certifying the election until noon Wednesday. The court is expected to rule before then, but could choose to extend the injunction.

Accused kidnapper convicted of assault

By SANDRA BOUCHANINE
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A Lake Mary man charged with felony attempted kidnapping of two Longwood girls was convicted by a Seminole Circuit Court jury Tuesday of simple assault, a misdemeanor.

David Allen Desantis, 36, 216 Washington Ave., Lake Mary, was sent to Seminole County Jail where he will be held pending a sentencing hearing at 10:30 a.m. on Dec. 30.

Desantis could have faced up to seven years imprisonment on the original charge in the June 4 incident. Now, he faces a maximum sentence of 60 days imprisonment for assault which is a second-degree misdemeanor charge, according to his attorney, William J. Sheaffer.

The verdict pleased Sheaffer, but disappointed the family of the Longwood girls who were Desantis' victims.

After the trial, Sheaffer said, "Obviously, we would have preferred a not guilty (verdict). We're ecstatic it was a simple assault. David has maintained his innocence throughout," he said.

The mother of Shannon Bean, 13, who shielded her four-year-old sister from the attempted abduction, was not as pleased. Marcia Franta, of Longwood, said the decision was "lousy."

Assistant State Attorney Jeff Deen, who represented the girls, said although he was happy that Desantis was convicted of something, he isn't happy with the state's kidnapping law.

He said that it is a tough law that requires proof of the intent of a kidnapping by the suspect. "Children can be abducted and still (prosecutors can't) find a conviction, but we'll take the verdict. It's a bad law, but he didn't get away with it," Deen said.

A simple assault involves a threat by word or deed, according to Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr.

Desantis initially was arrested on June 4 by the Longwood police for the attempted kidnapping of a four-year-old girl, Shannon, 715 Pasadena Ave., identified Desantis as the man who tried to pull her sister into his car in the vicinity of Pasadena and Wayman avenues.

According to testimony, Shannon, her sister and a two-year-old cousin were only about one-half block from their home when the incident occurred.

The three children were walking to a convenience store to buy some candy when Desantis allegedly pulled up beside them and asked if they wanted a ride. The girls didn't reply and ran home after Desantis attempted to snatch the four-year-old into his car.

Shannon said she told her mother who reported it to Longwood police.

Deen, in his remarks to the court, repeatedly described the incident as "every mother's nightmare."

Desantis has been arrested several times in Lake Mary for unrelated charges including a total of five counts of lewd and lascivious assault on minors and one count of possession of marijuana, according to Investigator Sgt. Thomas Taggart.

Trial also is pending on charges of molestation and violation of probation for possession of a controlled substance, according to officials.

Taggart said that Desantis allegedly lured young teenage girls into his home and would fondle them as they used his computer, according to accounts from children in the neighborhood.

Sanford businessman pleads guilty to drug possession

J. MARK DANFIELD

ORLANDO — Sanford businessman Auguste Bartholdi "Bart" Peterson III is scheduled to be sentenced on Jan. 24 in U.S. District Court on two misdemeanor counts of conspiracy to possess cocaine.

Peterson, 34, pleaded guilty earlier this month to the reduced charges he conspired to possess small quantities of cocaine. The charges carry a potential penalty of two years in federal prison and/or $200,000 in fines.

Peterson originally faced felony charges carrying a 10 years to life sentence and/or a $4 million fine if convicted.

Cynthia Hawkins, assistant U.S. District attorney, said after interviewing other defendants in the case, Peterson was found to be purchasing cocaine for personal use, not sales.

Peterson originally was thought to be purchasing ounces of cocaine, but interviews with defendants revealed he was purchasing grams. Hawkins said. An ounce equals about 27 grams.

Peterson is vice president of St. John's Realty. He was an unsuccessful candidate for the 1986 District 3 city commission race. A.A. McClanahan won, ousting incumbent commissioner Milton Smith.

Peterson and 18 other defendants were charged by a federal grand jury on July 27 on charges they participated in a cocaine distribution ring where large quantities of the illegal substance were purchased in South Florida and sold in the Daytona Beach area and in South Carolina, West Virginia and Maryland.

Large quantities of cocaine were believed to have been sold by the ring and more than 14 pounds of cocaine were seized by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents.

Much of the Daytona Beach drug sales were coordinated through the Muscle Beach Gym and wiretaps of the gym's telephone produced evidence against Peterson and other defendants. Hawkins said some of the taped conversations with a "Bart" were traced to Peterson's telephone.

Peterson was arrested on Aug. 19 and held in the Seminole County Jail on the federal charges until he was released on $20,000 bond. He remains free on that bond.

Park explanation

Judy Wimlish, co-chairman of the coordinating committee for the Park on Park project, explains the concept of a park designed by Robert S. Leathers, nationally known park architect. Pictures of other such parks were shown to a group Monday night at meeting to organize committees to help with the park development. The Leathers-designed park's development is sponsored by the Scenic Improvement Board and will be constructed with donated funds and volunteer labor.

City Commission considers duplex request

By BRAD CHURCH

SANFORD — A property owner's attempt to persuade the City Commission to reverse a planning and zoning commission refusal to allow a duplex in a single-family residential area downtown has prompted stiff opposition from residents of the area.

City commissioners on Monday continued a hearing on the matter, but only after an argument about when to resume the hearing.

In other matters, the commission approved sewer construction contracts valued at several million dollars.

In the land use dispute, Joe T. Russell, owner of property at 610 Oak Ave., filed the appeal under a rule that says a planning and zoning commission denial can be appealed to the city commission if the denial is by a less than 2/3 majority of the planning and zoning body.

Planning and Zoning Commissioner Jay Malone told the city commissioners that the only reason the committee vote was less than a 2/3 majority is because some members were absent from the meeting.

Russell asked the commission to delay a decision on his appeal until a later meeting because people who intended to support his proposal were not able to attend Monday night's meeting.

Commissioner John Mercer, who represents the district, had previously asked other commissioners to delay a decision on the appeal until he could vote because he was not able to attend Monday's meeting.

However, the commission heard from several residents of the neighborhood who oppose Russell's proposal. They described the building at that address as dilapidated and a detriment to other residents' efforts to improve the appearance of the neighborhood.

Commissioner A.A. McClanahan's motion to resume the hearing at the first meeting in January was passed. However, Commissioner Whitley Eckstein reconsidered, saying Mercer would not be able to vote on the appeal since he is not running for re-election and will not be in office in January. "Why do you want to postpone until January when Mercer asked us to postpone it until he could vote on it?" Eckstein asked McClanahan.

McClanahan said whoever is elected to represent the district can vote on the appeal. However, after protests from the residents of the area, McClanahan withdrew his motion and the commission approved taking the matter up at its Dec. 12 meeting.

The commission also approved $5.25 million worth of contracts with Conklin Porter & Holmes. Three contracts, for which the firm will be paid $168,274.22, are for engineering services for installation of treated wastewater reuse irrigation systems and for treated effluent storage tanks.

Mother's calls caused jail guard to lose job

By SUSAN LOREN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A Seminole County jail guard, one of four fired and re-hired following a jailhouse suicide in 1987, has been fired again, just four days before the end of his one year probation as an employee.

Seminole County Sheriff John Polk fired Douglas Fauls, 30, Monday. Polk accused Fauls, whose employment probation would have ended Thursday, of taking the first week of August off from duty at the Seminole County jail to attend the funeral of his mother in Arizona, and to settle her estate in New York. However, Fauls' mother was not dead and Polk has accused him of lying to take time off from work.

Jail officials learned Fauls' mother was alive when she called the jail and asked to speak to Fauls three times after she was supposed to have been buried. The third call was answered by the jail administrator, who reported the incident to Polk.

Polk refused to accept Fauls' resignation and instead fired him. Chief Deputy Duane Harrell said today that means Fauls' record will be reviewed by the Florida Criminal Justice Standards and Training Commission in Tallahassee, who would determine whether to decertify Fauls. If decertified, he could never again work as a Florida jail guard.

Because Fauls was on probation at the time of the second firing, he cannot appeal Polk's decision to the sheriff's civil service board.

Fauls was fired in the fall of 1987, along with three other guards. All of them were accused of failing to properly watch a 17-year-old murder suspect who hanged himself in the jail in August, and of falsifying logs saying they had made proper checks on the youth.

Polk eventually reversed brought all four fired guards back to work at the jail. Polk said he gave them a second chance because during the appeals hearing he learned of irregularities in jail management that may have contributed to the guard's apparent neglect of duty.

Salvation Army needs donations

SANFORD — The Salvation Army has begun its annual toy collection for underprivileged children.

Lt. Sam Flanigan said the Army has a list of between 1,300 and 1,500 underprivileged children in the area who are eligible to receive toys from the Army. The recipient families are screened from applications submitted to the Army from individuals and other organizations, he said.

Flanigan said the Army is collecting new toys for the children at his offices at 700 W. 24th St. Although toys can be brought to the center anytime it is open, he said the best time to drop off the toys is between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

The deadline for donations is Dec. 16.

from the audience, asked questions, chatted a bit, and proceeded to work the young crowd like a nightclub comedian.

But his message and that of school employees is serious.

"We're not focusing on drugs so much as children," Marilyn Meridith, Midway counselor, said Monday. "The goal is to give kids other reasons to turn onto life."

This high-tech approach to drug prevention is aimed at making young people feel important, unique, and worthy of great care. Punchy refers to it as keeping a clean machine.

Alfred Harris, 9, referred to it as simply great. "It's about being in control," he said. "Keeping your attitude real cool."

Punchy is made possible through the Edward J. DeBartolo Corp., owner of Altamonte and Florida malls. The character serves as their unofficial mall mascot and frequent shopper. According to marketing consultant Karen Scott, by year's end 200,000 children across the country will have heard from Punchy.

"The program is geared for kids at an age where they can understand the message and are still impressionable," Scott said. "We want them to feel good about themselves...that they can do anything. People who feel good about themselves don't need crutches, don't need drugs."

Whether Punchy can make a difference, Meridith said, is unknown, but she believes it's a good effort. It's also an effort that will receive year-round reinforcement. Participating schools are given posters, buttons and teacher study packets, which offer ideas for class projects and discussions.

For fourth-grader Sherry Brown, the program already is a success. Brown said she worries about the drug problem, worries that someone might offer her drugs. "It hasn't happened yet," she said. "But I would say no if it did."

Besides the strict criteria, the Air Force and NASA have bolstered the size of the meteorological staff at the space center and are using more advanced forecasting equipment since Challenger's destruction Jan. 28, 1986, in a disaster blamed in part on freezing temperatures.

Early release is outrageous

Willie Horton, a convicted murderer, became a cause celebre during the recent presidential election when attention was focused on his weekend furlough from a Massachusetts prison. Horton went to Maryland where he raped and killed a young woman. A hue and cry echoed throughout the land against such relaxed handling of dangerous criminals. Many Floridians were outraged.

Now Floridians have cause to be outraged again and without looking beyond the state line.

Charles H. Street is in the Dade County Jail, charged with killing two Miami-Dade County policemen. Two counts of first degree murder and one count of armed robbery were brought Tuesday arising out of the incidents of Monday morning. The officers were responding to a reported disturbance at a trailer park and during the course of the investigation, Street grabbed the two officers' service revolvers and shot and killed them. They were the fifth and sixth Dade County law enforcement officers to die in the line of duty in 1988. The armed robbery was the stealing of the police car.

Unfortunately, the killing of law enforcement officers, armed robberies, and other heinous crimes, do not so outrage Florida citizens that they arise in a united voice and cry Stop! No more! But what happened in Miami is a direct slap at our state and prison policies and it goes far beyond mere furloughs.

Street was released after serving a little more than eight years on a 15 year sentence for armed robbery. His criminal record filled 21 pages, and most charges and convictions were for violent actions. He was classified as a career criminal. Yet his release came about due to a combination of earned gain time, one day gain time for each three days in prison, and administrative gain time, under edict from federal courts due to prison overcrowding. The total gain time was reduced by loss time of nearly 2 1/2 years due to violent acts, including assaults on guards while a prisoner.

During a criminal career from 1972 until 1988, Street established a pattern of violence and utter disregard for the rights and lives of others. Yet he was freed — not paroled — freed to go about doing what anyone with an ounce of common sense would predict he would do: Continue a life of crime and violence.

It is outrageous that a career criminal with a record of violence was freed after serving barely half his sentence. State policies must be studied and such a study not done by dilettantes who would unleash such criminals based on academic studies and not practical experience.

One woman's place in the House

Never. Never since the first Congress convened in 1789...

Never since the 19th Amendment was passed in 1919 giving women the right to vote...

Never — even since Republican Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers of Massachusetts chaired the Veteran Affairs Committee in 1953 — have the Democrats elected a woman to chair any committee in Congress.

On Dec. 5, House Democrats have a unique opportunity to break with their PMO (for males only) just when they choose their House Democratic Caucus chair. The leading candidate in the caucus' current vice chair, Rep. Mary Rose Oaker, D-Ohio. Based on her congressional record and caucus service, her colleagues should elect her.

But they've got a serious problem, and it's reflected in the title of Philip M. Stern's recently published book, "The Best Congress Money Can Buy."

Documenting with case histories the huge sums of money that influence votes in the Senate and the House, Stern writes: "The problem does not lie in the amount of money spent on politics.... It lies with the source of the money and the extent to which campaign money comes from people and groups with self-Interested axes to grind." "Source" plus "self-interested axes to grind" equals Rep. William H. Gray III, D-Pa.

Gray is the only barrier that stands between House Democrats and their first woman committee chairperson. But since 1987, Gray has raised $152,002 which he has been doling out to Democrats as inducements to vote for him as caucus chair.

The one-man political action committee has donated a total of $119,750 to 90 current Democratic members of Congress and donated $32,252 to 31 Democratic candidates for Congress. Seventy-three Democrats have received $1,000 or more.

As Ozzie Myers, a former Philadelphia congressman, once observed with Socratic wisdom, "Money talks. ——— walks."

PAC-Man Gray's money is talking loud and drawing a Democratic crowd. But for Gray, advancing the Democratic Party is secondary to enhancing his vainglorious ego. And his drive to abort Oaker's advance to leadership reflects a pattern of career success achieved by terminating other political careers.

Gray is the only man in American history to defeat an incumbent black congressional committee chairman (Robert N.C. Nix Sr.) for his congressional seat. He also helped orchestrate the defeat of an incumbent black Pennsylvania state senator, Milton Street (a political enemy), and sandbagged a black woman, Roz Applewhite, after promising to support her when she ran for the Pennsylvania state legislature.

This time, the national stakes are higher. House Democrats won't be able to build on the party's strong support from women, nor can they broaden the Democratic constituency by electing Gray instead of Oaker.

In the meantime, Oaker struggles to break the House Democratic male stranglehold, agreeing that "a woman's place is in the House" — but also as a chairperson.

Panel seeks to influence Bush

WASHINGTON—in the two centuries of the American Republic, there had never been another moment like this. The two most recent former Presidents of the United States, one Republican and one Democratic, called on the President-elect one day last week to offer, not just their congratulations, but what they called an "American Agenda" from which he might shape his plans.

Before telling you what bothers me so much about this instructional venture, let me say that the report prepared for, and delivered to, George Bush by Jimmy Carter and Gerald R. Ford is full of sensible observations on the challenges facing the incoming government. It represents the best thinking of some 400 veterans of recent administrations, leaders of business, labor, education and the law. It was edited into a document of exceptional force and clarity by two former White House aides, Republican James M. Cannon and Democrat Stuart E. Eizenstat, who initiated the project and enlisted the support of the other participants.

Its policy proposals for dealing with such high-priority problems as the budget deficit and the quest for arms control reflect the experienced counsel one would expect from such a group. Particularly striking is the bipartisan agreement on the need to restrain some Social Security retirement benefits and boost some consumer taxes in order to avoid ruinous cuts in defense and domestic programs.

The former Presidents give great importance to improving health, nutrition and early education programs for millions of "at-risk" children in poverty. And when they say, "We see two Americas, one increasingly wealthy, one tragically poor, a land of opportunity for most and of idle hopelessness for too many," it is a rebuke to complacency.

But what is most intriguing is the implicit but unmistakable belief, shared by two men who reached the top of the American political and governmental system, that the system itself must be overcome if the nation is to meet its challenges.

What Ford and Carter are saying to Bush is: Forget the campaign and the political commitments stemming from it. And figure out how to sidestep the separation of powers and Constitution inconveniently established between Congress and the executive branch.

The two Presidents, both of whom were legislators before they became chief executives, are not quite advocating conversion to parliamentary government. But they're groping in that direction.

In a joint interview with Jim Lehrer of PBS, Ford spoke scathingly of the "almpitatic" rhetoric of the long campaign and longingly of the British model of five-week parliamentary elections. Carter agreed that this was the "most irresponsible campaign for President I have ever known," because both candidates avoided "all the things that are controversial."

In a personal message which borders on the patronizing, they wrote Bush that, "Being a candidate for President and being President are two very different things, as you are soon to discover fully. Although you certainly have political obligations, your closest friends and strongest supporters will best serve you by understanding that all things are different now that you will sit at the desk in the Oval Office."

In inviting Bush to turn his back on his campaign pledges, they too casually ignore the risk that such action would only increase cynicism in an already cynical electorate. But that is only the beginning. They implore him even more earnestly to surmount the constitutional separation of powers.

They urge the newly elected Republican President to invite key leaders of the Democratic-controlled Congress to join him and his principal associates for "a long weekend" retreat in December, outside Washington and outside the scrutiny of press and public. No fixed agenda; just an effort at "creating a personal rapport" that might, in turn, lead to a "bipartisan agreement" on a budget plan. They also urge Bush to make a deal in which congressional leaders would swap the promise of "continuing consultation" on foreign-policy issues for the forfeiting of their right to "micro-manage" national-security policy through legislative amendments.

Both proposals assume that government should operate the way the Ford-Carter commission did: as an orderly conclave of wise men, happily well beyond the tugs of personal ambition or partisan conflict, seeking only the national good.

Time was, when voters took political parties seriously, that such a proposal would have been laughed out of town. Can you imagine FDR being advised by Herbert Hoover to go off on "a long weekend" retreat with Bob Taft and Joe Martin, the Republican congressional leaders of his day, in search of elusive consensus?

Such action would only increase cynicism in an already cynical electorate

Money paves way to post

WASHINGTON — Rep. Bill Gray, D-Pa., will stop at nothing in his hell-bent-for-leather bid to win a leadership post in the House. Gray wants to chair the House Democratic Caucus so badly that he has showered some House members with money. This weekend, he will capitalize on a football bash he and four other members are hosting in Philadelphia, one day before House Democrats choose their caucus quarterback.

Cries that Gray was buying votes erupted in a chorus earlier this year when he blanketed potential supporters with money for their campaigns — as much as $5,000 a pop. The handouts came from his re-election campaign war chest and from his own political action committee, which audaciously asked lobbyists for cash to help him win the caucus chairmanship. Gray even convinced some lobbyists to contact other members of Congress on his behalf, according to Rollcall, a Capitol Hill newspaper.

As his finale, Gray will help throw a football weekend for about 80 members of Congress Saturday, Dec. 3 and Sunday, Dec. 4 in Philadelphia, compliments of the local Chamber of Commerce and city hall.

House Democrats will meet in Washington on Monday, Dec. 5 to decide who will run the House. The top three posts are in the bag for Jim Wright of Texas (speaker), Tom Foley of Washington (majority leader) and Tony Coelho of California (whip). Gray wants to be the fourth in the chain of command.

The timing of the football weekend appears to be a happy coincidence. Philadelphia almost always throws the get-together to coincide with the Army-Navy game. This year, Gray will be able to make political hay out of the shindig in his city of brotherly love.

House members will stay at two of the city's poshest hotels, the Palace and the Four Seasons. Some of the best tickets for the Army-Navy game have been reserved for the House members on Saturday. Ditto for the Redskins-Eagles game on Sunday.

The Democrats should step off the train in Washington Monday morning rested and thinking well of their host.

Gray's closest rival for the caucus chair is Rep. Mary Rose Oaker of Cleveland, who told us she will attend the football weekend, too. Rep. Mike Synar, from Oklahoma, also is angling for the caucus chair.

A Gray aide denied that his largesse is intended to buy support. Rather, he said money went to Democrats in hotly contested races, including "Mary Rose Oaker supporters." But records at the Federal Election Commission show that he has been five times more generous with House members over the last two years than he was in the previous two, and most of his contributions were made in 1988.

In his last term, Gray kicked $119,750 into the treasuries of 90 members of Congress — up from the paltry $24,550 he spread around to 37 members in 1985 and 1986.

In February, Gray handed out $1,000 checks to House Democrats from Pennsylvania at a dinner in Washington. He called it "the first thousand dollar a plate dinner where only food gets the bite put on it."

A source close to the House leadership puts the odds for the chairmanship on Gray, who is black, has an advantage because many Democrats are eager to promote him to displace Jesse Jackson as the black standard bearer of the party.

Market light, prices mixed

United Press International

NEW YORK — Prices opened mixed Wednesday in light trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 20.09 Tuesday, was up 1.24 to 2102.77 shortly after the market opened.

Declines edged advances, however, 386-363 among the 1,204 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 7,310,000 shares.

Many analysts expect the market to renew its interest in takeover stocks Wednesday as the leveraged buyout of RJR Nabisco moves closer to becoming a reality. News reports said Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Co. appeared to be the winning bidder for the tobacco and food giant after the 5:00 p.m. EST bidding deadline Tuesday.

The developments at RJR Nabisco come as shareholders are receiving the proceeds from several other takeovers, buyouts and restructurings.

Stock prices closed sharply higher in slow trading Tuesday after a midday rally held its steam right up to the closing bell.

Dollar opens mixed; gold lower, silver up

United Press International

The dollar was mixed in moderate trading Wednesday on major foreign currency markets. Gold was lower in Europe but opened higher in New York.

In earlier trading in Tokyo, the dollar weakened slightly against the Japanese yen, closing 0.30 yen lower at 121.85 yen.

Dealers said the Bank of Japan apparently stayed away from the market, letting the dollar find its level against the yen.

They noted trading was moderate as most investors refrained from taking large positions ahead of Friday's release of U.S. unemployment data for November.

In Europe, the dollar began the day in Frankfurt at 1.732

West German marks, up from 1.721 marks on Tuesday.

It opened in Zurich at 1.4505 Swiss francs, up from 1.4465, and in Brussels at 36.59 Belgian francs, up from 36.51.

Elsewhere in Europe, the dollar began the day lower. In Paris it opened at 5.9185 French francs, down from 5.921 and in Milan at 1,282.00 lire, down from 1,284.55.

In London, the British pound opened unchanged at $1.8485.

In early New York trading, the dollar was mostly higher against key foreign currencies in light trading.

Traders in New York said they did not expect much movement in the dollar until after Thursday's report on the nation's leading economic indicators and Friday's report on November unemployment.

October personal income up

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Personal income shot up a sharp 1.8 percent in October, the largest jump in a year, and people stuck their gains into savings accounts rather than spending it all, the Commerce Department said Wednesday.

Personal income increased 1.8 percent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $4.185 billion after a 0.5 percent increase in September, the department's Bureau of Economic Analysis said.

That was the largest jump since a 2.0 percent rise in October 1987 and reflected a large increase in subsidy payments to farmers and bonuses to auto workers, the bureau said.

When those two factors were taken out, personal income increased 0.9 percent in October, the bureau said.

payment."

One issue he expects to tackle in his new position is the investigations of school employees by the Department of Health & Rehabilitative Services. According to Ogletree, strengthened child abuse laws have caused considerable stress among teachers, a number of whom have sought help through employee assistance programs.

He would like to see legislation to channel those reports through Professional Practices Services, which acts as the watchdog for school employees.

"Teachers who I believe are doing a good job can be labeled for six to eight months as an abuser while they wait for investigations," he said.

By law teachers must report suspected cases of abuse. Ogletree's concern is for teachers who fail to spot a bruised arm and then fall into trouble with HRS.

"The child may have fallen on campus and simply neglected to tell someone at school," Ogletree said.

The Seminole UniServ Council offered the job of executive director to Nancy Wheeler. She has served as director since 1984. Her appointment hinges on successful contract negotiations scheduled for early December.

private contractor to build a recreation center on city-owned land on 25th Place off Sanford Avenue. The city commission has asked Jernigan to come back with more information on the lease-purchase idea.

Several candidates for city commissioner said in a public forum last week they would like to investigate the cost of establishing youth recreation facilities at scattered sites throughout the city instead of building a single recreation center.

A decision on youth recreation facilities will not be made until after the new commission is seated.

the city now feel they are represented on the city commission and by their mayor," she said.

In addition, Smith said, the city is "on the road to finding a solution to our sewer problems." The reason, she said, is the upgrading of the sewage treatment plant now underway, and the plan to recycle treated wastewater.

Smith defended the purchase of the 2,200 acres southeast of the city that was bought for effluent spray irrigation. She said the purchase allowed the city to keep grants for sewer system improvement after use of property at the airport for treated wastewater disposal was overruled by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Continuing to work toward solving the sewage problem is a top priority for Smith.

Morris said solving that problem also is his top priority, but he has been highly critical of the way the city has handled the sewage problem since it was ordered to stop disposing of treated sewage in Lake Monroe. He is particularly critical of the purchase of the 2,200 acres near Geneva.

He contends the commission should have continued negotiations with Seminole County after the county outbid the city for the Yankee Lake site.

"An inexperienced city staff gave county staff the city's engineering studies of the Yankee Lake site, and the city's prospective sites for fresh water wells, which the county started buying up," Morris said. "The city commission should have known better, and as a result, had to buy that 2,200 acres and go to Lake Mary to get rid of that effluent in order to keep the grants we had received to improve the sewer system," he charges.

Morris said the city should have sought only a legally-binding option to buy the 2,200 acres until engineering studies were completed, and in the meantime kept negotiating with the city.

He contends the purchase was a waste of money because subsequent studies have shown a large part of it is unsuitable for spray irrigation.

If elected, Morris said he will initiate negotiations with Seminole County and Lake Mary to form a combined sewer system. It could be accomplished either through binding interlocal agreements, or through a separate sewer authority. A sewer authority would be much easier to form under the county's home rule charter that takes effect Jan. 1, he said.

Other priorities for Smith, if she is re-elected, are to work toward a better relationship with county government, to provide more recreational opportunities for young people, to complete work on the senior center wing of the Civic Center, and to make improvements in the Goldsboro area through WINS (Westside Improvement Neighborhood Strategy) or an alternative plan.

Smith said she is encouraged about a better relationship with the county in light of the election of two new county commissioners. She said that perhaps a joint meeting of the city and county commissions could help iron out some differences. "Perhaps we need to start from scratch with some joint project we could accomplish together and in so doing foster trust and cooperation between us," she said.

She supports city plans to investigate financing of a youth recreation center on city-owned property. Morris has said he favors investigating the financing for youth recreation sites at various sites throughout the city.

Morris said one of his priorities will be to clean up the city by stricter enforcement of housing codes to tear down dilapidated housing and at the same time vigorously pursue a housing rehabilitation program.

He also said the city government should promote an attitude that the city will not put up with transients' camps and drug dealers and transmit that attitude through the police department.

Dexter, Sheehan win book awards

NEW YORK — Newspaper columnist Pete Dexter won the 1983 National Book Award for Fiction Tuesday for his "Paris Trout," and former news reporter Neil Sheehan won the non-fiction award for "A Bright Shining Lie."

A new prize, the National Book Awards Medal for Distinguished Contribution to American Letters, was presented to Jason Epstein, editorial director of Random House and founder of the New York Review of Books.

Dexter, 45, a columnist for the Sacramento Bee in California who is a frequent contributor to national magazines, was cited by the judging panel for writing a novel that captured the flavor of small-town life in the deep South after World War II.

Sheehan's book is a biography of John Paul Vain, a top U.S. military officer during the Vietnam War who spoke out against the ineffectiveness of the early American war effort.

Sheehan, who covered Vain as a reporter for United Press International in Vietnam, also reported for The New York Times for 18 years and obtained the Pentagon Papers for the Times in 1971.

Yonkers residents file suit against order

NEW YORK — More than 1,000 Yonkers residents, still determined not to allow low-income housing in white neighborhoods, Tuesday announced a lawsuit intended to nullify a federal judge's desegregation order.

Undaunted by the $1 million-a-day contempt fines that threatened to bankrupt Yonkers last summer until city officials agreed to the desegregation plan, the citizens group revived the bitter dispute with a petition to the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

More than 1,000 Yonkers residents and businessmen joined in the action, claiming U.S. District Judge Leonard Sand went too far in ordering the construction of low- and moderate-income housing throughout the state's fourth largest city.

Manville Trust to pay asbestos claims

PHILADELPHIA — The Manville Corp. has set up a $3 billion trust fund to settle tens of thousands of damage suits rather than litigate the claims filed by people sickened by exposure to asbestos, trust officials said Tuesday.

Manville, headquartered in Denver and once a principal producer of asbestos products, will pay the trust about $2.6 billion in cash, bonds, new stock, profits and insurance money to settle the claims, generating up to $3 billion during the life of the trust, officials said.

"It is my hope I can settle the claims and not delay claims," said Marianna Smith, executive director of the Manville Personal Injury Settlement Trust. "I want to get the money to the victims rather than pay the cost of litigation."

Manville, formerly Johns-Manville Corp., filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection in April 1982 after a barrage of personal injury lawsuits stemming from its production of asbestos. Asbestos causes asbestosis, a pulmonary disease.

Manville reorganized in 1980 under federal bankruptcy laws. Many of the claims were filed by former employees of the Philadelphia Naval Ship Yard and other shipyards around the country, said Al Kamhi, a trust spokesman.

Delta captains certain of flap positions

IRVING, Texas — The captain and first officer of Delta Air Lines Flight 1141 told federal investigators Tuesday that they are certain the flaps of the Boeing 737 were extended for takeoff on the Aug. 31 crash that killed 13 people.

Capt. Larry L. Davis and First Officer David W. Kirkland gave their testimony on the opening day of a four-day National Transportation Safety Board hearing into the cause of the crash at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

Jim Burnett, a member of the NTSB and head of the panel investigating this crash, called the crash "one of the more baffling ... in recent years," and he noted that the jetliner's "black box" flight data recorder was of an antiquated design.

But most of the attention focused on the flaps of the aircraft at the time of takeoff. Questions have arisen over whether they were deployed properly and why they were in a retracted position after the crash.

Davis said the first officer is responsible for lowering the wing flaps to the proper position for takeoff. Davis said he could not recall seeing Kirkland perform that procedure, but the first officer testified later in the day he was certain he did.

Doctors find way to prove child abuse

CHICAGO — Radiologists Wednesday offered a new high-tech tool to help authorities spot child abuse and even calculate when it occurred.

The new forensic tool is magnetic resonance imaging and doctors said MRI scans may detect head injuries — such as brain damage from violent shaking of children — that could otherwise go unspotted, or remain difficult to prove in court.

Speaking at the annual scientific meeting of the Radiological Society of North America, Dr. Yutaka Sato said "injuries within the skull often represent the most severe manifestations of child abuse."

Sato, associate professor of radiology at the University of Iowa Hospitals in Iowa City, examined 15 abused infants, comparing MRI to computed tomography scans, which are most commonly used to evaluate physically abused children.

Arson suspected in blast

Six firemen dead from two ammonia nitrate explosions

United Press International

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Arson investigators combed two huge craters Wednesday looking for clues to a "suspicious" fire that ignited two explosions, killing six firefighters and reducing their fire trucks to piles of charred scrap metal.

The pre-dawn fire Tuesday at a two-acre highway construction site ignited two trailers filled with highly flammable ammonia nitrate with a kerosene mix, obliterating the trailers and leaving two craters about 35 feet wide and 7 feet deep. Fire Department officials said.

Police Chief Larry Joiner told the City Council in an emergency noon meeting that the incident was being investigated as arson because two security guards reported suspicious activity before the blasts. Seven detectives were assigned to the case, he said.

The construction site is in a working-class residential area of the city, and the shock of the explosion shattered windows 25 miles away.

One of the two fire trucks that had been called to the scene was left as nothing more than scraps of metal strewn across the bottom of one crater, while the second truck was in pieces, but still recognizable.

The two mobile home-sized trailers together were filled with about 45,000 pounds of the ammonia nitrate mixture.

Ammonium nitrate was blamed for one of this country's worst disasters, the explosion of a shipload of the chemical in 1947 at Texas City, Tex., that killed more than 550 people, injured 3,000 and caused more than $600 million damage.

Ammonium nitrate is a crystalline salt used in some explosives and as a fertilizer. Construction workers, Knabe said, use it in conjunction with dynamite to ensure an even blast.

The firefighters were unaware of the content of the trailers when they were battling the fire.

Fire Department spokesman Harold Knabe said the trailers were not labeled as containing explosive materials and there apparently were no posted signs.

"They had no indication what was in the trailers, because if they had, there naturally would have been a different approach," he said. "They didn't know what they were moving in on. They thought they were moving in on a construction shack."

The firemen apparently were told by the dispatcher there were hazardous materials at the south Kansas City site, but neither they nor the dispatcher knew where they were, Knabe said.

Toxic cloud injures 54 firemen, forces evacuation

United Press International

FLINT, Mich. — A toxic cloud churning from a burning plastics plant overcame 54 firefighters and forced evacuation of 500 nearby residents before the blaze could be brought under control, authorities said Wednesday.

The injured firefighters were treated at four area hospitals, suffering from inhalation of toxic isocyanate that caused respiratory irritation, officials said. Most of the injured were held overnight for observation, authorities said, adding that none was believed to be seriously hurt.

"The fire is under control, and we are in the mop-up stage," Flint Township Supervisor Rod Shumaker said early Wednesday.

The fire was first reported at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Diverse Plastics Inc. plant in Flint Township, just west of the city limit in Genesee County. About 200 firefighters battled the blaze, and a total of 54 firefighters overcame by toxic fumes sought medical attention.

"Firemen came from all over the county to help us," a Flint Township Fire Department spokesman said.

As a precaution, about 500 residents living a mile-square area north, west and east of the plant were ordered to evacuate the area. They were temporarily housed at Red Cross emergency shelters, area motels or hotels or at the homes of relatives and friends, Shumaker said.

Eight hours after the blaze began, officials announced firefighters had the blaze under control and it was safe for the residents to return to their homes in the mixed rural and residential area.

Firefighters, however, remained at the scene to make sure the blaze did not rekindle. A state fire marshal also surveyed the damage to try and determine what triggered the fire.

Major cocaine network with gang link broken

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Authorities have broken a major link between a Colombian drug cartel and Los Angeles street gangs with the arrests of two men suspected of distributing up to $10 million in cocaine a week. It was reported Wednesday.

The arrests, which followed an investigation that stretched from Los Angeles to a small town in Denmark, were described as among the most significant in recent years.

Federal and local officials told the Los Angeles Times that Brian "Waterhead Bo" Bennett, 24, who recently moved to a half-million-dollar house in Tempe, Ariz., from the ghetto of South Central Los Angeles, and Mario Ernesto Villabona-Alvarado, 28, an alleged kingpin in the Cali, Colombia drug cartel, had organized a nationwide drug network that distributed more than a ton of crack cocaine a week.

Bennett, described as a young "high roller" with "an untouchable attitude" who apparently linked up with Villabona-Alvarado about two years ago, was arrested at his Tempe home. Villabona-Alvarado, 28, was arrested in Malibu, Calif.

General Electric indicted for fraud

United Press International

WASHINGTON — A federal grand jury in Philadelphia indicted General Electric Co. Tuesday on charges of scheming to defraud the government of more than $22 million on a 1983 Army contract for battlefield computer systems.

GE, the nation's third largest defense contractor, was awarded nearly $6 billion in contracts last year for the MX missile, nuclear reactors for submarines, underwater sound equipment and other projects.

In a statement, the Defense Department said the Philadelphia grand jury returned a 321-count indictment charging GE — doing business as Management and Technical Services Co., or MATSCO — with trying to bilk the government out of more than $22 million in connection with the June 1983 award of the Army contract.

Also charged in the indictment were Gerald Leo, the former materials manager for MATSCO, and James Badolato, former subcontracts manager of MATSCO. Leo and Badolato currently are employed by other GE subsidiaries.

The indictment charges GE, headquartered in Fairfield, Conn., with five counts of mail fraud and 312 counts of presenting false claims to the United States.

If convicted, GE could face a maximum penalty of criminal fines of $71.841 million in addition to paying restitution.

A GE spokesman, Bruce Bunch, said the company knew of the investigation and would vigorously defend itself. He also said the government's seeking more than 300 charges involving a single contract was an effort "to sensationalize the case."

GE officials believe the government is stretching the legal theory of "vicarious liability" in charging the giant firm, he said, noting:

"They have indicted individuals and they also indicted the company on the theory the company should be criminally prosecuted for the acts of these two people when there's no indication the company was in any way involved."

Bunch said GE officials do not think the indictments will have an adverse effect on current or future contracts.

The indictment said that from 1979 to 1984, GE's wholly owned subsidiary, MATSCO of King of Prussia, Pa., entered into a series of contracts and contract modifications with the Army's Information System Selection and Acquisition Agency and the Air Force for the production of a battlefield computer system known as the Decentralized Automated Service, or DAS-3.

After the initial competitive contract award in 1979, GE was designated by the Army as the sole source for the DAS-3 equipment, and contract modifications were awarded on a firm-fixed price basis.

A firm-fixed price contract is awarded after negotiations based on the contractor's proposal of material, labor cost and other indirect costs, plus a reasonable profit, usually calculated as a percentage of the cost of producing the equipment.

Before the contract was awarded, GE was required to submit current, accurate and complete cost and pricing data to the Army, but the indictment charges that GE, Leo and Badolato engaged in a scheme to submit false and fraudulent cost and pricing data by telling the Army that GE would be paying more for material than the company knew it would pay, thereby defrauding the Defense Department of more than $10 million.

Taxpayers could have been cheated out of more than $22 million if the scheme had not been uncovered by the Defense Contract Audit Agency, the Pentagon statement said.

The indictment alleges the phony information was supported by various methods, including the use of "contingencies" in subcontract pricing, as well as double-billing of parts and raw materials.

It also alleged the defendants did not reveal savings on subcontracts.

The indictment also charges Leo, of King of Prussia, with one count of conducting the affairs of an enterprise through a pattern of racketeering, five counts of mail fraud, and two counts of making false statements and concealing material facts from government investigators.

Bhutto's rival bows out

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Benazir Bhutto's chief political rival abandoned efforts Wednesday to form a new government, clearing the way for Bhutto to become the first woman prime minister in the Muslim world.

Nawaz Sharif, head of the government-backed Islamic Democratic Alliance, took the oath of office as a member of the Punjab Provincial Assembly in the northeastern city of Lahore — a move that excluded him from holding a seat in the lower house of Parliament in Islamabad.

Bhutto's opposition Pakistan People's Party won the largest number of National Assembly seats among all groups participating in the Nov. 16 general elections but failed to secure an outright majority. Both Bhutto and Sharif have claimed they can form governments with the help of independents and smaller parties.

Sharif, 38, also won a seat in Nov. 10 provincial elections in Punjab, where he is acting chief minister. His decision to become a member of that assembly means he will have to surrender his National Assembly seat and indicates he intends to continue as Punjab's chief minister.

President Ghulam Ishaq Khan is to announce a prime minister on Thursday from whichever party he believes can form a new government, and his choice is now virtually certain to be Bhutto.

The 35-year-old daughter of executed prime minister Zulfiqar Ali Bhutto would be the first woman leader of a Muslim nation and the youngest prime minister of Pakistan, which has been under military rule for more than two-thirds of its 41-year history.

Bhutto, her mother, Nusrat, co-leader of the PPP, and more than 180 other politicians elected this month were sworn in as National Assembly members in a brief ceremony.

Bhutto sat in the assembly seat previously occupied by the last prime minister, Mohammad Khan Junejo, whose government was dismissed in May by late President Mohammad Zia ul-Haq. Zia, who ruled for 11 years, eight of them as head of a military government, died in a mysterious Aug. 17 plane crash.

Protesters denounce Aquino government

MANILA, Philippines — About 12,000 leftist workers marched through the capital Wednesday, denouncing the "U.S.-Aquino regime" and calling for the dismantling of strategic American military bases in the Philippines.

Columns of protesters assembled at various points throughout the capital and converged at a public square in front of the central post office for a three-hour rally led by the militant trade union May 1st Movement, or KMMU.

The protesters burned an American flag and at nightfall marched to Mendocino Bridge three blocks from President Corason Aquino's palace, where they held a brief rally.

Hundreds of riot police armed with truncheons stood watch near the bridge, but no violence or arrests were reported.

The protesters called for wage increases, the dismantling of the U.S. Subic Bay Naval Complex and Clark Air Base, the debanding of anti-communist vigilante groups and the release of two leaders jailed on sedition charges for calling a transport strike last week.

KMMU chairman Crispin Beltran slammed what he termed "repressive" policies against workers and cited 1,707 alleged incidents of abuse, including tortures and executions, that civil rights groups said were committed during the Aquino administration. He said the number was "three times more" than had occurred during ousted ruler Ferdinand Marcos's 20-year rule.

Police estimated the size of the crowd at 12,000. But organizers said about 20,000 people participated. The protest coincided with the observance of Filipino revolutionary Andres Bonifacio 125th birthday, a national holiday.

Blacks banned from parks, toilets

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — A city council controlled by conservatives voted to ban blacks from all municipal parks, lavatories and sports facilities Tuesday in a challenge to the minority white government to "put your money where your mouth is."

State-run television reported that the council in Brakpan, 15 miles east of Johannesburg, voted to enforce provisions of the national government's Separate Amenities Act, joining neighboring Boksburg town in enforcing openly racist policies.

South Africa's two largest oil companies, Shell South Africa Ltd. and Mobil Oil South Africa, issued statements deploring the decision and vowed to fight "any attempts to turn back the clock" on racial reform.

"The tragedy is that the ramifications of these actions will not be confined to Boksburg," Shell Oil said in a statement. "They can openly lead to widespread bitterness and untold disillusionment among all thinking citizens of South Africa."

As Brakpan joined Boksburg in carrying out election campaign pledges to enforce segregation laws, there were indications that nearby black communities were preparing to use their purchasing power to challenge the measures.

A spokesman for the Chamber of Commerce in Vanderhorst, a black township on the outskirts of Boksburg, said 52 black shopkeepers and doctors voted Monday night to withdraw their accounts from Boksburg banks and building societies.

But a spokesman for the Conservative Party, which captured control of nearly two-thirds of the town councils in northern Transvaal Province in segregated municipal elections in October, defended the party's measures as simply enforcing laws already on the books.

Thousands of Haitians mark massacre

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — Thousands of demonstrators watched by heavily armed troops marched in the capital Tuesday to mark the first anniversary of election-day massacres in which at least 34 people were slain.

Military ruler Lt. Gen. Prosper Avril last week declared the anniversary a national day of commemoration. Troops armed with M-16s and UzI submachine guns and wearing flak jackets patrolled streets in trucks.

On Tuesday, about 5,000 chanting demonstrators bearing placards reading "Nov. 29, never again" and "The country will have democracy" marched through Port-au-Prince's downtown to mark the killings on Nov. 29, 1987.

At least 34 people were hacked, shot and beaten to death and more than 100 wounded by gunmen linked to the deposed Duvalier family dictatorship during the troubled Caribbean nation's first elections in 30 years.

The attacks halted the independently run voting three hours after it began. The interim government of Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy, which made no effort to stop the attacks, held its own army-run polls six weeks later.

Avril, the fourth head of state since the Duvaliers' ouster in February 1986, said in a decree read on state-run television late Monday that he would create a five-member civilian-military commission to investigate the 1987 killings.

The two-hour demonstration was organized by political and human rights organizations led by the Group of Christian Democrats and the United Haitian Communist Party, which handed out red flags to marchers.

Demonstrators marched from the ruined St. Jean Bosco church to the Bellegarde Argentine School, where about 15 people were killed as they waited to vote.

Addressing marchers near the school, communist leader Rene Theodore said Avril was "the perpetuation of Duvalier" and called for "progressive power, the only kind capable of breaking open the trouble the country finds itself in."

Over 50 dead Bangladesh cyclone

Cyclone created tidal wave, hundreds more feared dead

United Press International

DHAKA, Bangladesh — The worst cyclone in memory churned across Bangladesh and part of India, spawning a tidal wave and killing more than 50 people before dissipating early Wednesday, officials and news reports said. Hundreds of people were missing and feared dead.

Many people were reported injured and unknown numbers left homeless.

Officials said those missing included three Austrian tourists and 19 crew members of a container ship that reportedly sank in the Bay of Bengal as it battled heavy seas en route from Singapore to the Indian port of Calcutta.

The storm crashed out of the Bay of Bengal late Tuesday and moved northeast, its 110 mph winds and torrential rains causing widespread floods and tearing apart homes, electricity and telephone lines, crops and trees in many parts of Bangladesh and coastal areas of the neighboring Indian state of West Bengal, forecasters and officials said.

The cyclone, which measured 230 miles in diameter, was stronger than a storm that claimed more than 500,000 lives in Bangladesh in 1970, forecasters and officials said.

But, they added that the death toll was expected to be far less than in 1970 because thousands of people had fled coastal areas after the government began issuing warnings on Sunday.

By 3 a.m. Wednesday, the storm had dissipated over the hilly regions of northeast Bangladesh, but heavy rains and gusty winds continued lashing many areas of the country and forecasters said the bad weather was expected to continue through Thursday.

The disaster came as Bangladesh was still struggling to overcome its worst ever floods, which in late August and early September gushed from its main rivers and covered most of the 58,100 square-mile nation of 104 million people, among the poorest on earth.

More than 2,000 people died, some 30 million people were left homeless and hundreds of millions of dollars in infrastructure and crops were destroyed or damaged.

An official reached by telephone in Kolkata, about 80 miles southwest of Dhaka, said at least 23 people were killed there. Most died when their homes collapsed. A family of five was electrocuted when a power pylon toppled onto their home, he said.

"The area was badly hit. Thousands of homes collapsed. We need dry food supplies. The damage to crops has been colossal," said the official. Faruq Ahmed, chairman of a local administrative council.

Officials said by telephone that collapsing homes also killed two people in Bagerhat, two in Rangati, three in Moreiganj and three in Fatkhira, but they added that because of communications problems, the casualty toll in other areas was not immediately known.

The Press Trust of India news agency reported from the West Bengal capital of Calcutta that at least 24 people were killed, many others injured and "a vast population rendered homeless" in three of the Indian state's coastal districts.

U.N. drafts resolution condemning U.S.

United Press International

UNITED NATIONS — U.N. legal experts Tuesday drafted a resolution condemning the U.S. refusal to grant an entry visa to PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat as a violation of international law and demanding that Washington reverse the decision.

The Reagan administration said it will not be swayed by world condemnation of its decision, even though a senior PLO official was quoted as saying the Palestinian leadership might consider withdrawing its recent implicit recognition of Israel's right to exist.

U.N. officials said the resolution, which gives the United States 24 hours to reconsider the refusal, was expected to be adopted by the 159-nation General Assembly when it is presented for a vote Wednesday.

If the United States refuses to change its mind, the General Assembly is expected to adopt a motion by Arab nations, possibly Friday, to move the assembly debate on Palestine from New York to the U.N. European headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland.

The General Assembly postponed the debate at the New York headquarters, which had been scheduled to begin in two days, and sources close to the assembly president said the proposed date for the Geneva session was Dec. 13-15.

Arafat applied for a U.S. visa so that he could address the General Assembly debate in New York and explain a new platform adopted by the Palestinian leadership, but was barred from doing so by the State Department, which cited the Palestine Liberation Organization's links to terrorism.

The resolution worked out by the legal committee of the General Assembly said the U.S. visa refusal "constitutes a violation of the international legal obligations of the host country under the headquarters agreement."

It "urges the host country to abide scrupulously by the provisions of the agreement and to reconsider and reverse its decision."

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar's legal counsel said Monday that the United States "was and is under the obligation to grant the visa request to the chairman of the PLO, an organization that has been granted observer status by the General Assembly."

The U.S. decision to bar Arafat drew a chorus of criticism from the Arab world and even from U.S. allies.

A senior PLO official, meanwhile, warned that the Palestinian leadership may revoke a 2-week-old proclamation implicitly recognizing Israel's right to exist unless the United States responds to its peace overtures.

The remarks by Salah Khalaf, better known as Abu Iyad, a representative of Yasser Arafat's Al Fatah group of the PLO, were made in an interview published in the Saudi Arabian newspaper Al Shargh Al-Awwal.

"If the United States continues to ignore the Palestinian peace initiative, this will force the Palestinian leadership to reconsider all our positions, particularly those which were declared at the conclusion of the Algiers meeting of the Palestinian National Council," Khalaf was quoted as saying.

At the end of a meeting in the Algerian capital of Algiers on Nov. 15, the Palestinian leadership proclaimed a Palestinian state in the Israeli-occupied territories where a year-old Palestinian uprising has been raging.

The Palestinian leadership also issued a political declaration that included for the first time the PLO's acceptance of a U.N. resolution, which implicitly acknowledges Israel's right to exist within secure boundaries.

Dozens of nations recognized the proclaimed state and hailed the declaration as a positive peace initiative, but Israel and the United States rejected it.

The United States described the proclamation as ambiguous and said it did not go far enough toward meeting the U.S. demand for a clear PLO recognition of Israel.

Iran willing to work for release of U.S. hostages

United Press International

ATHENS, Greece — Iranian Parliament Speaker Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani said Tuesday his country is prepared to work for the release of U.S. hostages kidnapped in Lebanon if the United States helps win freedom for Iranian hostages.

Rafsanjani addressed the hostage issue at a news conference in Tehran during a visit by West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher, who a Persian Gulf-based Western diplomat said Monday was asked by Secretary of State George Shultz to raise the hostage issue with the Iranians.

At the White House Tuesday, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Genscher "doesn't represent the United States in any fashion" but "I would add ... that any foreign government official who has discussions with Iran and who can discuss this subject and bring pressure to bear on them to use whatever influence they have, is always a possibly beneficial outcome."

The main purpose of Genscher's trip is to promote trade, and in talks with Rafsanjani Tuesday Rafsanjani said Iran was considering for the first time since the Islamic revolution of 1979 the possibility of obtaining Western credits to rebuild his country's war-shattered economy, the official Islamic Republic News Agency said.

"If the talks reach good results, there will be exchanges with other countries as well," IRNA quoted him as saying, describing Rafsanjani's comments as "the clearest statement yet on Iran's possible turn to foreign markets to finance some of its largest post-war projects."

Tehran radio, monitored in Athens, quoted Rafsanjani as saying, "If Britain and the U.S. are serious about having our hostages freed in Lebanon, we too shall make full use of all possibilities available to us for the release of their hostages."

"We asked the Archbishop of Canterbury if Britain was ready to use its influence in Lebanon, and (said) if our hostages are freed, we too will help to have their hostages free," he said. But "so far nothing serious has been done, or if something has been done, we are unaware of it."

Soviets consider Western-style democracy

United Press International

MOSCOW — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev opened a landmark session of the nation's rubber-stamp parliament Tuesday by asking the body to step aside in favor of a more Western-style legislature that would expedite his dramatic economic reforms.

In a speech running more than 80 pages and carried in full by the official Tass news agency, Gorbachev passionately urged the Supreme Soviet to overhaul what he called the nation's "ossifying" political system where "shop-floor initiatives" get lost in "bureaucratic mazes."

"Political reform is a kind of oxygen needed by the public," Gorbachev said in appealing for the decentralization of economic management under his restructuring policy of perestroika.

He said the Soviet Union had to turn its back on the still prevalent paranoia and fears of the years under despot Josef Stalin, who had total control of the economy under the Communist Party.

"It is now clear what immense costs — human, political, ideological and moral and not in the least turn material — our country paid as a result of the disruption of that process and the establishment since the early 1930s (under Stalin) of authoritarian methods of power, a system of bureaucratic command management, mass repressions and other violations of socialist legality (that) became widespread," he said.

The three-day session by the 1,500 members of the Supreme Soviet is to include adoption of laws calling for multi-candidate parliamentary elections and limiting the terms of all office-holders. The session is expected to end with the rubber-stamp legislature voting itself out of existence in favor of a new compact body that will convene next year.

"The Supreme Soviet cannot do a proper job if the role of deputies is reduced to voting (only)," he said.

One North charge dropped, 14 remain

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The judge in the Iran-Contra case dismissed Tuesday a wire fraud count against ex-White House aide Oliver North but rejected defense motions to throw out six of the remaining 14 counts.

The felony count that was dropped concerned North's use of wires to transfer to the Nicaragua Contra rebels millions of dollars in proceeds from the secret U.S. arms sales to Iran. However, the allegedly illegal diversion of those funds still remains a central issue in the case.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell means that all but two of 30 defense motions to dismiss various counts in the indictment have been cleared away in advance of key closed hearings to begin Wednesday.

Earlier Tuesday, Gesell rejected North's bid to exclude independent prosecutor Lawrence Walsh from the hearings, in which Gesell hopes to decide which classified documents may be used in the case.

A source close to Walsh said he and his staff were "very pleased" with the rulings on the defense motions.

"The indictment remains virtually intact despite the strenuous challenge to all of the counts" by the defense, the source said.

North, a former aide on the National Security Council, was indicted March 16 on 18 counts of wire fraud, obstruction of justice and conspiracy to defraud the government in the Iran-Contra scandal. Last month, Gesell dismissed a fraud count that concerned the installation of a security fence at North's Virginia home.

Gesell said in the dismissal order Tuesday that he agreed to throw out the wire fraud count because it might have created "substantial confusion in the minds of the jurors."

The central conspiracy count in the case, Gesell noted, accuses North of depriving the government of "honest and faithful services," while the wire fraud count charges he deprived the government of "property."

Gesell also rejected defense motions to dismiss three counts charging that North made false statements to Congress in the fall of 1985 and three other counts accusing him of obstruction of Congress in 1985 and 1986.

Those counts generally related to North's failure to disclose fully the details of his secret efforts to arm the Contras during a congressional ban on official U.S. aid.

No trial date has been set for North, the first of four figures to face prosecution in the biggest scandal of the Reagan administration — although earlier this month, Gesell said the case could begin in late January.

Grocery prices could rise 5 percent next year

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Consumers could be paying up to 5 percent more for their groceries next year, but they should find an abundance of pork and poultry in the marketplace, experts predicted Tuesday.

Kicking off the 65th annual Agricultural Outlook Conference, a panel of experts outlined trends for the coming year in retail food prices. U.S. farm income and global crop production.

James Donald, who runs the Agriculture Department's global outlook board, said he expected smaller crop supplies, steady demand and higher prices in the 1989 world market.

U.S. farmers, hit by lower government payments and higher production costs, will experience a 10 percent drop in their cash income in 1989 but their net earnings will increase by about 20 percent, Donald said.

For consumers, retail food prices will edge up between 3 percent and 5 percent next year but meat supplies, especially pork and poultry, will be at near record levels.

This year's drought — the worst in 50 years — caused higher U.S. food prices for cereals, bakery products, vegetable oils, fruits and vegetables but an abundance of meat kept the overall increase for 1988 at 4 percent.

The drought will have a lingering impact on the world agricultural supply with experts predicting a decrease in the global stock of rice, wheat and soybeans in fiscal 1989.

Although the volume of U.S. exports in fiscal 1989 will be lower, prices for commodities will rise sharply. Experts expect American farmers to do particularly well with exports to Japan — the largest purchaser of U.S. farm products — South Korea and Taiwan.

"This expansion is not going to whither away by itself," Angell said.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — In round one of Rex Chapman versus Rony Seikaly, put one on the board for King Rex.

The former Kentucky guard, whom the Charlotte Hornets were criticized for taking over Seikaly with their eighth pick in July's NBA draft, scored a season-high 22 points to lead the Hornets to a 99-84 win over the Miami Heat in the first-ever meeting between the two expansion teams Tuesday night at the Charlotte Coliseum.

Seikaly, who made known his distaste for playing in Charlotte by missing a scheduled pre-draft interview with the Hornets, apparently felt the pressure from a rowdy sellout crowd of 23,388 that booed him every time he touched the ball.

The 6-11 center from Syracuse scored four points for the night, hitting only one of 10 field goal attempts and missing six of eight tries at the free throw line.

"Seikaly's a great player, he just had a bad night," said Chapman, who has been struggling himself this season, shooting just 35 percent from the field entering the game. "I sympathize with what he went through, because he's really a nice guy. I didn't feel any extra pressure because of him. He's a center and I'm a guard."

Seikaly admitted that he was perhaps trying too hard.

"I didn't play well tonight," Seikaly said. "I think I was too ready to play. I put too much

At Denver, Alex English poured in 41 points to move into ninth place on the all-time scoring list and the Nuggets opened the third quarter with 16 unanswered points to down New York. Lafayette Lever contributed 17 points, 13 rebounds and 12 assists. Patrick Ewing led the Knicks with 24 points.

Warriors 109, Chicago 99

At Oakland, Calif., Chris Mullin scored 29 points and rookie Mitch Richmond added 27 to help Golden State snap a four-game losing streak. Brad Sellers led Chicago with a career-high 32 points and Michael Jordan had 26 — 11 below his season average. It was the first time in 91 games Jordan did not pace the Bulls in scoring.

Celtics 100, Nets 93

At East Rutherford, N.J., Robert Parish collected 21 points and hit two baskets to fuel a 7-1 closing burst for Boston. The Celtics played without Dennis Johnson, out with a strained Achilles tendon. Buck Williams led New Jersey with 23 points.

Beating the team with the NBA's best record gave Herb Williams and the Indiana Pacers no added satisfaction.

"Any win is a big win for us," said Williams, who collected 24 points and 13 rebounds to lift Indiana to a 107-98 victory over the Detroit Pistons at Market Square Arena. "It's no moral victory. We're 2-1-1. Anything we can get, we'll take."

The Pacers, off to their worst start in 21 years, canned 27 of 28 free throws and limited the Pistons to 41 percent shooting to win for only the second time in 13 games. Detroit, playing for the first time since beating the NBA champion Lakers Saturday night, dropped to 10-3.

Former Piston John Long came off the bench to score 18 points, including 11 straight points during a 15-1 rally that pulled the Pacers from an 11-point deficit.

"We know we can win," Long said. "We just had to come on and do it. I came in at halftime and told the guys they were ripe to be beat if we kept playing aggressive defense, and we did."

Indiana is 2-2 under interim coach George Irvine, who replaced Jack Ramsay after an 0-9

Iowa roars past rival Drake, 96-72

United Press International

Iowa Coach Tom Davis and Drake Coach Tom Abatemarco held completely different views of the No. 7 Hawkeyes after they handed their in-state rivals the worst pasting in the last 10 years of the series.

B.J. Armstrong scored 20 of his 25 points in the first half and five Iowa players scored in double figures Tuesday night as the Hawkeyes rolled to a 96-72 victory.

"We've got a good ballclub, but I don't know how good," Davis said after the Hawkeyes ran their record to 2-0. "We got after it in the first half."

Abatemarco said Iowa "is a great basketball team. They just came after us. They by far outclassed us and outplayed us. Their press was very effective."

Tuesday night's loss was the Bulldogs worst to Iowa since a 112-73 pasting in 1978.

Drake's loss was its ninth consecutive defeat, which includes six straight losses at the end of the 1987-88 season, and losses to Northwest Louisiana and Texas A&M last weekend.

Terrell Jackson came off the bench to lead Drake with 19 points. Sam Roark finished with 18 and Eric Berger added 17.

Meanwhile, Lefty Driesell continued his successful return to coaching as James Madison took a 94-92 decision over Virginia Military Institute.

Troy Bostic rebounded a shot by teammate Kenny Brooks and scored with two seconds left to lift the Dukes to victory in their home opener.

In other games, Auburn nipped Georgia State 74-70. Old Dominion topped William & Mary 70-62. Indiana State edged Texas Wesleyan 70-66. Iowa State rolled over Creighton 88-58 and Purdue clobbered Long Beach State 100-53.

Also, it was Dartmouth 80, Boston College 74; Lafayette 68, Army 61; New Hampshire 93, Harvard 74; North Carolina-Wilmington 75, Ohio University 68; Minnesota 97, Youngstown State 64; and Wichita State 96, George Mason 75.

Other games included Oklahoma State 70, Samford 44; Louisiana Tech 75, Fresno State 59; San Diego State 83, Baylor 58; Idaho 50, Washington State 40; and Southern Cal 97, U.S. International 61.

Rams shift gears for '88-89 season

By TONY DeBORNIER
Herald sports writer

There's no place they can hide: Anybody who's interested knows that the Lake Mary Rams are the odds-on favorite to win the 4A-District 9 championship. Consider that this year's edition features 15 seniors as well as 12 returnees (including five starters) from last year's team that advanced to the state semifinals before being eliminated by Orange Park.

As if that weren't enough for the rest of the local teams to contend with, the Rams have been able to come up with yet another dimension with which to aggravate their opponents: speed.

In Lake Mary's 0-0 tie with Oviedo in the preseason jamboree, fans and foes alike got an eyeful of the fleet-footed abilities of Darren Forde, a senior transfer from Seminole, and freshman Justin Walker.

"You could see that Darren will be a high-impact player for us," said McCorkle. "He came in and immediately made things happen."

"What we have to do is get the speed into our offense with quality passing around them."

Even without Forde and Walker, the presence of returning starting forwards John Brooks, Manny Roldan and Travis Betsinger (who also plays in the midfield) give the 1988-89 Rams plenty of offensive firepower.

Interestingly, that talent didn't translate into any goals against Oviedo in the jamboree, but McCorkle was quick to point out that the quality of the opposition and the course of action he decided to take had something to do with that.

"Oviedo's a good team," he said. "They gave us a battle. We played a lot of different people. We wanted to see what different people would do in pressure situations. We also put some people in different positions."

That juggling of the line-up served to prepare the Rams for a situation that McCorkle surely doesn't want to face very often. Against Oviedo, Lake Mary had only one of the players McCorkle expects to start on defense this season.

"We have some new faces," said McCorkle. "We had only one starter from our defense out there. It was a good test for the young players we'll be counting on in the future."

One notable absence was senior Eric Ravndal, who was participating in U.S. national team trials in Las Cruces, New Mexico. He and returning seniors Jim Noble (who also did not play against Oviedo) and Jim Spicher should give the Rams a very solid defensive unit.

Behind them is the one small question mark on this Lake Mary team: senior goalie Steve Sharp. A member of last year's team Sharp saw limited action, but McCorkle has faith in Sharp's ability to do the job.

"Sharp did a good job tonight," said McCorkle after the Oviedo contest. "He's a very capable keeper. You have to make a good shot to beat him."

"He played some games when he was our back-up goalie last year. He worked hard last year, getting ready for this moment."

Sharp showed the ability to make a quick decision and act in the 40 minutes against Oviedo. While the Ram defense did a fine job of limiting Oviedo to a few, long shots, senior Jeff DeRose did manage to get behind the Lake Mary defense once on a nice through ball.

Before DeRose could take a step, Sharp charged out and made a sliding tackle out of the penalty box to smother the scoring threat before it had a chance to get started.

McCorkle will have a chance to see how good his team is very early in the season.

'Hounds young but hungry in '88-89

By TONY DeBORNIER

With only four seniors on a roster of 17 players, a case could be made that the Lyman High School boys soccer team is entering a rebuilding year.

But don't say that to Ray Sandidge, the Greyhounds' coach.

"Even though we're a young team in age and experience, we don't consider ourselves in a rebuilding year," said Sandidge. "In the past, during what were considered our rebuilding years, we've had twice as many wins as losses."

"We always feel that we'll be one of the top teams in the area. Once we gain some game experience, we'll improve tremendously. By season's end, we should be able to compete for the district title."

The Greyhounds start the 1988-89 campaign with an interesting combination of experience and up-and-coming talent. For example, the Lyman defense centers around the play of senior All State goalie Kelly Walden and freshman sweeper Paul Klaus, who is on the Under-15 state select team.

Klaus has some impressive boots to fill as he takes over the position previously manned by two-time All State selection Shailer Bowers.

"We want to bring Paul along slowly," said Sandidge. "He doesn't have any experience at the sweeper position, but the ability he showed in being named to the state select team was a consideration for us putting him back there."

"Hopefully, he'll be there for four years."

Until last week, Sandidge was counting on senior stopper Kevin Voyer to anchor an otherwise inexperienced defensive corps. But Voyer suffered a knee injury and is out for the season. Replacing him will be Craig Jarrett, a junior with two years of junior varsity experience.

"Kevin was doing great until he tore his knee ligaments," said Sandidge. "We were really excited with his play. In our defense, he would have been the only starter who had any varsity experience."

Fortunately for the young Lyman defenders, some of the pressure should be taken off by the presence of senior center midfielder Bernard Harden and junior striker JoJo House, the only other returning starters from last year's 15-3-2 team.

"JoJo is in his third year playing for us," said Sandidge after House scored a pair of goals in Lyman's 3-0 win over Seminole in the preseason jamboree at Lake Mary on Monday night. "He's worked really hard and could be one of the top players around."

In the jamboree, Sandidge split the one 40-minute period his team played into halves, setting different goals for each.

"We took the first 20 minutes and let the first team go after them," said Sandidge (the Greyhounds' goals came in the first 22:18 of the match). "After that, we made sure everyone else had a chance to get in and show their stuff in game conditions."

If Lyman does make the leaps and bounds necessary to challenge preseason favorite Lake Mary in the district tournament at season's end, then it will be because of that philosophy employed by Sandidge and his assistant and former professional goalkeeper Lou Cluff: work not only to win but to prepare as well.

"We'll know in about 10 weeks if it works and Lyman's 'rebuilding' efforts are successful."

Talented Lions ready to roar again

By TONY DeBORNIER

It's a shame that a team as talented as Oviedo High School's boy soccer team is, at best, the No. 2 team in the area.

What do these guys have to do to get some respect?

Short of moving to another county, all the Oviedo Lions can do is keep turning efforts like the one they managed in Monday night's preseason jamboree against Lake Mary at Lake Mary. For 40 minutes, Oviedo played the team favored to win this year's Seminole Athletic Conference title to a 0-0 tie.

"This was a match between two really good soccer teams," said Lion coach Dave Jekanoaki. "They have a lot more experience than we do, but we gave them a ball game tonight."

Actually, Oviedo has almost as much experienced talent returning from last year's 15-7-2 team as Lake Mary does from its 1987-88 squad.

"We have eight of our key players back from last year," said Jekanoaki. "And we picked up a fine player from Bishop Moore, Jeff DeRose."

"There are seven or eight very good players back from last year and we have some outstanding young players who have come out. This is a program that keeps getting bigger and better every year."

To try and keep that trend going in the right direction, Jekanoaki used the jamboree to get a lot of players some playing time. With the season starting this Friday, there are still some decisions to be made and wrinkles to iron out.

"I'm really happy we were able to play 16 or 17 people tonight," said Jekanoaki on Monday. "We're trying to do a lot of different things."

In fact, the Lions gave a couple of different offensive looks against Lake Mary. With DeRose up front, Oviedo tried to use through balls more. With sophomore Hector Mejia in the line-up, the Lion attack was a little more one-on-one oriented.

"We still trying to decide if Hector is going to play varsity or junior varsity," Jekanoaki said. "We had a lot of questions coming in here tonight. We answered some but we still have some to answer."

Defensively, there doesn't seem to be any questions with the four fullback spots and the goalie position all filled by seniors. The quartet of Derek Bates, Jeff Griffin, Chris Scroggins and Chris Kuhn form the line of defense in front of keeper Jeff Hoffman.

So really, with experienced players forming the nucleus on offense and defense, the only real question is how well all the parts will fit together. And if Jekanoaki and the Lions can come up with the right answer, then they just might be able to earn that respect they already deserve.

Lake Brantley building for the future

By TONY DeBORNIER
Herald sports writer

Jim Brody makes no bones about it: the Lake Brantley High School boys soccer team is building for the future.

"Last year, we graduated 14 seniors (from a team that finished 8-10-2)," said Brody. "This year, I decided to carry young players on the roster. Unless a senior was going to make an impact, I didn't keep him."

"I hate to cut seniors, but I decided to go with a youth program. Next year, we'll only lose four players. We should be able to fill those spots."

As a result, there are only six returners from last year's Patriot team: seniors Kirk Klaffer, Lou Meletlidis, James Waczewski and Jon Baker and juniors Ron Mosto and Prince Sharma. The rest of the roster consists of 10 juniors and two sophomores.

Thankfully, the experience is spread out through the Patriot line-up: Klaffer starts in goal while Mosto and Baker play defense. Sharma lines up in the midfield, Waczewski starts at forward and Meletlidis switches between midfield and the front line.

Brody hopes that the rebuilding will take place quickly, the team's young talent galvanized by the difficult schedule that comes from being a member of the Seminole Athletic Conference.

"When you're playing against any stiff competition, it makes rebuilding tougher," admitted Brody. "But it's a long season. The way I look at it, you start off with your conference games and that makes you tougher."

"Last year, we ended with four straight wins going into the playoffs. Because the only effect the regular season has on post-season is on the seeding, you could go 0-22 in the regular season, then win seven straight in the playoffs and be state champs."

For that unlikely formula to be successful, a team would have to learn a lot from those defeats. And while he would prefer his team not lose all of its regular season games, Brody does want them to learn and improve from every game.

"We look at it one match at a time," he said after the Patriots played DeLand to a scoreless tie in the preseason jamboree at Lake Mary. "We saw some good things tonight and we saw some things that need to be corrected."

"We have to get better every night, that's what I'm looking for right now. The kids have a lot of heart, but they have to come together."

They'll have to do it in a hurry because four of the Patriots' first five games are against stiff competition. They open with Lyman on Dec. 1 then, after playing Dr. Phillips on Dec. 3, host Oviedo on the 6th. On the 8th and 10th, Lake Brantley plays the 1987-88 champions from 4A-District 9 — Lake Mary — and 4A-District 10 — Winter Park.

Interest in soccer soaring at Howell

By TONY DeBORNIER
Herald sports writer

Things are getting interesting out at Lake Howell.

This year, according to boys varsity soccer coach Bill Stevens, over 70 boys are participating in soccer at the varsity, junior varsity and freshmen levels. And that eventually means better things in the win column for the varsity.

"We have 26 players on our team," said Stevens. "That's a huge squad. And we have three really good goalkeepers."

"I think we should do really well. We have a lot of 11th graders (12), so we should be strong next year. We're getting a really good program going here. This is the first year the junior varsity has a coach at the school."

On Monday night in the preseason jamboree at Lake Mary, the Silver Hawks showed why they should be considered among the area elite this year, notching a 1-0 win over the tough Bishop Moore Hornets.

Greg Schicker scored the goal for Lake Howell, taking a feed from Jason Logan following a quick corner kick by Ron Jenkins. But one thing that bothered Stevens about the win was the fact that the Hawks didn't score, or at least try to score, more.

For much of the 40-minute period, Lake Howell put together some good passes and had some nice touches around the Bishop Moore net, but didn't get off many shots.

"They were determined to set it up too pretty," said Stevens with a laugh.

The most guilty of that sin were Jenkins and Jamie Trenholm, both of whom would get the ball in the Bishop Moore penalty area and, instead of letting loose with a shot, insisted on trying to push the ball into a more favorable position, more often than not squandering the opportunity.

Still, the fact that his team was able to create the opportunities pleased Stevens.

Boyesen goals lift Lady Hawks

By CHRIS FISTER
Herald sports editor

ORLANDO — Lake Howell junior Dana Boyesen proved Tuesday evening that she is an astute tactician of the game of soccer. A pair of goal-scoring opportunities were created within 46 seconds of each other and Boyesen capitalized on both as her two goals lifted the Lady Silver Hawks to a 2-0 victory over Bishop Moore's host Lady Hornets.

"Boyesen is a very smart player," Bishop Moore coach Larry Betsinger said. "You can't give a player like that an opening. We did twice and she took advantage of it."

Lake Howell improved to 2-0 for the season and returns to action Friday night at home vs. DeLand (JV 5:15, varsity 7). Bishop Moore, which now stands at 3-2-1, hosts St. Cloud Saturday at noon.

The Lady Silver Hawks relied on the defense, led by sweeperback Jessica Cardarelli and stopper Michelle Harris, to hold the Hornets down in the early going until the offense got on track.

"We were a little flat in the first half, then stepped up to a higher level of play in the second half," Lake Howell coach Gerhard Tauscher said. "The defense played outstanding and our overall aggressive play and good passing made the difference."

Bishop Moore was held to just six shots on goal and goalkeeper Heather Brann came up with her first shutout of the season with three saves. Another key for Lake Howell was shutting down the dangerous Amy Gertz. The Lady Hawks were double marking Gertz all game long. When then person who was assigned to mark Gertz left her for some reason, the next closest person would then mark up on her.

"Amy (Gertz) is going to have to learn to deal with double marking," Betsinger said. "The other teams know what she's capable of and it's something she will definitely see again."

Lake Howell, which fired 19 shots on goal, finally cracked the tough Bishop Moore defense just over 18 minutes into the second half when Michelle Cook sent a cross from the right side to the near post and Boyesen tapped it in.

The Lady Hawks made it 2-0 just 46 seconds later when Cook passed to the right side of the goal area where Boyesen connected on a hard shot past Bishop Moore keeper Suzy Strazzula.

Strazzula had a superb game for Bishop Moore as she came up with 14 saves. Defensively, sweeperback Jennifer Hanigan had a strong game along with Karen Butz, Jill Gertz and Jennifer Dougherty.

OVIDO TOPS PHILLIPS
Lynley Yost scored two goals in 26 seconds to lead the Oviedo High School Lady Lion soccer team to a 4-2 victory over Dr. Phillips Tuesday night.

The win elevated Oviedo to 3-1 as Dr. Phillips fell to 0-3-1.

With Dr. Phillips ahead 2-0 on goals by Karrie Brown and Shannon Cohen, Yost scored a pair of unassisted goals at 35:50 and 36:16 of the first half to tie the score at 2-2. At the 38 minute mark, Jenny Lambouais scored the eventual game-winning goal for Oviedo.

With 5:25 left in the game, Kathy Bernaski took a pass from Yost and scored an insurance goal for the Lady Lions.

Cheatham, Eustis gun down Lyman

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

LONGWOOD — Eustis rode the strength of Kristi Cheatham, who scored a game-high 21 points, to pull away from Lyman with a 26-4 fourth quarter surge in a 62-47 victory over the Lady Greyhounds before 151 fans Tuesday night at Lyman High School.

Lyman, 1-3, will return to action this Friday at West Orange. Eustis improved to 2-1 on the season.

"We ran out of steam in the fourth quarter," Lyman coach Lisa Carlson said. "We had a tough tournament last week and we've been working hard, we got behind and tried a little hard to get back in the game. We had a point where we couldn't buy a basket in the fourth quarter and that really got our spirits down."

The Lady Greyhounds came out strong behind the play of point guard Sage Morris-Webster and Jennifer Kruger. After Dana Garrett hit the opening shot of the game Morris-Webster connected on a layup after a steal and was then fouled after another steal and sank both free throw attempts. Jennifer Kruger added a jumper from the wing to up the lead to 8-0 with 4:05 to play in the opening quarter.

Cheatham ended Lyman's string, though, with an inside bucket with 3:49 remaining. Eustis then reeled off six straight points to even the score with 1:57 to play in the opening frame. Lyman added three more points in the final moments, though, and held an 11-8 lead after one quarter.

Kruger finished with a team-high 16 points for Lyman while Morris-Webster and Garrett added 11 apiece. Morris-Webster added nine steals with Shima Clark coming up with a game-high 11 rebounds with Garrett adding eight boards. Behind Cheatham for Eustis was Reva Monroe who added 14 points, Kim Ferguson with 12 and Dawn McCray netted 11.

The second quarter opened with consecutive hoops by Eustis with McCray and Cheatham each connecting on a bucket. Lyman answered with four straight points before Cheatham added another bucket. Lyman managed to control the final minutes of the half and took a 26-20 lead into the intermission.

The game became a track meet in the third quarter with the Lady Greyhounds outscoring the Lady Panthers 17-16 in the period.

Eustis came out strong and scored the first eight points to the third quarter to take a 28-26 lead with 6:03 remaining in the frame. Garrett ended the streak with a hoop with 5:45 left in the third period.

After the teams traded buckets the Lady Panthers took a 34-31 lead with 2:57 to play in the period. The Lady Greyhounds then began clicking on all cylinders and outscored Eustis 12-2 the rest of the way. Vida Williams scored four points in the run with Morris-Webster adding a key bucket. Kruger, Garrett and Clark all added a single hoop and Lyman led 43-38 after three periods.

Melissa Lewis gave the Lady Greyhounds their biggest lead, 45-36, with a layup with 7:10 to play in the game. Eustis, though, came alive and scored the game's next 15 points to take command of the game.

Lyman began having trouble breaking the Lady Panther press and lost a number of loose balls in the final period. The only other points Lyman could muster was a late field goal by Kruger.

Cheatham scored nine points in the final quarter with Monroe adding 11, including a three point field goal with 4 seconds to play.

"We're still young and I was proud of our defense," Carlson said. "(Kristi) Cheatham is a great player and we contained her until the fourth quarter."

In junior varsity action it was the Lady Greyhounds coming up with an exciting 32-30 victory over Eustis. The game was tied at 12 at half and at 20 at the end of the third period. Lyman then broke away using a strong pressing defense before holding off a late Eustis rally. Tina Burton and Sam Calloway led the scoring for Lyman with eight points apiece.

Lyman's Sage Morris-Webster puts up a shot in Tuesday's action vs. Eustis. Morris-Webster, the Lady Greyhounds' point guard, turned in a strong performance Tuesday with 11 points, but Lyman fell short as Eustis rallied for a 62-47 victory.

White, Kobia lead way for Howell

By DAVID CORCORAN
Herald correspondent

It wasn't a good year for the Lake Howell Silver Hawks wrestling squad in 1987-88, but, with the return of their coach, the Hawks hope to fly high in 1988-89.

Their regular coach, Joe Corso had to take a year off because of illness, and Tom Brady replaced Corso as interim coach. And even though Brady did the best he could under the circumstances, the team couldn't recover from the loss of Corso and the Silver Hawks ended up with a losing record.

But this year Corso is healthy, and has returned. And the Silver Hawks matmen hope that they will develop into a strong contender.

"We don't have a lot of depth on our team this year," said Corso, now in his sixth season as the Silver Hawks coach. Corso, also the Lake Howell boys cross country coach, said the team has a new assistant coach (Jeff Sirota) to help him develop the young talent that he has on hand.

The Silver Hawks suffered a blow when senior Dave Petrone, the Hawks top wrestler last year (140 pounds, considered one of the state's top prospects) transferred to Lake Mary this year. Petrone is a big loss according to Corso, not only because he's an outstanding wrestler, but because of his leadership.

Still, the Hawks have some excellent individual talent with seniors John White (who went 20-5 and went to state last year) and Sean Kobia (a 152 pounder with big potential).

The Silver Hawks are a young team, one that will improve as the season progresses, according to Corso. Promising is the word to describe this team, one that will learn from match to match, and hope to be ready by district time.

Brantley matmen have high hopes

By DAVID CORCORAN
Herald correspondent

The Lake Brantley Patriots had one of the strongest wrestling teams last year in Central Florida, going 11-4, good for second place behind powerhouse Lake Mary in the Seminole Athletic Conference. And it appears that the matmen in blue and white will try to continue to give their opponents a lot of black and blue marks on the mat this season.

"We have a young team, but some great talent," said Kevin Carpinger, now in his 11th year as the Patriots' coach. "The best thing about coaching is that every year brings about a new challenge, and I always love a challenge."

Carpinger said the strength of the team is in the lower weight classes while the team is a little weak in the upper classes because of youth.

The Patriots do have some outstanding talent returning, with the standouts being Greg Wyka (112 pounds) and Scott Meredith (125) who both qualified for the state meet last year. Both will move up in weight class this year as Wyka jumps to 130 and Meredith to 135.

"We expect Greg and Scott to provide the leadership for the team," said Carpinger, who also expects the Patriots to start slowly but to grow from experience as the season progresses. "We'll just take it one match at a time."

The Patriots have a solid winning program that can give any team a run for the money on any given day. This year's edition, despite losing several outstanding seniors from last year's squad, should be a solid contender for postseason honors by the time the district meet comes along.

NCAA

"The enforcement staff was concerned, however, that the areas reviewed should be reported to the university in order to assist you in monitoring the athletes program."

Berst also said that an NCAA official will meet with school and Metro Conference officials to discuss the allegations investigated and to go over what information the NCAA uncovered.

Florida State Athletic Director C.W. "Hootie" Ingram said the school has not been told what prompted the preliminary inquiry, or what, if any, details must be discussed in the upcoming meeting with the NCAA representative.

"We're obviously very happy to receive this type letter," Ingram said. "I said from the outset that we work extremely hard at Florida State with our coaches, staff members, every one associated with the program, to do the things that are proper and right."

"And if we've messed up somewhere along the line and somebody has borrowed, we certainly appreciate the effort of someone coming in and showing us where we went wrong."

Florida State was notified Jan. 26 that the NCAA started conducting a preliminary inquiry, and was notified again July 18 that the inquiry was continuing. If the NCAA had found evidence of violations, a formal investigation would have ensued.

Ingram, who serves on numerous national committees, including the CFA television committee and the NCAA Council, said he did not panic during the investigation.

"I never did get upset or panic," he said. "I honestly had the feeling that if there's anything out there wrong I want to find it out as quick as possible so we can correct it."

"I really believe in the NCAA system. I think that there are more schools that are working harder right now to police their own program than at any time in history. In my opinion, that's the only way it can be cleaned up."

FSU President Bernard Slioger was out of town, but issued a statement through the university.

"While we have maintained confidence in the professionalism and principles of our athletic staff and coaches, we were understandably anxious to receive this positive resolution."

Lady Lions triumph in opener

By CHRIS FISTER

Oviedo's Lady Lions didn't just crash the boards Tuesday night — they owned them. Four players reached double figures in rebounds and three got into double digits in the scoring column as Oviedo rallied to win its season opener, 54-46, over St. Cloud at Oviedo High.

"The kids really hit the boards tonight and that helped us come back from an early deficit," Oviedo coach John Thomas said. "The rebounding strength allowed us to go to the fast break and wear St. Cloud down in the second half."

Senior forward Suzanne Hughes paved the way with a game-high 16 points and 15 rebounds while also dishing out five assists. Senior center Bridget Jenerette added strength inside with 15 points and 11 boards as the Lady Lions collected 61 rebounds for the game.

St. Cloud, behind the shooting of Suzy Candle and Sheri Gains, built up an eight-point advantage in the early going and held a 33-26 lead at the half. The visiting Lady Bulldogs also used a solid press defense to build the lead but Oviedo managed to get its break going in the second-half comeback.

Betsy Hughes, a sophomore guard, contributed four points, a career-high 13 rebounds and four assists. The Lady Lions also got strong performances from Alyce Meade, Michelle Wynn and Cheryl Buntz. Meade helped out underneath as she added 11 rebounds while Wynn had eight points, seven rebounds and three assists and Buntz added four assists.

The Lady Lions return to action Thursday night at home against Edgewater's Lady Eagles (junior varsity 6:15, varsity 8).

In junior varsity action on Tuesday, St. Cloud came away with an 18-16 victory over the JV Lady Lions.

LAKE MARY TOPS DELTONA

Wileatha Hartsfield led three players in double figures with a game-high 18 points as Lake Mary's Lady Rams picked up their first win of the year, 51-33, over Deltona's Lady Wolves Tuesday night at Deltona.

Lake Mary, 1-2, returns to action Thursday at Daytona Beach Mainland. Deltona dropped to 0-3.

Hartsfield also added 10 rebounds while Tara Jackson and Amy Kuvach also had solid games for Lake Mary. Jackson added 12 points and eight rebounds with Kuvach contributing 12 points and six boards.

"We played really well on defense and ran the offense well," Lake Mary coach Anna Van Landingham said. "And Lisa Johnson did an excellent job at the point."

Lake Mary also triumphed in the junior varsity game, winning by a 36-13 margin. Tara Calvin led the way with 12 points with Melissa Mau adding 10 and Kim Prator and Regina Alexander with five each.

Country background flavors cook's life

By BRIAN HEDBERG
Herald People editor

SANFORD — You can take a girl out of the country, but you can't take the country out of Florence Thomason.

That's an apt enough description of Thomason of Sanford, whose front yard is a small orchard, who enjoys "mudding" around in three-wheelers like her daughter, and who left a banking job in order to work in the Great Outdoors.

Thomason was born on her uncle's farm in rural Kinston, Ala., and retains a warm Alabama accent as her birthmark. The several hundred acres of the farm was also home to hogs and cows and grew peanuts and cotton.

When about 5 years old, Thomason walked the cows from one pasture, across a brook, and to another pasture so they wouldn't overgraze, she remembered. That was easy, but milking the hooved horned creatures was another story. The girl Thomason couldn't get the milk to shoot into the pail; it would inevitably squirt her milking instructor, she said.

When Thomason was 6 or 7 years old, her family—including an older sister, younger sister and younger brother—moved to the Sanford area.

Her father first worked on orange grove in Winter Garden, then moved the family to Sanford so he could drive heavy equipment. By that time, school work had taken up Thomason's free time in the absence of her farm chores.

Still, being a natural tomboy, she found enough time to fish and play softball, she said.

Once, she said, her brother stuck a hose—the family's brand new hose—into the ground and turned it on. When he couldn't get it out, he had to cut it loose. "Mother's gonna kill me," he cried.

"Linda was going to tell Momma she did it so he wouldn't get a whipping," Thomason said of her sister. "It turned out so comical that no one got a whipping."

Thomason's mother and grandmother taught her some cooking skills, but she was motivated out of her love for it, she said. The intrigue for making edible concoctions began as early as she can recollect when she first fixed biscuits at age 8. "They fascinated me, I guess, because of the dough. You mixed it with your hands in it. When mother fixed biscuits and she had a little bit mixed, I would take it and mash it and play with it."

Now, Thomason makes cheese biscuits, raisin biscuits and sour butter milk biscuits. "Most people think when you put something sour in it, it doesn't make it any good," she said.

At 20 years old, she worked as a soda jerk at Touchton's Drugstore in Sanford, making milkshakes, sodas and coffee. A 21-year-old man named Jerry W. Thomason would come in regularly, asking both for her coffee and for a date. She finally consented (to the date, that is) and the rest is history, leading to their marriage on Sept. 8, 1966 at her mother's Sanford home.

Jerry was then working for the city of Sanford and still is, now going on 27 years with the city.

The first home-cooked meal that the Thomasons had together took place before they wed, at Jerry's apartment. He fixed her a wonderful bachelor's version of steak and salad. His favorite dish now that Thomason cooks is, well, there's at least two coconut cream pie, and cornish hen with yellow rice and mushrooms.

The couple have three daughters, Tracy Lynn, 20, works at a hearing aid center in Orlando and likes drawing. Also a tomboy, she likes "mudding" in pickup trucks, go carts, dirt bikes and three wheelers—as do her sister and mother—along with horseback riding and swimming.

Tammy Sue, 17, in 10th grade at Seminole High School, loves auto body class, horses, softball, volleyball, and anything outdoorsy.

Shawna Faye, 6, in first grade at New Life Assembly School in Sanford, loves her dolls and pets.

Tammy Sue would like to keep some horses, so Thomason is thinking of moving to a larger plot of land. Animal life in the family currently consists of a gerbil, hamster and turtle. They did have a goldfish, until Thomason's two-year-old nephew visited and snatched it up.

Thomason grows pears, apples, oranges, figs and grapefruit-sized lemons in her front yard. Her neighbors clamor for her lemons so they can make lemon pies, she said.

She bakes her own bread, makes bread-and-butter pickles and dill pickles and cans tomatoes and vegetables.

She also makes sweet potatoes pies and pumpkin pies. On her kitchen counter recently was a pumpkin half orange and half green. When it was completely orange, her kids wanted to carve a face into it for Halloween. Nay, Thomason said, wanting to reserve the pumpkin for a pie. She's puzzled as to its current green blush and doesn't know if it will be any good.

The worst dish Thomason ever made was during one of her

Florence Thomason shows off one of her delectable Chess Pies, made with cornmeal, sugar and milk.

Christmas bake-a-thons for friends and family, she said. The project was to bake a 7-Up Cake for a neighbor. Unfortunately, it was raining outside. Four cakes later, she got it right.

"The weather was the culprit. They would either split down the middle or stick to the pan. So I just poured all (the mistakes) into one big bowl and let the kids in the neighborhood eat it."

Determination is an important quality in cooking, she said. She experiments much in the kitchen and gives it a good amount of time.

Combining ingredients that normally wouldn't go together is a fun on-going pastime of hers. "Nine times out of 10, they turn out great," she said. The other night, she mixed French-style green beans with tomatoes and bacon, adding garlic salt, salt, pepper and celery salt to taste, and letting it simmer.

Her family uses generous amounts of garlic and celery salt. Celery salt, she said, is a better tenderizer than regular tenderizer; it allows one to cut a steak with a fork.

Thomason took top prize in the cornbread competition at Sanford's Country Jamboree and Craft Fair on Oct. 30. Her recipe for Cracking Cornbread follows below.

Thomason worked for a bank for 10 years. But wooed by her love for the outdoors, she went to work for the city of Sanford, laying sod, planting flowers and maintaining plots.

She also works at B&W Market in Sanford, rents property, and is a full-time mother. She also is active at the Church of Christ of Longwood.

The family enjoys camping excursions in their trailer. They belong to a resort in Cocoa Beach, but they like the woods as well.

Thomason's younger sister and brother are her neighbors. Linda Jo Kirby, manager of ACR in Sanford, has two children, Williams Richardson, employed by the city of Sanford, also has two little ones.

Her older sister, Mary Frances Holland, lives in Georgia, is married with five kids and seven grandkids, and teaches elementary school. Thomason's philosophy on life is: "Do your best, be your best, and I don't think anybody can ask anything more."

Following are some of her favorite recipes:

STRAWBERRY CREAM-FILLED ANGEL CAKE

1 10-inch angel for chiffon cake
1 can Eagle brand sweetened condensed milk
3/4 cup Real Lemon Reconstituted Lemon Juice
1 teaspoon almond extract
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
2 pints fresh strawberries, washed and hulled

Combine sweetened condensed milk, lemon juice and almond extract, blend well. Fold in whipped cream. Chill about 10 minutes. Turn cake upside down. Cut top of cake 1/4 inch down. To make a tunnel for filling, cut around cake 1/4 inch from center hole and 1/4 inch from outer edge, leaving 1/4 inch base. Scoop out tunnel with a fork. Pour only 1/2 cups of the chilled, sweetened condensed milk mixture into a medium bowl. Stir in half the cake pieces until well blended. Gently fold in one pint of the strawberries. Lightly spoon this mixture into the tunnel. Place cake layer cut from top over filling and press on gently. Use remaining sweetened condensed milk mixture to frost top and sides of cake. Place in freezer. Chill about 2 hours. At serving time, garnish top and sides of cake with remaining strawberries.

RUSSIAN TEACAKES

1 cup soft butter
3/4 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 1/2 cup flour
3/4 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup finely chopped nuts

Mix butter, sugar and vanilla thoroughly. Measure flour. Blend flour and salt and stir in nuts, then chill. Warm it up and roll into 1/4-inch balls. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Bake 10-12 minutes at 400°F. While still warm, roll in sugar and cool.

Women can get calcium boost from pizzas.

Pizzas rich in calcium

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Women who are on the run can get an important boost of calcium and protein by eating a slice of cheese-topped pizza. Add your favorite vegetables, such as broccoli and peppers, for flavor, color and more vitamins. And, if you're watching your cholesterol, turn to part-skim-milk cheeses and non-fat dry milk as basic ingredients.

Mexican pocket pizzas are easy to prepare in advance and zap in the microwave at work for a hot, healthful lunch—chock full of calcium-rich cheese and nutritious veggies.

WHITE PIZZA WITH BROCCOLI

1 pound pizza or bread dough, thawed if frozen
1 small onion, quartered
1 cup part-skim ricotta cheese
1 large egg
1 tablespoon non-fat dry milk
1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
1 1/2 teaspoons Italian seasoning
3/4 teaspoon salt
3/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
1 cup small broccoli florets

1 cup sweet red bell pepper strips

2 ounces shredded part-skim mozzarella cheese (1/2 cup)

Preheat oven to 400°F. Lightly grease a 12-inch pizza pan.

Roll dough into a 14-inch circle. Place in pan, form a half-inch-high rim around edge. Bake until partially cooked, 10-12 minutes.

Meanwhile, in a bowl of a food processor fitted with a metal wing blade, process onion until finely chopped. Add ricotta cheese, egg, non-fat dry milk, flour, Italian seasoning, salt and black pepper; process until smooth. Spread over crust.

Arrange broccoli and red pepper strips over ricotta mixture; sprinkle with mozzarella cheese. Bake until ricotta mixture is set, about 15 minutes. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 servings.

MEXICAN-STYLE POCKET PIZZA

1 pound pizza or bread dough, thawed if frozen

1 medium tomato, sliced (about 3/4 cup)

See Pizzas, Page 9B

Casseroles leave time for cookie-cutting

As the holidays approach you'll find your microwave an even more valuable time-saver.

Use it for preparing simple dinners for busy days as well as pre-cooking for easy entertaining. Casserole meals lend themselves to hurried mealtimes. Clean-up is quick.

This Italian favorite, which can be fixed in a matter of minutes, meets all the requirements of a casserole.

1 pound ground beef
2 pounds of your favorite spaghetti sauce (This can be from the grocer's shelf or your freezer.)

2 cups shredded Mozzarella cheese
1 cup creamed cottage cheese (small curd)
1/2 cup Parmesan cheese

2 eggs
3/4 cup chopped parsley
1/2 teaspoon salt

8 manicotti shells (cooked and drained)

In a 1-quart casserole microwave the ground beef on 100 percent power for 5-6 minutes. Stir to break up the lumps and drain. Add spaghetti sauce and M/W, covered on 100 percent power for 5 minutes.

Meanwhile, combine 1 cup Mozzarella cheese, cottage cheese and Parmesan, mixing well. Add eggs, parsley and salt. Mix until well blended.

Stuff manicotti shells with 1/4 cup of the cheese mixture in each shell. Pour 1/2 of the meat sauce into 11-by-7-inch baking dish. Arrange stuffed manicotti on top of sauce. Pour remaining sauce over top of shells. Sprinkle with remaining cup of Mozzarella cheese. M/W on 85 percent power for 10 minutes or until hot and bubbly and the cheese is melted.

Make some microwave applesauce to serve along with this pork and potatoes casserole.

POTATOES AND PORK CHOPS

4 cups sliced potatoes
1 can mushroom soup
1/2 cup milk

6 pork chops
Slices potatoes and put in baking dish (11 by 7 inches). Mix milk with soup and pour over potatoes. Place pork chops on potatoes, placing thickest parts of the chops to the outside.

M/W on 100 percent power, covered, for 25-30 minutes, stirring potatoes every 10 minutes. Remove chops and return potatoes for 5 minutes or until potatoes are tender.

An old-fashioned standby for busy days is sure to please. Serve with a green salad and stewed tomatoes.

MACARONI AND CHEESE

1 package 8 ounces, macaroni, cooked and drained
2 cups, 8 ounces, grated cheddar cheese
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 beaten egg
1 can, 14 ounces, evaporated milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
Dash of paprika

Grease a 2-quart casserole. Layer half the cooked macaroni in bottom. Top with half the onions and half the cheese. Repeat layers. Combine the egg, milk and salt. Pour over the macaroni. Sprinkle with paprika and dot with butter. Microwave on 50 percent power for 12-15 minutes. Let stand 10 minutes. Serves 6-8.

Another meat and vegetable combination that is economical as well as good is this casserole of ham and cauliflower.

CREAMY HAM CASSEROLE

1 medium cauliflower
2 cups cubed ham
4 ounces canned mushrooms, drained

4 teaspoons butter
3/4 cup flour
1 cup milk
1 cup sharp cheese, grated
1/2 cup sour cream
3/4 cup toasted bread crumbs

Break cauliflower into buds. M/W on 100 percent power for 6-8 minutes, covered, until tender. Add ham and mushrooms to cauliflower. Set aside. Melt butter in 4-cup measure (100 percent power) for 1 minute. Stir in flour until smooth. Add milk, stir. M/W on 100 percent power until sauce thickens and bubbles, stirring once or twice. Add cheese and sour cream, and stir until cheese melts. M/W 1-2 minutes. Pour into ham and cauliflower mixture and mix well. M/W on 85 percent power for 10-12 minutes. Sprinkle with bread crumbs and M/W for 3 minutes more or until hot.

HAWAIIAN CHICKEN

1 8-ounce can crushed pineapple in natural juice, undrained
2 teaspoons curry powder
3/4 teaspoon sugar
2 tablespoons safflower oil
1 pound boned, skinned chicken breasts (cutlets)

2 tablespoons sweetened flaked coconut
Pour pineapple and juice into a shallow, round microwave-safe casserole dish. In a cup, mix curry powder, sugar and safflower oil. Brush mixture on both sides of chicken. Arrange chicken pieces in spoke fashion over pineapple; sprinkle with coconut. Cover loosely with plastic wrap or wax paper.

Microwave on high until center of chicken is no longer pink, 5-6 minutes. Let stand for 5 minutes before serving. Serve over steamed rice, if desired. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 portions.

Woman blue about blushing

DEAR ABBY: I am a 35-year-old single woman, and I still blush. This didn't really get bad until I was about 19 years old. I think maybe I'm afraid of people. Have you ever heard of anything so stupid?

When I'm with a crowd of people and a stranger comes up to talk to me, I get so red I could stand on a street corner and stop traffic. What is wrong with me?

If I have a couple of drinks, I get so relaxed, I can talk to anyone. I can't understand this. When I don't drink and a stranger approaches me, I get hot and sweaty and I can feel my cheeks burning, so I know I am beet-red.

I kept hoping I would outgrow this, but it seems to be getting worse. Is there any cure for blushing?

HATES THE COLOR RED

DEAR HATES: Blushing is a physical reaction to a mental stimulus. It is simply a reddening of the face as a result of experiencing shame, embarrassment, confusion, or helplessness. Because it's an involuntary act, it is difficult—but not impossible—to control. Our blood pressure can be raised or lowered by our thoughts (this is called "biofeedback"), and certain techniques can control the emotions that cause us to blush. The fear of blushing can cause one to blush.

Instead of taking a couple of drinks to relax in a social situation, give yourself a stern order: Tell yourself firmly, "No more of this stupid blushing! I can handle this without embarrassment." And the chances are great that your body will hear your words and make them true.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him John) is getting on in years, but refuses to talk about funeral arrangements. He says he wants to donate all his organs to medical science. I think he has the idea that he will save on funeral expenses if he follows this procedure. But, Abby, when "science" is through with him, doesn't his family get what's left? I would like to get all these arrangements taken care of right now while we both have our heads on straight.

I have my plot bought and paid for because this is my second marriage and I am going to be buried next to my first husband in his family plot. But my present husband's burial troubles me.

Is it true that a person who donates his whole body to medical science gets a free burial? If you print this, please keep me anonymous. This is a small town, and I'd rather not have this known. Thank you.

PENNY-PINCHER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: When organs are donated, "what's left" is returned to the family. However, if John wishes to donate his entire body to medical science, he must preregister with the medical school nearest him.

For a list of medical schools, send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: The Living Bank, P.O. Box 8725, Houston, Texas 77265.

DEAR ABBY: Let us say that I am the hostess, and I am inviting a couple of new arrivals to the community to my home for a small dinner party. Would it be proper for me to ask, "Is there anything that you are allergic to, or that you dislike intensely?"

All right, now let us say that we are the newcomers who are invited to someone's home for dinner. Would it be proper for me to tell the hostess in advance that my husband is allergic to chocolate and dairy products, and that he reacts violently to alcohol—even the most minimal, such as a few drops of brandy or liqueur in the dessert?

Please answer this in your column. If I am right, I am going to buy six newspapers and clip your column to send it to some friends.

ARGUING IN AUSTIN

DEAR ARGUING: There are no winners or losers in this case: It is proper, indeed considerate, for the hostess to inquire into the tastes and possible allergies of the newcomers.

And if the newcomers have any allergies or strong aversions to any food or drink, the hostess would appreciate being told in advance.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 68448, Los Angeles, Calif. 90068. All correspondence is confidential.)

Give the world a present

The Great War has continued on to Christmas Eve of 1914. The German and British armies were deadlocked in warfare and there seemed no hope for a resolution to the conflict by the next day.

Then, from across the battlefield, a British soldier heard a German voice singing, "Stille Nacht, heilige Nacht..."

The Briton recognized the tune as "Silent Night," and first hummed, then sang along in English.

Another British soldier crawled over to the first and added his voice. Gradually a men's chorus of British and German voices developed.

After other familiar carols, both sides exchanged "Merry Christmas" greetings in their own languages.

Then soldiers laid down their arms, one by one, and met their enemies on the dawn of Christmas Day. Gifts of candy and cigarettes were even exchanged before the unspoken truce ended.

That same life-changing spirit of Christmas has been celebrated in such films as "A Christmas Carol" and "It's a Wonderful Life."

In the tradition of that spirit, imagine "What I'd Like to Give the World for Christmas" and why.

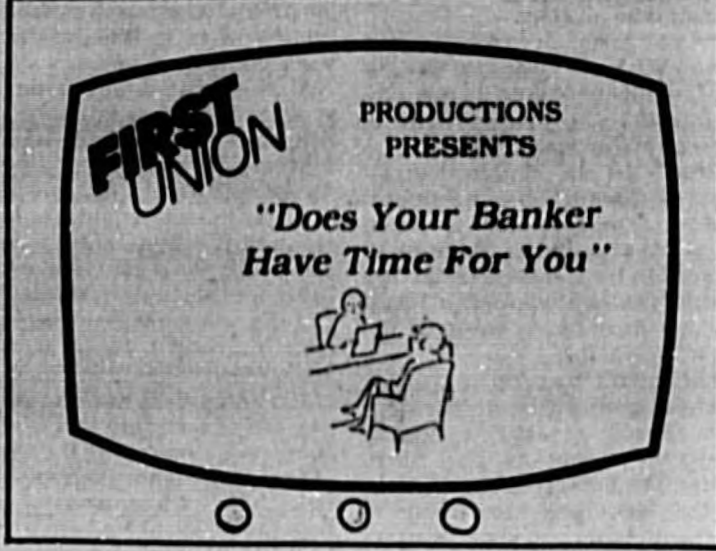

What do you see as the world's greatest need? If you had unlimited resources or influence, what would you give mankind that it is lacking?

Send your thoughts, in 50 words or less, to "Gift to the World," Sanford Herald, 300 N. French Ave., Sanford, FL 32771. Include your name, city, age and daytime phone number.

Entries must be received at the Herald by 1 p.m. on Thursday, Dec. 15.

Selected responses will be published in our Dec. 25 Sunday edition.

YOUR BIRTHDAY

December 1, 1988

Through a rather unique chain of circumstances, interesting things may develop for you in the year ahead where your work or career is concerned. What transpires could give you an inside track to success.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) For best results today, don't broadcast your intentions prematurely to others. Be humble regarding what you seek, but be quick to share the credit. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A friend who is separated from you by considerable distance may be on your mind today. Although this person is not nearby, your telephone is. Put it to use.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There are changes stirring at this time that should prove to be to your ultimate advantage. Alterations that affect your work or career could be especially interesting.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your judgment could be a bit keener than usual today, so don't entertain self-doubts if you have to make an important decision. Just be sure to study all of your alternatives before deciding.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An associate who is privy to inside information helpful to your career might share it with you today. Be sure to protect your source so that it can be tapped again later.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In your involvements today try to use diplomacy and tact instead of aggressiveness. If you treat others respectfully, Lady Luck will smile on your arrangements.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You might not be too swift getting out of the starting blocks today, but you'll pick up momentum as you go along and you should be a strong finisher.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't be reluctant to take over the management of a situation today where you feel others are not protecting your interests properly. You can do a better job.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Follow your hunches and instincts in your financial affairs today. Your sixth sense will be operating for you and it may tune you into something that could prove profitable.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There will be something forceful about your demeanor today which will alert others that you do not want to be taken lightly. When you have something to say, you'll have an attentive audience.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Sometimes it's necessary to prime the pump to produce a flow. Seed money might be required at this time to stimulate a sluggish commercial arrangement.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Harmonious alliances enhance possibilities for success today. If your cohort shares your objectives and interests, the results should be as both anticipate. (C)1988, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

We let two old friends of ours play today's deal. The first declarer was Willy Nilly. On the opening lead of the spade 10, Willy put up the jack from dummy. When that held the trick, he quickly and happily played the king of clubs. Surprise! Everybody played low. Willy came to his hand with the diamond ace and led a club to dummy's queen. As you might imagine, East won with the appropriate card and continued spades. Now Willy played king and a diamond, but that suit did not split. He wound up with only seven tricks - down two. While Willy was nursing his wounds, we presented the deal to Careful Charlie.

Charlie started out the same way as Willy, winning dummy's jack of spades. But then came a play unknown to bridge players blinded by greed for overtricks. Charlie played a low club from dummy. Sure, East put up the jack and played back a spade. Charlie won and played a second club. Now when the king forced out the ace, the queen was positioned to win the third round of the suit, making the remaining low clubs winners, and declarer still had dummy's king of diamonds as an entry.

It's true that Charlie had given up a chance for overtricks whenever West held the ace of clubs only once- or twice-guarded. (Charlie could arrange to lead up to the K-Q twice, getting to his hand with the ace of diamonds and a high spade.) But his play deprived East of the opportunity of setting the contract by ducking with the ace on the first lead of the suit. All we can say about Willy Nilly's play is that now you know how he got his name.

Chicken is popular holiday substitute

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Today's chickens are bred to be full breasted, and as a result, offer many succulent slices of white meat. Although turkey is the No. 1 choice for holiday tables, a stuffed roasted chicken is the favorite of many families, and there is plenty of meat for everyone. Remember to save the carcass and giblets to make chicken soup. Keep the parts frozen in a freezer bag until ready to use.

HOLIDAY ROAST CHICKEN

3 strips uncooked bacon, diced
 1 cup sliced mushrooms
 1 medium onion, chopped
 2 cups chopped fresh spinach or 1 10-ounce package frozen spinach, thawed and well drained
 1/2 cup chopped parsley
 1/2 cup minced celery
 2 cups cooked rice (wild and white or brown)
 1 1/2 cups shredded Jarlsberg cheese
 1/2 cup sliced almonds
 1 roasting chicken (about 8 pounds)
 Salt and pepper
 3 tablespoons butter or margarine

In a large skillet, cook bacon. Drain, crumble, and set aside.

In bacon drippings, saute mushrooms and onion until onion is tender, stirring oc-asionally. Remove from heat. Blend in crumbled bacon and spinach, parsley, celery, rice, cheese and almonds. Stuff loosely into chicken.

 Place chicken in a shallow roasting pan, breast side up. Truss closed. Season with salt and pepper to taste, and dot with butter.
 Roast at 325°F for about 25 minutes per pound, until chicken is fully cooked and golden. Baste occasionally with pan drippings. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 8 servings.

Note: For a turkey of about 16 pounds, double stuffing recipe and cook as directed above.

Homemade eatables are tasteful gifts

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Tuck truffles into ribboned Christmas gift boxes or caskets, and watch chocoholic friends and family members dance around the Yule tree when they open their presents.

Gifts from the kitchen are a loving and thoughtful way to share the spirit of giving during the holidays, and the personal effort is always appreciated.

Truffles are easy to make, as is another chocolate delight, black-and-white chocolate cookies. These goodies freeze well for up to six months, so get a head start and make your homemade gifts now to store in heavy-duty freezer bags until wrapping time arrives.

Equally divide between two pint-size freezer bags; remove excess air and seal. Freeze up to six months. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 2 dozen truffles.

Yule Log a jelly roll in disguise

A rich chocolaty Yule Log is a classic Holiday masterpiece. But it's really a jelly roll in disguise and doesn't have to take as much time to prepare as it looks like it did.

Today's savvy host needs all the short cuts to make a superior product and still get out of the kitchen fast. Thanks to modern food technology, it's possible. Here are some tips to produce an award winning Yule Log with a minimum amount of effort and mess.

1. Buy one yellow cake mix, two cans prepared chocolate frosting, five candy canes, Baker's Joy baking spray, a disposable jelly roll pan, gold and white doilies and a yard of half-inch plaid ribbon (or use whatever you have on hand). Get your local baker to make you a few marzipan holly leaves and berries.

2. Prepare the cake according to package directions. Spray jelly roll pan with Baker's Joy, a convenient flour and oil spray that reaches all corners to ensure this delicate, thin cake will pop easily out of the pan.

3. While cake is baking, create mocha filling by thinning one can of frosting with half a cup strong, hot coffee. Crush four candy canes to use as peppermint sprinkles on top of the filling and to dust along the sides of frosted Log.

4. Ease cake out of pan, cover with filling and sprinkle with crushed peppermint. Roll up starting with either narrow end.

5. Frost roll on top and sides with other can of frosting. Leave two ends unfrosted to show-off the mocha peppermint swirl. After all, that's the point!

6. Dust sides with crushed peppermint and decorate with marzipan holly leaves and berries or with whole candy canes. Now that your roll is frosted and decorated, it's a Yule Log!

7. Using two large spatulas at each end, transfer Yule Log to pretty plate lined with doilies and swirl ribbon around bottom of Log.

8. Sit back and bask in the compliments.

The elegant Yule Log is simple to prepare.

Desserts color Christmas red, green

Even desserts are choosing the "layered look" for entertaining this holiday season.

Cherry-Citrus Sparkler combines layers of ROYAL Cherry and Lime Gelatins for a pretty addition to any table setting. Or try Layered Holiday Cheesecake with its festive combination of ROYAL No Bake Cheesecake topped with pistachio pudding and fresh cranberries. Both are easy to make party perfect fare.

Hint: When unmolding gelatin, loosen the gelatin from the top edge of the mold with the tip of a knife. Dip the mold in warm water for a few seconds, then shake gently to loosen gelatin from mold. Invert the gelatin onto a plate and carefully remove the mold.

LAYERED HOLIDAY CHEESECAKE

1 1 1/4-ounce package ROYAL No Bake Cheesecake
 3 tablespoons sugar
 1/2 cup margarine, melted
 2 1/2 cups cold milk
 1 3 1/2-ounce package ROYAL Instant Pistachio Pudding and Pie Filling
 1/2 cup heavy cream, whipped
 Cranberries, optional

Blend together graham cracker crumbs, sugar and margarine; reserve 1 tablespoon crumb mixture. Press remaining crumb mixture on bottom and side of 9-inch pie plate; chill 15 minutes.

Prepare cheesecake filling according to package directions using 1 1/2 cups milk. Pour into prepared crust; chill.

Prepare pudding according to package directions using remaining milk. Fold in whipped cream. Spread over cheesecake. Sprinkle with reserved crumbs; chill 2 hours or until set. To serve, garnish with cranberries if desired. Makes 8 servings.

CHERRY-CITRUS SPARKLER

1 3-ounce package ROYAL Cherry Gelatin
 1 3-ounce package ROYAL Lime Gelatin
 2 1/2 cups boiling water
 1/2 cup cold water
 1/2 cup ginger ale

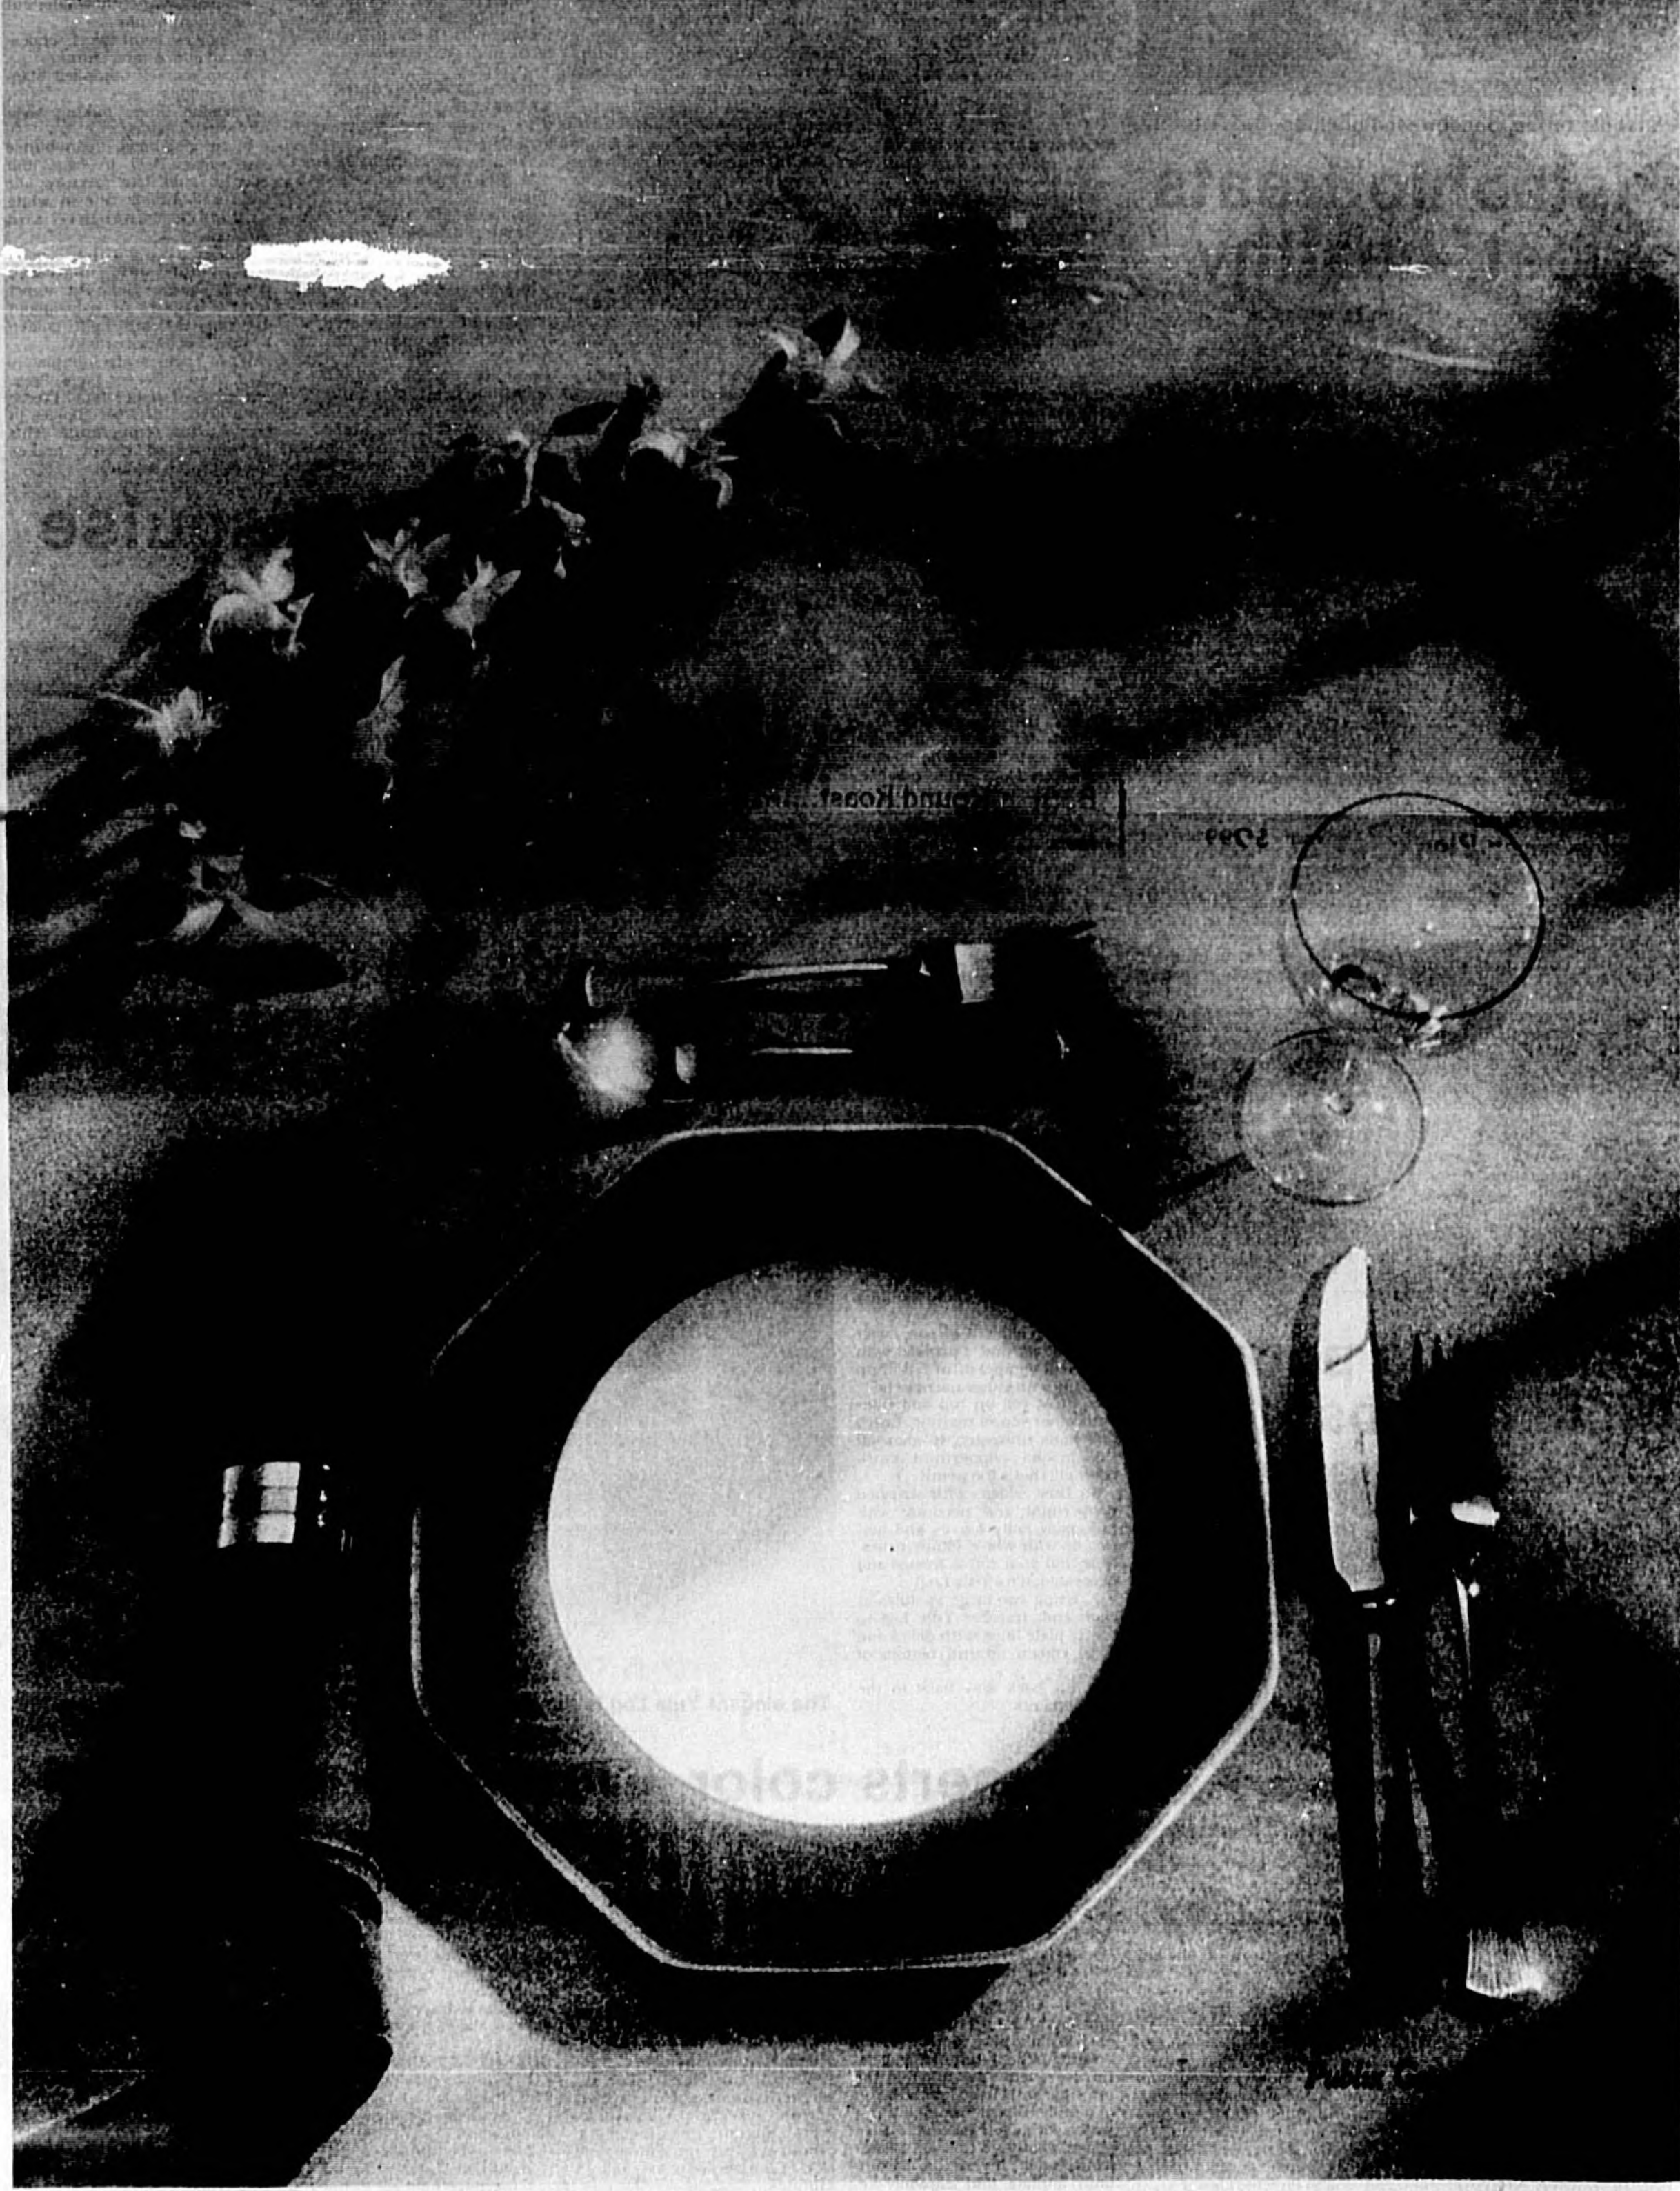

Dissolve cherry gelatin in 1 cup boiling water; stir in cold water. Pour 1/2 cup gelatin into a 5-cup mold; chill until almost set.

Chill remaining gelatin until very thick. Beat with electric mixer at high speed until foamy; carefully pour over clear gelatin layer in mold. Chill until almost set.

Dissolve lime gelatin in remaining boiling water; stir in ginger ale. Chill until thickened. Carefully pour over whipped layer in mold. Chill until set, about 3 hours.

To serve, unmold onto plate; garnish with lime slices. Makes 10 servings.
