BRIEFS

Warning: Tomorrow is April 1st

Tomorrow is the day to be on one's guard. It's April Fools' Day. Traditionally, the focal point is to deceive persons by sending them on frivolous and nonsensical errands, or to give false information in such a way as to be able to declare someone as an "April Fool."

The occasion dates back several centuries. In 1760, "Poor Robin's Almanack" said, "The first of April, some do say, is set apart for All Fools' Day. But why the people call it so, Nor I nor they themselves do know."

It may be well to be cautious tomorrow. Beware of the bird of ill omen, gathering clouds, the handwriting on the wall, Maintain a watch, guard, lookout, flagman, heed one's peril, and avoid helping a friend find a left-handed monkey wrench or screwdriver.

Meeting postponed

LONGWOOD — The Longwood City Commission members have postponed their regularly scheduled April 5 meeting to April 12 to avoid conflict with the observance of Passover.

The commission meetings are scheduled for the first and third Mondays of each month.

P&Z discusses new businesses

SANFORD — The city's Planning and Zoning Commission will meet tomorrow night. Two business requests are listed on the agenda.

An office/distribution building is proposed for the Sanford Central Park, at 225 Coastline Road. C.D.C. Industrial Park is the owner.

The request to come before P&Z is consideration of the site plan, which would be located in a RI-1 restricted commercial district.

The property already contains a 5,986 square foot building. The proposal calls for the construction of another building adjacent to the first, of the same size and configuration.

Dick Holsomback of Canterbury Concepts, owner of the property said the new building will be for Canterbury usage. The present building, built by his company last year, will be occupied by Storage Craft.

The second item on the agenda is consideration of a site plan for Pyramid Iron Works, a welding shop, to be located at 1901 Country Club Road. The area is zoned GC-2, general commercial.

The P&Z meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. in the commission chambers of Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Ave.

ABC fades to black

NEW YORK — What time is it at ABC-TV? Time to fix the clock.

A slow-running control room clock delayed the start of the network's "World News Tonight" by about a minute Tuesday.

What did viewers of the top-rated newscast see? "Sixty seconds or less of black," acknowledged Arnot Walker, a spokesman for the program.

Crime capital: Sanford

Highest rate in county: 1 in 10 residents victims

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sanford had the highest crime rate in Seminole County for the second year and the Sanford Police Department had one of the poorest records of any local law enforcement agency in resolving major crimes.

Those grim statistics were released Monday by the Florida Department of Law Enforcement in their 1992 statewide crime report. FDLE compiles the data provided by police departments, sheriffs, and state law enforcement agencies.

Countywide, the 305,872 residents had a one-in-seventeen chance of being affected by a major crime last year. A total of 18,245 "Part 1" crimes were reported in the county. The number was slightly better than 1991, when there were 18,295 reported major crimes in the county, less than a 3 percent improvement. The total crime rate represented a return to the 1990 rate.

Sheriff Don Eslinger attributed the drop in crimes to citizen involvement.

"I'm not going to take credit for any drop," said Eslinger. "It's a sign of citizens getting involved in the system. We do a good job of treating the symptoms, but not a good job of getting to the underlying problem. That's an area where we're beginning to focus our efforts."

Eslinger cited increased school resource officers, community policing and other citizen-involvement programs in an effort to both

Drugs are a dead end street, former user says

SANFORD — Cindy Philamon smiles a lot these days.

She says she didn't do that much for the decade or so that she was involved with drugs, though she put up a good front.

"No one except the people that I did drugs with knew that I was doing it," she said. "My mother would ask me and I'd say that I deny it and she believed me."

She never got in trouble with the law as a result of her addiction and she was able to keep a housekeeping job throughout the time.

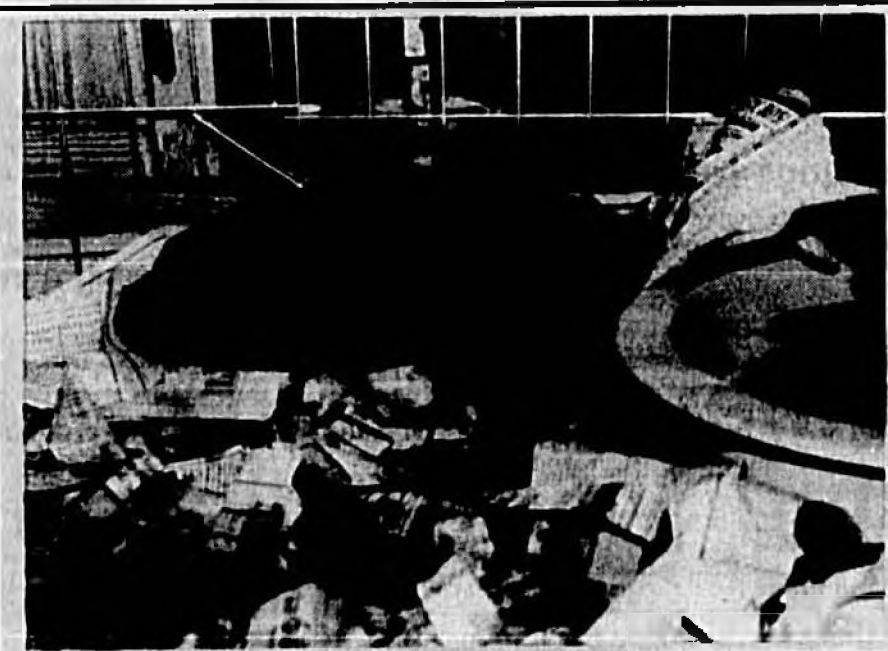

"I've got an instinct about that I guess," she said. "I knew when to do it and when to stop, but I was addicted."

She did cocaine and smoked crack almost daily. It was a part of her daily routine, she said.

She said that she tried, repeatedly, to get off

Faison faces prison for shooting man

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sentencing is scheduled April 12 for a man who faces a 10-year prison term after pleading no contest to shooting another man at a Sanford housing project last year.

Ossie Lee Faison may spend 10 years in the custody of the Department of Corrections, with credit for time served. Under the plea agreement, he must serve a mandatory three-year term.

Faison entered the no contest pleas to aggravated battery and firing a bullet into a dwelling just before wheelchair-bound shooting victim, David Tramel was to testify.

The defendant was charged with attempted first degree murder and shooting into a building in connection with the June 24 shooting of Tramel at Castle Brewer Court. Aggravated battery is a lesser included offense of attempted first degree murder.

Spectral Public Defender Chris Smith said his client had chosen to plead no contest to the lesser charge DeBARY — The Volusia County Sheriff's department raided a suspected automotive chop shop yesterday. Deputies report finding a number of vehicles and parts believed to have been stolen.

The business, Clayton & Sons, has been operating for approximately 20 years. It is located approximately one half mile north of the Seminole/Volusia County line on Highway 17-92.

Alice Beaulieu, who reportedly collapsed during the raid, was taken to Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford where she was treated and released.

Her husband, Clayton Beaulieu was not arrested. Twin sons Rodney and Ronald were arrested on charges of operating a chop shop and

Lake Mary airs proposal to reduce water rates

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The first step in lowering water bills in Lake Mary will take place this Thursday night. The City Commission will bring the proposal up for its first reading.

Finance Director Randy Knight is proposing reducing the minimum monthly water bill from $5.96 to $5.64. The usage charge per thousand gallons would go from $1.33 to $1.22. Regarding wastewater, Knight is suggesting the charge per thousand gallons be reduced from $3.81 to $2.46.

The proposal was discussed at length during the previous commission meeting. The ordinance has been based on discussion and input from the City Attorney and various department heads.

Knight had estimated the average monthly use of water per residential household is 10,000 gallons. The initial charge will continue to include 3,000 gallons of usage. With the new charges, the monthly water bill would amount to approximately $14.28 from the present charge of $15.27.

The city presently has 2,963 water system customers.

For the wastewater system, which Knight explained is actually sewer treatment, the rate would drop from $38.10 to $24.60 per month.

The wastewater system will only involve 515 residences.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Hastings discharged from hospital

WASHINGTON — Freshman U.S. Rep. Alcee Hastings was discharged after a three-day hospital stay for heart tests and returned to the House floor Tuesday "in good spirits and good health," a spokesman said.

Hastings, 56, was sent to Bethesda Naval Hospital on Friday after undergoing a checkup and stayed until Monday night for tests, spokesman Trey Coleman said.

Hastings underwent what Coleman called routine tests, and "these particular tests didn't suggest anything had to be done, surgery or otherwise."

The former Miami federal judge appeared "somewhat exhausted" before his admission to Bethesda, Coleman said. The Democrat was elected in November as one of Florida's first three black members of Congress since Reconstruction.

Feds sentence paint-dumpers

JACKSONVILLE — Jacksonville Shipyards Inc. and its environmental director were sentenced Tuesday in federal court for discharging marine paint into the St. Johns River.

The company was fined $100,000, and A. Dix Stephens, 47, its environmental director, was sentenced to two years probation, six months of home detention and a $5,000 fine.

The company and Stephens were convicted of knowingly discharging red paint into the river when spray painting the hull of the S.S. California last May in violation of the federal Clean Water Act.

Jacksonville Shipyards, which has since closed, also was convicted of a second violation a day later of discharging black paint in the river after being warned by the Coast Guard.

Several dead fish and a dead turtle were found after the first spray-painting incident.

Buckle up or get a ticket

TALLAHASSEE — Buckle up or get a ticket. That will be the message next month from the Florida Highway Patrol.

A campaign starting April 11 in English, Spanish, Portuguese and Creole will warn motorists to use seat belts. Troopers will be giving warning tickets to violators the following week, and writing ticketing the week after.

"If we could increase our average safety-belt usage from the current 55 percent to 70 percent, we could possibly save 600 lives in Florida," said Ronald Grimming, newly appointed head of the FHP.

Troopers won't pull people over just for seat-belt violations, but those stopped for any other infraction face a ticket if no seat belt is worn.

Forty-two states have seat-belt laws, and some states have 70 percent compliance, he said.

In Illinois, where Grimming was deputy director of the Illinois State Police, a similar safety campaign increased seat-belt use from 52 percent to 71 percent.

Man pleads guilty to murder

ORLANDO — One of two men accused of frightening an elderly woman to death during a burglary of her house has pleaded guilty to second-degree murder.

Cedric Rolle Jr. faces a prison sentence of up to 22 years as a result of the plea agreement, his lawyer said Monday.

Rolle, 26, and Timothy Allen, 28, were charged with first-degree murder in the death of Hilda Jessen, 86, who suffered a heart attack while dialing 911 to report a break-in.

Defense lawyer Don Webb said Rolle believed no one was home, and he did not threaten the widow or do anything else to cause the heart attack.

Man's daughter charges dropped

FORT MYERS — Prosecutors have decided not to file manslaughter charges against the mother of two children who died a year ago when their home was set ablaze after a toddler played with a cigarette lighter.

While Bernice Pomeroy lacked "sound judgment" in caring for her two young sons, she did not break the law, Assistant State Attorney Margaret Julien wrote in a letter to the Lee County Sheriff's Office.

"In order to establish criminal conduct, it has to be more than mere negligence," said Assistant State Attorney Dean Plattner.

"Clearly, she didn't intentionally kill her kids," he said. "Clearly, she didn't set the fire. She didn't know they were going to set a fire. She may have been careless, but did she intend to kill her kids?"

Deputies had asked the state attorney's office to issue a warrant for Pomeroy's arrest, according to sheriff's records, after she told them she passed out after drinking alcohol for hours before the fire, had mixed alcohol with prescription medication though she knew she shouldn't and had allowed the toddler to use a cigarette lighter in the past.

Michael Pomeroy, 4, and his brother Justin died Jan. 7, 1991, of smoke inhalation after being trapped in the burning house in the Pine Manor neighborhood south of Fort Myers.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

From Castro's inner circle:

Report claims Cuban economy will collapse by July

By RICHARD COLE
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — Cuba's economy has spiraled downward, withering to only 37 percent of 1986-89 levels, and will collapse by July, according to a report issued by a Cuban exile group.

The Cuban American National Foundation, which released the 10-page November 1992 summary Tuesday, said the report was obtained from Fidel Castro's inner circle. It shows Cuba's total foreign reserves have fallen to only $12.3 million, the sugar harvest has tumbled, and transportation will grind to a halt by mid 1993.

Cuban government spokesman Jose Ponce in Washington said the report "mixed fact with fiction," but stopped short of denying it.

Jorge Mas Canosa, chairman of the powerful Miami-based exile group, presented the report to the media, saying it was prepared by the executive committee of Cuba's council of ministers for a meeting Nov. 4-6, 1992. Copies were disguised to protect the source's identity, he said.

"The study ... sees the complete collapse of the national economy in eight months, or by July 1993," Mas Canosa said.

The report concludes Cuba must be ready to implement "Emergency Phase I," which Mas said envisions a reduction to a "stone-age economy" and military repression of dissidents.

The only ray of light offered by the report — "economic integration with a European and American reorientation" — is politically impossible under Castro, said Mas Canosa.

He could not say if the U.S. State Department had also obtained the report, and that agency's Inter-American Affairs spokesman Doug Gray had no immediate comment.

Ambler Moss, a former U.S. ambassador and dean of the University of Miami's Graduate School of International Studies, said the study contains few surprises.

"It sounds like a confirmation of the drastically downward trend we've been seeing for a long time," Moss said.

The foundation received the report several weeks ago, but only released it when experts were convinced it was authentic, the group's president Francisco Hernandez said.

Among other signs of collapse noted in the report:

— Cuba's biggest export, sugar, dropped from 6.5 million metric tons in 1991 to less than 5 million estimated for 1992. Mas said new figures show that 1993's harvest could be as low as 3 million tons.

— The dollar value of the Cuban harvest dropped 70 percent as favorable trade arrangements with eastern European nations ended following the collapse of communism.

— While non-sugar industries functioned at 40 percent of their capacity from 1986-1989, that had dropped to only 6 or 7 percent by 1992.

Southern Bell ordered to refund $48.1 million in May

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Southern Bell Telephone Co. was ordered Tuesday to refund $48.1 million but the phone giant refused to release documents sought by consumer advocates probing the utility's service record.

The Public Service Commission approved the refund of excess profits as part of its ongoing rate case into Southern Bell, the state's largest phone company with almost 4 million customers.

In May, the company will refund residential customers up to $3.20 and business customers up to $8.75 per line. From June through December, residential customers will receive refunds of up to 64 cents a month and business customers will receive up to $1.75 a month for each line.

"This will be a benefit to all of our customers," said Southern Bell spokeswoman Wendie Feinberg. "We are happy to have suggested it."

Southern Bell was not as happy about the PSC's order Tuesday requiring the company to release documents about the company's internal investigation into illegal repair and billing practices.

In October, the company agreed to refund $15.2 million to more than 900,000 customers to settle a statewide grand jury probe into accusations the company failed to give refunds when service was interrupted more than 24 hours and other illegal billing practices.

Earlier this month, the PSC postponed hearings on the rate case until January 1994 to give consumer advocates more time to investigate the company's business practices.

Public Counsel Jack Shreve, who represents customers in rate cases before the PSC, and Attorney General Bob Butterworth are seeking the documents as part of their probe into Southern Bell's service record. They believe the problems stem from an experimental rate plan approved in 1988 that allowed the company to earn higher profits.

"These go to the core issue of quality of service," said Assistant Public Counsel Charlie Beck.

Agent commits suicide

By Associated Press

HIALEAH GARDENS — A suspended U.S. Customs Service Agent who was to testify against two other federal agents killed himself less than an hour before he was due in court, police said.

Aleides Licona, 48, committed suicide Tuesday morning, according to Metro-Dade police. He had agreed to plead guilty to stealing $103,000 and three ounces of cocaine, as well as to testify against fellow Customs agent Orlando White and Louis Reveiz of the FBI.

"It's a real tragedy," said his lawyer, Joaquin Perez. "He realized his career was over and he couldn't face it."

Customs officials, who conducted the sting operation that resulted in the arrests of Licona and the others in January, were disturbed by his death.

With it'd been resolved through the judicial system, rather than him taking his own life; taking his own punishment," said Leonard Freedman, regional internal affairs director for the U.S. Customs Service.

He said he would not comment further about Licona or the case, out of respect for the family.

Born in Honduras, Licona became a U.S. citizen and served four years in the Army. He continued serving in the Army Reserve while working as an agent first with the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms and then with Customs.

That agency's internal affairs investigators became suspicious of him after another agent inadvertently referred them to Licona in August 1991.

An informant working for investigators asked Customs Agent Orlando White, the initial target of the corruption probe, to rob a career criminal. White told the informant he knew others who might be interested in a deal, according to court papers.

Give thought to the homeless

All this week, the Seminole Housing Advocacy Coalition, SHAC, is observing Homeless Awareness Week. The name is appropriate, as some people are not aware of the problems of the homeless.

While the immediate mental picture may be one of a vagrant or hobo, there are many homeless people who have been victims of circumstances. Due to some unfortunate situation, they cannot afford a residence.

These include mothers with small children, older persons, and many others. Some yearn to hold down a regular job and earn their own keep, but without lodging, they cannot even get a start.

There are many ways the average citizen can help. Donate items or give financial assistance through local church drives. Become involved with Habitat for Humanity and help build some homes for the less fortunate.

Events are being held throughout this week. The culmination will be a gathering at the Magnolia Square in downtown Sanford this Friday. From 11 a.m. until 3 p.m., booths will be set up to provide information from SHAC, Golden Rule, Habitat for Humanity Seminole Self-Reliant Housing, and many other organizations.

For people who are aware of the needs of the homeless, this will be their opportunity to learn how to be of assistance.

For others who have been standing in the background, this week is an excellent time to step forward. Attend Friday's event at the Magnolia Square. Learn how you can help during Homeless Awareness Week.

One day, circumstances could change. If the tables were turned, would help be available for you?

On borrow pits

Re: County Commission Meeting Tuesday, March 23, 1993 for a public hearing on Borrow Pit Permit BP92-03

What do you do for a good laugh? In my twenties, I went to Comic Relief night clubs and laughed and danced the night away. In my thirties, I sat around with friends and watched Saturday Night Live and David Letterman. Now, in my forties, I've discovered the best laugh of all - going to a county commissioners "hearing" with the enthusiasm and hope that 50+ residents could enter, state their case and have their opinions respected and seriously considered (even though we were only given a week and Sid had a year to gather his lawyers, engineers, hydro-whatever and environmental experts).

The rock guy said he had studied all of our wells, but none of us in the group could figure who he was referring to, as we all looked around, puzzled. The water guy said they wouldn't take any of our water, they'd just keep using the same water and putting it back in the ground. Then the lawyer said (to answer the dust concern), that dust wouldn't be a problem because a great deal of what they are excavating was water, and even the dirt buyers used a percentage because up to 35 percent of the truck contents was water. Another expert described the size and quality of the sand particle and stated that it was too heavy to be airborne, so that dust wouldn't be a problem. Any of you all ever been around a sand pit? How does it get on my kitchen counter? The lawyer for the proposal said Seminole County "needs this dirt!" The man from Heathrow asked for an extension for his dirt pit because dirt was flowing so easily that he couldn't sell it and he needed another 6 months. Move over George Carlin!

The commissioners were offended when it was implied that they had something to gain from deals like this. Well, a lot of us are offended also at this shoddy attempt to make it look like the voting public has a say in what goes on in their own neighborhood.

When experts say things like "admittedly, I'm not a lake expert," this is a balancing act, "nothing can go wrong," "as far as my inventory says," "there are no endangered species to speak of in the area (we worry about the little animals but not the neighbor's asthma) and the best one, to the question "what if it does go wrong, how will your credentials help then?" - silence.

Doubt, that's what we're talking about, Mr. Commissioners. There was enough doubt floating around in that room to easily table the issue and give Mr. Little Guy time for a fair fight. So don't be offended, listen to what we're trying to say to you. Take the feedback. This is what it looks like to John Doe Public - a done deal!

Our land here is indeed a very delicate balance, not to mention the water. When will we begin acting responsibly and stop allowing the developers' greed (and maybe our own) to influence decisions that affect far more than just this here and now. Shouldn't we at least address other options, rather than give one or two men power to do things that benefit themselves at the cost of so many others? I'd love to see the hydro-geologic studies done in Geneva. The Dirty Dirt Detectives name withheld upon request

Lesser threat, greater boldness

Things have changed so rapidly in Russia that we reflexively think of what it was, not what it is. Because we have big decisions to make, some perspective is in order.

Demography can shape destiny. In 1991, the old Soviet Union had a population of 284 million, somewhat larger than America's. Last year, after the Soviet Union split apart, the population of the new Russia was 149 million.

And so, even though Russia takes up 11 times zones worth of real estate, it is not a very big country. Russia is less populous than China (1.2 billion), India (883 million), and the America (256 million). It is in the second tier, with Indonesia (185), Brazil (151), Japan (124), Pakistan (122) and Bangladesh (111.)

Moreover, says demographer Murray Feshbach of Georgetown University, in some ways Russia has become a Third World country. Feshbach reports:

• Last year in America there were four cases of diphtheria; in Moscow alone there were more than 2,000, and the epidemic will grow. Russian mothers do not trust Russian vaccines or syringes; many children go without inoculations.

• While life expectancy is climbing most everywhere, for males in Russia the rate has fallen from 65 years to 62.

• The Russian infant mortality rate is about 30 deaths per 1,000 births, and climbing. (In America it's below nine.) The chief pediatrician of St. Petersburg estimates that only 3 percent to 4 percent of children are healthy.

• The Russian death rate now exceeds the Russian birth rate, a most unusual circumstance. It is an elderly country, with poor health care, in economic and psychological shock, where two thirds of pregnancies are aborted.

Therefore what? Populous nations are not automatically superpowers, but these days not-populous nations have great difficulty even making the first cut, economically, militarily or culturally. Third World not-populous nations are never superpowers.

Because we have big decisions to make, some perspective is in order.

Of course, it goes much beyond demographics. Five years ago the Soviet Union was a so-called Second World nation, armed to the teeth against us, controlling satellite states with 100 million people, preaching global domination. They were a first-class threat.

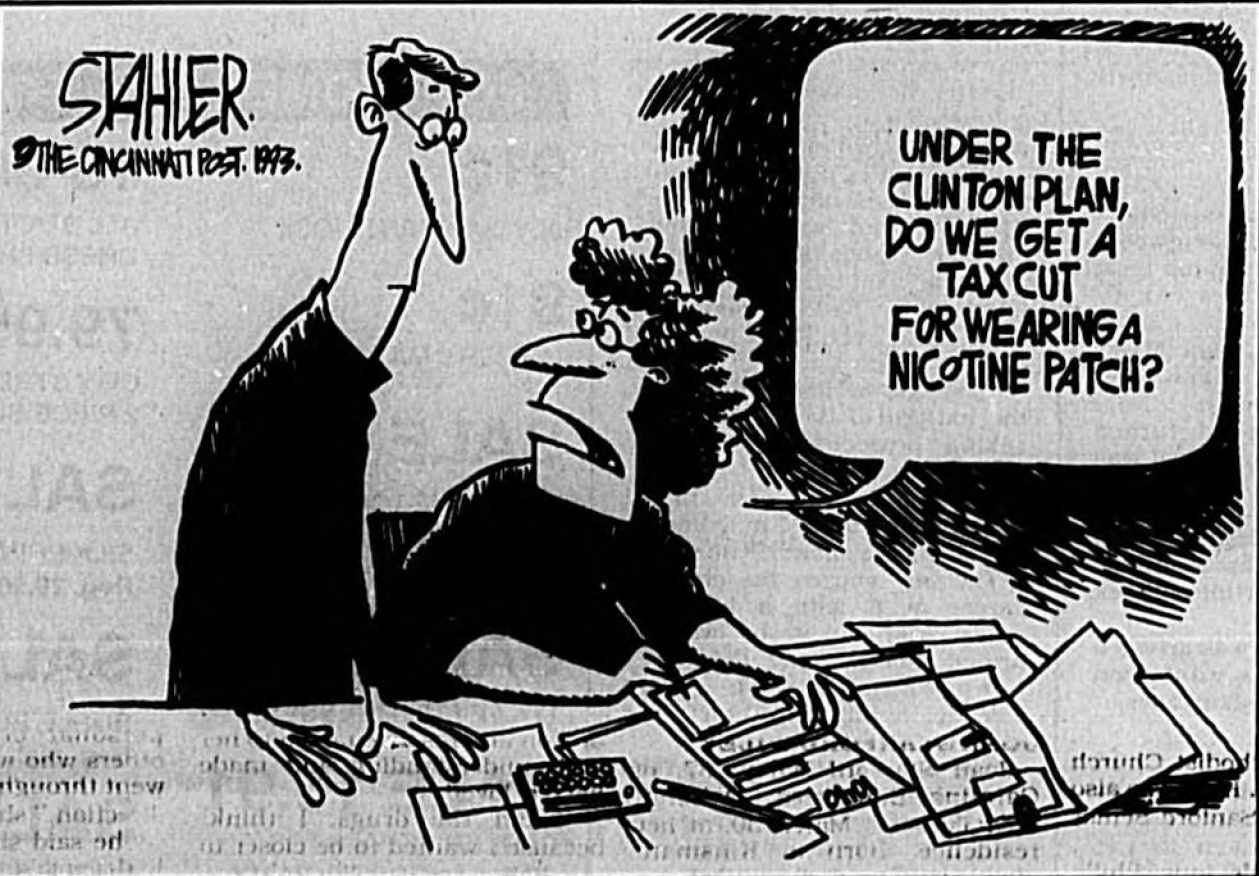

With the partial exception of the weaponry, none of that is now true. The Russian gross national product has fallen by about 25 percent. Even the old Soviet arsenal is somewhat dispersed and deteriorating.

Accordingly, as we plan a course, we have some freedom of action. If what we do doesn't work, it's merely terrible, not a disaster.

I believe President Yeltsin's declaration of temporary rule by decree is right. President Clinton's early response seems admirable. The now-evolving Clinton plan can and should be bold. We no longer need walk on eggshells in dealing with Russia, worrying about three-carom Cold War stratagems.

We have some key interests: Military, humanitarian and political.

We should bolster efforts to keep the nuclear arsenal under responsible control and diminishing. Those weapons are unlikely to be turned against us, but if anarchy comes to Russia, the weapons and the weapons-makers may migrate to unfriendly, volatile states.

Scandal lesson in influence peddling

WASHINGTON - To hear Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Texas, chairman of the House Banking Committee, tell it, it's not hard for a foreign-owned bank to escape prosecution in one of the largest banking scandals in U.S. history:

"All you have to do is hire the services of prominent Cabinet officers and their law firms, make sure a lawyer at one of the firms headed the division at the Justice Department that is prosecuting your client. ... If the scandal is big enough, the prime minister of your country may be willing to travel abroad to defend you."

Gonzalez was referring specifically to the Italian-based Banca Nazionale Del Lavoro, which has pulled out all the stops to avoid being fingered in the so-called "Iraqgate" scandal.

As it currently stands, the Justice Department has charged Atlanta BNL branch manager Christopher Drogoul and a few low-level bank employees with secretly providing $5 billion in illegal loans to Iraq - many of them guaranteed by the U.S. government and used by Saddam Hussein to buy weaponry. BNL has been absolved of any wrongdoing, even though a federal judge determined last fall that U.S. prosecutors had failed to fully investigate whether senior BNL officials in Rome were involved in the scheme.

Our associate Dean Boyd recently obtained confidential diaries of one senior BNL executive that shed light on how a politically connected BNL defense team may have helped persuade the Justice Department to arrive at such a conclusion.

After the FBI raided the Atlanta BNL branch in August 1989, the diaries show that BNL hired former U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell, and Bill Hendricks, who had just left his post as chief of the Justice Department's fraud section. The fraud unit was responsible for signing off on any BNL indictment. BNL also enlisted the support of senior Italian government officials since the bank was state owned.

One month later, the Italian Finance Minister discussed the case with then-U.S. Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady. The following month, the U.S. ambassador to Italy cabled a message back to Washington saying that the chairman of BNL had asked that the criminal probe be raised to a "political level." Less than 10 days later, the White House called the Atlanta prosecutor to discuss the case. At the same time, the BNL defense team in Atlanta was providing the local prosecutor with witness after witness to show that the bank had been victimized by rogue employees in Atlanta.

By early 1990, the Atlanta prosecutor agreed that BNL-Rome had been victimized and should not be indicted. Justice officials in Washington were skeptical. In a memo to the prosecutor, Justice complained about the "absence of any hard probing of BNL-Rome personnel," which they called an "unfortunate consequence of relying so heavily upon BNL for assistance."

When the Washington office threatened closer scrutiny of BNL-Rome's involvement, BNL quickly switched to the political mode. "The strategy of cooperating with (the Atlanta prosecutor) seems to be losing its value," BNL executive Paolo DiVito wrote in his diaries in March 1990. "Taking advantage of access at political levels appears more promising. ... We cannot preclude the affair evolving toward solutions outside the judicial system."

Time to be blunt about abortion

BOSTON - It is time to be blunt about the lesson of Dr. David Gunn's murder outside a women's health clinic on the morning of March 10: Terrorism works.

It's time to acknowledge that Randall Terry, the military strategist of Operation Rescue, was absolutely right: "We have found the weak link and it's the doctors."

Nearly three weeks have passed since Michael Griffin, a man who found a welcome home for his private demons among right-to-life extremists, shot the Florida doctor in the back. In these weeks, those who support abortion rights have often taken comfort from the public reaction and from political action.

At least, pro-choice people say to each other, all Americans can now see that the right-to-life movement has been captured by its militants. At least...the president has the chance to nominate a pro-choice justice to the Supreme Court. At least...a Senate committee sent the Freedom of Choice Act on its way to the floor. At least...a House subcommittee approved a bill making it a crime to obstruct a woman's access to a clinic.

But the truth is that none of this will matter very much if there are fewer and fewer medical people willing to provide abortions.

What's most significant is what did not happen after Dr. Gunn's death. We did not see a line of doctors offering their services at the clinic doors.

Aak Dr. Warren Pearse, the executive director of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, if his phone lines were jammed by doctors wanting to help in the days after a colleague's death. Well, he says, "our phones were jammed by people who said, 'you continue to support murder.'"

In Florida, Dr. Gunn's state, two more physicians quit. The last remaining provider in Brevard County, Dr. Randall Whitney, goes to work wearing a bulletproof vest and carrying a paper bag to put over his face so his photo won't end up on a "Wanted" poster.

In Wisconsin, Dr. George Woodward writes about the death threat he received. He has been given just weeks to leave the Planned Parenthood clinic or else.

In Washington state, Dr. Karen Nichols, who now spends half her time performing abortions because there are fewer doctors, admits to being harassed as well. She says philosophically, "It takes guts and courage to do abortions. You have to be committed."

The ranks of the doctors are older than they were in past years and sparser. They are populated increasingly as well by believers, those who are "committed," not just to patients, but to their rights. Indeed, by best estimates fewer than 3,500 providers perform the bulk of the 1.5 million abortions a year. They are the weak link indeed.

Dr. Nichols describes the situation simply: "If more physicians did the procedures, we wouldn't even be talking about harassment." The more doctors, says ACOG's Dr. Pearse, the harder it would be to target any one. "If a large number each did ten abortions a week it would go relatively unnoticed."

No one is suggesting that doctors who are morally opposed to abortions should perform them. But 84 percent of practicing ob-gyns describe themselves as pro-choice, while only 32 percent perform any abortions, and only 4 percent do more than 10 a month.

It isn't just fear that has reduced these ranks. Doctors have assumed they could refer patients to low-cost clinics and specialists rather than doing abortions themselves. Many medical schools and residency programs virtually stopped training doctors in the procedure. Contrary to what pro-life literature says about the "abortion business," the pay is low. There is more prestige in performing hysterectomies and more pleasure in delivering babies.

But today intimidation is the greatest threat to abortion rights, greater than hostile judges or pro-life legislatures. It's a threat to doctors and their families and also to their patients. And while it shouldn't take "guts and courage" to practice medicine, sometimes it does.

What sort of courage is needed? The simplest act is for medical professionals to ensure that more schools train students to perform abortions and that more hospitals have facilities. They are beginning to do this. The harder act is for groups of doctors to balance the concerns of safety with the demands of conscience. To support doctors who provide abortions - and, yes, to join them.

These are the facts. One doctor has been killed. Others are threatened and still more are being harassed. Somehow, the weak link must find strength in numbers.

Terrorism works.

It's not hard for a foreign owned bank to escape prosecution in one of the largest banking scandals in U.S. history.

 forth in the aggravated battery sentencing guidelines.
 Assistant State Attorney Jerry Jones said he was pleased with the plea. "It is very difficult to prove attempted first degree murder," Jones commented, as he left the courtroom, "because he (Faison) could have gone over while he (Tramel) was lying on the ground and shot him again, but he didn't."
 Faison's no contest pleas came after Jones had given his opening statement and called two Sanford Police officers to testify. Smith reserved the right to give his opening statement at a later time.

 A short recess was called to allow the prosecutor to locate Tramel, who had left the second floor. When Tramel was brought into court, he sat, at times, bent doubled over in his wheelchair, his face to the floor. At other times, the Gainesville resident held himself upright by hooking his arm around the wheelchair handle.
 According to the chain of events set forth by Jones in his opening statement, Tramel was sitting with his girlfriend and her children on the grounds of Castle

Brewer Court when shots rang out. As everyone ran for cover, Tramel was shot by Faison. Tramel's lower body was paralyzed by the shooting.
 In a pre-trial deposition, Tramel claimed he did not know Faison.
 Judge O.H. Eaton admonished Faison that by pleading no contest to the charges he was waiving his right to appeal anything but an unlawful sentence. After the plea was entered, Judge Eaton said, "Gentlemen, thank-you for resolving the case."

 increase the numbers of crimes reported and to deter crime before it happens. Many crimes are not reported and would not be reflected in the report, said Eslinger.
 According to the report, a resident in Sanford had a greater than one-in-ten chance of being subjected to crime in 1992. Odds are, that crime was either a theft or burglary, which accounted for 59 percent of all crimes reported in the city last year.
 Sanford police Capt. Ralph Russell, acting chief, said Monday he has a copy of the report but hasn't had the time to look at it. Russell was out of town last week and returned Monday. Russell had no comment on the report's findings.
 A total of 3,221 Part I crimes were reported last year in Sanford, which had a population of 34,156. The figure represents about a 2 percent drop from the year before, but an 8 percent increase from 1990 and a 17 percent increase over 1989.
 By comparison, Sanford police cleared 17.7 percent of their crimes in 1992. Sanford made 968 arrests during the year.

 Cranias and the Sanford Historic Downtown Waterfront Association are working to make downtown more desirable for merchants and shoppers.

crime figures because a crime cleared in 1992 may have been reported a year earlier and an arrested person may be accused of a crime in another county.
 Property crimes, burglary and theft, represented the majority of the principle crimes in the county last year. Of the 18,245 reported crimes, 81 percent were property crimes. In Sanford, nearly 80 percent of the Part I crimes were property-related. In Lake Mary, more than 83 percent of the principle crimes were property crimes. In Longwood, 85 percent of all major crimes were property-related.

 Shelter manager Kim Strogoff said the shelter is extending its hours Thursday and Friday to facilitate adoption of the puppies. Although the shelter is closed Wednesday, it will be open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday and Friday. Normally the shelter closes at 4 p.m.
 The puppies are from 8 weeks old to 5 months old and are mixed breeds, part shepherd, hound, bird dog, golden retriever, Doberman pinscher and many others.
 The cost of adopting a puppy is $50 which includes the spay/neutering fee and shots. All the puppies have been wormed.

Strogoff said all the dogs are inside pets.
 In addition to adopting a puppy, the shelter needs foster families to care for animals too young to adopt. "They keep the puppies until they are ready to be adopted," Strogoff said.
 With the new influx of puppies, the shelter needs donations of shredded paper, bleach, blankets and towels, Strogoff said. "Someone just donated a paper shredder to Orange County," she added, "we could use one too, if anyone has one to donate."
 The local shelter keeps the animals until they are adopted.

 After being taken to the Volusia County jail, the two posted $4,000 bonds, and were released within a short period.
 An investigation is continuing into the case, including a close examination of serial numbers on some of the auto parts at the business.
 The matter may also be extended to federal jurisdiction, as an operation of a chop shop is considered as a federal offense.

Philamon said that "the Lord reached out and grabbed me off the streets one day," however and called her into the House of Refuge, at 10001 Celery Ave. in Sanford, where Rev. Elijah Richardson and his wife talked to her with understanding and made her feel loved.
 "I did the drugs, I think, because I wanted to be closer to my father. I was calling out for, screaming for, his love," she said. "I had my mother's love but I wanted to be closer to my father."
 She found some satisfaction in the drugs, but no love.
 She was well-known in the drug community, she said.
 "They all know me down on 13th Street and in Midway and Georgetown where all the drugs are," she said. "That's where I hung out."
 It's a community that she hasn't left far behind in her recovery, however.
 "They're still dealing drugs down on my corner," she said. "I see them every day. I go out and tell the kids to stay away from them and, when I can, I go out and talk to the dealers."

 She said the dealers call her "Sister Cindy" and that they sometimes ask her to pray for them, though she said few of them are really willing to leave the drug life behind.
 "They don't see that they can't be satisfied in that life," she said. "But I pray for them."
 Philamon said that she has turned her life around and she believes others can do the same.
 "I have turned my life around and I hope that this (her personal crusade) may help others who went through what I went through to turn in the right direction," she said.
 She said she talks to the kids in the neighborhood too.

 She said that she wants to give the kids something to think about, though she doesn't know if they listen to her when she tells them about how bad drugs are.
 "Drug dealers," she said to her former associates, "you're going out of business. Children, teenagers, adults, drug addicts, you can look on me."
 When she was a teen, she said she was "emotionally disturbed". She said she revolted against those who wanted to help her.

"I didn't want anything to do with them," she said. "If someone wanted to help me, I thought they wanted to hurt me."
 Meanwhile, she said she has begun singing again. She said that before she moved to Sanford at the start of high school she was very involved in singing in school choruses. When she enrolled in Seminole High School she said she didn't fit in with any group, including the chorus, so she gave up singing.
 "But I'm back to singing now," she said. "I sing gospel music to the Lord."
 Drug use behind her, Philamon is working on getting her life back together. At 29, she is studying to earn her GED and she hopes to go on to college, where she hopes to study either hotel management or computers.
 "I had always wanted to be a police man," she said. "But I think this is what I want to do. But I'm still deciding."

Senate signals unwillingness to support new cigarette tax

By CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The Senate signaled its unwillingness to support a 25-cent-a-pack cigarette tax increase to build prisons by defeating an effort Tuesday to force floor consideration of the issue.

The Senate voted 21-17 against a motion by Sen. Robert Wexler, D-Boca Raton, to place on the agenda a prison sentencing guidelines bill (CS-SB 1824) linked with the cigarette tax.

It would have taken a two-thirds vote to move the measure forward. Democrats Charles Williams of Tallahassee and George Kirkpatrick of Gainesville joined 19 Republicans against the move; Sen. Gary Stiegel of Longwood was the only Republican voting yes.

Wexler, his voice breaking in a floor speech, said the issue of building more prison beds is too important not to be considered by the full Senate. The cigarette tax and sentencing guidelines bills have cleared committees, but Senate President Ander Crenshaw doesn't want to schedule them for floor debate.

"If there's an important issue ... it ought to be heard," Wexler said. "I'm not trying to play games. I'm not trying to get this body in the position of voting for a tax for no reason."

Crenshaw, R-Jacksonville, has consistently opposed taxes this session but said he has committed to 7,000 new prison beds in next year's budget to ease overcrowding and prevent early release of violent prisoners.

"Those in law enforcement and all across the state will be Crenshaw rejected criticism that he is unfairly using the rules to block Wexler's bills.

"Not every bill that is filed makes it to the floor of the Senate," he said.

Gov. Lawton Chiles has embraced the cigarette tax as a method of financing borrowing to build more than 30,000 prison beds over the next five years. House Democrats also support the idea.

Before the floor action, Debbie Geary, the widow of a Metro-Dade police officer gunned down by parolee Charlie Street in November 1988, appealed to Crenshaw to allow a vote on the cigarette tax plan.

Compromise at hand

Clinton budget nears final congressional passage

By STEVEN KOMAROW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — With a compromise at hand, Democratic leaders plan quick votes on President Clinton's package of tax increases, defense cuts and "investments" in schools, technology, the environment and other programs.

House and Senate negotiators agreed Tuesday night on a budget to implement Clinton's five-year plan. The House could give its final approval today, and the Senate as early as Thursday, said congressional officials who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The agreement was to be announced officially today.

The Democratic plan promises to reduce deficits by nearly $500 billion. Still, the government would spend more than $1.5 trillion a year, beginning Oct. 1.

The compromise was reached by reconciling differing versions of the Clinton budget that had passed the House and Senate separately.

It would raise taxes roughly $273 billion over five years, including higher taxes on the rich, Social Security recipients, and on energy use. It also would trim the Pentagon's spending plans by more than $100 billion from what was envisioned by the Bush administration.

Limits would be imposed on cost-of-living increases for federal workers and retirees, but sources said the final compromise softened a tough House-passed provision.

Most domestic programs outside of entitlements such as Social Security and Medicare would be frozen at current levels.

With Democratic majorities in both chambers, Congress closely followed Clinton's guidance on the budget — even as the final version was being negotiated.

On Tuesday, the document was modified after the administration backed off its demand that the budget require higher fees for mining and grazing on federal lands. Administration officials indicated they'd save that fight for later, rather than lose Western support for the budget.

The budget does not itself enact the taxes and spending changes. The document, which does not require the president's signature, serves as a broad guideline for the fiscal legislation that Congress must pass in the months ahead.

With the budget on track for final approval by week's end, Democrats and Republicans in the Senate spent Tuesday sparring over another piece of Clinton's economic plan, a $16.3 billion jobs bill.

Republicans unsuccessfully offered amendments to strip out money they declared would eventually go to pork-barrel pro-

Greenhouse grief

Annual U.S. economic losses from global warming with doubling of greenhouse gases by 2025

Source of loss Amount of loss (billions of dollars)

Agricultural losses due to heat stress and drought	$18
Increased electricity for air conditioning	$11
Sea level rise	$7
Curtailed water supply from reduced runoff	$7
Increased urban air pollution	$4
Reduced lumber yield from forests	$3
Other (includes hurricane and forest fire damage, and increased mortality due to heat stress)	$3

If, as some environmentalists believe, greenhouse gases double by 2025, U.S. agricultural losses would climb to $18 billion, and electricity costs for air conditioning would leap to $11 billion annually.

jects, although exactly what that would be was not delineated in the bill because the decisions were left to local governments. Democrats responded angrily that leaving those choices to the locals was a GOP philosophy. And while Republicans were voting "no" now, they were at the same time fighting to get more federal money for their states, Democrats said.

House chairman blasts Clinton's retreat on land use fee increases

By RITA BEAMISH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — An angry chairman of the House Natural Resources Committee says President Clinton is making a "fundamental mistake" in dropping his insistence that Congress include land-use fee increases in its budget blueprint.

But a key Senate backer of mining reforms sees no problem with Clinton's move.

The White House said Tuesday it still was committed to charging higher fees for grazing and mining on federally owned lands, but would pursue those through separate legislative and administrative methods rather than as part of the budget process.

That didn't mollify Rep. George Miller, D-Calif., the House committee chairman. He said Clinton's decision was "a serious undermining of those efforts" toward reform of longtime government policies on public lands.

"This is a fundamental mistake by the administration," said Miller, a longtime proponent of reducing federal subsidies on Western lands.

However, Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., a leading proponent of mining law reform, said he did not object to the move. He said it would allow more opportunity to debate broader questions in mining law reform, such as environmental reclamation issues he is pursuing.

At issue are Clinton's proposals to increase grazing fees on federally owned rangelands and to make mining companies pay royalties for the minerals they take from federal lands. The debate is over whether the revenues expected from those changes should be nailed into the budget that Congress passes, or should be dealt with separately.

"The administration's policy has not changed. The process has changed some," said White House spokeswoman Dee Dee Myers. "We're still committed to pursuing reform in grazing, mining and below-cost timber sales."

The administration initially had touted the subsidy cuts as an important component of deficit-reduction efforts that urged sacrifices by everyone. But Clinton subsequently bowed to pressure from Western senators who objected to slashing the subsidies and wanted the issue out of the budget process.

"It was very clear that the desire to have substantial deficit reduction and everybody making a sacrifice is what was driving everybody," Miller said in an interview.

Test Your Auto Safety Knowledge

By Esther Peterson

(NU) - You know how to be a safe driver. It's the other people on the road that cause accidents. Sound familiar? Just to check your auto safety knowledge, take the following quiz.

TRUE OR FALSE?

- About 80 percent of all car accidents occur at speeds of less than 40 mph.
True. Nearly 8 out of 10 crashes occur at speeds under 40 mph, because most driving is done at low speed or in urban areas.
- The longer the trip, the more likely people will use safety belts.
True. People seem to think long trips are riskier, but the reverse is true. Everyone should wear safety belts on all trips, regardless of the distance.
- One drink won't affect my driving.
False. Your brain is susceptible to even small amounts of alcohol, and operates more slowly and with less accuracy.
- If my car has an air bag, I don't need to wear a safety belt.
False. You need both. The airbag protects you only if you're involved in a front-end collision.
- Regular safety belts should be worn only by children over 5.
False. Small children are always safer in a properly constructed car seat. If one is unavailable, a safety belt is much better than leaving the child unrestrained. Buckle the belt snugly and position it low on the hip bones.
- One in 10 injury-producing crashes involves fire or submersion in water.
False. In the movies, cars explode or fall in the water constantly, but in real life, this happens in less than one out of every 200 injury-producing crashes.
- Pregnant women should wear safety belts.
True. Pregnant women should wear a lap belt below the abdomen. The greatest cause of fetal death in a car accident is the death of the mother.
- In a crash, it's safer to be thrown out of a car.
False. Your chances of being fatally injured are almost 25 percent greater if you're thrown from the car, than if you're safely seat-belted. Some people have misconceptions about car insurance as well. Not all policies are the same. Ask your independent insurance agent to compare policies and prices, and how to get the best insurance value for your money. Remember, safe driving protects you and your family, and can result in a better driving record — and help control your insurance rates.

Fear of breast cancer keeps many from tests

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
AP Science Writer

SAN DIEGO — Many women with strong family histories of breast cancer become so paralyzed with fear of dying from the disease that they fail to get exams that could save their lives, a survey shows.

If caught early, even inherited forms of breast cancer can be cured. Yet the report found that those at highest risk often do the least to detect tumors when they are still treatable.

"Some women say they are too afraid to even examine their breasts" themselves, said Kathryn Kash. "They are afraid they will find something."

About 5 percent of breast cancer is thought to result from a gene that is passed from mothers or fathers to their daughters.

People are suspected to be at risk of this inherited form of cancer if they have two or more close relatives — a mother, sister or grandmother — with breast cancer, or one of their close relatives developed breast cancer in both breasts before menopause.

Such people have at most a 50 percent chance of having inherited the cancer-causing gene. Those who actually have the gene face about an 85 percent risk of developing breast cancer.

Such women are typically urged to have annual mammograms after age 40 to check their breasts for tumors, to get regular breast exams from doctors and to feel their breasts monthly for lumps.

In a survey of 420 of these high-risk women, Kash found that only half got annual mammograms or regular doctor checkups for breast cancer, and only about one-quarter examined their own breasts monthly.

Kash, a psychologist at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York, presented her findings Tuesday at a meeting of the American Cancer Society.

Dr. Victor Vogel of M.D. Anderson Cancer Center in Houston said he has seen similar instances of fear preventing routine cancer screening.

"Fear immobilizes these women," Vogel said. "They are so afraid that nothing happens. They stop doing breast self exams and getting mammograms."

Kash said that many of these women are petrified because they overestimate their risk of getting cancer. Often they believe their risk is 100 percent, when in truth it is 20 percent or 30 percent.

Among other findings: —In some of these cancer families, the disease is a kind of open secret, never acknowledged or discussed by those at risk.

—Some women believe they will get breast cancer at precisely the same age their mother or sister was diagnosed with the disease.

—Feelings of guilt may occur when cancer does not strike.

—Sometimes women tell themselves they will be able to avoid the disease if they have fewer children than their mother had.

Kash has begun a pilot program to see if women can be made less anxious and more willing to do something about their risk. Her program, begun with 10 women, combines stress management with education. It emphasizes informing women about their real — rather than their imagined — risk of the disease. Kash found that with this help, women seem willing to get regular mammograms and breast exams, and they are also more likely to check their own breasts regularly.

Arrest made in attack of 7-year-old

By Associated Press

KISSIMMEE — A local man was arrested early this morning after confessing to the rape of a 7-year-old in a school bathroom, police said.

Phillip W. Wagner, 21, was being held without bond at the Osceola County Jail. A composite sketch of the schoolgirl's assailant was broadcast on local television Tuesday night, after which investigators received numerous tips leading them to Wagner's home, according to a police statement.

Wagner went to the police station and confessed the statement said. He is charged with sexual battery on a child under 12, lewd acts, exposure of a sexual organ, and kidnapping.

The girl was raped at Thacker Avenue Elementary School after going unescorted to a bathroom that opens onto the school's parking lot, police said.

To get to the bathroom, students must walk outside the classroom building, then enter through an exterior door, said Detective Watten Shepard.

ORLANDO — In an ugly game marked by the ejection of Shaquille O'Neal, Orlando defeated Detroit 105-91 for the Magic's first victory over the Pistons.

The Magic, who didn't make a field goal in the final 10:20, scored their last 19 points from the foul line. The victory was the Magic's first in 15 tries against the Pistons, the only team Orlando had never beaten in its four-year history.

Scott Skiles led Orlando with 27 points, while Dennis Scott added 26 and Nick Anderson 24 as the Magic moved ahead of Indiana in the race for the final playoff spot in the Eastern Conference.

Isiah Thomas scored 32 points and Joe Dumars had 17 points for Detroit.

Bellhorn, Lions upend SAC-leading Seminoles

Leadoff hitter Mike Rugienius hit a pair of singles in the Oviedo Lions' 2-1 come-from-behind victory Tuesday afternoon over host Seminole.

By RYAN ANDERSON
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Oviedo High School baseball coach Mike Ferrell knew that his team was not playing up to its full potential and that it was only a matter of time before the pieces started to fall into place.

The pieces came together Tuesday afternoon, as Ferrell watched his team defeat the Seminole Fighting Seminoles, 2-1, in a Seminole Athletic Conference contest at Seminole Field.

"Everything went our way against the best team," said Ferrell. "Todd Bellhorn pitched a great game and we did the job when we had to do it. We were the ones keeping the pressure on them the whole game."

"Things finally went our way. We're coming out of this and I think we are going to be the team to look out for this second part of the season. We've lost so many close games and finally, something went our way. I'm real proud of the way they have kept trying and have hung in there."

Bellhorn made his first pitching start for the Lions since returning from the varsity basketball

Jeremy Chunat started for Seminole and struck out three while giving up one run on eight hits in 5½ innings. Robbie Morgan relieved Chunat and struck out two, walked one, and gave up one run on three hits.

Seminole took a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the second inning when Chunat doubled and scored on Tony Duncan's single. Oviedo threatened to score numerous times but was thwarted by Chunat, stranding a total of five batters in scoring position.

The Lions finally pushed the tying run across in the top of the sixth when Brian Hendrix singled, took second on Adam Coleman's second bunt, went to third on Mark McCreath's single, and scored on Andy Hynes' base hit.

Fatal boating accident ruled 'alcohol-related'

By IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

ORLANDO — Alcohol, speed and the lack of a lookout on a darkened lake contributed to a fishing boat crash that took the lives of two Cleveland Indians pitchers and injured a third, Florida investigators say.

Tim Crews, owner and operator of an 18-foot bass boat with a 150-horsepower motor, was found to be legally drunk at the time the vessel struck a private dock on Little Lake Nellie the night of March 22.

It was "an alcohol-related accident," said Col. Bob Edwards, law enforcement director for the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission. Agency investigators released their findings at an Orlando news conference Tuesday.

Crews, 31, was fatally injured and died about 10 hours after the accident, which took place within sight of his lakeside home. Steve Olin, 27, died at the scene and Bob Ojeda, 35, is recovering from a scalp laceration.

Crews had a blood alcohol content of 0.14 percent, surpassing the threshold of 0.10 considered to be legal intoxication under Florida law.

Neither Olin nor Ojeda was found to be legally drunk. Olin's blood alcohol level was placed at 0.02 percent and Ojeda's at 0.006 percent.

Medical Examiner Thomas Hegert of Orange County said a 0.14 reading could be the equivalent of six to seven beers in a person of Crews' stature and weight, but the effects vary considerably in each person.

Hegert did not say over how much time that amount of alcohol would have to be consumed to obtain such a reading. But another medical examiner in Orange County, William Anderson, said if an average person consumed six or seven beers in about an hour he would have a reading of about 0.14.

Perry Brignoud, a Crews family friend, told The Orlando Sentinel he talked to Crews' wife, Laurie, on Tuesday and she could not remember her husband having more than three beers that day.

Investigators found unopened cans of beer in an ice chest, a nearly full bottle of vodka and an empty beer can aboard the boat.

Relatives of Crews said the family wouldn't comment on the investigators' findings.

Indians Manager Mike Hargrove met with the team in the dugout after a 6.5 loss to Cincinnati in Winter Haven Tuesday to give them a report on the investigation.

"Those were good, honest, solid men. It doesn't alter the fact one way or the other," Hargrove said.

"To me, it doesn't change a thing," said Paul Sorrento, the Indians' first baseman. "I still love him (Crews) as much as before."

Edwards and Lt. Bruce Cooper, in charge of the probe, said evidence indicated the craft was traveling at more than 25 miles per hour in the dark — at about 7:30 p.m. (EDT).

But "the exact speed at the time of the crash is

Rogers notches third victory of season

By PAUL MARSEGLIA
Special to the Herald

SAMSULA — Orlando's David Rogers claimed his third win of the season by winning the 50-lap Late Model feature event last Saturday night, March 27, at New Smyrna Speedway.

Rogers, who set the evening's third fastest qualifying time, started the race from the third position and took over the No. 1 slot from early race leader Wayne Anderson on lap eight.

The following lap, Jack Cook got to the inside of Anderson for second place and close to within several car lengths of Rogers.

Rogers maintained his position until a lap 14 caution bunched the field. On the restart, Cook took the outside pole position but, despite a strong charge, came up short as Rogers quickly reclaimed the lead and skillfully worked lapped traffic on his way to victory lane.

"Our car gets better and better every week," said Rogers, who also won the previous week's feature event. "Now we have a good baseline to work from on the car."

Last weekend's results from Volusia County Speedway will appear in Thursday's Sanford Herald.

"As the weather gets warmer, the track conditions will change and we'll just have to make minor changes weekly instead of doing something major every week. I have a real dedicated crew. They are really on top of things."

Cook trailed Rogers to victory lane by about seven car lengths. Finishing third through fifth were, respectively, Bruce Lawrence, Anderson, and Bobby Blake.

"Our car was better last night," said Cook, referring to his win in the feature event at Orlando Speedworld on Friday night. "As we got further into the race, the car started to get real loose."

"At first, I thought I had a tire going down, but later found out I overheated it. If you overheat a tire, it's a good indication that the set-up on the car is off a little bit. We'll work on it this week and hopefully get it sorted out."

Jerry Symons started the Mini-Stock feature event in seventh place. Five laps into the race, he moved into second place but still trailed race leader Bobby Sears by more than 15 car lengths.

Symons determinedly closed the gap with one lap to go. Coming out of turn four on the checkered flag lap, Symons pulled alongside of Sears and edged him at the finish line by inches to score his 12th win of the season.

Chasing the lead duo to victory lane were Ted Vulpius, J.D. Duncan, and Richard Newton.

Wally Semrow took top honors in the Bomber division ahead of Larry Hughes, Johnny Mitchell, Glen Cordell, and Dave Mandy.

Jacob Warren was the winner of the Limited Late Model main event with Marc Kinley, Doug Pilla, Bruce Baker, and Eddie Rice in tow.

After five laps of fender-to-fender racing, Dale Howard edged Jerry Smith to take the checkers in Sportman action. Barbara Pierce, Billy Gerdy, and Walt Loggins rounded out the top five.

Mike Filch was the winner of the Modified race with Lee Wagner earning the checkers in the Action Performance Run-About main event.

Former champ Cook enjoys successful Speedworld return

ORLANDO — Three-time Florida Association of Stock Car Automobile Racing champion Jack Cook handily won the Sonny King's Orange Buick Late Model feature event last Friday night, March 26, at Orlando Speedworld.

It was Cook's first appearance at Speedworld in over a year.

Cook, who started the race from the third position, got by early race leader Mack Hanbury on the third lap and quickly pulled out to a three-car advantage over the rest of the field.

Despite several caution periods that bunched the field for new restarts, Cook held off his challengers to earn his trip to victory lane.

"I don't remember when I won here last," said Cook, who picked up the winner's purse of $1,000. "It had to be more than a year ago. Everything was perfect tonight. The car and the track were just great."

Wayne Anderson, who started last in the 16-car field, got by Hanbury for second place on the fifth lap.

Cautions on lap seven and nine bunched the field for restarts. Anderson moving to the outside of Cook for the green flag, but Cook was able to pull away each time and took the checkers 10 car lengths ahead of Anderson.

The lead duo were trailed to victory lane by Hanbury, Eddie Tovet, and Eddie Perry.

Jerry Symons bested a 17-car field to take top honors in the Mini-Stock division. Symons, who also won the evening's heat race, took the checkers ahead of J.D. Duncan, Lawrence Usher, Kelly Jarrett, and Gene Merritt.

Skip Honaker led every circuit to claim his first ever Modified main event win. Trailing Honaker across the finish line were Dana Darveau, Donald Shedd, Bobby Owens, and Kelly Jarrett.

Top five finishers in the Bomber division were, in order of finish, John Smith, Wally Semrow, Gary Frosh, Greg Noe, and Glenn Cordell.

The finishing order behind winner Jacob Warren in the Limited Late Model main event was Gary Schlichter, Randy Cook, Jeff Koip, and Eddie Price.

The Run-About feature was won by Vern Porter. Gary Roberts came out on top in the Mini-Stock Enduro.

Earnhardt adds to Winston Cup points lead

Associated Press

DAYTONA BEACH — Dale Earnhardt used his first victory of the season to bolster his lead over Rusty Wallace and Geoff Bodine in the chase for the $1.5 million NASCAR Winston Cup stock car racing championship.

The five-time national champion won Sunday's TransSouth Financial 500 at Darlington, S.C., his first victory in nearly a year. He now leads Wallace, the 1989 champion, and Bodine by 57 points, 804-747. The difference between Earnhardt and the two drivers tied for second would represent the difference between first and 12th in a single race.

"If you're running for the championship, first is the place to be," said Earnhardt, whose last race victory came in the Coca-Cola 600 at Charlotte, N.C., last May. "I've heard guys talk about being in second and coming from behind and stuff like that. Not this team. First place or no place is the way we feel." But Earnhardt acknowledged the championship is still up for grabs.

"It's not going to be easy and there is still a long way to go," he said. "Rusty has won the Winston Cup championship before. Geoff has had some really good runs at it in the past. "And there are plenty of good drivers and teams who want to win it. The end of the season is still a long way away," Earnhardt said.

Daytona 500 winner Dale Jarrett was fourth in the standings Monday, with 730 points; while Mark Martin was fifth with 708. Davey Allison and Morgan Shepherd were tied for sixth at 644 points.

unknown," Edwards said.

Investigators earlier had said there were indications the boat was going at near top speed of about 65 mph. Edwards said it had been impossible to determine a maximum speed.

Autopsies conducted in Orange and Lake counties determined the cause of death for both Crews and Olin was "blunt force trauma to the head." The nature and location of the injuries indicated they did not see the dock.

Ojeda also told investigators he did not see the dock, which investigators said was 171 feet long.

Bob DiBlasso, vice president of public relations for the Cleveland Indians, attended the news conference and said blood-alcohol findings were irrelevant.

"As we have been saying all along, the findings of these levels are insignificant compared to the pain, the suffering and the loss that the Olin family, the Crews family and the Indians organization are experiencing," said DiBlasso.

"The telltale sign was that Steve Olin was at 0.02 (percent) and obviously, his death was the same as Timmy's, so he didn't see anything coming ... and that has to be reported," said DiBlasso.

Edwards said three things stood out in his mind about this type of an accident: "careless operation, maintaining a vessel within the speeds consistent with safety and (lack of) a designated lookout, someone who can be utilized to help look for structures such as this."

The players were enjoying an off day from spring training at nearby Winter Haven and had gathered at Crews' lakeside ranch with their families. Crews, Olin and Ojeda decided to go fishing in Crews' Skeeter bass boat.

Ojeda told investigators they had been on the water about 15 minutes when the crash occurred.

"Mr. Ojeda said they had made several passes around the lake and were returning to the launch area near Mr. Crews' home to pick up two other fishermen when they struck the dock," said Edwards in a prepared statement.

It was determined the boat was "planned out" or riding high in the water, "establishing that the boat was traveling 25 miles per hour or greater."

Cook of the Week

Recipes are a blend of favorites from two families

By ED KORGAN
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — A first place winner in a recent chili cook-off contest is the featured Cook of the Week.

Fonda Nobles of Sanford grew up in Maine but was brought to the south when she was a young teenager. She and her husband, Randy, attended Seminole High School. They had been sweethearts while attending school and decided to tie the knot not long after they both graduated.

They are blessed with three children: Natalie, 15; J.R., 13; and Lacy, 7 years old. All three of the children are becoming well experienced entertainers in the county. Lacy is modeling and dancing, Natalie is modeling and J.R. plays baseball in the city league.

Fonda is also a director for the Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole and is in charge of the Valerie and Miriam Roast which will be held on Saturday, April 3, at the Omni Hotel in Orlando.

The recipes she wants to share with everyone are recipes handed down to her through her and her husband's family. They provide an excellent blend of northern and southern cooking.

One good example of a southern trick in cooking is the idea of cooking a turkey, ham or large item in a brown paper bag. This eliminates the basting of the item and when the time is up a great tasting piece of meat can be enjoyed by everyone.

Fonda is also including her recipe for prize-winning chili that she made. However, unless you are cooking for a big family, be careful because her measurements are for 20 people.

Many of the recipes submitted by Fonda have come through the family for many years. The Grammy Abbie's Basic Muffin recipe goes way back to Depression times when staples were not plentiful. This recipe grew out of the Depression because you could mix almost anything in the batter and not go wrong.

Fonda Nobles combines the best of southern and northern cooking.

A favorite northern recipe is Rhubarb Pudding. Up north you can get the rhubarb fresh on the produce counters, but here in the south you have to head over to the frozen foods to find rhubarb. The rhubarb is well worth looking for when the pudding is finally completed.

The Date Nut Bars are also great snacks that have come from the family menu. Give them a try. You are guaranteed a great treat on all the recipes submitted by our gourmet cook, Fonda Nobles.

Serve fruits, vegetables daily

Five to six servings of fresh fruits and vegetables daily is what is recommended for our good health/Fruits and Juices for breakfast, salads (fruit or vegetable) for lunch and micro-cooked vegetables for dinner. A food pattern will help you get your recommended allowances without counting. Keep fruits and vegetables on hand for snacks which can be included in the daily count.

If you are on a low fat, low sodium diet, try this combination of vegetables with freshly ground pepper as the only seasoning.

Batter up! Pancakes score a big hit

By MARLALISA CALYA
NEA Food Editor

Every spring, about this time, my daughters and I make a batch of doughnuts, and wade through the mud and dirty snow across the road to a tiny shack with steam billowing out of a lopsided cupola on the top. The shack belongs to my neighbor, Paul Remick, a gentleman in his 80s who still makes the rounds of his sugarbush (the name given to a stand of maple trees) each spring to collect sap for sugaring (the process of making maple syrup). The shack houses a small, wood-fired evaporator in which the water is boiled off from the sap and the sweet syrup remains.

In the past, I have made feeble efforts to "help" Paul, but it's clear he doesn't need it. Though twice my age, he can drill a hole in a maple tree by hand in half the time that I can, and insert a tap and hang the bucket with far more expertise than I'll ever muster. Experience has taught him how hot to stoke the fire, and when the syrup will "sheet off," a sign that it is ready for canning. My role has been reduced to bringing doughnuts — a traditional accompaniment to maple syrup — and watching. I am always rewarded with a Mason jar filled with golden syrup, which my daughters carry home like a trophy.

Now the best thing I know to do with syrup, especially Paul Remick's "Fancy" grade, is to pour it on pancakes. Some favorite recipes follow.

And here are some tips, garnered from experience and from Elizabeth Alston's precise directions in "Pancakes and Waffles" (HarperCollins, 1993):

- The first pancake of the day is a test. In our house, it goes to the dog.

- If you don't have an electric or built-in griddle, a heavy, cast-iron frying pan works well.

- Heat the griddle until a few drops of water flicked across skitter around before disappearing. Then grease.

- Don't over-grease. As Alston notes, making a pancake is "akin to dry baking — it is not frying." A few drops of oil on a paper towel should do the trick. Don't grease the pan in between pancakes unless needed.

- Most pancakes freeze well. Place between layers of waxed paper and keep in plastic freezer bag until ready for use. Reheat on a cookie sheet for about 5 minutes at 200 degrees.

- Have patience, and pay attention. Making pancakes while you're on the phone is almost never a good idea — although the dog may thank you for it.

Try a batch of Oatmeal-Applesauce Pancakes.

Ingredients, stirring until just blended. Then add applesauce-oatmeal mixture. Mix until blended. Batter will be very thick, thin with a little cider, milk or apple juice if desired.

Pour about 1/3 cup of batter per pancake on a lightly oiled griddle heated over medium heat. When one side is golden brown, flip and cook other side. Use a sharp metal spatula when flipping, as these are gloopy. Be patient; they are thick and take awhile to cook through. Serve immediately with maple syrup.

Yield: 12 to 14 pancakes.
Recipe adapted by Debbie Clark, Calais, Vt., from "The Betty Crocker Cookbook" (Golden Press, 1978).

BUTTERMILK PANCAKES

2 cups buttermilk (see note)
2 eggs
4 tablespoons unsalted butter, melted or vegetable oil
2 cups flour, or 1 1/2 cups flour plus 1/2 cup rolled oats or cornmeal

3 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt water, as needed, to thin batter

oil for cooking
berries or sliced bananas (optional)

In a bowl or glass quart measuring cup, combine buttermilk, eggs and melted butter (or oil) and blend well. Set aside.

In a large bowl, combine flour, sugar, baking soda and salt.

Add liquid to dry ingredients and mix until blended. If too thick, thin with water as needed. Cook on a lightly oiled griddle by the 1/4-cup. Add a handful of berries or sliced bananas, if using. Turn when underside is brown and a few bubbles appear on edges of top surface.

Note: Substitute for buttermilk: 1 1/2 cups plain yogurt thinned with 1/2 cup water, or 2 cups milk mixed with 4 teaspoons lemon juice or cider vinegar.

PEANUT BUTTER PANCAKES: Substitute 2 tablespoons peanut butter for two tablespoons of the oil.

PUMPKIN PANCAKES: Reduce buttermilk by 1/2 cup. Add 1 cup pumpkin puree to wet ingredients before mixing. Add 1 teaspoon cinnamon and 1/4 teaspoon ginger and 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg to dry ingredients.

Yield: 24 to 30 pancakes.
Recipe from "Home-Cooking Sampler," by Peggy K. Glass (Prentice Hall Press, 1989).

Giving animals aspirin is strictly for the birds

DEAR ABBY: I want you to know that your recent column warning pet owners never to give their pets aspirin saved our dog's life!

Brooke, our 11-year-old German shepherd, was quite sore after a weekend of retrieving Frisbees with my husband. I read your article in the Tacoma News on my lunch break, and told my husband about it as soon as I got home.

As it turned out, he had just given Brooke some Advil! A quick call to our vet confirmed that the dosage was toxic and could endanger her life, so we rushed Brooke to the clinic where she was given a shot to induce vomiting. We were also given a stern warning about giving our pet aspirin.

We are thankful that our dog is well, and we count your column among our blessings this week.

DEAR RICK AND KATHLEEN: I'm pleased to learn that the information was helpful. I published it because I found it alarming that over-the-counter drugs that are safe for humans can be lethal to pets.

DEAR ABBY: We have a beautiful, intelligent, 19-year-old granddaughter who is in her second year of college. Last Christmas she became engaged to a young man of 21. He's hardworking and ambitious. He gave her a diamond ring that is more than a carat and is worth about $7,500.

Our granddaughter came by a few days ago for a visit. During our visit, I asked about her boyfriend. She said she had broken the engagement but hadn't returned the ring yet.

My wife said, "I wouldn't give it back; I'd keep it."

"Wait," I said. "The ring signified a promise to marry, and she has broken the promise, therefore she should return the ring."

MUSIC CITY, U.S.A.

DEAR MUSIC CITY: I hope your beautiful, intelligent, 19-year-old granddaughter doesn't take her grandmother's advice. If the engagement is broken by either party, the lady should return the engagement ring — or she's no lady.

DEAR ABBY: After returning from a family funeral, the limousine driver who drove us sat parked in our driveway for the longest time. I guess he was waiting for me to come out and give him a tip.

Should I have tipped him? I had never hired a limousine myself, so I didn't know what to do.

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: According to Mel Goins, the owner of Ascot Limousine Service in Los Angeles, it was not necessary to tip the driver who drove you from the funeral. A gratuity (tip) had been automatically added to the cost of the service.

After bringing you home, the driver had no business parking in your driveway. Limousine drivers are paid by the hour.

Genes influence weight loss, gain

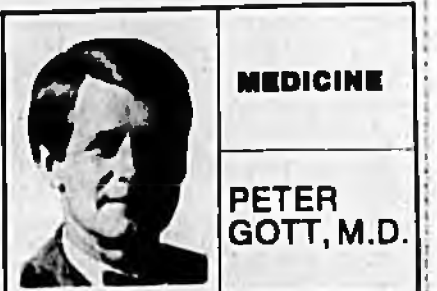

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a mother of three and have a problem with high metabolism. While most people have trouble losing weight, I have trouble gaining. One physician prescribed Pericatin that allowed me to gain from 10 to 25 pounds, but once the medication was stopped, the weight fell. I'm 5'11" and weigh about 150 pounds.

DEAR READER: At 5'11" and 150 pounds, you don't sound underweight to me. Nevertheless, if you choose to put on a few pounds, eat more. I'd advise against using any drugs for weight gain because of side effects, such as fluid retention. Obviously, you should have blood tests to check your thyroid gland, among other things, because a mildly overactive gland will increase your metabolism without causing many other symptoms, such as nervousness and rapid pulse.

Some people are what I call "burners," others are "storers." By this I mean that each of us is born with a genetic heritage that governs the way we handle calories in our diets. We adults who are blessed by inheriting genes that allow us to burn calories for energy seldom gain much weight, despite our diets. Conversely, those persons who have a genetic tendency to store calories as fat must fight an ongoing battle against obesity, even if they markedly reduce their caloric intake.

You are obviously not emaciated, so why not thank your lucky stars that you don't have to contend with being overweight? Don't be influenced by our cultural norms of thinness, as exemplified by the typical female fashion model, and our preoccupation with the slimness of youth. You're tall and have three children to keep you in shape. Enjoy what you eat (and the fact that you can eat) -- and don't get "hung up" on the weight issue. To give you more information, I am sending you free copies of my Health Reports "Calorie-Wise Cooking" and "Eating Right For a Healthy Heart." Other readers who would like copies should send $1.25 for

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

The name of today's computer package, Borel, is an acronym for Bridge Omnibus Random Experimental Laboratory. Borel is also the name of a co-author of the classic book "Theorie Mathematique du Bridge."

Available for the PC, the Borel package doesn't play bridge. It shuffles and deals the cards before checking whether the generated deal satisfies your preset parameters. If it does, the deal is saved. If not, the computer reshuffles and redeals.

Borel programs contain arithmetic logic statements. They are well explained in the excellent manual that accompanies the software. It is available for $200 from the author, John Lowenthal, at 201 West 70th Street, Apt. 32E2, New York, NY 10023.

Suppose you hold the South hand in today's diagram. East opens three hearts. Should you bid three no-trump or, as a respected writer claimed, pass? Thinking three no-trump was right, I wrote two Borel programs. First, I made East open with a disciplined pre-empt. Then I gave East an average New York three-heart opening: 13 cards and a map of Mecca.

After analyzing the deals, I found that three no-trump was the percentage action. Today's generated deal contains a simple point. Against three no-trump, West leads the heart four. How do you play?

There is a natural reaction to play low from the dummy at trick one. But that risks East's winning with the king and switching to a spade. You must rise with dummy's heart ace and immediately attack diamonds. You guarantee nine tricks: one spade, one heart, four diamonds and three clubs.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
April 1, 1993

Your desire to elevate your status in life might grow stronger and stronger with each month in the year ahead. These feelings could impel you to aim higher than you ever have in the past.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A fortunate development could happen for you today through the machinations of a close, personal friend. It may be something you'll want to share with others. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 91425, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A way to get to the end of the tunnel might present itself today in a situation you've had difficulty in finalizing. Lady Luck could play a big role in this endeavor.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

What you can't accomplish on your own today could be achieved through the assistance of friendly enterprises. It will be up to you to tap the willing volunteers.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your earning potential is quite high at this time because of your ability to enhance that which is already successful. Utilize this gift in as many ways as possible.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Successful results are indicated regarding causes or concepts you promote today. Make your own presentations; don't let others intercede on your behalf.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be logical and practical in your material affairs today, but don't ignore or treat your intuitive perceptions indifferently. Your hunches could be as bright as your thoughts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) An optimistic attitude is essential today in both your business and financial affairs. Don't only think "win," dare to think "big" also. They complement one another.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your probabilities for success are exceptionally good today.

because you have the ability to perceive opportunities that others might overlook or ignore.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Give expression to your compassionate instincts today, and put the concerns of loved ones and friends above your own. Ironically, you'll be the one who is likely to gain the most in the long run.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You are what you think you are today. If you feel you're going to be lucky, you probably will be. Put it to the test with something that you failed at previously.
