Taking blood pressure accurately

DR. GOTT

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: When someone takes your blood pressure, does it matter if the cuff is placed over a sleeve? Is it all right for the patient to talk while the pressure is being taken?

DEAR READER: Blood pressure is obtained most accurately when the cuff is applied to a bare arm. The pressure can be satisfactorily determined through a thin garment, such as silk or cotton, but the heavier the sleeve, the less accurate the reading. For example, a blood pressure taken through a wool sweater would be invalid, because in order to compress the area sufficiently to get a blood pressure reading, the cuff would have to compress the sweater as well. The resulting reading would be artificially high.

Talking during a blood-pressure determination does not affect the reading, but remember that the doctor should be concentrating on obtaining an accurate value, rather than carrying on a conversation. Also, he can't hear too well with that thing-a-majig stuck in his ears.

To give you related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Hypertension." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10158. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: How accurate are the tests that detect blood in the stool? What does blood in the stool look like?

DEAR READER: Modern tests for fecal blood are highly sensitive. They can detect small quantities of blood. In fact, they are so sensitive that they can show a positive reaction in some people who have eaten red meat the day before the stool analysis was obtained.

Bleeding from the upper intestine, including the stomach, often colors the stools black. Doctors refer to this as "tarry stool," and the description is accurate. The blood turns black because it is digested before it is expelled.

Bleeding from the lower intestine is often red. Bright-red rectal bleeding can be seen in diseases of the colon and rectum, including hemorrhoids. Sometimes the blood is a mid-range color. This is called "port-wine stool" and may reflect bleeding from the small intestine or upper colon.

Small amounts of blood are invisible to the naked eye. Tiny quantities of blood, leaking from polyps or small cancers, may become diluted by and reason, physicians now urge patients over 50 to have regular screening tests for blood in the stool. The tests are cheap, reliable, safe and easy.

An echo from the past

By Phillip Alder

In August 1975, I attended the European Bridge League Junior Camp in Ghent, Belgium, giving lectures and partnering some of the youngsters. It was a great week. There were also sports events, and I was lucky to draw Louk Verboos, from the Netherlands, in the tennis tournament. He won the trophy single-handedly. I thought he was a pro in the making, but perhaps the rigorous necessary for success on the circuit didn't appeal to him. Now he has returned to bridge, comfortably winning the Dutch Individual title last year.

Verboos scored a top on this deal, which highlights pairs bidding for the 21st century. East's sequence, Stayman followed by two hearts over two diamonds, showed a weak hand with five hearts and four or five spades. New North made an aggressive balancing double. Verboos, South, might have gambled a pass, but bid two spades despite knowing he would be in a 4-3 fit. East went for the threat. West led the spade king. After winning with dummy's ace, Verboos played a heart to his eight. West won with the queen and took his other two major-suit winners, but was now outplayed. Perhaps he should have tried a deceptive diamond jack, but he collected a low club. Verboos won with dummy's queen, played a club to his ace, ruffed a heart in the dummy, cashed his two diamond winners ending in hand, and ruffed his last heart. That was seven tricks in, and he still had the spade jack to come. Smashing!

Spring turkey quota hunt applications available soon

SANFORD - Sportsmen who want to be among the first hunters in the woods during Florida's spring turkey hunting season may need to pick up a spring turkey quota hunt application. Spring turkey applications will be available from Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission (GFC) offices and tax collectors' offices. Spring turkey applications are not available from sub-agents.

Prospective quota hunters must submit a spring turkey application to the GFC's quota hunt office in Tallahassee, Jan. 11-20. The GFC will accept applications via a postal delivery service only and will not accept any applications before Jan. 11. After the random drawing, the GFC will issue any remaining permits on a first-come, first-served basis.

Turkey hunters on most public wildlife management areas (WMAs) and private land do not need a spring turkey quota hunt permit. However, permits are required on: Andrews, Apalachicola Bradwell Unit, Big Shoals, Camp Blanding, Caravelle, Champion International, Cypress Creek, Etoniah Creek, Flying Eagle, Goethe Forest, Half Moon, Jennings Forest, Kieco, Lake George, Ocala Lake Delaney Unit, Raiford, Richloam, Richloam Baird Unit, Seminole Forest, Seminole Ranch, Tate's Hell

Womack Creek Unit, Three Lakes Prairie Lakes Unit, Tiger Bay, Toschatchee and Twin Rivers WMAs and on the Dupuis Wildlife and Environmental Area.

Polta WMA in Citrus County was added to the Type 1 WMA system too late to be included on the spring turkey application. It will be on a separate application, available at Commission (GFC) offices, with the same application period as the other spring turkey applications, Jan. 11-20.

SHUPE'S SCOOP

Bass become very lethargic in cold water in order to conserve energy. Their strike zone becomes very small and they will not expend a lot of energy while seeking food. Large bass prefer one large meal over chasing down many small tidbits.

FISHING FORECAST

Snook have lockjaw at Sebastian Inlet due to the past cold weather. Heavyweight flounder, on the other hand, are hitting finger mullet bounced slowly across the bottom. Also expect a few redfish, trout and bluefish.

Cooler weather has resulted in better fishing in the river. Bass are on the prowl and are hitting plastic worms, Rapalas, and shiners. Shiner bass and speckled perch are also picking up around the I-4 bridge and in Lake Monroe.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral has little to report due to high seas offshore. Flounder and sheepshead are hitting in the Port, while trout and redfish are slow in the Banana and Indian Rivers.

Big sheepshead are biting at Ponce Inlet. Live shrimp or fiddler crabs are top baits. Also expect plenty of bluefish, drum, redfish and a few flounder.

and newcomers Misay Quadagno and Jen Forst provided Winter Springs with a new look and a chance to go from a four win season to a state contender.

Tuesday night, the Bears extended their record to 19-2 with a 50-31 win over a scrappy Lyman team that played hard but fell into a hole and never came out.

The loss dropped the Greyhounds to 14-7.

For the Bears, it showed that they didn't have a letdown after a big win over district rival Co-coa Beach Friday, a team that had already handed the Bears, as well as Class 6A state champion Lake Mary, a loss.

"We're getting better each game," Hughes said. "We brought in a lot of new players and it took a while for everyone to understand their roles and the system but it's coming together."

It came together early against the Greyhounds. Winter Springs raced out to a 16-2 lead before Lyman started to creep back into the game. Lyman's Christy Cruz kept the Greyhounds alive with eight first-half points and Celeste Hudson had seven as Lyman but the deficit to 23-16 after a Hudson steal and jumper.

The Greyhounds had a shot at making it closer when Julia

Turner stole an inbound pass, but Lyman missed an easy shot and Winter Springs took advantage.

The Bears led 25-16 at the half and ran off to a 14-6 run to ice the game before Hughes was able to empty the bench.

Quadagno led the way with 14 points for Winter Springs and Johnston pitched in with 11 points. Hudson paced Lyman with 11 points.

Winter Springs hosts non-district rival Seminole Thursday at 7:30 p.m. and Lyman travels to Lake Howell Thursday for a 7:30 p.m. meeting with the Silver Hawks.

McGwire baseball sets record

NEW YORK - The baseball Mark McGwire hit for his 70th home run went for an astounding 2.7-million dollars at auction Tuesday night.

An anonymous phone bidder made the purchase, which will come to over $3-million after commissions and expenses.

The bid was the most ever paid for any piece of sports memorabilia and was 23-times more than the amount paid for the Babe Ruth hit for the first home run at Yankee Stadium.

Continued from Page 1B things may start to change. They are not roll models. They are not people that our children should be looking up to. They are just athletes who are way overpaid for doing something that has no redeeming social value.

The kids are the role models. They are the ones who can teach good sportsmanship, the importance of an education, how to be responsible to the community and how to respect oneself and their elders.

Wouldn't you rather have your children look up to one of these athletes than a Charles Berkeley or a Shaquille O'Neal? As far as I'm concerned, professional basketball doesn't need to come back at all. It is much more exciting to go to a local high school game or watch a college game on television any day.

These are the kids that care, that play the game the way it is supposed to be played.

Lights to be used for Rolex 24 At Daytona

Special to the Herald

DAYTONA BEACH - The 37th annual Rolex 24 At Daytona, January 30-31, will utilize Daytona International Speedway's new lighting system, marking the first time North America's premier endurance event will be conducted under night lights.

In a procedure endorsed by the USRRC race organizer, Daytona International Speedway will turn on 20 percent of the perimeter lighting just before dusk. The lights will operate at the 20 percent level throughout the night.

After choosing to use the lighting system, USRRC and Daytona International Speedway officials observed three separate tests and consulted with participating drivers and grandstand observers.

"After viewing the tests we're positive that using the lighting system for the Rolex 24 At Daytona will greatly enhance our spectators' enjoyment of the race, improve the quality of racing during the night hours and allow the USRRC's officials to operate more effectively," said Daytona International Speedway president John Graham.

A final night practice session will be conducted on Thursday, January 28 using 20 percent of the lighting.

"We welcome this bright addition to Daytona International Speedway and the Rolex 24 At Daytona," said Alan Wilson, executive director of USRRC. "The new lights are a major advance for endurance sports car racing, enhancing the Rolex 24 experience for everyone involved."

"Why not use the lights and bring sports car racing out of the dark... ages?" asked Doug Fehan, program manager, General Motors Motor-sports Chevrolet C5-R Corvette. "Especially this lighting system, which is absolutely state-of-the-art."

With a strong and probable record field of sports cars, the Rolex 24 At Daytona begins at 1 p.m. on Saturday, January 30th.

Rusty Wallace leads Daytona testing

Special to the Herald

DAYTONA BEACH - Rusty Wallace has come to Daytona International Speedway before with confidence, Tuesday he left with it.

Wallace posted the fastest lap of winter testing, touring the 2.5-mile track at 191.864 mph. Wallace's lap is the first over 191 mph during testing.

Twenty-four Ford teams with 42 cars were at the track Tuesday, the first day of a two-day Ford test for the NASCAR Winston Cup Series teams.

Wednesday is the final day of Ford testing at Daytona for the Winston Cup teams. The teams will return Feb. 5 to begin practice for Speedweeks '99. A section of the Oldfield Grandstand is open daily at no charge from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. with access through the lobby of DAYTONA USA.

"We had some really good races last season at the restrictor-plate tracks," Wallace said. "The Daytona 500 was a good race for us last year."

"Right now we've got a pretty good race car, but you always want to get a little more out of it."

Wallace finished fourth in the Daytona 500 a season ago.

Sophomore driver Jerry Nadeau was second-fastest during Tuesday's test at 191.144 mph, the only other driver to top 191.

"The first year in this business you've got to get rid of all the bugs, get out there and learn the race tracks," Nadeau said. "At the end of last season, this team really started to come together."

"We've worked really hard to come here to be competitive."

The top six speeds Wednesday were over 190 mph. Dale Jarrett, a two-time winner of the Daytona 500, was the only driver with both cars over 190 mph. Jarrett posted the third-fastest and sixth-fastest speeds Wednesday.

General Motors teams are scheduled at the track next week for their final test at Daytona.

The first weekend of the NASCAR Winston Cup season is Feb. 6-7 with Bud Pole Qualifying for the Daytona 500 and the Bud Shootout. A special Dale Earnhardt Collectible good for both days of the opening weekend is available for $95.

Curry dishes perfect for winter meals

It took me a long time to understand that the word "curry" refers not to a specific spice, but to any number of spicy dishes common to Indian and Southeast Asian cooking. "Curry powder," in fact, can include an astounding array of spices. In India, traditional cooks grind their own curries daily, but most Americans get theirs from the supermarket.

Dishes made with these pungent spices are perfect for winter. They warm you from the inside out and lend themselves to convivial eating. Side dishes — such as raitas (spiced yogurt sauces) and chutneys — and breads — like chapatis and pooris — make Indian meals such a delight.

This recipe for pork vindaloo was developed by culinary students David Rosen and Matt Gorvin; the other two dishes are from Nancie McDermott's excellent "The Curry Book."

Pork Vindaloo, served with a toasted chapati over basmati rice and garnished with cilantro.

cook, uncovered, until softened, about 4 minutes. Add the ginger and garlic and continue cooking for 4 minutes, stirring occasionally, until softened. Add the chicken pieces and cook until evenly browned, turning once or twice, about 8 minutes.

In a medium bowl, combine the curry powder, cumin, coriander, salt, pepper, yogurt and lemon juice and stir well. Scrape the mixture into the frying pan and turn the chicken and onion to combine well.

Reduce heat to low, cover the pan and simmer, turning the chicken once or twice, until it is tender and cooked through, 50 to 60 minutes.

Stir in the raisins and cashews, transfer to a serving dish, and sprinkle with sliced green onions. Serve hot or warm. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

PORK VINDALOO WITH RAITA (SPICED YOGURT) AND CACHUMBER (RELISH)

For the raita:
1/2 package (about 8 ounces) spinach, tough stems trimmed, well-rinsed
1 cup plain yogurt
juice of 1 lemon

For the cachumber:
1/2 medium yellow onion, peeled and sliced
juice of 1 lemon
1 teaspoon salt
1 medium tomato, seeded and sliced
1/2 bunch cilantro, chopped (about 1/2 cup) generous pinch pepper

For the garam masala seasoning:
2 tablespoons cumin seed
1 teaspoon coriander seed
1 teaspoon black peppercorns
1 teaspoon yellow mustard seeds
1 small dried red chili
2 whole cloves
1/2 stick cinnamon
(OR use 4 tablespoons store-bought garam masala)

For the pork:
4 tablespoons vegetable oil
1-1 1/4 pounds pork loin, cut into 2 1/2-inch pieces
2 medium onions, peeled and sliced
1 1-inch piece fresh ginger root, peeled and minced
12 garlic cloves, peeled and minced
2 jalapeno peppers, seeded and minced
2/3 cup rice-wine vinegar or cider vinegar
6 tablespoons tomato paste
2 to 3 cups basmati rice, cooked according to package directions

Note: You can make your own garam masala, or you can simply use 4 tablespoons of the store-bought kind. To make the raita: Put the spinach, with some water still clinging to it, in a large pot and cook until wilted and soft. Drain, pressing out any extra liquid. Allow to cool. Chop well and mix with the yogurt and lemon juice. Cover and refrigerate until ready to serve. To make the cachumber: In a bowl, combine the onion, lemon juice and salt and let sit for at least 5 minutes. Add the tomato, chopped cilantro and pepper and toss to combine.

To make the garam masala: Combine the cumin, coriander, peppercorns, mustard seeds, chili, cloves and cinnamon stick in a heavy-bottomed skillet and toast, stirring, over medium heat until fragrant. Grind very fine in a mortar or in a spice grinder (or very clean coffee grinder). Set aside. (OR, simply use 4 tablespoons of store-bought garam masala.)

To make the pork: In a heavy, non-stick skillet, heat 2 tablespoons of the oil. Sear the pork until brown on all sides and just cooked through (be careful not to overcook). Remove the pork and set aside.

Add the remaining 2 tablespoons oil and the onions. Cook, stirring, until beginning to color. Add the ginger, garlic, jalapeno and the seasoning (garam masala) and cook for one minute. Add the pork and any juices that have accumulated. Add the vinegar to the pan, stirring to loosen the browned food particles from the bottom. Stir in the tomato paste and cook over low heat until slightly thickened, about 3 minutes.

Serve over cooked basmati rice, with raita and cachumber in small bowls. Yield: 4 servings.

CHICKEN CURRY

4 tablespoons butter
2 medium onions, peeled and thinly sliced
1 teaspoon peeled, minced fresh ginger
1 teaspoon minced garlic
3 pounds chicken, cut into small serving pieces (thighs and legs work well)
1 tablespoon curry powder, store-bought or homemade
1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
1/2 teaspoon ground coriander
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup freshly ground pepper
2/3 cup plain yogurt
2 tablespoons freshly squeezed lemon juice
1/2 cup dark raisins
1/2 cup dry-roasted, salted cashews
3 green onions, thinly sliced crosswise

In a large skillet with a lid, heat the butter over medium-high heat until melted and bubbly. Add the onions and

CURRIED FRESH FRUIT COMPOTE

3 medium peaches (about 1-1/2 pounds) or 1 28-ounce can sliced peaches
2 medium pears (about 2 1/2 pounds) or 1 16-ounce can pear halves
2 medium apples (about 1 1/2 pounds)
1 4-ounce can pineapple chunks
10 maraschino cherries
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup light or dark brown sugar
1 tablespoon curry powder, store-bought or homemade

Preheat the oven to 375 degrees. If using fresh peaches, peel and pit them and cut them lengthwise into thick slices. If using canned, drain and discard the juice. Put them in a 13-by-9-inch baking dish.

If using fresh pears, peel and core them and cut into bite-sized chunks. If using canned, drain them, discard the juice and cut the pears into chunks. Add to the baking dish. Peel and core the apples and cut into bite-sized chunks. Add to the baking dish. Drain the pineapple chunks, reserving 1/3 cup juice for the curry sauce, and add them to the baking pan, along with maraschino cherries.

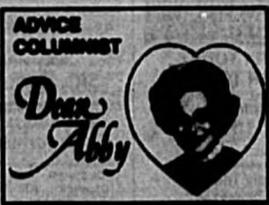

Melt the butter or margarine in a small saucepan over medium heat. Add the brown sugar, curry powder and reserved pineapple juice and cook gently until the sugar is dissolved and the sauce is smooth, about 5 minutes. Pour over the fruit and toss gently to mix well and coat the fruit.

Bake for 45 minutes, stirring once, until the sauce is bubbly and the fruit evenly colored and tender. Serve hot or warm. Yield: 6 servings.

Mom wants son's sleepovers supervised

DEAR ABBY: I need help with a family problem. My 14-year-old son and his friends enjoy sleeping over at one another's homes. Recently he spent the night at a new friend's apartment. I just discovered that the other boy's mother works all night. She left about 10 p.m., and the two boys were left on their own. I was horrified when I found out and informed my son that he may have his friend over at our home, or he can sleep at his friend's home on the condition that I speak first to a parent to be certain that an adult will be present. My son says I'm being unreasonable, and my husband sees nothing wrong with two 14-year-old boys being left alone for the night. I seem to be alone in my opinion that this is potentially dangerous. What do you think? Should I back down? WORRIED MOM IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR WORRIED: Do not back down. It's difficult to be Mom the Enforcer when your husband doesn't support you; however, I agree there should always be an adult on the premises to make responsible decisions should an emergency occur. Dad seems to have forgotten how immature 14-year-old boys can be. Reassure him.

I'll take a college or prep game any day

SANFORD - Professional basketball is back. Is that supposed to be a good thing? After all of the hoopla (no pun intended) and problems, professional basketball expects its fans to go rushing back to the arenas and welcome it back with open arms. Hopefully, opening night will be played to empty seats. Fans of the National Basketball Association should be whipped if they support the players who have made of mockery of pro sports. If they go back out to the games they deserve whatever happens in the NBA from this point forward and have actually encouraged it. Where do these so-called professional athletes get off? What makes them think that they can do things ordinary people cannot do just because they can dribble a ball and then throw it through a net? If anyone in America needs to get a real idea of what basketball is supposed to be like, he or she only needs to head out to a high school game on any week night.

That's where the true heart of the game can be found. Kids are out there every night, killing themselves for nothing except pride. And a possible chance at a college education. Sure, there are kids out there who don't give a darn about bettering themselves through lessons and homework. But they aren't the majority. They are a sad minority who will be wondering where they went wrong when they are 25 with no future.

Only a minimal percentage of kids get to go on to professional sports after college. The kids know this.

They are practicing after a full day of school, before a night of homework, just to be a part of something special.

The majority of these kids are going to college regardless of whether they play another game of basketball or not.

Then there are the guys who play in the NBA. The guys who think that they should be able to do drugs, make more money than the law should allow, break the rules that every other citizen has to follow and act like a bunch of elementary school students are the men who play in the professional basketball ranks.

Where does the whole thing go wrong? Does the break down occur when a player is good enough to be an NBA prospect? Is that when the kids stop caring about school, moral values and good judgment in exchange for the all mighty dollar?

If this is true, then the system is backwards. The kids that are out there busting it every day, studying all hours of the night and holding on to good moral judgment are the ones who should be making all of the money.

Think about it logically. Teachers, firemen, policemen and social workers are making peanuts while professional athletes are making millions of dollars a year. They make more money than they could ever spend and provide no real contribution to society.

It is disgusting to then hear these players gripe because they cannot smoke marijuana and have to work under a salary cap.

That is what every working person faces daily. Why should the rules be different for them? Because people are continuing to buy their tickets, attend their games and support their organizations, that's why.

When the public realizes that these athletes are nothing more than that, athletes. Please see Kelle, Page 2B

Bears getting acquainted

Head coach Betsy Hughes (left) has taken hold-over players like Kris Dedelow (right) and combined them with several newcomers to form a formidable group that has turned Winter Springs from a 4-23 team into a squad that improved to 19-2 Tuesday and is a threat for the Class 3A state title.

Winter Springs girls go to 19-2

By Jeff Berlinick
ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

LONGWOOD - They aren't strangers any longer. When the Winter Springs girls basketball team met at its first practice this season, the team had several newcomers and a completely different lineup than last season's team which finished 4-23 in its inaugural season.

Coach Betsy Hughes opened practice this season with a new point guard and a new rebounding specialist to go with some talented freshmen. Last year, the Bears were one of the hardest-working teams in the county but the wins and the talent weren't there.

Things changed when guard Mary Lou Johnston, a junior already being recruited nationally, transferred in from Oviedo and forward Dana Hicks came over from Lake Brantley. Kris and Bev Dedelow were holdovers from last year's struggles. Please see Bears, Page 2B

Panthers pull out a thriller

By Alex Kane

FOREST CITY - Crooms Academy defeated Forest Lake Academy in a boys' basketball thriller on Tuesday night, 61-55 in overtime.

The win came in the absence of two starters, forcing Crooms coach John Thomas to use younger players.

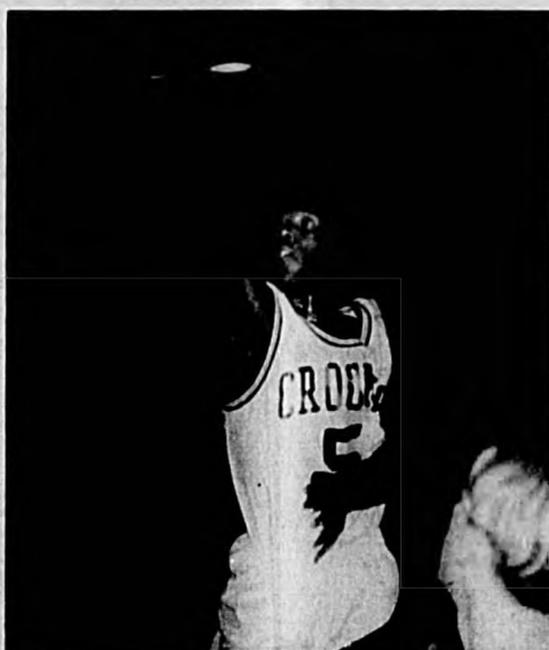

Entering the fourth quarter, Crooms trailed by four, but Thomas made the switch from a zone to a man-to-man defense which frustrated Forest Lake, and caused a number of turnovers.

"If we play like we did in the second half (against Forest Lake) I think we'll be all right," said Thomas.

Terrance Perkins, the leading scorer in Seminole County, was the man again, pouring in a game-high 50 points.

Perkins, who hit six three-pointers in the game, nailed a three-pointer which sent the game into overtime and then scored eight of the 12 points the Panthers scored in the extra period.

Crooms (5-10) will travel to Altamonte Christian School for its next game on Thursday evening at 7 p.m.

Terrance Perkins made like Michael Jordan Tuesday, hitting six three-pointers, including a "tray" that sent the game into overtime, then scored eight points of his game-high 50 points in O.T. as Crooms triumphed, 61-55.

TAAC honors Traina for the second time this year

Special to the Herald

ORLANDO - University of Central Florida men's basketball player Brad Traina was named Trans America Athletic Conference player of the week for the week of Jan. 4-11, the TAAC Media Relations Office announced Monday afternoon.

Traina, a senior from Sanford, averaged 27.3 points, 3.0 rebounds and 1.3 steals in three games last week, as UCF posted a 2-1 record.

Traina tied a school record with eight three-point baskets against Georgia State on Jan. 4th at the UCF Arena.

He also scored a season high 33 points against Campbell in Bales Creek on Thursday, Jan. 7th. In UCF's loss to Georgia State on Saturday, Jan. 9th, Traina scored a game-high 25 points.

For the week, Traina hit on 53.5% (23-43) of his shots from the field, including 53.6% (15-28) of his tries from three-point range. He was also deadly from the free throw line, making 87.5% (21-24) of his attempts from the charity stripe.

For the season, Traina is averaging a team best 19.8 points per game. He was named TAAC Player of the Week on Nov. 30 of this season. He is one of only two players to be named TAAC Player of the Week twice this season. The other is Damon Arnette of Florida Atlantic.

Traina and the Golden Knights will be in action twice this week, on Thursday against the Jacksonville Dolphins at 7:30 p.m. and against the Stetson Hatters on Saturday at 8 p.m. Both games will be in the UCF Arena and will be televised live by Sunshine Network.

SANFORD - Natoshia Fisher, Laqueena Grayson and Jamaica Mitchell scored 10 points each and the Seminole High School girls rallied for a 41-35 victory over the Oviedo Lions on Senior Night at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium Tuesday.

The Fighting Seminoles took a 12-6 lead after the first quarter and built the advantage to 20-13 at halftime.

But Oviedo came out of the lockerroom smoking and outscored Seminole 17-9 in the third quarter to take the lead, 30-29.

The Tribe righted the ship in time, however, and rallied for the victory.

"We did what it takes to win a game," said Seminole head coach Sylvester Wynn. "That's what it's all about. I'm happy where we are right now."

The Fighting Seminoles improved to 14-5 by winning their final home game of the year and will now finish the season five away games, beginning Thursday with a battle with the Bears at Winter Springs starting at 7:30 p.m.

The Lions, which got 10 points from Shannon Cotton, will be at Lake Brantley on Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

City names Sanford employee of the year

By Bill Kerns

STAFF WRITER

SANFORD Jeffrey Wall, a supervisor in the Sanford Utilities Department, has been named the city's employee of the year.

Wall, a cross connection supervisor, has worked with the city since 1979.

"He's a great employee," Sanford Mayor Larry Dale said. "He's always been thorough and concerned about safety. He has great people skills, and he's very good at what he does."

Dale said that as a developer, he has been impressed with the work Wall has done.

"He always makes himself available to people," Dale said. "What impressed me the most was the way he worked with my company. He's well liked, and he's an excellent supervisor."

Sanford Mayor Larry Dale presents a plaque to Jeffrey Wall, who was named Sanford employee of the year during a presentation at Monday's commission meeting. To the right of Wall are Paul Moore, director of utilities, and Mike Crumpton, a utilities engineer who is Wall's supervisor.

Rezoning

Students are being added to South Seminole and Milwee, while students are shifting from Indian Trails and Tuskawilla Middle Schools. The first zoning changes in August will affect about 330 students.

The majority of objections from parents in attendance at Monday's board meeting concerned shifting schools in the Oyelo and Winter Springs areas. The changes will take effect in August.

Rising seventh- and eighth-graders enrolled in a middle school, despite rezoning, if their parents provide transportation.

The Board approved moving some students from Indian Trails Middle School to South Seminole Middle School, over the objections of some parents in attendance.

Students from the Center Road area south of Lake Drive, as well as the Fisher Road and Grayhound Park area, are being shifted from Indian Trails to South Seminole Middle School.

Bill Yoder, who lives in Seville Chase, a neighborhood shifted from Indian Trails to South Seminole Middle School, objected to the change.

"At a time in our children's lives when peer relationships are so important, our children should not be shuffled around just to make projected numbers look better," Yoder said.

The Board approved shifting students south of the Lake Hodge and Lake Katherine area from South Seminole to Milwee Middle School.

Repairing the seawall is critical as the foundation for the $2.3 million Lake Monroe Riverwalk project, a lakeside multipurpose trail to be constructed by the Department of Transportation in 2001, City Manager Tony VanDerworp said.

Suspensions

students can be suspended from extracurricular activities for drinking alcohol, taking drugs, using false identification, smoking, or gambling. The policy applies 24 hours per day, on and off campus.

Moore, a sophomore will be suspended next year, the Board said. Taylor, a senior, will serve the suspension if he participates in another extracurricular activity, such as a team or a school club, later this year.

$100,000 for a technical, data-driven study of the river, said County Attorney Lonnie Groot. Groot briefed the commission on the Legislative program, which will be presented to the state's elected officials, representing Seminole, on Thursday. The study was spawned by results of the recent Wekiva Small Area Study.

Morris said he would not feel comfortable going forward with the request "without an endorsement from the environmental groups."

"We shouldn't be out there fighting without support," said Morris.

Keith Schue, of the Sierra Club, said they would prefer the request be dropped all together. Schue, Wekiva Issues Chairperson for the Sierra Club, and the other "green" groups, have led the fight against development within the river protection area. They say the current bill, adopted in 1988, protects the basin and has full support of the environmental community.

The act protects an area of 180 square miles around the Wekiva and Little Wekiva rivers.

The groups filed a notice of intent to sue the county, in September, over the proposed Astor Farms land use change. The suit, and the groups' opposition to a December meeting that would write guidelines for development in the river basin, have created an atmosphere of controversy.

In supporting Morris' motion, Henley said he wanted the groups to know "there is no hidden agenda here." The commission vote was unanimous. Morris suggested the board meet with the groups, and then send the request to Tallahassee in a couple of weeks.

Schue said he would welcome the opportunity to meet with the commission, to "gain clarification" on the intent of the new law.

value of the business operations.

County planning manager Colleen Rotela said that the county would have to spend $250,000 to demolish some existing cabins on the site and $300,000 to build a new canoe launch and provide public restrooms and a snack bar. She said the money was available out of the Natural Lands funding.

Maloy, however, insisted that Katie's Landing was worth only half the price the Monticels were asking. "$700,000 is terribly high to me," he said.

"There's other real estate we could purchase that would make more sense."

"I can't support it," Van Der Weide said.

Morris said the county was squandering a chance to do something for its citizens. "No other property is quite like this and gives access to the Wekiva."

Dick Woodson, a representative to the owners, said that Katie's Landing would be sold to someone else. He challenged the county to add the words "no access to the Wekiva" to its slogan: "Seminole County - The Natural Choice."

Fearless forecast: Watch the women

Hold the frets of a Y2K emergency. And don't lose sleep about an impeachment. The real dilemmas are right here at home.

Sanford needs a new top cop; Seminole County needs a new county manager. Which selection will come first?

The early favorite has to be Sanford.

The city wasted little time when it had to find someone to succeed manager Bill Simmons last summer. It whittled a couple hundred candidates down to a handful. The final choice was one of the county's top administrators - Tony VanDerworp.

Replacing Police Chief Joe Dillard, who is retiring, should take three to four months at the least. By that time Sanford ought to have adopted a new game plan to have its police and fire chiefs report to City Manager VanDerworp - and not to the five members of the City Commission.

The county's search for a manager won't be a walk in park. Very few folks are gladdened by Gary Kaiser's departure. His retirement - for whatever reason - is a jolt to the working ranks. They say that losing Kaiser is tougher than losing Michael Jordan.

Here's some history. Kaiser succeeded a beleaguered Ron Rabun as county manager late in 1996. Rabun's word came tumbling down in a land acquisition scandal and the resignations of several top officials. He was the county manager since 1990 - ending a 16-month search. Two other candidates turned down the job.

Trying to prove you can come home again (well, almost home) Rabun was one of the finalists for the Sanford manager's job. And he wasn't too happy that the pick was VanDerworp, who had worked under him in the county office.

Whatever method the county chooses to find a manager, it may be costly and take as long as six months. Commission Chairman Carlton Henley said he wants to get the process moving and keep it moving. Kaiser has agreed to stay on until mid-April.

Neither the Sanford nor the county search has begun, so there is no way to evaluate the two fields. The prediction here is that there may be surprises - and that one of the selections will be a woman.

Capt. Sodie Darnell from Gainesville was a finalist for the Casselberry Police Chief's job that was awarded to Marty LaBriusciano from the Seminole County Sheriff's Office. Darnell may be considered in Sanford as well.

"I know of two women who are sheriffs," said Seminole County Sheriff Dan Estinger. "One is in Georgia and the other in Tennessee. What counts is the officer's track record and performance in technical skills, dealing with people and conceptual skills," Estinger said. "Women are making great progress in law enforcement." Estinger said that women comprise 16 percent of law enforcement officers today.

The same is happening in city or county administration. Cindy Coto, who has 20 years service is No. 2 in the Seminole County Manager's office. Glenda Hood has proven a fine mayor for Orlando. Elizabeth Dale may be making a run for the presidency that her husband could not capture three years ago.

Remember the fearless forecasts: Sanford will find its police chief before Seminole County finds its manager. A woman will be awarded one if not both positions.

Identify the decisions will be made before the end of the millennium.

Chorus serenades Rotary

The Greenwood Lakes Middle School Chorus (above) entertained the Lake Mary Rotary Club at a recent meeting held at the Seminole Family YMCA. The club meets weekly, at the Courtyard Marriott in Heathrow, but President Mike McLean said he has sought out different speakers, in a different format and at different venues. The meeting at the YMCA was organized to emphasize the effort the club is making to support the facility in raising money to pay for the new gymnasium floor. The Lake Mary Rotary Club has applied for a grant to help, and McLean said of the chorus. "The grant will benefit children such as these."

Test can pinpoint causes of pollution

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

GAINESVILLE - University of Florida researchers have developed new tests to determine causes of pollution in lakes, streams, bays and underground water supplies.

Inexpensive and highly reliable, the tests combine DNA fingerprinting techniques like those used in criminal investigations with tests for antibiotic resistance.

"Until now, it has been difficult to determine if germs in water are coming from human or animal sources," said Tamplin, food safety expert with UF's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences. "Our new tests are 99.9 percent reliable in determining whether animal or human waste is causing high levels of bacteria in polluted water."

"This testing is important in communities that have been concerned about water contamination and building new sewers," Tamplin said. "People on septic tanks point the finger at farmers and wildlife as the cause of pollution, and farmers point their finger at the septic tanks."

The tests capitalize on the fact that DNA patterns of human E. coli bacteria are different from those in animals and that many E. coli in humans have become resistant to antibiotics.

"The current tests for E. coli only measure the amount of the bacteria but do not give any indication of whether it is from animals or humans," Tamplin said. "If water contains E. coli from humans, there's a potential for diseases such as salmonella and hepatitis to be present," Tamplin said. "If there are no E. coli from humans, there's little chance of the water transmitting human disease."

"Our new tests can help prioritize where to put money. We need all the tools we can get to clean up America's water."

The UF tests were used for the first time in White County in north central Indiana. The tests, which White County officials discovered on the Internet, are helping settle an argument about whether septic tanks, wildlife or pig farms are causing dangerously high E. coli counts around the Lake Shaler resort area.

Thirty-five of the 41 sites had both E. coli from both humans and animals, and the remaining six sites had E. coli only from animals. "The results indicate you can't just point one finger. Everybody is part of the problem," Tamplin said.

"The tests are a good buy," said Alan

Shookman, White County environmental health specialist. "Their total cost of $18,500 is a small price compared with the multimillion dollar projected cost of the first phase of a proposed septic tank replacement program in the county--a proposal covering 900 lakefront homes."

"The tests showed that yes, there is human involvement," he said. "We're going after both the septic tanks and agricultural runoff in our cleanup efforts."

Tamplin has a second testing project in the works. He is developing a contract with Broward County, Florida, to test the impact of dog feces in waterways.

The tests grew out of studies of bacteria that were contaminating oysters in Apalachicola Bay in North Florida. "As we got into the studies, we began to focus on E. coli because they are present in all warm-blooded animals and are a good mechanism for tracing the source of pollution," Tamplin said.

Tamplin's research team developed profiles of the E. coli found in humans and animals by testing more than 1,000 strains of the bacteria from the waters around Apalachicola Bay and comparing them with 300 samples from Rookery Bay near Naples.

"We were pleasantly surprised that the profile we developed in Apalachicola Bay matched the Rookery Bay samples and can be used in other parts of the country," Tamplin said.

The antibiotic resistance test is based on the tendency of the E. coli present in humans to mutate and become resistant to a variety of antibiotics. "If the E. coli in a sample is not resistant to antibiotics, it probably comes from animals," Tamplin said.

Another UF testing procedure using DNA fingerprinting can determine whether particular sewage treatment plants or septic tanks are responsible for a water pollution outbreak. "With this test, we can pinpoint problems to specific source, which is important when determining responsibility," Tamplin said.

"This technique is a godsend to pollution regulators," said Todd Hopkins, an environmental specialist with the Rookery Bay National Estuarine Research Reserve Program. Researchers at the 21 other National Estuarine program sites around the country were pleased when he told them of the UF research, Hopkins said. "They were excited about this breakthrough," he said. "One of the biggest problems in water pollution is our inability to pinpoint its origin."

Coto's willing to serve as interim county manager

By Russ White

STAFF WRITER

SEMINOLE COUNTY - When all the other business was concluded at Tuesday's Board of Commissioners meeting, County Manager Gary Kaiser had two items in his manager's report - one of them his resignation.

As he read a brief statement, 53-year-old Kaiser became teary-eyed.

"We could all tell from the emotion in Gary's voice that he took great pride in his job that he took to its highest level - we will miss you sorely," Commissioner Daryl McLain said.

"You go with my blessings," said Commissioner Carlton Henley, who was Kaiser's principal at Lyman High School. "It seems I've known you all my life. I thank you for the significant contributions you've made to the county."

Kaiser said he will work through April 15 - or longer if needed.

Assistant County Manager Cindy Coto said Tuesday that she would be willing to serve as an interim manager. She also said, "I will not close the door to any opportunity" when asked about the manager's job. Coto would have to move into the county if that job were offered to her.

Henley said he did not think it would be prudent to rush into a plan to find a new manager. Being that it was late Tuesday - and there had been a long debate over the purchase of Katie's Landing - he delayed making plans for the search for a manager.

"If I had known you guys were going to talk this long," Kaiser said facetiously. "I would have made my announcement in the morning."

Commissioners Grant Maloy and Dick Van Der Weide, who tried to keep Kaiser from being appointed manager two years ago, gave him short, unemotional farewells on Tuesday. "You came in at a difficult time," Maloy allowed. "I wish you the best of luck," Van Der Weide said.

"I sincerely hope we can have a consensus on the board of the manager who will lead us into the 21st century," McLain said.

European teamwork

In an unprecedented display of cooperation, eleven European nations cut their interest rates simultaneously on December 3. The move comes a month before the countries adopt the Euro as their single, shared currency. Italy reduced its benchmark rate to 3.5 percent; the others reduced theirs to 3 percent.

Crawford lauds everglades agreement

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

TALLAHASSEE - Florida Agriculture Commissioner Bob Crawford announced his support for the agreement in concept for acquisition and trade of property to be used for Everglades restoration.

"This agreement, signed by Governor Bush, representatives of the affected agricultural industry, the federal government and the South Florida Water Management District, has been reached through the committed efforts of all involved to find a solution that promotes restoration of the Everglades. This clearly shows how progress can be made when diverse interests put aside their differences and are willing to compromise for common goals. It is especially significant that these acquisitions and trades can be concluded in a manner that provides additional water storage and water quality treatment for the Everglades while allowing economically viable sugar can production to continue in the area."

"I want to extend my congratulations to those who worked so hard to make this agreement happen. It represents a significant step forward in Everglades restoration and has my full support."

Schools will be rezoned to ease crowding

By Bill Kears

STAFF WRITER

SANFORD - The Seminole County School Board approved part of its plan to rezone attendance zones to fill a new middle school near Oviedo and reduce crowding in area schools, pending a final vote later this month. The Board also scheduled a workshop to rezone attendance zones for a new elementary school near Oviedo.

The workshop for elementary school rezoning to fill an Oviedo elementary school being planned for Chapman Road is scheduled for March 25 at 7 p.m. The Board will examine new attendance zones for schools in southeast Seminole County, chairman Larry Furlong said.

"We hate rezoning," Furlong said. "I have been through this personally with my own family. If you think we like doing this, that we sit around and say 'let's drive the parents crazy,' that's not the case."

The Board delayed action on part of its middle school rezoning plan, voting to consult further with parents before shifting students from Tuskawilla Middle School to South Seminole Middle School.

More than 20 parents in attendance raised their hands in objection to the change.

Bill Johnston, a resident of Tuskawilla Forrest, said he brought 75 signatures of parents from his neighborhood who wish to keep their children zoned for Tuskawilla Middle School, instead of shifting to South Seminole.

The board said it expects to approve changes concerning Tuskawilla Middle School by the end of February. A final vote will be taken on the rest of the plan by the board on Jan. 26.

The changes are necessary to fill Lawton M. Chiles Middle School on Lockwood Boulevard, which is scheduled to open in August 2000. The changes also will help ease over-crowding in area schools, the board said. Please see Resoning, Page 4A

River study drops in priority list

By Shari Brodie

STAFF WRITER

SANFORD - A request for funding for a study of the Wekiva River has been dropped from the county's Legislative program.

"In some realms of the community, there is a lack of trust on this item," said Commissioner Randy Morris Tuesday.

Morris asked the board to drop the item back in priority until commissioners could meet with concerned environmental groups. The request was second on the list of items to be assigned to the contract lobbyist during the upcoming regular Legislative session.

The Friends of the Wekiva River, the Sierra Club Central Florida Group, the Florida Audubon Society and the Seminole Audubon Society raised objections to the request in a letter to Chairman Carlton Henley.

In the statement, the groups said: "In our opinion, this legislative initiative has been put forth not to enhance environmental protection, but rather as a vehicle driven by special interests to weaken existing Wekiva legislation, increase development densities and move the boundaries of the Wekiva (River) Protection Area."

The proposed legislation, called the Wekiva River Protection Act II, would provide Seminole officials have put an end to plans to turn Katie's Landing (shown here), on the Wekiva River, into a county park, as environmental groups fight to protect land within the river basin from further development.

County sinks deal for Katie's Landing

By Russ White

STAFF WRITER

SANFORD - Three Seminole County commissioners have barred the door on Katie - and Katie's Landing, the popular 6-acre campground and canoe launch on the Wekiva River will not become a county park.

Too expensive. The county can use its money more wisely.

These were the responses from commissioners Carlton Henley, Dick Van Der Weide and Grant Maloy on Tuesday for not wanting to spend $700,000 to buy Katie's Landing.

Owners Russ and Katie Moncrief said they were disappointed not so much for not making the sale but for the citizens of the county. "They're the ones who lose," Katie Moncrief said. "This was a good opportunity for the county. A good deal."

The Moncriefs immediately upped their asking price to $1 million.

Nancy Prine, a former president of the Friends of the Wekiva, said she and other environmentalists were very disappointed that the county did not purchase Katie's Landing. The Moncriefs had negotiated more than four years with county and state officials.

Commissioners Daryl McLain

and Randy Morris pleaded for the purchase of the site. Morris said that Katie's Landing was the only place in Seminole County along the Wekiva (often called Florida's Most Beautiful Natural Waterway) that could provide public access to the river.

"The Wekiva is one of our most treasured resources," Morris said. "We should be doing all we can to protect it."

McLain said that the county would have been able to control activities and protect the environment with its purchase. It was more than a matter of purchase money.

The Moncriefs, who operated the landing 25 years, said that they have received offers for as much as $850,000 for their property and that they expect they will receive that and more from the private sector. "We had an inquiry today," Russ Moncrief said. "There will be more." The Moncriefs said 50,000 people visit the landing each year.

County attorney Bob Riser projected estimates that Katie's Landing was worth anywhere from $600,000 to $750,000 and urged the commissioners to make the purchase. Property appraiser Bill Suber said his property assessment of $350,000 did not include the

School board upholds suspension of athletes

By Bill Kears

STAFF WRITER

SANFORD - The Seminole County School Board voted to uphold its citizenship policy Tuesday, rejecting the appeal of two Seminole High School football players who had been suspended from the team for 30 days after participating in a gathering at New Smyrna Beach on Labor Day.

In upholding the suspension, the players' parents said the policy governing the behavior of students who participate in extracurricular activity was not properly enforced and unconstitutional.

Seminole High School Principal Gretchen Schaefer suspended Lee Moore, 16, and Jeremy Taylor, 18, from the team on Sept. 9 after questioning students about a reported incident that involved drinking vodka. The students did not enter a game while the case was under appeal, although Moore already had a season-ending knee injury.

"We did uphold the policy," school board member Sandra Robinson said. "The two students possibly will serve their suspension. I'd like to commend Dr. (Ron) Fernald, the attorney, Ned Julian, and even their attorney Mr. (Howard) Martin. He made things very interesting. That's over, for now."

The 8th Circuit Court of Appeal in Daytona Beach will hear the case if the parents of Moore and Taylor decide to appeal.

Seawall needs mending, city says

By Bill Kears

STAFF WRITER

SANFORD - The city of Sanford is investigating ways to share $4.5 million in costs for needed repairs to the Lake Monroe Seawall with Seminole County and the state.

A recent study of the 80-year-old seawall on the southern shore of Lake Monroe showed a need to replace several sections, strengthen the wall's integrity, and provide continuing maintenance. The wall is jointly owned by the city, county, and state.

"It's old and deteriorating," Sanford Mayor Larry Dale said. "There's been no maintenance done on the wall for years. Some of the wall needs to be replaced."

Studies by a consultant estimate repairs to the city's portion of the wall would cost $2.5 million, while repairs to the state and county portions of the wall will cost approximately $2 million. The wall protects property in downtown Sanford and U.S. Highway 17-92 from flooding.

Dale said the St. Johns River's federal status as a historic river could help the city fund the repairs.

"The money he paid over a period of time," Dale said. "We're investigating different types of state and federal financing, such as the Heritage River Fund."

Dale said that once the wall is replaced the city would need to
