AMERICA HATED IN EUROPE, SAYS ITALIAN EDITOR

Severe Editorial Claims America Is Sowing Seed Of Vengeance And Hatred On Her Economic Policy

Rome, July 24.—(AP)—A terrible wave of mortal hatred of Americans is sweeping over old and exhausted Europe, but the Americans do not perceive it, says It Tevere in an editorial recently. (1) Tevere, meaning "The Tiger" is the organ of the extreme Fascists. "The Americans have their eyes full of figures," the paper continues; "their ears are absorbed with the clicking of adding machines. They have a knife in their sleeves, which can crush twenty Europeans. They live in a state of superb obliviousness which is astonishing and offensive."

"When we hear Senator Borah answer the austere and touching plea of the French war wounded (for revision of the war debt settlement) with the cynical and arid words: 'They have a right to protest, but the American taxpayers haven't enough money to save France,' one thinks with terror of what the divine justice must be preparing for a nation thus constituted."

GROWTH INDICATED IN TRADE SURVEY
 "The volume of freight handled in a community is always considered a good barometer of the business activity," according to J. F. Wells, Sanford commercial agent of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad.
 "The Atlantic Coast Line handled into Sanford in June of this year almost twice as much freight as in June of last year," Mr. Wells said. "And the freight handled this June was four times as much for the same month five years ago, or in June, 1921."
 "Our freight business on a whole in Florida," Mr. Wells stated, "is better this summer than it was this time last summer, when we thought we were doing so well. We anticipate a 25 per cent increase this winter, and every effort to provide adequate service is being made in advance."
The Citrus Outlook
 The citrus outlook for the Sanford section is encouraging at this time, according to Randall Chase of the Chase and Co. fruit dealers, growers and shippers of Sanford. "The quality in this section is above that of some other sections," Mr. Chase said.
 "We don't anticipate as high prices at the beginning of the new season as they were last season. California had a freeze in the winter of 1925 cutting the crop short and the people became orange hungry. This made a fine market for Florida oranges. California is said to have a big crop in prospect."
 The citrus season of 1925-26 was satisfactory, Mr. Chase stated. "Some very high prices were realized," he said, "on account of the unusual conditions prevailing at the start of the season. We had unsatisfactory prices for several weeks because of the anticipation of heavy shipments, but when this failed to materialize the prices went up."
More Plumbing Jobs
 The number of individual plumbing jobs done by the Mahoney-Walker Co., Inc., during the first six months of 1926 as compared with the corresponding period of last year show a decided increase for apartments houses and dwellings erected in Sanford, according to Howard C. Long, president.
 "Apartment houses and dwellings have increased over last year, our plumbing jobs show," Mr. Long said. "They are building better apartment houses in Sanford, and a much better grade of plumbing is being used. People are getting away from the wooden sink, and using higher grade material. Built-in bath tubs are being installed almost exclusively. There are six built-in tubs installed to one of the other type, while it was a 20 to 1 shot in favor of the old style a few years ago," he declared.
Doubles In Business
 Twice the volume of business done during the first six months of 1925 was reported for the corresponding months this year, by Albert Raffeld, owner of The Outlet, ladies' ready to wear and men's furnishing store.
 "Business at The Outlet during the first half of this year has exceeded all expectations," said Mr. Raffeld. "Our records show that we have done double the amount we did during the same months in 1925, which was considered a banner year. Conditions in Sanford are sound. The people here have money and are spending it freely."
 There is no depression in Sanford and we will continue to enjoy good business and prosperity."

Would Your Choice Be "Al" or "Cal"?

Being a good Democrat and having an honest pride in the ideals and the principles of the Democratic Party, which would you rather have as President of the United States, Al Smith, of New York, or Cal Coolidge, now of Washington?

Quite so, Mr. Coolidge is not a member of the Democratic Party at all. He was nominated and elected by Republicans and Independents, of one kind and another. But he seems to be a pretty good man. He seems to be clean and faithful, a hard worker, and an earnest lover of his country. If he and Al Smith should be placed at each end of a field and the people of New York required to divide and march toward the man they desired as a leader, what sort of folks would walk toward Coolidge and what sort would walk toward Smith?

If you should happen to get caught in the mob rushing toward Smith's end of the field you would be deafened by the noise of the pushcart vendors. You would hear a language as strange to you as though it were a foreign tongue. You would be smashed on the head now and then by a beer bottle or a good strong hat. Likely as not the crowd would be several times as dense as the one traveling decorously toward the place where Coolidge stood waiting, because, remember, this imaginary try-out we have laid is in America's foreign capital, New York City.

"Wet" Democrats throughout the country and all their side-partners will insist upon Al Smith being the standard bearer of the party in 1928. Judging from the way the primary elections have gone thus far this spring, the Republican Party is losing power. But if the Democrats nominate Mr. Coolidge to succeed himself as President, whom will the Democrats name to beat him?

If New York Democrats do not succeed in having Al Smith nominated as the Democrats' standard-bearer in the Democratic convention, they will see to it that the man who is nominated is whipped to a frazzle. They are already laying their plans to carry the convention for their man. And if they do, as we asked before, how will you vote?

Between now and the spring of 1928 there may appear a leader for the Democratic Party. But he is not in sight now so far as The Herald can see. He will have to be a man strong enough to down the Al Smith heelers, and at the same time the sort of man who will win the support of the independent voters in sufficient numbers to out-vote Republicans and pro-liquor Democrats.

Fortunately the number of independent voters is constantly growing. Men are thinking more about principles and leadership qualifications than they are about the name of the organization backing a candidate. The South is even beginning to wonder what it gets out of being "Solid." Between Al Smith, so-called Democrat, and Cal Coolidge, clear-cut Republican, The Herald honestly believes that the choice of clean Democrats everywhere would go to Coolidge. Obviously it is time for political organizations to do considerable thinking.

"Disconcerting Facts" Can Be Blessings

"Such disconcerting facts make you think about the day when your earning ability will not be so great as now." That sentence leaps out with a challenge to thought. It is taken from an advertisement of one of Florida's great banking institutions, an advertisement calling attention to the need of planning a safe way to lay something by for the time when old age or lessened ability to earn money stops a man's income.

"The more you earn," says the advertisement, "the more you seem to spend. With every increase in your income there seems to be an equal increase in your outgo. Or every time you put money in this or that venture recommended by a friend or acquaintance, does something go wrong, leaving you nothing?"

Following that paragraph comes the sentence with which this writing opens. "Disconcerting facts," without a doubt, but they seem to be the only kind of facts that cause some people to stop to consider what sort of provision they are making for themselves and their dependents when "easy money" is no longer in reach.

This is a day of liberal wages. Nearly every man and woman who are drawing salaries could curtail expenses and put aside a little more than they are saving now out of their wages. Nearly every man and woman who have incomes of any sort could find ways of being happy on less expenditure and could be insuring themselves against want, and perhaps suffering, that come to those who go into their sunset years without means to pay their way.

Too many of us regard our earning ability as something that is to last forever. We seem to acquire the idea that money will always be easy to get. We take a chance at this or that, cheerfully accept our disappointments and our losses, in the thought that we shall soon earn enough from salaries or gain enough through profits to put the amount we lost back to our credit in the bank. But it doesn't always happen that way. It is a risky business not to have a steadily growing sum that we regard as "trust money" that must not be touched until there is no possible way to pay our living expenses without it.

Out of your income, then, how much are you laying by? Have you a safe plan for providing yourself and your dependents with financial independence in that time when you will no longer be earning good wages?

It is fine to have a good time as you go along. Money freely spent, happy-go-lucky days, liberal living—all that can be had when money comes easy. But a little hard sense applied to our day's program is a most excellent thing. The man who does not arrange to save something, the man who does not put aside something for the inevitable time when he can no longer earn his way is a pitiable creature. He is greatly in need of missionary aid like that found in these sensible advertisements from reliable bankers.

Take stock of what you are doing with your money. See where you can curtail expenses and increase your savings. Do it today.

Bandits, Coked Up, Chicago Gets the Fight. The Rio-Nag-er, France, and the Fraud. BY ARTHUR DRIBBAND (Copyright 1924, by Star) YESTERDAY SIX bandits held up a jewelry shop in New York, shot a clerk, killed the owner, before he died, the owner dragged the dead man to their car, made sure he was dead, and threw him out on a crowded thoroughfare farther on.

A FEW minutes later five bandits held up an Italian bank, shot one clerk and ran when another clerk opened fire.

Police say the same gang, minus one man killed, did the second "job."

"They were coked up," the police say, meaning that they were made reckless by cocaine. Drugs play a part in our crime wave.

CHICAGO WILL have the big Dempsey-Tunney heavyweight on September 11. The "gate" is expected to be $2,000,000. Dempsey will get $400,000, Tunney, win or lose, $150,000, and sweet charity gets $100,000. Mr. Rickard who has brains, gets the rest minus expenses.

NEW YORK is supposed to be writhing in jealousy of Chicago. Some New York officials are writing grimly. Chicago has taken their bread and butter.

One hundred thousand dollars for sweet charity, is supposed to pacify fussy citizens who say that no prize fight should be allowed even if it does yield $2,000,000.

SCIENTISTS ARE interested in a long legged little creature, whose father was a wild horse of Tibet, his mother a wild ass. This is the first appearance of such a "cross." Scientists call it a "Ki-nag-er," and it is the beginning and end of its dynasty. Being a mule, it can never have children.

To such mixtures nature sets a limit. "Thus far shalt thou go, and no farther."

OUR ANCESTORS believed in all sorts of "crosses," half animal half man, but we know better. The Minotaur living on the Island of Crete, devouring youths and virgins sent from Greece as a tribute, was believed to have a human mother, Pasiphae, sister of Circe, and for father a bull, sent by Neptune.

These, according to legend, killed the minotaur. Science has killed that nonsense. Nature keeps separate her many strange species of animals.

ALE THE World is watching France and the frame. American travelers are insulted on the streets of Paris, and American newspapers cry "Shame on America," and on "Uncle Shylock," because America requests part payment of its debt.

These hostilities will not last, and perhaps they will teach the United States, when the next European war begins, to follow Japan's example, take what it wants in its own neighborhood, and keep its men and its money at home. You will never be liked by those that owe you money, especially if they can't, or don't want to pay.

ITALY'S PACIFIST government believes it isn't the French people or the French government that has failed, but the parliamentary system of government. Mussolini looks upon parliament as a harmful interference with the will and the usefulness of one strong man.

Many expect the strong man to appear in France. He has appeared there often, in Napoleon's day for instance, but didn't make conditions much better.

A REAL man died Wednesday at the age of 80, W. A. Roebing, who built the Brooklyn bridge.

This good American, of German ancestry, fought in the civil war, and, succeeding his father, John A. Roebing, became one of the great and useful builders of the United States.

Our stupid immigration laws prevent such men from coming to this country now, to organize industry and give employment to thousands. We need them.

BEVERIDGE, OF Indiana, says Coolidge will be re-nominated by acclamation in 1928, and re-elected overwhelmingly. Very likely, but that has nothing to do with re-electing senators who voted to push this country into the world court.

France, Britain and their associate governments would outvote the United States in that court 10 to 1. And their favorite name for this country is "Uncle Shylock."

THE GRUMBLE SEAT

HUNGRY AMID PLENTY

BY BRUNO LESSING

An interesting line of Francois Villon. A man sits beside the fountain's edge. Villon expressed clearly and forcibly a thought which, has arisen, at some time or other, in every human being's mind. Like a string on a harp you can play upon this thought endlessly, always obtaining a different melody. But the tune is monotonously the same. You want something. You behold others possessing what you want. But you cannot obtain it for yourself. It is sad. And, the same time, it is comical. It all depends upon your humor and your point of view.

A man is alone in a strange town. He would like to meet a nice girl and spend the evening with her. He sees other men walking the streets, eating in restaurants or sitting in theatres, each with a girl at his side. But he knows none and can find none.

At the same time there are hundreds of charming girls, alone in the same town, who wish for nothing more than the companionship of a nice man for an evening. Yet the "twain don't meet."

A man whose business takes him from town to town in this country may find himself unhappy because he cannot obtain a highball or a glass of beer. He knows that every farmer's field is become a port of entry, and planes cross boundaries and scan adjacent nations at will. Radio, as well, knows no international boundary, and carries the news of the necessity of an international language, and thus international thinking.

The man who shortens the distance between two nations increases their understanding in like proportion, and decreases their likelihood for misunderstanding. He who can make common a travel between New York and London, which will accomplish the distance regularly in a day's space will do more for humanity and the brotherhood of man than all the treaties and all the sermons that have ever been or will be written.

He who can arrange international broadcasting of international programs will bring the world to a complete understanding. And eventually there will be a United States of the World.

Author Of Film Play Tells How He Came To Write North Story

"Mantrap," Paramount's latest production, which comes to the Milane on Monday, was written by Sinclair Lewis, author of "Main Street," "Babbitt" and "Arrowsmith." In a recent interview, Mr. Lewis on returning from Canada, said:

"It struck me up there in what is particularly known as God's country that no person at all literate could stay very long without wanting to write a book."

"While I read a good deal in the Northwest I didn't write a word, nor make any notes; but I returned with every personality I had met etched in my mind, brimful over with the color of what I had seen and lived."

"It's a new departure for me, and one I like—a straight, out-and-out romance of an unspoiled country. For me it is the most enthralling love and adventure story I have ever conceived or told. I'm willing to let my reputation rest on 'Mantrap.'"

Ernest Torrence and Percy Marmont are featured in "Mantrap," Victor Fleming directed from Adelaide Heilbron's adaptation.
