Jobs There For

NEW YORK (UPI) - Job prospects for the college class of 1980 - particularly engineering graduates - are good despite the recession, with hiring by campus recruiters up as much as 1 ercent from last year.

Combined reports from the College Placement Council and the Frank Endicott Survey said Monday that about 670 private firms who recruit senior tudents signed up 8 to 10 percent more The hiring increase, however, had been expected to be higher. The same firms last fall projected a 13 percent rise in the number of jobs. The projections were off 3 to 5 percent.

But jobs for engineers, as predicted were up 21 percent over last year, due mainly to stepped up activity in fields of transportation, defense and energy. Other shoo-ins on the hiring front include computer whizzes, science and business graduates, the two reports said. Starting salaries in these high-demand fields are around $20,000 a year. By contrast, first paychecks for liberal arts graduates, who may have to "hustle and show flexibility," are pegged at around $13,000 a year. "The more conservative hiring attitude probably reflects concern about current economic uncertainties," said the College Placement Council based in Bethlehem, Pa., and checker of 550 of the

Prime Rate Falls

NEW YORK (UPI) - A small New York city bank today cut its prime rate by a full point to 1112 percent, foreshadowing what some analysts think will be another decline in the key lending rate by major institutions. UMB Bank and Trust Co., a subsidiary of Israel's United Mizrahi Bank, announced its reduction' was effective immediately. The bank recently has been a maverick in trimming the rate charged on loans to its most creditworthy corporate customers.

On Middle East Situation

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Carter and King Hussein of Jordan are talking to each other again, but neither side expects the 18-month strain in their relations to disappear overnight.

The king and Queen Nur were to be given an official ceremonial welcome upon their arrival at the White House and then go immediately to the Oval Office for a meeting with President Carter.

Hussein, who is in sharp disagreement with Carter's Camp David framework for Middle East peace, accepted an invitation to come to Washington for two days of talks.

U.S. officials said they do not expect him to drop his opposition to the Egyptian-Israeli negotiations on Palestinian autonomy, nor is Carter expected to pick up Hussein's suggestions for a new set of negotiations.

U.N. Group Denied Return

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) - Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh has ruled out a return of the U.N. Commission on Iran, dashing hopes of the world body's securing the release of the 53 American hostages, now in their 227th day of captivity.

In a further sign of the power struggle going on in Iran, the commander of the Islamic Revolutionary Guard, Abu Sharif, resigned complaining of conflicting factions in the paramilitary force, the official Pars news agency reported late Monday.

Abu Sharif, considered a supporter of President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, announced his resignation in a letter carried by the agency, but it was not clear if the letter was addressed to Bani-Sadr and if the president accepted the resignation.

'Palimony' Request Nixed FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) - Saying "hyperbole is the language of lovers," a judge denied Monday Rosemary "Pinky" Lepera's request for $6 million in "palimony" payments from Avon cosmetics heir A. Douglas Henderson with whom she lived for four years.

But Circuit Judge Miette K. Burnstein ruled that palimony is 'a viable option under Florida law for unmarried couples living together as husband and wife." And she awarded Mrs. Lepera $167,000 in payments to pay off her partnership claims against Henderson.

The judge conceded that Henderson may have promised Mrs. Lepera, "I will provide for you and I will take care of you But Judge Burnstein said, "Hyperbole is the language of lovers. Adults have to view such language as momentarily expressive of intense and immediate emotion and desire.... "What a pallor the courts would cast on courtship if they were able to hold otherwise," the judge said. Court records indicated Mrs. Lepera, 40, met Henderson, 38, in October 1971 when she was employed at a restaurant he owned in Fort Lauderdale. The two began living together in an apartment in nearby Pompano Beach a few months later. In May 1972, the documents indicated, the couple and her two children moved to a farm in northwest Broward County. The following year she persuaded him to turn the farm into a thoroughbred horse breeding and training operation. The resulting Marablue Farms was soon expanded with another breeding farm at Ocala, Fla., and a third in Vermont. WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Supreme Court has cleared the way for the patenting of new life forms created in the laboratory - a ruling some scientists say will encourage research, but which opponents warn could lead to corporate ownership of life itself.

In a 5-4 decision, the court Monday extended patent law protection to man-made life forms, including recombinant DNA or gene splicing.

Reagan Must Gain Public's Confidence

Unlike the bitterly divided Democrats, the Republicans head toward their convention next month in Detroit united as seldom before. In winning the nomination Ronald Reagan left few wounds, and besides, his differences with George Bush were more of style than of substance. Instead of exacerbating party differences, as some feared, Gov. Reagan has served as a unifying force. Now he is intensifying this cooperative effort with non-Reaganites, most notably former President Gerald Ford, the titular head of the

Reagan's immediate challenge is to translate his primary campaign achievement into a victorious national coalition. It is one thing to galvanize support and votes within a party of increasingly conservative coloration. It is something else — considering that less than 30 percent of U.S. voters are registered Republicans - to win sufficient strength from the American people to unseat an incumbent president. Reagan's great task, then, is to broaden his

Inasmuch as public appeal begins with confidence. Reagan is summoned now to provide that requirement. And much confidence hinges on his vice presidential nominee. Reagan's age has created extraordinary interest in his choice of a running mate. To the degree the GOP vice presidential nominee complements Reagan and is qualified by ability and experience to be president of the United States, to-that degree will Reagan gain public confidence and broaden his own appeal. And to the extent that presidential qualities are lacking in a running mate, to that degree will the Reagan presidential bid be jeopardized.

Perhaps the next most pressing public concern about Reagan is his lack of focus on foreign affairs, about which the American people are now overwrought because of the hostage crisis in Iran and the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Lack of experience makes Reagan particularly vulnerable on international issues. The American people, not to say U.S. allies, would be reassured, therefore, if he would surround himself with respected foreign policy advisers. It is important to know to whom he is listening. Moreover, he should not long delay spelling out comprehensive foreign policy positions. The time, in short, has come for Reagan to define his alternatives to the Carter administration's incoherent foreign policy in more than cue card cliches.

And there are serious domestic problems, primarily in the economic sector, that must be intelligently addressed in terms more precise than simply advocating tax cuts.

Unless Reagan converts public doubt about his leadership into public confidence, as he fortunately has every chance of doing, the majority of Americans voting in November could conclude that incompetent incumbents are lesser evils than incompetent newcomers with neither experience nor alternatives.

Public confidence in the Social Security system. already undermined by desperation increased in the payroll tax that funds benefit payments, is further eroded by the "Son of Sam" fiasco. A New York City newspaper has reported that convicted killer David Berkowitz is receiving disability payments of more than $300 a month under the Social Security program. Government officials said the payments had

The "Alarm Clock of the Year" award for 1980 goes to pro golfer Steve Balesteros. If you watched the second round of the U.S. Open you saw the young Spaniard leave the first tee scratching his head after missing his tee-off time and earning an immediate disqualification from the tournament. Nicklaus wins the "Nerves of Steel" award for hanging on for four rounds in a tournament that didn't boast many spectacular shots, but did boast probably the highest tension level for four rounds of golf in quite some time.

The 1980 "Disguise of the Year" award goes to California Angels. Manager Jim Fregosi, who after being ejected from a recent game even before it started, was found lurking in the Angels' dugout in a trenchcoat-Columbo style disguise and was ejected again. It's great to see a fellow 130-pounder play the course up to par with some of the game's best long-ball hitters. It proves once again it isn't how hard you hit the little white frustrator, but how and where you hit it.

Wonder if Reggie was psyched up for his dear old buddy Billy? Finally the "I've Seen Better Days" award goes to ABC's Jim McKay.

Once regarded as one of the smooth and suretongued sports announcers on the tube, especially when it came to big assignments like the Olympics, McKay seems to have lost his touch, looks unsure and rather frazzled at times. He did a poor job at the Winter Olympics and also seemed shaky handling the U.S. Open. Maybe ABC should stop milking him for every sports event going and give the guy a long vacation. When he's on, McKay is a true professional. But he hasn't been on much lately.

Violence Hurting Turkey

Item: The United States has signed a new pact with an old ally.

A five-year Agreement for Cooperation on Defense and Economy concluded in March updates an association that has endured through ups and downs - mostly the latter of late - through three postwar decades. It provides for the usual U.S. military assistance to Turkey and U.S. military facilities in Turkey, plus measures to shore up the sagging Turkish economy, without which the country could very rapidly be in no position to cooperate with anyone. Item: Amnesty International charges that torture has become "widespread and systematic" under martial law that has been in effect in much of Turkey since 1978 in an effort to surpress widespread political and religious unrest and violence. It has become routine, according to the organization that keeps a vigilant eye on basic human rights around the world, to subject detainees of the police and military It might appear that there is no connection between the two developments other than that both focus on Turkey. But there is. For one thing, the domestic disarray that necessitated the strong counparticularly its economic provisions." Turkey has been, in fact, in a state of victims and industry is slowing to a halt. Sixteen nations have put together a $1.6 billion aid package and the United States is already committed to $452 million in military and economic assistance during the 1981

And for another thing, the two news items point up a basic problem of the United States in doing political business around the world. All too frequently a logical partner for political and strategic purposes is also an mbarrassing one on moral grounds.

Turkey in that respect is by no means the worst of the lot, past or present. There was, of course, the Iran of the shah, a particularly intimate association that the present authorities - if that is the word for them - in Tehran are not about to forget or allow us to. There was also the decades-long accommodation of the Somoza dictatorship in Nicaragua. And there is the continuing uneasy tie with a South Korea apparently congenitally unable to kick the military a sea of mediocrity known as the Atlanta Braves. After six years of playing for one of baseball's best teams, the New York Yankees, Chambliss finds himself on one of the worst. Yet, it has only served to better demonstrate the consistency of the hard-hitting first baseman, whose talents were overshadowed by others on the Yankees.

Chambliss, easily the most consistent performer on the Braves this season, got four hits and drove in five runs Monday night to lead his team to a 6-3 victory over the St. Louis Car-

"I would have done just as well this year with the Yankees if I'd been playing every day," said Chambliss matter-of-factly. "Last year I hit in every spot except first and ninth and that's hard to do. Here, I've been playing every day and hitting third. I've got nothing to prove to the Yankees. ## Gritty Garland Trips White Sox

By United Press International

The last three years have been very trying ones for Marcu Wayne Garland. "I'm going to give more thought to this victory than any other one I've ever had," said Cleaveland harler Garland Monday night after pitching his first complete game since June 13, 1979, — a 5-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox. "Things are looking better than in the past," Garland continued, "but it's a long season ahead."

Since 1978, when the righthander underwent rotator cuff surgery on his pitching shoulder, his major-league career has been marred with frustration after frustration. In the last two seasons, the 20-game winner for the Orioles in 1976 who signed as a free agent for $2 million with the Indians after that season, has won six and lost 13. "It was good to go out and pitch nine innings," said Garland who was 13-19 during his one healthy season with Cleveland in 1977. "I was not relaxed in the first three innings. I was trying to establish my breaking pitches and not throw many fastballs. "In the fourth, I got more relaxed and mixed up my fastball with my other pitches," he said. "I felt strong and had good

Yankees 6, Mariners 3 Tommy John became the American League's first ninegame winner and Graig Nettles homered and knocked in three runs

Rangers 6, Royals 3 Texas collected eight singles in the ninth inning to post its victory. The Rangers scored all six of their runs after two were out, with Richie Zisk, Rusty Staub, Jim Norris, Jim Sundberg, Tucker Ashford and Pat Putnam each poking RBI singles.

Liquor-License Limit Faces Veto It is anticipated that Seminole's increased population, to be Herald Staff Writer certified by 1981, will provide for 37 new licenses to be issued

Legislation designed to cut the number of liquor licenses which are to be available in Seminole County following the certification of the census in 1981 will be vetoed by Gov. Bob State Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, said today he was notified by the governor Tuesday of Graham's intent to veto

The local legislation sponsored by the Seminole County League of Civic Associations and supported by the Seminole County Legislative delegation would have changed the allocation method for liquor licenses locally.

State law permits one license to be issued for each 2,500 residents in the county. The special legislation would have changed that formula to one license for each 4,000 residents.

Brantley said today the governor told him it is totally against the philosophy of the Graham administration to limit competition. Graham tracked down Brantley in Lake County, where Brantley had a number of speaking engagements Tuesday, to inform the legislator of his intentions. Graham said that no such limitation of the free enterprise system has become law since he took office nearly two years ago.

Although some other counties in Florida have legislation similar to the League of Civic Association's proposal, most was adopted during Graham's predecessor's terms in office. Brantley said he received a number of communications from constituents in Tallahassee during the recently ended session

The Seminole County Commission and all the city governments in the county with the lone exception of Lake Mary endorsed the legislation to limit the number of new liquor

Sanford May Cut Property Taxes

Knowles Submits Budget

Sanford City Manager Warren E. Knowles sent to the individual city commissioners today his proposed budget of $4.02 million for fiscal 1981. calling for a cut in property taxes while retaining current refuse, water and sewer rates at their current level in the new year to begin October 1. In the overview of the detailed budget proposal, Knowles tells com-using the $380,730 which the city expects to receive from federal revenue sharing funds in the new year. - Personnel costs in the budget are at the current levels. Knowles is suggesting a 9.5 percent cost of living increase for employees plus a factor to

Carter: Hussein Has Role

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Carter, winding up talks today with King Hussein, says Jordan cannot avoid playing a central role in future Middle East peace talks. Carter told reporters at a state dinner Tuesday night in honor of Hussein their talks had been "much better" than he expected. He said the Camp David accord "envisions Jordan playing a role in the West Bank" autonomy negotiations. Hussein sounded the same note as he downplayed differences with Carter over the peace negotiations, saying, "I don't think there are differences - only differences in the approach to solve the problems. We're very happy to be here. "Jordan will indeed play a central role in the realization of the hopes and dreams of all who want peace and stability and freedom and security in the Middle East" because of Hussein's

leadership and Jordan's location, Carter said in toasting Hussein. "It is true that we may have di ferences in approach but we respect your dedication to the cause of peace in our part of the world. It's a dedication we share," Hussein said in response.

"We look into the future with hope with determination, to contribute our full share for the establishment of a just and durable peace in the Middle East which will affect not only those who live there, but future generations there and elsewhere in the world."

Court Grants Dog Reprieve

Richard Avanzino, the SPCA director who vowed to go to prison rather than allow Sido's death, stood outside the courthouse Tuesday with 3,000 petitions of support from people across the country and said he was "elated." "This is a great day for Sido and all of us who love her," he said, bearning.

To show her appreciation, the 10-yearold collie-sheltie showed up on the courthouse steps, wagging her tail and licking Avanzino's hand. Sido had lived for eight years with Mary Murphy, a widow. Mrs. Murphy left instructions in her will that upon her death Sido, rather than suffer from loneliness, was to be put to sleep. Mrs. Murphy died from an overdose of sleeping pills last December.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, which took custody of the female dog, refused, however, to carry out the woman's wishes and was sued by the will's executor. Spurred by an outpouring of public
