YOUR BIRTHDAY

April 1979. Be sure to explore all avenues of opportunity, no matter how remote their possibilities appear. Something unusual, holding big promise, could unexpectedly develop this coming year.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)

You get your throw in the towel today wait a bit longer and keep trying. There is a good chance events will suddenly reverse themselves in your favor.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21)

You don't want to play it solo today, and you may push too hard trying to find people to rub your wrong way.

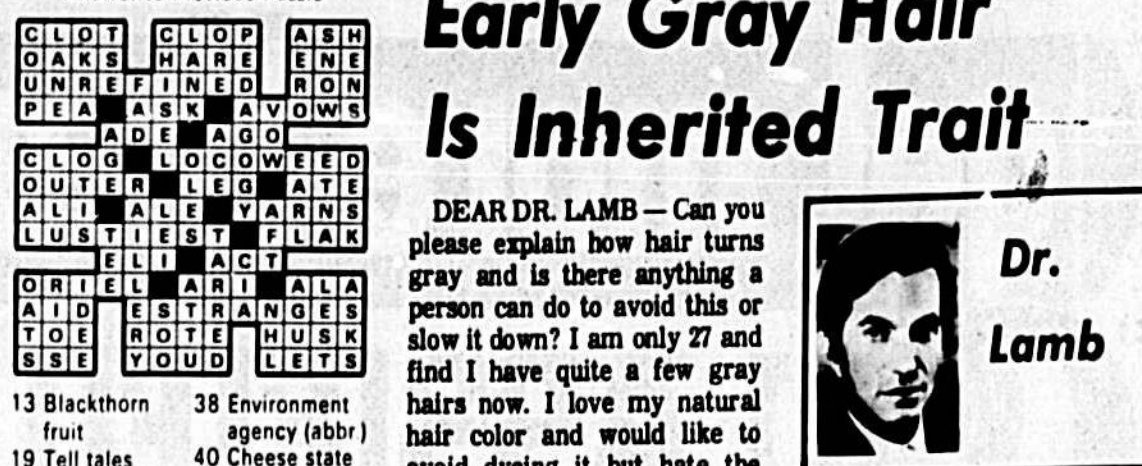

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

Yesterday we saw a declaver refuse three fines because he didn't want to risk giving the defenders a chance to ruff something.

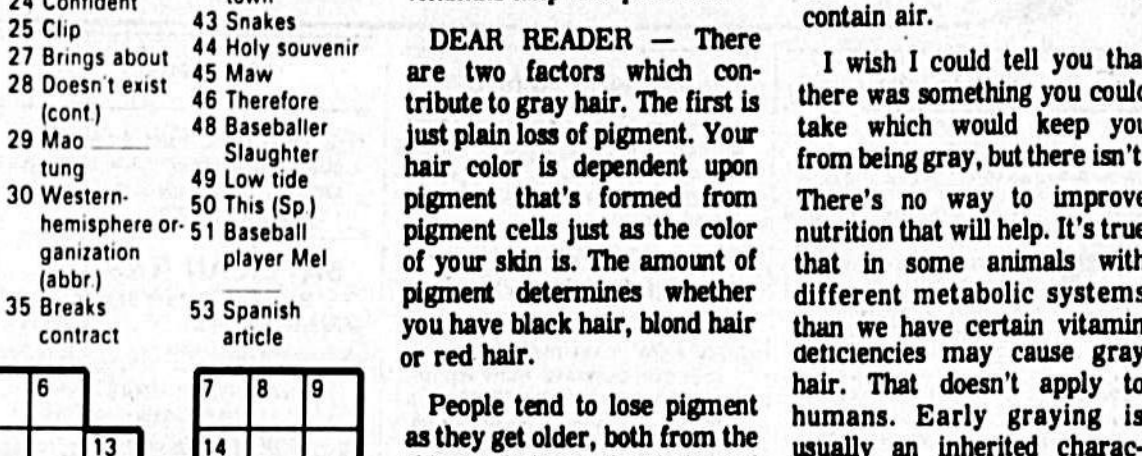

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

Just because someone is a friend doesn't mean you have to lend them something you know they may never return.

Early Gray Hair Is Inherited Trait

DEAR DR. LAMB—Can you please explain how hair turns gray and is there anything a person can do to avoid this? I am only 27 and find I have quite a few gray hairs now. I love my natural hair color and would like to avoid dying it, but hate the gray hairs. Could certain vitamins help this problem?

DEAR READER—There are two factors which contribute to gray hair. The first is just plain loss of pigment. Your hair color is dependent upon pigment that's formed from pigment cells just as the color of your skin is. The amount of pigment determines whether you have black hair, blond hair or red hair.

People tend to lose pigment as they get older, both from the skin and from the hair. Of course, there is a great individual variation in this. As you probably know, some people, when they get older, develop little brown spots or freckling on their faces in other areas of the skin. This represents a change in the function of the pigment cells which is to be expected in some people.

The same thing happens to hair as it gets older. The scales coming off the scalp contain air.

I wish I could tell you that there was something you could take which would keep you from being gray, but there isn't. There's no way to improve nutrition that will help. It's true that in some animals with different metabolic systems than we have certain vitamin deficiencies may cause gray hair. That doesn't apply to humans. Early graying is usually an inherited characteristic.

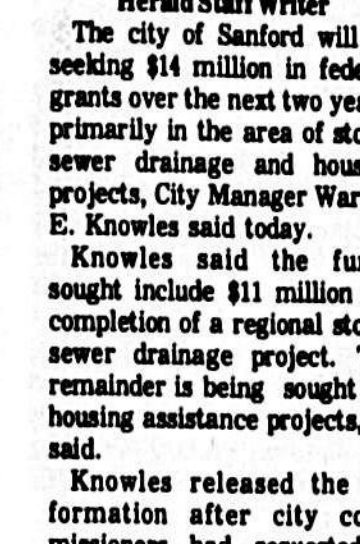

DEAR DR. LAMB—Will a woman enjoy sex after having a hysterectomy with her sex organs being removed?

DEAR READER—It may depend on whom she is having sex. That's not a totally facetious answer. Whether you enjoy sex or not has to do with your emotional and mental attitude. Some women do not enjoy sex after a hysterectomy and sometimes they did not enjoy it before a hysterectomy either.

You see a comparable thing in men. Some men don't enjoy sex, or avoid it, after a completely satisfactory recovery from a heart attack. So there is no specific answer but I can tell you that anatomically and as far as sensory nerves are concerned, there is no reason why you cannot continue to enjoy a full and satisfying sex relationship.

Message: Not A Moment Too Soon

Traumatized by Vietnam and mesmerized by the soothing promise of detente with the Soviet Union, the American people seemed to shrink from the burdens of world leadership during much of this decade. Faced now with the ominous consequences of this passivity, Americans may again be prepared to accept a more active role in international affairs.

A recent news poll found a majority of Americans distressed over the nation's seeming weakness. A commanding 71 percent favored efforts to "influence events in other countries if U.S. interests are involved."

Contrast this with the isolationist climate of public opinion just half-a-decade ago. Congressional attacks on the Pentagon budget helped weaken this country's bargaining position during negotiations with the Soviet Union on the first strategic arms limitation agreements. And isolationist sentiment short-circuited any hope of contesting the Soviet-Cuban takeover of Angola as well as an effective response to North Vietnam's massive violation of the Paris peace agreement in 1975.

Communist victories in Vietnam and Angola only encouraged further Soviet expansion in Africa and the Middle East.

Indeed, former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is reliably reported to have said privately that his job was to negotiate the best terms possible with the Soviet Union, given the insufficient resolve of the American people to stay the course in frustrating Moscow's global ambitions.

But now, the collapse of a pro-Western regime in Iran and the increasing vulnerability of Persian Gulf oil supplies required by Japan, Western Europe and the United States have jolted the American people. U.S. public opinion is beginning to adjust to tough international realities. And a major reason for President Carter's low standing in the polls is a widespread perception of his weakness in protecting the United States and its allies.

That is the implied message in the news poll. What the country needs now is political leadership capable of forging this public sentiment into a stronger foreign policy.

President Carter's dispatch of a carrier task force to the waters off the Persian Gulf and the administration pledges to use military force if necessary to protect Saudi Arabia's oil is one indication that Washington is getting the message. If so, it comes not a moment too soon.

Common Sense

President Carter had some success last year in his campaign to cut through the federal rules and regulations that add an estimated $10 billion annually to consumer costs.

Partial deregulation of the airlines was accomplished, leading to dramatic reductions in fares and innovations in service.

Now he is taking aim at others of the "80 separate regulatory agencies... issuing 7,000 new rules every year" that he found when he arrived at the White House more than two years ago.

The focus this year, he said, would be on legislation to deregulate railroads, trains and buses, streamline controls over hospitals, and to improve monitoring of drugs.

The Carter call for "common sense" in returning the "burdening mass of paperwork, bureaucracy and delay" will win the approval of the consumer who bears the burden of regulation's by-products—loss of productivity and increased inflation.

ANGLE-WALTERS Poll Viewer Beware

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The only thing in life as certain as death and taxes is the existence, somewhere or other, of a poll purporting to measure public opinion about both.

No aspect of modern living, so corner of the American psyche is safe these days from the probing curiosity of the professional pulse-takers.

The pollsters are everywhere, and they're ready and able to prove anything you'd like them to. As the old adage goes, figures don't lie but liars sure can figure.

In President Carter looking for public support for the administration's forthcoming Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty with the Soviets? That he shall find it — in polls by CBS and the New York Times (63 percent in favor) and by NBC and Associated Press (81 percent support).

Do opponents of a DALT-II treaty question such responses? Well, for courses they do — and why not, when a survey by George Fife Research, Inc. shows only 30 percent of the public in favor of such a pact?

Should Congress adopt tougher gun control laws? One would think so, judging from Gallup and National Opinion Research Center polls which have shown, for nearly two decades, that upwards of two-thirds of the public favors such a move.

But then again, why be hasty? A new Decision Making Information survey shows an identical two-thirds majority opposed to additional gun controls.

The examples could go on indefinitely. For every poll producing a majority opinion in favor of something, another can be found to yield exactly the opposite result.

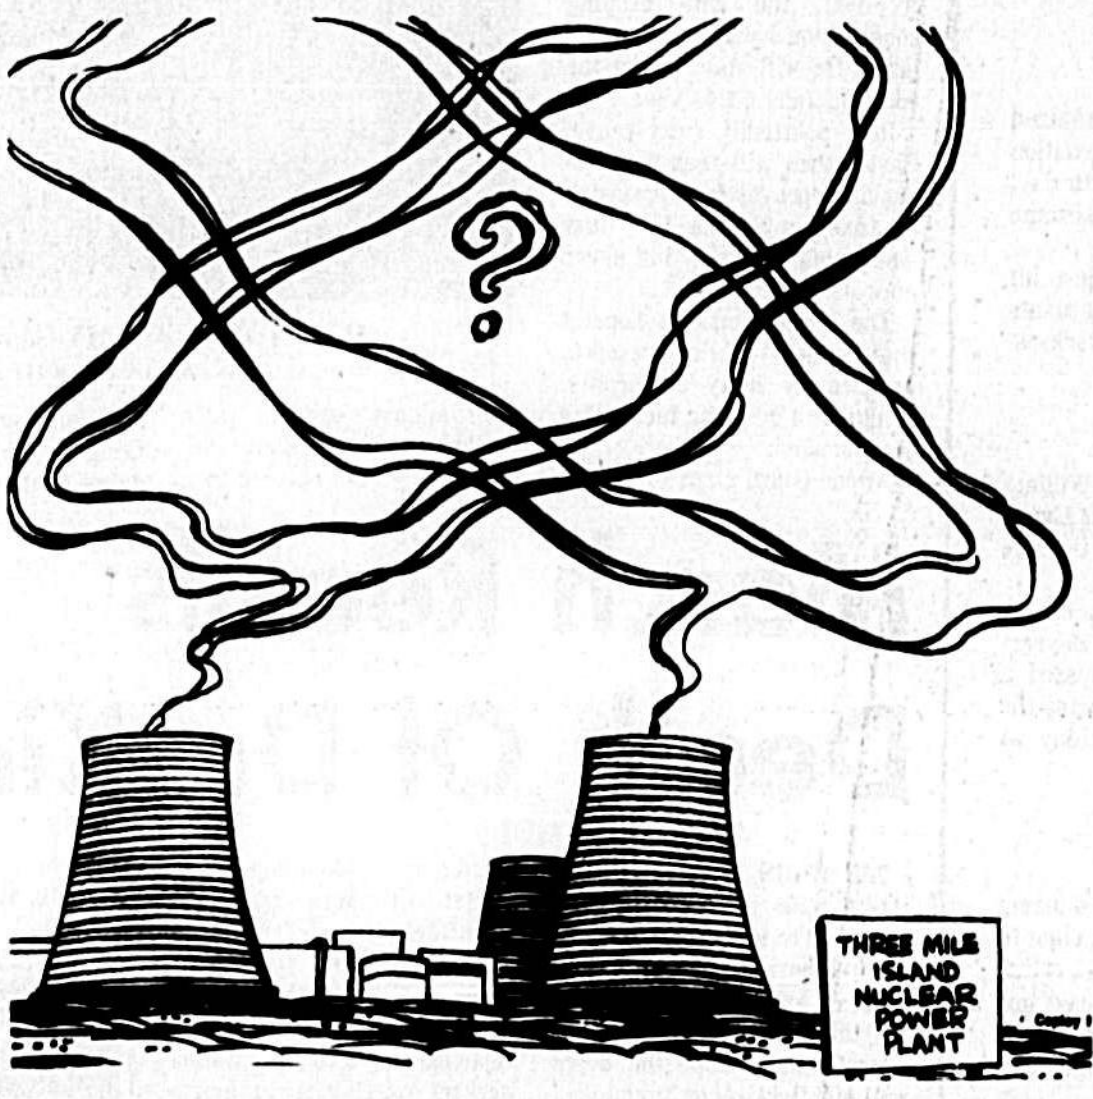

Politicians, who are past masters of the art of manipulating words to produce a desired response from their audience, should be the first to recognize myriad ways in which poll questions can be rigged to yield a particular response. Instead, they swallow the results without so much as a grain of salt and happily regurgitate those which buttress their own biases.

Opinion research, notwithstanding the claims of its practitioners, is far from an exact science. While it is indeed possible to select a statistically sound sample that is representative of the population as a whole, it takes more than a fair sample to produce a good poll.

As responsible pollsters will readily acknowledge, the wording of survey questions and the order in which they are presented can drastically alter the response elicited.

Opinion polls make delightful reading for politicians, businessmen and indeed the general public. But let the reader beware: Polls, like computers, suffer extensively from the "GIGO" syndrome — Garbage In, Garbage Out.

Jack Anderson

Home Front Thunder

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When the history of modern warfare is written, it almost certainly will include a chapter on the mounting ability of U.S. military bases to withstand attack — by the Pentagon.

The Defense Department, from all reports, has enough firepower to wipe out enemy installations anywhere on earth. But when it tries to eliminate its own facilities, the department frequently encounters insurmountable resistance.

Just last week, in an economy move, the Pentagon announced plans to close or downgrade 187 bases, for a projected saving of $84 million a year.

Already, it appears, the offensive is in trouble. Military analysts are predicting that some of the installations on the list can hold out almost indefinitely.

For reasons of national security, I am not in a position to reveal how these strongholds have become so impregnable.

As a theoretical exercise, however, let us examine the Alamo-like stand of the 198th Bersaible Battalion located at Fort Meade.

Toward that end, an interview with Sen. Bernard Boswell, an leading authority on military appropriations, might be instructive.

Q. Senator Boswell, you have been in the forefront of the congressional move to reduce government spending. Do you think the federal budget will be cut and balance the federal budget? You must have been briefed by the proposed military base shutdowns.

A. If you are talking about base closings that will bring the federal deficit under control, I am in favor of that. It is vital that the United States retain a conventional warfare capability.

A. Geography is nothing to do with it. As long as I am a member of the military appropriations subcommittee, I shall do everything in my power to see that funds are available to protect our cities from strafing attacks by the Red Baron.

Q. Would the fact that Fort Meade is in your home state have any influence on your judgment?

A. Geography is nothing to do with it. As long as I am a member of the military appropriations subcommittee, I shall do everything in my power to see that funds are available to protect our cities from strafing attacks by the Red Baron.

RONALD REAGAN Health Care Proposals

"The administration is attempting to lead the country down the path of piecemeal health reform that has failed in the past and already threatens to bankrupt the health care system."

If you find it hard to believe that his sober words on the effects of increased government inferences on health care costs was uttered by Sen. Edward Kennedy, so did I.

The senator registered this warning, along with his "serious disappointment," upon learning that President Carter has opted for a gradual socialization of our health care system instead of Kennedy's own sudden socialization. What the administration has proposed is "Phase One" of its eventual goal, a compulsory national health plan. If the administration has its way, "Phase One" will begin in 1983 at a cost of $104.4 billion. This program would be aimed at making "significant improvements" in care for the poor and the aged, and would provide insurance for those who are said to be inadequately protected from the costs of catastrophic illnesses.

But Sen. Kennedy isn't satisfied with spending an additional $10 billion on a limited program. "Now" is the rallying cry, as the senator travels far and wide to promote his plan. The administration's principal spokesman on the health issue, HEW Secretary Callano, counters by explaining that Congress will only accept a "condition" plan such as the one proposed by Carter.

Presumably, an administration that calls a "budget" with a $92 billion deficit "clean and costless" can dole out a new $11 billion spending program as "cautious" without setting off a riot.

This is not the first time that the Messrs. Carter and Kennedy have skirmished over the health care issue. But it is important to keep in mind that they have never fought over whether there should be compulsory national health insurance — only about when and how it should be implemented.

The philosophical compatibility of the two on this question raises the possibility that the president and the senator are allowing their political rivalry within the Democratic Party to spill over into an important public policy debate which could determine the future health of — or lack of — the American health care system.

Last in the squabbling over who is to win the credit for proposing compulsory health care is the fact that the fact that eight out of ten Americans favor such a program, but that 90 percent are already covered by private health insurance. Also lost in the Kennedy-Carter health care scuffle is a lesson that we should have learned in our experience with Medicare and Medicaid — once you unleash programs such as these you might as well throw all your original cost estimates out the window.

In 1963 and 1964, proponents of Medicare testified before the House Ways and Means committee, and their estimates of the program's costs were based on the basis of the decision to go ahead with it. For one thing, the experts predicted that hospitalization costs paid for by the federal government under the provisions of Medicare would reach nearly $2 billion by 1979. Instead, those costs will actually reach $30 billion or 10 times the original estimate.

Q. You are talking about base closings that will bring the federal deficit under control, I am in favor of that. It is vital that the United States retain a conventional warfare capability.

A. Geography is nothing to do with it. As long as I am a member of the military appropriations subcommittee, I shall do everything in my power to see that funds are available to protect our cities from strafing attacks by the Red Baron.

Student Round-Up

Elementary schools are preparing for their spring round-up of new students who will be entering kindergarten or first grade for the first time. Kindergarten students who attended public schools in Seminole County this year are automatically enrolled for first grade next year. Those with different dates for these pre-registration programs since the Seminole County Health Department usually has representatives present to answer questions on immunization.

The round-up is basically to furnish parents with information and forms needed for enrollment. Parents will be informed that requirements include proof of birth date, immunization record and a medical doctor's signed form, proving a recent physical examination.

Health Coordinator, Marion Sell, warned that students who were admitted this year to kindergarten on a medical exemption with incomplete immunization must have an updated form in order to attend first grade.

If parents are unable to attend the round-up program, they should go to the school any day following the round-up date for registration of their child. It is necessary for the children to accompany the parents.

Scheduled round-up dates and times are as follows:

Massive Revision Plan Proposed

Legislature's First Target: Workmen's Compensation

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Legislative leaders are determined not to let the season's usual politics jeopardize a bill cutting Florida's workmen's compensation rates — fifth highest in the country.

The Senate went to work on the opening day of the 1979 session Tuesday and passed 36-4 a massive revision of state laws regulating on-the-job injury insurance.

The Senate "wage loss" proposal is supposed to cut rates 21 to 28 percent, and the modified House plan, 15 percent.

Speaker Hyatt Brown scheduled his plan for an appropriations committee hearing Thursday and action by the full House Friday.

Holdouts File $ Statements

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — The last two Sunshine Amendment holdouts in the Senate — Dempsey Barron and Jack Gordon — filed their financial disclosure statements Tuesday, revealing neither was as rich as most people thought.

Barron, a Panama City rancher, claimed a net worth of $650,000 at the end of 1977, dispelling the popular belief he is a multimillionaire.

Gordon, the president of the Washington Federal Savings and Loan Association in Miami Beach, claimed a net worth of $2.02 million at the end of 1977. Some Miamians had guessed he was worth as much as $60 million.

Barron, chairman of the rules committee, and Gordon, head of the ways and means committee, filed their financial reports on the opening day of the 1979 Legislature.

Defense Cuts Proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Budget Committee proposes to cut nearly $3 billion from President Carter's 1980 defense budget.

Beginning a week of consideration of the fiscal 1980 federal budget Tuesday, the committee voted tentatively to approve $13.3 billion in defense budget authority — some of which would be spent in later years — compared to Carter's request of $18.2 billion.

Democratic members of the panel had voted in a caucus last week for a $4 billion cut, but the full committee, on a 14-0 vote, with Republicans and moderate Democrats joining forces, restored $1.1 billion of that reduction.

AREA DEATHS

MRS. RUTH GALLAGHER. Mrs. Ruth Henderson Gallagher, 72, of No. 1, box 189, Sanford, died Monday at her residence here in Mimsville, Va. She moved to Sanford in 1960 from Williamsburg, Va. She was a member of the husband's Episcopal Church.

MRS. MALORIE D. PAUL. Mrs. Malorie D. (Happy) Paul, 64, of 699 Helen Road, Sanford, died Monday at Florida Hospital, Alamosa. She was born in Millwood, Ga. and had been a resident of Lake Mary and Sanford since 1955.

Under the wage loss concept, benefits for so-called "permanent, partial disabilities" would be limited to medical bills and lost salary unless the worker was unable to return to his old job at the same pay when the injury healed.

Under current law, workers with partial disabilities get paid for medical bills and lost wages and also get a payment based on the degree of their disability or "impairment."

A House-Senate committee conducting an eight-month study of Florida's workmen's compensation system concluded those impairment payments were responsible for the skyhigh premiums. The House committee rejected wage loss 10-7 last month. Sadowski, with the backing of Brown and Majority Leader Sam Bell, moved to resurrect it after a staff analysis showed the plan adopted by his committee reducing premiums by less than 5 percent.

"I'm encouraged, I really am," said Ocala Sen. Kenneth Mackay, chairman of the House-Senate committee which recommended the wage loss approach.

The Senate accepted the Mackay plan virtually intact. It did reject a provision transferring the Bureau of Workmen's Compensation from the Department of Labor to the Department of Insurance and beefing up the agency, but reversed itself later.

The Senate bill requires employees suing workmen's compensation insurance companies to pay their own legal fees, except when insurers denied claims "in bad faith." Insurers pay 75 percent of the legal fees now.

It forces insurance companies to cut workmen's compensation rates at least 21 percent by June 30. Mackay believes the savings will be as high as 26 percent. Florida employers paid out $778 million in premiums last year.

Winter Springs Accepts Paving Bid

The Winter Springs City Council voted unanimously Tuesday night to accept a $551,726 bid from the Dalton Construction Co. for paving and drainage improvements to streets in sections 2 and 2A of the Ranchlands.

The actual construction costs of the project. He said the total cost, including construction, engineering, surveying, and interest payments on the bonds, will be "about $500,000."

It was earlier thought that the project would cost an estimated $600,000. In a motion that was approved by council, Arnold suggested the city "go for the $600,000 anyway" and use the surplus funds for the paving of two sections of North and South Edgemoor. An engineering firm has estimated that the cost of

Cook Of The Week

Friends In Show Biz' Enjoy Mary's Cooking

By ELDA NICHOLS Herald Correspondent. Mary Thomas of Altamonte Springs, says she enjoys Mary's cooking.

Recipes used by Mary are generally given to her by friends or are clipped from newspapers and magazines.

"I've found it's simple to prepare a full meal in the oven, even vegetables. Squash is delicious, and other vegetables aren't waterlogged when you cook them in the oven. Slow cooking a pot roast, at 250 degrees, in the oven, makes it just perfect. Add a package of onion soup mix, seasonings, and wrap in foil. It always comes out good and this is an especially easy way to prepare a Sunday dinner while you're in church," she said.

Accustomed to lots of company, Mary and her husband, Tommy, entertain many famous musicians who visit or perform in the area. Tommy, a famed drummer and drum teacher and author of several drum tympans books, has many friends in the entertainment field, and they all enjoy Mary's cooking.

Recipes used by Mary are generally given to her by friends or are clipped from newspapers and magazines. "I only have one cookbook, and that's the 'Francis Pope Cookbook.' It's really a good one," she said.

As parents of two grown daughters, Noni and Mary, they are also parents of their two adopted grandchildren, Bryan, in seventh grade, and Tabatha in fourth. Noni, one of their daughters, works for the House of Bryant Songwriters, and was seen on TV recently during an interview, while Mary is a model.

Mary encourages Bryan and Tabatha in their tries at cooking. "Bryan makes this Magic Bar recipe, and they turn out great," she said.

SOCK-IT-TO-ME CAKE 1 pkg. Duncan Hines

Butter Recipe Golden Cake Mix 1 cup (8 oz.) dairy sour cream 1/2 cup Crisco Oil 1/2 cup sugar 1/2 cup water 4 eggs

Filling: 1 cup chopped pecans, 2 tbsp. brown sugar, 2 tsp. cinnamon. Preheat oven to 375 degrees. In a large bowl blend cake mix, sour cream, oil, 1/2 cup sugar, water and eggs. Beat at high speed for 2 min. Four two-thirds of batter in greased and floured 10-in. tube pan. Combine filling ingredients and sprinkle over batter in pan. Spread remaining batter evenly over filling mixture. Bake at 375 degrees for 45-55 min., until cake springs back when touched lightly. Cool right side up for about 30 min., then remove from pan. Glaze: blend 1 cup confectioners sugar and 2 tbsp. milk. Drizzle over cake. APRICOT SLICES 1/2 lb. of butter or

Mix together and beat absolutely 20 min. on medium speed. Use greased loaf pan. Put in cool oven for 1 hour and 5 min., at 350 degrees.

CHERRY DESSERT 1 can cherry pie filling 1 can Eagle Brand milk 1 chunk pineapple (drained) 20 oz. can 1 cup pecan bits 1/2 cup Cool Whip. Mix in order and refrigerate.

MAGIC BARS 1/2 cup butter or margarine 1/2 cups graham cracker crumbs 1/2 cups coconut 1 cup chocolate chips 1 cup (14 oz.) Eagle Brand Milk

Put butter in 13 x 9 pan and melt in oven. Remove and sprinkle crumbs over the bottom of pan, press down with fork. Layer the remaining ingredients. Drizzle the condensed milk over entire surface. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 min. Cool and cut into bars.

Hot Dots Could Have Saved Son's Life

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the man who seriously injured a boy on a bike struck home with me. (He said he didn't even see the lad until after he hit him since it was dark, the boy was wearing dark clothes and had no lights on his bike.)

Abby, that's exactly what happened to our son — only he was killed instantly. We live in New Hampshire, and a few years ago they started giving the kids in all the elementary schools packets of reflector buttons (called "Hot Dots"). They're about the size of a quarter, have sticky backs and can be attached to clothing, books, bikes — anything a kid wears or carries. These Hot

DEAR MOM: I checked out the Hot Dot Safety program and learned that since Gov. Meldrum Thomas Jr. initiated it in 1974, New Hampshire's child pedestrian death toll has been cut 80 percent. But Hot Dots are not for children only. Adults, especially older folks, should use them on their coats, hats, shoes and umbrellas. DEAR ABBY: This is in reference to the 12-year-old boy who was struck by a car while riding his bike in the dark without lights. Twelve years ago Ted did the same thing. Fortunately, he was not hurt, but his bike was badly damaged. The next day, the man who hit him came to

DEAR KATHY: That one imperfection is probably the most revealing clue to your boyfriend's character. His word is no good. If a man's word is no good, he is nothing. And a girl who gets herself involved with a guy like that is headed for misery. The word from here is: "lose him."

In Seminole County OSOTA-Union Rift May End Bus Service

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

A dispute that began a year ago between the Orange-Seminole Occoala Transportation Authority (OSOTA) and the Amalgamated Transit Union could wind up ending bus service in Seminole County.

Because of the dispute last year when striking OSOTA bus drivers, who were union members, were replaced by new employees who walked across the picket line, the union has gone to the U.S. Department of Labor challenging a $600,000 operating grant to the authority and the money is being held up, according to Pat Hamric, authority general manager.

Hamric said he and other OSOTA personnel will be meeting with Department of Labor representatives in Washington next Tuesday. He said today he is "cautiously optimistic" the conference will result in the money being released by that federal department after facts in the matter are explained.

Hamric said after new employees were hired to replace the strikers last year, OSOTA on June 29 notified the union it would no longer be recognized as a bargaining agent for the new drivers. He said OSOTA offered to abide by a vote of the employees on the matter, but the union did not call for a vote.

He said the union now is insisting to the Department of Labor that it still represents the employees and is urging the federal agency to hold up the money.

Meanwhile, the Seminole County Commission representative on the authority, Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff said he will explain to his colleagues on the commission next Tuesday that several alternatives are available on the bus service. The budgeted funding for the authority will be exhausted by May 1 if the federal money is not released by then, Kirchhoff said.

"If the federal money does cease, we will have to re-evaluate what we are going to do," Kirchhoff said, detailing the alternatives available to Seminole County. "We will have to decide whether to discontinue service altogether, whether we will institute the service on a limited basis—for example in the early morning and late afternoon hours for working people dependent upon the transportation," Kirchhoff said.

It will depend a lot on Orange County, he said. Orange County is to decide next week what measures it will take if the federal money is not released.

Seminole County currently has four bus lines in service, Kirchhoff explained, adding one of those bus services is an Orange County one extending into South Seminole County. The other three — two in Sanford and one in the south end — are funded by Seminole County on a 50-50 matching funds basis with Seminole County paying $2,000 annually and the federal government contributing an identical amount.

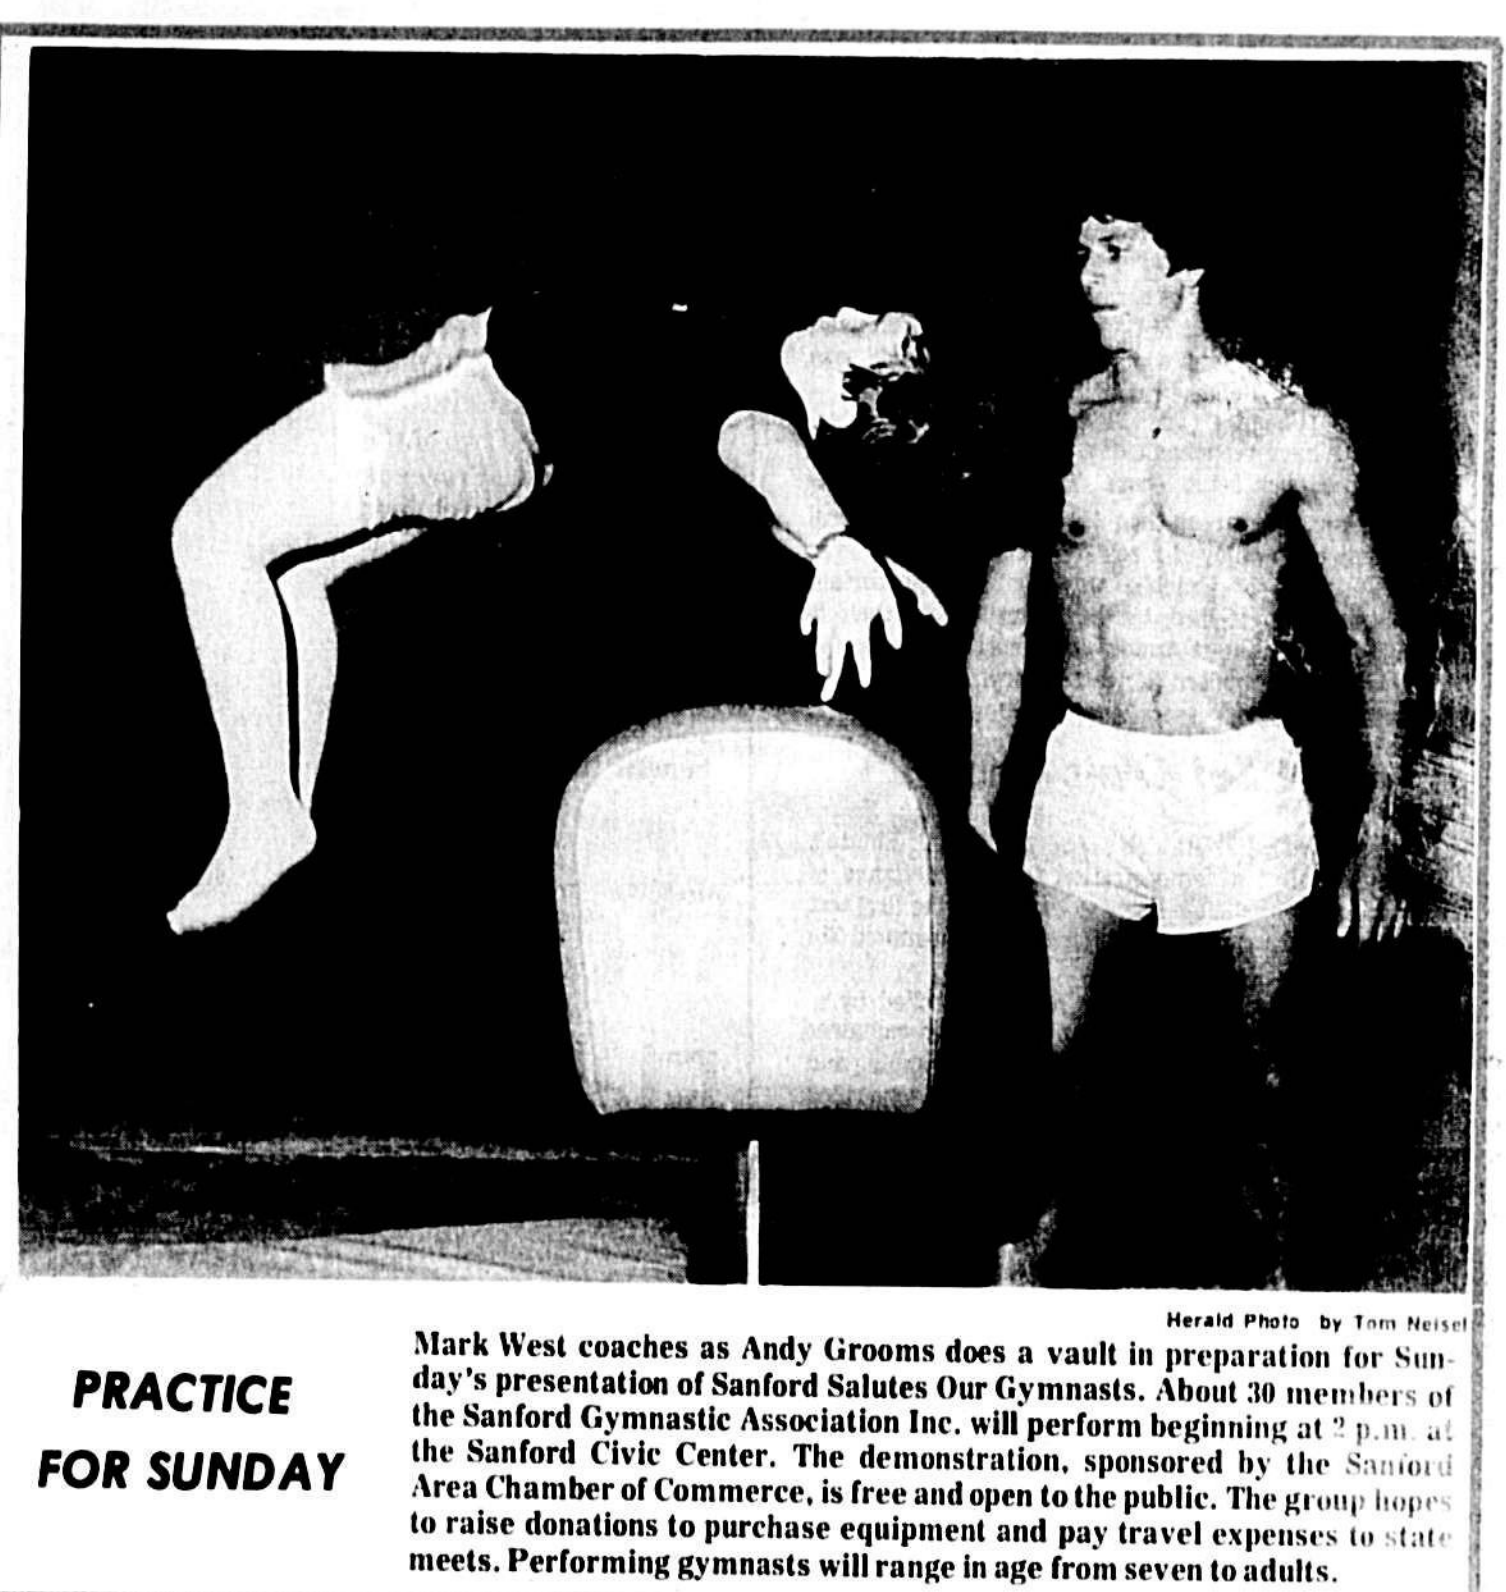

Kirchhoff said he will inform his colleagues on the county commission of the situation next Tuesday and "ask them what they want to do." He said after the Seminole commission and Orange commission separate meetings, OSOTA is to meet and make a decision.

"Hopefully the problem will be resolved by May 1. If not the federal money will be cut off," Kirchhoff said.

Bus service has been provided to the south end of the county for the past four years by the Authority. The Sanford service began on Dec. 4, 1978. During the Christmas season the service was well-received by patrons in the Sanford area that service was expanded from five days to six days per week.

The Seminole County bus runs have charged 50 cents with special rates during certain times to senior citizens.

Recently, the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce committee expressed concern that only about 150 persons in the Sanford area are riding the buses each day.

PRACTICE FOR SUNDAY

Mark West coaches as Andy Grooms does a vault in preparation for Sunday's presentation of Sanford Salutes Our Gymnasts. About 30 members of the Sanford Gymnastic Association Inc. will perform beginning at 2 p.m. at the Sanford Civic Center. The demonstration, sponsored by the Sanford Area Chamber of Commerce, is free and open to the public. The group hopes to raise donations to purchase equipment and pay travel expenses to state meets. Performing gymnasts will range in age from seven to adults.

Power Blackout Sweeps State, Parts Of Seminole

A power outage which blacked out much of south Florida sent creeping darkness into portions of Seminole and Volusia counties early this morning.

Scott Burns of the Sanford Florida Power and Light Company office said about 2,000 homes in the Sanford area were without electricity for 15 minutes just after midnight when the Colony Avenue substation on Highway 46 shut down. No emergencies were reported during the blackout by area law enforcement officials.

About 17,400 Florida Power Corporation customers between Orlando and Deland were without power for periods of four minutes up to an hour as a result of the outage, an FPC spokesman said.

There are nine power substations in the Orlando-Deland area that were affected, Tracy Smith of the FPC office in St. Petersburg said this morning. "The shutdown of the stations occurred at 11:57 p.m. and power was restored gradually," Smith said.

Smith said the power stations shut down automatically when the transmission lines experienced a low frequency situation. He said the problem was caused by a dust and salt spray buildup on the insulators of high power transmission lines which caused electricity to begin spilling down the poles and shorting out the lines.

When the transmission lines shorted, three FPL generating plants at Turkey Point in south Dade County had nowhere to send their electricity and, automatically, shut down, Smith said. The loss of the three plants caused a disruption to other portions of the Florida power grid served by both FPC and FPL, according to Smith.

The three power plants involved were two old-fired plants, No. 1 and No. 2, and a nuclear-powered plant, No. 4. The other Turkey Point nuclear plant is shut down for refueling.

Broward and other counties were affected immediately by the blackout, which spread northward darkening homes like a moving shadow. In Fort Lauderdale and West Palm Beach power was out for an hour and emergency switchboards were activated at police stations along the Gold Coast.

But, Not Mayor Floyd Seminole Council Aims To Appoint Energy Panel

Delegates to the Council of Local Governments in Seminole County agreed Wednesday night to go back to their respective governmental units seeking recommendations for appointments to a new committee being formed by the county commission on energy.

But, one delegate — Mayor Norman Floyd of Altamonte Springs — said he has no intention of recommending anyone for the post. "The committee would be a duplication to expand the energy crisis hoop-de-doo," he said.

"I'm not going to name anyone to run up and down the street to harass service station owners," Floyd said.

The county commission, this week, agreed to name a committee on energy — a fuel allocation committee — to act only in case of an energy emergency, after receiving a mandate for the committee from Gov. Bob Graham's office.

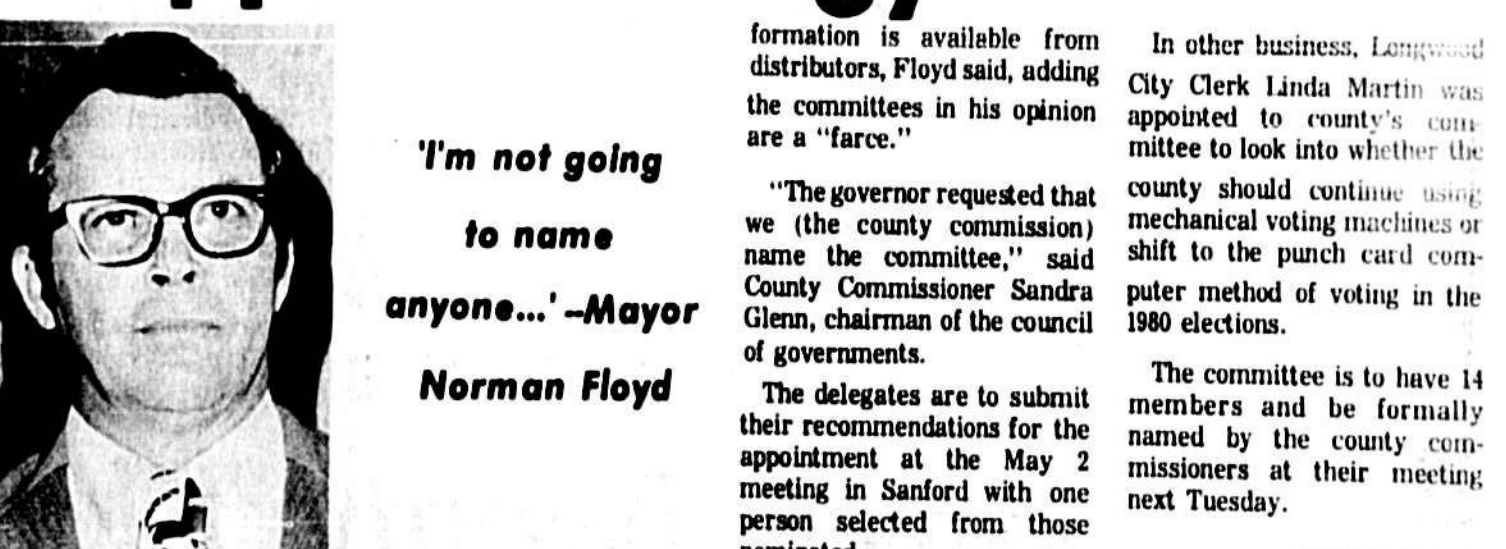

The composition of the committee suggested by Graham's office are representatives of the various segments of the energy industry such as power companies, fuel distributors, wholesalers and retailers and government. The commission agreed a representative from the Council of Local Governments, which has as its members six of the seven cities in the county and the county commission, would designate one member of the committee.

Floyd said, however, he is a member of a regional energy committee which is also supposed to go into action during an energy emergency and a local committee would be a duplication. He added that instructions from Tallahassee on the functions of the committee doesn't know what it is supposed to do and has not been successful in trying to find out from service station owners what their monthly fuel allocations are. That information is available from distributors, Floyd said, adding the committee in his opinion are a "farce."

"The county requested that we (the county commission) name the committee," said County Commissioner Sandra Glenn, chairman of the council of governments.

The delegates are to submit their recommendations for the appointment at the May 2 meeting in Sanford with one person selected from those nominated.

Sanford Considered As Possible Site For Proposed Handicapped Workshop

By SHARON CARBARCO
Herald Staff Writer

A non-profit organization hopes to establish a workshop in Seminole County for physically disabled and mentally retarded adults and has selected Sanford as a possible site.

Patrick Murray, director of the Kathleen Anderson Comprehensive Work Center Inc., said he knows of 200 adults in the county who would be served by the workshop. Sixty percent of the adults reside in the Sanford area, Murray said.

To accomplish this goal, Murray said the organization will approach the Seminole County Board of Commissioners and the school board for funds to supplement various state and federal grants it plans to apply for. Funds also will be sought from private organizations such as the Central Florida Funds bookkeeper whose task is to gain community support for the workshop.

Without the community's support, the chances of the workshop becoming a reality are nil, Murray said. There are various grants available from both state and federal sources as well as United Fund and United Cerebral Palsy but a prerequisite to apply is proof the community wants the facility, Murray said.

"Unless the community can establish it is serious about the project by coming up with initial matching funds and a workable premise these grants will not be available," Murray said.

The Seminole County school board did offer to lease the new closed Lake Monroe Elementary School for $1 per year to the organization, Murray said. But the building is too large, in severe disrepair and is located on the northern most perimeter of the county which would hinder transportation.

Murray said he found several possible sites in Sanford or just south of the city that would be suitable for the workshop.

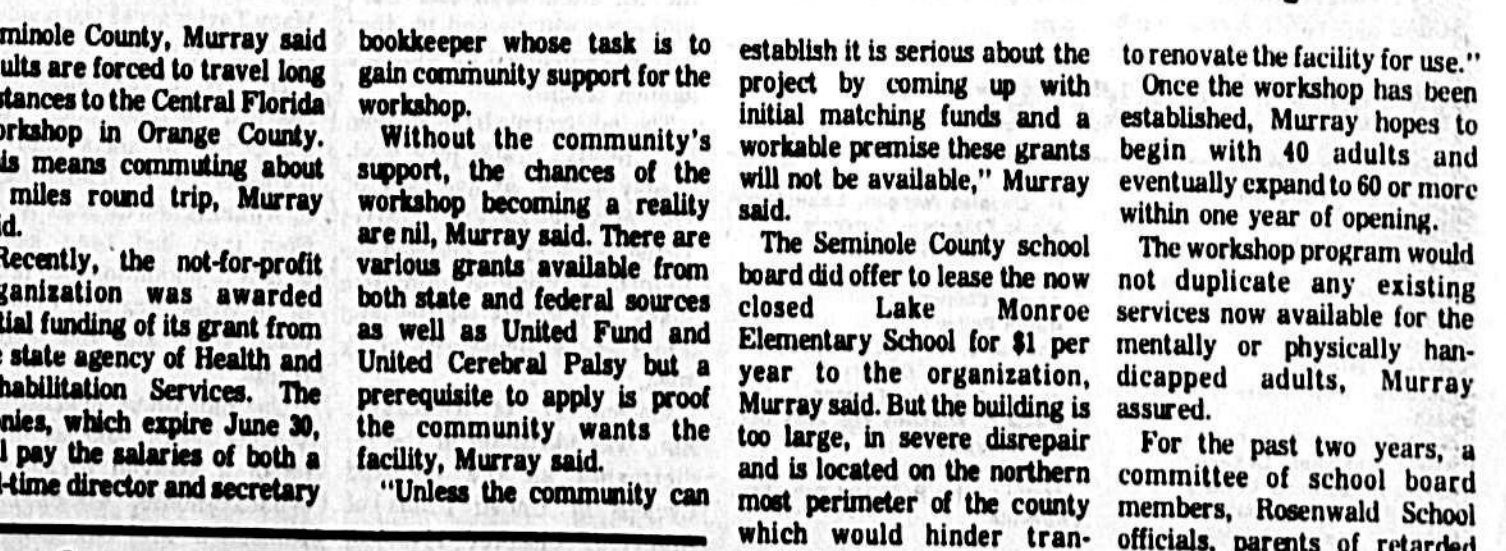

"We know there are various premises available like old deserted warehouses that someone might be willing to lease or donate to us," Murray said. "We would get volunteers to renovate the facility for use."

Once the workshop has been established, Murray hopes to begin with 40 adults and eventually expand to 60 or more within one year of opening.

The workshop program would not duplicate any existing services now available for the mentally or physically handicapped adults, Murray said.

For the past two years, a committee of school board members, Rosenwald School officials, parents of retarded children and interested citizens has been meeting in an effort to identify the needs of the handicapped, Murray said. The workshop idea in Seminole County was their conclusion.

"The workshop program would take these people out of their homes five days a week and place them for productivity," Murray said.

Victor Jackson, 21, will graduate from Rosenwald School For Exceptional Children this year and "wants to do something with her life." A workshop proposed in Seminole County might give her that opportunity.
