Daredevil fails in falls attempt

NIAGARA FALLS, Ontario — A daredevil trying to become the first person to successfully go over Niagara Falls twice in a barrel was foiled early Sunday when his craft became lodged on rocks and he had to be hauled to shore by police.

John D. Munday, 53, of Caistor Centre, Ontario, and his barrel were pulled from the brink of the 180-foot high Horseshoe Falls after about two and a half hours in the water, Ontario Park Police said.

Munday went over the falls in a 600-pound steel barrel Oct. 5, 1985 and was fined $1,500 for doing it. He vowed to return and do it again.

Munday lowered a barrel made of steel pipe covered with a spray-on foam into the Niagara River, about 660 feet from the brink of the falls, shortly before 5 a.m. Sunday, police said.

The craft became snagged on rocks about a foot from the brink and about a foot from shore. It was secured by police until a crane arrived.

Police said during the operation, which took over two hours, the barrel was placed in a sling, lifted straight up and guided to shore. Munday emerged from the craft unharmed.

'Choices' helps motivate county's disadvantaged students

BY VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — A program aimed at getting disadvantaged youngsters motivated to pursue higher educational goals is under way at Seminole Community College.

SCC budgeted $20,000 to pay for the two-week program this year. That money is used to pay for not only the classes, but also resource materials, T-shirts, meals and field trips. There is no cost to the students.

Gracia Miller, the college admissions officer who is directing the program in its fifth year, said the Choices program will continue to encourage the middle and high school students to stay in school and to improve their skills and study habits.

"We work on math skills, writing skills and computer skills," Miller said.

She said in the English class students are working on compiling a personal journal and in the computer class, they are transcribing that journal on to discs to be printed at the conclusion of the class.

The 85 students are chosen from economically and socially disadvantaged eighth through 12th graders enrolled in Seminole County public schools, Miller said. Teachers and guidance counselors at each school submit several names of students they feel might benefit from the program.

"We let them screen the students at the schools and then we send out blanket invitations to all the ones they recommend," Miller said.

Dogs become top dog among Sanford cops

BY SUSAN LODEN

SANFORD — Some of the top dogs at the Sanford Police Department are real dogs. Yoscha, Patrol and Jammer are the canine force that help serve and protect in the city.

Dog handlers, Officers Mike Ansley and Officer Ned Golden have returned from recent regional competitions showing that their charges, Patrol and Yoscha, are ranked third in the Southeast as a crime fighting team in a field of 119 dogs and handlers from Florida and Georgia.

They are getting up for a national contest in Tampa in October, and hope to come out at the top, Ansley said. Jammer, who is the canine partner to Officer Bill Wilson, just joined the Sanford force in January, so he isn't ready to compete, Ansley said.

Ansley and Golden along with Yoscha have been part of the Sanford K-9 force for about four years. Patrol has been in service for more than two years. All Sanford police canines are German shepherds bred in Germany. They are trained to "seek and destroy," Ansley said.

The fighting drive of German shepherds bred in Germany is "very pronounced. They will fight until somebody kills them," Ansley said. The same isn't true to the same degree of American bred dogs he said.

To make a good police dog a German shepherd has to have a dual personality, Ansley said. "That's the single most important thing. They have to go in one minute from kindergarten SANFORD — After advertising two buildings for sale for more than two years with no response, the Seminole County School Board may donate both of the old schools to the City of Sanford.

The two properties are Mama Haven, 519 Palmetto, formerly known as the "Little Red School House," and Hopper Academy, which has served as an exceptional education center, and office facility, located on Pine Street near Celery Avenue.

Both have been unused by the school system for several years. The Little Red School House is believed to have been built sometime during the early 1920's.

Richard Wells, Assistant Superintendent for Facilities and Transportation for the Seminole County School Board said the two structures have been leased for use to several local organizations over the past years.

Embarrassments hurt NASA's image

By ROB STEIN
UPI Science Editor

WASHINGTON — The Hubble Space Telescope, touted as a revolutionary new eye on the universe, turns out to be near-sighted.

Days later, the space shuttle fleet, the centerpiece of the U.S. space program, is grounded by an elusive fuel leak.

At the same time, reports indicate the space station Freedom, envisioned as leading space exploration into the next century, may be too heavy and need too many repairs to be feasible.

These are among a spate of embarrassing revelations from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration within the past month that has tarnished the image of the U.S. space agency.

Instead of a master of technology on the high frontier, the agency has become the target of lampoons from stand-up comedians and cartoonists, and tongue lashings from senators who use terms like "techno turkeys" to describe NASA space probes.

The foul-ups have eroded public and congressional support for the space agency to the lowest point since the space shuttle Challenger exploded in 1986, some say.

"We're concerned about the public perceptions of NASA and the space program," said Lori Garver, executive director of the National Space Society in Washington, a

Understanding is key to intelligent reading

ALAMONTE SPRINGS — Deborah Mantia, regional coordinator for the Great Books Foundation's training program, is not just interested in getting youngsters to read. She wants them to understand what they're reading.

She will be sending a representative to Alhambra Elementary School, 300 Pineview Street, tomorrow and Wednesday to help teachers learn how to help their students make that distinction.

"We don't want kids to just repeat words," she said. "They've got to think...to question. It's a big difference."

At this week's training sessions, about 15 teachers will spend 12 hours over the course of the two days discussing and helping one another learn how they can make the literary experience more useful, and at the same time more fun for their students.

According to Eleanor Worrity, Seminole County school district supervisor of gifted students, Seminole County has always put a great deal of emphasis on trying to encourage students to get more from their reading, but every teacher had has not been using the best methods of teaching.

The Great Books training will help us do this better, and more consistently, throughout the district," she noted.

The Great Books Foundation conducts about 700 training programs annually across the country.

According to Mantia, the teachers will learn teaching techniques, and then connect with a teaching and learning network that emphasizes cooperative reading for over 500,000 students nationwide.

One of the best things about the program is that we get children to read real literature," Mantia said. "Even at the youngest levels they're reading and understanding the classics."

She said children in kindergarten and first grade participate in the Read-Aloud program which teaches the youngsters, as a whole class of students with varying abilities, to interpret a piece of writing.

"They read things that have more plot development than Dick and Jane and then they are encouraged to ask questions and to come up with innovative answers," she said.

Though the program has been operating since the early 1960s, Seminole County has only been involved since about 1980, according to Warren.

It's very popular with our teachers, though," she said.

She said the renewed emphasis on returning literature to the classroom and on knowing how to express oneself properly has brought a new awareness to the Great Books program.

Warren said the teachers who participate in next week's program will take very active roles. They will write questions for discussion, practicing leadership skills and taking part in discussion led by their peers.

Seminole County teachers have a reputation of really getting into the program," Mantia said. "The six-day and Wednesday should be exciting."

Disappearance solved after 32 years

JACKSONVILLE — Thirty-two years after a Jacksonville woman disappeared during a routine trip to the grocery store, the family she left behind has begun to piece together the mystery.

Betty Francis McSwain Wilson is dead, the family has learned, but not as the victim of some crime. Rather, she died in 1979 after starting a new life and a second family that knew nothing of her earlier life.

Eugene Wilson, now 65, cracked the mystery when he applied for Social Security in May and had to give the name of his first wife. When typed into a government computer, it came up in a file from Georgia.

Betty, then 29, left a visiting teenage sister sick in bed, three apple pies ready to go in the oven and a load of wet laundry behind on April 1, 1958 when she left home to go to the grocery store.

Also left behind was daughter Glenda, 8, sons Kenny, 11, and Bobby, 9, were at a nearby elementary school.

She bought $2 worth of groceries and was last seen by a neighbor girl only three houses from her own home with a bag of groceries.

Soviet-American project completed

MARATHON — Soviet and American scientists completed a three-day research mission Sunday in the Florida Keys that was said to be among the first such collaborative efforts in tropical marine biology.

Four Soviet marine biologists joined Mark and Diane Litter, doctors in marine botany from the Smithsonian Institution and Dr. Brian Lapointe, of the Florida Keys Land & Sea Trust, to search for unclassified marine species in the waters surrounding the Keys.

The Soviet and American researchers donned dive gear and combed the bottoms of the Atlantic Ocean and Gulf of Mexico for new kinds of algae. They identified several species they believe are new to the area. The specimens were to be shipped to the Smithsonian for verification.

The expedition was organized to check Keys' marine habitats to measure the effect of man on algae species diversification, Lapointe said.

Suspect will not live next to prosecutor

PORT RICHEY — Kenneth Ponte, reputed to be the prime suspect in the New Bedford serial killings, has reconsidered his plan to move next door to the prosecutor he claims has persecuted him, Ponte's lawyer said.

Ponte, a former New Bedford lawyer who has been living in Port Richey, announced Friday that he would return to Massachusetts and move in with his mother, who recently purchased a home next door to that of Bristol County District Attorney Ronald Pina.

Ponte's declaration prompted Pina, who is heading the investigation into the apparent serial killings of nine women, to order state police protection for himself and his family.

But Ponte's attorney, Kevin Reddington, told the Boston Herald Sunday his client has changed his plans and will look for other accommodations.

Teen, man slain at nightclub

FORT LAUDERDALE — Police said they had few leads in the machine-gun slaying of a teenager and a 27-year-old man at a nightclub although more than 100 people were nearby when the shooting occurred.

Edward Corley Williams, 27, said Richard Rutledge, 18, were gunned down in a parking lot at the Apollo Club late Saturday. Witnesses reported seeing a brown Toyota leave the scene, but police had few other clues.

"We are sure that there were people there who saw something and know something," said Broward County Sheriff's spokesman Jim Lejedal. "It was like an execution. Whoever it was used a machine gun or automatic weapon."

Investigators said the two victims knew each other. Williams was charged with cocaine possession in 1989 and with grand theft in 1988. He also was charged with the murder of a man gunned down at an automatic teller machine, but that charge was later dropped when a witness who identified Williams could not pick up out of a police line-up.

Police exhume wrong baby's grave

JACKSONVILLE — Jacksonville police were investigating the weekend exhumation of a newly buried baby, and have apologized to the child's family for digging up the grave.

A tipster told police during the weekend that he may have witnessed the illegal burial of a dead newborn baby. The informant said he knew a pregnant woman who was not pregnant any more, and that the woman's boyfriend and others had been seen burying something at a cemetery late last week.

Police went to the cemetery and found an unmarked, freshly dug grave. They were unable to contact the cemetery operators, and dug up the infant's coffin.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

State AIDS cases unreported

United Press International

JACKSONVILLE — A state review of death certificates has discovered 72 cases of AIDS that went unreported in Duval County since 1983, prompting concerns other counties are also underreporting the deadly disease.

The lost cases boosted the number of AIDS cases for the county by 15 percent, to 550, through June 1. The Florida Times-Union reported in Sunday editions.

State and federal financial assistance to counties treating AIDS patients is distributed according to the number of cases reported, said officials with the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

"As a result, we are going to review death

National studies show that about 85 percent of all cases are reported. That's pretty good."

-Spencer Lieb, AIDS researcher certificates each month to get a more accurate number of cases," said Ronnie Sanio, who monitors AIDS cases in northeast Florida for HRS.

Sanio conducted the Duval study. She said a similar review has already started in Volusia County.

Sanio's search for lost cases was the most intensive yet undertaken in Florida, said Spencer Lieb, an administrator with the state AIDS project in Tallahassee. "We know there is some underreporting of cases," Lieb said. "National studies show that about 85 percent of all cases are reported. That's pretty good."

"We found cases that would have been lost forever," Sanio said. Public health officials had assumed most underreporting was going on in private doctors' offices, which are harder to monitor.

However, most of the lost cases were traced to University Medical Center, where Sanio said doctor trainees were unfamiliar with reporting procedures for acquired immune deficiency syndrome, an infectious disease that knocks out the body's immune system, leaving it susceptible to a range of deadly opportunistic infections.

Candidates say no new taxes, legislative leaders say no way

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Bob Martinez sees no need for new taxes in a second term, but is not ruling them out, either.

Meanwhile, the two Democrats running for governor remain vague on whether they would call for higher taxes.

"I don't think there'll be any problem in building a budget next spring," Martinez told the Tallahassee Democrat for Sunday editions. "I don't see taxes in the future."

Recent tax increases "have given the next governor some breathing room," said U.S. Rep. Bill Nelson, a Democrat from Melbourne.

"Before we start talking about taxes, we want to see if there's some way we can cut some of the expenditures out of the delivery of services," said

Lawton Chiles, the former U.S. senator.

Lawmakers approved a $1.5 billion grab-bag of tax and fee increases this year, but House and Senate budget chiefs say similar increases may be needed next year just to keep up with inflation and population growth.

The financial picture could grow uglier if a recession eats away at sales and corporate tax receipts, those officials said.

"What have those guys been smoking?" said House Appropriations Chairman T.K. Wetherell, D-Daytona Beach, referring to the candidates.

"For any candidate to put his head in the sand and say there's no problem — well, that's kind of bizarre," said Senate budget chairwoman Gwen Margolis, D-North Miami.

Martinez argues the Legislature has it backwards, increasing needs then looking for money to pay for them. He favors tailoring programs to existing revenues.

But he won't directly promise not to raise taxes in his second term, saying only, "I don't see any taxes in the future. The state's programs are adequate."

Neither Nelson nor Chiles is calling for tax increases. "On the other hand, we're not saying, 'Read my lips, either,'" Chiles said.

Nelson says that if a new tax is needed to pay for an important program, he'll propose it, build a consensus and pass it.

"Then I'll stick to it," he said. "That's leadership."

He firmly opposes a personal income tax or business receipts tax, but said the state could raise the sales tax rate or tax services.

Boy drowns in hospital pond while sister is treated in emergency room

United Press International

TAMPA — A 9-year-old boy looking for his mother wandered into a hospital pond and drowned just 50 feet from the emergency room where his mother was comforting his sick baby sister, sheriff's deputies said.

Sheriff's divers pulled the body of Darren Shiwcharan from the pond in front of Centurion Hospital at 5:40 a.m. Saturday, said Hillsborough County Sheriff's spokesman Jack Espinosa.

The boy apparently got out of his family's station wagon and stumbled into the 5-foot-deep pond while his father and another sister slept in the car. The boy did not know how to swim, his father said.

"My eyes just closed a second, and the next thing I know he was gone," said the father, Sewdat Shiwcharan, 39. "I ran to the emergency room, but he wasn't there."

The Shiwcharans brought their 6-month-old daughter to the hospital at 10:53 p.m. Friday because she had a high fever.

"We had to wait for 45 minutes, and there wasn't anybody else there they were working on," he said. "Forty-five minutes before they took any of our information, and my baby girl had a temperature of 105."

Cocaine epidemic leveling off, Dade statistics show

United Press International

MIAMI — For the first time in a decade of escalating drug use, Miami's cocaine epidemic shows signs of weakening, a published report said Monday.

A report by The Miami Herald cited dramatic improvements since 1989 in three leading indicators in southeast Florida — fewer people are dying of cocaine overdoses, fewer people are being treated in hospital emergency rooms for cocaine-related ailments and more people are being admitted to drug-rehabilitation centers.

"I think we have seen a genuine leveling off of the epidemic," said James Hall, executive director of Up Front, a Miami information center on illegal drugs.

From Miami to Fort Lauderdale to Palm Beach, the number of cocaine-induced deaths has dropped to its lowest level in five years.

In Dade County, there were 10 cocaine-induced deaths in the first half of 1990 but 21 in the first half of 1989.

In Broward County there have been four so far in 1990, compared with five at this time last year. Palm Beach County had two cocaine-induced deaths in the first half of 1990 and six at this time last year.

Cocaine-related medical emergencies have also dropped considerably, said Dr. Kathleen Schrank, medical director of the Jackson Memorial Hospital Emergency Care Center.

"We began seeing a big drop-off in late 1988 and it continued last year and early this year," Schrank said.

Twenty-three people entered a sampling of nine Dade County emergency rooms with cocaine-related ailments in the last quarter of 1989, the lowest number in any quarter in three years.

Girl can't identify clown rapist

United Press International

MIAMI — A sexual assault case against a professional clown has stalled and is unlikely to go to trial, partly because the teenage victim would not recognize the suspect without his clown make-up, investigators said.

The victim, a slightly retarded 13-year-old girl, said the man who offered her a ride and then molested her in his car May 6 was a clown with long black hair, a big red nose, a pink spot on his chin and yellow and blue eyebrows.

She described her attacker's gray car and told police the man wore roller skates and offered to get her a free pass into the Hot Wheels roller skating rink.

A medical examination at a rape treatment center indicated the girl had vaginal and breast injuries, and police found a smudge of pink greasepaint on her shirt.

Three weeks later, police arrested Peter Regala, 19. He performed weekends as "Peter Clown" at the Hot Wheels roller rink, wearing make-up like that the girl described. His car matched the description the girl gave, and he admitted that he sometimes drove with his skates on, police said.

Man charged with auto theft

OVIEDO — A local man was arrested Saturday morning when he was discovered driving a car that had been reported stolen in Orange County.

Doyle Ray Buchanan, 32, 953 Sharon Court, Oviedo, was charged with grand theft of an auto and fleeing and attempting to elude police when Oviedo police reported seeing him driving the Chevrolet pick-up on Sharon Court at about 3:45 a.m. Police report Buchanan sped away when they tried to stop him, although they caught up with the truck about a mile away.

Buchanan fled on foot but was arrested at 952 Vicki Court a short time later. He was taken to the Seminole County jail where bond was set at $1,000.

Oviedo man arrested in drug raid

OVIEDO — Reginald Laron Williams, 21, 540 First St., Oviedo, was arrested Friday evening during a raid of B.J.'s tavern when seven pieces of cocaine was found in his pocket. Police report they entered the tavern at about 9 p.m. and saw approximately 12 men gambling on a pool table.

As police began searching the men for identification, Williams tried to leave the tavern. When he was stopped and searched, police report finding an aspirin bottle containing seven pieces of "rock" cocaine. Williams was charged with possession of cocaine and resisting arrest without violence. He was held at the county jail on $3,000 bond.

Brother, sister charged in battery

SANFORD — A brother and sister accused of beating a man and throwing him down a stairwell at the woman's Sanford Landings house have been charged with aggravated battery by Sanford police.

Police didn't report why Lisa Louise Spicer, 27 of 1804-11 Landing Drive, and Robert Jerome Spicer, 22, of Tavares, allegedly battered Henry H. Adams.

Adams was treated at a local hospital for facial injuries, police said. The Spicers were arrested at Lisa Spicer's house at 9:28 p.m. Saturday, following the attack just minutes before, police said.

Man accused of fighting police

CASSELBERRY — A man who allegedly ran from and fought police after they tried to calm a party with about 25 guests at a house at 1438 Ash Circle, Casselberry, was arrested after he ran at about 9:19 p.m. Saturday.

Michael Angelo Sava, 23, 2180 Terrace Blvd., Longwood, is charged with battery on a policeman, resisting with violence and disorderly intoxication in the case.

Jail officials release wrong inmate

SANFORD — "I wasn't superstitious. However, I am now." Seminole County Jail Administrator Duane Rutledge said today in the wake of the Friday the 13th release of the wrong prisoner from jail.

Willie Ray Brown, 50, of Orlando, a federal prisoner at the jail, was still at large today, after having been released on an order intended for another prisoner named Henry Brown, Rutledge said.

Brown may face a charge of escape when recaptured, because Rutledge said, he knew he wasn't supposed to be freed Friday. Rutledge said Brown, who faces federal charges of drug trafficking, possession of cocaine to distribute and use of a firearm in a felony, called his lawyer after being freed Friday. The lawyer, Rutledge said, notified authorities and said Brown would surrender by 3 p.m. Friday. Brown has not surrendered and he is considered possibly armed and dangerous.

Rutledge said U.S. Marshals now say they will take charge of the release of federal prisoners housed at the county jail for a fee paid to the county. Rutledge said that is the way it always should have been, because the jail receives little information on federal prisoners.

Rutledge said it was a human error that caused the mixup and the jail release procedure is under review to determine who made the mistake and specifically what went wrong.

Rutledge said in June on a day when Henry Brown was in court and his information card had been pulled from the jail's file, someone from the Federal Parole Commission in Atlanta, Ga., called and said Henry Brown was to be released from jail July 13.

Residents expected to protest request

LONGWOOD — City commissioners may be faced with a number of irate residents of the Hidden Oaks subdivision tonight when a public hearing opens on a rezoning request brought up at the June 18 meeting.

The request centers on a zoning change involving slightly less than 7½ acres lying immediately west of Lommel Avenue from R-1A to R-1, thus allowing for smaller lots and more homes to be built.

The property is presently owned by Janice Goebel, but Longwood Deputy Mayor Jeff Morton has an option to purchase the property. During the first reading, Morton declared a conflict of interest and removed himself from the podium during the initial discussion phase of the meeting.

The request was approved on first reading 3-0 by Commissioners Rex Anderson, Adrienne Perry and Hank Hardy.

Although public comment was not supposed to be heard during the first reading, several residents of Hidden Oaks, which adjoins the property and is currently zoned R-1A, managed to be heard, voicing concern during over the change in zoning. Many said such rezoning would allow more houses on smaller lots. With the small size of the property, however, it was determined that the rezoning would only add three single family residences beyond what R-1A would allow.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in the commission chambers at the Longwood City Hall, 175 West Warren Ave.

AWOL capybara returns to zoo after two months

WEST PALM BEACH — Fatlip the roving capybara slipped back through the same hole in the fence she escaped from two months ago and settled back into her daily routine, fighting with her family at the Dreher Park Zoo.

The harmless 130-pound South American rodent, which resembles an overlarge guinea pig, seemed a little stressed out by her two months on the lam, said zoo curator Sally Lieb. "She's quite nervous," Lieb said.

Zookeepers enticed her back into the exhibit area with food, then blocked off her escape hole.

Water restrictions dry up landscaping competition

SANFORD — Competing for a beautification award at a time when there are restrictions against watering lawns and shrubbery doesn't seem like the proper thing to do, so the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Beautification Committee is suspending its Monthly Business Beautification Award.

Kevin Schweizer, chairman of the committee, said the suspension was taken in keeping with the water restrictions now in force in the Seminole County area. Schweizer said his committee felt that "to reward beautification while we are trying to conserve our water supply was contradictory."

In the meantime, the committee is encouraging Sanford area businesses to water only enough to maintain their landscaping during the water shortage. In accordance with the watering restriction guidelines, returning to an emphasis on beauty can be resumed after the water restrictions are lifted.

Even though the Sanford area has had heavy rains almost every day for the past week or more, the water table remains low.

The chamber committee will resume making the monthly Business Beautification awards when the St. Johns River Water Management District lifts the water use restrictions.

Soap Box Derby a crowd pleaser

Crowd drawn by parade, curiosity

By JOAN KING
Herald correspondent

SANFORD — The second annual Central Florida Soap Box Derby Saturday drew a crowd of about 700 spectators, each seemingly drawn to the French Avenue race strip by a different lure.

Lynne Miller, of Longwood, went to the Soap Box Derby to watch her son Johnny, 8, lead off the parade, a prelude to the race.

Young Johnny Miller was in Midget Quarter Car number 2 while his friend Matt Boals maneuvered car number 78 (MQC).

The two youngsters can hardly wait until next year when they will be old enough to race in the Derby.

Young Miller and Boals race weekly at Clarcona Horseman's Park in Orange County. They belong to the Mid Florida Quarter Midget Cars. The organization is for children ages 5 to 15 who have an interest in racing and members come from the entire Central Florida area. Clarcona Horseman's Park is the only race track in Central Florida for the children to gain knowledge and apply their skills in racing that helps prepare them for the Derby.

Johnny is most fortunate in his quest of racing as his dad, Jack, raced in the Soap Box Derby in Lower Buck County in Pennsylvania and won the 1964 trials that placed him second in the finals at the All-American Soap Box Derby in Akron, Ohio. Young Johnny's grandfather, John Miller Sr., ran the Soap Box Derby in Lower Buck, Pa. for many years until he and his wife Dorothy retired to Florida in 1972.

Indeed, the young man Miller,

Debbie Carli (l) and Dayle DeCastro cheer on Carli's son Tory.

at age 8, is most fortunate to be the third generation Soap Box Derby participant. He also travels with his own fan club, grandfather John Sr., father and pit man Jack and the women in his life — mom Lynne, sister Katherine and grandmother Dorothy who sit on the side lines and cheer him on.

Bob and Beverly Krueger, of Sanford, found another force driving them to the derby — Francesca and Sophia, Bob and Beverly's Doberman pinschers, were out romping in the field next to U.S. Highway 17-92 at the starting line of the Soap Box Derby when the dogs took their owners to see the excitement. All four were sitting on the curb enjoying the sights and the preliminary parade.

Francesca and Sophia greeted Boy Scouts, photographers and the news media with a gentle friendliness that is a tribute to their owners.

Bob is a security guard and Beverly works at a local hospital. Beverly said, "We came down here from Chicago in the early 70s but we have been in Sanford only 6½ years. We bought an old house that we are restoring for our retirement in a few years and we are looking forward to that."

Nunn wants to help save Mother Earth

Sen. Sam Nunn, the Georgia Democrat who heads the Senate Armed Services Committee, has long been recognized as the pre-eminent national security expert in Congress. Recently, he showed that he understands "national security" in a broader sense.

Nunn, joined by several fellow members of the Armed Services Committee, proposed shifting sizable amounts of Defense Department and intelligence resources to the battle against environmental destruction. The end of the Cold War doesn't mean that all traditional security concerns have disappeared, he explained in a speech. But he said he now believes "that there is also a new and different threat to our national security emerging: the destruction of our environment."

Nunn pointed to global warming, the thinning of the ozone layer and destruction of tropical rain forests as the type of environmental degradation that concerned him. "I believe that America must lead the way in marshaling a global response to the problems of environmental degradation, and the defense establishment should play an important role in this effort," he said.

Nunn suggested using the research abilities of the defense and intelligence establishment — along with its computers, planes, ships and satellites — to combat environmental threats. The military, for example, could collect data on air and water quality and on global climate. The intelligence establishment might share normally secret information on the thickness of polar ice, as measured by the Navy's submarines.

The Georgia senator acknowledged that his motives were mixed. He said he wanted to maintain the military's research and technological capacities at a time when the Pentagon budget was shrinking. "But the major purpose is environmental," he told The New York Times.

Although there may be problems with Nunn's proposal, it's significant that a policymaker has suggested including environmental threats in the nation's security planning. It's an approach worth considering.

Lifelong victory, in spite of defeat

"I think if you believe in yourself, that's all that matters," said Zina Garrison, after a victory at Wimbledon that brought her to the tournament final against Martina Navratilova.

Garrison lost the final match July 7, but the fact that the 28-year-old Houston native made it to the finals is testament to a rare drive to succeed.

She grew up in a predominately black working-class neighborhood of Houston. Her father died when she was small, so she was brought up single-handedly by her mother, who worked as a nursing-home aide.

While most tennis stars spend their formative years at exclusive country clubs or tennis resorts, Garrison came up through the public recreation program at her neighborhood park in Houston, beginning at age 10. A tennis coach at the park saw her racket and she was on her way. Within two months, she was competing in local tournaments.

Garrison has overcome many obstacles since she turned pro at age 17 — the death of her mother, a bout with bulimia. But her natural ability and drive to succeed brought her to the top of the tennis world. She still sees her best years ahead of her.

"Dreams do come true," she said after losing to Navratilova. "I still believe I'm starting to become Zina Garrison, the tennis player I think I can be."

Is de Klerk ignoring key factions?

SAN FRANCISCO — I have hesitated to write this column, because I know very well — as well, probably, as any outsider can know — the complexity of the political problem South Africa's State President F.W. de Klerk is trying to solve: how to end apartheid with fairness to everyone.

I also know, as only an American can know, how viciously and systematically the truth about matters on the liberals' political agenda (including, of course, South Africa) is misrepresented by the major media in the United States. There has never been a chance that the intentions, let alone achievements, of recent South African governments in respect of apartheid would be fairly reported to the American people. Having said all that, however, I am bound to add that, in his dramatic initiatives to date, Mr. de Klerk has only succeeded in making South Africa's situation and prospects measurably worse.

Don't be deceived by the relatively kind words about him that can now be found in the Western media. They are controlled by interests that seek only his destruction and that of every other interest in South Africa save that of the African National Congress, and they are convinced, not without reason, that he is inadvertently serving their purpose. Mr. de Klerk's fundamental mistake has been to play along with the pretense of the ANC, and specifically its deputy leader, Nelson Mandela, that the country's future can be settled through bilateral negotiations between the ANC and the white government.

Nothing could be further from the truth. Any such scenario blithely disregards the interests of millions of blacks in the homelands, in the churches and even in the townships, who despise the ANC and the communists who indisputably dominate it. It does not provide even fraudulent representation for the 3 million Cape Coloureds, whose interests are sharply different from those of the blacks, let alone for the 1 million Asians (Indians) who rightly dread black rule.

I am sure that Mr. de Klerk's office can, upon request, issue copies of scores of public statements in which he has made precisely this point. I have no doubt that the fatal impression that the ANC is the only legitimate representative of the South African opposition is demonstrably the creation, in large part, of hostile foreign journalists. But these facts cannot exculpate Mr. de Klerk. If what he has done to dispel that impression has failed to dispel it, then he simply hasn't done enough. There are ways in which even a South African president, if he is sufficiently determined, can get a point across to the world.

As matters stand, the peoples of South Africa should know that, in the view of the rest of the world, the future of their country will, and ought to be, settled between delegations headed by Mr. de Klerk and Mr. Mandela, and that this view is, for all practical purposes, the mutual handiwork of the two men. Coloureds, Indians, Zulus, Christian blacks and others simply need not apply. In contemplating President de Klerk, the analogy to Mikhail Gorbachev presses itself insistently on one's consciousness.

There are ways in which even a South African president can get a point across to the world.

Soviets shun Gorbachev, 'isms'

MOSCOW — Whatever happens in the final days of the 28th Soviet Communist Party Congress, Mikhail Gorbachev is on an accelerating toboggan to political irrelevance. It's entirely possible, even likely, that communism will follow him out the door in the Soviet Union.

I say that, not on the basis of any deep analysis of political trends, though there is plenty of evidence pointing to the eclipse of the current Soviet president and the system that sustains him. I am relying on a much more tested proposition — call it the Johnny Carson Law of Politics: Once you become a national joke, your authority is finished.

Gorbachev has become a joke. His nickname, a newly critical official at the Institute for U.S.-Canadian Affairs said, is "Bal-tun." It means roughly "Chatterbox," someone who talks constantly and says nothing.

In another office in the Kremlin bureaucracy, I was told this story: Gorbachev and Yigor Ligachev, his great rival in the Politburo, buy some rabbits in the country, and Ligachev takes them back to his garage to raise. A few days later, he calls Gorbachev. "The rabbits are starting to die," Gorbachev tells him to draw a square in white chalk on the garage wall. A few days pass, and still the rabbits succumb. "Draw a triangle in green on top of the square," Gorbachev says. No luck. "Put a circle in red around the design," The deaths continue. "Make a big X in blue through the whole design."

"It is too late," says Ligachev. "They are all dead."

"What a shame," Gorbachev replies. "I have so many more ideas all to try."

As for the Communist Party, Vitaliy Korotich, editor of Ogonyok, a leading dissident publication, says, "I will tell you the story I heard from our magazine driver: A fat general arrives at the station just as his train is leaving, and starts puffing down the tracks in pursuit. He sees Mikhail Gorbachev on the platform of the last car and shouts at him, 'Stop the train!'"

"And Gorbachev says (here Korotich made his voice very small): 'Train, stop. One, two...'"

"That," he said, with a huge laugh, "is the famous Communist Party Congress."

The impression is all but universal, from government offices to street-corner interviews, that this 28th Party Congress marks the passage of power away from Gorbachev and away from the party he leads. The utter and complete failure of the domestic economy — a fact of daily life far overshadowing the gains of perestroika and the reduction of tensions with the West — has doomed them both.

Gorbachev will remain as president. He could hold on as party chairman, if he is willing to accommodate the status-quo minded conservatives. But real power is moving elsewhere: to the increasingly independent Republics, led by Boris Yeltsin's Russian Federation; to the independent, anti-communist city governments in Moscow, Leningrad and their slightly less venturesome cousins in such other major cities as Kiev; and to the non-communist, market-oriented fledgling parties.

Even inside party headquarters, there is a degree of realism about the way the tide is moving. A senior party official named Igor Malaachenko told me: "We have succeeded almost too well in removing ideology from the country. And when all other 'isms' disappear, the one people turn to, most easily, is nationalism."

He professed to find some comfort in the situation. "Thank God we have Yeltsin's form of mild nationalism in Russia. Other kinds could cause much more trouble." And he argued that greater autonomy for the Republics — some form of loose confederation — could actually speed the necessary economic reforms.

"It is impossible to reform from the center," he said. "The new design will be drafted largely in the Republics. The rules of the game are changing. It's not going to be the old, centralized rule."

Others outside government think that barely scratches the surface of the change that is coming. They see an accelerating crisis of legitimacy for the Gorbachev regime — even if he emerges this week as both head of state and head of party. The coal miners in the Ukraine, who have demonstrated their militancy in the past, have called for a brief work stoppage on July 11 to protest economic conditions.

On July 21, leaders of all of the fledgling liberal (pro-market, pro-democracy) parties will meet here to see if they can rationalize and reduce the number of alternatives they present to the voters in future elections. They also will press their demand that the Communist Party yield its monopoly on state-financed offices, printing and communications equipment.

In the autumn, some speculate, there may be major political strikes, centered on the slogan that the Supreme Soviet (the national legislature and the body that elected Gorbachev as President) should be re-elected in multiparty competition.

Gorbachev has become a joke.

Legislation creates influx?

Since 1978, almost one million legal and illegal immigrants have settled in the state of Florida, with Miami being the most popular location for resettlement.

H.R. 4300, sponsored by Bruce Morrison (D-Conn.) for example, will add more than half a million immigrants to Florida's population in the next five years, according to the Center for Immigration Studies in Washington, D.C.

Write your representative and oppose H.R. 4300 that would grant almost 7 million visas over the next 5 years, and would use immigrant labor to combat a non-existent U.S. labor shortage.

Thanks to hero for honesty

On Monday, July 2, 1990, in my normal state of RUSH and as I usually do, I overloaded my arms on my way to the car. And as I normally do, I put my purse on top of my car, containing my portable phone, wallet and everything else except the kitchen sink. Put all my other stuff in the car and took off. Did not realize what I had done until I got to my destination, looked for my checkbook and no purse. I mentally backtracked and took off for home. When I arrived, I expected to see my purse in the driveway. No luck. I didn't even have a house key. I was so upset I felt numb. No neighbors home to use the phone, so I drove to the police station and reported my stupidity. Came home and climbed thru a window and started reporting lost credit card numbers as the officer had instructed me to do.

I was so disgusted with my self and as I thought of all of the trouble I would have to go thru the next week getting new licenses etc., I just fell ill.

Went into my office (I work out of my home) and my answering machine had a message. A young male voice said, "I've found your purse and your phone and you can come and get it..." I was stunned. I couldn't believe it. He said his name was Mark Coffman and he worked at Sentry Fence. I was so happy and excited. He could have sold the phone, used the cards, done anything he wanted to; no one would have known. And he chose to call me and give me back what I had lost.

MARK COFFMAN — A HERO FOREVER.

This young man will surely be blessed for his heart is good.

It turned out to be such a small world. His employer and I have known each other for years and attend the same church and his mother and I serve on the Board of Directors of RSVP together.

I hope you will find the space to put some of this in your paper. This young man is deserving of some recognition for what he has done.

I wish I could have given him the kind of reward he deserved. But maybe if enough people know how good and kind he is, maybe then he will also know how much I appreciate him and how much I will always be grateful to him. Every time I reach for my wallet or checkbook, or phone, I say "Thank you, Mark" and I say a little prayer that God will always bless and keep him. He is definitely MY HERO!

(for a gentle demonstration of abilities to pre-schoolers) to track down an armed felon in the woods.

The dogs are trained to "bite and hold" a suspect who won't surrender after a warning, Golden said. But the dog's attack will become more aggressive and it will fight back in defense of itself and its handler if a suspect continues to resist. The dog won't back down until called off by the handler. In the four-year history of the program about five bitten suspects have required stitches for their dog bites, Golden said.

The dogs attack on command from their handler, or if they sense that someone is a direct threat to them or their handler, Anasley said. "The biggest benefit of the dogs is officer protection," Anasley said. "The dog gives you a few seconds forewarning if you're getting close to the guy. The dogs are trained to take a bullet for us if need be."

For more than one year bulletproof vests have been on order from an American manufacturer for the Sanford police dogs, Anasley said. The undelivered vests, which cost $1,500 for two, are a good investment to protect the animals, which with their training and experience are valued at about $15,000 each, he said.

Jammer, a gift from a local business, cost $6,000. He arrived partially trained. But Winston, like Golden and Anasley, has trained Jammer to work with him. In-service training with the dogs is a weekly event, after an initial 12-week course in Orange County, Anasley said.

The dogs live with their handlers, and when off duty are considered family pets, but pets which are watched closely, Anasley said.

"They belong to the city, but they don't comprehend that," Anasley said of the dogs. "They don't listen to anybody but us. They are geared down at home."

"It's a lot of stress on a dog out here (on duty from 8 p.m. to 3 a.m.)," Golden said. "He's under the same stress as a police officer. He knows what's going on. At home they relax."

Golden said he has tried to distance himself emotionally somewhat from Yoncha, because of the knowledge that the dog is there to give up his life for him if necessary.

"You get attached. You try to keep a distance. You know what he's here for. If not him, then it's me in the line of fire," Golden said.

In 1989, the canine force participated in about 300 action calls, just short of situations that would call for SWAT Team action, Anasley said. The dogs made 81 captures, with 19 suspects being bitten. The dogs are called in for searches of buildings or woods for dangerous suspects. They also are trained to recover evidence and property, and to search for missing persons. Sanford police dogs assist other police agencies on the local, state and federal level. The dogs are excellent in controlling crowds or breaking up riots, Golden said.

Early this year, Patrol, who along with the other two dogs are trained to sniff out narcotics, or money that has been in contact with illegal drugs, found $1.5 million that was confiscated from the rental car of a Miami couple in Sanford.

That money is involved in a federal forfeiture procedure, and if awarded to police Sanford will get the bulk of that find. That find, Anasley said, brings the dogs' total cash seizures to about $2 million.

"It's been a long road (for the Sanford canine force)," Anasley said. "We had to prove ourselves. There were a lot of skeptics." He added Sanford Police Chief Steven Harriett has always been very supportive of the program.

Although they work hard to make their dogs tops in the line of duty and in competitions, Anasley said, there's no competitiveness between Sanford's canine handlers, who work as a team to provide this service.

Job training school to close following allegations of fraud

United Press International

MIAMI — A vocational school built to give Liberty City residents a path up from poverty is on the verge of closing amid allegations of mismanagement and possible criminal fraud, The Miami Herald said Sunday.

An audit by the U.S. Education Department has found that Carey Technical Institute officials deceived students about federal loan terms, misapplied federal funds, altered files and faked test scores, the newspaper reported.

The auditors suspect criminal fraud, and recommended a criminal inquiry, now underway by inspectors in Atlanta. The department is also considering a $50,000 fine against Carey Tech, the newspaper said.

The school has been stripped of its accreditation and is $300,000 in debt to the city of Miami. U.S. taxpayers must make good up to $2 million in unpaid student loans to people who attended the school.

Carey Technical Institute was founded by Metro-Dade Commissioner Barbara Carey after the bloody 1980 riots to train young adults in careers such as air conditioner repair and nursing assistance.

I am really sick about this whole thing. This has been the worst failure I've ever had in my life.

-Commissioner Carey

Carey blamed two management groups she had put in charge since 1987 for the school's demise. She accused them of stealing hundreds of thousands of dollars and driving the school to ruin, and has filed suit against them to regain the money.

"I am really sick about this whole thing," Carey said, crying. "This has been the worst failure I've ever had in my life."

The school is now back under Carey's control, and in the past year she has borrowed $78,000 against her house and worked a grueling schedule trying to save the school, the newspaper said.

But the school's debts total $1.9 million and Carey has been unable to obtain new financing. The school is open only to train a handful of students and will soon close for good, the newspaper said.

Former school managers, who include a convicted cocaine money launderer, said Carey got "greedy" and deserves much of the blame for the school's failure.

They said Carey locked the school into leases on buildings she owns, guaranteeing her $55,000 a year in rent payments. They said she also took a consulting fee of $50,000 a year but did nothing to earn it.

Copies of checks obtained by The Herald show that in the 2 1/2 years she accuses the management groups of wrecking the school, Carey received as much as $275,000 in payments from the school, some of which she failed to report on her income tax return.

After inquiries by the newspaper, Carey said the under-reporting was accidental and she would file an amended tax return.

The demise of the school had spawned at least 44 lawsuits.

Poor students, many barely literate, said the school recruited them off the street, signed them up for big, federally guaranteed loans to help pay tuition costs and "stipends," then gave them little help finding work.

More than 200 have defaulted on their loans. They said their credit is ruined and they can't buy cars or houses.

"We were ripped off," said former student Querrida Lane, a mother of four living on welfare.

Lane said the school didn't have books and equipment, and that prospective employers told her that her Carey Tech certificate was worthless. She said she couldn't repay her loan and now her credit is ruined so she cannot buy a car to go to work.

The U.S. Education Department said students, many of them struggling immigrants, had been deceived by recruiters who told them they wouldn't have to repay the loans.

and includes programs key to the agency's future.

"I think they're in trouble," said John Pike of the American Federation of Scientists. "Two weeks ago the problem was, 'How big of an increase are they going to get?' These problems have couched it more in terms of hanging on to what they got."

At the beleaguered agency, morale has reportedly plummeted and something of a siege mentality has set in. Officials have vowed to uncover what caused the foul-ups, stressed the problems can be fixed and argued the setbacks do not represent any fundamental problems.

Many outside experts agree, saying the glitches occurred at different times, for different reasons and that such snags are inevitable in the complicated world of space flight.

"It's fun to NASA-bash these days," said Jerry Grey of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics. "But this kind of thing is fairly common in advanced technology programs. In this case it's just really bad luck that they all happened at once."

Americans remember Neil Armstrong stepping onto the moon and John Glenn orbiting Earth but tend to forget disasters such as three Apollo astronauts perishing in a launch pad fire, Pike said.

"On some level it is, 'Situation Normal: All Fouled Up. The technical problems they are having are no different than the problems they've always had,'" Pike said.

"The reality is that Murphy is and has been alive and well in the space program," said Pike, referring to Murphy's Law that "Everything that can go wrong, will go wrong."

But others say the problems are indicative of a fundamental flaw in the way NASA works: the tendency to pursue large, crowd-pleasing projects instead of more modest, practical goals.

"NASA has laid out its long-range program in space, which is to pursue what it calls a procession of manned space spectacles," said Alex Roland, a former NASA historian who now teaches at Duke University. "They are just determined to do that and they are going to do that through in spite of the fact that it's an unrealistic agenda."

"Instead of adjusting their goals and schedules to suit what they are learning technologically, they try to make technology fit their preconceived notions of where they are going," he said. "They insist on these quantum leaps in technology that invite the setbacks that we have seen repeatedly."

Others say the problems stem from NASA trying to deliver more than is realistic based on its budget.

"It's an organization that in its present form and style of management is unlikely to be able to achieve the level of excellence we expect of it. It's the product of 20 years of essentially dishonesty to itself — that it could in fact carry out programs on its own successfully," Logsdon said.

At the least, the fierce negative reaction to the latest problems raises questions about how much the public will support the space program the next time something goes wrong, such as another space shuttle disaster, which many believe is inevitable given the complexity of the spaceship.

"I'm disturbed by the level of public criticism and anxiety that has been occasioned by these problems," Pike said. "The problems they are having right now is nothing compared to when the next shuttle blows up. I think support for NASA is very broad but not very deep."

Part of the reaction may be because the Challenger disaster, which killed the seven-member crew including schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe, is too recent, Pike said.

The backlash also may stem from NASA's can-do attitude, which tends to create the impression that what the agency does is easy, experts say.

"Most of us who are deeply involved in the program understand the really difficult nature of the technology we are driving and the possibility of error," the National Space Society's Garver said. "We have painted it to the public and Congress as being much more optimistic."

But she predicted NASA would weather the latest storm, saying: "I think they have been bruised, but I don't think there's been anything that's been fatal at this point."

man of the National Space Council.

Among the spate of embarrassing revelations from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in the past month: The Hubble Space Telescope, touted as a revolutionary new eye on the universe, turns out to be near-sighted. Days later, the space shuttle fleet, the centerpiece of the U.S. space program, is grounded by an elusive fuel leak.

At the same time, reports indicate the space station Freedom, envisioned as leading space exploration into the next century, may be too heavy and need too many repairs to be feasible.

Regarding the appointment of a review panel, one administration official said, "To the degree that a shuttle screw-up or the Hubble failure undermines public confidence in the program doesn't help, but it's not the main focus."

The White House could provide no timetable for a final decision by Bush on steps to address the concerns.

Officials acknowledged the proposal for an independent review was prompted in part by worries about funding prospects on Capitol Hill at a time when Bush is urging Congress to back projects estimated to cost upward of $300 billion over the next 30 years.

"Money is the underlying problem," said one official.

Instead of a master of technology on the high frontier, the agency has become a target for comedians and cartoonists.

The foul-ups have eroded public and congressional support for the agency to the lowest point since the space shuttle Challenger exploded in 1986, some say.

"We're concerned about the public perceptions of NASA and the space program," said Lori Garver, executive director of the National Space Society in Washington, a NASA booster.

"NASA is really in a crisis of confidence," agreed John Logsdon, director of the Space Policy Institute at George Washington University.

The blunders come as Congress considers whether to boost NASA's budget above $15 billion, a 24 percent hike representing the largest proposed increase of any government agency and includes programs key to the agency's future.

"I think they're in trouble," said John Pike of the American Federation of Scientists. "Two weeks ago the problem was, 'How big of an increase are they going to get?' These problems have couched it more in terms of hanging on to what they got."

At the beleaguered agency, morale has reportedly plummeted and something of a siege mentality has set in. Officials vow to uncover what caused the foul-ups, stress the problems can be fixed and argue the setbacks do not represent any fundamental problems.

The majority of students who are suggested by the schools sign up for the program, though Miller admits she has no way of enforcing attendance.

"Attendance has been pretty steady," she said. "Better than some other years, but there's no way to make these students come to class."

Miller added that one of the goals of the class is to motivate the youngsters and help them see school can be an enjoyable experience.

"Learning is fun here," she said.

The students in the Choices program are in class Monday through Thursday. Fridays are reserved for field trips. This past Friday, the students visited the University of Central Florida and Bethune-Cookman College. This coming Friday, they will be taking a behind-the-scenes tour of a "major attraction," according to Miller.

She said they will also have lunch at Church Street Station.

"We want them to see how people of some means spend their leisure time," Miller noted. She also said the class was not "just fun and games," adding that some students were frightened by the challenges they have been given, but noting that others have taken up the gauntlet and been motivated to do more.

"This is just the kind of extra push some of these kids need," she said.

The program does not have a system for tracking the youngsters who have completed the program to see how they fare in school and if they go to college.

"We see quite a few of them enroll in SCC, but I don't know about the others," she said.

Miller predicts that she will see the greatest number of former Choices students enroll in SCC.

"The eighth graders from our first year are ready to enter college this year," she said. "I think we'll get quite a few."

The Choices program has been an effective one, according to Miller. The students who stick with the program are more motivated and have gained invaluable study skills.

"It's worth it to be able to help these kids," she said.

He said, however that, "because of the rules governing school properties, the school board has many more restrictions on the property than would the City of Sanford, so our staff has recommended the transfer of title to the City."

The transfer will be discussed Tuesday afternoon beginning at 4 p.m., during a joint meeting of the Seminole County School Board and the City of Sanford, with Wells making the presentation.

Wells is also expected to present a proposal that the City consider entering into a joint request with the School Board, to obtain a state grant for the possible construction of a swimming pool.

Such a pool could be used by the schools, and also by the public. "The Public Education Outlay grants handled by the State, have a portion of money set aside for such things as construction of a swimming pool," Wells said.

He suggested that the Seminole High School area might be a good choice for a location, but that any application for a grant would be on a competitive basis and it would take possibly a year or more before any action could be taken.

The joint meeting of the School Board and the City is scheduled for 4 p.m., at the Sanford City Hall, Tuesday afternoon.

Lead poisoning fears increase

By CHARLES S. TAYLOR
United Press International

ATLANTA — New research shows the effects of lead poisoning are more pervasive and longer lasting in children than previously believed and even contribute to the high school dropout rate, federal health experts said.

Dr. Sue Binder of the U.S. Centers for Disease Control said members of the Advisory Committee on Childhood Lead Poisoning Prevention were to be briefed Monday and Tuesday on the new findings and "tell us what they think we should do."

The update of federal recommendations regarding lead poisoning prevention will be the first since 1985. The recommendations are used by pediatricians and lead screening programs throughout the United States.

Binder said the updated research indicates that the effects of lead poisoning occur earlier than previously thought and that even moderate increases in lead poisoning can lead to increases in the high school dropout rate and in reading disabilities.

Of particular concern to health authorities are prenatal exposure and children 2-3 years of age who because they frequently put their hands in their mouths, increase the potential for lead poisoning, said Binder of the CDC's Division of Environmental Hazards and Health Effects.

Lead has long been recognized as a poison to humans. There is speculation that one reason the Roman Empire declined is because lead from tableware caused sterility among the aristocracy.

In the United States, the CDC has estimated that as many as 675,000 children have excessive lead in their bloodstreams, especially poor black children.

Leaded gasoline once was the major source of lead poisoning in the United States. Federal environmental laws led to the virtual elimination of leaded gas, but Binder said lead from this source still lingers in the soil along roadways.

Besides roadside contamination, other major sources of lead poisoning are buildings that were painted with lead-based paints prior to the 1940s, industrial emissions and dust.

Young children, especially those under 5, are particularly vulnerable to lead poisoning, which causes mental retardation, damages the nervous system, blood cells and kidneys. It also has been shown to cause cancer in animals.

Powerful quake damages Philippines

United Press International

MANILA, Philippines — A "major" earthquake rocked metropolitan Manila today, causing widespread damage in the capital, injuring scores of people and possibly leaving one person dead of a heart attack, officials said.

Richter scale readings worldwide ranged from 6.2 to 8.0.

The tremor struck at 4:28 p.m. and was centered in Cabanatuan city in Nueva Ecija, a rice-producing province about 60 miles north of Manila, said the Volcanology Commission, which registered the quake at 8.2 on the Richter scale.

A commission spokesman described it as a "very strong shock" that lasted more than a minute. He said there were several aftershocks over several minutes. The quake was felt in varying degrees in wide areas of the main Luzon island.

The U.S. Geological Survey in Golden, Colo., said it recorded the quake at 7.7 on the open-ended Richter scale. An earthquake of 7.0 is capable of widespread and heavy damage.

Japan's Meteorological Agency said its observatory estimated the quake's magnitude at between 7.5 and 8.0. The agency said an observatory in Honolulu reported the quake at 7.7 on the Richter scale.

At least 46 people were hospitalized and one person died of a heart attack after the quake struck, hospital officials said. It was not immediately clear whether the tremor directly caused the heart attack.

Witnesses and news reports said scores more suffered minor injuries from falling concrete slabs and shattered windows.

IN BRIEF

AMERICAN LEAGUE

'Sparky' gets 1800th victory

Now that Sparky Anderson has his 1,800th career victory, he would like to reach his goal of 2,000 before becoming an old man.

The 56-year-old manager, who has guided his teams to five World Series, became only the 10th manager in major league history to reach the 1,800-win plateau with Detroit's 3-2 victory Sunday over the Texas Rangers.

"If it takes as long to get 1,900 as it did 1,800, I'll be 75 years old," Anderson said.

Elsewhere in the American League, Kansas City pounded Boston 13-4, Chicago topped New York 8-5, Minnesota slugged Baltimore 10-3, Oakland downed Milwaukee 4-1, Seattle blanked Cleveland 7-0 and California clipped Toronto 3-2.

OLYMPIC FESTIVAL

Johnson takes all-around

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Brandy Johnson, trying to quell her critics, took home a gold medal in the vault. Johnson, 17, of Apopka, was the women's all-around champion, and a member of the gold medal winning South team.

"I was really pleased with my vault," Johnson said. "There was a possibility that I wasn't even going to compete."

Johnson injured her left ankle during her balance beam dismount Friday. She said she expects her ankle will have to be X-rayed to determine the extent of injury.

Noting that no one athlete dominated the women's competition, South team coach Kevin Brown, of Altamonte Springs' Brown's Gymnastics, said the United States is well positioned to do well in the 1992 Olympics.

Rypien wins celebrity golf

LAKE TAHOE, Nev. — Mark Rypien's worst nightmare almost blindsided him on the final hole of the $400,000 Celebrity Golf Championship Sunday at Edgewood Golf Course.

The Washington Redskins quarterback watched as ex-Miami Dolphins safety Dick Anderson hit a miraculous second shot onto the 18th green.

But Anderson missed a 15-foot eagle putt that gave Rypien a one-stroke victory in the first-ever event for celebrities with 10 handicaps or less.

Rypien finished the day at even-par-72. He shot 5-over-par during the 3-day event, recording a 221 total. Anderson scored a 74 on the final day and finished at 222.

TOUR de FRANCE

LeMond, Breukink close gap

MILLAU, France — Dutchman Eric Breukink and American Greg LeMond continued to edge closer to Tour de France leader Claudio Chiappucci after another scorching stage Sunday that left riders gasping for air.

Marino Lejarreta of Spain won the 127-mile stage through the Massif Central hills from St. Etienne to Millau in a late break in the final climb. He finished in five hours, 12 minutes, three seconds, beating compatriot Miguel Indurain by 24 seconds.

A late surge by LeMond, Breukink and Spain's Pedro Delgado, who finished together at 34 seconds behind Lejarreta, forced 13 seconds off Chiappucci's lead.

In the overall standings, second-placed Breukink moved to within 1:49 of Chiappucci, with LeMond in third place at 2:21. Delgado moved into fourth place, at 4:26.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Myers blows away Mets

When Randy Myers was with the New York Mets, he lifted weights, wore military fatigues and was considered a little crazy.

He also threw 90 mile an hour fastballs, something he still does with the Cincinnati Reds. Sunday, Myers faced four batters, struck them all out and preserved the Reds' 2-1 victory over the Mets.

The left-hander, who has saved all six of Cincinnati's victories over the Mets this season, used a mixture of fastballs and sliders, earning his 20th save.

Myers wasn't the only Cincinnati pitcher to stymie the Mets Sunday. Norm Charlton, the Reds' starter, retired the first 12 Mets he faced and allowed two hits in six shutout innings.

Elsewhere in the National League, Montreal outlasted Atlanta 16-14, San Diego snuffed Pittsburgh 4-1, Chicago contained Los Angeles 5-1, Houston bombed Philadelphia 6-1 and San Francisco knocked off St. Louis 5-3.

Cougars win SSG title

Tournament MVP Polite leads SBA Kemper girls

From staff reports

MIAMI — Led by tournament MVP Selma Polite, the Kemper Cougars of the Sunshine Basketball Association won the girls' 12-and-Under basketball championship at the Sunshine State Games on Sunday morning.

Playing at the University of Miami, the Cougars hammered Bradenton 13th Avenue CC 47-30 to claim the title. The Cougars, who had a first-round bye in the seven-team tournament, defeated Lakeland 48-30 on Saturday in advance to Sunday's championship game.

Lakeland took the bronze medal, picking up a 2-0 forfeit win over Palm Beach Gardens.

Polite, who was named to the All-Tournament team, scored a game-high 21 points Sunday to lead the Cougars past Bradenton. Kim Sharkey added 10 and Laura Ragucci clipped in with six as nine different Cougars contributed points.

For Bradenton, Darlene Siplin scored a team-high 12 points.

The Cougars took control of the game in the first eight-minute quarter by outscoring Bradenton 10-9. Bradenton rallied somewhat in the second quarter, outscoring the Cougars 8-4 to close to 23-17 by halftime. But the Cougars came back out in the third quarter and whipped Bradenton 13-7 to take a 36-24 lead going into the final period.

Also named to the All-Tournament team with Polite were Kemper teammates Ragucci and Kelly Evans. Siplin and Kate Feizek from Bradenton and Lakeland's Rebecca Robinson.

Members of the championship Cougar team, which draws most of its players from the Seminole County area, are Heather Byson, Mary Bush, Julie Davidson, Evans, Ashley Flanagan, Sheri Gell, Amber Kaye, Angie Olson, Kathryn Pitts, Polite, Ragucci, Sharkey and Mary Songgrass.

Adcock in control of Buddy Lake

From staff reports

SANFORD — In a battle for first place in the Buddy Lake Summer Baseball League standings, Adcock Roofing (Seminole High School's summer league team) and the Florida Baseball School Academy staged a classic nailbiter at Sanford Memorial Stadium Sunday.

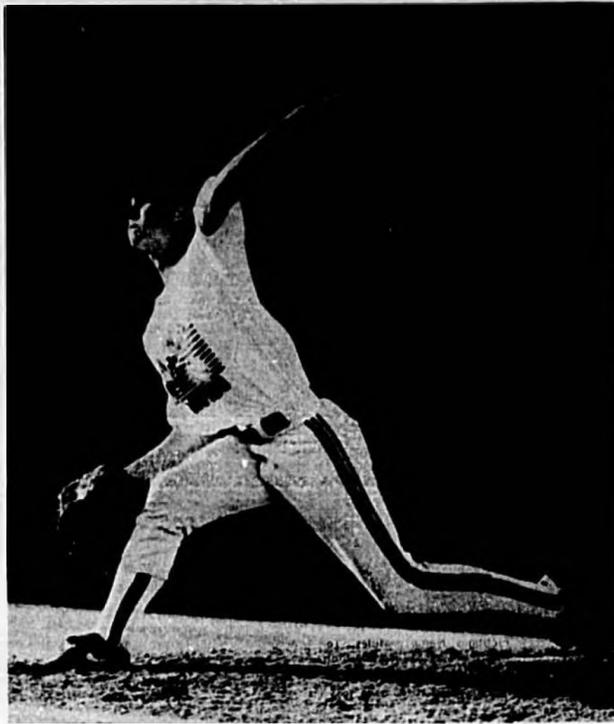

Nothing, not even a four-run lead in the last inning, could be taken for granted as Adcock Roofing used Demetry Beamon's two-out, two-run triple to rally from a 9-5 deficit for a 10-9 win.

In the league standings, Adcock Roofing moves into first at 11-5. The East Coast All Stars, struggling lately, are in second at 8-4 while the FHS Academy drops to 8-6. The slumping Sanford Reds, who forfeited a game to Adcock on Sunday, are at 7-10. The Patriots, Lake Brantley's junior varsity squad, are 2-11.

The top two teams in the league play for the championship on August 3-5.

Adcock started the scoring in the second as Jeremy Chunal got hit in the head with the pitch. After Beamon walked, Rick Eckstein

Oviedo Juniors, Seniors sweep Area 3

From staff reports

The Oviedo Juniors and Seniors and the Altamonte Springs American Juniors and American Majors all advanced to their respective District 14 championship rounds play with victories in Area tournaments over the weekend.

The Oviedo Juniors won the Area 3 tournament with a 14-3 trouncing of the Altamonte Nationals at Eustis to advance along with the Altamonte Springs Americans, who won the Area 2 tournament with an 11-2 spanking of Rolling Hills at Altamonte Springs.

Also at Eustis, the Oviedo Seniors advanced with a 4-1 win over Eustis while the Altamonte Springs American Majors squeaked by Apopka 2-1 at Pine Hills.

Deltona kept Oviedo from advancing all three of its All-Star teams to the district finals by beating Oviedo in the finals of the Majors' Area 3 tournament.

The District 14 finals are scheduled to open Tuesday night.

MAJORS

PINE HILLS — For the second consecutive night, Jason Gronert blasted a home run to defeat Apopka as the Altamonte Americans came out of the losers' bracket to advance to district play.

The Americans will have their work cut out for them if they are to continue in the tournament as they will be the only team of the four area winners with a loss. The Americans will have to win three straight games to claim the district crown.

The Americans will take on Area 1 winner South Orange at 7 p.m. Tuesday at Dr. Phillips. The other game will be played at Eastmonte Park at 7 p.m.

JUNIORS

EUSTIS — The game between the Oviedo Juniors and the Altamonte Nationals was much closer than the score indicated. The game was tied 3-3 until Oviedo scored two runs in the top of the fifth, three in the sixth and six in the seventh to turn the game into a rout.

Brian King came on in relief of starter Byron Collier in the third and pitched five innings of no-hit baseball for Oviedo. King struck out four and walked five in his winning stint.

King got help from his defense as his mates turned two double plays to end Altamonte threats.

King climbs out of 11-stroke hole to defend Open crown

United Press International

DULUTH, Ga. — The 1990 U.S. Women's Open Championship will probably be remembered as the one Patty Sheehan lost rather than the one Betsy King won.

Even King, the defending champion, expressed surprise over her victory after she overcame an 11-stroke deficit Sunday when Sheehan's golf game came unglued to become the fifth player in the tournament's 45-year history to win back-to-back titles.

"I was just trying to stay in there and finish well to get second place," King said. "I didn't realize I had the lead until I stood on the 12th green. That was the first time I knew I'd caught her, that I was ahead."

Down by those 11 shots after three holes in Sunday's 36-hole marathon, King trailed by 5 after outscoring Sheehan 71-75 in the third round, then outscored her 70-76 in the final round to win by a single stroke with a 4-under-par 284 total.

Sheehan, a three-time runner-up but never a winner in the Open, had played the rain-delayed first two rounds at a record pace and was at 12-under after two early third-round birdies — putting her eight shots ahead of the field.

But Sheehan had three bogeys and no birdies over the next 14 holes, then closed the third round with a double bogey after hitting into a pond in front of the green.

That left her at 7 under — still 4 strokes ahead of the field and 5 better than King — but her bogey troubles carried over into the final round, enabling King to surge into the lead.

King was 2 ahead after a birdie at No. 11. Sheehan made a last-gasp comeback attempt with birdies at 14 and 15 to move into a tie, but blew her chance when she hit into a bunker on the par 3 17th and suffered her sixth bogey of the final round.

"It hurts, it hurts a lot," said Sheehan, who started crying while being interviewed right after she putted out on the final hole.

"I'm happy. I hit the ball very well today," said King, who finished two holes ahead of Sheehan and then waited at the final green to see her closest pursuer finish up. "I didn't miss anything short."

"I think it's very hard to win the Open from the lead, particularly when you get a big lead," King said. "It's almost like you're waiting for the tournament to end, hoping for the holes to run out a little sooner."

At the end, King also was being pursued by Dottie Mochrie, who shot a 6-under-par 66 in the final round and wound up tied for third, at 2 under 286, with Danielle Amunaccapane, who had a closing 71. Mary Murphy was fifth at 74-287 and three golfers — Elaine Crosby (70), Tammie Green (71), and Beth Daniel (72) — were at even-par 288.

Sheehan started Sunday's 36-hole marathon with a 6-stroke lead after having played the first 36 in 10 under par 134 — lowest score ever posted for the first 36 holes of a women's Open. Despite a third round 75, she was still 4 ahead of the field, and 5 ahead of King, going into the final round.

Ducks and frogs smarter than ballplayers, golfers

While we're waiting for our (take your pick) - A.) gloves; B.) shoes; C.) clubs; D.) uniform - to dry, let's examine what motivates adults to participate in recreational activities in weather that sends ducks and frogs looking for cover.

TONY DESOFNER

I feel comfortable in saying "we," for there had to be somebody else who got caught on the back nine of a golf course somewhere during Friday's, Saturday's and/or Sunday's rain that decided to keep playing because they were already soaked to the skin, had already payed the greens fee and had played too many holes to qualify for a rain check.

participating in a frustrating activity like golf serves as a pressure valve. Or at least, that's what I tell my wife.

And the scutebut overheard at local diamonds has it that there was at least one softball tournament in Seminole County that preached ahead Saturday despite a horizontal rain that rendered the brims of baseball caps completely useless.

Certainly, playing 18 holes or seven innings isn't as constructive as, say, quilling, gardening or doing some work around the house. But when you get together with friends this winter, you're not going to reminisce about what a great job you did on your lawn that July afternoon.

If our mothers had seen us they would have grabbed us by the ear and given us that eternal maternal refrain, "Don't you have enough sense to come in out of the rain?"

Of course, thanks to the Florida climate, we'll probably be doing the same things this winter that we're doing this summer. It just won't be the raining and the humidity won't be as high.

Obviously not. Sociologists who've never swung a bat or a club would probably say that we're still caught in some adolescent fantasy, trying to prove something to ourselves at a time when sane men and women would be inside and watching the rain fall outside. And they'd probably be right. But that's cool.

There's also another consideration that keeps us playing in foul, er, foul weather. And it's a strictly financial. Like I said earlier, once you pay your money and there's no chance for a refund, you keep playing, come hell or high water (both of which we witnessed this weekend).

Personally, I have trouble finding anything wrong with engaging in a little adolescent fun. After working all week and having to deal with family and home responsibilities, a couple hours of playing a kid's game like baseball and softball or

And in tournaments like the softball competition that played on through the near-hurricane conditions, there are often teams that have made special arrangements to travel and compete. Since many can't come back tomorrow or later, they want to play now, rain or no rain.

Hey, it beats sitting inside.

Enter our writing contest

The Sanford Herald is searching for two Seminole County high school students who are prospective journalists.

Write us a letter about a person in Seminole County whom you would like to interview. The person need not be famous. He or she could be an unsung hero who volunteers time to those less fortunate. You may choose to interview a politician, community leader, or even someone notorious. Tell us why you wish to write a story about this person.

Your letter will be reviewed by our panel of judges based on originality, clarity of thought and our accessibility to the person to be interviewed. (Remember, the person must be available for an interview.)

Two winners will be selected. Each will write a feature story, assisted by one of our editors, to appear in a future edition of the Herald.

Letters should be typed or printed legibly. Include your name, street address, city and daytime phone number.

Deliver or mail to "Feature Story Contest," Sanford Herald, 300 N. French Ave., Sanford, 32771.

There is no maximum length limit on letters.

Entries are due at the Herald office by 1 p.m., Friday August 10.

Don't forget plants while on vacation

Summer is the season of vacations. Most people do not realize what damages can occur to your plants and lawn during the two weeks that you are away. With a little advance preparation, your landscape can survive your absence.

If you can, it would be ideal to have neighbor or friend look after your plants while you're gone. Go over the directions for their care with this person as they might not know how you care for your plants. Write the directions down if you think it will help them to have something they can refer back to.

Here's a few pointers on preparing your plants for your vacation. Possibly, the most sensitive plants to your absence may be the plants in containers both inside and out. The soil of plants in containers dries out faster than the soil surrounding plants in the ground. Place all outdoor container plants in a shaded place, such as the north side of the house or under a large shade tree. Potted plants can be planted in the ground, containers and all, up to the rim of the pot and covered with a thick layer of mulch to conserve moisture.

Place plants in the home in a cool room that receives indirect light. Direct sunlight could scorch the leaves, especially if the soil

CELESTE WHITE

dries out. However, don't put the plants in a dark room — the shock will be too much for the plant and could result in a large amount of green leaf drop. The last thing to do before you leave is to give the plants a thorough watering, but be sure to empty the saucers so the plants are not sitting in water.

An unmowed lawn is a sure sign that no one is at home, so try to mow the lawn just prior to leaving and make arrangements to have the lawn mowed if you plan to be gone for longer than 2 weeks. If you've been having problems with insects or diseases, you may want to treat the lawn prior to leaving.

Give the trees and shrubs a good watering awn, especially recently planted ones. Adding extra mulch will help conserve moisture, too. Annual flowers can be cut back. In your absence they can go to seed and will stop blooming by the time you get back. It wouldn't hurt to spray them as well if you have or suspect a problem with insects or diseases.

Try to weed your landscape well just prior to departing to prevent the weeds from going to seed. This will really pay off. Hopefully, when you return there will be a lot less weeds to deal with.

When you return from vacation, be careful when mowing your overgrown lawn. It should not cut to a three-inch height immediately. Instead, remove a third of the leaf surface on the first mow. Several days later, remove another third and continue until the 3-to-4-inch recommended height is reached. Drastically changing the height of your lawn at any time can shock it.

Once you've prepared your plants both indoors and outdoors, you can go away on vacation without a worry about your plants back home!

All Seminole County Cooperative Extension Service programs are open to all regardless of race, color, sex or national origin.

Have confidence

Brady asks for help with handguns

DEAR READERS: On March 30, 1981, John Hinckley walked into a gun store, bought a handgun and attempted to kill President Reagan. The bullet meant for Reagan struck his press secretary, James S. Brady, paralyzing him. Here is the letter Mr. Brady published recently in The New York Times:

"Add your voice to mine. Help me beat the gun lobby. Ever since I was shot, I have watched from my wheelchair as the gun lobby blocked one sane handgun control proposal after another. "But I'm not just watching anymore. I'm calling on Congress to pass a commonsense law — the Brady Bill — requiring a seven-day 'cooling off' period before the purchase of a handgun, so police will have time to check if the buyer as a criminal record.

"The Brady Bill will save thousands of lives and prevent tens of thousands of crippling injuries. Ninety-one percent of the American people — and 81 percent of American handgun owners — support it. And so does every major law enforcement organization in the country. "In fact, it seems that the only people who oppose the Brady Bill are psychopaths, criminals, drug dealers and the gun lobby. "So why hasn't Congress passed it? Because too many members are afraid of the gun lobby, and too many take the gun lobby's political action committee money.

"In the last six years, while handguns were killing 120,000 Americans, the gun lobby poured $4 million into Congress' pockets to block the sane handgun laws. The gun lobbyists claim that a seven-day wait is 'inconvenient.' (I'd like to see one of them spend a day in my wheelchair!)

"Can't we beat the gun lobby?"

Yes — if we raise our voices together, we can send Congress a message it can't ignore: "Vote this bill in, or we'll vote you out."

"Here's all I'm asking you to do, and it's really easy. Call 1-800-226-4455 and for only $2.75 (charged to your phone bill), we'll send a letter in your name to your representative supporting the Brady Bill. We'll also send you a copy.

"Please, help me break the gun lobby's stranglehold on Congress! — James S. Brady"

I read the above letter on Monday morning, June 25, at 7 a.m. I promptly called the above number. I received a busy signal, advising me that all the lines were busy and to stay on the line. I stayed on the line as long as I had to in order to get through. Nothing I did that day was more important than making that call.

DEAR ABBY: I hope "Heartack in Arizona" writes her son out of her will. He apparently prefers his pit bull to his mother, so he certainly doesn't deserve any of her money. Pets are nice, but they should not replace people.

On second thought, it might have been better if "Heartack" had chosen to have a pet instead of a son.

TICKED OFF IN TEXAS

DEAR READERS: Hold the presses. I just received a letter from Tim Walker advising me that one Edna Gould Williams was graduated with honors from Loma Linda University in June 1988 at the age of 85.

Thus far she holds the record for the oldest college graduate. Belated congratulations to Edna.

Healthy celibacy is a matter of choice

DEAR DR. GOTT: How are people affected physically or mentally if they are not sexually active? I've been told that nature goes up to the head and makes people mentally ill if they are celibate.

DEAR READER: Celibacy does not produce ill health, nor does the practice itself cause physical or mental harm. There's enormous variation in human adult sexual practices. Some people seem to need regular and frequent sexual release, whereas other people are content with occasional sexual activity — or none at all. The cause of this normal variation is unknown.

When unrelieved sexual tensions reach a peak, nature has provided a method of release, through vivid and explicit sexual dreams that often terminate in orgasm. Such release can also be achieved through the universal and harmless practice of self-pleasuring.

Sexual inactivity may produce emotional and physical discomfort, however, if a person's expectations and needs are not met. For example, a couple can experience frustration and anger if one member's sexual needs are not satisfied by the partner.

Note that this conflict is not a result of celibacy per se; rather, it is due to a complex interaction of factors relating to how well (or how poorly) we meet the needs — both sexual and non-sexual — of the people in our environment.

Thus, celibates will not become "mentally ill" if their sexual preferences are self-imposed. Emotionally maladaptive behavior can appear, however, if the celibacy is externally governed; that is, if a person is forced into sexual inactivity against his or her wishes.

Celibacy is no more likely than hyper-sexuality to result in harm. Problems seem to arise as a consequence of people's perceptions about being under- or over-sexed.

Some individuals choose celibacy for religious reasons; others are celibate because of disability or physical illness. On occasion, some patients refrain from sex because of psychological conflicts leading to fear or loathing of sexual expression. In such cases, the emotional disturbance precedes the celibacy rather than being a result of it.

The right play for today's declarer combines avoidance with breaking up communications between the defenders' hands. First of all, South should allow West to win the queen of hearts. If South takes the queen of hearts, West has the suit established and can run four more tricks to set the contract. So declarer would have to guess the location of the club queen to make his contract. After West is allowed to win the first trick, declarer's strategy depends on West's next play. If West plays ace and a heart, South must play against all 4-1 club splits except the singleton queen with West.

ace and a club. Even though East makes a trick with the club queen, the contract is safe, since East cannot reach West's hand. On the other hand, if West shifts to either a diamond or a spade, declarer employs a different tactic. Now he must go to dummy and play the jack of clubs, finesse against East. If West wins the trick, the king of hearts is still safe from attack. If the finesse wins, declarer will have enough tricks for his contract. Note that it is right to reach dummy with a spade to take the first-round finesse against the club queen in the East hand, since this wins against all 4-1 club splits except the singleton queen with West.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Cool
YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 17, 1990

Two large opportunities may present themselves in the year ahead that will be meaningful to you and your family. If everyone acts in harmony, happy results could be in the offing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Conditions in general look encouraging for you today, especially where newer interests are concerned. Strive to be optimistic and hopeful in all of your involvements. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone you thought outranked you might propose an interesting joint endeavor with you today. It could be a step up to the big leagues.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Dealings you have with close friends should work out advantageously for all concerned today, even matters that are not of a social nature.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't let activities which are not profit-yielding usurp the time of those that are. Focus your efforts on money makers today and ignore those that can't ring the register.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Partnership arrangements could offer you special benefits today that won't be available to you operating independently. There is both victory and strength in union.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Financial conditions look hopeful for you today from both your primary sources of income as well as your secondary ones. Strive for gains in each area.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) All work and no play is a sure-fire prescription for sapping the zing out of life today. Once you set your tools aside, seek out a pleasurable pursuit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Lady Luck tends to favor you materially today, but she's not apt to give you a free ride. Your rewards will come from an ambitious project you set into motion.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today there are indications you might be more fortunate where large issues are concerned than you will be with small ones. Devote your thoughts, energies and efforts to that which you deem to be big.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be persistent, but use a soft sell in a situation where you hope to gain something of substance today. The trends are flowing in your favor, so don't do anything to rock the boat.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Others will be prepared to grant you favors today, but they'll want recognition for the assistance they render. Regardless of the cost, you'll still come out ahead.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In competitive developments today, you'll have the upper hand, but you might not realize it. Evaluate opponents realistically, but don't endow them with advantages they lack.
