Crooms Academy's Winner Over Jones Before Huge Crowd

Crooms Academy's Panthers knocked the strong Jones High School eleven of Orlando out of the running as contenders for the state negro high school football championship for 1934 at Municipal Park yesterday afternoon by scoring a 7 to 0 victory that came in the last few minutes of play. More than 1500 persons, many of them white football fans of this and adjoining cities, attended the game which was stubbornly contested all the way. It was the largest football crowd in Sanford since Leesburg and Seminole High played here in 1932.

Outplayed during the first three quarters of the game, Crooms came back during the last quarter and swept the Orlando team all over the field. Where Jones had rolled up 12 first downs to seven for Crooms during the three quarters, Crooms made five first downs to only one for Jones in the final quarter.

The touchdowns came on a long pass to left end Strickland late in the game, while Captain Patrick added the extra point with an off-kick. Stars for Crooms included Dingle, J. Jackson, Gregory, LeFehr, F. Clark, Reeler and Strickland.

Featuring the game was a 45 yard off-tackle run made by Captain Patrick near the end of the third quarter. Vicious tackling and blocking also thrilled the fans.

U. S. LENDING GROUPS TO BE CO-ORDINATED

Roosevelt Move Seen As Beginning Of The End Of Emergency Agencies

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(A.P.)—A committee to co-ordinate all the lending activities of the government was appointed today by President Roosevelt.

The move was interpreted as a start on the consolidation of federal agencies with a view to absorbing all emergency units as the recovery campaign permits.

Secretary Morgenthau heads the committee.

Mr. Roosevelt said at his regular press conference that the future program for emergency recovery units probably would not be definitely decided until about the first of the year.

He said it would probably be determined also whether any more funds would be asked for the Home Owners Loan Corporation.

Distelhurst, is pictured at the right in the clothing he wore while in New York City where he went to search for the abductors as per instructions contained in a $5000 ransom note. He was told to wear clothing of this type while wandering in the streets of the city near a certain building.

ACTION ON EXPORTS PLEASES

World Money Centers React Favorably To Order Lifting Ban On Credit Transfer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Observers read hints of orthodoxy, stability and confidence in the future of the dollar yesterday between the lines of a treasury order removing all restrictions from transactions in foreign exchange.

Although the move had little if any reflection in the day's currency quotations, treasury officials were pleased with the reaction expressed in world money centers, where the view was taken that it represented an advance toward normal conditions.

The order removed a requirement that all purchasers of foreign exchange obtain the permission of the treasury, a consent readily given in all cases. It substituted only a condition that all future purchases in excess of $5000 be reported to the federal reserve banks.

In some quarters, the action was interpreted as a strong indication that no further devaluation of the dollar is in immediate contemplation. If such a step were in mind, it was argued, the treasury would be tightening, not relaxing the flow. (Continued on Page Two)

HOME OWNERS LOAN AGENCY CLOSES DOORS

Officials Say Time Is Near When Private Business Can Take Over Its Functions

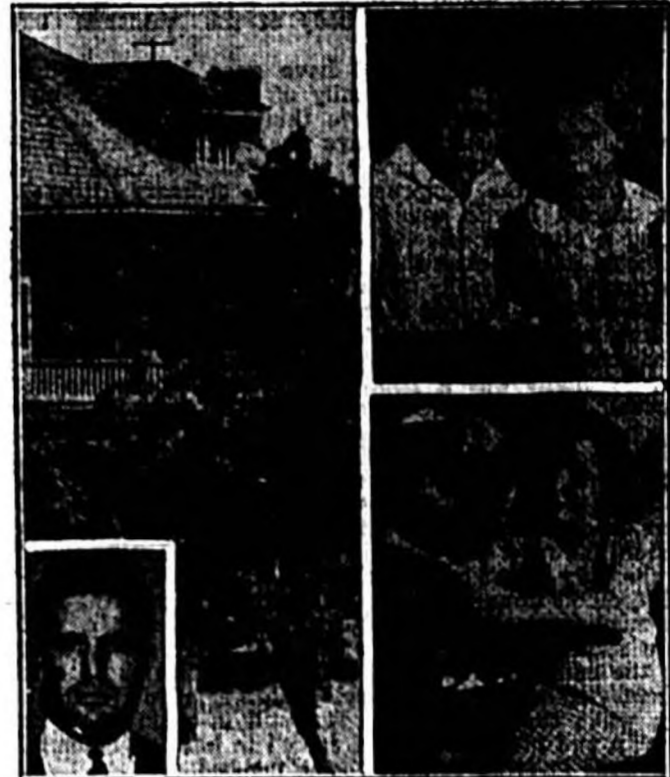

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—One of the government's foremost money lending agencies closed its doors yesterday against new loan applications reporting the time was near when private business once more could take over its functions.

The Home Owners' Loan Corporation, with more than a million unanswered applications on file, announced the $1,200,000,000 remaining in its coffers would fill about 400,000 of these requests and that it would take no more. Originally the corporation had around $3,000,000,000 with which to aid beleaguered home owners in meeting mortgages.

From the White House coincidentally came authoritative indications that no additional funds would be asked from Congress. Thus the HOLC would end its lending life about next March.

Considerable importance was attached to this decision, indicating as it did that President Roosevelt believes recovery has at least advanced to a point where the (Continued From Page Two)

DISTELHURST CHILD FOUND DEAD IN GRAVE

Body Of Girl Missing Since Sept. 19 Discovered Near Her Home In Nashville

NASHVILLE, Nov. 14.—(A.P.)—Attorney-General Carlton Loser announced after a conference with a physician and dentist today that the body found on the outskirts of Nashville yesterday "is that of Dorothy Ann Distelhurst."

Saying that "the child was murdered," the statement issued by the Attorney-General argued that "while the corpse is in such a state of decomposition as to render identification by those who knew the child impossible, every other fact in connection with the matter points to the conclusion that the body is that of the Distelhurst child."

The nude body of the little girl was found yesterday on the Davidson County Tuberculosis Hospital grounds in a shallow grave, and today Dr. Herman Spitz, pathologist, and Dr. Leonard Pogus, children's dentist and orthodontist specialists in their respective professions, after a careful check of the teeth reported identification "a certain and positive."

Dr. Pogus had filled the child's teeth shortly before she disappeared last Sept. 19 on the way home from a kindergarten, and said he recognized the filling in a (Continued on Page Three)

Truck Crop Acreage Shows Gain In State

ORLANDO, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Increased acreages in many truck crops in Florida this fall were reported yesterday in the monthly survey of the Department of Agriculture Bureau here.

Larger plantings of cucumbers, tomatoes, sweet potatoes, peanuts, and peppers were indicated. Production of beans was decidedly off, and cabbage plantings were light.

With 4,500 acres planted, against 4,000 last year, fall tomatoes showed the heaviest increase in acreage. The acreage in beans dropped from 20,500 last season to 17,500 this year.

October weather was mostly warm with less than the usual amount of rainfall, and conditions were reported favorable for harvesting crops.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

The Sanford Water Department announced this morning that there are 30 more water meters installed to date than there were this date last year, and that there is a very noticeable increase in the number of deposits made for new water meters.

Last year this time there were 200 meters in service in private homes and business establishments. Today there were 230 meters in service. For the first 13 days of 1933, sixteen meters were installed but 10 were removed, while for the first 13 days of 1934, seventeen meters were installed and only three removed.

Max Stewart Hurt Painfully In Auto Wreck Late Monday

Max Stewart, local insurance agent, is confined to his home on South Melbourne suffering from injuries sustained in an automobile accident near Orange City late Monday night while he was en route home to Sanford.

Although he is reported to have spent a restless night last night his condition this morning was held as improved. He suffered facial lacerations, and a fractured chest bone.

Mr. Stewart was driving down a small hill leading into Orange City when, in attempting to dodge a car which appeared on the road way to his right, his automobile struck soft sand and the steering wheel slipped from his control.

The car plowed downward into a deep ditch, glanced off a telephone pole, and then started to climb the bank of the ditch back on to the road.

However, the wheels again struck soft sand and the car rolled back into the ditch, turning over twice and landing on its side. During this time, Mr. Stewart was hurled through the roof of the car, landing about 30 feet away from the car when it had stopped.

Living motorists brought him to Sanford where his injuries were treated.

TEXAS CONDUCTS OWN PROBE INTO COSTS OF RELIEF

Audit Reveals That $628 Was Spent To Give $125 To Needy

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 14.—A controversy has been raging in Texas since September over the high cost of administering relief funds, a cost which Sen. William E. Bush, speaking of the national cost as a whole, branded as a "shameful waste."

When an audit revealed that in Sterling county, for instance, $628.15 was spent to give out $125.72 in relief, legislators got busy. They found that similar circumstances existed in other counties.

The legislature spurred to action, abolished a top-heavy relief commission of nine non-paid members. The assembly gave the job to a board of control composed of a former hardware merchant and two other business men.

It told this board to trim the cost of distribution relief and do so immediately. As a further curb against alleged excessive expenditures, legislators issued only $6,000,000 in state relief bonds in lieu of the $25,000,000 asked by Governor Murray (Ma) Ferguson, and proceeded to budget even that amount.

Ten days later the governor called the legislature back into another special session, requested (Continued on Page Two)

"You either voted or didn't vote. If you voted, let us hope you voted for what you wanted. If you didn't vote, you can't complain against what you got."

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

GOD FORGIVES AND HEALS:—Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits: who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thine diseases; who redeemeth thy life from destruction.—Psalm 103:3-4.

LEAVE THE WINDOW OPEN

Leave the window open: Soon a bird will fly in from the leafy branches, and winds blow from the sky. Sit in the sunny orchard, and watch the ripe fruit fall: You will not need to climb the tree Or shake the bough at all. Quiet your heart in the silence: Let song come as it please—As winds blow in through the window, Or apples drop from the trees. By Theodore Maynard

"Count that day lost," says Arthur Brisbane, whose low depending sun visor no tax plan added to the old one.

Just think, if there had been no depression during the past six years, many a town would have had to get along without that new postoffice.

James Jones compliments the railroad for efficient management in that, having lost half their total volume of business, so few of them have gone into bankruptcy. In Sanford there are a number of concerns which, having lost 80 per cent of their business, are still operating. But in Sanford we got into the depression earlier, learned how to adjust ourselves to it, and have long since begun to climb out of it.

We hear much of high taxation in this country, but nowhere do we seem to have the burden which Stephen Berkus of Nagykalda, Hungary, must have borne. Answered to madness because his row was attacked by unpaid taxes, he killed three of his children, seriously injured a fourth, and then attacked his wife. They know what high taxes are in Hungary.

In spite of all our talk about freedom, liberty and democracy, we are a much governed people in this country. The Tampa Tribune says there are 176,418 governmental units in the United States. But the United States is a big country, you say. Well, Florida is not so big, and there are 1,397 governmental units in this one state. May be someone can tell us why we need so many different kinds of governments to govern us, each of them costing money.

President Roosevelt has found another means of pumping money into circulation. This time he is going to do something for the small business man who had been wondering when his turn would come. More than two billion dollars will be made available to little business for borrowing, and through little business it is expected to reach the little wage earner. Some little businesses, though always glad to borrow, might tell the President the best way to help little business is to cut the taxes.

Someone suggests that a good way to stop automobile accidents would be to have the newspapers photograph every accident that occurs. The more they know about the highway, the more, twisted, and mangled, and perhaps the loved ones, grief-stricken, back home. Certainly such a campaign would be a most laudable one. Many people never see an accident until they are in one. Surely a depressing thing the newspapers would become, their pages covered with the pictures of the debris from automobile

It Was A Trick!

Crowds which flock to alight-of-hand performances demonstrate that the people love magic. If the people had seen Robert Heger, alleged Hindu mystic, going through his preview performance in St. Paul last Saturday afternoon, they would have seen him hurl a rope into the air which then stood there rigidly upright. They would have seen a small boy climb swiftly up the rope and vanish at the top into thin air. They would have seen the Hindu himself follow after the boy, slashing madly at him with a two edged sword. At the top they would have seen the Hindu himself disappear, as the dismembered body of the vanished boy fell in pieces to the floor. Many a spectator would have gone home and told the other members of his family of this amazing miracle and because he likes to believe things that are not true he would have thought always that certain people possess some supernatural power which enables them to do things beyond the comprehension of ordinary mortals. Their mental inertia would have prevented them from seeking a plausible solution for this seeming paradox. A few would have shaken their heads, doubted that anything so strange could really take place exactly as it seemed, and might have figured there was some catch in it. But unfortunately on Saturday evening, according to the newspapers from that city, the regular performance Saturday night was a flop. The crowds flocked to see, as usual, but when the supposed Hindu magician threw the rope into the air, the electrician forgot to substitute the blue, green and red floodlights for the all-revealing white lights, and a thin shiny wire was left plainly visible from the rope to the drops above. In spite of the litters, the performance went on, and the small boy clambered up the rope, but a back stage helper had fallen asleep and the "sky drop" behind which the boy was supposed to vanish, didn't drop. The boy was left hanging to the rope, suspended from the wire, in plain view of everyone. The Hindu started up the rope with his sword, but by that time the audience was in an uproar, and when the various dismembered pieces of the boy's body began to fall to the stage while the boy himself was still in plain view, the magician and his helpers were forced to beat an ignominious retreat in order to avoid being mobbed. For once, the people learned, at least those in that audience, learned, that "All is not gold that glitters."

The President's Estate

People who have been worrying about how they might safely invest what money they still have left after four or five years of depression, and others who recognize the difficulties involved in such a task during these changing times, may get a good laugh out of a story told by one of the Washington gossip columnist, Merry-Go-Round. We do not vouch for the truth of the following story. We know only that it admirably illustrates a point. As told by Merry-Go-Round the story goes as follows: "When James Roosevelt, father of the President, died, he left his sons an estate which was carefully invested and nets about $10,000 annually. The administrator of this estate is Philip Roosevelt, a partner in Roosevelt and Sons, investment bankers. He is a cousin of the President and also a close friend. "Some time ago he wrote his cousin in the White House regarding the various stocks and bonds in which the trust fund was invested. He suggested that if Franklin would give him some general information as to certain elements of the administration's future fiscal policy, it would help him, Philip, as administrator of the trust fund, with more benefit to the President." To this the President sent the following reply: "Dear Phil: "You are the administrator. "FRANKLIN." Some days later, the President received from his cousin another letter which read as follows: "Dear Franklin: "I have converted all your securities into Government bonds. "Now you are the administrator. "PHIL."

SANFORD TWENTY YEARS AGO

To help her celebrate her birth anniversary, the young friends of Irene Norwood gave her a happy surprise party last evening. Games and rumps were the order of the evening and every body had a fine time. Assisting Mrs. Norwood were Mrs. J. Johnson, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Nita Moore, Miss Jessie Zachary, and Miss Phillips. The children present were: Irene Norwood, Cora Lee Tillis, Edna Battle, Edna Williams, Dorothy Rumph, Mamie Kate Williams, Anna Dillouse, Maggie Pearl Smith, Robert Williams, Cole Woodcock, Edward Milton, Dick and Neill Coleman, Robin Bradford, Conner Whittle, Ernest Kintworth, J. A. Smith, Ernest Brotherton, and LaFayette Tillis. Never has there been a more brilliant gathering of women as yesterday afternoon from four to six at the reception given by Mrs. G. E. Smith in honor of her attractive guest, Mrs. Park Trammell, wife of Florida's chief executive. The handsome colonial home was a charming setting for the beautifully gowned women gathered beneath its hospitable roof. The guests' cards were taken at the door by Maud Lake and Margaret Neal. In the reception hall Miss Laura Fish cordially welcomed the guests. Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Trammell received in the drawing room while Mrs. W. E. Watson ushered guests into the dining room. Mrs. Forrest Lake presided at the coffee urn, Mrs. C. D. McLaughlin served the tea, and the Misses Elizabeth and Anne McLaughlin and Adelaide Higgins assisted in serving. Mrs. Trammell was beautifully gowned in yellow charmeuse and erpe, trimmed with pearls. Mrs. Smith wore a handsome gown of yellow erpe de chine. Miss Charlotte Hand entertained with a delightful dancing party last night at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hand. A charming simplicity prevailed in the decorations. Punch and

Tampans Will Seek To Establish Mart For Farmer Friends

TAMPA, Nov. 14.—A canvass of the business section of Tampa will be begun tomorrow in interest of the movement now underway to establish a non-profit, co-operative market for farmers of Hillsborough and adjoining counties. The drive will be conducted by business men of East Broadway, who will meet at the Farmers and Merchants Market at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning for final instructions. A membership campaign was launched among truck growers of this and adjacent territory last week by the South Florida Growers Association for the purpose of establishing a co-op market on East Broadway. This drive will be continued this week, following meetings scheduled last night in Plant City, tonight in Parrish Thursday night and in the association announced yesterday.

BUDAPEST, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Drugged because the family cow was attacked for unpaid taxes, Stephen Berkus, a Nagykalda farmer yesterday killed three of his children with an axe, seriously wounded a fourth and then tried to kill his wife. Neighbors succeeded in overpowering him. Securely chained, he was taken to prison.

RANDOM POLITICS

BY BYRON PRICE

(Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington) The pronouncement of political obstacles always in a hazardous undertaking. The departed has a confusing habit of sitting up and showing every sign of life in the midst of the ceremonies. But in the case of the Republican "old guard," the evidence at the inquest seems particularly convincing. Not only in the election returns, but in the course of the campaign itself, the chief sufferer was that rock-ribbed conservatism which for so many years controlled not only the Republican party, but the whole course of government policy at Washington. The true extent of the change of front appears not to be generally realized. Many have referred to Reed of Pennsylvania as the last apostle of that school of thought. Even he, however, said in his campaign that he favored a more liberal viewpoint than the old Republican viewpoint. Hanna and Aldrich probably would have considered him a young man tinged with radicalism. His campaign, as well as his ultimate defeat, were eloquent testimony how far party sentiment has moved. Now Republican Chairman Fletcher, himself a product of the old school, says necessary party change is a passing phase. Many forget that the decline of the "old guard" began many years ago, and gained great acceleration even in the days when Republican administrations were riding high at Washington. Theodore Roosevelt gave "old guardmen" a scare, but little more. They stayed in the saddle, though their grip on the reins began to be less sure. The real descent toward utilization began as far back as 1928. In that off-year election, despite the popularity of President Coolidge, several of the stalwarts were swept overboard. More and more of them have gone with every succeeding election year. Perhaps the depression hastened the process, but it scarcely can be assigned all of the responsibility. The trend was plain and progressive, long before the depression began. Now there is just about nothing left at all of that powerful group of "old guard" leaders who had so much to do with putting Harding into the White House. The Republican regulars who emerged victorious from the 1934 election—you could about count them on one hand—include such figures as these: Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, a "young Turk" to Senate leaders, who refused in his campaign to break openly with the "New Deal" policies. Governor-elect Niles of Maryland, who ran on a platform calling for a "Democratic" Governor Ritchie for alleged failure to cooperate with President Roosevelt. Governor Merriam of California who said before election that if he won, it would be because of the support of hundreds of thousands of Democrats. As a matter of practical politics, can there be two answers to the question: Which way will the party face in 1937?

$500,000 Freight Rate Reduction Handed Growers

(Continued From Page One) although an effort is now being made to have it added. The Southwest is largely served by Texas, so the concession would not mean so much to Florida. Last year's reduction ran out in June and since then the exchange and other citrus shipper groups have been fighting to get a similar concession for this season. Aulls said that in obtaining the new concession, they received valuable help from Senator Fletcher, Senator Trammell and Congressman Peterson, who induced the Interstate Commerce Commission to put it through on short notice. With the Florida shipping season opening, every day counted. The reduction amounts to about $43 a car, or about $460,000 on the unshipped part of the crop estimated to go by rail. The reduction naturally will tend to increase rail shipments, inasmuch as it cuts the difference between rail and water rates. The reduction is effective as of Nov. 11.

Last year Southwestern Freight Bureau territory was included, but this has not been granted so far, them to issue $1,500,000 more in relief bonds. Legislators yesterday had ended that special session with a stubborn resistance to the governor's request. Two bills seeking to issue more relief bonds were offered but neither reached the floor of the house or senate. Raged men and women, complaining they had been removed from relief rolls without reason, sat in the galleries and protested the refusal of the lawmakers to act. They complained that they had been removed from the relief rolls without reason. A small group started a hunger strike in the capitol building but it disbanded when the leader was found picking his teeth.

MELLON REPLIES TO ALL CHARGES OF TAX DODGING

Former Cabinet Head Says Counts Are Improper, Scandalous

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Andrew W. Mellon, once referred to by Republicans as the "greatest secretary of the treasury since Alexander Hamilton," filed a brief with the United States board of tax appeals yesterday in which he called his former department "impertinent, scandalous and improper." The brief was part of his fight against the suit filed by the treasury department which alleges Mellon evaded $3,075,103 in income taxes in 1931, including a 50 percent fraud penalty. A Pittsburgh grand jury recently refused to indict Mellon on charges of income tax evasion, and yesterday the elderly millionaire pushed his fight for complete vindication. His brief, bristling with strong language, charged that the attempt to handle income taxes through grand juries had been adopted with the advice of the attorney general. "Independent (the treasury department) has no grounds," it continued, "for assertion of a penalty and under the circumstances, respondent's action in asserting such a penalty is arbitrary and capricious, intended to color and distort the facts in the hope of prejudicing the merits of the case, and is, in law, erroneous, illegal and void." When Mellon's case first came before the board of tax appeals, the government contended: "A. W. Mellon was secretary of the treasury from Mar. 4, 1921, to Feb. 12, 1932, and in connection with his official duties became especially skilled in the revenue laws of the United States. During said period petitioner (Mellon) devised and began the execution of a scheme to evade his federal income taxes, which contemplated the utilization of certain corporations under his domination as instrumentalities in fictitious transactions." What the government meant by that was that it accused Mellon of juggling stock of his farming companies in such a way as to make it appear that he had lost money and hence was liable to a smaller income tax than he really owed. Mellon contended yesterday that his stock transactions were legitimate and that he had not agreed to sell securities and then buy them back just for the sake of establishing losses. "These allegations are untrue," Mellon said yesterday, "as the respondent well knows. Such allegations are impertinent, scandalous and improper."

ACTION ON EXPORTS PLEASES

(Continued From Page One) passed over Gandy toll bridge numbered 601 more than last October, a gain of 52 percent. As a matter of practical politics, can there be two answers to the question: Which way will the party face in 1937? More devaluation would offer a profit of up to 16 percent to those who might convert their funds into foreign currencies and exchange them for dollars after devaluation had taken place. Prior to last winter's cut in the gold content of the dollar, the effort was to keep speculators from taking advantage of the situation by such a transaction. While an outward movement of capital has not been impeded in recent months, it was suggested that the elimination of the restrictions would also remove the psychological barrier raised by the necessity for obtaining treasury permission and thereby increase exports of capital at a time when they would be beneficial. The late fall and the end of the year are a time of settling large international balances. This year, as generally, these are heavily in favor of the United States, meaning that the next month-and-a-half probably will see large foreign purchases of dollars. Such circumstances create a demand for American currency which increases its value abroad, and to turn the proposition about, decreases the buying power of foreign moneys in the American market. The result normally would be a slackening in American exports. But, if the outward flow of capital is increased, the ensuing demand for foreign currencies would offset in part, at least, the demands for dollars and keep the American monetary unit closer to its present depreciated foreign value, thus avoiding injury to American business. In Wall Street, where the new order was welcomed, rumors of an imminent stabilization of the dollar and pound were revived, and it was recalled that Great Britain had gradually removed the restrictions with which it once surrounded all dealings in foreign exchange and investments outside the country. The treasury, as usual, when such questions are asked, would say nothing and in London officials also were silent. There, the government's frequent assertions that a return to the gold standard was still inadvisable were seen as offsetting any indications of immediate stabilization that might be contained in the American treasury's order. Facts are born. Now there's an argument for birth control.—Greensboro (Ga.) Herald-Journal.

New Guarantee Plan Same As Old One

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The proposal under consideration in Washington to speed recovery through government guarantee against production losses parallels in principle the Fred I. Kent plan presented 16 years ago to war-torn European countries. In the closing days of the Hoover administration Charles A. Miller, then president of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, again presented it before the subcommittee of the Senate committee on manufacturing. Business interests feel that the President retreated somewhat from his advanced position. What gives them theitters is the fear that he may be fading back to throw a forward pass.—The New Yorker.

HOME OWNERS LOAN AGENCY CLOSES DOORS

(Continued From Page 1) pouring of more billions into this field would be unnecessary. Further, it followed closely the President's statement to the American Bankers' Association that the government would withdraw from the money leading field when private business demonstrated it would take over these functions. Still another sign in this direction was a statement yesterday at the White House by Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Corporation, that it would seek no more funds from Congress. The lending powers of the RFC expire next Jan. 31. Jones said it had not yet been decided whether a request would be made to have this authority extended. John H. Fahey, chairman of the HOLC, said yesterday there was "steadily increasing evidence that a large proportion of the private lending agencies" were reaching a point where they can resume normal functions. "A great many of the applications filed with us," said Fahey, "can and should be taken care of by private lending agencies." The dwindling of HOLC funds placed it in the same category in this respect with two other alphabetical agencies, namely the FERA and the PWA. Relief administration officials yesterday figured they had access to about $350,000,000, or enough to last until next March at the present rate of expenditure. This rate may be pushed upward during the winter. With only $15,000,000 on hand, officials estimate that $285,000,000 can be obtained from the RFC and that $50,000,000 of drought relief money remains. The Public Works Administration is down to a few million dollars in unallotted funds. Many millions more, however, have been designated for various projects but not yet actually used.

Attorneys Hold Divergent Views As To Meaning Of Act Referring To Cities

TALLAHASSEE, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Florida voters have tacked their constitution an amendment providing for uniform government of cities and towns according to their population, but attorneys here are divided on the question that drew widely different opinions from Tallahassee attorneys.

The amendment reads: "The legislature shall establish a uniform system of county and municipal government, which shall be applicable except in cases where local or special laws for cities or towns are provided by the legislature that may be inconsistent therewith. The legislature shall by general law classify cities and towns according to population, and shall by general law provide for their incorporation, government, jurisdiction, powers, duties and privileges under such classifications, and no special or local laws incorporating cities or towns, providing for their government, jurisdiction, powers, duties and privileges shall be passed by the legislature."

The amendment sets no time for the legislature to act on its provisions.

Every city and town in Florida now is governed by its own charter, approved by the people in referendum elections provided for by acts of the legislature. There are just about as many different kinds of charters as there are cities and towns.

While declining to be quoted directly, attorneys here were about evenly divided on whether this constitutional amendment repealed existing city charters and gave to the legislature the power to provide new forms of government, or whether it merely placed a restriction around incorporation of new towns in the future.

Attorneys agreed, however, that the legislature makes no attempt to provide new forms of government for cities and towns that are now in existence. The amendment itself says the legislature "shall do the things provided; but there is no authority to force the legislature to do something while it is in session."

Another question on which attorneys differed was whether this amendment "freezes" existing city charters and prohibits changes to them by local or special acts of the legislature approved by the people in referendum election.

On the other hand, some attorneys held to the belief the amendment might make it possible to amend charters of cities and towns without complying with the present requirement that proposed local legislation must be advertised in the community affected.

If the legislature established a system of population classification, there might be enough different figures to cover about all the cities in the state, and a law, which in actuality would apply to only one city, could be passed as a general measure by a provision that it would apply only to cities of certain population.

The amendment, attorneys said, is one which will have to be interpreted by the courts in the light of possible acts which might be passed by the legislature. When such acts are passed, then particular cases could be taken into the courts for a judicial interpretation.

"If the supreme court's ruling didn't agree with me, they're wrong anyway," Long replied. "You know the supreme court is like Frederick the Great was about Vienna. They told him he couldn't take Vienna because war hadn't been declared. He told the army to go ahead and take it and the professors in Heidelberg would find reasons for it afterward."

Plans for the Charity Ball for the benefit of the Fernald-Langston Memorial Hospital also were discussed and approved.

The secretary was instructed to write letters of sympathy to board members S. O. Shihohler and Wm. H. Schmidt who were absent owing to illness and death in their families.

The annual reports of Secretary Paul Lehmann and Treasurer Arthur Branan were read and approved.

Members of the board also voted to continue holding their monthly meetings on the second Tuesday evening of each month.

Alleged Kidnaper Acquitted Of Charge

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 14.—(AP)—Judge I. M. Meekins in federal court today directed a verdict of acquittal for H. H. Askew, young "Four Square Gospel" evangelist of Goldsboro, charged with perpetrating a kidnaping hoax and attempting to collect $25,000 ransom from his wife.

Judge Jenkins directed the clerk to enter the verdict after the defense had presented three medical witnesses who testified as to the mental capacity of Askew at the time he dropped from sight last August, and government witnesses testified, used the man's telephone and telegraph to try to get the $25,000 from his wife, and from Aimee Semple McPherson, California evangelist.

Senator Long Cracks Whip At Special Session

HOLC loans through a federal act, the Frasier-Lemke bill.

"There're judges on the bench in this state that are so hard-hearted and inhuman they can't see anything but dispossessing some poor devil and taking away from him everything he's got in times like these. If Europe couldn't pay us $14,000,000,000 in debts, we're not going to force the American people to pay $250,000,000,000 in debts they haven't got the money to pay."

Defending a bill to consolidate state and national elections into one election in the fall, Long said it would save the taxpayers money.

"It means that in 1936 you'll only have to make one campaign instead of two, doesn't it? Williamson asked.

"I'm only going to make one campaign," Long replied. "That's for the Senate again. Of course it might save me making two trips around the state occasionally when there are candidates I'm interested in."

Williamson asked whether the bill fixing minimum wages for workers on state projects was not a move to evade compliance with NRA codes.

"We make no bones about not wanting NRA codes in Louisiana," Long replied.

Williamson pointed out that the state supreme court had already overruled a law granting the state tax commission power to amend

BONUS ISSUE PASSED ON TO ROOSEVELT

Democrats Want Him To Write Own Bill; He Heads For Rest In Georgia Resort

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(A.P.)—Many Democrats elected to new Congress hope that President Roosevelt will "write his own bill" on the soldiers' bonus to avert a break between the White House and Capitol Hill at the coming session.

Since the American Legion set on record for the immediate payment of adjusted service certificates that will mature in 11 years, it is considered among many returning members that a vote will be forced on the issue in both houses.

Some Administration followers who run on a "Support Roosevelt" platform are saying that should the bonus pass and be vetoed, the President would be "put on the spot" in the 1936 election. They are suggesting an effort to get the President to advocate a "compromise" bill which they could support and which the Chief Executive could sign without departing from his position that relief for the needy is the first task. President Roosevelt, his mind filled with such problems as relief, recovery, and social security, reached for his hat and topcoat today for a swing through the vast laboratory of "The most abundant life."

The President planned to depart late this afternoon by special train for the Tennessee Valley development and thence to his winter retreat at Warm Springs, Ga. There he will formulate the policies to be proposed to Congress in January.

His return southward with a trunk packed full of recommendations from political aides of all degrees of political thought. Though he will study these in detail there was every indication that he had decided on the broad outlines of the plan he will touch upon in a talk to the country when he returns early in December.

ICKES HINTS AT FRANK EVANS TO EXPANSION OF PWA ACTIVITIES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(A.P.)—A many-billion-dollar expansion of the Public Works program, designed eventually to absorb all direct relief rolls, was strongly hinted yesterday by Secretary Ickes.

Conceding that this expanded program had not yet been finally worked out, Ickes nevertheless put into words what many have considered a major trend in the Administration's efforts. He left a strong implication that new billions would be asked for the PWA.

Writing in the current issue of the magazine, Today, he said: "Careful studies of a practical nature are now being made of the possibility of still further enlarging the Public Works program in a renewed drive against the depression." (Continued On Page 2)

REGULATION OF LIQUOR SALES IN CITY IS DELAYED

Commissioners Will Devote Early Meeting To Problem

To avoid delaying action on more pressing matters which came up during their adjourned meeting at the City Hall last night, members of the City Commission voted to delay discussion of the type of ordinance required for the regulation of liquor sales in Sanford until a later date.

A short discussion of the subject, introduced when City Attorney Fred E. Wilson reported that in his opinion the local option amendment to the state constitution adopted at the election on the sixth instant nullified all ordinances of the City of Sanford against the sale of intoxicating liquors, was a feature of the meeting.

Near its close, Mr. Wilson advised the Commissioners that he had been told by H. H. Coleman, manager of the Florida Power and Light Co., that the City could virtually "write its own ticket" in the matter of securing additional street lights.

Mr. Wilson quoted Mr. Coleman as saying that the company is willing to enter into a 10 year contract for additional street lights at no extra cost with the contract subject to cancellation at the end of any year, or a one year contract, also subject to cancellation.

However, whichever contract is signed by the City must refer to the original contract and all supplementary agreements added since it was drawn up.

The Commissioners' interest in this proposition centered about the interpretation which might be read to the qualification—"must refer to the original contract."

Although the Commissioners indicated that they are not disposed to "approve and affirm" the old contract and supplementary agreement, agreement, Attorney Wilson was instructed to communicate further with Mr. Coleman and to proceed on the basis that the City is willing to sign the company's offer of some. The suit asserts that H. E.
