Garner trial continues Friday

SANFORD — Testimony resumes Friday in the trial of a man charged in an accident two years ago at a Lake Mary school bus stop that killed one boy and injured two others.

James Allen Garner, 31, is charged with vehicular homicide and manslaughter in the death Oct. 9, 1992 of Jeremy Millhouse, 11. He is also charged with culpable negligence for injuries sustained by Araclio Vergara and Michael Becker.

During testimony Wednesday jurors were taken outside the Seminole County courthouse to view the trailer Garner borrowed to do a landscaping job the day of the accident. As he drove down State Road 16A past the Hills of Lake Mary subdivision the trailer came loose from the truck and struck some school children waiting for the school bus.

The trial was recessed today due to a schedule conflict and will reconvene Friday. The trial may continue through the weekend.

Adams plans decision appeal

SANFORD — Seminole County Commissioner Wm Adams plans to appeal a judge's decision that he misused company money and must repay $600,000 to the company he and his sister formed in 1984.

An Orange County Circuit Court judge hearing the case found Adams made unauthorized loans and payments to himself and others without consulting company shareholders Adams and his sister, Lois Adams, founded Home Health Care Services, Inc. in 1984. Adams served as chief financial officer for the company and its subsidiaries.

Injured man flown to ORMC

SANFORD — A man was airlifted to Orlando Regional Medical Center Thursday after he was struck by a helicopter blade.

The worker sustained a cut on his head. Rescue workers were called to Fort Hall of Florida, 4700 S. Sanford Avenue, just after 4 p.m. Six units responded to the trauma alert along with Air Care.

No further information was available on the incident this morning.

Tree planting

SANFORD — Girl Scouts from Troop 392 and Junior Troop 998, both in Longwood, will be planting a tree this Saturday at 4:30 p.m. at Fort Meunier Park near the Sanford Museum and Library. The planting ceremony open to the public is in honor of the National Arbor Day observance.

Heathrow gains another corporate headquarters

By NICK PFEIFAUER

LAKE MARY — Sanford and Lake Mary businesses and industry are following Horace Greeley's suggestion from many decades ago: "Go west, young man."

The area along the Interstate-4 corridor is growing so rapidly for over a year, passersby have been seeing and will continue to see buildings under construction.

One of the largest construction sites is the Seminole Towne Center mall. Recently however, many more sites have been targeted for growth.

The latest to be announced is that of Dixon Tronderoga Company, which will be building a major new facility at Heathrow, just west of Interstate-4.

The project involves the building of a new corporate headquarters for the 200-year-old manufacturer of writing and art products. Officials report a 25,000-square-foot structure has been planned for 3.29 acres in Heathrow.

During Tuesday's Seminole County Commission meeting, the spending of $100,000 as an incentive to Dixon Tronderoga was approved. The money will come from the Economic Incentives Fund, and will be used to pay for county impact and permit fees, and other fees and costs related to the headquarters facility.

The company presently is located at Matland Center and plans to move to Heathrow.

Firefighters deliver baby girl

By SANDRA ELLIOTT

FOREST CITY — Paramedics at Seminole County fire station number 13 had a surprise visitor drop in Monday. The EMTs delivered a six-pound baby girl to a woman who did not know she was pregnant.

Although the baby was two months premature, both mother and baby are reported doing well at Arnold Palmer Hospital for Women and Children. Officials are prohibited from releasing the woman's identity or other details due to the confidentiality requirements of medical reports.

Sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough said the woman has refused all requests for interviews.

"She's embarrassed about the circumstances and not even knowing she was pregnant," he explained.

Emergency management coordinator Ken Roberts and McDonough gave this thumbnail sketch of the unexpected blessed event: A man and woman were driving on State Road 436 near Forest City when the man flagged down deputy Darren Tipton requesting an escort to the hospital. He said something was wrong with the woman.

He was outgoing, cheerful and maybe just a

He was well liked by the other students and the teachers, Winger said.

On Wednesday afternoon Michael, his 7-year-old brother and a friend scaled a six-foot fence at

Knowledge of plants, animals useful in zoo's butterfly garden

SANFORD — Alice Clark is a good example of an old adage: the student is the teacher and the teacher is the student. A former first grade teacher and a long-time director of the Central Florida Zoological Park, she classifies herself as a "beginner" when it comes to being a Seminole County Master Gardener.

Clark has recently taken on the responsibility of tending to the butterfly garden at the zoo. This kind of fits in with my work with the master gardener program, which I think is a very good program. Some of the people are far more knowledgeable than I am. I'm just a beginner. They offer information and help to us for the butterfly garden.

Beginner or not, Clark's contributions to the community through her efforts as a master gardener over the past two years have been numerous. She answers gardening questions over the telephone, participates in special projects with 4-H such as with the help of her husband, John, preparing the materials for a 4-H seminar on the benefits of bats in the environment, which included building bat houses. She is also involved with another Cooperative Extension program, the Family and Community Educators, formerly known as Extension Homemakers.

Clark has been a docent at the zoo for 11 years. Docents volunteer their time in many ways at the zoo. Clark has done everything from sewing cotton bags for the harvesting of rattlesnakes, to giving tours and visiting nursing homes with some of

Lawmakers address gender gouging

By SANDRA ELLIOTT

SANFORD — Local consumers need to shop around for the best deal from hair dressers or dry cleaners or they might end up paying more for the same service just because they happen to be white.

A state-wide study conducted by staffers at the Florida House of Representatives indicated women are charged more for the same services as men ranging from haircuts to dry cleaning.

But dressers, dry cleaners and other businesses in Florida would have to charge women the same prices as men for the same services under legislation introduced by two lawmakers.

The Fair Pricing Act targets businesses whose prices are set primarily based on gender, said Rep. Debbie Wasserman Schultz, D-Dava, who is sponsoring the measure along with Rep. Alex Villalobos, R-Miami.

The two House members and several other legislators announced the bill at a news conference Wednesday. It would allow women to file complaints with the state and seek resolution through mediation over pricing disputes.

Businesses would face a fine of up to $5,000 per violation.

An informal survey of dry cleaners and beauty salons in this area this morning revealed prices for similar services at some establishments.

A man's shirt costs $1.99 while a woman's blouse of similar material costs $2.79 at Frank's Cleaners.

Sewer ditch yields prehistoric find

WAKULLA SPRINGS STATE PARK — State-funded archaeologists inspecting a ditch dug for a new sewer system near this famed natural spring have unearthed a rare, prehistoric tool.

The grayish flint piece, which dates back more than 10,000 years, turned up behind the Wakulla Springs Lodge, four feet underground, said Calvin Jones, the state archaeologist overseeing the dig.

But what makes the find unique, according to Jones, is its size — more than 7 inches long and more than 4 inches wide, weighing in at about a pound.

The only similar artifacts larger than the tool dug up Monday have been found in Washington state, said Jones. He said the tool probably was made by the indigenous people who lived near the spring.

"It's unusual that it's intact," Jones said. "These people didn't just go around losing things."

The scraper will be taken to the Museum of Florida History, where it'll be cataloged and put on display.

Broker admits ripping off investors

PORT LAUDERDALE — The founder of a brokerage who pilfered $5 million from investors admits he "took the easy way out" while polishing a sparkling public image.

Michael Curran's First Lauderdale Securities Inc. was shut down last November by the Securities and Exchange Commission after he admitted ripping off two dozen investors over six years.

"I didn't have the courage to work hard," he said Tuesday while answering questions for a bankruptcy deposition. He choked back tears as he confessed his misdeeds. "I wasn't in dire straits. I wasn't in debt to the mob. I wasn't in bankruptcy. I took the easy way out."

Curran said he gave some of the money to political candidates as he made a name for himself in GOP circles and served as a Broward Community College trustee and chairman of the Port Lauderdale Chamber of Commerce.

Curran settled SEC charges by agreeing never to work in the securities industry again. He is the target of a criminal investigation but has been cooperating with investigators.

Battered wife convicted of murder

TAMPA — A jury rejected a battered spouse defense and convicted a 27-year-old woman of murdering her husband. Kathleen Weiland was led sobbing from court to the Hillsborough County Jail Tuesday after a jury found her guilty of second-degree murder in the death of Todd Weiland, 36.

Weiland had been charged with first-degree murder in the slaying of her husband at their apartment near Temple Terrace on Jan. 23, 1984, and faced life in prison if convicted of that charge.

State guidelines recommend a sentence of 14 to 23 years for second-degree murder, with a mandatory three years because a firearm was used. She will be sentenced Feb. 27.

A jury of eight women and four men spent three hours deliberating before rejecting Weiland's claim that she was a battered woman who shot and killed her husband in self-defense.

"I'm just glad the jurors saw through the battered-woman syndrome defense," said prosecutor Lyann Goudie. "She wasn't a battered woman."

Court: Dog is property

JACKSONVILLE — An appeals court has ruled that a dog is like a television set or any other household property, not like a child subject to a custody dispute in a divorce.

Since their divorce in July 1986, Ronald G. Bennett and Kathryn R. Rogers have been fighting over who gets Roddy, a mutt who resembles a miniature Rottweiler.

Last January, a circuit judge in Jacksonville ruled that Roddy was like a child in a custody case. He awarded custody to Bennett, who has moved to South Florida. But the judge also ruled that Ms. Rogers, who has moved to St. Louis, could have visitation by taking Roddy every other month.

Bennett appealed, saying the arrangement was unworkable. He argued that since he had the dog before the marriage, Roddy was a pre-marital asset belonging to him and wasn't subject to visitation rights.

The First District Court of Appeal in Tallahassee agreed. "While a dog may be considered by many to be a member of the family, under Florida law, animals are considered personal property," the court ruled this week.

"Our courts are overwhelmed with the supervision of custody, visitation and support matters related to the protection of our children. We cannot undertake the same responsibility as to animals," the court added.

Orange Park attorney Gary C. Luba, who represented Bennett, said the ruling was precedent setting. "The decision of visitation of personal property has not been addressed by the courts," he said. "There's no case law on it."

New board scrubs America-First policy

By The Associated Press

TAVARES — A moderate majority on the Lake County School Board has scuttled a policy designed to teach students that American culture and values are superior to all others.

The controversial America-First policy was passed by a trio of ultraconservative board members early last year, alarming education officials and sparking heated debate on racism and patriotism.

The local teachers' union is preparing to withdraw a lawsuit filed against the school board, seeking to prevent implementation of the now-repealed America-First policy.

The proposed program never actually reached district classrooms. "We're ready to take the necessary actions to end the lawsuit," union President Gail Barry said.

The 5-2 vote Tuesday night puts an end to almost a year of controversy brought on by passage of the rule written by former board chairwoman Pat Hart.

Mrs. Hart and two other board members advocated programs of the conservative Christian Coalition. They angered many parents, teachers and students with the policy and a series of controversial actions over the past two years.

Education officials pointed out that the cultural superiority program contradicted state law requiring curriculum that fosters appreciation and respect for all cultures.

Mrs. Hart did not seek re-election last fall, and three critics of the board's majority defeated Christian Coalition-backed candidates to win control of the panel and overturn the policy.

Susan Glickman, state director of People for the American Way, a Washington-based liberal group, said the new members represent a true cross-section of the community.

"When a broad range of people got involved, they were able to elect people to office and essentially reverse a policy that sent the wrong kind of message about Lake County," she said.

Board members Claudia Ramsey and Judy Pearson, who formed the voting bloc with Mrs. Hart, tried to retain the policy.

Ms. Pearson said in a statement: "To say that America is not superior, to reject this policy, is an insult to all those who gave their lives in her defense and opens the door to revisionist writing of history that eliminates the heroic deeds of our military defense."

Ms. Ramsey did not comment. Keeping their campaign promises to repeal were new members Tom Chapman, Kyleen Fischer and Randy Wiseman.

The Rev. Lou Sheldon, chairman of the Traditional Values Coalition in Washington criticized the new majority, saying the members now "want to rewrite history, reshape moral values and leave out religion."

Florida confidence highest in 5 years

By The Associated Press

GAINESVILLE — The Republican takeover in Congress pumped up the confidence of Florida consumers in January to the highest level in more than five years, a University of Florida economist said.

"Most of the news coverage of the Republican leadership's agenda has focused on the proposed downsizing of federal welfare programs, as well as on tax cuts," said UF economist Dick Scoggins.

"Since the registered Republicans in the sample tend to have higher incomes than non-Republicans, their assessment of their own financial situation is helped by the talk of tax cuts and not threatened by the talk of cuts in welfare."

Preliminary numbers for the first three weeks of this year indicate the jump in Florida Consumer Confidence Index from 91 in December to 95 in January was the biggest in a year, according to UF's Bureau of Economic and Business Research.

The index last registered 85 in July 1988.

Party affiliation also proves useful in analyzing regional differences, Scoggins said.

In Dade, Broward and Palm Beach counties, the index remained at 94, the same for December and a year ago.

"This is a region of Florida where Democrats still are in the majority," Scoggins said.

Sizeable gains were registered in the Tampa Bay area, where Republicans are in the majority. The index shot up from 91 in December to 97 in January. That's also an increase over the 94 rating a year ago.

And the Orlando area, another Republican stronghold, showed a similar jump in confidence. The measure jumped from 89 in December to 94 this month. It was pegged at 82 a year ago.

An index gauging personal financial conditions compared to a year ago measured 87, up five points from December.

Baby dies of overdose on aspirin

By The Associated Press

FORT PIERCE — A 13-month-old boy died from an aspirin overdose after he and his 3-year-old brother managed to bite the top off a childproof container.

Ricky Jermaine Bell swallowed at least 12 tablets before he began vomiting and shaking Monday, according to sheriff's and medical examiners' reports.

Diagnosis of the boy's critical condition was delayed because paramedics didn't realize what had occurred; the bottle of aspirin had rolled under a bed.

Ricky's brother, Emanuel, was also hospitalized in fair condition after swallowing an undetermined number of pills.

The boys were in the care of their 17-year-old baby sitter when they got hold of the bottle which had been left on a night table.

Emergency paramedics determined — within seven minutes — the infant was in "no immediate distress," said Barry Irwin, deputy chief with the St. Lucie County-Port Pierce Fire District. The crew advised follow-up tests at the hospital later in the day.

Nearly five hours later, the boys' mother drove Ricky to the hospital, where toxicology tests revealed the overdose. His heart stopped beating shortly thereafter.

Emanuel was hospitalized after the boys' grandmother noticed he, too, was beginning to show the same symptoms. She discovered the aspirin bottle under the bed.

Associate Medical Examiner Charles Diggs said investigators suspect no foul play in the incident and have classified Ricky's death an accident.

"Aspirin poisonings used to be very common before the advent of child-protective caps," Diggs said. "Even with the protective bottles, some of them work, and some don't."

The family doesn't blame anyone for the death.

"All I'm thinking about now is getting my grandson to rest," said Eva Marion, the boys' grandmother. "I feel like the hospital did everything they could."

Armed robbery

Sanford police are investigating an armed robbery at Video Vault, 3828 Orlando Drive, on Tuesday. Police say two black males reportedly entered the store, one with what was described as a small revolver, and demanded the clerk turn over the money in the cash register. After obtaining the money, the men also asked for money they believed to be hidden elsewhere. When the clerk reportedly said there was no other money, the men fled from the business. Neither of the store employees on hand during the robbery were reportedly injured. Police said the two men were between the ages of 18 and 31, between five foot seven and five foot nine inches tall, wearing dark gray sweatshirts with hoods, and both wearing ski masks. Money taken was estimated between $150 and $180.

Stolen/recovered vehicles

● A Chevrolet pickup truck was reported stolen Wednesday in the 700 block of Wilmer Circle in Sanford. Sanford police said they recovered the vehicle a few hours later.
 ● A 1984 Toyota was reportedly stolen Tuesday in the 200 block of South Aberdeen Circle in Sanford. The vehicle was later located in the 3600 block of Orlando Drive.
 ● A blue and white 1984 Chevrolet, license number LZ2-11H, was reported stolen Tuesday in the 400 block of West 13th Street in Sanford.
 ● A 1978 Chevrolet pickup truck, reportedly stolen in Orange County, was located by deputies Tuesday near the Florida Power Corporation compound at 2797 State Road 498.
 ● A 1974 Oldsmobile was found to be involved in an accident Tuesday near the intersection of Celery and Briston avenues. Deputies found the vehicle had been apparently stolen just one block away from the scene.

Caught in the act

A Sanford man told police he saw four men removing an air compressor from his trailer in the 200 block of East 11th Street, and placing it in another pickup truck. He said when he approached the men, they ran off. Police recovered the compressor and some hoses which had been taken. They said the compressor, valued at $600, had been damaged. The vehicle on which the men were loading the stolen equipment was subsequently found to have been stolen.

Robbery

Travis Trell Davis, 20, 4540 Gilbert St., Lake Monroe, was arrested by Sanford police Tuesday. Police said he reportedly had pulled a gun on a man near the intersection of Cedar Avenue and 20th Street. After being identified by the victim, police said they located Davis in the same area and placed him under arrest. Police said they found he was in possession of a semi-automatic pistol. He was charged with aggravated assault with a firearm, and possession of a concealed firearm.

Warrants

● Bernard Harold Williams, 54, 4831 McKay Ave., Sanford, turned himself in to deputies at his residence Tuesday. He was wanted on two warrants for failing to appear to pay a fine.
 ● John Robert Powell, 27, 101 Larkwood Drive, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police at his residence Tuesday. He was wanted on Seminole County warrants for failing to appear on a charge of possession of less than 20 grams of cannabis, and failing to pay a fine. He was also found to be wanted on a Volusia County warrant for violation of probation on a conviction of driving with a suspended/revoked license, and a Flagler County warrant for aggravated assault.
 ● Nickulla Williams, 20, 811 Halsey Ave., Lake Monroe, was arrested by Sanford police Tuesday in the 800 block of Celery Avenue. He was wanted for failing to appear on a charge of driving with a suspended/revoked license.

Incidents reported to Sanford police

● An estimated $20 in deli sandwiches were reportedly stolen early Wednesday from a convenience store in the 2700 block of West 27th Street.
 ● A stereo system valued at $2,064 was reportedly stolen Tuesday from a residence in the 1700 block of Peristimon Avenue.
 ● Four wheels and tires from a 1984 Ford, and four wheels and tires from a 1985 Ford, with a total value of 2,100, were reportedly stolen Tuesday, from a business in the 3700 block of South Orlando Drive.
 ● A four-drawer tool box and its contents, valued at $600, were reportedly stolen Tuesday from a residence in the 100 block of Larkwood Drive.

City asks sorority to document problems

By BOB FOGLE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A sorority's request for compensation to offset problems at a Sanford Civic Center event has not yet been approved pending the city plan to look into some of the expenses which reportedly occurred.

Kappa Sigma Omega Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority had requested reimbursement of expenses incurred as the result of incidents during a presentation of "The Colton Club, a Play with Music," presented Dec. 10. Chapter official Dorothea Fogle had reported the stage curtain had fallen and the civic center sound system was inaudible, causing a delay in the production. She said the problems caused extra money for an extended performance, money for additional police time, and the cost of securing an outside sound system and transporting it to the civic center.

The sorority had paid $648.50 for the event.

Fogle had indicated she was in contact with Mayor Bettye Smith regarding the matter, but had not had a response. During Monday night's City Commission work session, Mayor Smith stressed that she had indeed heard from Fogle, but had not responded due to a lack of backup information regarding her complaint.

City Manager Bill Simmons explained that the stage curtain mishap occurred because one of the hooks holding the curtain had apparently straightened and caused the curtain to fall.

Regarding the sound system however, he commented, "We checked the sound system before the performance and it was operable. But they insisted on having some background monitors at the back of the stage, which we don't have, so they went out and got their own."

Regarding the cost for an additional police officer needed because of the extended performance, Simmons said the cost was $21.00 for an additional half-hour.

"They said they also had to pay an additional $400 to the actor (Harry Burney)," Simmons commented, "and that was apparently for just the same half-hour."

The question was brought up regarding copies of any bills which were paid by the sorority. Simmons said he had not seen any actual documents.

Both Commissioners Whitey Eckstein and Lon Howell commented that they would not make any decisions on the situation until they saw documentation.

Following additional discussion, the commission decided to withhold any further consideration on the request for compensation pending receipt of bills connected with the performance.

Republicans weigh ban on cash welfare to addicts

By JENNIFER BROWN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Republican lawmakers are weighing a ban on disability payments to 80,000 low-income drug addicts and alcoholics, saying taxpayer dollars are being wasted in liquor stores and street-corner drug markets.

Rep. Clay Shaw, chairman of the House Ways and Means subcommittee on human resources, said he does not believe taxpayers should be asked to support drug addicts and alcoholics, particularly because they "brought that on themselves."

Shaw, R-Fla., said denying cash assistance to addicts on the rolls of Supplemental Security Income, a fast-growing aid program for the elderly and disabled, is under consideration as his committee writes legislation to radically change the nation's welfare system.

He said congressional hearings and studies have found that SSI benefits to addicts and alcoholics are often being spent "in liquor stores and with the corner drug dealer."

"We seem to be feeding their habit as much as anything ... and to pay somebody who has disabled themselves, by their own actions, doesn't seem to make a whole lot of sense," Shaw said in an interview this week.

He said the money used to support drug addicts and alcoholics would be better spent on treatment, and discounted the claims of advocates that without cash assistance, some substance abusers will commit crimes.

"I don't see where we have an obligation to bribe people not to rob us. That's just outrageous," said Shaw, who will investigate abuses in the $25 billion SSI program at a hearing Friday.

SSI pays a maximum benefit of $488 a month, and estimates the annual cost of providing aid to addicts and alcoholics at about $400 million. Addicts are a small but fast-growing segment of the 8.2 million people on the rolls.

Advocates for the mentally ill say cutting addicts off SSI will lead to greater crime, homelessness and suffering.

They also say Congress should give the Social Security Administration, which runs SSI, a chance to implement reforms passed last year to curb abuses among addicts and alcoholics.

The law, which takes effect this spring, imposes a three-year time limit on cash benefits to drug addicts and alcoholics on SSI and strengthens requirements that their checks be sent to a responsible third party, preferably a community service agency.

Addicts would also be required to receive treatment if it is made available to them.

Social Security estimates that it will spend $150 million to $200 million a year to monitor substance abusers under the new law.

Susan Galbraith, co-director for national policy at the Legal Action Center, a law and policy center that works on drug and alcohol issues, said most addicts and alcoholics on SSI have other serious disabilities, such as HIV infection, chronic liver disease, or mental illness and brain damage.

"This is a desperate, dismal, disconnected, tragic life. To describe it as anything short of that is really misrepresenting what is going on," she said. "Nobody who is in the stage of addiction (as those on SSI) chose the kind of hell they have to live with."

Government waste

People are deeply concerned over the need to reduce government spending. They are worried about all levels of government from federal to local, and well they should be.

Recently, the state announced it is launching plans to reduce spending on the educational level, by giving local school districts, schools and teachers more of say-so in the operations, as well as financing.

The Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) is looking into reducing spending by 25 percent. Cuts could reach nearly $1 billion. People who receive benefits from HRS are deeply concerned.

The federal and state government, along with private donations, have allowed the spending of $41 million to buy beachfront property to save Loggerhead Turtles along Florida's Brevard and Indian River coastlines. There are complaints however that it's too much tax money. We find the tax watchdogs being pitted against conservationists and environmentalists.

The federal government wants to eliminate money spent to help finance public radio and television stations. Here, even Hillary Clinton is opposed to the cuts. But the strong lobby of the broadcasting industry wants it eliminated, calling it unfair to commercial broadcasters.

No matter what is proposed, there will be people who are for it, and people who are against it.

We believe the public isn't really looking for many of these type spending cuts. What they really want is a cut, or total elimination of government waste. That's the word, WASTE.

Occasionally, we hear of government grants to finance certain types of projects such as a study of cow droppings or whether a fly has good or bad hearing capabilities. Unfortunately, these grants, and they total billions of tax dollars each year, are seldom brought out into the open.

The people who stand to gain from this type of grant are usually very powerful and the type who lawmakers don't want to make angry. So the grants end up being put in as a rider on some important legislative bill, and it is passed.

Of course there are some areas that go beyond the edge of foolishness. Our federal government pays a man many thousands of dollars each year. His job is to insure that the land border between Canada and the United States doesn't physically move. To do so, he only has to visit the border three times each year. (Where do we apply for that job?)

Even when word of such spending is made public through publications like the congressional records, very few people bother to wade through the lengthy documents to find what we might consider waste.

There is a tendency to say people want all kind of government spending cuts, as long as it doesn't affect them. That's why people who benefit from HRS programs are fighting cuts.

In reality though, there are many instances of what can truly be considered waste in spending. If we could eliminate them, we wouldn't have to eliminate spending which is beneficial to a great majority of people.

We need to not only be told by our government about such waste of our tax dollars, but told which of our legislators voted in favor of them.

Knowing that, we can all take appropriate action at the polls.

Who should die for Chechnya?

Tempting as it is to stay tightly focused on the great drama now unfolding on Capitol Hill, balance requires us to spare an occasional moment for developments elsewhere. Most of the great problems confronting the makers of American foreign policy these days benefit spectacularly from the application of a little common sense.

There is, for example, the problem of what to do about NATO. For 40 brilliant years it defended the West against an aggressive Soviet Union, and at last, without ever firing a shot, saw its great enemy collapse, exhausted and defeated.

But what shall become of NATO now? It is natural to resist the dissolution of so successful an institution, but dissolution is, I think, inevitable. "Change," Buddha told his disciples, "is the fate of all compound things," and although he was preparing them for his own inevitable demise, the point is equally applicable to NATO.

It was a coalition designed to resist a superpower that has disappeared. No doubt it will survive, in some diminished form, for a while yet, but its member nations have other concerns now, and interests that are not always congruent. Certainly it is absurd to suppose that local nearby conflicts like the civil war in Bosnia can be seized on to give NATO useful work to do.

NATO served, and is only fit to serve, the vital interests of the West. The fate of Bosnia is no such thing.

Naturally the nations of Central Europe long to "join NATO" -- by which they mean, simply, to obtain Western guarantees of military support against the supposed danger of a resurgent Russia. But the major Western powers are unsure whether the next serious threat to world peace will come from Russia or from a newly powerful China on Russia's eastern borders. In the latter case, Russia herself may become an urgent applicant for Western guarantees.

Meanwhile, CNN's "Horror Story of the Month" is... Chechnya. How many Americans, I wonder, could find Chechnya on a map if their lives depended on it? How many know the difference between Grozny and Gerasde, or care? And just how much, precisely, are they morally obliged to care? Americans are human, and they can and do sympathize with the weeping widows and wounded children and brave men of Grozny, wherever it may be and whatever the battle there is about. But we dare not let television cameramen start making our foreign policy.

Chechnya is a constituent part of the Russian Federation, and President Yeltsin will of course resist its unilateral secession and quell the rebellion if he can. This has upset people all over the world (including Russia) whose notions of appropriate policy are a byproduct of whatever they happen to see, or think they see, on the evening news. Fortunately, not even Mr. Clinton has thus far reached the conclusion that a vital American interest is at stake in Chechnya, requiring the dispatch and possible death of American troops.

None of these concerns -- the fate of NATO, the fate of Bosnia, the fate of Chechnya -- will be resolved easily.

There is, for example, the problem of what to do about NATO.

Confronting your former lives

WASHINGTON -- I hate moving. So when we recently purchased a new house, I arranged things so that the ordeal would be as painless as possible. Buying a home near our old address, I figured, would preserve my husband's commute, the kids' school and my sanity, since we could transfer our belongings over days rather than in one crazed swoop.

Still, I put it off so long that my husband took to calling our new home "the museum" -- as in a place to visit, admire and then leave rather than actually live in.

Finally, we moved. In retrospect, it wasn't so bad -- except that I kept running into her.

Though I'd dreaded the endless sorting, packing and discarding, another inevitability was worse: You can't move without stumbling over huge pieces of yourself, and all your former lives. I wasn't eager to confront the various me's who would surface.

Most of us stash away evidence of our former selves, to be dealt with occasionally -- as when we trot out ancient photos for friends, or a conversation reminds us of a sweater we loved and sends us scurrying to find it.

Spacing out such expeditions into our past puts sufficient intervals of time and emotion between them. Moving unearths an avalanche of memories, of tangible proofs of who we, and our loved ones, once were.

And inevitably, stuff that we haven't glanced at since -- well, since the last time we moved -- seems precious.

During the move, while searching for ways to keep my restless sons, Hamani, 13, and Darrell, 9, from killing each other and myself from boarding the next flight out of town, I discovered among the piles of loose change, hairpins and umbrellas a ragged straw handbag stuffed with papers.

Telling myself to chuck it -- "What could I possibly want in here?" -- I opened it. And found:

A sheet of paper covered with scrawled hearts and these words from my elder son, who then was about 7: "I love you Every day Mom my love Hamani Britt."

A seven-page letter to "My Miss America" from my father -- I'd forgotten he ever wrote me -- begun at 4:30 a.m. and written over four days in May 1988. He discussed a recent phone conversation with his 88-year-old Florida A&M basketball coach, a recent cut on his hand requiring six stitches and how he was looking forward to a visit from his older sister, who died three years later.

The card that accompanied the first flowers sent to me by my now-husband, back when he still was hedging his bets by signing "Fondly" rather than "Love."

A booklet, "Your Child and Discipline," which clearly I never read.

A Christmas card from my now-deceased grandmother saying how much she enjoyed our recent phone conversation. "I could hear the happiness in your voice," she wrote in her distinctive hand. "Kiss the two Teddy Bears, Hamani and Darrell. ... Enclosed is the million dollars!"

A note from a former baby sitter that informed me, "Mami (then 4) put his shoe on today and wanted me to tie it, but my finger was occupied by Daryl's mouth."

"Daryl (8 months) has just eaten about three tablespoons of peaches."

I caught myself hiding my robe belt from him so he wouldn't chew on it. He just fetched it ... and looked at me as if to say, "I'm not that same baby of yesterday. I'm more advanced now."

Reading it, I wondered how could I have forgotten so much? Moving returns us to rushed past people and places, rendering them unspeakably precious. It teaches us how invaluable our current moments are -- like my sons' squabbling over who's cheating at Nintendo, Mami's hopeful references to the "mustache" only he can see, the ridiculous dance Darrell does to honor birthdays.

No wonder I hate moving. It reminds me that all we ever do, really, is move -- slide unconsciously from one reality to the next -- older but rarely wise enough to appreciate any moment as passionately as we should.

It makes me yearn to fix my loved ones in time, to preserve them like butterflies on a page. It makes us realize that however wrapped up we get in the day's events, the things we'll miss have less to do with what's happening in the world than with whom we've loved at any given moment and who loved us.

Moving prefaces the point that everything must change. But what if the coming changes are less wonderful than those that preceded them?

And yet, for all my dread of moving, I love my new house. Despite the hassle of living out of boxes, not having a clue as to where the iron or my black leggings are hiding, the change was good.

Not one of us is the same baby we were yesterday. And that's OK.

I wasn't eager to confront the various me's who would surface.

Let the law stifle Congress' spending

Step right in and take a seat in Professor Spear's classroom in the economics department of Truth University.

We are currently being bombarded with a lot of hogwash about budgets and deficits and there are few among us who couldn't use a little refresher course, the prof included. We'll use the rhetorical question method and begin with a simple one.

Q: What is the Balanced Budget Amendment?

A: The BBA, as the cognoscenti call it, is a proposed amendment to the Constitution that would compel Congress to spend no more money than is taken in during any given year.

Q: What's so drastic about that?

A: Friends, let me introduce you to the greatest assembly of squandermaniacs on God's green earth -- the U.S. Congress. They cannot control their impulses to spend spend spend. When they don't have the funds, they just borrow borrow borrow.

Since 1930, this nation has had precisely eight balanced budgets, none since 1969. This deficit spending is financed by the sale of U.S. Treasury bills, notes and bonds. During the George Bush years, we had to sell about $300 billion worth of this paper annually -- about a fifth of it to foreign investors -- to keep the government afloat. Bill Clinton has gotten the yearly shortfall down to $200 billion, and he prances around calling himself a deficit-reduction president.

Think about it: We are still going in the hole at the rate of more than half a billion dollars a day and we call it deficit reduction. Such is the state of virtue in American politics.

Q: What is the difference between "deficit" and "debt"? A: Many people get confused with these terms. The annual deficit is just what it says -- the difference between revenues and expenditures in any fiscal year. The national debt is the accumulation of all deficits since the first loan the new federal government took out in 1789. It tripled during the Reagan years, soared another trillion-plus under Bush and will jump nearly another trillion by the end of Clinton's first term.

As 1994 drew to a close, the national debt stood at $4,800,149,946,143.75. That's $4.8 trillion, and it is costing us around $300 billion a year in interest. Sometime this spring, Congress will vote to raise the allowable limit to $5 trillion.

Q: Occasionally you see a national debt figure that is a trillion dollars or so less than that $4.8 trillion number. You also see an interest figure that is more than $100 billion less than that $300 billion number. What is the disparity here?

A: Every year, the federal government "borrows" billions of dollars from the so-called "trust funds" that are designed to finance Social Security, government pensions, airports and highways. The Treasury simply takes all revenues collected for these funds into the general pot and issues special securities -- IOUs -- to the funds. Interest payments are also made in IOUs.

Thus the "trust funds" contain nothing but promises. The government reasons, moreover, that debt owed to itself is not real debt, so it subtracts the amount owed to the funds from the gross figures and comes up with something called "debt held by the public." That is the number -- about $3.4 trillion at the moment -- that the bureaucrats use when they discuss the national debt.

Taking center stage — contract vs. covenant

WALTER R. MEARS
News Analysis

WASHINGTON — So much for money. Now it's the contract vs. the covenant — the Democrats' quest for swift action on their promises. President Clinton's version of a new-look government.

Clinton's points of accord, will be more of contention as he strives to regain the initiative from the GOP Congress.

"We've got the votes; he's got the money. Add to that mix the influence of congressional Democrats to stall, or even block, Clinton's measures, and the words of cooperation and bipartisanship may ring hollow."

Clinton has had his 21 minutes on the national stage. House Republicans are reclaiming it, setting work on a centerpiece of "Contract With America," a balanced budget amendment.

Clinton recites the 10 pledges in the House that they promised voters in the 1994 election.

100 days and have fewer than 80 left.

Clinton on Wednesday went to Kutotown, Pa., with his New Covenant message: "We are trying to change the focus of the national government to grassroots America."

That's fine with Republicans, who call it their idea in the first place. But they're irked at Clinton's opposition to the balanced budget amendment, although if they can get two-thirds votes, it's out of his hands and goes to the states for ratification.

Clinton said he's already done more to trim the deficit than anyone since Harry Truman, and if Republicans want to write a balanced budget into the Constitution, they ought to be straight about it and say what cuts and taxes it would take to get it done by 2002, their target.

After a politically awkward acknowledgement that with the cuts itemized in advance they couldn't get the amendment passed, Republican leaders demanded that Clinton deliver a seven-year balanced budget plan himself. The White House retorted that it was their proposal and their responsibility.

Clinton will define his own plan for spending cuts, and the five-year projection presidents are required to deliver, when he sends his budget to Congress on Feb. 6.

Collisions are also ahead on an increase in the $4.25 an hour minimum wage, which Clinton can't get past the Republicans, and any GOP attempt to repeal the limited ban on assault-style weapons that was passed in the last Congress. The president said he wouldn't let that happen, meaning veto, although he didn't use the word this time.

He did use that word a year before, complete with a pen to wave, saying he'd block any health care reform bill that didn't meet his universal coverage terms. There was no better measure of the changed power balance than his acknowledgment Tuesday night that he'd bitten off too much, and will seek limited, first-step health reforms.

Among points of agreement, Clinton spoke of the limited veto power he wants and Republicans made part of their contract of welfare reform: of action to bar the dumping of costly federal mandates on the states; of trimming the size and cost of government, which, he repeated, he's been doing for two years, with scant recognition.

He said government should be leaner, but not meaner.

The trouble comes in defining those terms in legislative action.

Take lobbying reform. Republicans say they'll get to it. Clinton said a law isn't needed for officeholders to turn down the favors of lobbyists. "Just stop accepting gifts from them," he said.

"Cheap shot," countered Sen.

Bob Dole of Kansas, the majority leader. He said Clinton wasn't doing it, that lobbyists contributed to his legal defense fund. A few hours later, the fund's trustees announced Clinton had told them not to take lobbyists' money.

Even so, Dole said, the State of the Union is always the president's night, whether he is Democrat or Republican. The hard part, he said, will come in trying to make the impact last, while working with the GOP Congress.

Dole said they'll cooperate where they can, battle it out where they can't. "That's the way it's always been."

Former Vice President Dan Quayle said in a TV interview that gridlock probably will take hold later this year — "That's the normal political situation."

And for all the vows to end business as usual, on both sides, that's surely the way it will remain.

Killer sponges

Cave-dwelling sponges eat animals

By MALCOLM RITTER
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK — From a dark cave in the Mediterranean Sea comes a grisly tale of sponges gone bad.

They left behind the placid feeding ways of other sponges, which filter seawater to pull out bacteria and other microscopic snacks. That wasn't enough for them.

They became Killer Sponges. They capture and eat small shrimps and similar creatures up to a quarter-inch long, which can struggle vainly for hours to escape.

For a sponge, that's like bagging big game. Their secret is exposed in today's issue of the journal Nature by scientists Nicole Boury-Esnault and Jean Vacelet of the Oceanographic Center of Marseille in France.

Killer sponges may also live elsewhere, including deep in the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, Vacelet said Wednesday.

Sponges are animals that anchor themselves to rocks or other solid objects, usually in oceans. Each sponge is basically a collection of cells on a natural scaffold. It has no internal organs like a heart or lung.

The killer sponges grow about three-quarters of an inch tall, with a white oval body at the end of a thread-like stalk. Although they belong to a kind of sponge that normally lives very deep in the ocean, they apparently felt at home in the darkness and constant temperature of their shallow underwater cave near Marseille.

The sponges trap their prey in sticky threads that extend from their bodies. As the hapless creatures struggle, they bump up against more and more threads, which further entrap them.

It's not clear just how the prey finally dies, but perhaps it is smothered by the threads.

Vacelet said.

Once the prey is dead, the sponge grows out at the capture site to engulf it. The meal is then digested, which takes up eight days. Then the sponge extends its threads again, "ready for new prey," Vacelet said.

Killer sponges apparently evolved because the usual strategy of filtering seawater was just not getting enough food in the deep ocean, the researchers wrote.

Sponges are known to be highly adaptable, but the new study is the first to show they can eat animals, said Klaus Ruetzler, a sponge expert at the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of Natural History.

The discovery should not make people squeamish if they use natural sponges at home. For one thing, the home product is just a sponge skeleton.

And the sponge it comes from is no killer, Boury-Esnault said. "It's a normal sponge."

Simpson trial: A lot of surprises

LOS ANGELES — There were a lot of surprises in the opening statement by O.J. Simpson's attorney. Just ask the prosecution.

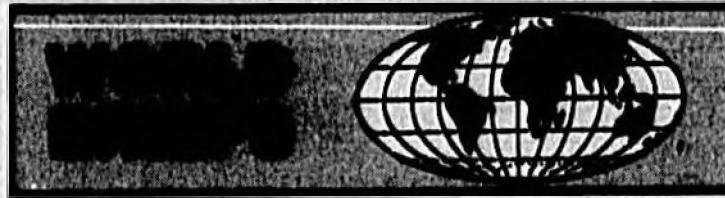

Deputy District Attorney William Hodgman was outraged Wednesday when Johnnie Cochran Jr. mentioned witnesses and evidence to the jury without giving proper warning to prosecutors.

Hodgman repeatedly interrupted Cochran's opening statement with objections. Then he accused defense attorneys of suddenly unloading the information — some of which was gathered in June — in a last-minute ambush. Both sides are legally required to share information in a timely manner.

"I don't think in the history of jurisprudence we have ever had anything happen like what happened in this courtroom," Hodgman said, demanding time to study the reports.

Later Wednesday, Hodgman suffered chest pains and was taken to California Medical Center. He was under observation and resting comfortably today. District Attorney Gil Garcetti said because of Hodgman's hospitalization and the defense's late release of information, the prosecution probably will seek a delay in presenting testimony.

Superior Court Judge Lance Ito had set aside this morning's session to deal with prosecution complaints. He could delay the trial or prohibit the defense from calling some of the newly disclosed witnesses.

Dance livid over no-smoking campaign

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — A bold anti-smoking campaign in Sweden is causing a furor in neighboring Denmark, where a cigarette maker targeted by the campaign is threatening to sue.

The week-old campaign, sponsored by the Swedish government, uses the copyrighted name and logo of a Danish cigarette brand, Prince. Juxtaposing photos of penitentiary women and cancer cells on a lung X-ray, it reads: "Raped by Prince" or "Murdered by Prince."

Prince, packaged and marketed in Sweden by Swedish Tobacco AV, is one of the best-selling cigarette brands in Scandinavia.

Bo Aulin, a lawyer representing Prince's Danish maker, Scandinavian Tobacco Company, said the company was considering a law suit for copyright infringement.

"They have gone too far," Aulin said. "We are considered criminals. We are accused of rape and murder."

The creator of the anti-smoking campaign, a state-funded group called "A Non-Smoking Generation," denied it violated any law.

Greta Weding, general-secretary of the group, said lawyers who previewed the campaign concluded it broke no laws because it was an expression of opinion, not advertising.

County coordinator of the Economic Development Commission of mid-Florida. "With 80 employees at its local headquarters and a payroll exceeding $3.6 million, Dixon is exactly the type of company Seminole County's incentive fund was established for."

The average wage of employees and managerial personnel to be located at the Heathrow facility is estimated at approximately $30,000 per year.

Dixon Ticonderoga Executive Vice President Richard F. Joyce predicts the construction payroll for establishing the new headquarters will be approximately $1.2 million. He also projects that the company will add possibly 10 to 20 new corporate employees over the next five years.

He continued, "We're extremely pleased that we were able to encourage Dixon Ticonderoga's long-term commitment to our region."

In 1980, the company selected Orlando as the site of its headquarters, after a comprehensive nationwide search. Previously, it was headquartered in Vero Beach, and for over 150 years in Jersey City, N.J.

"We came to Central Florida intending to remain here," said Gino Pala, chief executive officer of Dixon Ticonderoga. "This move certainly solidifies that commitment, and Seminole County and EDC officials can take credit because it was their assistance and forward thinking that convinced us to make this significant investment."

Seminole County Manager Ron Rabun observed, "This is a win-win situation for both the county and Dixon. Dixon's property tax revenue to the county will be approximately $48,000 per year. That means in about two years, the county will realize a complete return on its investment. That's pretty good by anyone's standards."

Founded in 1788, the Dixon Ticonderoga Company is the oldest manufacturer of writing and art products in the United States. Worldwide, the company employs 1,300 people and has manufacturing and/or distribution facilities in Mexico, Canada, England, and six U.S. states.

The headquarters facility in Heathrow will be built by Jack Jennings and Sons. The architects are Burke, Bates and Mills. Space planning and design is being provided by the Bailey, Nichols Group of Winter Park.

In the resolution, the amount is set as to not exceed $100,000 for the economic incentives agreement benefit.

The wording of the resolution says the board of county commissioners, "considers this to be a worthwhile public/private partnership that favorably serves the public interest."

Although the Dixon Ticonderoga Company will be in unincorporated land, it will be immediately adjacent to the city of Lake Mary. The city encompasses developable property to the north of the Dixon site, as well as on the eastern side of Interstate-4, from Lake Mary Boulevard to S.R. 46-A.

"This Dixon corporate office is exactly the type of business facility we are looking for in this area," said Lake Mary City Manager John Litton. "While it isn't in the city, I'm certain it will help to attract other businesses into the area, which will benefit everyone in the city as well as the county."

Litton said he is also looking forward to learning more about the proposed movie studio which has been planned for the same general area. Three sites in and near Lake Mary have been examined for the facility, but no definite location has been determined at this time. It is expected property as large as 200 acres may be needed.

The studio has been tentatively announced as a working operation rather than a tourist attraction. Two large hotels have been projected on the property, one for employees, the other, open to the general public, possibly including a major convention center.

In addition, within the Lake Mary city limits, expansions are underway with major industrial facilities including Recoton, and Strang Communications.

Further north toward Sanford, but still along I-4, is the proposed multi-screen movie theater. It is planned for the area east of the interstate, near where the old railroad underpass was located.

Seminole County as well as the cities of Sanford and Lake Mary are all experiencing an influx of business and industry at the present time. Almost all of the developments however, are going west.

Gender Boy

Sanford, with special materials, such as silk costing more. The price of alterations is based on the type of material and construction of the garment, not the gender of the owner, according to the owner who identified herself only as Tina.

Camille Fuller, manager of Quality Cleaners of Lake Mary, noted women are sometimes charged more because their blouses do not fit on the equipment and must be finished by hand. Men and women are charged the same price for alterations, $4.50 for hemming a pair of pants or a skirt, she added.

For local salons, the length of hair has more to do with pricing than gender some staffers claim.

Men and women are charged exactly the same for haircuts at Secret's Hair Design.

"Except in the case of balding men," noted one stylist. "We have what we call the executive cut. It just isn't right to charge them the same price for a two minute haircut."

A stylist at Hair Waves in Lake Mary said the salon doesn't do just hair cuts but offers full service for men at $15 and women at $24. Men with longer hair would pay more.

The proposed bill to prevent gender gouging would give consumers the opportunity to file complaints.

"We're going to try to level the playing field so women will have the same opportunity, the same prices as everybody else," said Sen. William Turner, D-Hialeah, who is sponsoring the companion bill in the Florida Senate.

The measure drew immediate criticism from small-business lobbyists, who said it could expose businesses — most of which, the lobbyists said, don't discriminate on pricing — to a potential barrage of lawsuits.

"It's a feel-good legislation that will hurt small business," said Bill Herrle, state director for the National Federation of Independent Business, which represents 83,000 small businesses in Florida, including hundreds of dry cleaners, beauty salons and barber shops.

Wasserman Schults and Villalobos released a survey to back up their proposed law to prevent gender gouging.

House members conducted the survey in January, during this month of dozens of hair salons, department stores and dry cleaners statewide.

It showed half of the 40 hair salons contacted charged an average of $6.48 more for a woman's basic haircut than for a basic men's haircut. The same salons charged a woman an average of $6.87 more, when a shampoo and blow dry were included.

The survey of department stores showed 15 of 23 charged a woman for clothing alterations, but did not charge a man for the same service when purchasing a full-price suit.

When it comes to dry cleaners, the survey showed most charged men and women identical prices for similar clothing. Nearly 83 percent charged identical prices for cleaning two-piece suits and laundering shirts, the survey said.

A similar study in California found 84 percent of the dry cleaners charged a woman more than a man to launder a shirt.

Surveys in other parts of the nation have shown women are routinely charged more than men for similar services, said the Florida Public Interest Research Group.

Florida PIRG said it conducted its own survey of dry cleaners in Tallahassee earlier this month, finding four of nine businesses charged an average of $1.38 more for cleaning a woman's shirt than a man's.

"The bottom line is we need to raise the level of awareness for business establishments in terms of setting their prices," Wasserman Schults said.

"We don't want to regulate prices," she said. "We want to make (businesses) aware that if they are providing the same service, they need to charge similar or like prices for similar or like services."

Sanford, equipment. Michael climbed onto a huge green transformer box, they said, and touched the insulated coils.

The shock of the 7,200 volts of electricity sent him hurtling 12 feet through the air in a searing flame, reports say.

Summoned by his brother Christopher and the friend, Laurie Carter ran to her son's side. Investigators said she received burns on her arms as she cradled her son, waiting for medical assistance to arrive.

His heart stopped, however, and he was pronounced dead at Orlando Regional Medical Center an hour later.

Officials did not know the relationship between the two. One reported the two had only recently met while another said they were boyfriend and girlfriend.

"The deputy looked into the car and realized the woman was having a baby," McDonough said. "He has children of his own."

the animals from the zoo, with the professional handlers. For several years, she has worked with pre-schoolers in the Story Hour program.

She has traveled considerably, both before and after retirement. Originally from Massachusetts, she lived in Guam for four years. "I married a man (John) in the Navy and then we went to Japan." They lived in Boston on one tour of duty. After retirement, they lived in California and Arizona. They settled in Lake Mary, in the Forest, in 1978, to be close to an aunt.

Clark traveled to South Africa, Botswana, Zambia, Zimbabwe last October, on a trip coordinated by zoo director Ed Posey. "I saw all the animals I wanted to see. It really was a lovely trip."

The butterfly garden was started in 1982, by Sandi Linn, then the education coordinator and now the education curator. Clark took over responsibility of the garden from another docent, who recently moved. "I'm just trying to keep up pretty much what Carolyn Burrenburg has done and I have added in butterfly weed" and several other plants.

According to information distributed by the Florida Department of Natural Resources, butterfly gardens must contain both larval and nectar food plants. Numerous suitable plants should be provided, preferably in an unkempt area. Grasses should be allowed to grow, for cover, and the use of pesticides or herbicides is, of course, discouraged. Clark said she tries to keep back the weeds and the potato vine that hangs on the trees.

Among the plants that can be found in the zoo's garden are milkweed, lantana, pentas, shrimp plant, Mexican flames, passion flower, red autumn sage, heliotrope, wild lime, ageratum.

"It's such a shock," said Winger.

The family is not commenting on the tragedy, but teachers and administrators at the school are preparing meals for the Carters and planning a schedule to visit.

At school, the mood is quiet. A guidance counselor is available in Michael's class and a team of counselors from across the district has set aside an area in the media center for those who just want to talk.

"He was so well-liked," Winger said. "The kids are still very quiet about it."

Arrangements are being made to set up a memorial fund for Michael, but the details have not been finalized.

The deputy escorted the couple to station 13 arriving about 5:15 p.m. The baby was born just minutes later on the front seat of the car.

Station officer Lt. Buddy Mills and paramedics Bradley Hawver, Todd Bush and Van Kirkland assisted. Mills is also a paramedic.

The mother and baby were then transported by the station crew to the hospital.

little space." The Clarks live in one of the first manufactured home communities in this area. Named to reflect its environment, The Forest is just that. Most lots are kept natural, with lots of trees and little grass.

"I try to keep a variety of plants, so I have some flowers," she describes it as environmental landscape management; all the plumes without the mowers, "no lawnmowers to bother you."

Ice stay alive in WS
Sanford pounds Apopka to force game four

From Staff Reports

APOPKA - The ice haven't melted yet. The Sanford entry in the Women's Baseball League rebounded from a pair of blowouts to post a blowout of its own, crushing the Apopka Diamonds 22-6 in Game 3 of the initial World Series of the fledgling league.

The ice will now look to even the series at 2-2 on Friday afternoon when it hosts the Diamonds at Sanford Memorial Stadium starting at 1:30 p.m. A victory on Friday would force a fifth and deciding game on Saturday afternoon at SMS.

One of the big reasons Sanford was able to avoid a three game sweep was the return of ace pitcher Stephanie Reed, who has been unable to pitch because of arm problems.

"She was able to survive and throw strikes,"

WBL WORLD SERIES Game 3 J. Barnes Field, Apopka High School ICE 72 DIAMONDS 6 Sanford 22 Apopka 6

Ice manager Mike Ferrell said of Reed "She is only at about 80%, but she dug down deep and did the job. The team played with a lot of heart tonight, we're a banged up club, but the girls believe they can still win and are not giving up."

Sanford scored a single run in the top of the first inning, but fell behind 2-1 in the bottom of the first. The ice took the lead for good in the top of the second with a pair of runs, then started the rout by scoring seven runs in the top of the third inning.

Providing the offense for Sanford were Melissa Garcia (two hits, three runs, three RBI), Adria Hernandez (two hits, two runs, two RBI), Sheila Reed (triple, three runs, two RBI), Anni Scales (single, five runs, three RBI) and Davido High School head softball coach Anna Hollis (single, three runs, three RBI).

Also hitting were Vicky Humphrey (single, run, two RBI), Christy Weaver (single, two runs), Stephanie Reed (single, two RBI) and Susan Stahly (three runs, RBI).

LOCALLY

6A-District 4 final set

LAKE MARY - Amber Bradley, Jordan Kelgren, Angie Olson and Brooke Kent each scored as the Lake Mary Rams blanked Lake Howell 4-0 in the Class 6A District 4 semifinals at Don T. Reynolds Stadium Wednesday night.

Bradley also added an assist as the Rams (17-6-2, ranked No. 3 in the state) knocked out Lake Howell (17-7, No. 7 in the state).

Lake Mary will now travel to Altamonte Springs to face topped-ranked Lake Brantley in a 7-1 winner over Oviedo at Tom Stony Field in the district championship at 7 p.m. Friday.

Tim's Team still unbeaten

SANFORD - Tim's Team is now the only team in the Sanford Recreation Department Fall Coed Power Volleyball League after winning both of its games Wednesday night at the Sanford Middle School Gymnasium.

Tim's stands alone atop the A League with a 1-0 record, while the Young Guns (who went 1-1) are 3-1. The Power Rangers (1-1 for the week) and Side Out (0-2) are both 1-3.

In the B League, Spearhuckers won both its games this week to even its record at 2-2 and are tied for first with Kelley's, who went 1-1. Beach Soccer is just behind at 1-3 after an 0-2 week.

Wells, Reckers undefeated

SANFORD - Wells Contracting and Reckers both had big late inning offensive explosions to remain undefeated in the Sanford Recreation Department Men's Wednesday Night Polar Bear Slowpitch Softball League at Chase Park.

Wells (2-0) came up with six runs in the sixth inning to edge Captain Bly's 11-11, 7-5 and Reckers (2-0) scored eight runs in the sixth inning to erase a 5-4 deficit and defeat Sheet Metal Workers 11-20, 12-5. In the other game, Sheet Metal Workers tripled the score on Elite Interiors 10-3, 9-3.

Next week, Captain Bly's plays Reckers at 6:30 p.m. and Reckers stays to face Sheet Metal Workers at 7:30 p.m. The 8:30 p.m. game has Wells Contracting taking on Elite Interiors.

AROUND THE STATE

Lightning beat Panthers

ST. PETERSBURG - Daren Poppa stopped 26 shots and Brian Bradley had a goal and an assist as the TB Lightning beat the Fla Panthers 3-2 before 20,277 in the ThunderDome.

The victory, Tampa Bay's first after two losses in the lockout-shortened season, was its first in six meetings with its in-state rival, which won three and lost two against the Lightning a year ago. Florida's off to an 0-3 start this season.

Hurricanes blown out

MIAMI - Eric Eberz scored 20 points, including two 3-pointers, during Villanova's game opening 13-0 run, as the No. 22 Wildcats coasted to a 92-62 win over Miami.

AROUND THE WORLD

Tar Heels bury 'Noles

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. - Dante Calabria led North Carolina's record setting 4-point shooting, scoring a career high 26 points as the third-ranked Tar Heels cruised by LSU, 100-70.

The Tar Heels (11-1, 7-1) won their sixth straight game and Florida State (9-6, 3-4) saw its three-game A-10 winning streak end despite a career high 26 points from Corey Louis.

Florida comeback fails

AUBURN, Ala. - Lance Weems scored 22 points and Mosche Norris thwarted a Florida comeback with a dive over press row as Auburn defeated the 2-nd ranked Gators, 77-71, its second win over a Final Four team in two weeks.

at Lake Mary High School. The Rams went on to claim the match by the score of 48-18 and clinched at least a tie for the Seminole Athletic Conference wrestling title.

Rams matmen get share of SAC

From Staff Reports

LAKE MARY - After dropping the opening match of the night, the Lake Mary Rams came back to win the next nine matches and finished the night with 10 victories in 14 matches, giving the Rams a 18-18 triumph over Lyman in a Seminole Athletic Conference wrestling meet at Lake Mary High School Wednesday night.

The junior varsity contest also went to Lake Mary in a 68-0 whitewash.

The triumph gives Lake Mary an overall record of 11-2, but more importantly, gives the Rams a perfect 4-0 record in the conference and at least a share of the conference crown. A victory at Oviedo on Friday would clinch sole possession of the title and an undefeated conference season for Lake Mary.

Friday's meet will be the final SAC match-up for the Rams, who will conclude the regular season with meets next week with St. Cloud on Tuesday and West Orange on Wednesday at Lake Mary High School.

The meet was another peak in a roller coaster ride for the Rams this week. Saturday Lake Mary was on top of the world after winning the Tournament of Champions, then hit a low Tuesday night when the team was blasted by University 50-15.

Rich Bradley (114), Brian Yang (121), Ben Crawford (132), Brad Harris (162), and Andy Staples (222) all had pins for Lake Mary, while Andy Heber (191) got a pin for Lyman.

SANFORD - The senior guard duo of Eric Roberts and Brad Frame combined for 33 points as the Seminole High School boys' basketball team outscored Lake Brantley in every quarter in a 69-52 triumph over the Patriots in a Seminole Athletic Conference contest at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium Wednesday night.

"Brad Frame and Eric Roberts are playing so well together right now," said Arrow Force III head coach Bob Frame. "And we are getting around 30 points from our inside players. If we keep on doing that we should be in every game. We are having down as many games. See Boys, Page 2B

LIONS TAME BRAVES

ORLANDO - The Oviedo Lions overcame an early deficit by winning five of the last six matches of the night to edge the Boone Braves 10-4 in a boys' soccer game at Oviedo on Wednesday night.

Oviedo also claimed the junior varsity contest by a 12-24 score.

The victory improved the Lions' record to 9-4 overall and sets up an important Seminole Athletic Conference match-up with Lake Mary at home Friday night. An Oviedo win would secure a tie for the title with the Rams, while a Lake Mary victory would give the Rams a perfect 5-0 season and sole possession of the crown.

David Zickelouse (185) had a pin for Oviedo, while Karl Reinhard (119), Jeremy Reinhard (149) and Shawn Craig (174) all won by decision for the Lions.

Rams take SAC boys' soccer title

From Staff Reports

OVIEDO - Jamie Bailey scored two goals and Aron Cook added the other as the Lake Mary Rams wrapped up the Seminole Athletic Conference title with a 3-1 victory over Oviedo in boys' soccer action at John Courter Field Wednesday.

The junior varsity contest ended in a 0-0 tie.

Cook opened the scoring with an assist from Jason Eisdell and Bailey came back later in the first half with his two scores, the first on an assist from Scott Freeman.

The Lions' lone score came with six minutes left in the game on the foot of Scott Ehlert.

The Rams outshot Oviedo 11-0 and had five corner kicks to two for the Lions. Greg Velho stopped seven shots in goal to get the win for the Rams, while Darren Okwue also had seven saves for Oviedo.

Lake Mary improved to 20-11 overall and a perfect 5-0 in the conference, while Oviedo fell to 15-5 overall and 5-3-1 in the SAC. Both teams will conclude the regular season on Friday with the Rams going to Lyman and the Lions hosting Seminole.

LYMAN EDGES LAKE HOWELL

CASSELLHERRY - Lyman, jumped out to a 3-0 halftime lead and held off Lake Howell 4-3 in a boys' Seminole Athletic Conference game at Richard L. Evans Field Wednesday night.

The Greystones' junior varsity scored a 3-1 triumph to give Lyman a sweep of the night's action.

Scott Chimese and Troy Martin, Charles Whitmore and Brad Butler scored one goal each as Lyman improved to 20-3-1 on the season and 7-1-1 in the conference. Chad Riggins contributed a pair of assists, while Butler and Whitmore added one each.

Lake Howell's scores came from Craig Noves (two) and Jeff Yeargan, while the assists were from both Holcomb (two) and Paul Eberz.

The Silver Hawks outshot the Greystones 14-3 and both teams had four corner kicks. Coach Steve Laplace (Lyman) and Coach Zosky (Lake Howell) had five saves each.

The regular season will end Friday for both teams with Lyman hosting Lake Mary and the Silver Hawks at 7-1-1, 2-7-3 at Lyman in Lake Brantley.

Celebrities to choose nation's 'service' winners

Special to the Herald

A host of celebrities will judge the 1995 "Colgate's Youth or America" Campaign. The award-winning program presents cash grants for the best executed projects in the United States by local units of the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Boys and Girls Clubs, Girls Incorporated, Camp Fire and 4-H. More than 240 local clubs and troops of these leading youth organizations will receive checks for up to $2,000 for their outstanding projects.

Program Director Michele Macchia said, "Our 'Youth for America' program inspires, promotes, and supports the positive activities of today's kids, recognizing and rewarding their genuine concern for their world." This past year's winning projects reflect the concerns of today's young people and offer creative solutions to many of their problems, from environmental concerns to sexual harassment to therapeutic programs for the handicapped. Last year's top winner, a 4-H group from Minnesota, instituted an abduction awareness campaign after a local girl's kidnapping made national news. The program stressed prevention and helped calm the fears of community children.

Part of a worldwide network of Colgate-Palmolive Company-sponsored youth programs, the campaign launched in 1972 to promote social responsibility among America's youth. It has won a Freedom Foundation

Courtney Thorne-Smith (clockwise from top left) and Jack Wagner of TV's "Melrose Place," Annie Potts of TV's "Love and War," Scott Wolfe of "Party of Five," Dean Cain, TV's Superman from "Lois and Clark," and TV and screen star William McNamara will judge the nation's top community service winners in the 1995 "Colgate's Youth for America" campaign.

P.O. Box 1058, FDR Station, New York, N.Y. 10150-1058. The deadline for entry into this year's program is March 31, 1995.

Bad luck taking its toll on man's life

I want to thank you, the readers and subscribers of the Sanford Herald, for taking the time and interest in reading my column and the responses that you have sent to me as well as your letters that I am endeavoring to answer twice weekly in "Jerry Knows."

DEAR JERRY: After nine months in the Central Florida area, job situations, money, my marriage, and my health seem to be taking its toll on my life. What can I do if anything or just what do I do now? I've done all I think I know what to do and am at a virtual standstill. Where do I go from here?

BILL, LAKE MARY
DEAR BILL: It goes without saying that it is time to "cut your losses" and start thinking more positive. I feel that you are a very creative person and very hard worker (when you're working). Unfortunately, I feel that you have a tendency to be too quiet for your own good and are not demanding enough of what you are deserving of at any given time.

You also display, through your handwriting, a definite uptight sensitivity which probably has existed long before you ever got into your present predicament. It's time to loosen up, let your hair down, get tough, get busy, and stop letting others tell you how things are going to be. Sure, in most cases, there is a chain of command or supervisor to go through, but in your case, you have to learn how to take charge of, not only your personal life, but your business life as well. I wouldn't hesitate in hiring you in a heartbeat because I know I could count on you for loyalty first. Secondly, you're the type of guy that I would help make stronger and even a better potential employee if I had something that I would hire you for. Today, we live, however, in a society that shows us no guarantees for our futures even if we show up days on time and without missing a day's work.

Bill, I don't want you to think about packing it in and moving back to wherever it was you came from. I feel that there is an opportunity, yet, for you here in Central Florida and that you "have not" exhausted all your efforts in trying to secure a job.

As for your marriage, you must take more of a positive approach to your marriage and stop acting "down" or "wimpy" when I know, and you know, that you will not give up! You're better than that and your marriage will survive. After all, whatever happened to "in sickness and health, and for richer or poorer?" After you get that new job, give me a call and maybe we'll all go to Disney World and celebrate. You ain't down yet.

DEAR JERRY: I lost my husband at 43, my son drowned at 21, and now I have lost a breast to cancer. Do you see any good luck or fortune for me?

P.A., SANFORD
DEAR P.A.: First of all, I'm not a fortune teller and I don't do astrology, so giving me your birth date makes no difference other than I now know that you are over 21. (makes no difference anyway).

Into each life a little rain must fall and with life comes death. No one can say that it's fair no matter when it happens but the evolutions of life both positive and negative are to be expected. It's easy in your case to think negatively or to reach out for hope but you see, hope and faith come from within yourself first. Sure, it's great to have others associate with us on many levels of positive planes, but when the negative sets in "they all seem to disappear" from our very presence.

You have survived for a reason, yet you must utilize and demonstrate more strength; perhaps more than you think you have left. It's not time to forget from whence you came and how you made it through the earlier years. Maybe you won't be hitting the lottery, but you can collect from each day whatever it is you want, providing you "want something." Preparation plus opportunity, equals luck. In other words, you can still get what you want "if you want it bad enough." Go for it!
