COOLIDGE TO RECEIVE
New Position Today

Action of Foreign Powers Is Cited as Basis Upon Which United States Might Act

WASHINGTON, Apr. 6.—The outbreak of war as well as a further reduction of armaments would form the chief object for any new arms conference called by President Coolidge under a proposal outlined in a memorial to the Chief Executive signed by churchmen, educators, state governors and many others of equal prominence.

The memorial, which is to be presented to Mr. Coolidge Monday says that with the failure of the effort of the League of Nations in this direction the cause of the outlawry of aggressive war would seem to be lost unless the proposed conference here results in the uniting of the nations in a practical plan.

Sargent Typical Example Of Rugged Strength Which Poets Write About

By HARRY B. HUNT

WASHINGTON, Apr. 4. — The greatest man in the president's cabinet is its newest member. John Gerald Sargent, the new attorney general, whom the college called to office after Charles McPherson had turned down Charles Warren, towers a good three inches above Secretary Wilbur, and the lengthiest cabinet member before the scales at 25 pounds more than Secretary Weeks, the heaviest of the old cabinet.

Sargent just scales in under 6 feet 6 inches in his socks, in height, his weight is roughly 18 stone, or the 250 pounds avoirdupois. Sargent typifies the rugged Vermont strength which the poets like about.

Although his 64 years have brought a certain flaccid looseness to the skin of his neck and jaw, the lines of his jaw are still firm and strong.

The very bigness of his body, ponderous but powerful, suggests a bear, and that, likewise, while perhaps not of panther-like quickness, he goes straight ahead through all obstacles to definite and substantial conclusions.

Sargent ought to help Coolidge get more at home in his job. With Sargent in town, the president may

Living Space Scarce. London Adopts Bunks

LONDON, Apr. 4.—The demand for living space in London is so acute that bunks, one above the other similar to those aboard ships and which fold up out of sight when not in use, have been installed in some of the newest flats in the crowded City of London, where inches have to be taken into consideration whenever any building is being done.

Another innovation in the compressed furniture line is a "six-in-one" contrivance which includes a folding bed, washstand, chest of drawers, mirror, shoe rack, and space to place the bedding when the bed is not made up.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and luster to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

The Greatest Sports Center in America will be at Coral Gables

The great Bowman-Biltmore Hotel and sports project at Coral Gables is the largest which has ever been launched in this country—and for these reasons:

The Miami-Biltmore Country Club will cost, with the fine 18-hole golf course, $1,000,000—and is the finest country club in America.

The Miami-Biltmore Hotel at Coral Gables will cost $5,000,000—and will be 50 years in advance of all of the finest hotels in the world.

The Miami-Biltmore Casino to be erected on the newly acquired 6-mile frontage of Coral Gables on Biscayne Bay will be unequalled anywhere in beauty of architecture, setting and sumptuous appointments, and will cost $2,500,000.

The three fine golf courses, polo fields, driving clubs, tennis courts, yacht basins and all of the other refinements of the Bowman project, tie up and interlock every unit and detail of the scheme.

Mr. John McEntee Bowman, in the Westchester-Biltmore, at Rye, New York, now owns and conducts the most notable sports center at the present time, and is planning the Coral Gables project on infinitely broader lines, with the sole purpose of insuring to this section the largest and finest sports center in America.

The Miami-Biltmore Country Club is now rapidly near completion. The big hotel is under construction, and will be formally opened with a distinctive program on January 1st next. Construction on the Casino will be begun before the end of the year. Every phase of the building program has been completely financed and the entire project will be pushed to rapid completion. The opening of the hotel will be the big event of the season next year.

Every section in Coral Gables will be greatly benefited by this mammoth undertaking. The man or woman who invests here now is hearing the call of opportunity early—and taking full advantage of buying in advance of the large increase in property value which this great work insures.

Let us take you to Miami and Coral Gables with no cost or obligation to you. Our DeLuxe Highway Pullman Coaches leave each week for Coral Gables, making a delightful sight-seeing tour along the Indian River and Biscayne Bay passing through Palm Beach, Ft. Lauderdale and many points of interest in Miami. Transportation is free. For full particulars and to make reservation call at the local Coral Gables office.

A BUNCH OF SHAMROCKS

Only a wee bunch of shamrocks, Faded and withered and old; But to me they're more precious and lovely Than gems in their setting of gold. I look at them over and over, The teardrops well up in my eyes, And I'm glimpsing again in a vision Erin, the land of blue skies! I'm seeing the hills of Tipperary, Her valleys so lovely and green, Her rivers and streamlets that sparkle, That shame even silver's bright sheen; Her wee crooked lanes that will lead you To places enchanted and gay, Where as likely as not you'll be meeting A leprechaun man on your way. Only a wee bunch of shamrocks That journeyed across the wide sea, Picked from the sod of old Ireland And sent with good wishes to me; Picked while the dew lay upon them, While the robins were chirping around, By my mother, the dearest of women, As she bent with head to the ground. There with her eyes soft and misty, She knelt on the emerald sod, And with hands that were eager and trembling, With heart turned upward to God, She lovingly picked these wee shamrocks, And her heart was repeating a prayer That the one that was over the ocean Might be blessed with His love and His care. No wonder I touch them in reverence, No wonder I cherish them so, Those dear little shamrocks of Erin. That came from a spot that I know; They're sacred and hallowed and precious, Those dry little leaves that you see, Because they were sent o'er the ocean With a prayer and a blessing for me.—Katherine Edelman.

The Celery City Sage informs us that a Miss is as good as her smile. Building permits are getting bigger every day in Sanford. Don't criticize the tax dodgers in Florida. They are just exercising sound business judgment. The trouble about Spring in Florida is that it is sprung before you realize it. The local band is providing excellent music and entertainment for a large number of Sanford people. Every citizen should put his shoulder to the wheel and help make Sanford a bigger and better city in which to live. If you don't think outside capital is coming into Sanford, ask Mr. Young, who recently purchased the Swan property. Now that Spring is here wouldn't it be a good time to dress up the front yard a bit and touch up the house with a little fresh paint. It looked around here yesterday very much as if a great many roads were leading to St. Augustine. An election will soon be held in Sanford and Seminole county than anything that has ever yet been done.

A Delayed Corrective

Quite as colorful a bandit as Jesse James or one in the Nick Carter stories was Gerald Chapman, sentenced Saturday to hang on next June 25 for the murder of a New Britain policeman. His name which has filled with terror the hearts of so many and has covered the front pages of newspapers all over the country for several months, will soon be buried within the walls of the Connecticut State Prison.

Chapman first became widely known some four years ago for his part in the hold-up of a government mail truck on lower Broadway in New York City. The robbery was carefully planned and executed and from the bandit's point of view, a complete success. They escaped with something over two million dollars. However a few months later Chapman was traced down and captured in a fashionable New York apartment.

From then on for several years his life was filled with captures and escapes, with prison walls and reckless rides under freight trains. He was tracked into practically every state in the union. He was accused of a hundred different robberies and almost an equal number of other crimes. The best man hunters in the country were on his trail and a number of rewards were offered for his capture.

Finally the New Britain robbery was staged. Two burglars were caught in the act of blowing a safe in a department store. One was captured. The other shot his way out, killing Patrolman James Skelly. This man according to the captured bandit was the notorious Gerald Chapman.

That is what the trial in Hartford during the past few days has attempted to prove, and did prove according to the verdict of the jury. Gerald Chapman, surprised in the act of robbing a safe, murdered a policeman to gain his freedom. The judge rules that for this act he shall die on June 25.

Doubtless the jury rendered a fair verdict and the judge a proper sentence. We have all agreed that laxity of law enforcement encourages crime. We have all agreed that sentimental juries, who can be welded at will by a colorful defendant, are dangerous to the welfare of the country.

Yet it is too bad that a man with the nervous energy of Gerald Chapman, a man with his evident ability, with his apparent intelligence, could not have had these qualities directed by some friendly society into channels more profitable to humanity before they were so disastrously for him.

An Egotist

It was only a conversation between two strangers in a local restaurant, but it was a conversation which couldn't help but make one wonder what in the world is the matter with the human race anyway.

They were talking about real estate. At least one of them was. The other didn't get a chance to do anything except listen. And he listened very attentively while the other who seemed to be only a recent acquaintance, recounted at great length the brilliance on his part of the many deals he had negotiated recently which had made him so much money. It ran something like this:

"That was one piece I sold which made me five hundred dollars. Then I was the one who handled the Smith property and raked off a commission of fifteen hundred."

"But the slickset deal I've made lately was on that Fourth Street property. That old bird didn't want to sell, but I just told him that he was a fool and losing money every day he kept it, and finally my arguments convinced him. Well I just took an option on it and within a week I had sold it to some sap up North for more than twice as much as I paid. Pretty clever! Huh? Well, altogether I suppose I have made forty thousand dollars in the past six months."

Poor simple minded fool. Imagine how the gentleman across the table, behind his rather bored countenance, is inwardly laughing at him and wondering if all real estate men in Florida talk as promiscuously about their business affairs as this one.

Suppose the man had made forty thousand dollars in the past six months! Who cares?

IF ONE IS in doubt as to the part improved highways play, in the development of a Commonwealth, a visit to Florida will enable a proper appraisal of their contribution. The railroads were the pioneers, of course, but the highways have followed and Florida is to be seen as it could never be seen otherwise, from the motor car. Until South Carolina, especially the lower part of South Carolina, is served by dependable roads its real development will not come. Today lower South Carolina is just as beautiful as Florida, and if it were connected with the Piedmont with a paved highway hundreds of up-country folk would be down there. The modern State can no more do without modern highways than the modern city without modern streets.—Spartanburg (S. C.) Herald.

SOME MEN are so covetous as if they were to live forever; and others so profuse as if they were to die the next moment.—Aristotle.

MY FAVORITE STORIES

BY IRVIN S. COBB

They brought a darky out of the jail in a North Carolina town with intent to hang him for murder. This was in the day when capital punishment was publicly inflicted. As a special mark of attention the widow of the murdered's victim was permitted to witness the event from a position of vantage directly facing the gallows. She had had a sort of small grandstand rigged up and she had decorated it with bunting, and when the march to the scaffold started, there she sat in a white mother-hubbard wrap, or gently agitating a palmleaf fan, flanked and surrounded by relatives, invited friends and sister members of her lodge. The preliminaries went forward according to the ritual. When the condemned had been properly trussed up, with the noose dangling about his neck, the sheriff, holding the black cap in his hand, edged up to him and said: "Well, Jim we're about ready. If you've got anything to say, I reckon this would be a mighty good time to say it."

"Yah, suh," said the doomed, "I has got sump'n to say. I jest wants to say dat I is fully repented fur what I done. I taken it to de Lord in prayer an' I knows it's all right wid Him. I ast de judge wich tried de persecutin' attorney, an' de foreman of de jury of they bore me any grudge, w'ich, one and all, they said they did not. An' now I kin go right straight to hollen an' nestle in de bosom of Fath-er Abraham of only I kin git de forgiveness of dat nigger lady sit-ting yonder—de wife of de man I killed."

The white-clad figure in front of him: "Go on, nigger, de hang-git hang!" "Lady," he entreated, "does you forgive me fur shoo-in' yore husband six times wid a forty-fo' caliber revolver?"

Excepting that her under lip jutted out a trifle farther there was no sign she had heard him. She calmly fanned on.

The darky on the scaffold tried again: "Lady," he pleaded, "for de second time I axes you, ain't you, please ma'am, gwine forgive me?"

Still from her there was no response. It was as though she had not heard him. The sympathetic sheriff felt moved to add his intercession:

"Aunt Myra," he called, "Jim, here will be goin' away from us in a minute and we don't expect him back. Surely you don't entertain any hard feelin's against him now? Won't you speak to him and let him go in peace?"

This time the obdurate widow shook her head in an emphatic negative. Yet still she uttered no sound. The sheriff turned to the condemned. "Jim," he said, "you see how it is; that old woman is set in her ways. What's de use of wastin' any more time on her? Besides, she's hot as de devil out here and I ought to be gettin' on home to dinner. I jest hold still a second and we can have this all over."

"Mr. Lucas," sobbed Jim, "lemme see if I can't soften dat nigger woman's stony heart. Lady," he cried out, "wid moety nigh my dyin' bres' I begs you fur jest a word. I ain't hopin' no mo' dat you'll forgive me, but won't you please, ma'am, jest speak to me an' tell me what's in your soul?"

And as she stood there, looking down with her fan as though it had been a baton of authority, and in impatient tones she said: "Go on, nigger, de hang-git hang!"

One Baby Octopus. Jerusalem's University. A Nick in the Bullet. Poor Papoose, Bad Ute. BY ARTHUR BRISBANE (Copyright 1924)

ONCE THERE was a big oil trust and, in awe, people said: "It's a ONE THOUSAND MILLION DOLLAR OCTOPUS". The Government said: "We will destroy that octopus. We will not have such a gigantic organization growing up in our sweet republic; away with it."

So the Government brought a lawsuit and the big trust was chopped up into many little trusts. And those that owned the little pieces found themselves about ten times richer than they were before.

That's how it works when government tries to interfere with what is really the natural evolution in business.

NOW COMES a combination of the Standard Oil of Indiana, one little piece of the big "octopus" and the Doherty oil company, not including the California Doherty company.

The new concern has assets of $584,000,000, and nobody knows how many billions it may be really worth in years to come.

One little baby born of the thousand million dollar concern grows to $584,000,000 size and nobody gets excited. We have got used to "octopuses."

IN JERUSALEM Balfour has dedicated a great university near the spot where the Emperor Titus pitched his camp when he besieged and captured the ancient city. Cablegrams from Jerusalem supply complete details, and how that cableing would amaze the old leader Moses.

He spent forty years wandering through Egypt into the promised land. Flying machines make the trip regularly now in about an hour. A cable message telling about Jerusalem's new university might go from old Jerusalem to New York, with a Jewish population ten times greater than Jerusalem ever had, in less than one-tenth of a second. Such is progress.

Many in Jerusalem seeing this great university will remember the line in the Talmud: "Jerusalem was destroyed because the schools were neglected." Apparently the schools are not to be neglected henceforth.

LITTLE THINGS make a great difference, as children are taught in the old lines about "for lack of a nail the shoe was lost," telling how, at last, the kingdom was lost.

The well known criminal, Chapman, on trial for his life, says he didn't shoot Policeman Skelly, and has, what seems, a good alibi. But his own pistol, alleged to have shot the policeman, may hang Chapman.

Inside the barrel of the pistol there was a little roughness that made a nick in each bullet as it went out, and just such a nick was found on the bullet that killed Skelly.

YOU FEEL sad about the poor red-man, deprived of his lands, and driven even farther and farther away from the good real estate corners.

Then from Cortez, Cal., comes a reminder that the noble red-man was not all that he should have been.

Locked up in Cortez are an aged medicine man of the Ute tribe and his son-in-law. Pale face usurpers accuse them of burying a little papoose alive, with its dead mother, in accordance with ancient custom. Many old tribes, including some white tribes, once did such shocking things. Whites don't do it any more.

ONE MEXICAN gentleman in the same prison learned, to his sorrow, that insulting a Ute medicine man, even one very old, is dangerous. The Mexican taunted the medicine man. The latter took a leg off a heavy chair and killed the Mexican with it.

THE SUPREME power of the Roman Catholic Church in the Vatican, the "segnatura," decides that Count Boni de Castellane is still married to Anna Gould. Meanwhile, Anna Gould, divorced from De Castellane by the civil courts in France, has married the Marquis de Talleyrand. So there you have a mixup. In the eyes of the Church the Talleyrand children are not born in wedlock.

IT WOULD interest and surprise Jay Gould, still well remembered by old men in Wall Street, if he could know how many queer things—marriages, divorces, law-suits, well fed counts and marquises—have grown out of the millions that he gathered together.

THE PROSPEROUS SOUTH

LOUISVILLE COURIER-JOURNAL

The South is in a period of development. Building, textiles, agriculture, road construction, hydro-electric development and business expansion generally is making a new South.

A nationally known business institution has just completed a survey of the region which reads like a press as it screeches of the most optimistic sort. However, the firm S. W. Straus & Company, cannot be accused of vain imaginings when it relies on its experts for advice concerning sections in which it places millions of dollars in loans.

"During the period between January 1 and March 1 this year," says its survey, "the South has shown a gain of 15 per cent in building, although there has been a falling off during the same period over the entire country. For the year, 1924, the South also gained 15 per cent over 1923, as compared with 4 per cent for the whole country."

It points out that the Southern cities appear frequently in the first twenty-five of the country showing the greatest volume of building permits. Six cities of the section appeared on the list in February, among them Louisville. Building permits in twenty-five Southern cities since January total $50,000,000. Dallas headed the list in February, with Louisville second.

Varied causes, the survey said, are responsible for the particularly optimistic outlook in the South. A united and harmonious effort to further business, railroad construction, harbor construction and cultivation of land heretofore follow are among the factors of the remarkable results.

"Mountain and hillside streams which for centuries have rushed to the sea without contributing in any material way to the development of the country have been harnessed and millions of dollars worth of power is employed in lighting cities, operating trolley lines and driving machinery," the survey says. One of the immediate results of this development has been a broadening of the tax base.

"Another factor has been the tendency of the Southern farmer to diversify his crops. Sections which a decade ago depended almost entirely on cotton as a money crop are today producing alfalfa, corn, wheat, oats and a variety of other crops. Highway construction is doing much to bring out the potential wealth of the South. The economic soundness of modern, improved road construction has been demonstrated, and there is everywhere apparent a desire to extend this work. Climatic conditions in the South are being more and more a factor."

That is a rosy picture of Dixie of today, whose tomorrow holds a promise of still greater things.

O THAT MINE ENEMY

PROVIDENCE NEWS

Comes the news that Harry M. Daugherty, formerly Attorney General of the United States, is about to write a book, an autobiography that will, in his own opinion, justify him. Inferentially it will justify, we suppose, the whole "Ohio gang," from Daugherty himself and his lieutenant Jess Smith down. First, it is to appear in serial form and then in a full-blown volume.

There are few books we would rather read than Harry Daugherty's autobiography—if it really were his autobiography. There are few books we look forward to reading than the sort of autobiography we are told he will write. Harry Daugherty's true story might be literature, as Cassanova is. But his true story will not be told in this volume.

The poker parties in the little house on H Street will not be described; Jess Smith's function in the Department of Justice will not be disclosed; Roxie Stinson's name will be besmirched because she failed to retract the evidence she gave before the Senate committee; everybody and everything that helped to fire Daugherty out of the Department of Justice will come in for abuse. Nor shall we get the real inside story of how Harding was put over at the 1920 Republican convention in Chicago.

That would hurt many reputations more tender than Mr. Daugherty's. And at the end Daugherty will not have gained one iota in public estimation. Rather, the chances are that a man of his character will reveal such a low standard of public morals by which he will claim to be judged as to prove once more the wisdom of the old psalmist who wrote "O that mine enemy would write a book!"

UNEXPECTED SYMPATHY

MIAMI HERALD

Gerald Chapman, a young man with considerable acquaintance with the police and the inside of various prisons, is on trial for his life in Hartford, Conn. An enterprising photographer, instructed by his editor to get a picture of the prisoner without fail, disregarded the admonitions of the judge and the court pen in the basement of the court house.

He remained there for some time and the longer his stay the more perturbed he became. Finally the court took a recess for noon and Chapman was brought down to the detention pen. The photographer had a splendid opportunity for a confidential talk with the noted man. But he was so fearful of his own fate that he neglected his chance. Court officers, who lead rather a drab life, had been enjoying themselves by frightening the man of the camera with suggestions regarding the probable length of the jail term to which the judge would sentence him.

The accused man, the one on trial, is a German. He is a prisoner term ahead, even if he escapes the gallows, became the comforter. He forgot his own real troubles in trying to explain the imaginary ones of the photographer and assured that nervous individual that he had nothing to fear. He went farther and said that when he was taken upstairs again he intended to pose for the other newspaper photographers and would ask them to make some "exclusive" shots for their companion downstairs.

Chapman has a reputation for being an unusual criminal. His two escapes from the Atlanta penitentiary were unusual and this incident shows that he is not an ordinary crook.

SANFORD TEAM MEETS MACON FOR 2ND TIME

Local Aggregation Leaves for Orlando Determined to Avenge Defeat Handed It Brits Will Be Seen in Action Game Attracts Interest

Record Crowd Will See Today's Contest

Many Florida League Celebrities Will Be Seen in Action Including Humphries Avenge Recent Defeat.

Armed with a determination to avenge the defeat handed them last week at the hands of the Macon "Peaches," the Sanford Florida Leaguers left this morning for Orlando where they were to meet the Georgians in a return match on Tinker Field this afternoon. A battle royal is in prospect and the game is expected to draw a record crowd from Orlando, Sanford and other nearby places.

Nick Carter, manager of the local outfit, is confident that his protégés will be able to turn the tables as he has been putting them through a hard training schedule during the past week. On the other hand word comes from Orlando that Ernie Burge, manager of the Peaches and former manager of the Orlando team, believes his outfit will make it two in a row.

Many Florida League celebrities will be seen in the game. Bert Humphries, the grand old man of the league, is expected to hurl part of the game. Ernie Burge will be at first base for Macon while Joe Tinker, Jr., son of the old Cub star, will be seen in a Macon uniform. Charlie Moore and Walter Hunter, both former St. Petersburg players, will also be seen in action.

Manager Carter has three hurlers who will probably be seen in the box for Sanford in today's fracas. They are Campbell, Walsh, and Weaver. Upon these three, who have been fast rounding into shape, he is pinning his hopes to bring victory in this, the second exhibition game played by the Sanford team.

GLENNA COLLETT EXPECTED TO WIN IN ENGLISH MEET

American Woman Will Attempt to Annex British Title; Tournament Will Be Held in May of This Year

NEW YORK, Apr. 6.—Upon the hitting prowess of a demure miss of Providence, R. I., and a shiny new dime given her by John D. Rockefeller, are pinned hopes that an American will become queen of the British links and empress of world's golfdom this year for the first time.

Having won every title on the links this side of the Atlantic she sought before she was old enough to vote, Miss Glenna Collett is leaving shortly to seek the British women's open title at Troon, Scotland, in the tournament beginning May 15.

Golfers who have followed her scintillating career at national, eastern and southern championships in the United States are certain that she has the ability to win British laurels, even against the clever Miss Joyce Wethered, present British titleholder, sister of another famous golfer, and far ahead of other linkswomen of Great Britain.

But there must be considered the matter of breaks of the game on the blustery seaside course at Troon, and also the jinx that seems to have pursued American golfers of both sexes in their quest of honors in the birthplace of the royal and ancient game. Perhaps the dime which the 85 year old linkswoman gave recently to the young feminine star at Ormond Beach, Fla., for good luck, will have an effect in this connection.

No American girl has yet won the British title, although such stars as Miss Alexa Sterling, of Atlanta, and Miss Edith Cummings have tried it. And while both the British amateur and open titles have been won by American male golfers, it was only after several attempts. Walter Hagen, now British open champion, fared poorly in his first quest for this noted cup. Francis Ouimet, Bobby Jones and Chick Evans are others whom fortune seems to have deserted when on the links in the British Isles.

Miss Collett has victories over noted British linkswomen to her credit, however. When she won the American national women's title in 1922, her opponent in the final round was Mrs. W. A. Gavin, then competing from a club in the New York district, but who has since returned to live in her native England. The great Miss Cecil Leitch of England, who defeated Alexa Sterling several times, lost to Miss Collett in 1921 in competition for the Berthelina cup, an annual fixture in the Philadelphia district that attracts leading feminine links stars from all parts of the country.

Miss Collett is unquestionably the outstanding model player of her sex in the United States. As with Bobby Jones before he won the open and amateur titles, one wonders why she ever is beaten. She is the only player to have broken 80 in the women's national tournament, having set the record at 79 on her own course, the Rhode Island Country Club, in last year's tournament. In practice matches she often has been as low as 75, much to the envy of many male golfers of good caliber, not to speak of thousands of male duffers.

For six years, ever since she was 16, Miss Collett's mighty hitting has attracted attention. Excellent technique, with a full flat swing, involving the complete application of power with hips and shoulders, enables her to hit a ball from the tee that would do credit to a professional. In fact, in practice rounds with professionals, she is never far behind them, and recently just after John D. gave her that new dime, she outdrove Joe Kirkwood, the trick shot artist at several holes in which she and her feminine partner won handily. Frequently, with "2" behind her and the course sunbaked, she has driven more than 300 yards. Without wind or turf favorable for a long ball, she drives 225 and 250 yards regularly. Yet her physique, though sturdy, is girlish.

A TALE THERE WAS

A traveler once showed Lavater, the physiognomist, two portraits; the one a highwayman, who had been broken upon the wheel; the other the portrait of Kant. He was asked to distinguish them. Lavater took up that of the highwayman. After attentively considering it for some time he said: "Here we have the true philosopher; here is penetration in the eye, and reflection in the forehead; here is cause, and there is effect; and here is combination, there is distinction; synthetic lips; and analytical nose." Then, turning to the portrait of the philosopher, he exclaimed: "The calm thinking villain is so well expressed and so strongly marked in his countenance that it needs no comment."
