

Hauptmann Denies Every Charge Made With "I Did Not"

testimony at the luncheon recess. The testimony drew a packed courtroom.

Bruno Richard Hauptmann began his eager alibi for the Lindbergh baby's murder from the witness stand of his trial yesterday.

His voice low and guttural, his manner confident, the German carpenter just before adjournment declared he stayed at home throughout the entire night in which the State of New Jersey alleged he collected $50,000 in ransom in the shadows of St. Raymond's Cemetery.

Hauptmann's deliberate story did not reach the point of his alibi for the blustery night of Mar. 1, 1932, when he is accused of climbing a crude ladder to kidnap and kill Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's firstborn son.

That alibi, says the defense, is that the accused killer was in a Bronx bakery, "sipping coffee, chatting with his wife," at the very hour of the crime.

But the alibi was jolted some what late yesterday when the 116 and 10 men unaccounted for between Hauptmann's two trials, the captain, was believed to be flooded.

Christian Fredericksen, the Danish baker, couldn't "swear" that Hauptmann was there.

Hauptmann's voice, husky and slightly accentuated, told the moving story of his life yesterday. He said of hard work, of bank accounts of money lost in his house, money that he went into the stock market.

It was a quiet life of work and simple pleasures that he described as he reached the eight of April 1932 when Dr. John F. J. Condon handed a box of money—the "John" of the Bronx crime—the "John" he says, was Hauptmann.

Under the careful direction of Edward J. Reilly, his lawyer, Hauptmann told me he quit his carpenter's job that day and came home.

Q. Now on Apr. 2, after you came home from work in the neighborhood, what did you do? A. I never had any time that night.

Q. You were up late? A. All the time.

The defense attorney asked him if he had been present before the water that should be free of rust

between mains are set.

City Collector Files Claims Against 1st Atlantic Bank

DAYTONA, Jan. 26.—An attachment on several office machines of the First Atlantic National Bank as a means of collecting $1,210 city personal tax levied in 1934 was served by the collector, who was about 50 feet away, he said.

This execution was "the first of many to be made," Francis R. Mills, city collector, said yesterday.

Captain Wang was the first witness. He testified that both vessels were steaming south when the Mohawk abruptly swerved from its course and moved directly across the Talisman's path.

The ship struck with a terrific impact, the captain said. He received no warning blast from the Mohawk, which was about 50 feet away, he said.

After the crash the vessels backed and shortly after the Talisman backed out of the hole she had made in the side of the liner.

Captain Karl C. Nelson of the Steamboat Inspection Service criticized the action of the Talisman's skipper in backing away from the stricken vessel.

Captain Wang replied that he received no response from his repeated shouts to the Mohawk's bridge, and accordingly ordered his engines reversed.

He said it was a beautiful night and that there was no sea. Forty-six persons are dead or unconscious in the latest check of the Mohawk disaster.

The 1933 personal tax levied against the bank was abated, in that year, Mills said, because the bank officials argued that it stands as a national bank exempted it from the obligation of paying a personal tax.

Enforcement of personal taxes is done under the city charter by serving an execution paper when they are delinquent, advertising a sale of the property attached, and final sale of the property if the taxes are not paid before date of sale.

This move is part of the city's campaign to collect present revenues that are delinquent, as recommended by a citizens' committee as a substitute for the sales tax.

Why did the steamship, built south-bound out of New York, suddenly prove so slow?

About $1,500 has been collected in the past week from delinquent personal taxpayers and from delinquent business men.

"Why not be honest for once and say that real reason for removal of myself and other shipper members is on account our activities in removing Strauss and attempting in other ways to secure competent and honest administration of control committee affairs?"

"By reason of your biased misstatements of facts and repudiation of your word of honor given myself and eight other members of the industry at the September conference you have long since forfeited the respect and confidence of not only myself but all other members of the committee who were really attempting constructive effort for the citrus industry, as your latest action comes as no surprise and is accepted with a feeling of profound relief."

"From the sidelines I shall now watch with interest your next efforts to wreck the Florida citrus industry for the benefit of your home State of California."

One Of St. Valentine
Killing Gang Nabbed

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Claude Madder, recently reported as named in a confession by Byron Bolton as one of the six men involved in the St. Valentine's Day massacre of 1929, was seized today by agents from a detective bureau at his home in suburban Berwyn.

He was taken to police headquarters for questioning by Chief of Detectives John Sullivan.

Bolton, held in St. Paul on charges of conspiracy in the $50,000 kidnapping of Edward Bremer, was reported earlier this week to have confessed that he acted as the "ringleader" in the massacre that wiped out seven members of the "Bugs" Moran gang in a north-side garage, and named several others as members of the firing squad.

Probe Opens Into Sinking Of Mohawk

Captain Of Freighter Severely Criticized For Backing Craft Out Of Ship's Side

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann fortified his defense today while the prosecution rolled up new ammunition for its savage attack on denial that he kidnapped and killed the Lindbergh baby.

The Court was in recess as it was only an armed truce the defendant studied his legal records to account his influence after the $50,000 was paid as his lawyer went to inspect his home in Bronx and as state attorney studied weak points in his defense.

It was vulnerable, very vulnerable, very vulnerable, Attorney General Davis.

Hauptmann was almost convinced in his remarks about saying "The attorney general was trying to get me out" and adding, "It just won't work."

On January 26, Hauptmann began a bitter attack on the stubborn story of Bruno Richard Hauptmann accused of stealing Baby Lindbergh.

During and obviously perfunctory, the Bronx when left the courtroom of his murder trial today, shouting after a brief hearing session at the hands of his attorney General Davis.

He was then charged with the kidnapping of his own child, as mentioned on page two.

Florida Should Get About $40,000,000 Of Works Cash

State Officials Anticipate Such A Sum If Money Is Allotted On Population Basis

By The Associated Press
A gigantic Public Works program involving expenditures of millions of dollars is being mapped out for Florida if Congress appropriates the four-billion-dollar fund President Roosevelt requested for creation of 3,500,000 jobs.

Federal, state, municipal and county agencies are combining their facilities to shape up projects suitable for the work program. A list of these projects must be submitted to Washington by Mar. 1.

At present, nobody has any idea how much Florida may get from the four-billion-dollar fund, but the state's share would be about $40,000,000 if the money is scattered over the country on a basis of population. Florida has about one per cent of the nation's population.

James E. Cotton, state engineer of the Public Works Administration, and the state planning board, through Chairman C. B. Treadway, and Secretary M. L. Montgomery, are compiling lists of projects which might be undertaken in the mammoth work program.

Cotton announced today he had submitted questionnaires to cities,

Florida Lawyers Armed Mob Takes To Consider Big Charge of Baton Changes in Courts Rouge Court House

Justice Courts Seen To Be In Disfavor In Every Section

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 26.—Florida lawyers next week at their St. Augustine meeting will debate proposals for sweeping changes in Florida's judicial system.

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 26.—(AP)—A group of about 125 armed men, said to be hostile to the Huey P. Long administration, took physical possession of the East Baton Rouge Parish Court House yesterday afternoon.

The men were armed with shotguns and other weapons and seemed bent upon retaking during the afternoon. Last night they dispersed and declared their purpose "accomplished."

Survivors of the parish seat court house could not be officially identified to the square deal supporters.

In Pinellas county that would abolish justice of peace courts and parishes court. The present county court would become a county court of record.

Some lawyers forecast recently that when the program, recommended by a special committee of the state association, is discussed, there will be a move to secure approval of an intermediate court of appeals. This court would meet in various sections of the state to hear appeals in matters of less importance.

This move was part of the city's campaign to collect present revenues that are delinquent, as recommended by a citizens' committee as a substitute for the sales tax.

Florida Lawyers To Consider Big Changes in Courts

State, Bar, and Barbershop
Additional judges.
The committee recommends as follows:

- That all courts of justice be abolished.
- That the supreme court shall consist of five judges.
- That all courts of crime be abolished.

Local magistrates also were agitated on the plan as were other court officials and lawyers.

Recommendations for sweeping changes in the state's judicial setup are contained in the report of the committee to review the state's judiciary article of the state constitution.

The committee recommends that one county court of record replace the county court of crimes,
criminal court of record, county judge's court, and justice of the peace.

The office of prosecuting attorney would be abolished under the committee's proposals and the state's attorney would be appointed for all county courts.

Another recommendation is that a several-judge court be set up in each county, the number of judges of which would be increased from six to 12 years.

The committee also urged additional judges in the juvenile court.

The foregoing recommendations are embodied in proposed amendments of sections 2, 4 and 5 of the state constitution.

That the supreme court shall have exclusive power to decide whether the court is entitled to sit while an oil well is being drilled through the court house is recommended by the committee.

That the term of office of each justice shall be 22 years.

That the terms of office of the six justices now constituting the court should not be affected by the amendment.

That the court shall be a continuous body; that is, two justices, chosen every four years with the exception that three justices shall be elected every eighth year.

That the compensation of the legislature shall be increased to $10,000 annually for each representative.

That the compensation of each judge shall be increased to $10,000 annually for each justice.

That the compensation of

Administration Asks Law Requiring Ship Concerns To Insure For $10,000 Each

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—There is the $250 reward

for the case of the San Bruno.

Richard Hauptmann was down in the books as the $1 million dollar deadly trial.

That is the sum of about injuries in years of personal effort to find the mysterious pay whose name was now says was Hauptmann.

But over and beyond those sums, hundreds of thousands of dollars have been and are being spent by the conduct of the trial, and the dissemination of the news of it.

Those who have been brought

through the process

will be an important part of the commercial community.

At the same time, Wags

offered a $100,000 reward

for the capture of the murderer.

Finally, with these recomman-dations would he not be best advised, but legislators were informed that a bill would soon be introduced in Congress?

The relief problem acute since the stock market crash in October

is steadily worse.

Thousands were laid off,

and many more were employed in new industries.

The chief problem acute is the lack of money.

According to the Japanese

spokesman such development

would benefit the Western world

by increasing China's demand for gold.
