Growing one crop year after year encourages insects, diseases and totatoes or vines, it will be well for weeds. The experienced trucker knows how necessary it is to fight them all on land used for the same reed potatoes for their own plantings purposes year after year. On expensive truck land it may pay, but t does not in general farming.

The value of growing an occasional crop of legumes has been established. Let them have a prominent place in your rotation. They add nitrogen to the soil and are great soil builders in other respects.

Another advantage of a good rotation is that deep and shallow rooted crops are alternated. Crops that send their roots down deeply help to prevent a compet condition of the subsoil and so maintain better drainage and a better moisture reservoir. Also, many of them feed on the plant food in the deeper layers of the soil, utilizing the total supply more economical y.

Besides all these advantages, there are some of physiological and chemical importance which the farmer may not be able to see, but which the plants will appreciate.

There are several principles to be kept in mind in planning a rotation. By observing them the soil can be built up without losing an income from the land. Certain crops best prepare the way for certain others to follow, and where hogs are to be given a place in the rotation, feed crops for them mist be worked in. Call on the county agent to help plan a desirable rotation for your farm; it will pay.

Grow Food and Feed

Florida and the southeastern states have been great importers of food and feed crops. This importation will be cut off, or at least greatly reduced by the necessity of the railroads using all their equipment to handle the Government's business. The time will soon be here to determine whether these states have met the demand to grow food and feed sufficient to supply home needs.

How Machine Methods Benefit Our Customers

Handling over a million crates and hampers of fruits and vegetables that find their destination in all corners of the United States and Canada was the record established last year in our business of supplying North-American markets with choice Florida-Grown produce. And this great volume of trade was carried on with a minimum of delay and with satisfaction to our customers.

With the large growth in volume of business and the consequent increase in the bookkeeping work, old-style, hand methods proved inadequate to carry the bookkeeping load. This condition pointed us straight to Burroughs D rect-to-Ledger Posting. The Burroughs Bookkeeping Machine which we installed not only put our figure work on a basis of mechanical accuracy, but it solved for us the costly problem of every year having to break in a new bookkeeper. Our experience has proved to us that no previous training is neces-sary to operate a Burroughs: anyone in our office can quickly take the place of our regular operator, if necessary.

The Burroughs Adding Machine Co., has published a two-page advertise-ment in the October issue of "System" magazine, telling about our business and how the Burroughs Bookkeeping Machine has helped us to surmount the difficulties that pen-and-ink bookkeeping could not overcome. A facsimile of the advertisement is reproduced above. We are glad indeed to have our pro-gressive business methods featured in this manner.

Burroughs Direct-to-Ledger Posting has benefitted our customers as well as our selves by the fact that their accounts are always posted up-to-date, making it easy to find how they stand at any time. Moreover, there is no danger of posting items to the wrong account because the posting work is checked positively. Our customers are also given a better statement service, thanks to the Burroughs, and statements are now mailed out promptly at the first of the month.

The installation of machine bookkeeping is only one of the ways in which we have modernized our business so as better to take care of our customers. Since its inception, mechanical means have been used to save time and labor in all departments of our company, from the fleet of automobiles used in de-livering goods, to the various appliances in the office. And this, we feel, has made for quicker handling of customers' orders and improved service all along the line.

One belonged to Miss Ruth Gordon and the other to Clyde Belmont. Miss Gordon was a teacher in the public schools of the city and had been invited down to The Cedars to pass the nionth of August with friends.

Mr. Belmont was a junior pariner in a department store and had three weeks in which to take a needed vacation

At nine o'clock on that morping mentioned Mr. Belmont sat on the veranda of a -manor house belonging to a friend and smoked a good cigar and heard, the robins and bluebirds singing. This was a novelty to him.

Miss Ruth wasn't on any veranda. She was out in the orchard instead wandering over the grass, which had been dewy three or four hours before. She felt like a young colt, and she almost made up her mind to climb one of the apple trees. Bhe was visiting her friend, Jaue Craven. It was Jane who led her into trouble. She picked up apples and began to throw them at a tree, and, of course, Ruth followed the example. They were in a part of the urchard bordering the highway. and such apples as missed the tree at which they were thrown fell into the highway.

There were plenty of apples on the ground, for the worm had been getting proud of this scamless garment, and in his work during the hot days, and they have given it a prominent place it was great fun. Then he rode out, and wha should he meet but the two girls driving in an opposite direction in their auto. Miss Ruth looked her sympathy. She asked half a dozen questions' about that eye, and vowed that she could never forgive herself. Why couldn't the apple have struck the chauffeur insteady There was a little more talk

Once more before each one returned to the city the junior partner and the school teacher met, and affairs progressed well with them. The black and blue left that eye, and it was as goodlooking an eye as the other, and both eyes could see that Miss Ruth Gordon had a very pleasant personality. . It wasn't three months later, and after several calls at Ruth's house, that the juntor partner made bold to say: "Ruth, you extended your sympathy for my black eye which you created. That wasn't all the havoc you did that day, however, and I am going to ask you for sympathy for my wounded heart."

It was kept in a secret place of the cathedral known only to a few, and there were many who doubted its existence. A guide book of 1814 says: "The existence of the relic at present is rather doubtful-at least, it is not visible. The attendants of the church say it is walled up." All doubts were removed in 1844, when Archbishop Arnoldi announced a centenary jubiles, at which it was exhibited to a million and a half of pilgrims from all parts of the world ... TF AMERICA LOSES THIS WAR, YOU WILL PAY---and you may be forced to pay, not only in money, but in blood, in desolation, in desecrated homes. You and your families, your babes, your aged parents, may all be forced to pay.

If France and England should be conquered by the Prussian hordes, if Britian's fleet should be destroyed, if Canada should be crushed----if this should be accomplished, do you realize how easy it would be for Germany to land her soldiers, her giant guns and all the paraphernalia of her frightful fighting machine on Canadian soil to invade the United States and make us pay.

Your own imagination, based on what Germany has done to France and Belgium, can picture all the rest.

It's time you people in Sanford and Central Florida awaken up. You are not safe by any means. England and France have fought our battles so far----the English and French have placed their bodies between the enemy and us----have died for the cause that is our cause. But England and France are fearfully weakened. They may be beaten. And if they should be, this war, instead of being across the sea, would be right here at your very doors.

England and France Need Every Ounce of Help That We Can Give

THEY NEED IT NOW. They need it not merely for themselves, but in order that they may continue to PROTECT US.. They need every ship that we can build. They need every dollar we can loan them. They need every SOLDIER, EVERY SHELL, EVERY RIFLE AND EVERY BIG GUN THAT WE CAN SEND ACROSS. And all these things take money—millions and billions of dollars—a huge sum in the total but very little for each of us, if everybody does his share.

And Yet the United States Government Doesn't Ask You to Give a Cent

It doesn't ask you to sacrifice ONE PENNY. It merely asks you to LEND it what money you can spare, paying you good interest for it, and giving you United States Government Bonds as security, backed by all the resources, all the wealth, all the farms and factories and industrial institutions of this nation—the richest nation in the world. If you want your home to be safe, if you want your property and money to be safe, if you want your children to be secure, if you want your mother and wife and sisters to be protected—if you DON'T want the United States to SUF-FER the HORRORS THAT GERMANY HAS FORCED ON BEL-GIUM AND FRANCE—then

One of the ways of solving the problem of properly dressing the growing girl is illustrated in this dress of dark red nunsveiling. No lining is required for the design, which is made to be slipped on over the head and adjusted with the minimum amount of trouble. The front and back are in panel style and the openneck is finished with a collar of red taffeta, while the cuffs match the collar.

" To reproduce the model for a girl of right years requires 3% yards 36-inch challis, with ½ yard of silk for the trimming. The home drossmaker readily sees how easy it is to cut and make the dress with the aid of the cutling and construction guides. First, take the material and fold it in half on the sewing table. Place the back, collar and front, marked with triple "TTT" perforations on the lengthwise fold, The side front, cuff, side back, belt, lap and sleeve are laid on a lengthwise thread of material.

The belt may be laid on either a longthwise or crosswise fold of the goods.

The dress is trimmed with smoeking, which appears on each, side of the front and the collar and cuffs may be of contrasting material, if desired.

Give clear, permanent copies. Will not smut, dry out, or fill the type.
