Sixth accused fake cop busted

SANFORD — A Gatlinsburg, Tenn., man surrendered at the Seminole County Jail to become the sixth suspect arrested as "fake police," who for more than one year are accused of terrorizing residents of Central Florida including Seminole County, in home intrusion robberies.

David Wayne Freels, 26, was arrested on warrant charges of armed burglary, two counts of armed robbery, three counts of kidnapping and four counts of impersonating a policeman, in connection with Seminole County cases, one of which occurred Jan. 25 of this year in Winter Springs.

Arrested by Seminole County sheriff's deputies earlier this year as co-defendants were Wiley Vaught, 39; Jerry Gross, 28; Neal Niccary, 29; Jeff Cooper, 27; and Jason Brouwer, 27, all of Central Florida.

The gang is accused of being armed with guns when forcing entry into homes, identifying themselves as police, terrorizing and holding victims against their will and robbing them, lawmen report.

City to meet with school board

SANFORD — The Sanford City Commission and the Seminole County school board will meet jointly to discuss plans to combine forces on recreational facilities, sites and programs July 17 at 4 p.m. at Sanford city hall, 300 N. Park Ave.

School board chairman Ann Neiswender and board members Joe Williams and Larry Betsinger will join Robert O'Dell, director of year round schools; Jack Heister, director of secondary education; Willie Holt, director of middle schools; Wayne Epps, principal of Seminole High School, 2701 Georgia Ave., and Rick Mossman, principal of Lakeview Middle School, 100 Lakeview Dr.

The city hopes to save money by working out a cooperative arrangement for housing their recreational programs at schools in Sanford. The cooperation was proposed by Sanford Commissioner Whitey Eckstein earlier this year.

Lake Mary mayor out?

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — Dick Fess will be forced to resign his post as Lake Mary mayor next week if he qualifies for the District 2 county commission race against incumbent Bob Sturm, a state election official confirmed today.

Fess missed a July 8 deadline to submit resignation plans that would have enabled him to serve as mayor until he is sworn in as a county commissioner Nov. 20 should he win the election, city and county officials said today.

Therefore, the state official said, he will have to vacate the mayor's office prior to qualifying for the county commission race next week.

Fess has raised $15,935 and spent $4,883 for since he announced his bid for the District 2 seat in March.

"I'm not sure but what the city won't be somewhat embarrassed by this," said Deputy Mayor Paul Tremel, who stands to become mayor on Fess's resignation. "What politician running for county commission would want to give up his forum as mayor?"

Phyllis Slater, attorney for the Florida Division of Elections, said the Florida "resign to run" law applies because Fess's term as mayor does not expire until midnight Dec. 2, 12 days after he could potentially be sworn in as the District 2 county commissioner.

Slater said municipal office-holders seeking county office may file a resignation letter with the city clerk at least 10 days prior to the county qualifying period if their city term would overlap their county term. If city office-holders submit the resignation letter, they would be able to serve the city until they are sworn in as a county officer.

If the city official fails to submit the resignation 10 days prior to the qualifying period, Slater said an appeals court decision has determined the city office-holder may resign immediately prior to qualifying for the county race.

Carol Edwards, Lake Mary city clerk said she has not received any letter from Fess stating his intentions to resign in November should he be elected to the county commission. Sandra Goad, county elections supervisor, said Fess has not submitted a resignation letter to her office.

If Fess qualifies for the county commission race without resigning, he potentially could be found guilty of taking a false oath, a third degree felony punishable by a sentence of up to five years in prison, a $5,000 fine and civil damages.

Edwards said the city charter states if a mayor vacates office, the deputy mayor, Paul Tremel, See Fess, Page 5A

The city commission last week agreed to lay off the employees in order to balance the city's $22.14 million budget without imposing a one-mill tax increase.

County approves mall finance plan by split vote

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A divided Seminole County Commission Tuesday approved a tax plan to finance roads for the Seminole Mall that does not tie up any county tax dollars for the scheme.

Voting 3-2, county commissioners granted Sanford commissioners authority to create a "tax increment district" at the 214-acre mall site east of Interstate 4. City taxes generated from the 1.2 million square-foot mall will be used to repay $3.3 million in bonds during a 14-year period which mall developers Melvin Simon and Associates will sell to help pay for road improvements needed for the mall.

The vote was the last governmental hurdle needed for the mall plan to proceed. Construction could still be delayed, however, because the Florida Department of Community Affairs has challenged the mall's development order, saying it does not adequately address the need for affordable housing in Seminole County. The mall is expected to provide jobs for up to 5,000 people, many of them earning low or moderate wages.

Commissioner Bob Sturm opposed the plan saying the road improvements did not include widening Rhinehart Road between Lake Mary Boulevard and County Road 46-A. Rhinehart Road between CR 46-A and State Road 46 will be built with four lanes under the tax plan.

Sturm said the state law allowing TIF districts to be created was not intended to allow developers to satisfy road improvements required by government agencies. Sturm said the law was intended to provide a finance mechanism to help cities correct congested conditions.

Martin Fine, a Miami attorney who drafted the original 1981 legislation, said the state law does not See Mall, Page 5A

Sex assault charges against boy dropped

MIAMI — Sexual assault charges mistakenly filed against a 6-year-old boy were dropped a day later when an adult suspect was arrested, but no one bothered to tell the boy or his mother.

The Fort Lauderdale boy was arrested six weeks ago on charges of sexually assaulting a 7-year-old female playmate, according to a Tuesday report in The Miami Herald.

The victim's mother noticed a pool of blood in the bathtub May 20 and discovered the little girl had vaginal injuries requiring surgery. Broward County sheriff's deputies said they arrested 6-year-old James Montgomery that same day after the victim's brothers and sisters told them the little boy had jammed a stick into the girl's vagina.

The boy was charged with assault and aggravated assault. He was fingerprinted and photographed at the station then released into his mother's custody.

A day later, deputies interviewed the victim and her siblings, realized the charges were erroneous and arrested her mother's boyfriend, 26-year-old Troy Mosely, in the attack.

Mosely is jailed without bond on four counts of capital sexual battery and two counts of lewd assault. The charges involved the girl and two of her sisters, who also are minors.

Remy convicted in smuggling case

FORT LAUDERDALE — A tile company owner was convicted of attempting to smuggle into the United States about $1.4 million worth of cocaine hidden inside a clay tile shipment from Panama, the U.S. Attorney's Office said Tuesday.

After five days of trial, a federal jury on Monday convicted Gerardo Remy, a former fugitive and owner of the Remy Tile Corp. in Miami, of importation, conspiracy and possession with intent to distribute at least five kilograms of cocaine into the United States.

"At the trial, it was established that the cocaine was supplied by cocaine traffickers in Colombia who used Panama as a point of shipment to the United States," said U.S. Attorney Dexter Lehtinen.

Remy faces up to life in prison and $4 million in fines for each of his three offenses when he is sentenced Sept. 10. All three offenses carry a minimum mandatory prison term of 10 years without parole, Lehtinen said.

Order seeks to stop lottery scam

Federal authorities filed a lawsuit in U.S. District Court at Indianapolis Tuesday seeking an injunction to cease mail intended for a Florida man suspected of running a bogus lottery.

The complaint for injunctive relief was filed against Great American Giveaway and Adco International, which Assistant U.S. Attorney Jeffrey Hunter said were businesses operated in Indianapolis by Scott D. Wilcox, Wilcox's last known address was in Fort Lauderdale, he said.

The complaint said the defendants use direct mail postcards promising expensive items to induce recipients to send a $12.95 "shipping and handling" charge to receive their "winnings." Those prizes are supposed to include a new Cadillac, a big screen television, a $2,500 certified check, a camcorder, or other big ticket items, Hunter said.

However, the identity and distribution of any of the prizes is unknown and based on chance, said U.S. Attorney Deborah Daniels.

Jury selection begins in McGee trial

FORT MYERS — Jury selection in the first-degree murder trial of a man accused of killing his 2-year-old stepson was interrupted Tuesday when a smoke alarm sounded, forcing the evacuation of the Lee County Justice Center.

More than 30 jurors had been questioned about their knowledge of the Bradley McGee case by 5 p.m. when the alarm malfunctioned. No one had been seated yet on the jury.

Thomas Coe, 23, could face the death penalty if convicted in last summer's death of McGee, who police said was repeatedly dunked headfirst in a toilet as punishment for soiling his pants.

Several of the potential jurors were dismissed because of the publicity surrounding the case. Prosecutors and defense attorneys must choose a dozen jurors and two alternates from the pool, which included 250 people.

Miami company sues Maxell, TDK

MIAMI — Micro Computer Supply Inc. filed a multi-million dollar civil suit Tuesday against Maxell Corp. of America and TDK Electronics Corp., alleging that both companies violated federal antitrust laws.

The suit accuses the companies of selling their computer diskettes for substantially lower prices to Micro Computer Supply's south Florida competitors in violation of the Robinson-Patman Act, which prohibits discriminatory pricing.

As a result, the company's competitors were able to attract Micro Computer Supply's customers and drive the company out of business, said Stephen E. Nagin, an attorney representing Micro Computer Supply.

Quayle sows seeds for Republicans

TAMPA — Vice President Dan Quayle planted sea grasses at a newly renovated park on Tampa Bay Tuesday, then went stumping on behalf of Republican candidates for the Florida Senate.

Quayle tried his hand at gardening while touring the 11-acre-mile Palonia Park with Gov. Bob Martinez.

"I was told as I was planting grass that I did an OK job," Quayle joked. "There's a job after the vice presidency."

Quayle said preserving the environment was high on the Bush administration's agenda and pledged continued support for preservation in Florida.

"Gov. Martinez reminds me time and time again of Florida's interest in the environment. I can tell you that those of us who don't live in Florida enjoy coming to Florida to see your beautiful state," he said.

The park, at the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve Center, was named for Lt. Col. Anthony J. Palonia Jr., who served in World War II, the Korean War and Vietnam.

Once an eyesore of pepper trees, scrub brush and trash, the land was converted to a park filled with tidal ponds and marsh grasses by the Bay Area Environmental Restoration Team. The park is part of a restoration project on the Gandy Causeway, which connects Tampa and St. Petersburg.

Quayle also stumped for two state Senate candidates whose election could help swing control of the Florida Senate to the Republicans for the first time in the state's history.

At a $100-a-plate luncheon, the vice president reminded an audience of about 500 people that both candidates, Rep. Charles Canady and Polk County Commissioner Ernie Caldwell, are former Democrats.

TALLAHASSEE — A former south Florida college student was sentenced Tuesday to a year in jail and 20 years probation for sexually assaulting a woman in a Florida State University fraternity house in March 1988.

Daniel Oltarsh, 26, pleaded no contest on May 16 to charges he assaulted an 18-year-old woman in the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity house two years ago. The three charges against Oltarsh included sexual battery involving multiple perpetrators, battery and supplying alcohol to a minor.

Cheers erupted briefly in the courtroom when the sentence was announced, but they were silenced quickly by Leon County Circuit Judge F.E. "Ted" Steinmeyer, who ordered Oltarsh to serve 364 days in a Leon County Jail, two years under house arrest and 20 years probation.

"I do feel her actions contributed to this, but your acts in the light of day cannot be condoned," Steinmeyer told Oltarsh.

Before being sentenced, Oltarsh said: "I never raped this girl. I never forced her to do anything."

Steinmeyer withheld adjudication in the case, meaning that if Oltarsh complies with the terms of his sentence he will not have a felony conviction on his record.

If he violates the sentence, Oltarsh will reappear in court and be convicted on the felony sexual battery charge and re-sentenced to prison.

AFL-CIO poses constitutional challenge of changes in state workers' comp law

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — State labor leaders plan to file suit later this week challenging the constitutionality of some recent revisions in the new workers' compensation law.

Dan Miller, president of the Florida AFL-CIO, said Monday the union will seek to have the courts throw out a provision of the law cutting benefits to injured workers by 30 percent.

Meanwhile, two Putnam County contractors who won a favorable court ruling last week halting enforcement of the new law in their county said Monday they have formed a non-profit corporation to raise money for a statewide fight against the law.

Three killed in wreck near Disney World

United Press International

LAKE BUENA VISTA — A speeding sports car crashed into the back of a Disney bus near Walt Disney World Tuesday morning, killing three of the four people in the car.

"It's a real tragedy. It's one of the worst accidents we've ever had out at Disney," said Lt. Randy Harper with the Florida Highway Patrol.

The only survivor in the car, Barbara Rarden, 18, of Orlando, was in very critical condition with multiple broken bones at Orlando Regional Medical Center, said hospital spokeswoman Cindy Baker.

Only the driver, Gary Rivet, 27, of Orlando, was aboard the bus, and he was uninjured, the highway patrol reported.

It's a real tragedy. It's one of the worst accidents we've ever had out at Disney.

—Lt. Randy Harper, FHP

The accident happened about midnight as the bus was making a left turn from a Disney hotel driveway, said Harper. Harper said the car, a 1989 Mustang driven by Joseph Bollinger, 19, of Windermere, was traveling at a minimum of 85 mph in a 45-mph zone when it crashed into the left rear tire of the bus.

Bollinger had been cited for seven traffic violations in three years — three of them for speeding — and had his driver's license suspended in May, said Harper.

Harper said there was no evidence the bus driver was at fault.

"Because the speed of the Mustang was so high, any prudent driver could not have anticipated it," said Harper. "There was also a curve."

Harper said friends of the victims were following the Mustang in a Jeep and on a motorcycle and told authorities the Mustang suddenly accelerated and disappeared around a curve. When the friends rounded the curve, they saw the wreck.

"For whatever reason the Mustang driver decided to accelerate, perhaps to show off to his friends, I don't know, and at that time, about a quarter mile later was when he had an accident with the bus," Harper said.

"We'll do more investigation, but it appears now they were just out for a joy ride," said Harper.

The car was demolished. The bus suffered $5,000 in damage, the patrol said.

"There were several feet of skid marks," Harper said.

Killed were Bollinger and passengers David Simon, 16, and Gabor Delneky, 19, both of Orlando.

Bollinger and Simon both worked at a photographic shop at Pleasure Island, a Disney nightclub district near Walt Disney World, but were not Disney employees, said Dave Herbst, a Disney spokesman.

Cobia Boats strikes deal with Aronow Powerboats

BY VICKI DeBORNER
Herald staff writer

SANFORD - Aronow Powerboats Inc., a subsidiary of Investcorp International, has entered into a seven-year lease agreement with the Cobia Boat Company for a 125,000 square foot facility on Silver Lake Road in Sanford.

"We are very pleased with the commitment they have made to the area," Ed Atchley, Cobia president, said this morning.

Atchley would not comment on the exact dollar figure of the deal struck by the two companies.

Cobia, which currently occupies the building with a plant of its own, will move its operations to the former Cobia/Robalo facility at the Central Florida Regional Airport. A few Cobia employees will move to the airport plant, though many will remain at the Silver Lake Road facility and go to work for Aronow.

Aronow manufactures a line of high performance boats, which Atchley called "very expensive." Most of the 27- to 47-foot off-shore "cigarette" type boats are sold to individuals, though Aronow also manufactures a special in-board catamaran for the U.S. Customs Service called the Blue Thunder, which is used in surveillance and interdiction operations.

Atchley said approximately 75 employees go to Aronow while 10 will remain with Cobia.

Atchley said no jobs will be lost and there is "the possibility" that additional jobs might become available in the future.

"We have trained a great many people in Sanford in boat manufacturing over the years," Atchley said. "There are skilled people out there."

He said the boat manufacturing market is in a "pretty severe downturn" right now, but the future appeared to be brighter. He added that when the improvement came, Sanford would be "in much better shape" having two, rather than only one boat manufacturer in town.

Aronow will occupy the facility by Sept. 1 after completing what Atchley calls "substantial improvements." He said the plant was ready for occupancy and the work force was in place.

Cobia will be moving some of its manufacturing facilities to a plant built two years ago in Vonore, Tenn.

"Aronow has made a substantial commitment to Sanford," Atchley said.

Heilig-Meyers showcases new look

By ANNY WILSON

SANFORD - Heilig-Meyers Furniture, 1100 S. French Ave., is planning a coming out party for its new look.

The store, which is a local branch of the national company, has been remodeling since May 12 and this weekend a ribbon cutting and storewide sale are scheduled for the "Grand Opening Celebration."

"This store has not been remodeled in 20 years," store manager John Williams said. "We wanted to give Sanford a better place to shop."

Although the building itself has sold furniture for 30 years, Heilig-Meyers didn't buy the store until a 1988 merger with Sterchi Brothers.

The philosophy of the company, which representatives say is the largest publicly-held home furnishings retailer in the nation, is to cater each of its stores to the community it serves.

Williams said the remodeling simply reflects Sanford's changing face. "We believe Sanford is a growing community, and we want to set the tone for the area," he said.

Updating the store's "look" involved changes in just about every area. An interior designer was called in to plan new private offices, carpeting, paint color, furnishings, landscaping and air conditioning.

"This store was individually done," Williams said. "No other store in the company looks like this one."

Executives including president of the the 310-store corporation will be showing up to mark the occasion, scheduled for July 13 and 14, with a ribbon cutting at 9 a.m. Friday.

"It's a rare occasion that the corporate president comes in for a re-opening," Williams said.

Heilig-Meyers was founded in 1913 by two Lithuanian immigrants. They opened a store in Goldboro, N.C., and by 1940 they incorporated the four-store business. In the early 1970s the chain was made up of 40 stores; by 1984, the number of stores was 100. The corporation purchased two furniture companies in the mid-1980s, and after two more acquisitions, reached their present size which covers 12 southeastern states.

Williams said the store accommodates Sanford's small-town lifestyle. "Sanford has a small, southern town charm," he said. "We are on a first-name basis with 80 percent of our customers."

And Heilig-Meyers hopes to attract more customers this weekend at its re-opening. Prizes including a color television and other household items will be given away, as well as the weekend store-wide sale.

"It's our way of saying 'hello' to Sanford," Williams said. "We have a new look and we're definitely here to stay."

Lawton officially named for year round plan

By VICKI DeBORNER
Herald staff writer

SANFORD - The school board of Seminole County voted unanimously yesterday to approve Lawton Elementary School, 151 Graham Ave., Oviedo, as the pilot school for year round education here.

Beginning in July 1991, students at Lawton will attend classes on the modified calendar. They will be in class 60 days and have 15 days vacation. The calendar is spread over 12 months rather than the traditional nine.

Lawton principal Michael Mizwicki prefers to call his school the "demonstration school," because he said he and his staff will demonstrate how a year round school should be operated.

Robert O'Dell, director of year round education in Seminole County said he believes a one year pilot program before deciding whether or not to implement the program in all of the district's elementary schools will be sufficient. He noted that Seminole officials will be keeping a close eye on the three Orange County schools which will begin using the modified school calendar in about two weeks.

O'Dell also said he believed the enthusiasm of Mizwicki and his staff will help make the year round program a success in Seminole County. Parental approval ratings have run high at Lawton.

Proponents of the modified calendar praise not only its ability to use facility space up to 33 percent more efficiently, but also the superior educational value.

"If remediation is able to occur frequently throughout the year rather than in the summer only," board member Pat Telson who has long been a supporter of year round education said. "It is much easier to help the student learn...and learn better."

Lawton Elementary is not experiencing the same problems with overcrowding as other schools in the district. According to Mizwicki, the school is "just below" its capacity.

Mizwicki, who recently completed his doctoral thesis on year round education, is putting a great deal of emphasis on the superior learning capacity provided by the modified calendar.

O'Dell and Mizwicki do not promote the year round educational concept as a "cure all" for the financial woes of the district.

"We will still need to go to the voters with a bond issue referendum (to pay for the construction of new schools)," Mizwicki said, "but it can be a smaller one."

Parents take year round battle to court

United Press International

DAYTONA BEACH - Parents trying to stop the Orange County school board from forcing their children to attend year-round school Tuesday took their case to a state appeals court.

Attorneys for the parents and district presented arguments before the full three-judge panel of the 5th District Court of Appeal during a short hearing Tuesday afternoon.

There was no immediate decision by the court.

Ten families are seeking a temporary restraining order to block the school district from forcing their children to begin year-round classes in less than two weeks.

An Orange County circuit judge denied the same request in March.

Also Tuesday, the school board in Seminole County, just north of Orange County, voted 5-0 to begin its own year-round program next summer.

The Seminole County board voted to place Lawton Elementary School in Oviedo on a 12-month calendar, probably next July, said Robert O'Dell, who was hired by the district to develop a year-round program.

The vote was unanimous, despite opposition from an overwhelming majority of parents at the meeting.

O'Dell said Seminole County school enrollment was expected to increase about 50 percent in the next eight years.

"The crunch is at the elementary level right now, and we're about two years away from that crunch hitting middle schools," he said.

Attorney Tony Nardella, who represents the angry Orange County parents, alleged the Orange County school board has no authority under the Florida Constitution or state law to order year-round school attendance.

Some 2,300 students at three Orlando elementary schools - Palm Lake, Aloma and Tangelo Park - are to begin year-round classes July 23.

Under the pilot program, they would attend 80 days of classes, have 15 days off, then repeat the cycle the rest of the year.

Dianne Locker, a school district consultant, said the plan would help ease crowding in the rapidly growing Orange County school district.

The plaintiffs, all parents of Palm Lake Elementary School students, said the unconventional schedule would disrupt their family lives and could harm the academic development of their children.

Orange County Circuit Judge W. Rogers Turner refused to issue the temporary restraining order on March 23.

Nardella said the restraining order would allow time for the parents and school district to present their cases at a full civil trial.

Nelson picks Gustafson as running mate

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE - Congressman Bill Nelson announced Wednesday that he has picked Florida House Speaker Tom Gustafson to be his running mate in the race for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Nelson's announcement at a Tallahassee news conference comes after several months of consideration and speculation by the media that he was having a hard time finding someone who would accept the lieutenant governor spot on his ticket.

"This is a happy day," Nelson told a crowded room full of reporters and supporters. "Tom and I look forward to this with enthusiasm and zest."

Promoting poverty

Housing and Urban Development Secretary Jack Kemp tells the story of a Milwaukee mother on welfare who tried to put away whatever extra pennies, nickels, dimes and dollars she came by so that she could one day send her daughter to college. Over time, she managed to build a savings account of just over $3,000. But there was a catch.

The local welfare agency cited her for violations of welfare rules. She was taken to court, prosecuted for fraud and fined $15,000. Since she didn't have $15,000, the court graciously accepted her $3,000, and gave her a one-year suspended jail sentence. The upshot is that she now spends every cent she gets as soon as she gets it, and she relies almost completely on government subsidies for her sustenance.

The true-to-life story poignantly illustrates the failure of our social welfare system. It also goes a long way toward explaining why poverty remains intractable in the United States, notwithstanding the economic boom of the last eight years.

As Secretary Kemp emphasized recently in Copley News Service's series on crack and the underclass: "We have modified the behavior of the inner city economy by making welfare and unemployment more highly rewarding than working."

Secretary Kemp's assertion is borne out by a recent study published by social scientists Christopher Jencks and Kathryn Edin. It indicated that a welfare mother with two children who accepts work at about $5 per hour actually suffers a net loss of 45 cents an hour, taking into account the loss of other government benefits, taxes and such work-related expenses as transportation and child care.

Given this history, there is little wonder that mothers on welfare find it difficult in many instances to wean themselves from the rolls. Common sense dictates that the welfare system should be reformed to provide incentives for work and productive behavior on the part of recipients.

There are a number of things the government can do. Secretary Kemp offers several suggestions.

He advocates a new version of tax reform to remove low-income families from the tax rolls and dramatically increase the after-tax income of welfare mothers and fathers who go to work.

Creation of work incentives would do much to prod the welfare population into the mainstream of the economy. Only by joining the labor force will the hardcore poor — those who remain poor and dependent on government assistance over the course of many years — ever rise above their poverty.

Poverty statistics reveal that families in which at least one parent holds a full-time job rarely remain poor over time. Indeed, better than 90 percent of such families that fall below the poverty threshold in 1990 will be out of poverty by 1991.

This is not to suggest that the problems of poverty would be entirely eliminated if we could simply put the welfare population to work. But welfare administrators should remember that work is as much the key to upward economic mobility for the poor as it is for every other income group.

Congratulations to McCollum

Congratulations to Congressman Bill McCollum, (R-Winter Park); French Slaughter (R-Va.); William Dannemeyer (R-Calif.), and Larry Smith (D-Fla.) for boycotting the Nelson Mandela speech at a joint session of Congress June 28th.

It took an unusual amount of courage to stand up to the massive propaganda campaign designed to accomplish the following:

1. Make Mandela seem to be the only leader of the South African blacks.
2. Demoralize his opposition in South Africa by making them think the free world had already accepted him as the only viable black leader of that country.
3. Justify the "already decided on" American recognition and support of the Mandela Government when it occurs.
4. Raise much needed cash from Americans and our government to finance the Mandela takeover of South Africa.
5. Put South Africa in the Soviet/Socialist block of nations and give the Soviets worldwide control over the strategic minerals and gold produced there.

This boycott shows up those who attended, promoted and fawned over such a te, "b", apparently being in favor of the Communist controlled ANC taking over the Republic of South Africa.

Contest! Tennis boots soccer

There is a meaning to most things. That, at least, is the ground rule of the columnist business.

Because I spent a weekend watching athletes sweat on a screen in my family room, readers of this space are in luck. We begin another contest! The tournament has a flashy title: "The Modern Metaphor." Its purpose is to judge what institution, event, personality, trend, condition, situation, product or whatever, best illuminates what's now going on in the world.

There are several rules: The first entry in the new contest is mine. I nominate "Tennis." I am the judge, but I profess to open-mindedness, with only one exception. "Soccer" is not an acceptable entry because it is dumb.

My case for tennis:
Upward mobility. The world is up-mobilizing. Lots of people are doing what only well-to-do people used to do. The two most obvious items are divorce and tennis. ("Divorce" would be an acceptable entry in the new contest.)

Globalization. It is one of the few modern cliches that holds up, and tennis qualifies. The recent Wimbledon tournament was broadcast to 76 countries. Professional tennis competitors come from more than 80 countries. High-tech. Just hit a few balls with one of those new wide-body rackets made out of Kryptonite. Zoom! There are purists who think the new Space Age racket materials are ruining the game. Not me. I hit once with it.

American universality. People are now here from everywhere. Tennis proves it. Whoever thought that the top two American tennis players would be named Ivan and Martina? Or that, in what was once a spiffy and Waspy country club sport, other leading American players would be of Chinese, African, Iranian and Jewish ancestry (Michael Chang, Zina Garrison, Andre Agassi, Aaron Krickstein)? Or that Steffi Graf, the No. 1 ranked woman player, is thinking about moving from West Germany to New Jersey? (A sensible choice, given the alternatives.)

Fitness. An estimated 18 million Americans now play tennis. Specialization. Players travel with personal coaches. Soon they will have several coaches, one each for forehand, backhand, serving and volleying.

Feminism. It's been a long time since Gussie Moran became famous because she wore visible ruffled panties beneath her tennis dress. Professional tennis has taught the world that woman can be great athletes, just as they can be great at anything else they do. Feminism based on merit is a great achievement of our time.

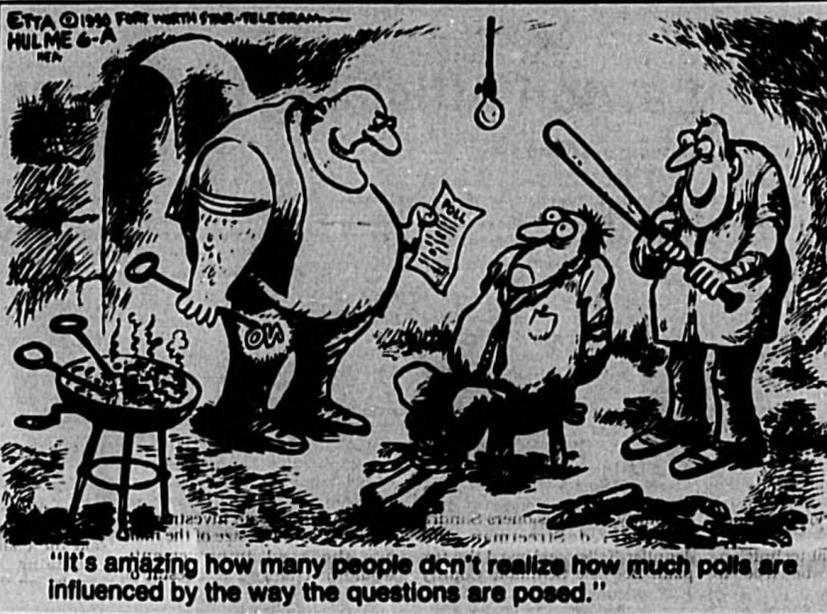

(Anyway, it is more enjoyable and instructive to watch professional women's tennis than men's. The males are supermen who hit too hard with Kryptonite rackets and rush the net too much. Bang bang, point over. The woman's game has more finesse.)

Thus, a metaphor of modernity: globalizing, up-scaling, feminizing, specializing, universalizing, fit and technical.

Obviously, soccer doesn't qualify, especially not the World Cup stuff that showed up in my house.

'Soccer' is not an acceptable entry because it is dumb.

"It's amazing how many people don't realize how much polls are influenced by the way the questions are posed."

Talkin' 'bout my generation

BOSTON — The younger generation wants to know what the big deal is. Why is everybody making such a major production out of this tax thing, Hey.

The older generation is taken aback and answers sharply: The President of the United States has broken his pledge! George Bush went back on his promise! He told us to read his lips: no new taxes. Now he says taxes!

The younger generation, of Reagan vintage with a bit of Bush mellowing, says to its elders: chill out. Nobody thought he meant it. Like, it was just a campaign speech. I mean it was ghostwritten. You can't take that stuff seriously.

The older generation, of Watergate vintage with a hint of Vietnam, says to its younger: We take it seriously when the President of the United States talks. When he pledges allegiance to an idea, it's supposed to mean something.

The younger generation rolls its eyes. Well, that's your problem. I mean, do you believe that Grape-Nuts is going to make you feel better, that Oil of Olay is going to make you look younger? That Doublemint chewing gum is gonna double your fun?

The older generation summons up its dignity. The presidency is not an ad agency. Making public policy is not the same as selling detergent.

The younger generation says, succinctly: Get Real.

There is a momentary lull over the generation gap, while Middle Age thinks, "They're so cynical," and College Age thinks, "They're so naive." Then it starts up again.

Twentysomething asks sympathetically: Do you, like, take this stuff literally? I mean, don't you get it? It's sort of like "2 Live Crew." It's all words. It's just rap. They don't MEAN what they're saying.

Fortysomething doesn't answer for a minute, because to tell you the truth they took "2 Live Crew" literally. Besides, they are feeling patronized, and middle-aged, the way they feel when the Rolling Stones is playing and someone says, "Hey, wow, Oldies."

More to the point, it's beginning to sound like a scene from one of the surveys about "The Younger Generation," that keep appearing in the newspapers that the elder generation reads and the younger generation doesn't.

In the latest of these polls, the Times-Mirror described 18- to 29-year-olds as a generation that "knows less, cares less, votes less and is less critical of its leaders and institutions than young people in the past." The elders, opposed on principle to youth-bashing, would prefer to throw in another phrase: "They expect less."

The older generation raised in the wake of World War II grew up with enough expectations to be disappointed, enough faith to be disillusioned. Faced with the Vietnam draft, they couldn't avoid the connection between private life and government. They were angry when Nixon lied. They listened when Carter said he wouldn't. Without laughing.

The younger generation, raised on the crest of Reaganism, has one-upped their parents' disillusionment with disinterest. Heirs to the Eighties, they learned from Reagan not to look to government.

So instead of voting, they recycle; instead of looking to politics, they focus on a point of light or two. After all, heroes are to be toppled, and politics is for entertainment. They caught taking it seriously.

The older generation thinks there is an ironic twist to this discussion. In fact, fortysomething believes that the President has to raise taxes, but also thinks that leaders should be held accountable. A President who breaks a pledge should have a reason, should explain himself or admit it was all a lie.

Twentysomething doesn't know much about the tax debate, but takes it for granted that politicians lie. Or to put it another way, politicians change their act. Madonna gets a new image every year, so why not George?

The older generation takes a last verbal stab at this impasse. Sounding dangerously ponderous, they say: "If you accept this, if you don't hold leaders accountable, if you don't believe that what is said matters, then you aren't active citizens but a passive audience."

The younger generation listens for a minute and then says kindly to their elders, "Hey guys, lighten up." And then they change the channel.

The older generation raised in the wake of World War II grew up with enough faith to be disillusioned.

Is Postal Service too defensive?

WASHINGTON — What does the U.S. Postal Service do when its customers complain? One customer, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce in Washington, D.C., found out that criticizing the Postal Service can bring a deluge of mail from postmasters, with stamps paid for by the taxpayers.

And you can bet none of those letters were lost in the delivery.

In April, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce sent its members and local chapters a brochure that was critical of the Postal Service. It condemned a proposed postal rate increase and solicited "horror stories" about the Postal Service. The Postal Service pronounced the brochure to be full of distortions, and postmasters launched a counterattack.

On June 22, the mail began to roll in to the office of Chamber President Richard Leasher.

Within a week, Leasher's office was getting 100 letters a day, all from postmasters.

It looked like a legitimate grass-roots campaign — postmasters from all over the country independently riled up by a personal insult. Except, they weren't from all over the country, many of the letters were generated at the copy machine, and the postmasters used the franking privilege instead of buying their own stamps.

When the Chamber staffers looked closely, they found that all the mail came from the Postal Service's Central Region, and none from the other four regions. Nearly all correspondence from Kansas was a preform letter, and the majority of the letters were sent on official Postal Service stationery, stamped for official business.

The form letter read, "I am disappointed in the brochure and request that you publicly recall it. In addition, I request that you make a public apology to the United States Postal Service for the intentional harm and damage which you are endeavoring to perpetrate with such a publication." Why did only the Central Region react to the Chamber's brochure? On June 12, the postmaster general for the region, Jerry K. Lee, wrote a letter to Leasher complaining about the brochure. Lee circulated a copy of his letter to his 14 division postmasters, who, in turn, sent a copy of the letter to all of the postmasters in the region.

The Wichita Division took it upon itself to include a sample letter that could be used to mail to the Chamber. Postal employees were not required to reply to the Chamber, but hundreds of them had time on their hands to do so. And what with the stamps being free and quick delivery guaranteed, there was nothing to stand in their way.

James Mruk, spokesman for the Central Region, told our reporter Paul Zimmerman that the Chamber's brochure was "a vicious attack on the world's best postal service. The attack on Mr. Leasher hurt (Lee). Many of the employees were hurt as well. It was a response from the heart." Mruk said the Postal Service has "a responsibility to respond to such attacks." He added, "We're not apologizing in any way for using official business stationery. We did it the most efficient and least expensive way we could." Least expensive for whom?

It's no wonder that the Postal Service is ready at the drop of a hat to increase the price of a stamp when its own employees can so easily get out of buying one.

Earlier this year, the Postal Service recommended an increase in postal rates to the Independent Postal Rate Commission. The commission will decide by the beginning of next year whether or not the rate increase is justified.

The postmasters used the franking privilege instead of buying their own stamps.

 why did they send most of these people home Tuesday, tell them not to return and promise to pay them through Sept. 30 just to sit home?"

Lee was told not to return to work Tuesday after she had returned from lunch. Earlier that day, she said, she had requested permission to use a personal computer in city hall during her own time to prepare a resume. She said Finance Director Carolyn Small told her Tuesday morning not to wait until after work, but to prepare the resume immediately. Within a few hours, Lee said, she was sent home.

 "They told me to think of it as a 2 1/2-month paid vacation to look for another job," she said.
 "I am relieved to be out of the government mess they have made city hall," Lee said.

Mayor Bettye Smith said this morning that, because of demands which kept her away from her office most of yesterday, she was not aware of which employees were sent home and which were not.

"As for creating a hardship by sending some home," she said, "we'll have that same hardship to face beginning in October when all of them will be gone."

Smith said the city commission had instructed Faison to discuss the situation with the department heads involved, and to offer them the opportunity to allow those employees to be let go some time in which to pursue new employment opportunities.

Faison was not available for comment.

At the commission meeting Monday, several employees protested the commission's decision to eliminate the 15 jobs, including two part-time positions. Commissioners then said they would not reverse the 4-1 decision to lay off the employees.

Florida panther near extinction unless new policy implemented

By Walter Galvan
 United Press International

TAMPA — The Florida panther could be extinct within 10 years unless a captive-breeding policy is implemented for the species, state and federal wildlife officials said Tuesday night.

"We could lose the Florida panthers within a few months if we have an outbreak of some deadly disease," said Dennis Jordan, Florida panther coordinator with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, said to about 40 people who attended a public forum on the issue of breeding the endangered animal in captivity.

The meeting was one of three scheduled this week by the Florida Panther Interagency Committee, a coalition of four state and federal agencies. Officials planned to meet in Lakewood on Wednesday and in Gainesville on Thursday.

Tom Logan, with the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, said only one panther died during a 9-year captive-breeding program that was halted last year after animal rights activists threatened to take legal action against biologists if it was not stopped.

The activists say they would prefer that vast wilderness be set aside for the Florida panther, rather than having them pulled from their habitat to be bred in captivity.

Scientist and environmentalists at the forum outlined a proposal by the Fish and Wildlife Service that would allow scientists to capture a limited number of panthers from the wild and breed them in zoos in hopes of spurring growth in the predators' population.

Fish and Wildlife Service officials believe the panther population, which lives mainly in the marshes of south Florida, has dwindled to between 30 to 50.

The public has until Aug. 15 to comment on the plan. The Fish and Wildlife Service's regional director, James W. Pulliam, will make the final decision on whether to issue permits.

Fire

firefighters.
 Seminole County currently has two firefighters on each engine. In 1978, the department did add another firefighter to its engines, but the number was reduced to two again in 1981 when population growth required additional engines to be available. By comparison, Sanford, Orlando and Orange County typically have four firefighters on each engine. All other cities in Seminole County have three firefighters assigned to each engine.

Kaiser said the three men would allow a quicker scene set-up that could enable more lives and property to be saved.

Assistant Fire Chief Terry Schenk said a fire scene set up includes ventilation of the building and connection of hoses along with more than a dozen other steps. With two firefighters on the engine, the set up takes an average of one minute and 45 seconds, Schenk said. With three firefighters, the set up takes an average 56.5 seconds, he said.

"That translates into delay another minute, lose another room," Schenk said.

Kaiser said the three-firefighter crew allows for more back-up should one firefighter become disabled. The three-firefighter crews would allow more engines to remain on stand-by in the event of a store or large-home fire. He said three engines have to be called out for a large building fire mainly to have six firefighters on the scene.

If three firefighters were on each engine, only two engines would be needed in most of those cases, freeing the third engine to respond to another emergency, Kaiser said.

Schenk said with two-firefighter crews, if one firefighter-paramedic has to accompany a victim to the hospital in an ambulance, the engine can remain on duty with two firefighters. Now, the engine is taken out of commission until the second firefighter returns.

investigators, a school resource officer (SRO) for elementary schools and an SRO sergeant. Polk also sought two bailiffs for the two new circuit court judicial positions and several other positions.

County officials, after meeting with Polk in June, have recommended hiring eight new deputies and three investigators, including one crime scene technician. They also recommended hiring the two bailiffs, the SRO sergeant, and three additional operators and a computer programmer for a total of 18 positions in the $26.1 million budget for the sheriff's office.

Polk said the additional personnel will help improve sheriff's services for a short time until population growth catches up.

"It will increase our exposure for a time," Polk said.

If the county would pay for all

16 deputies, services would improve noticeably throughout the year, he said. But Polk said he acknowledges the county's fiscal crunch and said he's satisfied to get the eight new deputies.

"They've held the millage for so long," Polk said. "They've been robbing Peter to pay Paul. Now Peter no longer has any more to give."

Polk said residents will see an improvement with the hiring of the three investigators, particularly the crime scene technician. He said at night, the sheriff's chemist must respond to crime scenes to take fingerprints and other evidence, reducing the amount of time spent on processing chemical evidence such as suspected drugs.

With an additional technician, the chemist will be free to process evidence quicker, speeding up the investigation of crimes.

The sheriff's budget also includes $679,900 to replace 68 squad cars.

permit such uses of TIF. Fine said the law would have to be amended to allow the Simon plan.

Commissioner Pat Warren also opposed the action. She said she had requested tenant information from Simon officials and was never provided the names of "anchor" tenants. Warren did say she not oppose the TIF plan, however.

County commissioners Sandra Galloway, Fred Streetman and Jennifer Keiley approved the tax plan. Because Seminole County now operates under a charter, county approval was needed for the city plan.

County commissioners opposed Simon's original $6.2 million TIF plan in April because it required the use of county, as well as city taxes. Commissioners said they did not want county taxes used for the mall, now in the city, but were willing to approve a TIF using only city taxes.

Tom Schneider, Simon property development director, said the balance of $6.2 million would be made up in private investments. Schneider said the size of the mall nor the road improvements would be changed as a result of the loss of county taxes. Schneider said the mall can be completed by March 1993.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

New York to host Democratic convention

WASHINGTON — New York City has been chosen to host the 1992 Democratic National Convention, beating out New Orleans at least in part because of a tough abortion bill passed by the Louisiana Legislature, sources said.

The gathering — at which the party will nominate its 1992 presidential candidate — is to be held in the newly renovated Madison Square Garden.

At least part of the reason for choosing New York was because of the recent passage by the Louisiana Legislature of the toughest abortion bill in the nation, said sources connected to the party. Louisiana Gov. Buddy Roemer, a Democrat, has not said whether he will sign the measure.

Marino resigns because of ill health

ATLANTA — Roman Catholic Archbishop Eugene A. Marino, the nation's highest-ranking black clergyman, resigned Tuesday after two years in office, citing personal reasons and ill health.

Cleveland Auxiliary Bishop James P. Lyke was named apostolic administrator of the Atlanta archdiocese and will serve until Pope John Paul II and other church officials choose an archbishop.

Marino, 56, the nation's first black Roman Catholic archbishop, did not attend the news conference called to announce his resignation and Lyke's appointment.

WORLD BRIEFS

Gorbachev re-elected

MOSCOW — A delegate's call for a vote demanding the Soviet government's resignation threw the 28th Communist Party Congress into an uproar today until the leadership declared the issue beyond the conclave's authority.

Vladimir Lysenko, a leader of the radical Democratic Platform bloc that has threatened to split from the party, proposed the resolution during debate on the 10th day of the pivotal Congress, which re-elected Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev as the Party's general secretary Tuesday.

Lysenko stood up during a debate on economic issues and proposed the congress call for the resignation of Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov and his government to support coal miners who staged a 24-hour strike Wednesday to demand a change in government.

The proposal caused an uproar, with the more than 4,500 delegates in the Kremlin's Hall of Congresses shouting at each other and the presiding officer, Azerbaijan party leader Ayaz Mutalibov, calling for order as Ryzhkov and Gorbachev looked on.

"Who concretely authorized you to speak for the miners?" Ryzhkov said to Lysenko.

Mutalibov tried to call a vote three times but was drowned out by the shouting. Later, he apparently changed his mind and declared the congress could not vote on the issue because it was the Supreme Soviet's job to form the government.

Senate set to approve anti-crime bill

By STEVE GONDEL
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Senate was poised to approve major anti-crime legislation that would expand the death penalty to 34 crimes, ban nine military assault weapons and bolster law enforcement efforts nationwide.

The bill, supported by the Bush administration despite reservations about the ban on foreign and domestic semi-automatic weapons was expected to pass today.

Passage would mean another setback for the pro-gun lobby, which is spearheaded by the National Rifle Association.

Following passage, the measure would go to the House where movement toward a bill has been much slower. The NRA could make a last stand in the House against the prohibition on assault guns, a weapon of choice among criminals and drug lords.

The Senate, which put all but the finishing touches on the bill before the traditional July Fourth recess, planned to deal with only one amendment — a bipartisan attack on savings and loan fraud.

The compromise agreement would impose tougher penalties against those convicted of S&L crimes.

It would also provide an additional $160 million for prosecutors, FBI agents, courts and investigators.

Negotiations on civil rights bill continue

By STEVE GONDEL
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Negotiations between the White House and Senate Democrats on a civil rights bill continue, but prospects for agreement have faded with the rejection by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., of the latest Bush administration proposal.

"Negotiations are continuing but so far have not been satisfactory," Kennedy said, replying to White House chief of staff John Sununu. "Congress should restore the full strength of anti-discrimination laws, not only restore them part way."

Lacking an agreement, the Senate was set to continue debate Wednesday on the Civil Rights Act of 1990, considered the most important rights bill of the session.

The bill would reverse a series of 1989 Supreme Court decisions, which civil rights advocates said undermine federal protections against discrimination in the workplace.

In the only action taken Tuesday, the Senate voted to extend federal laws against discrimination to its own employees — but did not give the right to press their complaints in federal court.

The Senate approved by voice vote the employment safeguards for about 7,800 employees by including them in three existing civil rights laws and two bills working their way through final passage.

The proposal by Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., made the Senate Ethics Committee and the Senate the last resort for employers pressing claims, denying them an appeal to the federal courts.

Leaders defer Soviet aid question

By LONI SANTOS
United Press International

HOUSTON — The summit seven were ready to conclude their 16th annual session today with a strong expression of support for Mikhail Gorbachev but no firm promises of coordinated Western aid to help him restructure the crippled Soviet economy.

While Bush and the leaders of Britain, Canada, France, Italy, Japan and West Germany announced agreement Tuesday to conduct a comprehensive study on the question, the move deferred any substantive action until at least year's end.

On the last two of the three major sticking points at the Economic Summit, global trade and the environment, top aides worked through the night to nail down compromise language for the concluding communique to be issued at the summit's close.

Airport authority OKs $6.1 million budget

By NICK PEPINIAU
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A budget request of $6,109,197 was approved yesterday by the Sanford Airport Authority and forwarded to the city manager for placement on an upcoming commission agenda. Aviation Director Steve Cooke said he was pleased with the request.

Expenditures are expected to be up this year over last by $980,923, but according to Cooke, the total grants to be received this year will be up by over $1.8 million.

"The number one problem in the nation's airports today is congestion, and the government is encouraging the operation of reliever airports," Cooke said. "We are the officially designated reliever airport to the Orlando International Airport."

One improvement at the Central Florida Regional Airport called for in this year's budget is the formation of a firefighting unit. "Up until now," Cooke said, "we've have our firefighting needs taken care of through a contract with the City of Sanford, but that contract is about to expire." Cooke said the budget calls for the hiring of three firefighters, one chief and two airfield firefighters and rescue personnel, which will increase the staff at the airport from 33 to 36.

While Cooke admitted that there were some items last year which were over budgeted, he said the priorities are now different. "We're operating in the black," Cooke said, "not making any huge profits, but we are in the black."

No city commission review of the airport budget has been scheduled yet.

Kramer begins campaign for Seminole County judge

By NICK PEPINIAU
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — Michael A. Kramer, 39, has announced his candidacy for Seminole County Judge, the position created by the recent resignation of County Judge Alan Dickey.

Kramer stated in a press release, "We need to bring energetic management to the Seminole County bench, judges who have the experience and academic qualifications to manage the ever increasing number of cases." Kramer said he has those qualifications.

Kramer has over 10 years of legal experience ranging from his current private practice, to representation of three Florida municipalities. He graduated first in his class in 1973 at Tulane University, receiving a master's in business administration. In 1979 he graduated cum laude from the University of Miami Law School. He also attended Tulane as an undergraduate, earning a bachelor's with honors in engineering.

He was admitted to the Florida bar in 1979, is a registered professional engineer and a certified contractor. He is a member of the American, Florida and Seminole County Bar Associations. He believes his comprehensive legal and business background are what is necessary today to serve as a judge.

In his announcement, Kramer said, "I am committed not to accept funds from attorneys or legal firms because those contributions may have the appearance to the public of influence buying." He challenged other judicial candidates to not accept such donations.

Kramer is an active member of the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce. He was a member of the Seminole County Board of Adjustments and a volunteer in the Seminole County School Board Dividends program. He received recognition from the Supreme Court of Florida for his service in the Florida Guardian Ad Litem program, dedicated to protecting the interests of abused children. He was recently appointed to the Board of Trustees for HCA West Lake Hospital. Additionally, he was the attorney for the Seminole County Humane Society for the past two years where he actively prosecuted animal abuse cases and assisted the office of the State Attorney in criminal prosecution.

Kramer lives with his wife of 16 years, and two sons, in Longwood.

Sheriffs gather for Pensacola conference

PENSACOLA — Sheriffs throughout the state who are attending the 77th annual conference of the Florida Sheriffs Association got a chance Tuesday to take a look at the latest in law enforcement gadgetry.

"Law enforcement is getting more sophisticated," said Alan March of Las Sana, a Ft. Myers firm that makes tactical equipment. "The dollars the bad guys are spending are unlimited."

Bulletproof vests, Velcro holsters, laptop computers and automobile rigs with flashing red and blue lights were on display at the Pensacola Hilton, location of the conference that has attracted sheriffs from 46 of the state's 67 counties.

On display outside the hotel was a portable jail. The red, white and blue trailer has bunks for a dozen people, a shower and toilet. A spokesman for Lifeline Shelters Inc., of Lancaster, Ohio, said 200 of the units are in use nationwide, but none in Florida.

"The real key is we can respond within 48 hours to prison overcrowding, and it would take 26 to 34 months to build a 300-bed prison facility," said Hal Roach, vice president of marketing for Lifeline Shelters.

One exhibitor showed the latest in fingerprint technology. A Luma-Lite makes it possible to lift prints from the skin or even a leaf. The device has been around for about a year.

On Tuesday, Maury Kolchakian, general counsel for the association, discussed the vehicle pursuit policy, and Ronal Tudor, special agent with the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, discussed "caller ID," which allows telephone users to see the number of an incoming call.

Tudor, a member of a committee appointed by the Public Service Commission to look into the service, said the panel is recommending the service not be used until telephone companies can offer some safeguards for law enforcement.

Caller ID has had a big impact on undercover operations, said Tudor, adding that at a bare minimum, a device must be offered to allow a caller to block his or her number from being relayed to the location being called.

"As currently proposed, it does not offer enough safeguards for either the community at large and particularly law enforcement," said Tudor. "We feel that right now it poses more hazards to investigation than is warranted by any non-essential services."

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Lawton Chiles and Republican Gov. Bob Martinez were also in town Tuesday to address the gathering of law enforcement officials.

Survey shows 63 police have died in line of duty

MIAMI — Sixty-three of the nation's police officers — about one every 69 hours — have died in the line of duty so far this year, according to figures released Tuesday by the American Police Hall of Fame & Museum.

The survey, based on the FBI Uniform Crime Report, said nearly half of those deaths were due to shootings and the average age of officers killed was 27. Most were killed on Thursdays and the most dangerous time of the day was between 10 p.m. and 2 a.m., it said.

"Based on averages over the past 10 years, an officer is killed in the United States every 57 hours," said Gerald S. Arenberg, executive director of the Hall of Fame & Museum.

The number of deaths between Jan. 1 and June 30 was down from 78 for the same period last year, when a total of 163 officers were killed over the 12-month period.

"If, in fact, there is a decline in officer deaths, it may be attributed to improved training and increased use of bullet-resistant jackets," said Arenberg.

Of the 63 deaths reported so far this year, 31 were caused by shootings.

FOOTBALL

Jets pick Syracuse's Moore

NEW YORK — The New York Jets made Syracuse University's all-time leading receiver Rob Moore the first player chosen in the NFL supplemental draft Tuesday, forfeiting next year's first-round choice.

The Jets had the third shot at Moore after the Dallas Cowboys and Atlanta Falcons passed in the lottery weighted to help teams most in need. The selection allows Moore to join the team that practices a stone's throw from his childhood backyard. The Hempstead, N.Y., native grew up in the town of the Jets' training facilities before leaving to put together a remarkable career in three seasons at Syracuse.

Two other players were available in the draft, Louisiana State tight end Willie Williams and Ricky Martino, a defensive back who attended Navarro Junior College, Tarrant County Junior College and Grambling but never played.

TOUR de FRANCE

Pensec takes yellow jersey

ST. GERVAIS-MONT BLANC, France — Frenchman Ronan Pensec climbed into the overall lead Tuesday in the 77th Tour de France, powering past a faltering Steve Bauer in the first of two difficult stages in the Alps.

Another Frenchman, Thierry Claveyrollet, won the stage in a 47-mile breakaway, escaping several pursuers over three steep climbs up to 5,300 feet.

Bauer, a Canadian rider for the 7-Eleven team who had held the overall lead since a first-stage breakaway with Pensec and two other riders, fell behind the key group in the final climb at St. Gervais, and finished in a small group 4:07 behind Claveyrollet.

YOUTH BASKETBALL

ICBA Seminoles sixth in nation

ORLANDO — Led by 32 points and 15 rebounds from Brenda Davis, the ICBA Seminoles defeated the Kutis Breakers of St. Louis 60-57 in overtime for sixth place in the Youth Basketball Organization of America 18-and-Under Girls' National Tournament at Meadowbrook Middle School.

At the end of regulation, the score was 53-53. Ovidio High School's Pam Lindsey led the Seminoles in the overtime period, sinking a three-point field goal, converting two free throws and having an assist. Lindsey finished with 14 points while Andrea Duda had six and Katie Jacobs had four while Stephanie Nolasux and Adrienne Wood each netted two.

Nolasux, a 13-year-old, also contributed 10 rebounds and three blocked shots. She scored her two points in the overtime period on the pass from Lindsey.

TENNIS

Mayotte wins in Fame tourney

NEWPORT, R.I. — Top seeded Tim Mayotte defeated Miguel Nido 6-2, 6-4 Tuesday in the opening round of the $150,000 Tennis Hall of Fame Championships.

Mayotte, ranked 19th in the world, used his strong serve-and-volley game in eliminating Nido, a native of Puerto Rico ranked 145th.

Mayotte, a native of Springfield, Mass., now living in Bradenton, had not played since losing in the first round at Wimbledon.

Former champions were 500 Tuesday, John Fitzgerald of Australia, who won in 1983, squandered a 5-0 lead in the third set in losing to Patrick Baur of West Germany, 7-6 (7-3), 3-6, 7-6 (7-2). Defending champion and No. 5 seed Jim Pugh of Rancho Palos Verdes, Calif., beat Simon Youl of Australia, 6-7 (3-7), 6-3, 6-4.

Bickerstaff leaves SuperSonics

SEATTLE — Bernie Bickerstaff resigned Tuesday as the Seattle SuperSonics vice president of basketball operations, apparently to accept a front office position with the Denver Nuggets.

Bickerstaff was the Sonics coach the past five seasons before becoming a vice president less than two months ago. Sonics officials say they expect him to become the Nuggets' general manager.

Bickerstaff said at the end of last season he was tired of coaching and wanted an office job. K.C. Jones, who left an executive position with the Boston Celtics to become a Sonics assistant coach last season, was named Seattle's head coach May 15 when Bickerstaff was made a vice president.

Sanford wins again

From staff reports

EDGEWATER — Scoring six runs in the first inning and six more in the seventh, Sanford eliminated a stubborn Holly Hill team 15-11 Tuesday night in the Florida Junior Major League District IV All-Star Baseball Tournament at Whistle Stop Park.

The win keeps the Sanford All Stars alive in the double-elimination tournament and advances them to this evening's losers' bracket final at 7 p.m. in Edgewater. Sanford will play the loser of Tuesday night's Edgewater/Ormond Beach game.

"It was a lot harder than it should have been," said Sanford Manager Klone Jordan. "We were up 6-0 in the first inning and 7-0 after the top of the second. But we were only up 8-6 going into the fifth.

"They hit four or five Texas Leaguers just over the infield. Then Quentin Hunt (Sanford's starting pitcher) tired and gave up some hits. We brought in Craig Merkerson in the seventh inning and he was wild. He walked some batters but he ended up striking out the side. They had the bases loaded and the tying run at the plate with one out."

Cornelius Martin had three hits to lead the 12-hit Sanford attack, hitting a bases-loaded double to clear the bases during Sanford's six-run first inning.

Eric Ingram hit a home run to lead off the seventh while Jamie King had a two-out, two-run single during the seventh. Clifton Branch and George Beasley each hit triples and Tarrus Davis contributed a double. Charlie Farmer chipped in with two hits and three RBI. Sanford also stole nine bases.

"It was an incredible game," said Jordan. "It was a lot more interesting than it should have been. When we scored six runs in the top of the seventh, we thought it was over.

"They only had 10 players but they kept coming back. Every time we had them on the ropes, they'd come out swinging. They're a smart team, very well-coached. There were no easy outs. All 21 outs were hard-earned."

Davidson shuts out Bullets

LAKE MARY — When a two teams get locked up in a pitchers' duel, the final outcome is a direct result of which team makes the plays.

The Rams (Lake Mary High School's summer baseball team) and the Bullets (Lyman High School's summer club) demonstrated the unwavering truth of that basic diamond law on Tuesday night as the Rams bested the Bullets 2-0 in a National Amateur Baseball Federation game at Lake Mary High School.

With Scott Davidson of the Rams and the Bullets' Jason Goodpastor matching pitch for pitch, the Rams turned a pair of double plays on defense and took advantage of the

'Lone Ranger' helps American League top National

United Press International

CHICAGO — The Lone Ranger came to the rescue of an All-Star Game that was in danger of resembling a World Cup soccer match.

Julio Franco, the only representative from the Texas Rangers, doubled home two runs in the seventh inning Tuesday night, breaking a scoreless tie and giving the American League a 2-0 victory over the National.

Battling after the longest rain delay in All-Star history, Franco backed a record-setting performance by the AL pitching staff.

Franco hit Rob Dibble's 0-2 pitch into the right-center field gap, breaking a scoring drought similar to the ones that plagued the recently-concluded World Cup.

"I knew he was going to throw me something hard," Franco said. "I just wanted to go to right field."

The AL now owns its first three-game winning streak since the Truman Administration and its first shutout in 44 years.

With the wind blowing in at 16 mph, the crowd of 39,071 watched the AL allow just two hits to win its third game in as many tries at Wrigley Field.

"You're not going to beat many people with two hits," said San Francisco Manager Roger Craig.

No one had scored at 9:55 p.m. CDT, when home plate umpire Ed Montague called time with runners on first and third and none out in the seventh.

One hour and eight minutes later, Dibble replaced loser Jeff Brantley and got two strikes on Franco. But the next pitch gave Bret Saberhagen the victory and made Oakland skipper Tony La Russa the first AL manager since Casey Stengel to pilot two straight All-Star wins. The American League used six pitchers to handcuff the NL and break the previous low-hit game of three hits, established four times. Dennis Eckersley worked the ninth to notch his second All-Star save.

"I think sometimes when you haven't seen a pitcher it makes a difference," Craig said. Franco, playing in his second All-Star Game, was named most valuable player.

After two decades as a punching bag, the AL has taken four of the last five, though it still trails the series 57-23-1.

Only a first-inning single by San Francisco's Will Clark and a ninth-inning single by Lenny Dykstra spared the NL the first no-hitter in All-Star history. As it was, the NL set a record for fewest hits, and extended its recent futility.

Rain delayed the game for 17 minutes at the start, making it the fourth All-Star matchup affected by precipitation.

Bullets' one lapse to score two runs in the bottom of the third inning.

"We're playing good baseball," said Lake Mary Coach Allen Tuttle. "We played good defense and got good pitching. We're getting to where we want to be."

Davidson gave up only three hits — two to Shawn Stuckey and one to Andy Spolaki — and a walk as he handcuffed the Bullets. All three hits came with two out in an inning while the walk was erased by a double play. The Rams made one error, but it too was wiped away by a double play.

"We're playing well," said Bullet Coach Bob McCullough. "We're juggling the lineup, trying to see who can hit first, second, third and fourth. Coach Davidson pitched well. He's getting better. He kept the ball down and that's the big factor. If we make the plays, they don't score any runs."

Getting two hits each for Southeast Seminole in the first game with Atlantic Beach were Alan Montijo, Ryan Wilder and John Buchanan. Contributing one hit were DiCharry, Zalana, Allan Walker, Troy Bougwell and Kenny Parrott.

The win over Ocala proved to be one of the most exciting games of the tournament. Ocala scored six runs in the bottom of the first inning to take the early advantage and still led 6-1 as Southeast Seminole came to the plate for its last at bat, when it exploded for seven runs and held on for the victory.

Buchanan was the winning pitcher after throwing five shutout innings of relief. Buchanan also paced the offense with three hits. Also adding one hit each were Montijo, Bougwell, Zalana, Walker, Wilder and Joe Muley.

JUNIOR LEAGUE

MOUNT DORA — Richie DiTore and Jason Fore combined on a three-hit shutout Tuesday night as Oviedo blanked Eustis 18-0 in an Area 3 winners' bracket game.

LITTLE LEAGUE

Tradition, family spice cook's life

By JOAN KING
Herald correspondent

LAKE MARY — Pat Fox, our Cook of the Week, lives in Lake Mary with her husband Commander Ray Fox, USN Retired.

Spending a lifetime with a career Navy man was a natural progression for Fox because she was a Navy brat. The expression Navy brat is proudly used by children of U.S. naval personnel worldwide and well recognized as a loving symbol of the American Navy family. This tradition started with the officer's families and quickly spread through the ranks. It was adopted by the enlisted personnel to show a united family image: the Navy family.

Fox was born in Washington, D.C. and her sister was born in Port-Au-Prince, Haiti.

The family lived in Pensacola where Fox met Ray, who was in flight training at that time.

The question of cooking brings a lighthearted giggle from Fox who says, "My mother and husband taught me to cook."

She remembers one of the first meals for which she cooked rice.

"I knew it was one cup of rice per person but I didn't know it was one cup of cooked rice. It kept doubling. I didn't know where it all came from," she says.

On another occasion when Fox and Ray tried out their new pressure cooker, they released the seal prematurely and the whole meal flew up onto the ceiling.

"We never did get it all scraped off entirely," Fox laughingly says.

Fox, who can now make anything from scratch, from Ambrosia (a traditional Fox Christmas dish) to Arroz con Pollo (Cuban chicken with rice) offers a bit of sage advice. To new cooks, Fox advises, "When you try to create a dish and it fails, it's not the end of the world, although I've shed many a tear over failures. Just keep trying."

Fox says that her "mother makes the best fig jam I ever tasted."

Recipes Fox uses are backed by family tradition. One of them, called Vea's Tea Cake, is in honor of her mother. Fox created the recipe. The Ida Lou recipe is one Ray's mother served him in his childhood.

The Fox children, Tri, Earl and Caroline, under the expert guidance of their father, decided to bake mom a surprise 40th birthday cake. However, they wanted to make it a black cake. Dad and kids trooped off to the pharmacy for activated charcoal, came home, made the cake and covered the kitchen with soot in the process.

Fox says, "The cake was delicious and I was surprised: by the cake and the kitchen!"

The Fox children are grown now and all live elsewhere. Tri is a world lecturer and the whole planet is his home. Earl is operating the family business and lives in Lake Mary. Caroline is married to Michael Homilus and lives in Daytona Beach where they recently welcomed their first child, Michael III, into the world.

The clock in the Foxes' living room, built many years ago by our cook's father, ticks on as the Foxes watch their family grow into a new generation.

Patient's appearance can help diagnose disorders

DEAR DR. GOTT: What kind of tests are given to determine the beginning of Parkinson's disease and multiple sclerosis? My right hand shakes involuntarily, and the muscles in my arms and legs are becoming increasingly weaker, thin and flabby.

DEAR READER: Like many neurological disorders, Parkinson's disease and multiple sclerosis are usually diagnosed by "clinical presentation": how the patient looks, feels and acts. Parkinson's disease is a common, slowly progressive neurological affliction marked by slow movements, muscular rigidity, resting tremor and postural instability. In its typical form, the diagnosis is unmistakable. Early Parkinson's is less obvious and usually presents as an involuntary "pill-rolling" repetitive motion of the hand, infrequent blinking, slow gait and difficulty initiating movement.

Over time, this progresses to the familiar picture of resting tremor (especially of the head and arms), lack of facial expression, stooped posture, a tendency to fall forward, monotonous speech with stuttering, inability to perform fine motor tasks (such as writing) and gradual inability to meet the demands of daily living. There are no tests to diagnose Parkinson's disease.

Multiple sclerosis is also a progressive neurological disease but, unlike Parkinson's disease, it is marked by periods of remission. MS is more difficult to diagnose than Parkinson's disease because larger areas of the brain are affected, resulting in a wide range of neurological abnormalities.

For example, MS causes numbness, weakness, clumsiness, emotional disturbances, dizziness and loss of bladder control — all of which may antedate the full-blown form of the disease. Also, symptoms may disappear for weeks or months, only to return without warning. Therefore, the disease may not be recognized for years.

The basis of MS is a patchy loss of the insulating material (myelin) of nerves. Magnetic resonance imaging, a complicated technique of "seeing" inside the body by using electromagnetic waves, is the most sensitive diagnostic test. MRI pictures will often show the plaques of demyelination.

BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Equestrians know that changing horses in midstream is not wise. But at the bridge table it's perfectly acceptable to modify your plan of attack as either declarer or defender, when you can see the necessity. After South got to three no-trump, West made the normal lead of a heart. East won the ace and returned the three-spot, won in dummy with the queen as South played the jack. South now played a spade back to his jack. West took the queen. West could now safely return a third heart, setting up his 10 while he still had the ace of spades as a sure entry. And what would the heart return accomplish? The defenders would take two heart tricks and two spades. Declarer would end up with nine tricks from among three spade tricks, two heart tricks, four diamond tricks and the ace of clubs — in short, tricks to burn. And the contract would succeed. Instead, to set the contract, West needs to find East with one specific card — the queen of clubs. By shifting to the 10 of clubs after winning the first spade trick, West plays to defeat the contract. Yes, there are pitfalls in changing direction. It's barely possible that South held only J-x of spades and the queen of clubs, and that South was trying to lure West into a terrible error. But that would give South a hand with only 12 high-card points. Percentages favor East's holding the club queen, and West is right to go for that contingency.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Ouel

YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 12, 1990

More travel than usual is a possibility in the year ahead. There is a likelihood you might take a trip of some distance to a place you've long desired to visit and it will live up to your expectations.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) What you can't accomplish on your own today can be achieved with competent partners. You must be sure, however, both parties have a harmony of purpose. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail 92 to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your greatest successes today are likely to come from situations you manage for others. Fortunately, you'll share in the benefits or advantages of those you aid.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you might be called upon to arbitrate a matter between two dissidents. You'll know how to bring these parties together in a manner that will nullify their differences.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Something in which you're presently involved can yield a greater return than you first suspected. Analyze this matter again today with an eye toward improvement.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Social contacts could be extremely helpful for you today. Someone you know might open a door for you that you have been unable to jar loose.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't get rattled if it looks like you've invested in an early business skirmish today, because you are a stronger closer than an opener. Be tenacious and you'll come out OK.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Happy tidings could come to you today concerning two unrelated involvements. One pertains to something of a social nature and the other is associated with your material affairs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You could be more fortunate than usual in material ventures today, not only for yourself, but for people you're associated with as well.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Usually you are a reasonably cautious person, but today you might be inclined to take a risk. Others may think of it as a gamble, but you'll know it's more like a sure thing.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If there is something special you need today, don't keep it a secret. People you've helped in the past will be happy to assist you now. Ask.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Instead of complaining about your present circumstances, take time to review all of your opportunities and benefits today and you'll discover you're in pretty good shape.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You are capable of rather remarkable achievements today, provided you are properly motivated. If you think about how you can improve your material circumstances, this should do the job.

Kids invade kitchen this summer

The long, hot, sometimes crazy days of summer are upon us. The kids are home from school with their appetites and energy frequently routing in the kitchen for something to eat.

A few summers ago I taught a microwave class called "Kids in the Kitchen" and learned that with a few basic tips and some simple, but good recipes, kids enjoy using the microwave to prepare nutritious meals and snacks.

Tips for Kids:
M - Microwaveable dishes only. Glass or suitable plastic dishes are best. Do not use metal or foil dishes.

I - Ingredients should all be assembled before you begin. Read each recipe carefully.

C - call for help if you need it. It may be a good idea to have an adult or older brother or sister close by.

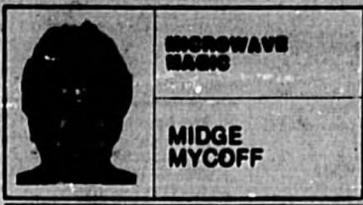

R - remember to clean-up afterwards.
O - Oh! Don't forget to ask for permission.

Enjoy nutritious potato skins as a snack or serve at mealtime.

CREESEY POTATO SLICES

1 medium baking potato
Seasoned salt
1/4 C. shredded Cheddar cheese

Scrub potato; prick with fork several places. Place on paper towel in microwave oven. M/W on 100% power (high) 3 1/2-4 minutes or until potato is just about tender.

MICROWAVE BASIC

turning potato over halfway through cooking time. Let stand 5 minutes. Carefully cut into 1/2-inch thick slices and place on microwave-safe serving plate. Sprinkle with seasoned salt and cheese. Microwave (100%) uncovered, 30-45 seconds or until cheese is melted.

Chicken chunks rate high with kids. They'll like this easy dipping sauce too.

CHICKEN DIPPERS

1/2 C. catsup
1 Tbsp. grape jelly
1 pkg. (12 oz.) frozen, breaded chunk-shaped chicken pieces

Combine catsup and jelly in small microwave-safe serving dish. Microwave (100%), uncovered, 1 1/2-2 minutes or until jelly is melted, stirring once. Set aside. Arrange chicken pieces on paper-towel-lined, microwave-safe serving plate. Cover with paper towel. Microwave on 100% power (high) 3 1/4-4 minutes or until chicken is hot. Serve sauce along with chicken. Makes about 4 servings.

Quick and simple describes these unique hot sandwiches.

EASY CHEESE BURGERS

(Untidy Josephs)
1 lb. ground beef
1 Tbsp. instant minced onion
1 can (10 1/2 oz.) condensed tomato soup
4 oz. cubed Cheddar cheese
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
1/4 tsp. pepper
12 small hamburger buns, split

Crumble beef into 1 1/2-qt. microwave-safe casserole. Combine soup, cheese, Worcestershire sauce and pepper. Mix with meat. Sprinkle with onion.
Microwave on 100% power, uncovered, 2-3 minutes or until mixture is hot and cheese is melted. Spoon scant 1/4 cup of mixture into each bun. If desired, microwave (high), uncovered, 11-14 minutes or until buns are warm.

No campfire is needed for these S'mores.

S'MORES

2 graham cracker squares
Chocolate chips or other milk chocolate candy
1 lg. marshmallow
Place 1 graham cracker on a paper napkin. Top with chocolate and marshmallow. M/W on 100% power (high), just until marshmallow puffs up, about 20 seconds. Top with second cracker. Peanut butter or sliced banana may also be added, if desired.

Farewell hug

Daughter says dad drinks night away

DEAR ABBY: My father lives in another state, and he visits me three or four times a year for two weeks (sometimes) at a time. Prior to each visit, I work myself up into a nervous frenzy because I know he will drive me crazy while he's here.

Dad is 58, single, and I think he's an alcoholic. He hangs out at his favorite club while he's here, then comes back to my place somewhere between "high" and "loaded," and he expects me to stay up with him while he drinks more and talks non-stop about himself. Thank God, I don't have any children.

I don't know how to stop this vicious cycle (which has been going on for five years) without losing him altogether, which sometimes I think might not be such a bad idea.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Please don't recommend intervention, as he doesn't think he has a drinking problem.

FRUSTRATED DAUGHTER IN NEVADA

DEAR FRUSTRATED: When you stay up and provide your father with an audience while he continues to drink and talk, you are enabling him to drink.

Please, do your father and yourself a favor, and attend some meetings of Al-Anon and Adult Children of Alcoholics. They're listed in your telephone directory. You will get some helpful, eye-opening insights on how to deal with your father, which could provide salvation for the both of you. Good luck!

DEAR ABBY: I have just finished reading your book, "Dear Abby on Planning Your Wedding." It was a wonderful book and extremely helpful. After reading the section on "Including Disabled Persons," I had to write and tell you about a wedding I attended recently.

The bride's father had a stroke quite a few years ago and is now confined to a wheelchair. At the start of the reception, when they traditionally play "Daddy's Little Girl," they did something a little different but simply wonderful.

The song they played was "Leader of the Band," and facing her father, the bride wheeled him around the dance floor. I don't think there was a dry eye in the house! Everyone applauded.

It was the most beautiful dance I had ever seen at any wedding. I know I will always cherish that special moment shared between that father and daughter!

KAREN CHASE, BAY SHORE, N.Y.

DEAR KAREN: Thank you for reminding us that with enough love and creativity, there are few problems that are insurmountable.

Garden of the Month

The colorful caladiums bordering the home of Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Carlton, 554 Plumosa Drive, earned them the "Garden of the Month" from the Garden Club of Sanford. Impatiens bloom around an oak tree and dahlias and roses enhance the side yard. The selection was made by Mrs. J.R. Hoolahan and Mrs. L.M. Swain of the Mimosa Circle.

Test flaws acknowledged

NASA says Hubble and shuttle woes could have been avoided

By BOB BYRNE
UPI Science Editor

WASHINGTON — Tests could have caught the mistakes that crippled the Hubble Space Telescope and grounded the space shuttle fleet, NASA officials said, but they denied the agency has a "shoot the messenger" philosophy.

At a crowded and sometimes tense congressional hearing Tuesday, top space officials defended the agency's quality control efforts but acknowledged that better testing could have prevented the problems.

During one heated exchange, NASA Deputy Administrator James Thompson also said that there was "a very real possibility" of another major space shuttle accident within the next decade.

The Senate Committee on Commerce, Science and Transportation called the hearing to investigate a defect in the $1.5 billion Hubble telescope's mirrors that produces blurry images, and fuel leaks that have grounded all shuttles since May.

"The common denominator is, in my view, inadequate testing," said Ben Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., who chairs the committee. "In both cases the testing program... was not handled in a way that caught things which have now shaken the public's view of how this is being managed."

Although the long-awaited, highly publicized Hubble telescope underwent extensive testing before being sent into space April 25,

Shuttle skippers grounded for violation of safety rules

By WILLIAM HARWOOD
UPI Science Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — Shuttle skipper Frederick Gregory, replacing a fellow astronaut who was bumped from a 1991 mission for violating NASA flight rules, said Tuesday the punishment was a necessary "wrist slapping" to ensure safety rules are followed.

In an unprecedented move, NASA officials announced Monday that David Walker, 46, and Robert "Hoot" Gibson, 43, a veteran of three shuttle flights, had been removed as commanders of two 1991 missions for violating NASA flight safety rules.

Gibson, involved in a fatal collision during an air show race Saturday, was banned from flying T-38 jets for one year while Walker was grounded for 60 days, presumably because of repeated T-38 flights in violent weather.

Both pilots will be eligible for reassignment to shuttle missions after they regain T-38 flight status.

Walker, in training for a March 1991 military flight aboard the shuttle Atlantis, was replaced by Gregory, veteran of two previous space missions. A replacement was not immediately named for Gibson, who had been in training for a December 1991 flight aboard the shuttle Discovery.

Gregory learned of his new flight assignment Monday morning and was practicing flight procedures in a shuttle simulator by the end of the day. At the economic summit in Houston Tuesday, he predicted Gibson and Walker would be assigned to new shuttle missions as soon as they regain T-38 flight status.

"All of us are pilots and all of us are very aggressive pilots," Gregory said. "It's sometimes difficult to separate our outside activities and our piloting skills and just the thrill of flying. It's unfortunate in this particular case because both Dave Walker and Hoot Gibson are terrific pilots."

The disciplinary action came after Gibson was involved in a collision during a weekend air race in Texas that left a second pilot dead and raised questions about the enforcement of rules banning such high-risk activity by expensively trained astronauts.

NASA suspects Hubble blurring in primary mirror

By WILLIAM HARWOOD
UPI Science Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — A NASA official Tuesday denied reports that use of military spy satellite test facilities was offered to the space agency that could have revealed the Hubble Space Telescope's blurry vision before launch.

"No one stepped up to my knowledge, and offered any facilities," deputy project manager Jean Oliver told reporters in a cross-country teleconference from the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md.

Engineers studying the telescope's optical system, meanwhile, say the "spherical aberration" blurring the instrument's vision appears to involve Hubble's 94.5-inch primary mirror.

Such a defect could have been caught before launch had Hubble's two mirrors been checked out in an "end-to-end" test.

Beach plays role as spaceport

By DAVID TORTORANO
United Press International

CAPE SAN BLAS — Common sights along the pristine beaches of this northwest Florida cape are the sand dunes, the native sea oats and shrubs and the occasional formation of pelicans gliding overhead.

Beyond the dunes there's the muffled rumble of waves from the Gulf of Mexico washing ashore on the sugar-white beach.

"It's the original, real Florida, like when the Indians were here," said Carolyn Kempton, a ranger at St. Joseph Peninsula State Park, a 2,516-acre wilderness area on Cape San Blas.

But on the southern tip of the Gulf County cape there's an area where no tourists are allowed. There's the fence, and three concrete slabs imbedded in the sandy soil near the beach. There's a non-descript building with radar and signs saying U.S. government property.

This is the Air Force's test facility. Last used for an Air Force launch in the early '70s, it is now destined to be a player in Florida's fledgling commercial space program.

From this serene spot within the next two months, a rocket will lift off from a launch pad set up by the Spaceport Florida Authority. The suborbital flight will mark Florida's entry into the multibillion-dollar commercial space launch field.

"We're committed to doing something, at least a launch this year," said Edward Ellegood, operations director for the state agency. "We're not ruling out August. A lot of times the Air Force will bend over backwards to help you."
