Donors Could Kill Proposed United Way Merger

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

The proposed merged Heart of Florida United Way, previously announced as going into effect Jan. 1 as a merger between Seminole, Orange and Osceola county organizations, will not go into effect unless "donor members" of the three organizations approve it at open meetings later this month.

The Seminole County meeting is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. Jan. 29 at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce office at 400 E. First St.

Both the Seminole and Orange County United Way boards voted unanimously in favor of the merger last month, but Osceola County's United Way executive board wanted some changes in the agreement before voting on it. The Osceola executive board approved the merger agreement after the changes were made and the full board will vote on the proposal Jan. 12. Orange County will hold a meeting Jan. 28 to ask donors to approve the merger. Osceola's meeting for donors will be scheduled depending on the Jan. 12 board meeting.

Osceola County United Way's executive board asked for two changes in the proposed agreement before approving it. One was a provision that assures that proceeds from an annual air show in Kissimmee go to benefit United Way organizations in Osceola County as in the past, and not be spread among agencies in the three counties.

The other is an "escape clause" that allows the Osceola County United Way to pull out of the merged organization if it decides in the future that it wants to.

Seminole County's full board approved the proposed merger as written and did not ask for any special provisions.

Although plans for the tri-county United Way have been underway for a couple of years, a legal requirement for donors to approve the merger before it can take effect was not known until November when David Hedrick, the Orlando attorney who drew up the revised articles of incorporation, pointed it out to United Way officials.

Bob Walko, executive director of United Way of Seminole County, said the law requires that the proposed merger go into effect within 30 days of the participating county donors approving it. Anyone who contributes to United Way in Seminole County is eligible to attend the Jan. 29 meeting and cast a vote on the proposed merger, he said.

Donors may bring a receipt or cancelled check to the meeting as proof that they are contributors, or their names can be checked against the master list of contributors that is kept at the United Way office in Longwood, Walko said.

Larry Strickler, chairman of the Seminole United Way board, said the law requires a specified number of donors attend as a quorum.

Waller Resigns As Longwood Chief

New Commissioners Ready To Oust Him

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

In a surprise move Monday night Longwood City Administrator Ron Waller beat the City Commissioner Lynette Dennis to the punch by resigning before she could ask for his resignation or removal.

In accepting Waller's resignation, the new commission voted that it become effective immediately rather than his serving out the required one month notice after which he left his place on the platform to sit in the audience. Saying his letter "speaks for itself," Waller said "no comment," when asked about his future plans.

In an emergency ordinance prepared by City Attorney Michael Kramer in the event of Waller's removal, the duties of the city administrator were given temporarily to City Clerk Don Terry, who is a former Longwood city administrator. Waller's resignation made unnecessary an item placed on the agenda at the request of Dennis for the discussion of the removal of the city administrator for cause. Dennis said she had been prepared to ask Waller for his resignation and if he refused, to present a resolution to remove him from his position listing reasons for her dissatisfaction, which she said were "tantamount to malfeasance, misfeasance or nonfeasance."

Dennis said the resolution to fire Waller was virtually the same as one she tried to present in August plus a few new complaints. Waller threatened to sue her for slander at that time over statements she made against him.

Dennis' specific complaints included:

- Lack of initiative with respect to correcting the city's sewer problems
- Lack of supervision of the financial affairs of the city.

Border Blast Of Freezing Cold Stings Midwestern States

A blast of bitter cold stung the Midwest today with gusty winds and temperatures as low as 25 degrees below zero stalling scores of cars, sending the homeless crowding into shelters and endangering flamingos at Chicago's zoo.

The frigid air that pushed across the border from northwestern Canada Monday brought this winter's worst cold, and wind chills of 50 degrees below zero across much of the region were severe enough to freeze expose flesh in one minute, the National Weather Service said.

"Picture a large bubble of cold air over northwestern Canada. It keeps growing until it bursts and sends the cold air flowing," forecaster Harry Gordon said.

Homeless shelters were packed in Chicago, where the temperature was 9 below. At the 250-bed Pacific Garden Mission in downtown Chicago, pastor Jim George said 500 street people crowded inside.

"We may have to stack them like cordwood, but we never turn anybody away," he said.

The Chicago Department of Human Services and Interfaith Council opened numerous warming shelters for both daytime and overnight accommodations.

At the Uptown Center for Street People, the homeless drank cups of coffee and played cards, and Marc Shore, 27, described what it is like to live on the city streets.

"If you keep walking and walking, it's bad. If you stand in the doorway, you get shooed away. A place like this doesn't force me to be a nuisance," he said.

Shelters were filling up in Milwaukee, where a temperature of 5 below zero and winds made it feel like it was 47 below.

"We're going to take in everybody who comes, whether it be 100 or 1,000," Milwaukee Rescue Mission spokesman Dennis Sabourin said.

The cold wave also invaded the East, including the nation's capital, where it was 25 degrees and windy.

The shelters in this city have been filled to capacity every night for weeks so there's really nothing we can do in terms of space," said Mitch Snyder, co-founder of the Community for Creative Non-Violence in Washington, D.C.

"Unfortunately the question is only raised when temperatures drop like this. What it means on a night like tonight is that someone will probably freeze to death if they haven't already," he said.

It was 3 degrees in Columbus, Ohio, where shelters reported they were near capacity. Columbus is estimated to have a homeless population of 600, with beds for only 345 in shelters.

Zoo keepers at Chicago's Lincoln Park Zoo worked today to save the zoo's flamingo population after a power failure sent temperatures plunging in the environmentally controlled dome where the fragile birds were kept.

A 6-inch water main on Chicago's South Side froze and burst Monday, leaving neighboring homes without water for several hours. Deputy Water Commissioner Ronald Youngblood said, "The water from the main created a one-inch thick sheet of ice that closed the street."

Many Chicago residents found their car batteries dead from the extreme cold. One service station attendant on Chicago's north side reported receiving a "tremendous" amount of calls from stranded motorists.

"I've been here for an hour-and-a-half and we've done about five jumps per hour. That's not counting tows — just jump starts," said the attendant at B Agostano's Standard in Chicago.

Surrounding Counties Differ In Teaching Sex Education

By Brian Hedberg
Herald Staff Writer

Out of the three counties surrounding Seminole County, Lake County has sex education curriculum already in place, Volusia touches upon the touchy topics and plans a full-fledged curriculum by next school year, and Orange is lingering the longest with plans for sex education curriculum for the 1990-91.

"We're quite a ways ahead of everyone in the state," said Alan Cornwell, Lake County School Board liaison to that county's Human Growth and Development Task Force. "I think the issue of AIDS has thrust the responsibility of sex education on every county school board."

On Monday, Seminole County mailed out sex education surveys to parents of 4,300 public school homes — roughly 10 percent of the county's enrollment. The surveys allow parents to say whether they think proposed topics for sex education should be taught in certain grade levels.

Seminole's Curriculum Advisory Council will use the survey results to make recommendations to the school board in May. Of the four counties, Seminole is the only one to have employed the use of such a parent survey.

Lake County students in grades K-7 are taught a gamut of sex education subjects, except its four "no-no's" — contraception, abortion, homosexuality, and masturbation, Cornwell said. She said sex education for eighth graders — to include definitions of homosexuality and masturbation, and a teacher-only pamphlet for informing students about contraception — has been approved by the county's school board and will

Witnesses Continue Grand Jury Testimony

Three witnesses who had a major part of putting together the deal that resulted in Seminole County buying 2,867 acres at Yankee Lake went before a Seminole County Grand Jury Monday.

The Seminole County Commission agreed to purchase the land to use as a future site for a sewage treatment facility for $7.5 million from developer Jeno Paulucci in a November, 1985 meeting.

The grand jury is investigating allegations of possible inappropriate activities by some people involved in the deal between the commission and Paulucci.

Testifying Monday were: — Ken Hooper, Seminole County Administrator

— Roger Soderstrom, an aide to Paulucci, who reportedly was in charge of the developer's side of the negotiations leading to the purchase.

— Nicholas Pope, an attorney representing Paulucci in the deal.

The controversy surrounding the Yankee Lake deal led Gov. Bob Martinez to appoint State Attorney Ed Austin, of the 5th Judicial Circuit (Jacksonville) as special prosecutor in the case last July.

Critics of the purchase have argued the county did not follow proper procedures in keeping the public informed of the deal between the commission and Paulucci. There are also com-

IN BRIEF

Mills, Vogt To Announce Medical Malpractice Special Session

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — House Speaker Jon Mills and Senate President John Vogt were expected today to call a Feb. 2 special session to act on the medical malpractice crisis.

The legislative leaders had scheduled a Tallahassee news conference for 10 a.m. According to House Appropriations Chairman Sam Bell, D-Ormond Beach, Vogt and Mills will announce the special session at that time.

Bell said Monday lawmakers have finally assembled a proposed bill that would be acceptable to the entire Legislature. Gov. Bob Martinez and legislative leaders have repeatedly postponed a special session out of concern nothing would be accomplished.

Lawmakers hope to stop the rapid rise of medical malpractice insurance costs, which have driven many doctors out of high-risk specialties and left some hospital emergency rooms without enough doctors to stay open. Martinez said last summer he wanted a special session in September, but legislative leaders told him then it would be a waste of time.

Martinez Touting Budget-Cutting

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. Bob Martinez is flying from one end of Florida to the other today, proclaiming he has begun to carry out a campaign promise to cut $800 million in state government fat and waste.

The governor scheduled a morning news conference at the Capitol in Tallahassee and airport sessions with reporters throughout the day in Miami, West Palm Beach, Orlando, Tampa, Jacksonville and Pensacola.

The news conferences are "for a couple of reasons," says deputy chief of staff Brian Ballard.

Ballard refused to say what sort of savings Martinez would claim. However, Florida TaxWatch, a private group working with the governor to eliminate inefficiency, says it already has identified $91 million in savings.

Bell Names 1991-92 Speaker

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — House Appropriations Chairman Sam Bell, who will serve as speaker for the 1991 and 1992 sessions, has selected Rep. Everett Kelly of Tallahassee as his speaker pro tempore.

Kelly, a pharmacist, will serve, in effect, as vice president during the Democratic House administration to be headed by Volusia County lawyer Bell.

"A speaker is only as effective as his leadership team," Bell said Monday. Kelly will be a key member of that team, acting as "my closest adviser and the bridge to the membership."

Kelly, a 10-year House veteran, is chairman of the House Corrections, Probation and Parole Committee. He helped mold the prison system expansion package produced during the 1987 regular session that includes innovative "boot camp" facilities for youthful offenders.

Nurse Warns Of Stolen AIDS Blood

MIAMI (UPI) — Thieves who stole two vials of blood contaminated with the AIDS virus from a private duty nurse's red Corvette could contract the virus if they come into contact with the blood, the nurse says.

The maroon leather briefcase, containing blood samples freshly drawn from an AIDS patient, were stolen New Year's Day from a 1983 Corvette owned by a private duty nurse.

Police said Sunday they had no leads.

Margarita Quinlan, the owner of the car, is concerned that "some kids or unsuspecting persons," not realizing the blood is infected, will come into direct contact with it.

"If they break the glass and cut their finger there is a risk they may contract the AIDS virus," said Quinlan, a private duty nurse who visits patients at home.

Each glass vial contained five to 10 cubic centimeters of infectious blood.

If the vials are stored properly, "it could be infectious for a long period of time," said Dr. Judd Patten, a Jackson Memorial hospital hematologist. But not knowing the conditions under which the stolen blood is being kept makes it impossible to predict how long the virus would survive, he said.

Quinlan's car was ransacked in the parking lot of a medical supply house northwest of Miami, police said. She had just come from the home of an AIDS patient, from where she drew several blood samples. From there, Quinlan was to take the blood to a lab for processing, she said.

On her way to the lab, Quinlan stopped at the medical supply house and went inside. The car's contents, including a mobile phone and the two-handled briefcase containing her checkbook, papers, sterile needles and the vials of blood, were gone.

A young man called Quinlan's unlisted home telephone number Saturday, she said. He didn't give his name, but she had found her wallet and would return it Monday. Her identification was inside the briefcase next to the stored blood.

Murder Suspect Held

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — A man being held in Florida as a suspect in the slaying of a Wichita man and his two daughters has denied having any knowledge of the slayings, Police Chief Richard LaMunyon said Monday.

The man, identified as William T. Butterworth, was arrested in Stuart, Fla., about 2 p.m. Sunday while talking on an outdoors pay telephone to his wife, Shelly, of Wichita. Stuart is about 130 miles north of Miami.

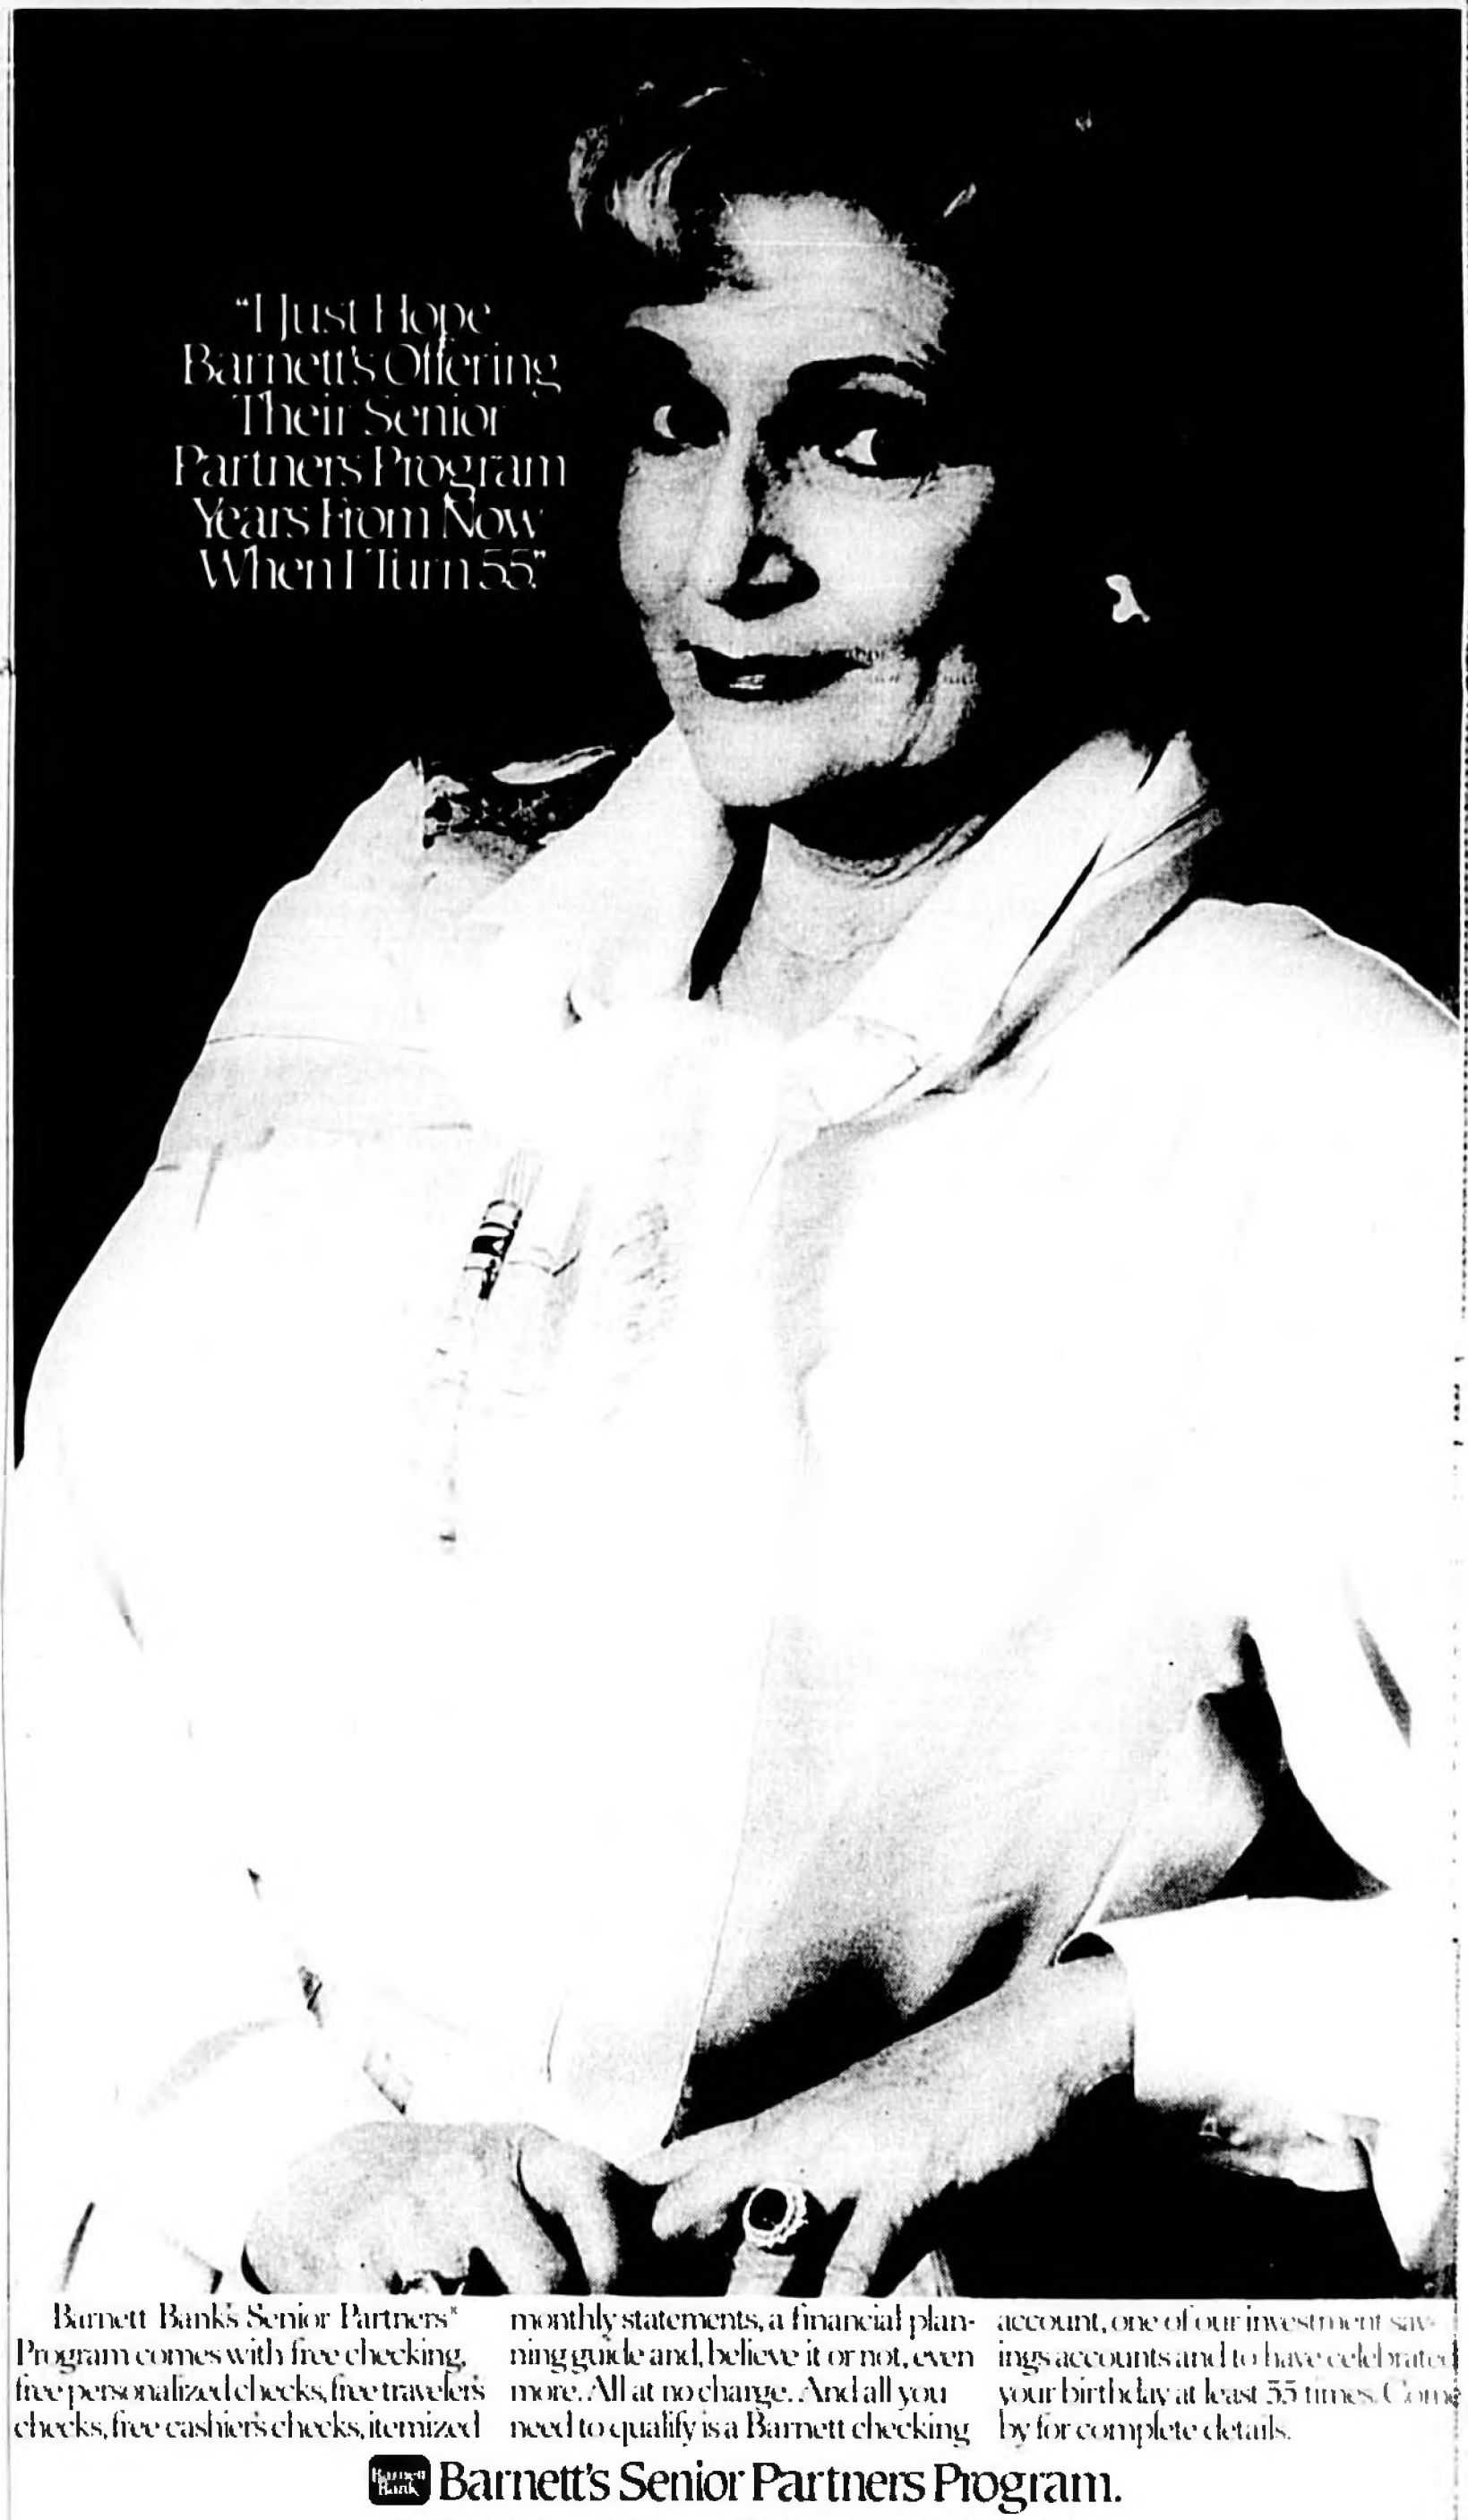

Lt. Richard Youngblood of the Stuart police, who made the arrest, said Butterworth offered no resistance and was not

Boesky Sentence Was Too Lenient

Ivan Boesky is luckier than he deserves to be. The once feared and powerful Wall Street speculator in takeover bores received a much lighter sentence than was expected for his monstrous white-collar crimes. He was sentenced to three years in prison for conspiring to violate securities law. He could have received five years and been fined $250,000. But U.S. District Judge Milton Lasker waived a fine.

Boesky had already paid the U.S. Government $50 million in fines, and returned another $50 million in illegal profits. He pleaded guilty last April to one count of criminal conspiracy after amassing a fortune of nearly $150 million from illegally trading on insider information.

Boesky's empire began to unravel in the spring of 1986 when Dennis Levine, an associate, was charged by the Securities and Exchange Commission with pocketing $12.6 million in profits from illegal stock deals.

Levine, who was given a two-year prison sentence last February and fined $362,000, testified against Boesky after agreeing to cooperate with the feds. Boesky in turn cut a deal with the government. As part of a plea bargain arrangement, he surreptitiously recorded telephone conversations with his alleged accomplices and wore a tape recorder when meeting with them in person.

The government netted some high rollers in Boesky's trap. The indictments and guilty pleas that resulted were a bonanza for law-enforcement officials. Indeed, with Boesky's help, the vast illegal underworld of insider trading, which the SEC described as "staggering" in its size, might never have been exposed.

If Boesky hoped that spilling his guts and much of his bank accounts in fines and restitution would get him off lightly, he was right. Lasker, in pronouncing sentence, said he was giving Boesky the three-year term not to deter him from committing such crimes again, but so he could serve as an example to others. Is it an example for others, or an example of judicial leniency?

The capital markets, composed of the stock exchanges and bond trading firms that are euphemistically known as Wall Street, are extremely important public institutions. They rely to a great extent on the confidence of individual investors. Undermine that confidence, as Boesky and others did, and the need for stern punishment becomes all the more apparent.

Boesky escaped the full wrath of the law, and that underscores another aspect of this case: Boesky was ruled upon by a judge of his own choosing.

Lasker is a man with what The New York Times calls "a well-deserved reputation for leniency." Barely two months after Boesky pleaded guilty to violating securities law, plea-bargaining by "judge shopping" was severely curbed. Boesky got in under the wire, and his lawyers cut a deal with the government in return for having Lasker preside over the case. Future white-collar criminals will not be as lucky.

In a sense, Boesky himself has become almost secondary in this sordid drama. The government sees him as a means of delivering a message—come clean and cooperate—to those under investigation. He serves as an example for others considering stock scams. The message would have had more effect had Boesky received a stiffer sentence.

Israel, It's Still The Underdog Out There

The stories on our television screens have been simple and dramatic. There they are: Israeli soldiers with guns going after young unarmed Palestinian demonstrators. And there's the network correspondent, with the golden splendor of Jerusalem as a backdrop, explaining the situation: Gaza and the West Bank are occupied by the Israelis, and what the demonstrators want is their own country. It's great television: bang-bang, brutality, death, freedom. It is also simple-minded.

There are at least three issues that should be separated out: riot tactics, journalism and geopolitics. They are related, but often only loosely.

Every government dealing with demonstrators or rioters faces a problem: how much force to use to restore order. If the demonstrators are peaceful, engaging in sit-in strikes, it is easy to use little force. But if the demonstrations are riots, and the rioters, according to The New York Times, are "hurting bricks and the bombs that are meant to kill," the tactics change. Sooner or later the equation becomes elemental: There will either be dead rioters or dead soldiers. No government will choose tactics that say, "Well, instead of acting in a way that causes 20 rioters to die, we'll act gently so that 10 rioters and 10 of our soldiers will die." One can argue about specific Israeli responses to incidents, but that's the bottom line.

Then there is television reporting. The Israelis feel it's unfair. It is in the nature of things that video clips showing demonstrators confronting soldiers will impart sympathy to the demonstrators. The demonstrators are the apparent underdogs.

As it happened, Lawrence Grossman, president of NBC News, was in Israel during the rioting. He noted that in earlier years Israel was the underdog and had usually been portrayed favorably, but in the context of the riots "the role of underdog has switched, the Israelis have to be prepared for (what they will perceive to be) much more critical coverage."

Is not an underdog? Israel has a Jewish population of 3.5 million. There are 23 Arab states opposing Israel, with a combined population of 180 million. Right now, the Saudis are publicly urging the Iranians to lay off Iraq and join the fight against Israel.

Which leads to geopolitics. It is easy to say that all the Palestinians want is their own state. But the Palestinians were offered a state by the United Nations in 1948. They rejected it. From 1948 to 1967, Jordan ruled the West Bank and the West Bank residents did not then ask for a separate Palestinian state nor would Jordan have allowed it.

Today the Palestine Liberation Organization still demands all of Israel. The Israelis won't negotiate their own demise with the PLO, but, despite some Israeli foot-dragging, they are willing to negotiate with Jordanians whose delegation would contain activist non-PLO Palestinians. But, once again, rejection. Although Jordan's King Hussein has made private representations, there is still no Arab delegation publicly willing to say let's try to deal.

Many Israelis say "Let's trade land for peace." Others say "If we give away the land, we'll be in more danger." But until the Arabs agree to deal, the Israelis don't have to make the hard choices, and thus keep the moral high ground.

ROBERT WALTERS

Helping Fight Fraud

LOS ANGELES (INEA)—From dishonest doctors who overcharge for Medicare services to greedy Penigon contractors who concoct phony expense claims, fraud permeates virtually all programs financed by the federal government.

"Most fraud goes undetected," says the General Accounting Office. "For those who are caught... the chances of being prosecuted and eventually going to jail are slim.... The sad truth is that crime against the government often does pay."

The Justice Department estimates that fraud accounts for 1 percent to 10 percent of the federal budget. With the government now spending about $1 trillion per year, that's $10 billion to $100 billion lost to crooks and cheaters annually.

Those determined to defraud the government include individuals who submit inflated claims for everything from crop subsidies to disaster relief, as well as those holding federal contracts to provide goods and services.

Overburdened government investigators and prosecutors can handle only a fraction of those cases—but honest employees working for government contractors constitute a vast pool of potential whistle-blowers who could provide personal testimony and documented evidence of wrongdoing.

"There are thousands of cases out there," says John R. Phillips, a thoughtful public interest lawyer in Los Angeles who in 1983 began a search for some means "to revolutionize the enforcement of fraud against the government."

What he found was a federal law more than a century old, the False Claims Act of 1863. It was enacted during the Civil War to help prosecute those who substituted sawdust for gunpowder in the munitions they sold to the Union Army and others who double- or triple-billed the government for horses.

To thwart fraud that was rampant during the Civil War, the statute offered whistle-blowers up to 10 percent of the funds recovered in successful prosecutions.

In 1943, however, a U.S. Supreme Court decision and a series of amendments enacted by Congress made the law virtually useless and unenforceable.

After identifying the law, Phillips (who is co-director of the Center for Law in the Public Interest) initiated a determined effort to transform it into a modern statute that would offer would-be whistle-blowers two crucial inducements—substantial financial rewards and protection against employer retaliation.

Nuclear Commission Stymies Safety

By Jack Anderson and Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — The utility companies that finance nuclear power plants have found a friend in the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. This is the federal office which is supposed to keep an eye on the nation's 100-plus nuclear plants.

An investigation by Rep. Sam Gejdenson, D-Conn., concludes that the NRC has all but stopped its conscientious inspectors from ordering safety improvements at the plants. The reason? The improvements may cost more than the bosses at the NRC think they are worth.

In industry jargon, changing a nuclear power plant to make it safer is called "backfitting," and the NRC's record on backfits has been less than aggressive. In August, a federal court tried to

JEFFREY HART

On Hart's Re-Entry

There are no second acts in American life, said Scott Fitzgerald, but Gary Hart doesn't believe it. And, against all expectation, Hart may well have re-started the Democratic campaign. About it all, a few observations.

Hart's re-entry is even faintly plausible only because no other Democratic candidate has established himself as really plausible. Not one of the current six dwarfs looks like a presidential contender. The front-runners are, probably, Dukakis and Simon, and no one can even imagine one of them as president. Alongside Dukakis and Simon such lackluster candidates as Bush and Dole begin to look like George Washington and Thomas Jefferson.

Politically, the interesting question is whether Hart has put the adultery and public lying question behind him. On the plus side is the fact that he totally exposed himself with his Bimbi caper and Donna Rice. After that, what more do you need to know? But it could well be that, having in effect admitted all, he can turn to other matters. At this point, a question from Sam Donaldson about Hart's sex life might well be ignorable. "There you go again, Sam."

But, against that "de-toxified" argument, Hart must know that all of the garbage cans are going to be emptied into the street. The Donna Rice caper was blown by the Miami Herald, but the last straw, causing Hart to quit the race, was his knowledge that the Washington Post had a story about his nocturnal visits to a woman in Washington. It is only too likely that all of the skeletons are going to come dancing out of the closets and the cellars.

There are at least two views of this sort of behavior. When the Bimbi story first broke, my own conclusion was that Hart is mentally ill, comparable to a kleptomaniac or a pyromaniac. After all, if you are the Democratic front-runner you don't park off with Donna Rice to Bimini on a boat called the "Monkey Business." I concluded that Hart simply had no self-control.

Not so, said a friend wise in the ways of Capitol Hill, who also knows Gary Hart. Politicians of that kind, he said, are so thoroughly scheduled and programmed—if this is Tuesday, I must be in Pittsburgh—that they build up a tremendous desire to let off steam. Hence Bimini and the "Monkey Business." It's a sympathetic argument.

But can you even begin to imagine the information the Republican National Committee is now going to accumulate? If Hart becomes the Democratic nominee, the entire campaign will be X-rated. Coverage will be restricted to the hours after the kiddies have gone to bed. The National Organization for Women will, holding its nose, endorse the Republican. At least he goes home at night. When Hart is asked a question about "comparable worth," it will bring down the house.

Already the jokes are making the rounds, a fatal sign. "I don't know who his First Lady will be. I worry about the Twenty-First Lady." And, "Hart's running. Nixon is going to announce next week."

Unlike the six dwarfs, however, at least Hart is interesting. Like Coleridge's ancient mariner, he is fatally wounded. But Hart versus Dukakis? Hart versus Simon? As Talleyrand once said, when asked to choose between Robespierre and Voltaire, "When I think of one, I prefer the other."

Perilous Policy Changes

WASHINGTON—America's defense and foreign policies are in disarray in the wake of President Reagan's announcement that he no longer believes that the Soviets aim at world domination.

Since the end of World War II, the United States has predicated its foreign policy and security measures on recognition of the aggressive aims of the Soviet Union. The NATO alliance came into being as a result of Soviet attempts to intimidate the Western nations. Twenty-five years ago, the Soviets placed strategic missiles in Cuba to threaten the United States. Since that time, the Soviets have had crash programs in every military field. They have waged proxy wars from Angola to Nicaragua. Subversion and disinformation have been key weapons for the Soviet Regime.

Though nothing factual has changed, President Reagan has changed his mind about the Soviet Union under Gorbachev. The president believes he can deal with the Soviet leader. Those who are mindful of history will recall that Neville Chamberlain, the British Prime Minister in 1938, thought he could deal with Hitler. He thought he had achieved "peace in our time." A year later, the Nazis attacked Poland.

Ironically, less than a month ago, President Reagan renewed his concern about the Nicaraguan situation. He originally became concerned about the Sandinista government because it was a Soviet and Cuban proxy regime. How will Mr. Reagan justify concern about the Nicaraguan threat if he views the Soviet threat as non-existent? Will there soon be appeals from the State Department for normalization of relations with Castro's Cuba? Will Mr. Reagan go along with that? Will Americans shortly discover that Fidel Castro and Daniel Ortega have been invited to the Oval Office? The prospect is profoundly alarming to thoughtful Americans.

All this will depend on Soviet assistance. The Soviets also continue to prop up the Castro regime with hundreds of millions of dollars in foreign aid. The Soviets have been fashioning ties of late among the tiny island nations of the South Pacific. The Soviet war against the people of Afghanistan continues with the same intensity—130,000 Soviet soldiers and airmen waging brutal attacks on women and children. While Gorbachev was being wine and dined at the White House, the reading public learned that the Soviets have achieved a giant intelligence victory.

the NRC from ever considering economic costs in the backfitting process.

The federal court, in fact, allowed the NRC to consider the price tag if the modification does more than make the plant "adequately" safe.

Given the NRC's track record on regulating the nuclear power industry, Zech and his chums on the committee are capable of stretching this loophole into a six-lane expressway. Sources inside the NRC and congressional experts told our associate Stewart Harris that they fear the NRC will merely lower its standard for what constitutes adequate protection of public health and safety. That way, the NRC can use its cost/benefit analysis to reject a safety improvement simply by saying the backfit is not needed to make the plant "adequately" safe.

Gejdenson's report says the new backfit policy at the NRC has now been written around the loophole and "tends itself to abuse and convenient interpretations."

Zech himself hinted at this strategy in testimony before Gejdenson's committee. He said the NRC believes in making the plants safer, "but that the process will be carefully managed to assure that the backfit is either required for safety or that the safety benefits are commensurate with the resources investment."

That is small comfort to the Union of Concerned Scientists, the nuclear safety group that brought the backfit issue to federal court.

That group's attorney, Elyhu Weiss, told the Gejdenson committee a disturbing story. In 1986, defects were suspected in vitally important pumps used in four different nuclear plants to circulate coolant around the reactors. Without coolant, the reactors can turn into nuclear disasters.

Reviews Begin On Cuban Prison Inmates

ATLANTA (UPI) — Federal authorities began reviewing the prison sentences of 2,100 Cuban inmates at six federal detention facilities across the country Monday amid fears of reprisals for hostage sieges in Louisiana and Georgia.

The Federal Bureau of Prisons sent the Cubans copies of a memorandum dated Dec. 31 and signed by John E. Hahn, a bureau official. The memo said the FBI planned to determine the extent of each man's involvement in hostage situations at the federal detention center in Oakdale, La., and at the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary in November and December.

"Prior to final release the case must be reviewed to make certain the detainees did not play a major role in the riots of November and December 1987," said the memo. "I have been advised that all detainees who are scheduled for release must be interviewed by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. This FBI review is routine in situations of this nature and is in conformance with paragraph five of the Terms of Agreement signed Dec. 7, 1987."

Carla Dudeck, coordinator of the Coalition to Support Cuban Detainees, said the memo had raised questions about the government's intent to prosecute Cubans who participated in the hostage incidents in Georgia and Louisiana.

"I guess, just given our experience, it doesn't look good," said Dudeck. "They (the federal government) never said they wouldn't investigate this. But I wouldn't be surprised to find out it turns into something that isn't good."

The sieges ended when the Justice Department agreed to postpone a Nov. 20 U.S.-Cuban agreement to deport about 2,500 Cubans detained in federal facilities, most of whom arrived in the 1980 Mariel boatlift.

The accord called for individual review hearings for each of the inmates. Cubans at the Oakdale facility released 24 hostages Nov. 29. On Dec. 4, Cubans at the Atlanta prison released 84 hostages.

The review process calls for panels of two INS employees each to review detainees' files in Leavenworth, Kan.; Lewisburg, Pa.; Petersburg, Va.; Lompoc, Calif.; Fort Gordon, Ga.; and Terre Haute, Ind.

Following the file review process, the detainees likely will appear for personal interviews with the panels.

The accord ending the siege in Atlanta applied to all Cubans in detention. Paragraph five provided that "No Cuban detainee will be held liable for any damage, to this date sustained by the institution during the hostage situation at this facility. There will be no physical reprisals against the detainees. There will be no prosecution, except for specific acts of actual, assaultive violence against persons or major misconduct. This does not include mere active participation in the disturbance, failing to depart the Atlanta Penitentiary during the disturbance, or acts causing property damage."

"We don't know what a 'major role' is," said Dudeck. "What's 'major misconduct' or 'actual, assaultive violence'?"

Since the end of the uprisings, Dudeck has kept in touch with a number of Cubans who participated in the siege at the two prison facilities.

"One guy (detainee) in Leavenworth wrote about the rumor that FBI agents would be involved and he said, 'I wonder what little trap we will walk in,'" said Dudeck. "There's concern out there."

Police: Victim Set Fire To Van

PENSACOLA (UPI) — A man whose charred remains were found last month inside a burned out van set the fire himself, Escambia County authorities said Monday.

"He made previous threats to take his own life," said Sgt. Lee Wasdin of the Escambia County Sheriff's Department, who said the death has been ruled a suicide.

Authorities found the van near Innerarity Point, southwest of Pensacola, before dawn Dec. 14. The body was found after the flames were doused, authorities said.

Earlier in the evening the victim, who owned the van, had been seen at a service station filling a container with gas. Wasdin said the victim had previously threatened to take his life by burning himself.

Oil Slick Cuts Water To Thousands; Ooze Stretches 50 Miles

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The National Guard passed out water today to thousands of people whose supply was cut by a huge oil slick oozing down the Ohio River, and officials ordered conservation to prevent tens of thousands more from going dry.

The 8-inch-thick oil slick stretched more than 50 miles from a collapsed storage tank on the Monongahela River into the Ohio River, forcing water treatment plants to shut down and cutting water to 13,000 residents in suburban Pittsburgh by Monday night, officials said.

Supplies to 40,000 more suburban residents were endangered today, officials said, and communities in West Virginia and Ohio prepared for water shortages.

Reagan's Health Reported Good

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, who underwent prostate surgery a year ago today, was described by his doctor as in "excellent" health and ready for the busy year ending his presidency.

The president put in a few hours in the Oval Office Monday in "personal time" with aides and no public appointments as he began to unwind from a week-long vacation with longtime friends in California. Otherwise, the White House continued to maintain a holiday quiet with Congress away and the pressure off.

Dr. John Hutten, the White House physician, said Reagan has had "no problems" since he underwent major surgery at Bethesda Medical Center a year ago today for an enlarged prostate.

Israelis Stall Deportations Amid U.S. Urgings Against Act

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir says Israel will use the punishment of deportation only in rare cases against hard core Palestinian activists who incite violence.

The United States repeatedly cautioned Israel against throwing out nine Palestinians accused of inciting violence in December and earlier, saying the action would fuel further unrest.

The day after Israel ordered the expulsions of the activists, Shamir told state-run Israel Radio Monday that the deportations were used only as a last resort.

"The deportations are the maximum penalty currently at our disposal, and we use this punishment sparingly. In the most limited form," Shamir said. "We use it for persons who are incorrigible, who continue to inflame and incite, generate disturbances and also cause bloodshed."

Police Report 5 More Deaths

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Police reported today that a 7-year-old girl and four other blacks were killed in intracommunity violence that has claimed 16 lives this year in ghettos surrounding the city of Pietermaritzburg.

The attacks came one day after whites and blacks clashed at two popular swimming spots in the town of Durban on South Africa's eastern coast off the Indian Ocean.

Group To Plan Fund-Raisers

A professional businessmen's organization that supports education will hold a planning meeting on long-term goals and purposes Thursday.

Pankhurst will meet for dinner and planning at 6:30 p.m. at the Ramada Inn in Altamonte Springs.

At the Thursday meeting, the group will discuss fund-raising events for the two to four scholarships it provides annually for high school seniors or women returning to school.

The meeting also will discuss preparations for its Discovery Day, a annual day of seminars for high school girls on such subjects as dressing for an interview and presenting a resume.

Pankhurst members and women interested in becoming members are asked to make reservations with Betty Stanley or Adrienne Jones, both at 695-7979. A $10 dinner fee will be charged.

High School Girl Wins Computer

A Lake Brantley High School student won a national first place in her category's essay contest during the first annual Computer Learning Month.

Shannon Stankiewicz won first in the essay contest for grades six through nine and will receive an Apple, IBM or Tandy computer of her choice. Another computer will be donated to her Altamonte Springs school.

Over 4,000 students and teachers nationwide took part in the celebration and recognition of computers in education in October.

First- and second-place winners were chosen at the primary, middle and secondary grade levels for five contests: computer-generated student art, non-computer-generated student art, student essays, teacher lesson ideas and group projects.

Computer Learning Month and the contest was sponsored by private industries and the U.S. Senate, which passed a bill designating October 1987 as Computer Learning Month.

Stock Prices Continue Rise

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened sharply higher today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which rose 76.42 Monday, was up 32.86 to 2047.91 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 1,049-87 among the 1,355 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 19,550,000 shares.

The market celebrated a coordinated effort by the central banks Monday to rescue a slumping dollar and sent prices soaring.

"There was a shootout (Monday) between the central banks and the speculators (over the dollar)," said Larry Wachtel, a market analyst with Prudential-Bache Securities Inc. "And the central banks won."

In early New York trading today, the dollar continued its comeback against the major foreign currencies.

Besides the dollar's recovery, "There is a growing awareness that the market crash did not cause a recession," Wachtel said.

City Of Lake Mary Approves Sewer Capacity Agreement

By Brian Hedberg
Herald Staff Writer

Lake Mary City Commissioners cleaned up on three wastewater issues in a brief special-called meeting Monday night, authorizing the city to buy sewer service capacity, approving of a wastewater user charge study and passing a sewer service agreement between the city and Timacuan developers.

Today being "Allocation Day," the city will purchase 3,000 gallons per day of sewer service capacity for the city's 10 acres on Rhinehart Road, costing $24,780 out of bond proceeds. Those owning land within the city's sewer service district can apply and pay applicable sewer capital charges for sewer service capacity today.

The capacity will be a "huge benefit" if Lake Mary's public works and public safety complex is built on the site, said City Manager Bob Norris. Norris based the number of gallons per day he requested on a tentative architectural sketch of the facility and its number of fixtures, he said.

The commission then authorized Camp Dresser & McKee of Maitland to conduct a $12,460 Wastewater User Charge Study after some commissioners questioned whether authorization was a legitimate expense.

"I wish we didn't have to spend $12,000 to do this," Commissioner George Duryea commented.

"That's a pretty expensive opinion for $12,000," Commissioner Randall Morris said, noting that the study on monthly retail sewer fees for the city's sewer service district was but an analysis.

The city manager replied that it was good to have a solid basis for establishing fee rates rather than pulling numbers out of the air. "It's a lot cheaper than attorney fees," Mayor Dick Fess added.

The commission then unanimously passed the request for authorizing the study, which will be funded from impact fees and yield results in some eight weeks.

The Timacuan Sewer Service Agreement also received brief discussion, most of the talk centering on explaining the contract's legal jargonese.

Attorney Thomas Cloud, one of the contract negotiators for the city, told commissioners the contract required Timacuan developers to follow the city's sewer master plan, be a sewer service customer of the city, pay city impact fees, and comply with the city's disposal policy for effluent (treated wastewater).

The contract requires Timacuan to construct facilities for the collection and transmission of raw sewage to a main interception line, which will carry sewage on to the Greenwood Lakes treatment plant. Future plans have the sewage going to a proposed Yankee Lake treatment plant.

Under the contract, Timacuan granted the city an easement to dispose of effluent. Cloud said sprinklers will spray the treated water on the golf course itself and on common green areas but not on individual home sites.

Beyond benefits to Timacuan developers and Lake Mary, the effluent-spraying will keep fresh groundwater in the ground and eventually replenish aquifers as the effluent seeps down. Cloud said.

Commissioner Thomas Mahoney said an effluent-treated golf course in Winter Springs was now boglike and asked if the same thing could happen to Timacuan Golf Course. Dr. Hubert Earley, general managing partner of the developer Timacuan Venture, replied that the sandy Timacuan grounds percolate water rapidly.

Effluent is supposed to be virus-free, Cloud said, although it contains the elements of fertilizer — phosphorous and nitrogen. He said that Californians have sprayed effluent on crops for 20 years and that he hasn't died yet from eating their produce.

be in place by the end of this semester.

The Lake County school board is looking at comprehensive sex education for grades 9-12, but no human growth and development curriculum exists yet because the board has been turning the gears very cautiously, Cornwall said.

Volusia County teaches about sexually transmitted diseases (STDs) and AIDS to grades 7-12, but offers no sex education curriculum for grades K-6, said Bill Hall, assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction for Volusia County schools.

"We're trying to reinforce and supplement what needs to be taught at home," Hall said.

Between now and the 1988-89 school year, a "total family life curriculum" should be in place for grades K-12, Hall said, although he doesn't know what that curriculum would include. This summer, a teacher on assignment is to draft the curriculum, which will go to Volusia school board for review, he said.

Currently in Volusia grades 7-12:

- If abortion is brought up, students are told they should talk with parents or with someone they trust.
- Condoms and other birth control devices, due to their failure rate, are presented as poor alternatives to abstinence.
- "Remarital sex is not 'taught' about but is 'referenced' in that abstinence has the advantages of no STDs, no pregnancies, etc."
- Homosexuality is "referenced" in that homosexuals are a high-risk group for AIDS. It is not referenced as an alternative lifestyle.
- Masturbation is not taught about.
- A Family Life Task Force, composed of teachers, principals, ministers, health department officials, conservative women's group representatives, doctors and parents, presented the Volusia County School Board with recommendations last year on sex education. Some of those recommendations, such as AIDS education, have been incorporated into current curriculum.

"Orange County has no sex education per se," although the county does teach about STDs, said Jim Vickers, program consultant for health education in Orange County schools.

However, "in our upper grades, most of the teachers talk about both abortion and right-to-life," Vickers said. "If you're talking about AIDS, you've got to at least mention homosexuality. If homosexuality does come up, it probably is discussed within the knowledge framework of that child's age level, but they don't go into it in depth."

A year ago, an Orange County district advisory committee suggested that the school board study the issue of schools' role in sex education, said Bill Thomas, assistant to the superintendent for administrative services.

Thomas and Donald Shaw, deputy superintendent for instruction for Orange County, gave the board a report on what current curriculum taught about sex. The board then instructed them to form a broad-based committee that would recommend how that curriculum should be revised after reviewing other sex education programs, Thomas said.

"We're hoping to be able to get something to our board at a meeting in February," Thomas said of recommendations for committee members. "I think that a sex education program may be in place for the 1990-91 school year."

Cornwall said Lake County's sex education task force came out of a 1975 district referendum in which parents thought some sort of sex education should be taught. The 15-member task force of medical experts, concerned parents and former teachers, determines what values will be taught and passes its criteria on to the school board.

The East was recovering from a snowstorm Monday that closed schools, airports and snarled traffic.

Boston's Logan Airport, clogged with nearly 6 inches of wind-whipped snow, was forced to close for 2 1/2 hours beginning at 5:30 a.m., and the storm made driving treacherous across the state.

Amtrak trains traveling from New York City to Boston were delayed about an hour. Between 3 and 7 inches of wet, heavy snow tied up morning rush-hour traffic in New York City.

Up to 3 inches of snow accumulated in parts of the Washington, D.C., area, closing some suburban schools and making roads slippery.

The majority vote of those who attend the meeting will determine whether Seminole County United Way will merge with Orange County's United Way or not.

Both Walke and Strickler expressed confidence that the merger will take place and that those who attend the meeting will support it. Walke said if Orange and Seminole county donors approve the proposed merger at meetings Jan. 28 and 29 the merger will take effect Feb. 15. Osceola may be left out of the merger if its board disapproves of the revised agreement, or if donors disapprove of it, he said.

Failure to take prompt action in the replacement of Barry Weeks, former finance director.

- Failure to evaluate and submit timely evaluation reports on department heads under his supervision.
- Failure to select an individual for personnel director even though the position was approved and funds provided commencing Oct. 1, 1987.
- Lack of professional ethics in requesting at the Dec. 21, 1987 meeting that the city commission "authorize payment for 382 hours of compensatory time when he knew or should have known that the city administrator was not authorized payment for comp time under the Personnel Policies and Procedures Manual when he was appointed. Mr. Waller also knew or should have known that his contract required him to attend night meetings and attend other functions for which he would receive no compensation."

Waller's action in bringing this matter before the commission without listing the subject on the agenda and without substantiating his request (was called "grossly improper" and also cited was his request for his contract with the city to be amended to provide for 12 months pay in the event of termination instead of 30 days as written in his contract.

In his resignation Waller, who had held the job since April, 1986, stated, "After meeting with each Commissioner it has become very apparent that my one without pay without a valid reason. He said Ginter told him if he didn't suspend Manning with no pay, then he would "see about my job. This I consider blackmail."

The three new commissioners — Richard Hultington, Henry Hardy III and Ted Poelking, who were sworn in Monday morning, all said they would have supported this resolution had it come to that, based on Waller's actions at the Dec. 21 meeting.

All five of the commissioners expressed relief that Waller had resigned of his own volition. Hardy said, "I think everybody is better off. I was quite surprised. I wasn't expecting it."

Hultington said, "After the last meeting, I would have found it difficult to work with him, but firing a man is a terrible thing to have to do."

Gunter said it was Waller's prerogative to put in writing about anything we spoke about in conference, but he would not discuss further about any of his statements."

In his letter, Waller pointed to achievements under his administration. "We have achieved much. We have signed a contract with the county to purchase up to 600,000 gallons of sewage treatment capacity. We will begin transporting our sewage to the county this August. As a result of this contract we will quadruple the size of Candyland Park. We completed our much needed police station which is giving our citizens more efficient service. We have paved eight streets, and will pave eight more this year. We have granted a franchise for the collection of all residential garbage. We have granted franchises for the collection of commercial garbage. This has resulted in a healthier and safer city for all our citizens. I am proud of the excellent job I have done for the city of Longwood. All the citizens of Longwood have the right to be proud of their city, for what it is, and what it can be."

Woman Still Hospitalized After Holiday Accident

A 17-year-old woman hit by a car as she was attempting to cross the street in front of the Altamonte Mall on New Year's Day is still listed in serious condition at Orlando Regional Medical Center.

A spokeswoman for the Altamonte Springs Police Department said Swallow, of 812-A Orienta Drive, Altamonte Springs was attempting to cross the eastbound lane of State Road 436 when a car driven by Pascual Cadena, 41, of 456 Highland Street, Altamonte Springs hit her.

Swallow was airlifted to Orlando Regional Medical Center, where she was placed in its intensive care unit, where she remains.

Swallow, an employee of Morrison's Cafeteria, at 420 E. Altamonte Drive, was crossing the street with a companion when the accident occurred. Her companion wasn't injured.

The spokeswoman said charges in the accident are pending the conclusion of a ASPD traffic homicide team investigation.

LORAN Eases Visibility Fears

Most serious boaters have either taken a Safe Boating course offered by the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary or one of the other organizations who offer such training or perhaps are self-taught to the extent that they can keep track of their location by taking bearings of known objects on shore or buoys, depth soundings or merely by keeping track of their speed, time and direction of travel.

There has been a tremendous increase in the sales of LORAN units over the last several years. Prices of the units have decreased dramatically and so the sales have increased proportionately.

Many units have auto-pilot interface capability that you can attach to an auto-pilot that will steer your vessel to any selected waypoint.

Clonts Takes Late Model Racing

ORLANDO — Buford Clonts, a rookie in the Late Model division, became the eighth different winner in that many races on Friday night at Orlando Speed World.

Driving a new Russell Automotive race car, Clonts, who just made his debut in the top class, started on the pole and gamely held off 15-year veteran Lee Faulk for the win, showing a lot of raw talent as a race driver.

Clonts, who is into contact sports, has won the Orlando "Bad Man" competition two years in a row. In addition to his earnings, Buford picked up an extra $100, courtesy of his sponsor, T.J.'s Pub.

The winner's teammate Lee Faulk definitely did not make it easy for the "greenhorn" rookie, as he pulled up wheel to wheel with Buford several times, tried every trick in the book and applied extra heavy pressure in the closing laps. But Faulk had spent a lot of time setting up Clonts' chassis, and the car stuck to the low groove like it was on rails.

In Sportsman action, Sid Stites made it win number seven out of eight starts on the third mile paved oval.

Gary Salvatore won the Florida Modified finale.

In the First Annual "Hangover 50" for the "B" Bombers, defending champion Rick Johns, who seems to be driving a lot better since he clinched the title, worked early leader Pat Carter over for several laps, before putting the Orlando Drum Co. Monte Carlo on the point for good on lap 43.

Glenn Carter won the "A" Bomber main.

In Mini Stock action, Challenger Bobby Sears got leader Gene Van Alstine side-

Rockets Shoot Down Mavs

United Press International The Dallas Mavericks found out what the Atlanta Hawks, Detroit Pistons, and Milwaukee Bucks all learned in the last two weeks: the Houston Rockets are a dead-end for winning streaks. Dallas, the Midwest Division leader, took a five-game winning streak to Houston Monday night and left with a 117-107 defeat. Akern Olajuwon matched his season-high with 31 points, and Purvis Short added 25 in the Rockets' fourth straight victory. "Dallas has been playing extremely well, so this was an important game for us," Short said after the third-place Rockets pulled within 2 1/2 games of the Mavericks. "We need to keep them within striking distance." The loss at Houston was no novelty for Dallas. The Mavericks have dropped seven straight at The Summit. The Rockets ended Atlanta's five-game winning streak Dec. 22, stopped Detroit's 10-game winning streak last Tuesday and stopped Milwaukee's three-game streak last Wednesday. "It got our attention that we weren't playing weak teams," Houston Coach Bill Fitch said. "The heat was intensified because we had to go play good teams. We weren't playing the Hair plays a significant role in human culture. It has since the dawn of time. Hair loss, too, has been an equally historic phenomenon. Losing hair isn't easy. It may even take some mental adjustments. Some choose to cover their heads, others prefer to replace their hair. Those choosing to replace their hair have three options: a hair transplant, which often is expensive, painful and doesn't achieve the desired results; a fashionable wig; or a prosthetic hair unit.

Happily fake-looking wigs are out and technology has advanced so you can look the way you like and enhance your own self-image. Hair Formula I has the expertise to achieve a natural look as if the hair were growing out of your own head. Modern techniques make it possible to replace the hair you do not have and allow you to work, play, swim, sleep and shower with confidence.

Hair Formula I is also dedicated to work with patients receiving medical treatment, such as chemotherapy and radiation therapy, causing hair loss. Call for a free private consultation.

Hair Formula I is a full-service salon for the entire family. They also offer a "house call" service for those who are handicapped, sick or bed confined. Just call 321-6114 and they will send a professional technician to your door to take care of your hair needs. The professionals at Hair Formula I recommend for your benefit that you remove hair care items from your grocery list and use only professional products on your hair. ## Hairpiece Maker From Japan Seeks U.S. Franchises

By Mitsuki Sugimoto
NEW YORK (UPI) — One out of every four American males has something common to worry about — baldness.

And this has sparked a Tokyo-based maker of men's hairpieces to commit itself to the U.S. market at least until a miracle hair growth lotion is put to practical use.

Aderans Co., plans to create a vast franchise network throughout this country beginning this spring.

"Demand for men's hairpieces defies demographic analysis," said Yoshiaki Homma, president of the firm's U.S. unit, Aderans Corp. of America. "Professions, income levels or ages make no difference when it comes to worries about thinning hair."

Homma said an average customer buys an Aderans hairpiece, with an average price tag of $1,000, once a year, but added that some wealthy customers and those who regard the product as a business necessity, such as doctors, lawyers, and even television newscasters, order a new hairpiece each month.

Aderans has been rapidly expanding its operations in Japan since its founding in 1969 and now commands a share of nearly 70 percent of the men's hairpiece market there. Still headed by its founder Nobuo Nemoto, a former employee of a company selling women's wigs, the firm was listed on the Tokyo Stock Exchange in 1987.

The company established a U.S. foothold in California in 1979, and later moved its U.S. headquarters to New York. It now operates three "studios" on its own — one in Beverly Hills, Calif. and two in Manhattan — partly in order to prepare itself for the launch of the franchise network.

Homma said the U.S. men's hairpiece market, which is estimated to be worth between $1.5 billion and $3 billion, has so far been dominated by numerous small distributors with only a few exceptions, such as International Hair Goods Corp., a manufacturer and wholesaler which Aderans bought in June 1987.

Virtually all products for the U.S. market are imported from Asian and other countries where labor costs are much less than in the United States, Homma said.

The maturity of the Japanese market, where the company sees little room to expand, also prompted Aderans to launch its U.S. operations.

According to Homma, some 25 million U.S. adult males are estimated to have some kind of trouble with thinning hair trouble, whereas in Japan, a country with half the U.S. population, the number is a much smaller 7.5 million.

Aderans, which operates its own 110 sales outlets for all custom-made hairpieces in Japan, has opted for a franchise system for the United States in part because of the vast size of the market, Homma said.

The company hopes to begin the franchise operations in March 1988 with a target of eventually enticing between 500 and 1,000 franchisees, each of which is required to pay up to $145,000 as an initial investment plus possible additional opening costs.

He said Aderans' overall U.S. sales, including those at International Hair Goods, totaled some $10 million in 1987, and predicted that the inauguration of the franchise will boost sales at a stroke.

Each franchisee, trained by Aderans staff, will supply customers with both services and products, which will be custom-made primarily at the International Hair Goods plant in Manila, the Philippines, or at Aderans' plants.

One potential problem facing Aderans is the diversity of hair colors and characteristics among individuals in the United States.

"One can satisfy a Japanese customer with a homogeneous hairpiece, colored black, white, their combination, or brown even in an extreme case," Homma said. "But hairs of Americans are classified into a surprising 200 types."

Homma said Aderans finally found that a set of 50 different hair samples could satisfy 95 percent of American customers. But the remaining 5 percent can never be covered, he added.

Times Mirror To Buy Dow Jones Book Unit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Times Mirror Co. said Monday it has agreed to purchase the college textbook publishing unit of Dow Jones & Co. for $135 million.

Based in Homewood, Ill., Irwin publishes college-level economics and business textbooks and other business-related books. The publishing company operates four main imprints, or business units, including Irwin, Business Publications Inc., Dorsey Press and Dow Jones-Irwin.

Times Mirror has made a number of recent acquisitions to bolster its book publishing operations, including the 1986 purchase of CRC Press, of Boca Raton, Fla., and the 1985 acquisition of Wolfe Medical Publishers Ltd. of London.

The company also publishes a number of newspapers including the Los Angeles Times, Newsday, New York Newsday, the Hartford Courant and Baltimore Sun.

Robert Erburu, Times Mirror chairman and chief executive officer, said the acquisition would allow Times Mirror to gain a "flagship" in the college textbook publishing industry.

"Building a significant position in college publishing to supplement our strengths in professional publishing has been an important strategic priority," Erburu said.

Varicose Veins Cause Itching Unless Treated

DEAR DR. GOTT: My varicose veins itch unbearably. My doctor says I shouldn't have them stripped as long as they don't hurt, but I am scratching my legs sore. What causes the itching and what can be done about it?

DEAR READER: Varicose veins usually cause itching because of a skin condition called stasis dermatitis.

In order for a tissue to be healthy, it must have a constant supply of oxygen-rich blood feeding it. In addition, stale blood must drain back to the heart for recirculation through the lungs. In people with varicose veins, the blood flow through large dilated veins is sluggish. Hence, the skin is deprived of fresh blood. This backup produces unhealthy skin that is dry, scaly, rough and itchy.

Skin creams are often useful in relieving symptoms of stasis dermatitis. Try a product with lanolin and aloe. In addition, elevation of the legs will help stale venous blood to flow, by gravity, out of the lower extremities. Finally, elastic stockings provide external support that helps to empty varicose veins and permit more efficient circulation within the skin.

Using these simple medical techniques, most patients with varicose veins can be aided. In some cases, however, the varicose veins may have to be surgically treated - either by stripping or by injection. Once the diseased veins have been removed or sclerosed, venous blood finds alternate paths back to the heart.

If your varicose veins are making life unbearable for you, don't wait until pain develops. This can indicate breakdown of tissue or serious skin infection, two complications of advanced circulatory insufficiency.

DEAR DR. GOTT - I'm 35, and all my back teeth have fillings. I brush twice a day and at night I rinse with an anti-plaque liquid, brush with a tartar control paste and use a fluoride rinse. Is this helping or am I wasting my money?

DEAR READER - The use of fluoride-containing toothpaste or mouthwash is probably sufficient; using both may be redundant. Nonetheless, if your dental enamel is particularly prone to damage and decay, you may need to attend more scrupulously to oral hygiene than does the average person. Ask your dentist to give you specific advice. Dentists are usually more concerned about gums than cavities for your age group, so you'll probably get advice about flossing, instead.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
More than a generation ago Swedish expert Einar Werner found a deceptive defensive play to hoodwink declarer. Attribute the bidding to methods used in Scandinavia in the mid-1950s. You and I might open one no-trump with the South cards, but the actual bidding was as shown, with Werner sitting West.

Against three no-trump, Werner led his partner's suit, a top-of-nothing eight, and continued spades. Declarer played low on tricks one and two, and although East could now have beaten the contract by switching to a heart, he made the safe play of a third spade. Declarer won the ace and played the jack of clubs, overtaking with dummy's queen. He now led the eight of diamonds. When East and South played low, Werner won with the diamond ace. He then played the 10 of hearts. Place yourself in declarer's chair. Who would not assume that East held the queen of diamonds and the king of hearts as well? And what declarer worth his salt would not be able to count three clubs, two major aces and four diamonds for nine tricks after East was marked with the diamond queen? Sure enough, declarer rose with dummy's heart ace to take another diamond finesse. West won the queen and cashed the setting trick with the heart king. Obviously if West took the first diamond trick with the queen, declarer would have no choice but to take the heart finesse and make his contract with three diamonds, three clubs, two heart tricks and the spade ace.
