(Continued from Page One) diploma. This offering is also being made to adults who desire to "brush-up" in certain areas of education.

For the second consecutive year a course in Ceramics will again be offered. This class will begin on Tuesday, Sept. 4, in the Art Room of Seminole High School. Last year, more than 70 persons enrolled in this course and it is hoped that former students as well as new students will register for this fascinating hobby. The course is offered two nights a week, Tuesday and Wednesday nights from 7 to 10 p. m.

The adult education program is sponsored by the Seminole County Board of Public Instruction. Course content and teachers of adult education have to be approved by the State Department of Education. There will be a $1.00 registration fee for all adult classes and each student is required to purchase their own materials. Any further information can be obtained by calling Fred C. Murray, director, Adult and Vocational Education whose phone number is 665.

Families of both the Navy man and Mrs. Swigonski were in Sanford for the funeral services.

U.S. Needs Twice As Many Researchers For Nuclear Age, Scientist Declares

The structure of matter is studied by a solid state physicist in a modern laboratory.

Within the next ten years alone, the United States will need a minimum of 8,000 physicists in the highly specialized and booming fields of chemical and solid state physics alone, declares Dr. Robert G. Breckenridge, director of the new Parma, O., research laboratories of the National Carbon Company, a division of Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation.

Solid state physics, an important area of research at the laboratories, is one of the new frontiers of modern science, Dr. Breckenridge explains, and is concerned with the study of solids by modern physical methods and represents a new order of things in the development of materials for the metal, electronic, power, chemical and electrochemical industries.

"At present, there are about 16,500 physicists in the United States," Dr. Breckenridge says. "Of the total, about 4,000 are specializing in the broad and increasingly important area that includes chemical and solid state physics. During the 1950's, by sharp contrast, it is conservatively estimated that there were only about 100 physicists in this field."

"We shall need 4,000 additional solid state physicists to develop new chemical processes, increase appreciably the efficiency of present processes, and extend new discoveries in electronics. Above all, we shall need them to obtain the basic physical knowledge without which these advances—and the progress of science itself—would be impossible."

"Today, more than ever before, industry recognizes that technological achievement depends on basic research, National Carbon's new laboratories at Parma have been designed to provide the atmosphere and facilities for basic research, and to decrease the time lag between laboratory discovery and practical application."

Try and Stop Me

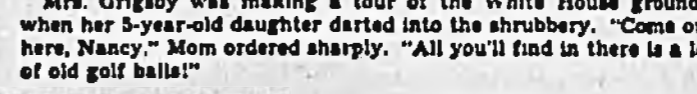

By BENNETT CERF

MARK TWAIN, alias Samuel Langhorne Clemens, once was pinned down on the verandah of the old Mountain View Hotel by a relentless bore whose theme was the decline and fall of everything. He poked a bony finger into Twain's midriff and croaked, "Has it occurred to you that every time I draw a breath, some hapless soul passes into the great beyond?" "It has," sighed Sam. "Why don't you try clothes?"

"You and your big cigs," fussed Mrs. Klupper. "Do you know what there is in a single cheroot? Acetic, formic, butyric, propionic and prussic acids; creosote, phenol, ammonia, and of course, nicotine, viridine, and picoline."

"For goodness sake," marveled Mr. Klupper. "You mean to say I get all that for a dime?"

Mrs. Origaby was making a tour of the White House grounds, when her 5-year-old daughter darted into the shrubbery. "Come out here, Nancy." Mom ordered sharply. "All you'll find in there is a lot of old golf balls!"

WGTO Beauty Is Heading For Daytona Contest

Alice Faye Torman, 18-year-old receptionist and traffic clerk for Radio Station WGTO, is Haines City's official entry in the Miss Southland Beauty Contest at Daytona Beach today.

She left her home at nearby Loughman Saturday, for the "working girls' beauty contest".

Alice is 5 feet 4 inches tall, weighs 113 pounds, and measures 33-22 1/2-22. She is a native of Florida and was born near Loughman, where she lives, in eastern Polk County. She was chosen recently from among five entries in a local selection as Haines City's entry for the Miss Southland competition.

This is the first time she has entered a beauty contest — and her current job with WGTO is also her first. She was graduated from the Haines City High School in June 1955. She was a majorita for three years — and her classmates voted her as the girl with the best figure.

Veteran's Corner

The Korean GI Bill reached its fourth anniversary this week after having given approximately 50,000 Florida Korean veterans an opportunity to train for virtually every type of career and occupation found in this State. Approximately 3,000 Florida veterans are expected to make use of their Korean GI training benefits before the program expires in 1965, according to V. S. Parker, manager of the Pass-a-Grille Regional Office.

On the national scale 1,500,000 veterans have been training under the program and another 1,000,000 are expected to make use of the benefit before the cut-off deadline.

Parker pointed out that the veterans already trained or in training have set their sights high. Paralleling the national trend, about 40 per cent of Florida Korean GI trainees aimed for high-level professional, semi-professional and technological occupations. Yet in the entire nation, only one-tenth of the total male labor force is at work in these fields, Parker explained. More than half of all Korean GI Bill trainees attended colleges and universities. And of these 10 per cent enrolled for graduate studies while the rest trained in schools below the college level, on-the-job and on-the-farm.

In addition to reviewing past achievements of the four-year-old Korean GI Bill, Parker took a forward look and predicted that the training program was nearing its peak and probably will reach a plateau during the 1956-57 school year. This number should remain at about the same level for another year, then decline slowly.

Since 1950 there has been a 41.7 percent drop in the number of college students preparing for physical education careers.

Her principal recreations are swimming and reading detective stories. She occasionally rides horseback at the ranch of a friend near Lake Wales.

Credit Services Expanded

Recent changes in the laws governing the Farmers Home Administration will enable the agency to serve the credit needs of a larger number of farm families. William T. Shaddick, State Director, said today.

The new law provides broader authority to assist family-type farmers with loans to improve and operate their farms. It also authorizes, as a part of the rural development program, loans for operating and developing farms where the farmer has part-time employment off the farm. Included in the broader authority are loans for refinancing existing debts, and an increase in the maximum amount that can be advanced for operating loans.

All of the present loan services of the Farmers Home Administration which include loans for the operation, development and purchase of family-type farms, farm housing, soil and water conservation, and loans to meet emergency credit needs will continue to be available.

Shaddick said the new policies were explained by Washington officials of the agency at a meeting held in Atlanta, Ga., recently.

County employes of the agency will be brought up to date at meetings to be held Sept. 11-12, Marianna; Sept. 13-14, Gainesville; Sept. 17-18, Bartow. By Sept. 18 all county offices will be ready to process applications under the new regulations.

The loans to refinance existing debts will be available until June 30, 1959 to owners of farm no larger than family-size. These loans will help farmers who have adequate real estate security and who are otherwise in a sound position but who are unable to meet their present credit obligations and need credit on more favorable terms and conditions than is currently available from other lenders.

When debts are refinanced by the Farmers Home Administration the payments will be scheduled according to the ability of the borrower to repay. In the past, the agency has only refinanced existing when the refinancing was incidental to the making of a real estate loan for purchase or improvement of family-type farms. Nation-wide the agency will be able to advance on an insured basis up to $50,000,000 a year for this purpose.

Insured loans are made by the Farmers Home Administration from funds provided by private lenders. The loans will bear 3 1/2 percent interest plus a 1 percent insurance charge.

Initial operating loans under the new law may be in amounts up to $10,000 to one borrower with a limit of $20,000 on the amount any one borrower can owe for this type of credit. In the past the limit on the initial loan was $7,000 with a $10,000 limit on the total amount of debt that could be incurred. No more than 10 percent of the annual appropriation for operating loans can be used to make loans which cause a borrower's indebtedness to exceed $10,000.

The operating loans are used for the purchase of equipment, livestock, fertilizer, seed and other farm and home operating expenses needed to carry out efficient operations on family-type farms. These loans are repayable over periods up to seven years. The interest rate remains at five percent. For the fiscal year 1957, $165,000,000, plus a contingency fund of $15,000,000 to be used if necessary, has been appropriated for operating loans.

The increase in the maximum limits of these loans will enable the agency to serve farmers and ranchers in areas where heavy investments in machinery, livestock and farm operating expenses are necessary.

Under the former law no new credit could be extended to borrowers who have been continuously indebted for seven years. The new law increases from seven to ten years the period during which additional credit can be extended in hardship cases when the inability of the borrower to repay his indebtedness within seven years is due to causes beyond his control.

Loans will also be available for operating and developing less than family-type farms, if the applicants are established, bona fide farmers who have historically resided on farms and depended on farm income for their livelihood, and who are conducting substantial farming operations and spending a major portion of their time farming. Such operators must have dependable sources of outside income. The primary objective of these loans is to help farmers who live in areas designated for the Rural Development Program, who are unable to obtain enough land resources to develop full-time farms.

The interest rates and terms on these loans for operating and developing less than family-type farms will vary depending upon the purpose for which the loan is obtained. Loans for operating expenses will be repayable over periods up to seven years at five percent interest. Loans for real estate development will bear charge of 4 1/2 percent and will be repayable over periods up to 40 years.

These loans will only be made when the applicant's income from his farm and other sources appears adequate to enable him to meet living and operating expenses and to repay his debts.

The new act also extends until June 30, 1959, the authority for special emergency loans, and increases from $15,000,000 to $65,000,000 the total amount that can be advanced for these loans. Special emergency loans are made in areas designated by the Secretary of Agriculture to enable farmers to maintain their operations when they are unable for a temporary period to obtain needed credit from other sources.

All of the new loans, like the loans already available from the Farmers Home Administration, will be made only to applicants who are unable to obtain adequate

Committee Seeks To Form Quality Control Program

LAKELAND—R. V. Phillips of Haines City, says it's a tough job to figure out a quality control program for fresh Florida citrus because too much rain or not enough can affect the fruit.

A committee of Florida Citrus Commission and Florida Citrus mutual members is tackling the problem to determine how oranges can put on better eye appeal for the housewife.

Among other things the committee set out to study at its initial session Tuesday were outside coloring of oranges, grades and sizes. All these should be uniform, stressed members of the committee.

Herschell Sorrells of Arcadia, chairman of the Florida Citrus Commission, said Florida should seek to hold a constant level on fresh fruit shipments.

He cited figures to show that in the 1955-56 season only 24.5 per cent of the orange crop was sold in fresh form; but in the 1951-52 season it was 36 per cent. California, he related, is maintaining a fairly constant level on the portion of its orange crop going into fresh fruit markets.

Dog Owners Are Enrolling Pooches In 'Canine Shield'

By RENE J. CAPPON
KANSAS CITY (U)—Dog owners by the hundreds are enrolling their pooches in "Canine Shield," a hot new item in the insurance business and the first medical care plan on a national scope devoted exclusively to nonhumans.

The project was launched only five months ago by two veteran Kansas City insurance men, Richard R. Nelson and Gordon R. Reabe.

Today, the founding fathers reported, "Canine Shield" boasts some 3,000 agents and "several hundred active policies." In Reabe's words, "the influx is just beginning. The response has been fantastic, and not only in this country. We've had inquiries from as far away as New Zealand."

There being no actuarial tables on hounds, Reabe and Nelson— who owns a boxer and a poodle— had to start somewhat in the dark. But the policies as originally formulated are working well, they said.

These provide medical care and hospital insurance for dogs between six months and 10 years of age, providing payments of up to $75 per hospitalization for an annual premium of about $15.

The interest churned up by their unique venture keeps Nelson and Reabe hopping. Mail pours in. An Ohio landscaping company wondered if Canine Shield would insure them against marauding dogs. Answer—no. Among applications for agencies came the 10-page letter of a Wilmington, Del., man who thought that, as a veterinarian, he would be peculiarly qualified to deal with pet lovers.

Naturally enough, Messrs. Reabe and Nelson are learning much about the maladies of dogdom. "They seem to be susceptible to much of the same disorders as their bosses," Reabe said. "We've paid off on canine strep throats and tonsillitis and, recently, leukemia."

"We've had one dog recently with eye cataracts, and the vet is working on contact lenses for him to remove a vision impairment."

Smaller breeds pose tougher health problems and accidents, covered in the policies, are a large factor.

Canine Shield's first case involved a supposedly sheltered hound kept in a fenced-in yard. The pooch was attacked by a swarm of bees, and the treatment cost $35.

Comparatively rare, fortunately for canine self-respect, was the case of a deceptively wicked-looking bulldog named Frisky, Reabe reported. The bulldog was hospitalized with "innumerable scratches and infections" suffered at the claws of a victorious tomcat.

Extending the medical insurance program to felines, by the way, is already being planned.

"Ever since we started the dog insurance," Reabe said, "the cat lovers have up in psalm. They've been up in arms."
