Hormones often cause weight gain

DEAR DR. GOTT: After going through menopause during my late 60s without any hormone therapy because the risk was thought to be too great, I changed doctors and at age 70 was given Premarin and Provera. Within a short period of time my weight shot up from a constant 122 pounds to 135. Even though my eating habits have not changed, and try as I may using the same previous methods, I cannot shed a pound. Rather, I seem to be gaining a pound every few days.

Am I fooling myself by believing that nothing's changed or could the hormones be responsible?
DEAR READER: Premarin and Provera often cause the body to retain excess fluid, leading to unwanted weight gain. You're not fooling yourself; your weight gain may merely be "water-weight" that is the result of the hormones.

I think that you should seriously consider discontinuing this therapy. Recent medical studies have indicated an unacceptable risk of breast cancer in women taking hormones. This risk increases with age.

On the other hand, post-menopausal hormone therapy does seem to retard osteoporosis and protect against heart disease.

Therefore, you and your gynecologist must carefully weigh the risks and benefits of these medicines. If, for example, you have osteoporosis or heart disease (or if close relatives suffered these afflictions at young ages), you may well wish to continue therapy. The benefits would outweigh the risks.

In contrast, if you and your family are healthy and have lived long lives, you may not choose to risk developing breast cancer. Discuss this difficult decision with your doctor. Either way, you should have periodic examinations and mammograms to detect breast cancer.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is surgical repair the best solution for hiatal hernia? What other options are there?

DEAR READER: Hiatal hernia, a weakness where the esophagus joins the stomach, can lead to gas, indigestion and heartburn.

Ordinarily, surgery to repair this weakness is a last resort that is considered only when non-surgical therapy -- such as antacids or drugs (Zantac, Prilosec and others) -- has been ineffective. In my practice, surgery is rarely necessary. Using appropriate medicine, avoiding foods that aggravate symptoms, eating smaller (and more frequent) meals, and elevating the head of the bed on 4-inch blocks are techniques that almost always relieve symptoms.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
We all know Neil Armstrong's statement as he became the first man to stand on the moon: "That's one small step for a man, one giant leap for mankind." When compared in the publicity stakes, bridge hardly equates to walking on the moon. However, occasionally taking one small extra step can save declarer from falling into a crater.

West's four-heart overall made it impossible for North and South to conduct a scientific auction. South just hoped dummy would produce the queen or a doubleton in diamonds.

West led the heart king, East overtaking with the ace and returning the 10. South ruffed, drew trumps, cashed the diamond ace, entered dummy with a trump and played a diamond to his jack. However, West won with the queen: one down.

South shrugged his shoulders. "We were a bit unlucky there, partner."
North had peeked at West's cards, but he didn't say anything. Once the auction was over, though, he pointed out that South could have improved his line. After ruffing the heart return at trick two, South cashes the spade king and club ace. Then he plays a trump to the dummy and ruffs the club six in hand. If nothing good happens, South reverts to taking the diamond finesse. But here the club king tumbles down from the West hand. South enters dummy with a trump and discards his two diamond losers on dummy's queen-jack of clubs.

Which would give you the bigger high: walking on the moon or making this contract?

Untimely death leaves void in lives of many

By VICKI DeBORNER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Terry Michael Hart worked hard every day for 18 years as the meat market manager at Winn Dixie on French Avenue in Sanford.

There were no celebrations to mark his dedication to his job and to the community. There were no fireworks, no dinners, no ovals.

But when Hart, 36, was killed in an automobile accident on East State Road 46 near Cocoa, there was a void in the lives of those who knew him.

"Everyone knew him," said store manager David Childs. "Everyone loved him. He was an outstanding individual."

Hart lived in DeBary with his wife Jamie, his daughter Pamela Marie and his son Terry Jr., but his heart, those who knew him said, was in Sanford.

He was raised in Sanford and graduated from Seminole High School.

He was an avid supporter of Seminole High athletics and a big sports fan in general, Childs said.

Hart played in various Seminole County and City of Sanford recreation softball leagues. He was also a member of the American Water Ski Association.

Winn Dixie district manager Vergil Screws said Hart was a "great leader and role model for the young employees in the store." He noted that Hart had started young and worked hard.

"The young high school kids we have working here could really look up to him," Screws said.

He said that Hart "knew everybody" in the community because he took the time to speak with people.

"He took advantage of the opportunity to meet people and talk to them," Screws said. "When you work in a grocery store for all those years in a community like this you meet just about everyone."

Childs said the store staff was "devastated" by the death of their co-worker and friend.

"This is a terrible loss to us and to his family," he noted.

Talks begin

Second study finished: Will courthouse stay or move?

By MICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A second report commissioned by the county to study the best location for courthouse facilities is ready for review.

Today talks begin with Seminole County commissioners and the design group that completed the study to either keep county court facilities in downtown Sanford or move them to Five Points.

Keith Reeves, president of Architectural Design Group is to make the presentation of the findings. Reeves said he is scheduled to meet with Commissioner Win Adams at 1:30 this afternoon, and Commissioner Pat Warren at 2:30.

On Oct. 31, Reeves will meet with commission Chairman Randy Morris, followed by a meeting with Commissioner Daryl McLain on Nov. 1, and Dick VanDerWeide on Nov. 2.

"Until the discussions begin," Reeves said, "I can't reveal which position we have taken in our findings, but after the talks begin, the information should be made a matter of public record."

Reeves said it is his understanding that public hearings will eventually be held on his findings.

Earlier, Architect Bruce Andersen had been contracted by the county and City of Sanford to undertake a financial study of the move. It was dated August, 1995. In it, Andersen reported that the Five Points area has the potential to continue the growth it has seen in the past years, regardless of whether the court facilities are moved, while the downtown Sanford area would probably suffer if the operations were moved out.

Regarding the financial aspects of a move, Andersen's report said, "By  See Courts, Page 5A

You can now buy liquor in Sanford on Sunday

By MICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sanford merchants with proper alcoholic beverage licenses may now sell their products on Sunday.

The decision has been approved by the City Commission, and became effective as of second reading and adoption of Ordinance 3271 on Oct. 9.

Several store managers and owners, aware of this change, have already tested the waters and offered sales beginning this past Sunday.

Shift manager Joe Schiek at ABC Liquors, 2885 S. Highway 17-92, said the store began opening on Sundays last weekend. "I wasn't on duty at that time," he said, "but I know that sales were only at their standard level."

Walgreens Liquor Store, at 2501 S. French, also opened for the first Sunday on this past weekend. "Business was slow," said store manager Sheila Robinson, "but we hadn't put up any signs or advertised, so people didn't know we would be open."

She added that she expected a larger number of customers this week, "once people know that we can do this."

The actual wording of the ordinance appears to be somewhat restrictive, then rather confusing. "No alcoholic beverage may be sold, consumed or served or permitted to be served or consumed in any place holding a beverage license under the laws of the state between the hours of 2 a.m. and 7 a.m. immediately following on Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday or Saturday, or between the hours of 7 a.m. and 10 a.m. on Sunday."

City Clerk Jan Dougherty explained that for Sundays, stores cannot open until 10 a.m. For the rest of the week, they may open at 7 a.m.

After opening at 10 a.m. on Sunday, stores may continue to operate until 2 a.m. Monday morning, but if they wish, may reopen as

City decides on fences

SANFORD — The Sanford City Commission has decided not to make proposed amendments to its Land Development Regulations pertaining to chain link fences. The changes have been discussed on several occasions by both the city's Planning and Zoning Commission, Board of Adjustment and during work sessions by the city commission. The first reading was to have detailed an ordinance which would limit chain link fences in residential areas based on the number of fences already installed in blocks and/or neighborhoods. Decisions were split however. Most recently, P&Z voted five to four, to keep the existing provisions in place, and scrap the suggested changes. As the matter stands now, with the 1991 version of the ordinance, waivers and exemptions to allow chain link fences in front yards may be sought for single family residences through the P&Z site plan review. Barbed wire fences will remain prohibited in seven different zoning categories. Both type of fences will be prohibited in required buffer areas, and barbed wire and/or chain link fences are still prohibited in non-residential areas but the P&Z may consider waivers based on security considerations. The matter was discussed extensively during the city commission's workshop meeting Monday afternoon. When the ordinance came up for first reading during the regular meeting, the commission elected to do nothing, which allows the original ordinance to stand as it has for the past four years.

Geneva event

The Geneva Historical Society will hold its annual Fall Festival this Saturday from 4 until 8 p.m. at the Community Center. Events will include games, food, music, and an old-fashioned cake walk. Proceeds will go to the Historical Society for upkeep of the Community Center and Fort Lane Park.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Checks are in the mail...soon

By JACKIE HALLIFAR
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Half a million people who paid nearly $300 to register out-of-state cars in Florida should be getting their money back by early December. The Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles announced Wednesday it would mail the first batch of refund checks in late November. "We're glad that today is here," said Janet Dennis, an agency spokeswoman. At one point since the $295 impact fee was found unconstitutional last fall, the agency was getting 2,000 to 3,000 calls a day from people asking about the status of refunds, Dennis said. The volume of calls has dropped; just 750 people called Monday. Dennis said the agency has done what it could to expedite the refunds. "We have bent over backwards trying to move this thing along," she said.

Lawmakers voted in 1990 to require a $295 fee of people who registered out-of-state cars in Florida. The justification was that newcomers ought to bear more of the cost of the wear-and-tear they bring to the state's roads. But the Florida Supreme Court struck the down the impact fee, ruling it was unconstitutional to levy it just on newcomers. In late November, the first refund mailing will go to approximately 510,000 of the 650,000 people who paid the fee between July 1991 and September 1994. Refund applications received last month are still being processed, according to the highway department, which said checks would be mailed monthly until all authorized refunds are issued. People had until Oct. 2 to apply for refunds. The highway agency estimates from 30,000 to 40,000 people owed refunds didn't apply for them. The checks will go out in first-class mail. But before they're cut, the list of people owed refunds will be compared to lists of people who owe the state back taxes or are behind on child support. Those debts will be subtracted. If someone paid less than $295, they'll get back whatever they paid. This occurred in cases where sales tax paid at the time of purchase was subtracted from the fee. One thing no refund will be reduced for legal fees. Earlier this month, the commission slashed from $18.9 million to $6.5 million the legal fee a lower court awarded the law firms who challenged the impact fee. The high court also ruled that unclaimed refunds revert to the state. Dennis said the state would probably get to keep $6 million to $7 million. State lawmakers this spring set aside $188.8 million to make the refunds.

In 1923, the VFW was the first veterans organization to promote a nationally organized campaign for the annual distribution of poppies assembled by disabled or hospitalized vets. Nationally, the VFW and Ladies Auxiliary raise more than $15 million annually from the sale.

Tampa brewery closing

TAMPA — Aiming to increase its profitability, Anheuser-Busch Companies Inc. announced Wednesday it will close its Tampa brewery by year's end, eliminating 375 jobs. "That certainly is not good news for our community because they've been a major employer and major industry in this area," said Tampa commissioner Joe Chillura Jr. "That's a significant impact." "They will be missed here," said Joe House, chairman of the Greater Tampa Chamber of Commerce. But he added, "We are bringing in a number of new prospects. ... We feel confident that there will be other companies coming in to fill that gap." Closing of the brewery, which opened in 1959, "is a disappointment for Tampa and for Florida," said Florida Secretary of Commerce Charles Dusseau. "However, we are confident that Anheuser-Busch will continue to be an active and valued corporate citizen in the Sunshine State." The company also operates Busch Gardens in Tampa, Sea World in Orlando, two can manufacturing plants, a turf farm and a brewery in Jacksonville. Anheuser-Busch currently employs more than 8,000 in Florida. About 375 people are employed at the Tampa site. The company said it will provide a full severance package, including a cash payment, extended full health benefits, assistance in job retraining and help in finding new jobs. "If the 1991 excise tax had not been enacted, I wouldn't be here talking to you today about our plant closing," said plant manager Renaud Abel, who has been at the plant for 15 years. "It's not that we were inefficient. It's a matter of the size and brewing capacity in both the industry and the company."

Heavy rains cause heavy crop losses

By IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

ORLANDO — Florida's heavy rains caused heavy crop losses and will impact the state's production of winter vegetables, officials say. Rainfall and flooding killed 11,700 cattle and damaged the sugar crop. Crop losses were estimated at $150 million so far. The financial loss for cattle ranchers has not been calculated. "Our winter vegetable market is definitely hurt," said Tim Manning of the federal government's Farm Service Agency, in Gainesville. Citrus was largely spared, so far as is known, except for Charlotte and Lee counties, which were reported as "major problem areas." "Any (tree) damage is likely to show up later in the year. But so far, there is no quantifiable damage outside those two counties," said Dan Santangelo, executive director of the Florida Department of Citrus. Cattlemen disputed the cattle-loss calculations made by the Florida Department of Agriculture from on-site reports by inspectors in Glades and Okeechobee counties. But cattle ranchers conceded that livestock losses were significant. Tens of thousands of other beef cattle also were reported to be highly stressed by flooded pastureland and dwindling feed supplies. Flooding in South Florida sugarcane fields is costing growers millions and causing temporary layoffs of farm workers, said Robert H. Buker Jr., senior vice president of U.S. Sugar Corp. The sugar cane harvest, scheduled to begin this week, has been delayed for about 10 days, he said. Thousands of acres of newly planted sugar cane have been destroyed or severely damaged, but he said the full extent of losses would not be known until later in the harvest. Many South Florida vegetable farmers were unable to plant because of the heavy rains and flooded fields. Others got their crops in the ground but were wiped out by succeeding storms. Collier County reported losses of more than $37 million in crops, primarily tomatoes and peppers. Palm Beach suffered some $25 million in crop damages, including tomatoes, peppers, nursery plants and sugar cane. Dade, Broward, Lee and several other South Florida counties were not reporting losses at this time, mainly because standing water made it difficult to get into the fields, Manning said. "According to these (local) reports, some of these areas are still underwater. This is definitely abnormal," he said. Hendry, Glades and Okeechobee counties had crop losses totaling about $27 million. It is calving season in Glades, Okeechobee and Hendry counties, which have a total of 300,000 head of beef cattle, and many of the dead animals were newborns who drowned, said Bob Blankenbush of the state agriculture department. President Billy Kempfer of the Florida Cattlemen's Association said he was surprised by the report. "I'm not going to tell you that it didn't happen, but it sounds unlikely. ... to have that high a number," said Kempfer. Todd Clemens of the Okeechobee Livestock Market, which conducts cattle auctions, said he was shocked by the numbers. But he, Kempfer and other cattle ranchers agreed that the rains had taken a heavy toll. "There has been a significant weight loss for livestock," which will mean profit declines in the coming months, Kempfer said. Central Florida reported no significant crop losses. In the Panhandle, Hurricane Opal caused at least $45 million worth of crop damage, primarily cotton and peanuts, the state agriculture department said.

Help is on the way College welcomes family service agencies

By VICKI BOGGS
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Knowing where to go for help for one's self or family while getting back on one's feet after a financial mishap can sometimes be a more daunting task than might be expected.

There is help available for those who need it from both private and public agencies. Assistance may come in the form of financial help, counseling or even in a steady hand to guide families through difficult times.

Those in need could spend days, weeks or even months trying to make their way through the maze of social service agencies, but thanks to Seminole Community College's VISTA volunteers, they won't have to.

On Friday, Oct. 27, more than 60 social service agency representatives will be gathered in SCC's gymnasium/health building for the sixth annual Family

Service Agencies showcase.

"We're very excited about the opportunity to provide a showcase for the community service agencies," said Harriett Little, coordinator for the Adult Basic Education/GED program at the college.

According to Little the number of agencies is growing daily so that those in need will be able to find what services they will require in a one-stop-shopping atmosphere.

The purpose of the showcase, she said, is to allow the agencies to educate the public about their services and to network with other agencies and to share information about new programs and changes in their agency.

Often, she said, the services provided by the various agencies can complement one another. The showcase allows the coordination of efforts to help those in need and to provide more efficient services.

The groups which will be showcased at SCC provide training and counseling, as well as medical and financial services in the community.

Among those agencies scheduled to take part in this year's event are Big Brothers and Big Sisters, Habitat for Humanity, the Salvation Army and Healthy Start. The list of agencies is growing daily, organizers emphasize, so there will be something there for everyone.

The showcase will take place from 9 a.m. until noon on Friday. SCC is located at 100 Weldon Blvd., Sanford.

Final report?

Tick, tick, tick, the hands of the clock keep going around and time passes. This afternoon, the clock's hands hopefully will begin to gather at the appointed time of decision.

Beginning this afternoon, architects are to start meeting, individually, with members of the Seminole County Commission. They will be unveiling what has been considered (hopefully) the final word on whether or not the Seminole County Courthouse should remain in Sanford or be moved to the county complex at Five Points in the extreme southern part of the city.

If everything goes as planned, Commissioners Win Adams and Pat Warren will have met individually with the architects who have compiled the document. Commission Chairman Randy Morris is to meet with the architects on Tuesday, Wednesday it will be Commissioner Daryl McLain and Thursday with Dick Van Der Weide.

At press time for today's edition of the Sanford Herald, the findings of the report were not made public. Will the report indicate the courthouse should be moved or should it stay where it is, with expected major expansions?

Architect Bruce Andersen had previously given the County Commission his report on the economic feasibility of the move versus remaining at the current facility. Anderson was contracted jointly by the county and City of Sanford to make his study. Andersen's study said the only logical decision, from the financial point of view, would be to keep the courthouse downtown.

The architects of this latest report have chosen to meet with county commissioners on an individual basis to respond directly to questions they may have regarding their findings.

At some later date, it is expected that the study will be brought up during a regular commission meeting which can be attended by members of the public.

We hope by that time, regardless of the report's findings, that the commissioners will base their ultimate decisions on what is best for the people. Not just those working in county facilities, but the people of the downtown Sanford area who will certainly suffer great losses if the courthouse is moved.

Many outstanding projects are on hold waiting for a decision. If the commissioners decide to move part of the courthouse operation to Five Points, there is an indication that a massive parking garage will not be built just south of the Sanford City Hall. The expansion of the SunBank on W. First Street will possibly be dropped.

Even though a planned development request has been approved by the Sanford City Commission for a multi-million dollar improvement project on the Monroe Harbour Marina, at the Marina Hotel site, it may also be scrapped if the court facility is moved.

There are many negatives to moving the facility. Certainly, it will cost money to expand the present structures if they stay, and it may cause some financial concerns, but not as much as we (and Bruce Andersen) believe it would be if the facility is moved.

Now that the paperwork is coming out in the open this afternoon, we hope the county commissioners will look at the needs of all the people, in making their decision.

If the report indicates the facility should remain in the downtown area, we also hope the commissioners will let the matter end, and not urge that additional studies be made, which will delay progress even further. We've had enough of that. Let's get on to the business of serving the people.

Welfare reform

Recently you had an editorial in your paper about the different views some men in Congress have about giving more money to a woman on AFDC when she has another child. I do not believe more money should be given in such a case. Why? Because people who work for a living do not receive more money just because they have another child. They have to make do with what they have. Also, it's my understanding that there is not a husband in AFDC homes so why should there be another child at all?

Harsh penalties for petty crimes

Back in 43 B.C., the Roman philosopher Cicero set down a legal principle that endures to this day: "Let the punishment fit the crime."

I was reminded of this dictum when I dropped by my neighborhood liquor store recently to buy a couple of cigars. My pal Vic, who owns the place, wasn't his usual upbeat self.

He was fuming about a new California law that empowers the government to permanently shut down his business, and deprive him of his livelihood, if he sells alcohol to minors on three occasions within three years.

The law is intended to curb underage drinking by cracking down on unscrupulous merchants who knowingly sell alcohol to kids. But even honest, law-abiding liquor-store owners, like Vic, can be duped from time to time by enterprising youths (using fake identification) seeking pleasures of the vine.

If this were not bad enough, the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Department routinely deploys undercover, underage youths to try to induce liquor-store owners to illegally sell to minors. To Vic's mind, this borders on entrapment.

If a merchant unknowingly sells alcohol to kids, the government is right to assess a fine. If a proprietor knowingly sells alcohol to kids, then they deserve to lose their liquor license, even if it's their first strike.

But the government, represented by the state ABC in this case, makes no distinction between the conscientious merchant and the unconscientious. Thus, an unfair punishment is sure to result.

The travails of liquor-store owners in California may appear inconsequential in a discussion of crime and punishment in America. But most ordinary folk don't form their opinions of justice in this country by appearing before a judge or jury (or watching sensational trials on TV).

Rather, their perceptions are based on personal encounters with the system. And like my pal Vic, Sometimes punishments not only are excessive, but entirely unjust.

most law-abiding folks in this country who come up against the system otherwise known as the Big, Bad Government get treated with no more consideration than a person accused of murder.

Here are a few more examples from the recent news:

In the seaside resort town of Santa Cruz, Calif., police strong-armed a Good Samaritan - clad in a clown costume, no less - who committed the heinous crime of putting coins in parking meters that were about to expire. Cory McDonald, a.k.a. "Mr. Twister," was cited for "unauthorized deposit of coins."

Santa Cruz is like a lot of other municipalities around the country that fatten up their coffers by aggressively ticketing law-abiding car owners who fail to feed enough coins into parking meters. In most cases, fines are grossly out of line with the harmless offense.

For instance, in downtown San Diego a patron who comes back to their car a minute or two after the meter is expired is likely to find a $30 ticket on their windshield. That's a 1,200 percent penalty for failure to put a quarter in a parking meter. You expect that kind of draconian punishment in Singapore, but not in America.

Bureaucrat looks kinda friendly

BOSTON — I have to admit that the tobacco industry is pretty nimble considering its size. Every time you think the gargantuan's been knocked out, up it comes, like an aging boxer with just enough moves to the stay in the ring for another round.

In their latest save-our-butt campaign, the industry first created a villain so big, so bad, that they hoped he would make them look good by comparison. The evil eminence in the latest RJR ad campaign was none other than — EEEK! — A Big, Bad, Bloated Bureaucrat.

Appearing in newspapers across the country this month was the photo of a smiling, fat, smug, old white guy, the Unknown Bureaucrat, over a line that asked: "Who Should Be Responsible For Your Children?"

"In our society," the ad warned, "the government should not replace parents and teachers when it comes to educating our children about smoking, drinking and other important lifestyle decisions."

Now comes another ad in which RJR offers their corporate services — with a straight face this time — as a partner to parents helping kids resist the "powerful pressure from their peers" which leads them to that smoking "lifestyle." Oozing sincerity, RJR implores us to "Listen. Empathize. Be involved. And always bear in mind that growing up is hard to do." We should also give kids tips on saying no. For example, Kids "can use humor, an excellent way to defuse a tense situation."

Is it possible the tobacco moguls are going for the yucks themselves?

When he first appeared at my table, RJR's Bureaucrat looked an awful lot like a wholly owned political subsidiary of the tobacco lobby. He bore about as much resemblance to the FDA's David Kessler — the industry's real nemesis — as I do.

But we are witnessing yet another move to slow down the first serious government attempt at curtailing teen-age smoking. When the campaign was announced in August for regulations to curb cigarette ads and outlaw both vending machine sales and self-service displays, the tobacco companies filed various lawsuits and claimed that they don't target minors.

Now, adding insult to nicotine injury, the parents of Joe Camel are insisting in ads that "We all agree we must do something to keep cigarettes out of the hands of children under the age of eighteen."

Well, trusting RJR to educate the kids about smoking is like trusting Calvin Klein to teach them about sex. (If you think Klein's white pants were kiddie porn, you ought to see RJR's black lungs.)

The tobacco industry first pledged not to market to kids 30 years ago. If we had collected the fines of up to $100,000 they pledged to levy on themselves for every violation of their own code, we could probably buy our own legislators.

Here is a hint about their education format. From a memo obtained by The Washington Post, we now know that an RJR executive proposed marketing to underage kids as long ago as the mid-1970s. Claude E. Teague Jr.'s memo is sprinkled with references to the peer group known as "pre-smokers" and "learners." Remember the training bra? Teague describes a training cigarette.

RJR was told how to create "youth brands" with a specific nicotine content and specific taste that would overcome the kids' initial resistance to "the flavor of tobacco smoke (which) is initially foreign and not pleasant."

The cigarette folks are nothing if not sympathetic toward adolescents. They share the pain. As the executive wrote, "The fragile, developing self-image of the young person needs all of the support and enhancement it can get." All the support it can inhale anyway.

I have built up some resistance to hypocrisy over the years. But the offer to help kids resist peer pressure is too much for even my immune system. Peer pressure doesn't come out of the ozone. These guys created it in their marketing lab. As the memo said, any marketing geared to the young, "should emphasize togetherness, belonging and group acceptance...."

And never mind the health thing because "psychologically, at eighteen, one is immortal."

It wasn't just RJR that practiced what Teague preached. You can match Philip Morris up against Reynolds, run the Marlboro Man against Joe Camel. The glamorous anorexic ads, the T-shirts, the baseball caps, the racetrack promotions have been geared toward "pre-smokers" for decades.

How many times do we have to discover what we already know about the tobacco pushers?

Allow me to redirect the question in the ad: "WHO IS MORE RESPONSIBLE TOWARD OUR CHILDREN, A BUREAUCRAT OR RJR?" You know, in just the right light, the Bureaucrat from central villain casting looks kinda friendly.

In their latest save-our-butt campaign, the industry first created a villain so big, so bad.

JOSEPH SPEAR

The funk went 'round the world

You've probably heard by now that you were in a funk for a few weeks last November. President Bill Clinton informed us of this last month, and we should assume he is right even if we didn't realize it, because he is privy to a lot of information, such as daily intelligence briefings, that we are not aware of.

Actually, what he said, just to keep the record straight, was that he was struggling to "get people out of their funk." Then somebody told him that "funk" was precariously close to the "malaise" that Jimmy Carter said we were in, and Clinton edited his remarks so as to make it clear he was talking about "last year, last November," when we elected all those Republicans, and that now we are "moving into a more positive frame of mind."

I point out all this merely to demonstrate how fortunate we are to live in America, where funks are rational and of short duration. This is not the case in many other nations.

Take Islamic countries. Some of them stay in a constant funk for fear some hot-blooded male person might catch a glimpse of a female ankle and lose control of himself. Some of these countries have even banned satellite dishes because they bring sinful images right into the living room. Earlier this year, religious authorities in Kuwait nixed Barbie dolls because "this she-devil has polished nails and wears skirts above the knee."

Take India. A year ago, dairy farmers in this country got in a grand funk when a Norwegian company proposed to ship 3 million tons of liquefied cow dung a year to India. The idea was to fill empty oil tankers from the Middle East with the stuff and send it down Delhi way to be used as fertilizer. This upset some people in India, where cows are sacred and an estimated 100,000 of them and their water buffalo cousins wander the streets of New Delhi and deposit 15,000 tons of droppings every month. It was a dumb idea for India "to become a dung-importing nation," one protest leader told the Washington Post.

This year, the Indians are in a big funk because Col. Sanders is importing Kentucky Fried Chicken to the city of Bangalore and, the anti-KFC crowd says, the colonel's chemical and hormone-stuffed poultry will ruin the public's health.

Take France. No nation in the world seems to get in more funks than France. French farmers are always complaining that their subsidies are inadequate. French fishermen are always demanding that the government control the importation and price of foreign fish. French film makers are always griping that too many American movies are being shown.

And their culture. Everybody in France, it seems, spends much of their day worrying that their precious culture is being diluted by alien forces.

One thing the French have in abundance, however, is dogs, and they are the source of yet another Big Funk. Slippery deposits of dog doo on the sidewalks are sending 650 Parisians a year to the hospital. One contractor hired to clean up the mess collects 3.5 tons of the stuff daily. Recently, a group of artists attempted to shame dog owners by drawing chalk circles around piles of canine crap to depict it sitting on plates, and then added spaghetti, salad, utensils and glasses.

Electing Republicans is not nearly as disgusting as that.

I point out all this merely to demonstrate how fortunate we are to live in America, where funks are rational and of short duration.

 locating the Judicial Center in downtown Sanford, the county will see new income in the amount of $478,000 per year, and the city, $583,000 per year in new income. Assuming if the courthouse cost the same to build in either location, the best return on the investment is downtown. The money does not need to be spent at Five Points."

Reeves said he is fully aware of Andersen's report and suggestions made to the county and city officials.

"It just wouldn't be proper for me to reveal anything about this latest report before it is released publicly," he said.

"By meeting one-on-one with each member of the Seminole County Commission," he said, "we believe we can explain our findings in a more relaxed atmosphere, and have adequate time in which to respond to any questions each of them may have regarding our recommendation."

At the present time, there is no indication regarding when the full county commission may bring the matter up for public consideration.

When the Andersen report was issued suggesting the court remain in downtown Sanford, city officials were pleased with the results. Several county officials however, refused to make a decision, preferring to wait until the Reeves study was revealed.

When presented for second reading during the Oct. 9th city commission meeting, the item was listed as, "Deleting City Code Chapter 3, Alcoholic Beverages. Section 3-1 through 3-23, adopting City Code Chapter 3.

The first reading of the ordinance was originally scheduled on Sept. 11, but was continued until the Sept. 15 meeting. With one commissioner absent at that time, the ordinance was approved by a 4-0 vote.

At the second and final reading, without explanation or discussion, the ordinance was brought to a vote, and again unanimously passed.

 goblins on their big night.

● Do not enter a stranger's home or car for the promise of candy.

● Don't eat unwrapped candy or treats until your parents have examined them.

● If you are going out after dark, wear light colored clothing and carry a flashlight.

● Go Trick or Treating in your neighborhood. Don't wander too far from your home.

● Don't wear a mask that blocks your vision.

● Walk on the sidewalks and not in the roadways.

● If you are out Trick or Treating with your younger brothers or sisters, stay with them. Help them cross the streets and, remember, always cross at the corners and wait for the light.

And all law enforcement agencies remind young people to have fun, to enjoy the evening, and to respect other people's property.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Budget-balancing votes

WASHINGTON — The House and Senate are bracing for their first votes on milestone Republican budget-balancing plans, as leaders of the two chambers continue cutting deals to solidify their expected victory margins.

Brandishing fresh agreements with wavering lawmakers on Medicaid and agriculture, House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., marched their chambers toward passage of similar measures, despite a veto threat from the White House.

The House was poised to approve the legislation today, while the Senate seemed likely to follow Friday.

Both bills claim to balance the budget by 2002 by extracting savings from Medicare, Medicaid, benefits for veterans, and hundreds of programs all across the government.

Probe continues into bus crash

FOX RIVER GROVE, Ill. — Investigators tried to determine today whether a malfunctioning traffic light held a school bus on railroad tracks as a commuter train slammed into it at up to 60 mph.

The wreck killed five students and injured about 30 others. Eleven students remained hospitalized today, five in critical condition.

Sensors embedded in the tracks are supposed to change the crossing's traffic light to green as a train approaches to signal vehicles to clear the intersection, officials said.

AIDS study: Body and its own defense

By MALCOLM RITTER
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK — In a new sign of how slippery a foe the AIDS virus is, researchers reported today that it can infect key blood cells even after it's trapped and chemically handcuffed by the body.

The result shows that researchers must find ways to attack the trapped HIV, researcher Gregory Burton said.

Scientists have long known that large populations of HIV become trapped by a weblike mesh in lymphoid tissues like the tonsils, spleen and lymph nodes.

Studies show that HIV infects blood cells in lymphoid tissues, but it hasn't been clear whether the trapped HIV was responsible.

That's because the trapped viruses are "handcuffed," covered with antibodies and other immune system proteins that should prevent them from infecting cells.

But the new study says they are infectious, and it blames the cells that form the weblike mesh. Somehow, these cells let trapped HIV continue to infect despite its handcuffs, researchers from Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond report in today's issue of the journal Nature.

Burton, an assistant professor of microbiology and immunology, said current anti-HIV drugs may not work against the trapped virus because they are aimed at blocking reproduction, and HIV does not reproduce while trapped.

"We go out and destroy the virus at other sites, but it remains sitting (while trapped) ... waiting to infect as soon as it gets an opportunity," he said.

The web-making cells are called follicular dendritic cells. Their normal job is to trap and hold bits of foreign material, which serve to remind the disease-fighting immune system what germs and other invaders look like.

The new work was done in mice and in test tubes. Researchers found that when HIV was handcuffed by so-called neutralizing antibodies, it could still infect its key target, T cells of the immune system, but only if dendritic cells were present.

celebrate, was attended by several hundred of those who have been associated with Weldon and with the college for three decades.

While interviews with the five candidates to replace Weldon in the top post at the college are scheduled for next month and a decision is expected shortly after that, Weldon is stepping slowly aside. He hopes to be fully retired by the start of the new year, but has agreed to help with the transition as needed after that.

Speakers, including retired Circuit Judge Vernon Mize, SCC faculty senate president Lucinda Coulter-Burbach, SCC board of trustees president Beth Hattaway, executive director of the Florida Community College system Clark Maxwell and Lyndi Dawson, chairman of the SCC campus governance board, took Weldon and others on a trip through time at SCC.

Mize remembered the 1960s and Weldon with a popular song from the time: Nancy Sinatra's "These Boots are Made for Walkin'." noting that when he first met Weldon he could be found walking all over the SCC campus.

"And when I think of boots — I think of shoes — and whoever takes his place is going to have big shoes to fill."

In the 1970s Coulter-Burbach recalled the board of trustees changed the name from Seminole Junior College to Seminole Community College. She remembered an incident that showed Weldon's integrity and his sense of humor.

"Once I interrupted Dr. Weldon's walk through the halls to consult with him about a risqué editorial one of my student contributors had submitted for publication in the campus newspaper. The lines of the editorial noted 'braless, bouncing and jiggling boobs' as the student complained about the dress code of some of the young women on campus," she said. "Now remember this was the early 70s. Dr. Weldon's response was to 'print it.' He had noted the problem himself, he said grinning."

The fast pace of the 80s barely gave people time to catch their breath, Hattaway noted. Weldon is the organized, stable, driving force that has made SCC a great institution, she noted.

"(He) is both a gentle man and a gentleman. I've never seen him take advantage of anyone or see him speak harshly to a soul. He is a master at getting people to come to consensus. It's ironic to me that during the year of his retirement, we have a beautiful new administration building," she noted. "He's getting everything he worked for and he's leaving. But he's leaving with his house in order."

Because she said she can not imagine him not being an active force at SCC, she said, she's "trying to find a way to clone him."

The board of trustees unanimously voted Weldon the title of President emeritus in appreciation for his many years of dedicated service.

Clark said that Weldon is "a sensitive, caring individual who is concerned about the welfare of his fellow men and his community."

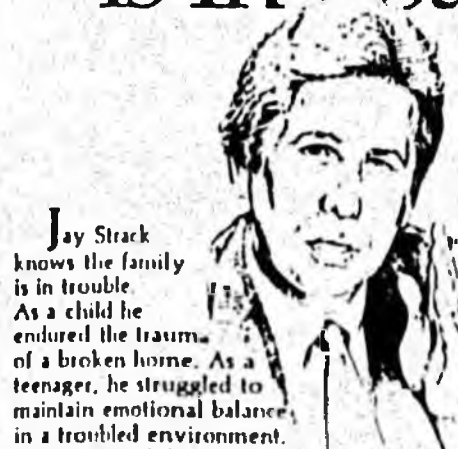

He noted that other college presidents love him and agreed that "they really do need to clone him."

Dawson lauded the president for his dedication to both the college and the students.

"Dr. Weldon always recognizes students and it makes you feel good that he takes the time to see how you are doing," she noted. "(He) has vision, he has enriched the lives of the community and has enhanced student life and education."

The evening concluded with comments from Weldon's wife Gerry and Weldon himself.

Jay Strack Knows Your Family Is In Trouble.

Jay Strack knows the family is in trouble. As a child he endured the trauma of a broken home. As a teenager, he struggled to maintain emotional balance in a troubled environment. Now, as an adult, and as an acclaimed speaker on the American family, Dr. Strack seeks to help others avoid the disaster he experienced.

There's no question that families are in crisis. Divorce rates remain frighteningly high. Over one million kids run away every year. Drugs lure youth into their devilish snare. Suicide is the number two killer of teenagers. Yes, families in our society are under siege.

But there is hope. And there are ways to avoid the pitfalls. This is the message Jay Strack delivers with power, simplicity and brilliance.

If you care about your family, don't miss this opportunity to hear Jay Strack. He's coming to:

Broken thumb may sideline O'Neal until January

Associated Press

ORLANDO — Shaquille O'Neal will have surgery on his broken right thumb and may be sidelined until just before New Year's.

"I want to be playing by Christmas, but I'm not going to rush anything," O'Neal said Wednesday. "My team is good enough to where they can hold their own without me."

The 7-foot center who led the Orlando Magic to the NBA Finals last season will be operated on Thursday, a minor procedure to repair a piece of the bone in his thumb.

"He will be out of competitive basketball for approximately six to eight weeks after surgery," Dr. Richard Shure of the Jewett Orthopaedic Clinic said Wednesday after examining O'Neal.

O'Neal said his thumb was bent back flat

Tuesday night when he was raked across the hand by Miami center Matt Geiger on a move to the basket in the second quarter of the Magic's 106-91 exhibition victory.

Geiger was not called for a foul. In fact, O'Neal was called for traveling as he spun along the baseline and went for what looked like a dunk.

Immediately after the injury, O'Neal was furious and threatened to "show ... some of my Shaq-Fu stuff" to any other player who put a similar move on him.

But by Wednesday, O'Neal had cooled off.

"It's not a matter of getting revenge anymore. It happened and now it's over," O'Neal said. "But somebody needs to do something. I think some coaches tell their players to come in and chop me and hope I get mad and throw a punch or something and get thrown out. I guess that's a good tactic, but it's not right. I've got to be able to protect myself."

Geiger said the Heat's game plan was to foul O'Neal if he got the ball in too close. "It was just a normal foul. There was nothing personal about it," he said.

"You're going to get fouled because he's not a good free throw shooter," the Heat's Billy Owens said Wednesday. "You got to expect that."

But some of O'Neal's teammates were bitter.

"A hard foul is a hard foul, but not when you're out there trying to hurt somebody," Horace Grant said. "That foul was ridiculous."

There was no word how the Magic will fill the center spot although they signed veteran Jon Koncak as O'Neal's backup in the offseason.

"Obviously I'm not going to provide the offense that Shaquille did, but that's not why they brought me here," Koncak said. "I came here to help with the defense and rebounding and step in if there was an emergency."

In Tuesday's game, O'Neal finished with 11 points in 13 minutes. He was 4-for-6 from the field and 3-for-4 from the foul line. He was averaging 22.8 point a game during preseason.

In his three seasons, O'Neal has missed only three games because of injury. Last season he averaged 29.3 points, 11.4 rebounds and 2.4 blocks to lead the Magic to the Eastern Conference championship and the finals for the first time.

"Everyone on this team would rather be playing with Shaquille than without him, but it's no use talking about what you don't have," Magic coach Brian Hill said. "We've got to have our guys elevate their game some and go with what we have."

Rogers edges Balough at NSS

By PAUL MARSEGLIA
Special to the Herald

SAMULA — Orlando's David Rogers, driving the TM Ranch Firebird, drove his way to victory lane in the 25 lap late model feature Saturday night at New Smyrna Speedway.

"It's great to be in victory lane tonight," said Rogers, the 1994 NASCAR Winston national late model champion. "For the last few months, we tried all kinds of changes on the car and nothing worked. We went back to the basics, and we now have the car near where we want it to be. The car was outstanding."

Gary Balough finished second with Guy Thomas, Bruce Lawrence and Don Fenn in tow. Tony Newsome raced uncontested to his fourth limited late model win. Newsome, who started the race from the fifth position, got by race leader Bobby Sears on lap four after driving his way through traffic.

Once on the point, Newsome was never headed on his trip to victory lane. Richard Parks, who passed Sears at the halfway point, was second. Sears was third, followed by David Ponder and Mark Stevenson. Balough, driving double duty, handily won the 35 lap X1R Friction Eliminator modified feature.

"I had a hot rod tonight," said Balough, who drove the Park Ave. Auto Parts/Cowboys Saloon Cavalier. "This car is always a winner. All I had to do is give it the gas and steer. It's an awesome car."

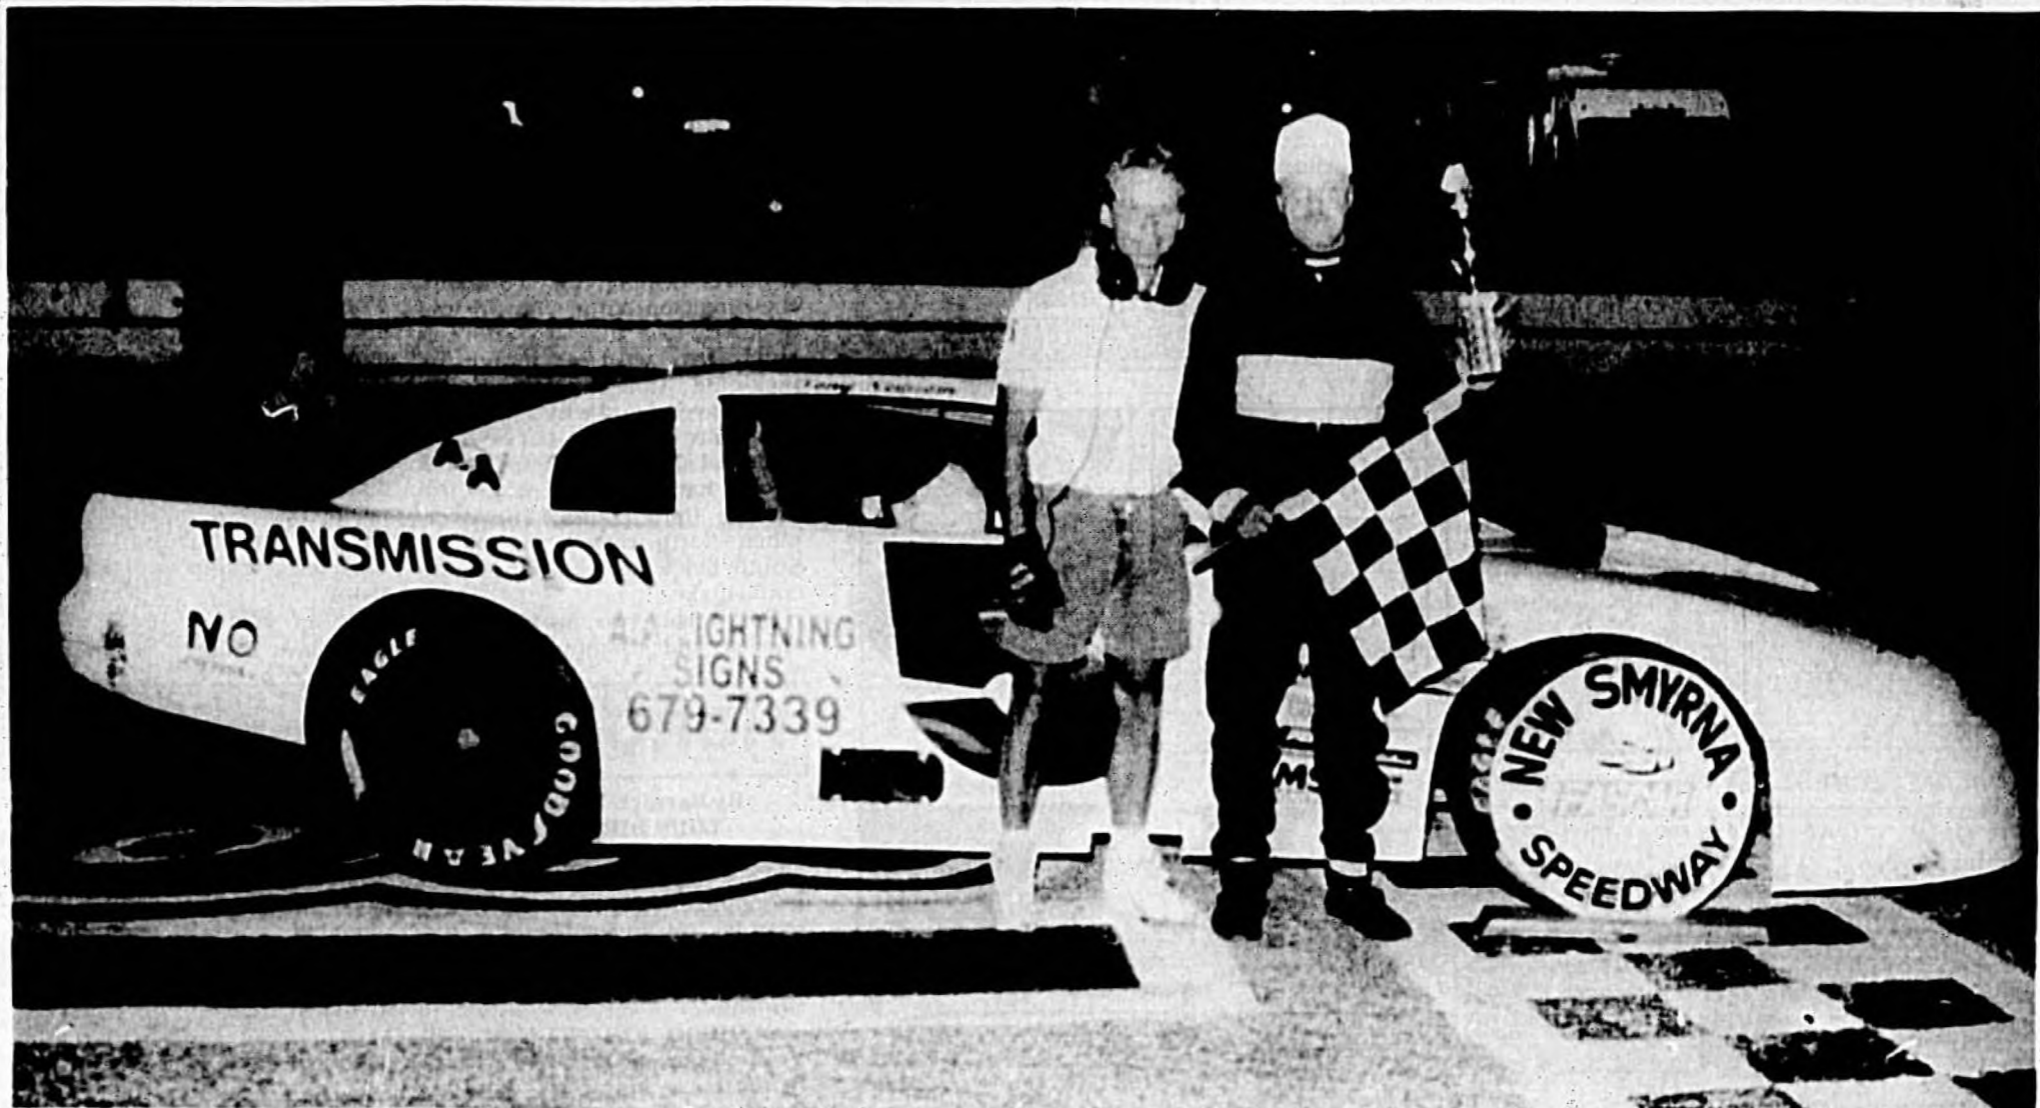

Trailing Balough were Wayne Parker, Wayne Reutimann, Randy Hecker and Wayne Southard. Conrad Grenier outduelled Gene VanAlstine and Jared Allison to win the mini-stock main event. Grenier, who took the point from VanAlstine at the halfway mark, took the checkers a car length in front of VanAlstine. Allison was third with Brian Bellaw fourth and Kevin DiMeco fifth.

Butch Pierce charged from the rear of the pack to win the sportsman 15 lap feature event. Pierce, who started the race from the 14th position, charged through traffic and was in second place with his sights set on race leader Terry McDowell by lap eight.

With three laps to the checkers, Pierce pulled alongside of McDowell to challenge for the lead. They raced side by side, with Pierce gaining the advantage coming out of turn four. Trailing the lead duo were Tommy Johnson, Jeff Warren and Jerry Smith.

The agony and the ecstasy. Larry Cook (top) sits dejectedly in his battered race car after one of the many accidents attributed to the cold weather at New Smyrna Speedway last Saturday night. Tony Newsome (bottom), however, was all smiles after taking his Chevrolet Monte Carlo to Victory Lane in the Limited Late Model feature.

Balough takes Late Model feature at Orlando

By PAUL MARSEGLIA
Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — New Smyrna Beach's Gary "Hot Shoe" Balough, driving the X1R Friction Eliminator Camaro, paced the field from start to finish to win the 25 lap late model feature event Friday night at Orlando Speedway.

Despite four caution periods that bunched the field for new restarts, Balough dominated the action to notch his eighth win of the year. Ron DiCandio was second in front of Steve Avinger, Don Fenn, John Lowers and Duke Southard.

An early race caution took out top contender Ronnie Burkett. A five car melee on lap four, triggered by a slow car in the racing lane, piled up cars on the front straight away. Burkett's racer was towed to the pits on the hook. The other cars, despite sheet metal damage, continued the race.

Gene VanAlstine led from the pole to score his 11th win of the season in the mini-stock division. VanAlstine, who is in second place in the FASCAR point standings, edged Kevin DiMeco by half a car length to the flag stand for the win. Trailing DiMeco were Brian Bellaw, Teri Bryant and Richard Newton.

Carl Peters paced the field from start to finish to win his first ever bomber feature event. Hooked up in a fierce battle for second place were Bill Loomis, Glen Castro and New Smyrna Beach driver Jeremy Fitch making his first appearance at the Orlando speedplant. Loomis edged the trio at the stripe for second in front of Castro, Fitch and Dwayne Waddell.

Mike Todd dominated racing action in the limited late model class to notch his seventh victory of the year. Bobby Spears was a distant second, with Dallas Ward, David Todd and Mike Coppa filling out the top five positions.

Butch Pierce's last lap charge on Tim Aultman came up about a half a foot short as Aultman edged Pierce at the starters stand for the win in the sportsman headliner. In tow behind the lead duo were Jeff Hadley, Larry Osteen and Harvey Pope.

"It was almost too close to call," said flagman Johnny Bass. "To me, it looked like Tim Aultman had it by a small margin.

When I checked with the tower, they confirmed that Tim won by less than a foot. Now that's some close quarters racing."

Eddie Martin held off a late race charge by Jimmy Wilkins and Dave Savicki to take the checkers in the 35 lap modified headliner. Martin took possession of the number one slot when race leader Wayne Heckle tangled with Balough going into turn three. The race resumed with Balough and Heckle on the tail end of the lap, as Savicki and Wilkins lined up behind Martin.

Martin and Savicki raced nose to tail until the five laps to go sign was displayed. With four laps to the checkers, Wilkins got to the inside of Savicki. Wilkins and Savicki, racing wheel to wheel, chased Martin to victory lane. Wilkins edged Savicki, and they were followed by Wayne Southard and Kelly Jarrett.

Balough pulled into the pits after he hit the wall in turn three, and Heckle finished sixth after dropping off the pace late in the race with mechanical problems. Jeff Shaffer was the winner of the run-about race, with Paul Hindman taking the win in the mini-bomber event.

Dear Mr. Stewart: I am an aspiring actor (I would like to think, anyway) and with being in Central Florida, now being touted as Hollywood East, I wonder if my chances at acting are better if I stay here or should I go to New York or California? I understand that you have been in several films; could you tell me which ones please and are they available for rental?

Wishful Bill
Sanford

'ES'pecially
JERRY STEWART

Dear Wishful: Depending upon just what you desire in an acting career, you should get as much experience in your chosen craft as you can and right where you are presently! Local theatre groups, acting companies, organizations, all offer invaluable experience and exposure just short of "The Great White Way," or Hollywood, U.S.A. I have found that over the years it makes no difference where you are and sometimes being in the "wrong place at the right time" works.

My first film was in, of all also have been a drive production assistant and a grip. To me it was more important to get the experience and satisfaction knowing that I did something and just didn't sit idly by with my dreams as well.

You'll find that most casting of the primary (lead) roles is still done from Hollywood, Chicago, and New York; but we're growing and I would say that it will be several years before Orlando gets a real foothold in the industry. Strangely, Miami has given way to Orlando for the majority of work now being done in actual production.

You might have already had pictures taken of yourself and listed yourself with a talent agency or two. LET ME CAUTION YOU! Don't list yourself with any agency that wants you to pay a fee up front or wants to sell you on having pictures taken of you on a regular basis. Four or five composite shots in different poses is adequate.

The most recent film that I have been in and the only one in which I can be readily seen is "Chains of Gold" with John Travolta. Look for me in the second scene directly behind John and an old man in a wheelchair. I played an HRS worker for the immediate background of that scene. Others not quite as recent are "Cat Cheer", with Kelly McGillis, Peter Weller and Charles Durning; I was Durning's photo double and stand-in for this film. Then there was "Let It Ride", with Richard Dreyfus, filmed about the same time. If you don't mind 12-hour days and pay somewhere around $50 per day, doing a lot of waiting, eating cold 2-piece chicken dinners and Kool-Aid, then standing in line forever just to sign out for the day, then you'll enjoy the opportunity. Or, my suggestion is "don't give up your day job," but also don't give up your dream.

Take 2. Scene 1. See you at the movies!

Instead of prayer in school, worry about guns and drugs

DEAR ABBY: Well, chalk up another "I never thought I would see the day when I'd be writing to Dear Abby."

I was shocked when I read in the newspaper that a school principal was suspended and ultimately fired for allowing prayer in his classrooms. I admire this man for standing by his decision.

Where does the board of education get off making such a decision? These days, when kids are carrying knives and guns to school and drug dealers hang around school playgrounds, I would think the board of education would deal with those

DEAR GARY BUCHANAN: I side with the board of education. Let's assume that there are five Presbyterians, nine Catholics, three Jews, five Methodists, six Baptists, four Muslims and one Buddhist in the classroom. Whose prayer should be used?

DEAR ABBY: I've been married to "Bruce" for a number of years. This is the second marriage for both of us, and we try not to bring up things from our past.

Just yesterday, I bumped into "Norm," who had been my best friend when I was married to my ex. We were never romantically involved, but Norm was the best friend I ever had — always there when I needed him. We lost track of each other a dozen years ago, and I was overjoyed to have found him again.

Bruce got very upset when I told him I'd like him to meet Norm. He said he doesn't bring up friends from his past, and refused to even meet Norm or give him a chance.

This morning, Norm dropped by to see me at the place where I work, and it made me feel like I was sneaking around. I wish I could have him over for dinner, but that's out of the question.

Abby, I don't want to lose my friend again. Neither do I want the cold shoulder when I mention his name. What should I do?

DEAR IN: Remind Bruce that your lives did not begin the moment you met each other and

Hillhaven Open House: A festive occasion
