Fifth fake cop arrest made

SANFORD — A fifth Seminole County suspect was arrested yesterday in connection with a string of robberies where some gunmen posed as police. The man is being brought from Ft. Myers today to face charges here, sheriff's investigators report.

Wiley Vaughn, 39, 740 Willow Drive, Winter Springs, faces charges of armed burglary, robbery, kidnapping and falsely impersonating a policeman. Seminole Sheriff's Lt. Al Sanchez said today Vaughn is accused of being a key player in a gang that terrorized local in-home robbery victims for more than a year. Three other men arrested in Seminole County in the case Jan. 26 — Jerry Gross, 28; Neal Nicarry, 29; and Jeff Cooper, 27 — remain jailed without bond. Jason Browner, 27, of Oviedo, arrested on Seminole County and Winter Springs charges in the home invasions has been released on bond, jail records show.

Sanchez said the gang operated in several counties in Central Florida and face additional charges in other jurisdictions. The four arrested in January face charges similar to those against Vaughn. Sanchez said charges are also pending against other accused members of the gang who haven't yet been arrested. Vaughn was arrested Wednesday in Ft. Myers on a Seminole County warrant.

School custodian suspended

CASSELBERRY — Tony Wright, a custodian at Sterling Park Elementary School, has been suspended from his job with pay as the result of his arrest on charges of possession of cocaine.

The Seminole County School Board will consider suspending him without pay at their next meeting March 27.

Wright, who has been employed by the school district since March 1988, was arrested February 11 at the Disco Food Store on Magnolia Street in Altamonte Springs.

The 30-year-old custodian had no previous arrests and there were no previous disciplinary actions recorded in his personnel file.

Traffic accident leads to death

GENEVA — An unidentified victim died early today in a collision between a motorcycle and another type of vehicle. The Florida Highway Patrol reported the accident occurred at about 6 a.m. today on State Road 46 at Resthaven Road, east of Geneva. Other details on the accident and the identity of the victim were not available early this morning.

Planners OK mall plan

Housing questions remain unanswered

By LAURAL SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

WINTER PARK — Regional planners yesterday unanimously approved a proposal for a $100 million mall to be built in Sanford, leaving some questions about affordable housing for mall employees unanswered.

The 42-member East Central Florida Regional Planning Council yesterday unanimously approved the development order for Seminole Mall, a 214-acre development planned for the intersection of Interstate-4 and State Road 46. The proposal now goes to the City of Sanford, where it will be reviewed during a public hearing

April 9.

The council established plans for the developer to find a new home for a large population of gopher tortoises that would lose their habitat to the mall, but the group would not vote to require developer Melvin Simon & Associates to build homes for low-income people who will work at the mall.

Despite pleas from legal counsel for the area's low-income residents and a Florida State University professor of urban and regional planning, council members said no impact fee for affordable housing could be arbitrarily charged to one developer.

Bruce Scott, a paralegal for Central Florida Legal Services representing 480 families living in Sanford's public housing, asked the developer to either build 592 housing units or pay a $13.3 million fee — equal to an estimated cost of government subsidies for the same number of units.

Charles Connerly, associate professor at FSU contracted by Scott to research housing in Sanford, said 592 housing units would be needed to accommodate employees who will move to the area to work at the mall. The influx would add to 4,232 Sanford households counted in the 1980 census who earned less than $10,000, he said.

The average salary projected for mall retail workers is $11,500, according to developers. An estimated 8,000 new jobs will be created upon completion of the mall, according to developer's statistics.

Jim Willard, an attorney representing Melvin Simon, said many of the mall jobs will be filled by students or by current Sanford residents who have other full-time jobs. Based on that assumption, he said, the mall's impact on housing in the

Undercounting will cost cities in U.S. millions

By ROBERT WAOMAN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — Where Census results are concerned, people equal dollars — lots of dollars for the nation's city, state and local governments. In fiscal 1988, $39.6 billion from 82 separate federal grant programs were distributed on the basis of the last Census. U.S. cities in particular have been gearing up to guarantee that every one of their inhabitants is counted in 1990.

The Census Bureau admits that in 1980 it did not do a perfect job. It estimates that it missed about 2.2 million people — about 1.6 percent of the population. Outside experts peg the 1980 undercount at closer to 3.2 million.

In Seminole County, Census officials estimated there were 179,752 people living here in 1980, a number the county's demographic specialist says is probably very accurate. The University of Florida Bureau of Economic Research, BEBR, or as it is called "Beber," estimates the April county population at 292,400.

Don Hastings, county demographic specialist, says BEBR uses the 1980 Census persons per household estimate for Seminole County, 2.82, lowers according to local and state aging trends to 2.66, then multiplies that number to arrive at the 1990 estimate. The Census will offer a comparison as to the accuracy of that estimate.

Most of those missed in other parts of the county come from minority and new immigrant groups. By one estimate the undercount among blacks was about 6 percent, possibly as high as two out of every 10 black males under the age of 40, and one in 10 black children under age 5.

New York state, for example, contends that in the past decade it has lost $1 billion in federal block grants it would have received if the 1980 Census had been accurate. So this year New York has established "New York Counts," an effort of the state, its big cities and several major labor unions to get a better count this time around. The New York effort is centered around identifying people in the neighborhoods where the undercount is believed highest and enlisting them to work as "enumerators," the people who actually make the count. Dade County (Miami), Fla., is doing something similar. They have hired emissaries in the various minority populations in the county to try to convince residents to cooperate and be counted.

Florida may gain 4 congressmen

By J. MARK BARFIELD

Seminole County may gain one representative in the state Legislature as well as one of the four new congressional seats Florida is expected to gain through district reapportionment following the 1990 Census.

That would give the county three state representatives. Currently, there are two representatives and three senators serving portions of Seminole

Lake Mary woman gives old denim a new life, look

By LACY DOMEN
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — Just as the city recycles glass, paper, plastic, and aluminum, Helen Griffith recycles denim.

Griffith, who is both Seminole County's Home Extension Council President and the Lake Mary Homemakers Club president, takes used denim from jeans and jackets and turns it into new denim clothing, pillows, jewelry, and gift items.

She sells these new, recycled items for a profit at places like June Camp Week for Home Extension, Lake Mary Seniors birthday party, and the county's Home Extension Christmas party. "I even take my kit along when I visit friends. I want to get the word out about recycling castoff denims," she said.

Griffith became interested in denim projects through the Home Extension program. The University of Florida provides a kit which contains models of things you can make with recycled denim. Griffith said, "You can only keep it a week. I knew I could make my own kit and reach more people," Griffith said.

Griffith said recycling denim is cost efficient, creative, and fun. "Grandmothers can make things for kids. Young mothers can do this

'MAIN STREET' 17-92 SCC may become county's cultural center

SANFORD — Seminole Community College could become the cultural and educational focal point of Seminole County, complete with a performing arts center housing symphonies and touring Broadway productions.

SCC officials, who are already reaching out to the business community through development of a Business and Industry Resource Center, want to build a performing arts center to serve the county's social needs. The center could be developed in conjunction with a nearby hotel as well.

The concept is one of several a committee formed by the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce will explore in coming months. The

SANFORD — U.S. Highway 17-92 may one day become the entrance to Seminole County's "Central Park."

That's the vision of the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce committee of businessmen and government officials seeking to turn the 14-mile corridor in the county's "Main Street" through beautification and redevelopment.

Part of that vision includes recreation of the highway into an entrance of sorts to the Spring Hammock preservation

This intersection at 17-92 and Weldon Boulevard would see a dramatic change if the main street proposal comes to fruition.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Radon levels highest in Tampa area

ST. PETERSBURG — Levels of radon in Tampa Bay are higher than any other surface waterway in the state tested so far, scientists with the state Department of Environmental Regulation said.

Although the levels pose no threat to humans, it is unknown how the chemical is affecting fish and wildlife, said Don Moores, chief of the DER's Tampa laboratory.

"There are a lot of unanswered questions. It's an area that's crying for someone to at least try to find out where (radon) is going," he said.

The odorless, colorless gas is a product of the natural breakdown of radium, which decays from uranium, University of South Florida professor Kent Fanning said.

Primary concern about radon for people stems from breathing air tainted with the gas, which can cause cancer if inhaled in excessive amounts, Fanning said. Humans quickly flush radon-tainted water from their systems.

But little is known about how fish and other creatures living in the bay's waters react to the heavy concentrations of radon.

Fanning said he believes levels are high in the bay because of the large amount of phosphate in the surrounding soil.

Police hunt clues in school bomb threat

CRAWFORDVILLE — A dispute between parents, students and Wakulla High School officials over the school's banning of a student's rap performance is suspected as the motive behind a bomb threat that closed the school.

The Wakulla County Sheriff's Department and the Florida Department of Law Enforcement were working on the case Wednesday, but officials said they had no leads on the bomb threat.

The bomb threat from an anonymous caller Tuesday forced officials to evacuate the school and suspend classes for a day, authorities said.

According to School Superintendent Roger Stokley, the early morning caller told a school employee that she didn't like the way a meeting between the Wakulla County School Board and some upset parents was handled the night before.

"The caller said the high school would be blown up at 11:58 a.m.," Stokley said. "The same person called again 10 minutes later, but this time it sounded like a recording."

Stokley said that from 8:30 a.m. to 9:30 a.m., about 840 students and 75 staff members were taken to a stadium about 150 yards away from the school while administrators and sheriff's officials decided whether to evacuate the school.

UF research center named after Pepper

GAINESVILLE — The University of Florida opened Wednesday a dental research center named after longtime Florida Congressman Claude Pepper that will concentrate on improving the dental health of the nation's elderly.

The Claude Pepper Center for Research on Oral Health in Aging will accommodate a total of 34 dental researchers and scientists in related disciplines. It was established by the University of Florida College of Dentistry, which launched its elderly dental research program in 1988.

Pepper, who died on May 30, 1989, was a national advocate for senior citizens. The Mildred and Claude Pepper Foundation in Virginia has approved the project, said center director Dr. Marc Heft.

"We plan to expand studies of the epidemiology of oral health problems related to aging, to look at patterns of disease and at the use of dental services," he said.

"We are expanding major studies of painful oral and facial diseases linked to aging, including the neuralgia that sometimes results from the common viral disease shingles, and the facial nerve disorder known as tic douloureux," he said.

The UF research is supported by $700,000 in annual grants from the National Institute of Dental Research, with additional funds from the National Institute on Aging and the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Suspect in quadruple murder case found

PENSACOLA — A man wanted in connection with the murders of four people in the quiet community of Pleasant Grove has been arrested and will make his initial court appearance today, authorities said.

State agents said they captured Bruce Edward "Jit" Frazier, 22, one of Florida's "eight-most-wanted" fugitives, without incident Tuesday in the Belle Glade community of Palm Beach County. Authorities were acting on a tip by someone who recognized Frazier's picture on a billboard showing most-wanted fugitives.

He was transferred to Pensacola and is being held with no bond set. Charges against Frazier include four counts of first-degree murder and six counts of kidnapping.

Frazier is a suspect in the drug-related September 1988 deaths of four people at a duplex in Escambia County's Pleasant Grove community, west of Pensacola. All four victims were gagged and bound before being summarily executed.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Poll worries state educators

Many feel that lottery provides enough money for education

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — More than one-third of Floridians said the state lottery provides enough money to run the public schools, but more than half said new education taxes are needed, according to a poll released Wednesday.

State educators are concerned about the widespread perception regarding the Florida Lottery, especially when studies reveal that public education has been getting a smaller percentage of general revenue dollars in the three years since the lottery was enacted.

"Lottery funding will support public schools for 10 days," said Wayne Blanton, executive director of the Florida School Board Association, which commissioned the study. "We have to get the word out that while we appreciate the dollars, it is not the sole source of funding."

The poll is based on a random sample of 700 Florida voters concerning their attitudes and perceptions about Florida's education system. It was taken in late January, at the same time the lottery began airing television commercials showing how much the lottery was contributing to Florida public education.

Teachers' unions criticized the ads as deceptive and misrepresenting the amount that the lottery was actually contributing. Florida Education Commissioner Betty Castor asked the Lottery Department to pull the ads, but Lottery Secretary Rebecca Paul refused to pull them.

Instead, she agreed not to renew the contract to broadcast the ads again once their initial run was completed.

The poll results also showed that 52 percent of Florida voters saw a need for more education dollars and that bonds or sales taxes would be the best way to get that money.

Before the lottery, voters in 21 out of 22 school districts approved a bond issue to pay for facilities, Blanton said.

"Since the lottery was enacted, we've been battling about .500." In the last 18 months, he said, four counties passed bond issues and four rejected them.

Among those getting the thumbs-down sign from voters was a half-billion dollar school bond referendum in Seminole County. Voters here soundly rejected that proposal by more than a 2-to-1 margin.

"I think this poll shows that part of the problem is the perception that 36 percent of the people think the lottery is enough," Blanton said.

Officer acquitted in shooting

United Press International

MIAMI — A Hialeah police officer who wounded a suspected thief while shooting at a getaway car has been acquitted by a jury who decided he did not act with reckless disregard for human life.

Six jurors deliberated for 2 1/2 hours Wednesday before finding Capt. Raleigh Jordan, 53, innocent of culpable negligence in the Oct. 6, 1988, shooting.

"Law enforcement in the streets of Dade County is not a precise science," said Jordan, a 22-year veteran of the Hialeah Police Department. "It has some rough edges, and you're dealing with some rough people."

The jury was not convinced that Jordan acted carelessly, without regard for the safety of others, when he fired 10 bullets from two guns while chasing a car in a Miami Shores alley.

The suspect, Earl Garnett, 28, later was convicted of burglary and grand theft for snatching a purse from Jordan's friend.

Joyce Clark.

Dade County prosecutor Richard Shiffrin argued that Jordan could have called for help, rather than fire shots that endangered occupants of the car and people in the neighborhood.

"This isn't like 'Dirty Harry,'" Shiffrin said. "This is Miami Shores."

Defense lawyer Douglas Hartman argued Jordan was justified in using force to stop a fleeing felon he thought had a gun.

Flooding danger shifts further south

United Press International

CARYVILLE — The Choctawhatchee River began receding Wednesday in Caryville, where the entire population was evacuated earlier in the week, but a potential flooding problem still existed downstream, officials said.

"The problems are moving downriver with the water," said Rod Westall, chief of emergency planning for the state. In Ebro and two other communities south of Caryville about 200 people were evacuated Tuesday.

But Westall said additional evacuations along the Choctawhatchee would be "very minor because there aren't very many communities down there."

In Calhoun County to the east, the Apalachicola River created about midway Wednesday in Mountaintown, but not before displacing between 100 and 150 people, officials said.

Calhoun Civil Defense Director James White said the river created at 28.5 feet, or about 11.5 feet above flood stage. "We are at the point where we begin to see the river start dropping," White said late Wednesday.

The river still was rising downstream, however. "It won't crest down there until probably sometime tomorrow," White said.

Larry Wells, civil defense director for Gulf

County to the south, said earlier he was told the Apalachicola would crest at 27 feet. That could cause problems around the Wewahitchka area, where about 60 people were evacuated.

"From our calculation, that's enough to put water in some houses below the dam," Wells said.

Wells said it will be several more days before two other areas further downstream — Red Bull Island and the Howard Creek area — receive the full impact.

Caryville was left a virtual ghost town early this week after about 800 residents evacuated when the Choctawhatchee, swollen by weekend rains, began overflowing. The entire town was waterlogged Tuesday, even before the river crested.

"We have just had the first indication within the past hour that it was beginning to recede," Al Pyfrom, director of emergency management services in Washington County, said Wednesday afternoon.

Pyfrom said the river held at 21 feet, nine feet above flood level, for some 18 hours.

Caryville residents will not be able to return by car until Friday, Pyfrom said.

"We can not allow mass re-entry until at least 75 percent of the roads are passable," he said. But 50 people using motorboats were allowed to return to their homes Tuesday.

Black community leaders call for mayor's resignation

United Press International

FORT LAUDERDALE — A black community leader called Wednesday for the resignation of Mayor Bob Cox who told a group of elementary school students, "You have to be free, white and 21" to be mayor.

"I really think he should step down," said Levi Henry, the publisher of The Westside Gazette, which first reported Cox's statement made last month during a 90-minute visit with fourth- and fifth-grade students at Edgewood Elementary School.

Cox dismissed the comment as an old "silly expression," and accused the Gazette, a biweekly paper that has a largely black readership, of being "inflammatory."

"The mayor has always been on the defensive every time he opens his mouth. It's typical of the mayor to make these statements," Henry said.

The Gazette published the mayor's remark after receiving a videotape of the address and subsequent question-and-answer session with the children.

"At least he lets you know where he stands, and I appreciate him for that," said Roosevelt Walters, president of the Fort Lauderdale chapter of the NAACP. "But he's not exactly the type of man you'd consider a lover of black people."

Cox, who has served on the city commission for 20 years, has said he has no intention of running for re-election in 1991.

On the videotape, a fourth-grade girl asks the mayor what it takes to be president.

Cox responded by saying he was not sure what it took to be president, but said he knew what it took to be mayor.

"You have to be free, white and 21," he answered.

That response raised questions among the students who reported the comment to their parents and queried teachers about the response.

"After we got back to the room, some of my children told me how they felt," said Andrew Anderson, who teaches fourth- and fifth-graders. "Some of the Hispanic kids wanted to know how he could say something like this when we have a Hispanic governor."

Cox said he regretted his choice of words moments after uttering the cliché.

POLICE BRIEFS

Victim hit with shotgun

SANFORD — A man who allegedly twice hit Victoria Mitchell of Sanford on the head with a shotgun and hit her in the face with his fist has been charged with aggravated battery, possession of a firearm in a felony, possession of a short barrel shotgun, and felony possession of a firearm.

Arthur Mitchell, 21, 717 Hickory Ave., Sanford was arrested at 5:50 p.m. Wednesday on Sixth Street at Cypress Avenue, Sanford police report. He is held without bond.

Casselberry man accused of rape

CASSELBERRY — Richard Boyd Kidd, 24, 1142 Landmark Lane, Casselberry, was arrested at home on a Volusia County warrant for sexual battery at 2:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies made the arrest and booked Kidd into the county jail to be held in lieu of $10,000 bond for Volusia County. The warrant alleges that Kidd raped a 36-year-old woman in Volusia County March 1.

Couple arrested after search

CASSELBERRY — A City County Investigative Bureau find of marijuana and drug paraphernalia in a warrant search of a house at 423 Brittany Circle, Casselberry, Wednesday night led to charges of possession of the contraband against the couple that resides there.

Kevin Christopher Daly, 31, and Monique Beth Daly, 28, were arrested in the case.

Three in car arrested

CASSELBERRY — Three occupants of a car stopped by Seminole County sheriff's deputies on State Road 436, Casselberry, Wednesday night were arrested after deputies reportedly found marijuana and drug paraphernalia in their possession.

Charged with possession of the contraband were: Christina Michele McKay, 19, 302 Antique Oak Circle, Winter Park; Robert James Tuttle, 21, address not reported; and Jesse McKay, 25, of Tampa.

Sanford man arrested on pot charge

SANFORD — Sanford police who followed a man into Wadsworth Grocery, E. Seventh Street, arrested him after reportedly finding a marijuana cigarette near him and cigarette rolling papers in his pocket.

Marques Cornelius Howard, 18, 440 Mellonville Ave., #4, Sanford, was charged with possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana and drug paraphernalia at the store at 4:35 p.m. Wednesday.

Several arrested on DUI charges

SANFORD — The following persons face a charge of driving under the influence in Seminole County:

- David Murray, 43, of Orlando, was arrested at 1:45 a.m. Wednesday after he drove erratically on State Road 436, Altamonte Springs.
- Timothy Gerald Sullivan, 34, 274 Altamonte Bay Club Circle, Altamonte Springs, was arrested at 2:25 a.m. Wednesday after his car traveling west in the eastbound lane of Jasmine Avenue, Altamonte Springs, almost collided with another car.
- Mari Keli Aikins, 30, 816 Keystone Ave., Altamonte Springs, was arrested at 2:39 a.m. Wednesday after his car failed to maintain a single lane on U.S. Highway 17-92, Casselberry.
- Michelle Mae Moscardini, 25, 910-C Orienta Ave., Altamonte Springs, was arrested at 11:39 p.m. Monday after her car ran a red light on State Road 436, Altamonte Springs.

Women of all ages participate in Home Extension, Griffith said. "One of our problems is that so many young mothers have to be out working now. We would like to have more young members. It's good to have a wide range of ages," she said.

Lake Mary prepares for egg hunt, diaper derby

By LACY BOWEN
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — An Easter egg hunt, diaper derby, and crazy olympics are just part of the family fun planned for Lake Mary residents on Sunday, April 8, from 2 to 5 p.m. on the soccer field behind Driftwood Village.

Pastor James Cox said the event was planned to celebrate "the grand beginning" of the SonLife Community Church, a non-denominational church. "It's our way of saying hello to the community," Cox said.

Cox said there is no charge for the event. "We'll be serving free hotdogs, pop, and Breyers ice cream," he said.

The first 50 children will receive a free helium balloon.

Children can hunt for over 500 hidden Easter eggs, including five gold ones with special surprises inside.

The fastest baby in the diaper derby, in which crawling babies race to their parents, will receive a $25 gift certificate, Cox said.

Crazy olympics will feature events such as the egg toss and the potato sack race.

Cox, who recently moved to Lake Mary with his wife, Sarah, and his eight-week-old daughter, Elizabeth, said "the grand beginning" will be a community event where neighbors can meet and families can have a good time. "Most of us don't mind making a new friend once in awhile, but often, as neighbors we get so busy we aren't able to find the time to make new friends," he said.

"We're inviting the families in the community to participate in this day of fun-filled activities," Cox said. "It's a way of letting the Son shine in," he said.

Federal dollars flow to South, West

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Federal dollars to states during the 1980s gushed into the South and West, flowed steadily to New England but trickled to the Mid-Atlantic region and Midwest, a congressional report said Wednesday.

For every tax dollar paid to the Treasury during fiscal years 1981-1988, the federal government returned an average $1.13 to the South, $1.10 to the West and $1.01 to New England states, while Mid-Atlantic states lost 11 cents and Midwest states lost 20 cents on the tax dollar, according to the report from the Northeast-Midwest Coalition.

The report tracks the distribution of $5.7 trillion — about 81 percent of federal outlays during the 1980s. It is based on Census Bureau data that includes direct payments to individuals, such as Social Security and Medicare.

Orlando doctor indicted on child pornography charges

United Press International

ORLANDO — An Orange County grand jury issued a 10-count indictment Wednesday against a pediatrician accused of making young male patients perform lewd acts.

Dr. William Zink, 38, of Orlando, a pediatric orthopedist, was charged with five counts of having children perform sexual acts and five counts of possession of photos of those acts.

Randy Means, spokesman for the Orange County state attorney's office, said at least five boys under the age of 18 were involved. The photos showed them either nude or partially nude with exposed genitals. The boys were alone in the photos.

Zink said the photos were for legitimate medical purposes, to record the injuries and the range of motion of his patients.

A doctor who analyzed several of Zink's photos said two were close-ups of a boy holding his genitals. One set of slides showed a boy about 6 years of age, his arm in a cast, with his pants down or off. In one photo, he was sexually aroused.

The grand jury issued the sealed indictment Wednesday afternoon, and prosecutors unsealed it Wednesday evening.

Zink surrendered at the Orlando Police Department Wednesday and was released on $2,500 bond, Means said.

Correction

SANFORD — Scheduling of the trial of Jonathan Shuler, the Sanford man accused of killing a convenience store clerk in November, will be today at 1 p.m. in Seminole County circuit court.

A story in yesterday's Sanford Herald listed the incorrect date for the trial.

Shuler, 20, 54 Lake Monroe Terrace, pleaded not guilty last week. A circuit court grand jury Dec. 11 indicted Shuler on charges of first-degree murder, armed robbery and armed burglary.

Circuit Judge Vernon C. Mize today will schedule a trial for Shuler.

Shuler is accused of killing Herbert N. Allen Jr., assistant manager at the Circle K store, 1806 W. First St., as he worked alone in the store Nov. 19.

The same grand jury heard evidence against Zink on Feb. 19 but declined to indict him. After police complained, the state attorney's office resurrected the case and presented additional witnesses to the grand jury Tuesday and Wednesday.

An olive branch for Managua

President Bush's lifting of a 5-year-old economic embargo against Nicaragua and his request to Congress for $300 million in aid set the right tone for what's bound to be a long and painful reconciliation process in Central America. But given the conflicting signals sent by President Daniel Ortega and his Sandinista Front since they lost the Feb. 25 election, it's hardly certain that these gestures will ensure the short-term transition to democratic government in Nicaragua.

The money (plus $500 million that Bush seeks to help in the rebuilding of Panama) would be diverted, properly, from the defense budget, and includes money to pay for the disbanding of the U.S.-backed Contra rebels. Congress must move quickly, however, despite mounting resistance on Capitol Hill and in the country to increased foreign aid generally. If there's to be demilitarization, economic development and democracy in Central America, as Bush called for, now is the time to act.

Lifting the embargo now and reopening the U.S. market to Nicaraguan exports makes sense; it's a further sign that U.S. policy has genuinely changed. As for the $300 million in aid, its release must await the transfer of power from the Sandinista Front of President-elect Violeta Chamorro on April 25.

Ortega assured Vice President Dan Quayle when they met in Chile that the Sandinistas will turn over power, including control of the key defense and interior ministries, on schedule. Yet there's cause for concern that it may be a hollow promise. The Sandinistas' recent actions have been aimed at undermining Chamorro's government: arming thousands of Sandinista supporters, warning that the Front may not surrender control of the army and secret police, legalizing the confiscation of property by Sandinista officials and demanding the immediate demobilization of the Contras — a demand that Ortega apparently has now retracted.

Much of the Sandinista bluster may be part of the strategy to strengthen themselves in opposition, as with a new law ending press censorship — the better to achieve the voice they often denied others — and to give themselves the all-inclusive amnesty to shield themselves from prosecution. Yet the overriding sense conveyed by such actions is of a movement that neither respects nor knows how to practice the democracy it pretends to embrace.

That said, U.S. policy, now finally on the right track, must be reversed, whatever obstacles lie ahead. Chamorro's victory, the Sandinistas' admission of defeat and the Bush administration's reversal of the U.S. course have created the conditions for a clean break with the past. If the Sandinistas now live up to their threats but not their democratic promises, U.S. policymakers will have to deal with that within the context of a regional peace process that must be guided by Central Americans.

But let's hope it won't have to come to that. Washington can and must play a major supporting role, starting with prompt and generous aid, but it must no longer try to reroute Central American history at gunpoint.

Hot air surrounds Earth Day

MEDINA, Wash. — Not long ago, Edward W. Furia envisioned that he would preside over a global environmental extravaganza with a $30 million budget to mark the 20th anniversary revival of Earth Day this year.

Furia's Earth Day 20 organization never opened an office because he claimed he could orchestrate a dizzying array of concerts, rallies, speeches and other events from his home in a Seattle suburb.

The financing, Furia predicted late last year, would be provided by six corporate sponsors donating $5 million apiece. The centerpiece of his efforts was to have been Earth Week Expo, on the banks of the Columbia River in central Washington.

That "global theater" was to provide a showcase for "guest celebrities," live music, "major addresses by leading figures," elaborate displays and "kinetic exhibits."

But the money has never been forthcoming. "For the most part, it hasn't materialized," admits Furia. The drastically scaled back Earth Week Expo now is likely to resemble the half-dozen concerts a winery routinely sponsors every summer at the amphitheater Furia selected as the site for the event.

Earth Day 20's tribulations unfortunately are emblematic of recent developments as the nation prepares to commemorate the 20th anniversary of the April 22, 1970, events widely credited as having launched the contemporary environmental movement.

The spontaneity and authenticity of the original Earth Day have been supplanted by commercialism and exploitation. A half-dozen different organizations, all self-proclaimed defenders of the environment, maneuver shamelessly for publicity, acclaim and the presumed honor of being the day's leading sponsor.

In New York, the chairman of the Earth Society Foundation, John McConnell, claims that he is the originator of Earth Day, that others have stolen the idea and that it should be held in March rather than April.

The original Earth Day has been supplanted by commercialism and exploitation.

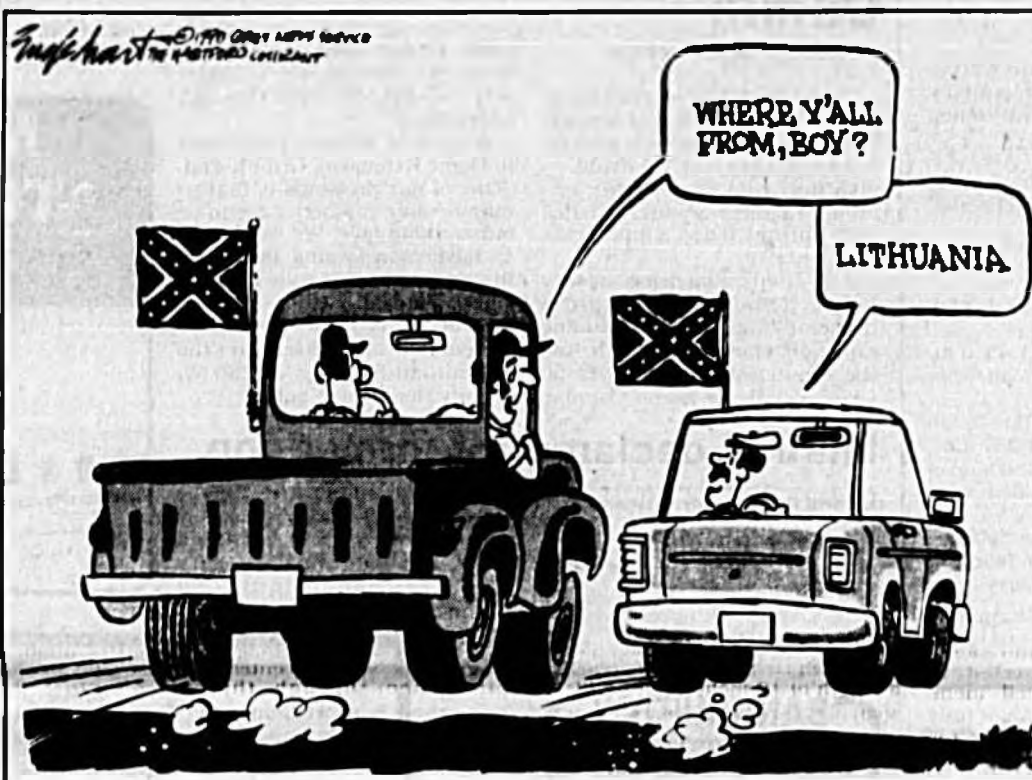

In Palo Alto, Calif., Denis Hayes, a principal organizer of the 1970 events, heads Earth Day 1990, arguably the most successful of the competing sponsors.

Meanwhile, companies hawking everything from ketchup to costume jewelry glibly proclaim their products to be "environmentally sensitive" and view Earth Day as merely a "green marketing" opportunity.

The Chemical Manufacturers Association, whose members have done more than their share to contaminate, pollute and otherwise despoil the planet's natural resources, says Earth Day is "a unique opportunity to demonstrate... our commitment to a safe, healthy and ever-improving environment."

Ashland Oil, responsible for a tank rupture that two years ago dumped 3.8 million gallons of oil into the Monongahela River, says Earth Day is an occasion to remind its stockholders of "the efforts Ashland is making to ensure a healthy environment."

Union Carbide, whose 1984 chemical plant leak of methyl isocyanate in Bhopal, India, killed more than 3,300 people and adversely affected the health of 20,000 others, urges environmentalists "not to miss the opportunity to involve business in a positive way in your Earth Day program."

Another Pole forces choices

WASHINGTON — The Polish people have of late been usefully insurrectionary and now their wholesome spirit has leaped the Atlantic and infected Dan Rostenkowski, Chicago's congressman of the big shoulders has shoved the conversation of the Capitol off dead center with his proposal for reducing the budget deficit with a five-year, $511 billion package of spending cuts and tax increases.

For more than a year, the President has been content to be popular and he shrewdly understands that the key to popularity today is to allow the nation to avoid thinking about national matters. So it has fallen to two Democrats without presidential ambitions to act presidential, meaning to act with an eye on other than parochial concerns.

The Democratic Party is historically the party of turbulent ethnics and Rostenkowski's proposal is, in part, a riposte to that fine broth of a lad, Sen. Pat Moynihan, another disturber of Washington's peace. Moynihan lit a long fuse that is still sputtering toward a powder keg. He proposed cutting Social Security taxes, thereby putting the system on a pay-as-you-go basis and drying up the stream of Social Security revenue surpluses now flowing in at $1 billion a week, heading for $3 billion a week by 1997.

This would (partially) reveal the government's real operating deficit, currently well over $200 billion annually. But it would be more than a pedagogic device: It would force choices — more taxes or less spending or more borrowing, or a mixture.

Although lustily stomped upon by the usual suspects (Republicans who want to keep the deficit disguised, Democrats who flinch from the unaccustomed torture of thought), Moynihan's proposal still has a pulse. And it is going to be put to a vote — an election-year vote on cutting a regressive tax that is, for 74 percent of taxpayers, a heavier burden than the federal income tax.

Rostenkowski, chairman of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, did not cotton to others setting the tax debate. As one Washington zoologist says, Rostenkowski's proposal is his way of roaring. "I may be an old lion, but I am still a lion."

Moynihan's measure would force choices. Rostenkowski goes him one better by making the choices. His proposal is to cut $150 billion from defense over five years, which means cutting 3 percent annually below inflation — about what the administration anticipates anyway. He would eliminate cost-of-living increases for one year, even for Social Security; eliminate tax indexation for one year; freeze domestic spending, except for poverty programs, for one year; increase the gasoline tax 15 cents, double the tax on cigarettes, wine and beer (five-year yield, $101 billion). His package would save $62 billion over five years by reducing interest on borrowings to finance deficits.

Last and almost least (in terms of the five-year dollar amount), Rostenkowski would raise the income-tax rate for the very wealthy from 28 to 33 percent, raising $44.3 billion over five years.

The taxes on gasoline and cigarettes are, in addition to being good social policy, not problematic, politically. Bush knows that when the average voter heard his "no new taxes" pledge, that voter heard a fourth word, "income," between his second and third words. Will Bush muddy his ideological clarity for $44.3 billion, a mere $9 billion a year — a trivial amount in a $5 trillion economy?

Soaking the rich can be good politics for Republicans. (When Democrats do it, people worry that the Democrats are just warming up on the rich, and lurch to raise everyone's taxes.)

What matters most in Rostenkowski's plan is the sharing of vulnerabilities. The Republicans would be involved in raising taxes. Democrats in limiting Social Security. And Bush can cheerfully see income taxes increased for the rich if that is the price of getting for the rich a capital-gains tax cut.

Concerning that, Bush has what can best be called a fixation.

Some analysts think the economy is teetering on the edge of a recession and that this is no time to mount a serious attack on the deficit with either spending cuts or tax increases. But other analysts say: Low capital costs are the best tonic for capitalism, and cutting the deficit will lower interest rates. That matters because of what those Poles have done.

The liberation of Eastern Europe, which began in the Gdansk shipyard, means that capitalism is busting out all over, intensifying the competition for capital, worldwide. With that pressure on interest rates, Rostenkowski is right to try to push them down.

However, Moynihan's may be the better idea for Democrats, precisely because Rostenkowski makes so many painful choices. Moynihan would merely put in place pressure that would compel the making of such choices. That is quite enough for the opposition party to do.

For more than a year, the President has been content to be popular.

Proposed rocket tests cause a stir

WASHINGTON — Some of the people living around the Stennis Space Center on the Mississippi Gulf Coast figure they have received one favor too many from Congress.

Rep. Jaime Whitten, D-Miss., is chairman of the House Appropriations Committee — a position equivalent to Santa Claus when it comes to winning projects for the folks back home. But Whitten's folks back home are in northern Mississippi. He used his clout to put a $1.2 billion program to build space shuttle rocket motors in his district in Yellow Creek, Miss.

But the dirty job of testing the new motors ended up at the Stennis Space Center in southern Mississippi. The testing involves laying one of the solid-fuel rocket boosters on its side, igniting it and letting it burn. In the process, the booster spews out 240,000 pounds of hydrogen chloride and 375,000 pounds of aluminum oxide.

Robert Esher, head of environmental research at the Mississippi State University Research Center, contends that, under the right conditions, that plume of exhaust could turn into 400 tons of hydrochloric acid which would fall to the earth as acid rain.

That's not southern Mississippi's idea of an attractive gift from the federal government.

The environmental controversy over the proposed tests is just the latest in a series of stumbling blocks for the advanced solid-fuel rocket booster motor that was designed to enhance shuttle safety after the Challenger explosion.

NASA is building the motor over the objection of its own Aeronautics Safety Advisory Panel, which last spring said a liquid-fueled motor would be a better way to go.

We reported in August that Whitten was able to steer the project to an abandoned nuclear plant site in his district. At the time, NASA officials told us that the decision to go with a solid rocket booster plant in Mississippi had nothing to do with winning Whitten's backing on the Appropriations Committee.

Whitten's pull in Congress is little help to those near the Stennis Space Center who don't want the tests. Esher at Mississippi State University and others are demanding that NASA either install a scrubber to trap pollutants or test the rockets in a less sensitive environment.

NASA contends that the exhaust plume will go high enough to disperse, and the effects will be negligible.

Why is NASA even considering the poison-belching motors if a liquid-fueled version is a possibility?

Russell Bardos, NASA's deputy director for systems engineering, told our reporter Greg Moore that the solid-fuel version is cheaper and can be built faster. The liquid-fueled motor would take about $2.5 billion to develop.

Jerry Grey is with the private American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics. We asked him who is correct in this debate of liquid vs. solid. He told us the liquid-fuel motor could be ready in the same amount of time it will take to adequately test an advanced solid-fuel motor to make sure it is safe for use. And the safety issue is the reason NASA needs a new solid rocket motor in the first place.

As for cost, the Challenger disaster cost the taxpayers $15 billion, and Grey contends that accident could have been avoided if NASA had been using a liquid-fueled motor in the first place.

Exhaust could turn into 400 tons of hydrochloric acid which would fall to the earth as acid rain.

Eye clinic sponsors free exams

SANFORD — The Florida Eye Clinic will sponsor free cataract and glaucoma vision screening and cholesterol testing at the Holiday Inn on Lake Monroe in Sanford on Saturday, March 24, from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Attending the screenings will be Stephen M. Brooks, M.D., director of the Florida Eye Clinic Orlando and Kissimmee offices.

Brooks is an ophthalmologist specializing in cataract and lens implant surgery and is team ophthalmologist for the Orlando Magic.

Drs. Alfred H. Cann, III and Richard H. Daugherty, clinic directors of the Sanford office, will also be on hand.

Refreshments will be served. For more information, call 280-1678 or toll free, 1-800-853-0102.

Lawmakers to discuss school issues

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary High School Local School Advisory Committee is sponsoring an open forum with three area state legislators to talk about educational issues facing Seminole County. The forum will be Monday, March 26, at 7:30 p.m., at the Lake Mary High School auditorium.

After speaking, Senator Richard Langley, Clermont; Rep. Frank Stone, Casselberry; and Rep. Art Grindle, Altamonte Springs will answer questions from the audience.

Prenatal care class booked up

SANFORD — The Seminole County Public Health Unit is having "the Biggest Baby Shower in Seminole County," at 6:30 p.m. tonight, but reservations are required and the event is booked up. The seminar's purpose is to educate pregnant women on prenatal care and will be at the department's auditorium, 240 West Airport Blvd. There will be presentations by local health officials and hospital officials. There will be door prizes and exhibition tables. For more information, call 322-2724, ext. 3370.

Census

Haitian singer who became a U.S. citizen in 1985. In 1980 the Census showed about 18,000 Haitians living in Dade. Local officials believe that number is closer to 100,000; they hope Mazarin can convince many who are fearful of the government to be counted.

"I tell them if their children go to school or if they drive on the streets you are already in the system," Mazarin says. "I tell them it is in their interest to be counted." Perhaps no city has as elaborate a census program as Baltimore. Mayor Kurt Schmoke estimates that the 1980 Census undercounted his city's population by about 29,000 — mostly among the city's needy and disadvantaged. He estimates this undercount has cost Baltimore tens of millions in federal aid.

So last year, Loyola College demographer Jal Poong Nyu, along with former Rep. Parren Mitchell, headed up Baltimore's $300,000 Census effort. Aided by a full-time staff and more than 350 volunteers, the "Complete Count Committee" has blitzed the city with posters, bumper stickers, banners.

"The kind of people we want to reach," says Nyu, "have a negative attitude toward government. We want to assure them if they agree to be counted their landlords won't find out how many are living in an apartment and raise their rents, or the INS (Immigration and Naturalization Service) will not come knocking at their doors, or they will not lose welfare benefits if they admit a man lives in the house."

Actually, because of past undercounts, the 1980 Census results might have to be reported twice.

As a result of a lawsuit filed by New York, Dade County (Miami), Los Angeles and other cities, the Commerce Department agreed last July to a settlement under which it would review the 1980 results with an eye on possibly revising some counts upward if it appears another significant undercount has occurred. Because the Census must report its apportionment findings by Dec. 31, the initial figures will come out with what amounts to an asterisk. Even as the initial 1990 figures are reported to the president, Census investigators will be involved in an audit of 150,000 randomly selected households. Based partly on the results of that audit, Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher will have until July 15, 1991 to decide whether an adjustment will have to be made in the initial numbers.

This compromise was necessary because the suit could potentially have delayed the 1990 Census while it was being litigated and appealed. However, the possibility of revised numbers has many people upset, especially in those states that stand to gain or lose congressional seats. It is possible that six months after reapportionment, new numbers adjusted for an undercount will require some states to reapportion again.

Insiders say that such a revision will probably not occur. Under the settlement, 12 different conditions will have to be met before a statistical adjustment can be ordered. Those wanting the adjustment will have to "show overwhelmingly" that an undercount has occurred. That will be very difficult, and that is why it is unlikely that Mosbacher will order the figures revised.

This, however, will undoubtedly anger big cities, and new lawsuits are sure to result.

committee, which includes members of both the Seminole County and Sanford chambers and city and county elected officials, are seeking ways to make U.S. Highway 17-92 into the "Main Street" of Seminole County within the next 15 years.

That U.S. 17-92 Main Street will have different sections each with its own unique character. Sanford will become the northern anchor of project, visualized as the upscale waterfront historic community of Seminole County.

South of Sanford, the committee established two segments they will study for development and beautification possibilities.

The SCC cultural segment extends south from Airport Boulevard to County Road 427. The committee will look at ways of landscaping U.S. 17-92 and placing signs along the highway to identify that area as the educational and cultural center of the county.

South of the SCC segment, extending to Shepard Road through the Spring Hammock park area, will become the "Central Park" section of the county. Roadway landscaping and signage will be designed to enhance the driver's impression they're entering a park setting.

South of Spring Hammock's park areas, the remaining length of U.S. 17-92 will be studied for enhancing the office and retail attractions along the road.

SCC is developing its image as a community service center to businessmen through their Business and Support Center in the Vocational Education Building at the north end of the campus.

Keith Samuels, SCC vice president for instruction, said he sees the college one day becoming the center of culture for the county.

"We see the college as being the critical location in the county that can bring together a neutral group from around the county to discuss ideas," Samuels said.

Part of Samuels' personal dream is to have a performing arts center built on the campus, possibly a state and county government joint venture with a private developer. While not as big as the 2,500 seat Bob Carr Performing Arts Center in Orlando, Samuels said a smaller facility would still allow symphonic performances and off-Broadway productions to come to Seminole County.

Samuels said the center might also be used for small conventions, but hastens to add he would not compete with any similar plans being considered for the Sanford Civic Center.

"I wouldn't want us to compete," Samuels said. "Our goal is draw the county together, creating a celebration across the county."

SCC has already begun an active outreach program in an effort to become a business resource for the community.

Gloria Pickar, dean of the SCC Open Campus, said the SCC Business and Support Center is a group of training programs designed to encourage economic development of the county and to establish a "partnership" with the business community of the county.

Pickar said employees at the American Automobile Association, Stromberg-Carlson and Emerson Electric have all received specialized training at the campus using a state-financed Sunshine State Skill and Industry Services economic development grant. Pickar said the grants pay about half the cost of training for a new or expanding company's employees.

Pickar said SCC offers businessmen customized training and seminars and can offer satellite conferencing services for businesses.

County. The added congressional representatives would bring the state's total to 23.

The Census count that begins April 1 is the first step in the process of reapportionment, the redistribution of congressional districts among the states according to their populations.

County elections supervisor

Sandra Goard said the Census count will determine where the largest population increase has occurred in the county which will indicate where the new congressional and legislative districts will be. But Goard said that district may be in the Oviedo area which has seen the most rapid growth in the county recently.

The Constitution ensures that each state will have at least one representative in the 435-member House of Representatives. From there, the remaining 385 seats are divided up according to each state's population.

Kimball Brace, president of Election Data Services, and other analysts estimated this week that when the Census is complete the ideal congressional district will have a population of about 550,000.

Because of the continuing migration of people from the Frostbelt to the Sunbelt, 12 northern states may lose seats. New York, Michigan, Illinois, Ohio and Pennsylvania will be hardest hit.

Developers not responsible for tortoises

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

WINTER PARK — Developers of a large regional mall planned for Sanford will have to pay for the land they will take away from tortoises, but will not be responsible for moving the animals, the regional planning council decided yesterday.

The East Central Florida Planning Council yesterday voted to require Indianapolis mall developer Melvin Simon & Associates to pay $75,000 to a wildlife trust fund for their impact on gopher tortoise habitats. Instead of only $60,000 as recommended by a planning council subcommittee.

The group agreed that the developer should use $12,000 of the mitigation fee to pay for relocation of 117 gopher tortoises located on the 214-acre mall site.

The medium-sized turtles are at issue as a "species of special concern," listed by state law largely because development is depleting their numbers. Environmentalists say the animals will disappear entirely from the area if they are not relocated, but the developers say the turtles will safely migrate when construction begins.

Greg Gologowski, director of project review for the planning council, said the number of tortoises located on the site is unusually large. Moving the animals, however, would be nearly impossible. And high-intensity commercial development would not be a good neighbor to any creatures preserved on the mall site, he said.

"The highest concentration turns out to be right under Ivey's (department store), Gologowski said.

The only alternative to moving the tortoises is requiring the developer to contribute to a wildlife trust fund, similar to funds in the Jacksonville and Ocala areas where money collected is used for wildlife projects in the region, Gologowski said.

But council member Peter Gottfried, a Winter Park city commissioner, said a fee would not be sufficient to deal with the wildlife issue.

"Are we saying a species protected by state statute will be allowed to be bulldozed?" Gottfried asked. "How do you deal with that? That's a second-degree misdemeanor."

Sanford City Commissioner A.A. McClanahan tried to persuade fellow council members to make the developer fully responsible for relocating the tortoises. The council overwhelmingly defeated his proposed amendment to delete from the development order a sentence reading, "The developer assumes no responsibility for the permitting related to any gopher tortoise relocation efforts."

But, McClanahan said, the defeat of his amendment will not close the issue. All five Sanford city commissioners want the tortoises removed and will discuss their concerns during the city's review of the development order April 9.

"Although my four contemporaries may disagree with me philosophically over the $6 million, we do agree on one thing: the gopher tortoises should be saved," McClanahan said.

(McClanahan referred to the commission's 4-to-1 vote last week to use $6.2 million of property taxes collected on the mall site to pay for mall roads.)

A number of groups and individuals have offered to donate land and labor for relocation of the tortoises, McClanahan said. The developers should be responsible for coordinating all of the labor and logistics required for relocation, he said.

The gopher tortoise is unique in Florida because of its flat forelimbs used for digging. The turtles live in the burrows they dig, which are also used by more than 80 species of wildlife. The turtle, whose brown shells reach a length of 12 inches, have a life span of more than 70 years.

Mall

area would be considerably less.

Adrienne Perry, Longwood city commissioner and planning council member, said she was concerned that more attention was focused on the displaced turtles than the low-income people who will make up the mall work force. If developers could pay a fee for its impact on wildlife, she said, they should be willing to pay for the housing needs they will create.

"I am not anti-environment by any sense of the word, but as I sit here for more than an hour debating these gopher turtles, it occurs to me that an individual making $11,000 a year is a human endangered species," Perry said.

"As readily as (the developer) came up with $12,000 for the turtles, might he also be able to come up with funds for housing in the Sanford area?" she asked the council.

Perry called for the creation of a subcommittee to develop an affordable housing impact fee — much like another committee created yesterday to establish wildlife mitigation fees — but the council never voted on her motion.

Planning council member A.A. McClanahan, a Sanford city commissioner, said he is concerned about Sanford's affordable housing needs. Although an impact fee is needed, he said, the fee should be established before any developer is charged.

The mall site was annexed into Sanford last week, when commissioners agreed to create a special taxing district for the mall to pay for mall roads with property taxes collected on the 214 acres for the next 14 years.

The development will include a 1.2 million square foot mall.

Park

area. The area includes Big Tree Park, Soldier's Creek park and the school board's Environmental Study Center.

"I'm awfully encouraged that they're looking at Spring Hammock as the central park of Seminole County because that is what it is," says Pat Burkett, a teacher at the Environmental Study Center and a proponent of growth and preservation of the 1,500-acre area for more than 10 years. "We need this kind of support because we're not out of the woods yet."

Burkett cites development pressures on U.S. 17-92 in the Spring Hammock area that threatens the preservation of the wetlands. One business, a car dealership, fronts on U.S. 17-92 and several other businesses skirt the edges of the area.

"I believe that will help," says Polly Miller, natural resources chairman of the Seminole County League of Women Voters. "There's no reason every square inch of ground beside the roadway should be given over to ugly businesses hawking their wares."

The sales manager for Baird-Ray Nissan, located on U.S. 17-92 in Spring Hammock, says dealership owner Bill Ray is willing to participate in any "fair" landscaping scheme the committee may call for.

"It has never been the policy of Mr. Ray to obstruct the betterment of the community," says Mike Frank, sales manager for the firm. "He is willing to go along with anything that's fair. But I don't think he would support anything that completely obstructs our customer's view of the business."

Frank says despite some desires of Spring Hammock preservationists that the dealership and other businesses in the area weren't there at all, those businesses are there to stay for the foreseeable future.

"Since we are here, it will be difficult to make things the way they were 50 years ago," Frank says.

Seminole County planners already have the thought of turning U.S. 17-92 into a park entrance in mind. Colleen Logan, the county's natural resources planner, says a Spring Hammock management plan completed last year for the county recommends erection of park-like entrance signs at the north and south edges of the area, possibly constructed of stone and wood.

The management plan was developed by the consulting firm Glatting, Lopez, Kercher & Anglin.

Logan says county officials have also considered landscaping the center median of U.S. 17-92 and the roadside with natural vegetation to enhance the park-like setting as motorists travel through the area.

Logan says the county also plans to develop during the next several years ballfields, hiking trails and camping sites in Spring Hammock. An observation tower will one day overlook the preservation area near the western shore of Lake Jesup if the state approves the plans, she says.

The cost of the management plan hasn't been calculated yet, Logan says, although $50,000 has been earmarked to begin some fencing and park entrance work.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Two buses fired on near St. Louis

Snipers fired on two buses near St. Louis today, the 18th and 17th incidents of gunmen shooting at Greyhound buses since a nationwide strike against the nation's largest intercity bus line began three weeks ago.

The shootings came a day after the company's announcement that it has expanded passenger service to about half the routes it operated before some 9,000 workers walked off their jobs March 2.

Japanese retailer buys 7-Eleven

DALLAS — Southland Corp., parent company of the 7-Eleven convenience store chain, announced today it will sell 75 percent of the world's largest convenience chain to its business partner in Japan.

Ito-Yokado Co., Ltd., Japan's largest retailer, said in Tokyo that it will purchase three-fourths of Southland Corp. for $400 million.

'Cosby' producers want big bonus

LOS ANGELES — Producers of "The Cosby Show" asked the National Broadcasting Co. for an unprecedented $100 million "signing bonus" to renew the top hit TV sitcom for another season, it was reported today.

The Los Angeles Times said the network is unlikely to pay the huge bonus, but added that the unprecedented demand illustrates the magnitude of the stakes involved in the network ratings battle NBC has won the past six years.

Although the producers of "The Cosby Show," Carsey-Werner Co., will not get their asking price, the eventual fee figures still to be enough to wipe out NBC's profits on the hugely successful show starring Bill Cosby.

Renewing the show at such a price would indicate the network's willingness to keep it as a "loss leader" to attract audiences for the rest of its lineup, especially the shows that follow "Cosby" on Thursday nights.

Broccoli doesn't grow on Bush

WASHINGTON — President Bush has welcomed news that California growers, steamed over his personal ban on broccoli, have shipped 10 tons of the vegetable that he detests to a food bank for the poor in Washington.

"I'm delighted, but I'm not going to rethink my position," said Bush, who has banned broccoli from Air Force One and his own plate. "Barbara is delighted."

Asked if there were other vegetables that he did not like, Bush told reporters, "Yeah, but I don't want to get 10 tons of them."

Panel votes ban on U.S. assault guns

WASHINGTON — A House Judiciary subcommittee voted Wednesday to expand restrictions on semiautomatic rifles by including U.S.-made weapons in the ban President Bush imposed on similar foreign firearms.

On a 5-3 vote, the panel approved the bill that also provides a 10-year mandatory minimum prison sentence for persons who use or carry so-called assault weapons during a violent crime or drug-related crime. The bill now goes to the full Judiciary Committee.

Baker urged to keep up U.S. pressure to end apartheid

United Press International

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — A black leader who went to prison with Nelson Mandela urged Secretary of State James Baker today not to ease pressure on South Africa until the white minority government dismantles apartheid and "has no way of going back."

Baker came to South Africa to commend reformist President F. W. de Klerk for his efforts to break up the institutional policy of racial separation and to encourage such steps as releasing all political prisoners. The two are scheduled to meet later Thursday.

But in an initial meeting with leaders of the anti-apartheid African National Congress and other black groups, he received a polite but firm rebuff for his mission to de Klerk.

Govan Mbeki, 69, who went to prison with Mandela for his opposition to apartheid, and eight other black leaders met with Baker at a palatial hillside U.S. diplomatic residence and told him his meeting with de Klerk is not helpful.

"We are not happy with the fact the secretary has come to consult with the South African government," Mbeki said.

"Our message to the American government and the American people is to continue to impose pressure on South Africa and not to relax at all until such time as the position of the South African government has no way of going back," Mbeki said.

Baker's meeting with de Klerk is the highest level contact between the United States and the white minority government since Secretary of State Cyrus Vance met with President P.W. Botha in 1978.

Baker smiled in rejecting the criticism of his meeting with de Klerk.

"We should encourage a continuation of the type of steps that South Africa should take. If (the talks) is not a reward, it is using whatever influence we have to encourage the South African government to move forward to dismantle apartheid and to a multi-party democracy," Baker said.

The message delivered to Baker by the black leaders was the same he received from Mandela on Wednesday in what was termed "positive" talks in Windhoek, Namibia.

Mandela, who spent 27 years in prison until de Klerk ordered his release last month, told Baker on Wednesday the talks could indicate the United States and other nations are easing their economic sanctions against South Africa because of de Klerk's reform efforts.

"We do not think that there has been any fundamental change in the policy of the national government," Mandela told reporters.

Mandela, Baker and scores of other international dignitaries were in Namibia to celebrate the southern African nation's independence after more than a century of colonial rule.

Japan's stock market plummets

United Press International

TOKYO — The U.S. dollar's steady rise against the Japanese yen sent the Tokyo Stock Exchange plummeting again today, with the key Nikkei Average falling below 30,000 yen for the first time in 15 months.

A 1,000-yen recovery in afternoon trading saved the market from suffering the second-steep loss since the global "Black Monday" collapse of October 1987.

The Nikkei Average of 225 selected issues, which set the second-worst fall of 1,836.07 yen in panic selling in the morning, rallied in the afternoon to close at 29,843.34 yen, down 963.85 yen, still the seventh-sharpest fall on record.

It was the first time since December 1988 that the average had fallen below 30,000 yen.

The Nikkei lost 9,072.53 yen, or 23.3 percent, of its value since it rose to a record high of 38,915.87 yen Dec. 29.

TOPIX, or the TSE Index of all listed major shares, lost 100.01 points to 2,173.17, for the second-worst fall following a record 307.27 point plunge in the wake of "Black Monday."

The dollar rose 1.18 yen to close at 154.83 yen.

Government gives in to Hungarian demands

United Press International

TIRGU MURES, Romania — Signs of normalcy appeared in Tirgu Mures today after two days of ethnic rioting but the Transylvanian city remained under emergency rule with troops and tanks guarding the main square.

Shoppers lined up to buy fresh bread as bakeries opened for the first time in several days and a number of stores also opened for business.

Clusters of ethnic Hungarians and Romanians continued to mill around the central square under the watchful eyes of government troops but there were no reports of violence.

The interim government revised the official death toll from Tuesday's ethnic clashes, saying three people were killed, not six as reported Wednesday.

"Two died in clashes and one was hit by a car on the city outskirts," the official news agency Rompres said. It said 298 people were wounded, including 36 who remained hospitalized.

Thirty-eight people were arrested for their part in storming the headquarters of Tirgu Mures office of the Hungarian Democratic Union on Monday, the incident that triggered Romania's worst ethnic unrest since World War II, Rompres said.

Wednesday, the provisional government moved to quell the unrest by acceding to several controversial demands by the country's 2 million ethnic Hungarians.

Deputy Prime Minister Gelu Voican, speaking to about 1,000 ethnic Hungarians in Tirgu Mures Wednesday night, promised separate schools for the minority along with streets signs and newspapers in the Hungarian language.

But within hours of the speech, some city residents were predicting a new wave of violence, saying the concessions would infuriate Romanian nationalists.

IN BRIEF

BASKETBALL

Sixers show no mercy on Heat

Maybe the Philadelphia 76ers have learned something from watching the faltering New York Knicks, who have fallen out first place in the Atlantic Division by losing to teams they should have beaten.

The Sixers played host to the second-year expansion team Miami Heat, who were missing their leading scorer at the opening tip and lost their second leading scorer before halftime.

The Sixers showed no mercy, chipping the Heat 118-97 Wednesday night.

Every 76er who got into the game scored, led by Hersey Hawkins with a game-high 25 points.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Washington pounded New Jersey 136-106, Chicago overcame Atlanta 99-89, Boston stopped Cleveland 123-114, Charlotte upset Phoenix 115-114 in overtime, Utah trapped the L.A. Clippers 118-102, Sacramento topped Minnesota 90-84, and Indianapolis powered past Milwaukee 112-96.

GOLF AND TENNIS

Chamber plans tournaments

The Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce will hold its 1990 Golf and Tennis Tournament this coming Sunday at Sweetwater Country Club in Apopka.

Entry fee for the golf tournament is $65 per player, which includes cart and greens fee. Registration is at 8:30 a.m. with a putting contest at 9 a.m. before the 10 a.m. tee-off.

There will also be hole-in-one prizes.

For the tennis tournament, the entry fee is $35 per player. Play will be in a round robin format. Registration begins at 10 a.m. with the tournament slated to start at 11 a.m.

SOCCER

Lions open exhibition season

With the start of the American Soccer League season less than a month away, the Orlando Lions will play their first exhibition match this Sunday against Swedish professional team FC Helsingborgers.

The game, which is scheduled to start at 2:30 p.m., will be played at the Lions' Den training facility across from the Florida Citrus Bowl.

Admission for adults is $2 per person. All youth 12 and under will be admitted free.

SOFTBALL

Teams sought for marathon

Men's and women's slow pitch softball teams of all classes are invited to play in Cindy Shaw's second annual All-Night Softball Marathon on April 21 and 22 at Tampa's Gadsden Park.

Entry deadline is April 14. Divisions available for the tournament are Low/low for inexperienced teams out for fun, Low/low for teams with some experience, Middle for fairly good teams with experience, and High for stronger teams looking for stronger competition.

Medals will be awarded to the top four finishers in each division. The winners get gold medals and the runners-up get silver, while the third place team gets bronze and the fourth place team copper.

For details call Cindy Shaw at 813/874-5827.

HOCKEY

Hull makes history in loss

The St. Louis Blues, fighting to hold on to first place in the Norris Division, lost an 8-6 shootout with the Edmonton Oilers Wednesday night, but became part of history when star forward Brett Hull scored his 70th goal of the season.

Hull is only the sixth NHL player to score 70 goals in a season, joining Phil Esposito, Wayne Gretzky (four times), Larry Kubiak, Mario Lemieux (twice) and Bernie Nicholls.

Hull scored at 17:47 of the second period after Peter Zezel won a faceoff in the Edmonton zone. The goal pulled St. Louis to within 6-5.

The Blues still hold a one-point lead for first place in the division, but the second place Chicago Blackhawks have two game-straight wins.

Elsewhere in the NHL, the NY Rangers tied Toronto 5-5, Hartford whipped Quebec 11-1, Buffalo stopped Calgary 5-4 and Winnipeg edged Montreal 3-2.

Raiders on win streak

SCC wins two straight for first time this year

By DEAN SMITH
Herald sports writer

SANFORD — The Seminole Community College baseball team won back-to-back games for the first time this season, taking a 13-10 victory over St. John's River in Mid-Florida Conference action at Raider Field Wednesday.

The stars of the game for the Raiders were designated hitter Daks Rodriguez and relief pitcher Corey Coljeski. Rodriguez, a freshman from Merritt Island, drove in six runs with two doubles and two singles. His one-out, two-run double in the seventh broke a 9-9 tie.

Coljeski, a sophomore right-hander from Lake Howell, came into the game with the bases loaded and no one out in the seventh and the score 9-8 SCC. After giving up an infield single to tie the score at 9-9, he retired the next six men he faced, allowing an unearned run in the ninth to pick up his first win of 1990.

The win increases SCC's record to 4-20 overall and, more importantly, raises their conference record to 3-9, keeping alive their slim hopes of making the state tournament. The loss drops St. John's River to 13-15 overall and 4-7 in conference play.

The Raiders will play their third conference game in as many days today when they travel to Jacksonville to take on Florida Community College at the FCCJ North campus starting at 3 p.m.

SCC will return home for non-conference games on Friday and Saturday. On Friday, the Raiders RMC's Dan Gill (left) eventually scored after this play, but it didn't keep third baseman Tom George and his Killer Bee teammates from posting a 15-8 in Wednesday Night Softball League play at Chase Park.

Killer Bees a win closer to Wednesday Night title

From staff reports

SANFORD — The Killer Bees took another step towards the league title as Harcar Aluminum Products broke a three-game losing streak in the Sanford Recreation Department Wednesday Night Softball League at Chase Park.

The Killer Bees bested RMC 15-8 and Harcar won the battle for second place with a 4-2 decision over Whiskey River. With the victories, the Killer Bees go to 7-1 and Harcar to 5-4. The rest of the standings have Whiskey River at 4-5, the Sanford Police Benevolent Association at 3-4 and RMC at 2-7.

Next week's schedule has SPBA taking on Whiskey River at 6:30 p.m. with Harcar facing RMC at 7:30 p.m. The Killer Bees have the week off.

The first game of the evening saw RMC jump out to a 5-0 lead in the top of the first inning. But the Killer Bees scored three runs in the second and two in the third to tie the game, then took the lead with three runs in the fourth.

The Killer Bees also added four runs in the fifth and three in the sixth to pick up the easy victory.

Providing the offense for the Killer

Bees were Mitch Burke (double, three singles, run scored), Tom Galhan (four singles, run scored), Neal Miller (three singles, three runs scored) and Mark Raggentin (three singles, two runs scored).

Also contributing were Ric Holt and Tom George (two singles, two runs scored), Dave Andrews (two singles, run scored), Eric Erickson (two singles), Keith Roark (two runs scored) and Tim Weaver (run scored).

Doing the damage for RMC were Tom Lewis (three singles, run scored), Mike D'Amico (home run, single, run scored), Randy Covell (double, single, run scored), Bob Keeney (two singles, two runs scored), Dan Gall (two singles, run scored), Benito Aydes (two singles), Delton McCormick (single, run scored), Mark Morden, James Ledford and Ron Dexter (one single each) and John D'Amico (run scored).

In the second game, Harcar scored single runs in the first and third innings and two runs in the fifth to pick up the win despite being outlit 11-4. Whiskey River collected one run in each of the second and sixth innings.

Top girls teams in spotlight of Howell Relays

By TONY DeSORMIER
Herald Sports Editor

CASSELLBERRY — We're just about halfway there. Tonight's Lake Howell Relays track meet comes just about at the midway point of the high school track and field season, which opened Feb. 10 and culminates with the state championship meets on May 10 and 11.

According to Lake Howell girls' coach Tom Hammonree, tonight's meet should feature some outstanding competition as 20 girls' teams have committed to participate in the event.

Eight or nine boys' teams will also take part in the meet.

All the Seminole Athletic Conference teams will be in attendance tonight with the exception of both Lake Brantley teams, the Seminole boys and the Lyman boys.

Highlighting the girls' meet is four-time state champion Semmoles. The Tribe girls should face some stiff challenges on all fronts from the likes of Leesville, Astronaut, Winter Park, New Smyrna Beach, Dr. Phillips, Coronado Beach and Jones.

An added treat will be the presence of St. Albans High School from Washington, D.C.

"It should be a very competitive meet," said Hammonree.

All the events in the meet will be relays with the exception of the 100-meter dash, 110 and 120 high hurdles and the mile run. The rest of the running events will be four-man relays while the field events will be three-man relays (the results of the three athletes are added together to create a team result).

The meet will start at 4 p.m. with the field events at 5 p.m. The running preliminaries are scheduled to begin with the running finals set to start at 6:30 p.m.

Sheryl Palumbo and her Lake Howell teammates will have their hands full trying to keep pace with the tough 20 team field in tonight's Lake Howell Relays.

Oviedo girls 'cycle' past Highlanders

From staff reports

ORLANDO — Lisa Hollon tossed a one-hitter and April Manning and Carrie MacLeod each hit for the cycle as Oviedo trounced Lake Highland 21-2 in high school softball action Wednesday.

The win raises the Lions record to 12-3 while Lake Highland falls to 3-6. Oviedo gets back into Seminole Athletic Conference play today when it travels to Deland to take on the Bulldogs at 4 p.m.

Oviedo pounded the ball for 20 hits and scored at least two runs in every inning but the third. Hollon, meanwhile, advanced her personal record to 12-2 as she gave up the two runs on one hit in the first inning. The Highlanders never threatened thereafter as the game was stopped after six by the mercy rule.

Manning led the way with a 5-for-5 game that included two home runs, a triple, a double, a single and seven RBI. MacLeod was right behind, going 4-for-5 with a home run, triple, double, single and five RBI. Also having good games for the Lions were Michele Schaffo (3-for-5, three RBI) and Christie Montone and Hollon (2 for 5 and three RBI each).

Short spring may hurt Lake Howell graduate Martinez

United Press International

WEST LAFAYETTE — Young players trying to crack the Montreal Expos roster may not be the only ones hurt by baseball's abbreviated spring training camp.

Dave Martinez, a graduate of Lake Howell High School, could lose the chance to become the everyday center fielder. Martinez and Otis Nixon have played on center since the Expos began camp in Clear Lake, Calif., last week.

Hampered by a shoulder problem late in the season, Martinez hit .222 in September and had trouble throwing. "I think I'll still get the chance for the full-time job," Martinez, 25, said. "I think I deserve the chance. My shoulder is fine. I've been working regularly since January."

Though he lives in Schaumburg, Ill., Martinez moved in with his parents, who still live in Winter Springs, shortly after Christmas. Along with teammate Tim Lincecum of Sanford and the Detroit Tigers, Martinez is one of the few players in the area who have a family in Lake Mary High School.

Jersey swamps where Blue Devils want to be for round of Sweet 16

United Press International

The Duke Blue Devils do enjoy playing in the swamplands of New Jersey.
 No. 14 Duke, 26-8, will make its fourth Sweet 16 appearance in five years at East Rutherford, N.J., a sports complex surrounded by marshes and wasteland. The Blue Devils, who have reached the Final Four three of the last four years, are 9-1 at the Meadowlands.
 "I can't tell you why," Duke guard Phil Henderson said. "Once you start winning at a certain place there's a certain psychological advantage."
 The Blue Devils meet the UCLA Bruins in the second game of the East semifinals, with No. 3 Connecticut meeting Alabama in the opener.

Duke and UCLA have ridden similar roller coasters this season in reaching the Sweet 16. After dropping four of six before the tournament Duke appears on its way back.
 A month ago, UCLA, 22-10, was on a five-game losing streak. Now the Bruins are the only Pac-10 team left in the field. The Bruins are vying for their 11th NCAA Tournament crown.

"It's good to have traditions," UCLA forward Trevor Wilson said. "We talk about what's happened in the past, but it has no bearing on the game. We came here to play basketball and make our own traditions."

Henderson, who criticized his teammates for poor play, is joined in the backcourt by freshman Bobby Hurley, Alaa Abdelnabby, Christian Lactner and Robert Brickley make up the frontline.

"Our team is a good defensive team, not an excellent team," Coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "UCLA is the team playing its best defense right now."

Up front, UCLA goes with Wilson, Don MacLean and Tracy

United Press International

Murray, with Darrick Martin and Gerald Maddins at guard.
 "I look at our club as being very balanced," UCLA Coach Jim Harrick said. "Duke is the same way. I would tend to say that the team that can do it all will come out on top."
 Clemson and Connecticut drew on defense to win league titles. No. 17 Clemson, 26-8, draws its strength from Elden Campbell (recovering from the flu) and Dale Davis, the 6-foot-11 frontliner hailed as the Duo of Doom.

The brunt of the Huskies' floor-length press falls on Tigers point guard Marion Cash. Clemson is capable of chaotic play, and Connecticut is the sort of team that exploits such weakness.

The Midwest semifinals also begin on Thursday night with North Carolina meeting the eighth-ranked Arkansas Razorbacks. The second game brings together the Xavier Musketeers and the Texas Longhorns.

The Tar Heels, who upset top-seeded Oklahoma to reach the Round of 16, will be without 6-foot-6 senior Kevin Madden, who tore up a knee in practice this week.

"We are terribly disappointed," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith. "It's sickening. Losing a player like Kevin hurts our team chemistry."

Madden had scored in double figures in six of his last eight games and his 14 points were very instrumental in the Tar Heels' win over Oklahoma.

On Friday the other two regional semifinals begin with Syracuse meeting Minnesota and Michigan State playing Georgia Tech in New Orleans for the Southeast bracket and Loyola Marymount meeting Alabama and Nevada-Las Vegas playing Ball State at Oakland, Calif., in the West.

Report claims Valvano will be asked to resign

United Press International

RALEIGH, N.C. — North Carolina State basketball coach Jim Valvano will be asked to resign because of academic problems of his players and a pattern of problems with campus police, a report said Thursday.

The News and Observer of Raleigh quotes unnamed sources as saying new evidence has surfaced about academic problems within the Wolfpack basketball program.

The newspaper had no comment from Valvano, who could not be reached by UPI early Thursday.

At an emergency meeting of the university's board of trustees Tuesday, Interim Chancellor Larry Monteith released a report about a widespread lack of academic progress by some basketball players during Valvano's 10-year tenure.

Monteith also showed the board a report on previously unreleased complaints filed by campus police that show a pattern of some basketball players getting into trouble. The sources told the newspaper.

No specific details on the academic problems or police complaints were mentioned in the published article.

The newspaper's sources said university negotiator Howard Manning asked for one week to get Valvano's resignation. The trustees agreed not to release the negative information about the academic problems if Valvano resigns, but added the information would be made public if he does not resign.

An investigation last year by the University of North Carolina system found academic policies had been "bent" to accommodate basketball players, but found no evidence to support allegations made by sports author Peter Golenbock.

In the book "Personal Fouls,"

United Press International

Golenbock alleged some Wolfpack basketball players maintained eligibility when failing grades were changed and positive drug test results hidden.

The investigation led to a probe by the NCAA that ended with the disclosure of eight NCAA violations within the basketball program, including players selling complimentary game tickets and game shoes.

The team was placed on two years of probation and banned from the NCAA tournament this season. Valvano was stripped of his title as athletics director when the University of North Carolina Board of Governors said no one could be a head coach and an athletics director.

The university and Valvano have been negotiating for several weeks to end the coach's career at N.C. State, however Valvano has a buyout clause in his contract that requires the university to pay him $500,000 if he is terminated for any reason other than a felony conviction or involvement in a major NCAA violation.

Last month, former Wolfpack cager Charles Shackelford, now with the New Jersey Nets, admitted he took cash payments from two men while he was at N.C. State.

However, Shackelford denied accusations made by an anonymous person to ABC News that the money was to pay players to shave points.

Nestle Invitational features an international field

United Press International

ORLANDO — A glittering international field at this week's Nestle Invitational is set to place varying accent marks on one of the PGA's toughest finishing holes.

Two-time Masters champion Seve Ballesteros, Britons Nick Faldo and Sandy Lyle, West Germany's Bernhard Langer and Iso Aoki of Japan head a foreign brigade for Thursday's opening round of the $900,000 PGA event, which has benefited from a schedule change. Defending champion Tom Kite, the 1989 Player of the Year and No. 1 money winner, returns as 11 of the PGA Tour's top 15 money leaders battle over a revamped Bay Hill course.

Unfortunately for the entrants, the par-4, 464-yard 18th hole has been tampered with only slightly. Over 11 past tournaments here, only 376 birdies have been registered at No. 18, compared with 1,100 bogeys and 422 double bogeys. Last year, Kite and Davis Love III each took a double bogey at 18 on the 72nd hole and headed toward a playoff, with Kite's par winning on the second extra hole.

"The 18th is an outstanding finishing hole," says Payne Stewart, who lives at Bay Hill and set the tournament record with a 20-under-par 264 in 1987. "This is definitely not a hole that you want to be hitting from the rough. Never, never be in the rough on the right side because then you have to hit over water and your shot won't hold the green."

Paul Azinger, who beat Kite by five strokes to win here in 1988, was impressed when he played the new Bay Hill last month.

"The greens are much improved," said Azinger, who soared from a 271 to a 288 last year, dropping his Nestle earnings from $135,000 to $4,128. "I'll say that this year the greens will be good, with the potential to be great greens in the future. In the past, they were bumpy, bare in spots, just not very good greens. But

Leyva, Phillies under the gun to improve NL-worst pitching staff

United Press International

Now that the baseball lockout is over, and spring training is finally underway, teams are faced with the problems brought on by the abbreviated time to prepare for the season.

One of the teams who could have used more time to come up with a starting rotation is the Phillies. Philadelphia started 15 different pitchers last season and posted an NL-worst team ERA of 4.04.

Manager Nick Leyva, faced with an Opening Day deadline a mere three weeks away, is doing the best he can to put together a credible staff.

Ken Howell will most likely be the ace. Terry Mulholland, Dennis Cook and Bruce Ruffin all were inconsistent last season. Don Carman was consistent, consistently bad. His record at the end of the year was 5-15 with a 5.24 ERA.

"Potential is a scary word but that's all we have," Leyva said. "We just have to hope these guys perform as well as they're able. The potential is there but that doesn't always win you a lot of ballgames."

However, the expansion of the rosters to 27 players for the first three weeks of the regular season will enable the Phillies to carry a few extra pitchers.

Leyva said he will start the year with a four-man starting rotation but it will probably be several weeks into the season before a regular rotation takes shape.

For the first two weeks of the season, starting pitchers will only have to pitch three innings.

Instead of the usual five, to get a win.

Another team faced with the abbreviated spring training blues is the Cincinnati Reds. The team is already talking about trades to strengthen their bench.

"We're going to be talking to people," said new manager Lou Piniella. "Right now, we're thin. We need a little depth. Take a look at our roster and if we have an injury here or there, we just don't have replacements."

Todd Benzinger, the Reds' regular first baseman is already on the disabled list. He suffered a broken hand a few weeks ago and won't be ready to play until mid-April.

At Sarasota, the Baltimore Orioles are wondering if pitcher Jeff Ballard will be healthy in time to start on Opening Day. Ballard underwent surgery in October to remove calcium deposits and bone chips from his elbow. He's been in a rehab program all winter.

At Vero Beach, all but 10 members of the Los Angeles Dodgers' 40-man winter roster were present Wednesday. Fernando Valenzuela was among those who took part in the drills. The left-hander threw off of a mound for the first time since last year. Only eight players showed up in camp on Tuesday, one of baseball's poorest turnouts.

At Winter Haven, Boston Red Sox relief pitcher Lee Smith said he expects to be traded, and "the sooner the better." The Red Sox signed Jeff Reardon as a free agent in the offseason. The Red Sox are trying to trade Smith for a starting pitcher or a power-hitting first baseman.

Both No. 1 seeds are eliminated at Lipton Players International tourney

United Press International

MIAMI — Emilio Sanchez defeated Ivan Lendl, 6-3, 6-7 (3-7) 6-4, and Conchita Martinez downed Gabriela Sabatini 7-6 (10-8), 6-3, Wednesday as the two Spanish players eliminated both No. 1 seeds from the Lipton Players International Championships.

Third-seeded Monica Seles goes into the semifinals of the $2.55 million, 10-day event as the top remaining seed in women's play after defeating Nathalie Herreman, 6-3, 6-1 and will play Nathalie Tauziat of France in the semifinals Thursday.

Martinez will play Judith Wiesner of Austria in the other semifinal. Wiesner defeated Manuela Maleeva 2-6, 6-1, 6-2 Wednesday, and Tauziat downed Claudia Porwik 6-3, 4-6, 6-3.

Stefan Edberg, also a No. 3 seed, is the top remaining men's player after defeating Carl-Uwe Steeb, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3. He will play Martin Janic in the quarterfinals Thursday.

Also advancing was fifth-seed Andre Agassi, who defeated Andrea Gomez, 6-7 (6-8), 6-2, 6-3.

Emilio Sanchez' brother Javier upset fourth-seed Brad Gilbert Tuesday, but lost to Jim Courier, 7-6, 6-3, Wednesday. Courier meets Agassi Thursday.

It was the first time Emilio Sanchez had beaten Lendl in four tries, although he had taken him to three sets once and also to four sets.

"In my career I beat most of the guys, Becker, John McEnroe, Stefan Edberg, but never Lendl. He was the only one I couldn't win against, although I was very close," Sanchez said in labored English. "This moment is very important to me. This now is my biggest win."

Lendl, the defending champ-on, said after his upset that he has never played well in south Florida, although his record in the Lipton is 22-3.

"I have not been able to play my best in south Florida, although I had one good year last year," Lendl said. "It's really different conditions every time I come down here, and it's humid and I never feel that the ball is coming off my racket the way it should. I can't get that clean sound of the ball off my racket."

Lendl said he did not think Sanchez would win the tournament, because a player that could serve and volley better could beat him.

"Especially, Edberg, who can pick on his backhand better than I can," Lendl said. "I wasn't stroking the ball properly."

Sanchez did not bristle at the remark, but noted, "He cannot go (to the finals) for sure. We will see."

In addition to being Javier Sanchez' older brother by three years, the 24-year-old Emilio's younger sister is Arantxa Sanchez, 18, the French Open winner who is skipping this event.

Edberg said he couldn't be concerned about all the upsets.

"I have to be worried about myself. I had a tough match today, and I'm glad to be through it," he said. "Opportunities come, and maybe one of them is now, but I've got to play (Jakob) Hlasek tomorrow."

Hlasek advanced to the quarterfinals by defeating Bryan Shelton, 6-3, 6-4, Wednesday.

Sabatini blamed herself for the loss and said she should have tried harder.

"I don't think it was my opponent, it was me," Sabatini said. "If I could play her again, I would try to fight more to get to the ball."

Martinez trailed 4-1 in the first set, but battled back.

"I was nervous. I wanted to will host Indian River at 3 p.m. and on Saturday, they will play a doubleheader with Pasco-Hernando starting at 1 p.m.

SCC jumped on St. John's starter and Lake Mary High School graduate Alex Birle for eight runs and nine hits to take an 8-2 lead into the sixth inning. The biggest blows were a two-run squeeze bunt by David Leugers in the second and a bases-loaded double by Rodriguez in the fifth.

The Vikings got the bats going in the sixth against SCC starter Brett Rutzebeck, who had held St. John's to two runs on six hits up to that point.

Sam Browning reached on a bunt single to open the inning before Johnnie Simmons followed with a long home run to left. Anthony Perrone followed with a single and SCC coach Jack Pantellas went to the bullpen for Paul Borden.

The first batter Borden faced, Martine Williams, slapped a hit-and-run single to right and Perrone scored when the relay throw was dropped for an error. Borden pitched out of further problems but the score was now 8-5.

The Raiders got a run back in the bottom of the sixth on singles by Joey Fisher and Darren McCutcheon and a squeeze bunt by Dan Peters, but St. John's tied the game in the top of the seventh.

A single, a hit batsman and an error loaded the bases for St. John's. After Perrone reached on an infield chopper for one run, Pantellas brought in Carlos Abreu, who promptly walked the next two batters to cut the lead to 9-8 and set the stage for Coljecki.

The Raiders took the lead for good in the bottom of the seventh when Mike Fuller led off the inning with a walk and advanced to second on a Danny Nellum bunt single. Leugers sacrificed the runners to second and third before Rodriguez lined a double just inside the left-field line to score two.

SCC added a pair of insurance runs in the eighth as McCutcheon singled and stole second. Peters singled McCutcheon to third and Fuller walked to load the bases. Leugers walked to force in a run and Rodriguez picked up his third straight hit to score another run.

In addition to Rodriguez, others having good days on offense were Peters (3-for-4, RBI), Fuller (2-for-2, three runs scored), Nellum (2-for-3, two runs scored), Kevin Monahan (2-for-5, double, two RBI), McCutcheon (2-for-4, run scored) and Leugers (three RBI, two runs scored).

Sparking the St. John's offense was Perrone with a 3-for-6 day with two runs scored and two RBI. Also contributing were Williams (4-for-5, two doubles, run scored, RBI), Scott Schmink (3-for-6), Simmons (2-for-5, home run, two RBI) and Browning (2-for-4, two RBI).

offense were Frank Staggs (home run, single, two runs scored), Trey Brassler (double, single), Spencer Baggett and A.W. Imes (two singles each) and Johnny Haddock, Scott Normandin and Jack Jenkins (one single each).

AUTOMOTIVE HISTORY TRIVIA

The world's first recorded run in a self powered vehicle was in 1769, in Paris France eight years before the American Declaration of Independence. 132 years later, an Atlanta, Georgia bicycle shop owner, W.D. Alexander assembled a steam powered car shipped to him in crates from a New Jersey automobile manufacturer. The car, a 1901 Locomobile steamer was the first automobile registered in the state of Georgia.

Doctor should check cause of blackouts

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 47 years old and have been having blackout spells for one year. I stay weak and dizzy all the time, have headaches and suffer from fatigue. My blood pressure falls when this occurs. What's the matter with me?

DEAR READER: I hope you are under the care of a physician, who will take a detailed medical history and perform a thorough examination to diagnose your condition. There are many possibilities to explain your symptoms.

You could have a blood disorder. An insufficient quantity of blood cells can cause headaches, faintness, fatigue and low blood pressure. Anemia is an example. Your symptoms could be a consequence of hidden bleeding in the intestinal tract, or it could be associated with problems with white blood cells, such as leukemia.

Another possibility is circulatory insufficiency. For instance, you may be experiencing symptoms from ineffective heart action, such as angina, that causes periodic drops in your blood pressure, which results in dizziness and weakness.

A third possibility is epilepsy. If you are truly blacking out, these lapses in consciousness could be the result of seizures.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband had heart surgery this fall and contracted a staph infection. How long will it take to clear? He was operated on two weeks after the surgery to clean out the infection, yet he still has it.

DEAR READER: One of the most common complications of any surgery is infection, and one of the most common causes of infection is staph bacteria. These microorganisms are plentiful in our environment and on our skins. Fortunately, staph are killed by modern antibiotics.

After certain types of surgery, however, infection can be a real problem, because foreign material — such as artificial joints and suture material, for example — act as a focus from which bacteria spread. Once the foreign material becomes contaminated in the body, it is extremely difficult to sterilize.

Therefore, infections often have to be drained, as in your husband's case.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

When Careful Charlie got back to his regular bridge game after a vacation, he quickly proved that he hadn't gotten rusty. North liked Charlie's spade response enough to jump to four. As for West's raise of his partner's heart overall, that's fine if West has his own U.S. Treasury printing press. Charlie grabbed the opening heart lead and played a low spade. East was not going to be endplayed, so he took the ace, cashed his heart king and then got off lead with a spade. Now, dear readers, we can see that the diamond finesse will not work. And we can also see that diamonds do not split. So it is probable that even Charlie might lose a diamond and later have to take a losing club finesse. But declarer found a way to do better. He won the second spade and played dummy's ace of diamonds. Then he played a spade to his hand and led a diamond up to the K-J. East now won the king and had to either lead a club back into the K-J or give a sluff and a ruff with a heart play. And what would happen if East did not even hold the king of diamonds? Charlie would win the queen in dummy on the second diamond play and come to his club ace to play a third diamond up to the jack. Eventually the fourth diamond in dummy would be a winner one way or another. Does this sacrifice anything? Only an overtrick when West holds both the king of diamonds and the queen of clubs. Surely it's better to try to make your contract.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
March 23, 1990

In the year ahead you may participate in an involvement where you have a minor but a critical role. What you'll gain from this arrangement will be far more significant than your title.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) When dealing with friends today, strive to subdue your assertiveness, because if you attempt to impose your views or opinions on them, relationships could become testy. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Meaningful achievements are possible today, provided you focus properly on your objectives. You could fall short of your mark if you lack concentration and continuity.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Make an effort at this time to begin to broaden your perspectives. The wider your horizons, the greater your possibilities for additional opportunities.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This is a good day to investigate situations that have recently aroused your curiosity. If you apply yourself, you should be able to ferret out information you now lack.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Before jumping to conclusions today, take time to weigh and balance both sides of important issues. Your decisions will be constructive if you use your analytical abilities.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Have some back-up available today if you have to do something you feel might be a little too complicated for you to do single handedly. You might not need assistance, but, then again, you may.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Do not yield to group pressure today if they want you to go along with something you instinctively feel does not serve your best interests. Your independence will be respected.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It looks like this could be an extremely productive day for you, because you will be inclined to tie up loose ends and anything which is left undone will frustrate you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today you are likely to be more mentally than physically restless. These impulses can be gratified, however, if you share your time with stimulating companions who make you think.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Something in which you're presently involved has good chances for success, provided you lay a sturdy foundation at this time. Begin today to build for your tomorrow.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Outward appearances tend to be a trifle more significant than usual today. Put on a positive face if you hope to inspire or direct others. To be a leader, you must look like a leader.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your intuitive perceptions could provide you with valuable information today. This is because your hunches might reveal things your logic ignores.

Blast from past shakes up woman

DEAR ABBY: A few days ago out of the blue, I received a phone call from a man that I have neither seen nor heard from in years. We dated for two years, during which time he led me on, promising that he would leave his wife and marry me.

and tell him that I am now happily married and I do not want to see him again?

SMOKE IN ILLINOIS

DEAR BEBOO: Don't call him. But if he calls you again, tell him emphatically that you want nothing more to do with him. Then hang up.

DEAR ABBY: Here's one for your "My, How Things have Changed" file: Enclosed are two hospital bills. One I received from the Easton Hospital in May 1948 after giving birth to my first child. For a 10-day stay in the hospital, the cost was $124.

The other is a copy of the bill my daughter received after she gave birth to a premature son. He was in the intensive care unit for two months. The cost was $126,000!

TILLIE W. BRICKER, EASTON, PA.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you on behalf of my friend. Her son, not quite 2 years old, has ears that stick out very noticeably — in fact, that's the first thing you notice about this beautiful child.

Recently, she was at the grocery store when a woman she had never seen before walked up to her and said in a voice loud enough for everyone around to hear, "Boy, look at those ears! He looks like he's gonna take off!"

Needless to say, my friend was shocked and hurt. She wanted to say something back to that rude-stranger but didn't know what to say.

What should she have said, or done, Abby?

HURTING FOR HER

DEAR HURTING: Since it's not possible to educate an insensitive, boorish stranger — especially with other strangers looking on — an appropriate response might have been: "Thank you, he is a beautiful child, isn't he?"

DEAR ABBY: I see letters in your column quite often from wives who are upset with their husbands because they "look" at other women.

I think all men like to look at good-looking women, but some are more sneaky about it than others.

Fifty years ago, my boyfriend was a girl watcher. When I complained, he told me that as long as he lives, he'll look. That was the truth, because we've been married for 48 years and he's still looking.

It doesn't bother me a bit because he's a "looker," not a "toucher." We have a wonderful marriage, and he's still the most exciting man I've ever met.

IN LOVE WITH A LOOKER

DEAR IN LOVE: Congratulations: may it ever be thus. There's nothing wrong with subtle looking, as long as the salvia doesn't run down his chin. And by the way, some women also like to look at attractive men, which is Okay if they do it discreetly.

DEAR ABBY: Please correct the large number of people (including people in the media — magazines, newspapers, television and public officials) who think that 1990 is the beginning of the last decade of the 20th century.

1990 is actually the last year of the ninth decade of this century. 1991 is the start of the last decade, and the year 2000 is the last year of this century.

Accurately speaking — counting 1990 — there are 11 years left in this century.

Let's not appear foolish before the world by celebrating the century change a year early — let's wait until Dec. 31, 2000, midnight — like the rest of the world.

11 AND COUNTING DOWN IN ALBANY

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Then his wife found out about us and he dropped me cold, refusing to accept any of my phone calls. Our beautiful love affair ended abruptly — that was eight years ago!

When I demanded to know why he was calling, he said he just wanted to know how I was — that he had been thinking about me a great deal lately. I was so shocked and angry I told him very sharply that I had nothing to say to him and to please never call me again. Then I hung up on him.

Abby, I am now happily married to a wonderful man, and I have long forgotten any feelings I once had for this man. I also would never want my husband to know that this person was calling me.

What could have possessed this man to call me after all this time and act as though nothing was wrong? I can only imagine that he wanted to resume some kind of relationship. Perhaps I overreacted, but I was really annoyed that this man had the nerve to think that after dropping me like a hot potato, he could just walk back into my life again.

Now I'm worried that he might call again, and it's very upsetting. What should I do if he calls me again? Or should I call him

4-H captures show awards

Seminole County 4-H'ers received several honors in the eighth annual 4-H Benefit Horse Show held at Clarcona Horseman's Park, Orlando, with 120 Central Florida riders participating in the competition. This year's show featured 61 classes, with four High Point and reserve High Point Awards as well as eight championships in the Hunter Division. Ike Isaacson, show manager, presents Lisa Marsh of Longwood, first place winner in the 4-H Championship Class, a horse cooler, sponsored by Dr. Ron Friedman, DVM, Oviedo.
