Prisoner Flees Work Crew At Site Near Casselberry

Herald Photo by Jim Haynes

By DENNIS FEOLA
 Herald Staff Writer

A 23-year-old prisoner on a work crew, with only a short time to serve on his original conviction for grand larceny escaped this morning.

The 18-man work crew was at State Road 17-82 at Lake Kathryn Estates near Casselberry when Paul Harrington of Crawfordville, Ind., apparently walked away.

M.K. Sawyer, superintendent of the State's Correctional Institution in Brevard County, said the crew was being supervised by unnamed Department of Transportation personnel.

He said crew members are all considered to be minimum-escape risks and have no violence in their backgrounds.

Sawyer said the institution has an agreement with the Department of Transportation to provide inmates for cleaning ditches and right-of-way in exchange for a small fee.

"This boy was seriously being considered for a work-release program, where he would have no supervision," Sawyer said. "He's already served five years of a six months to seven-year sentence. I would imagine he had less than a year to pull."

"Why he left with this short amount of time left is un-

'I would imagine he had less than a year to run'

plausible," Sawyer said. "Maybe the temptation was too much."

He said Harrington had been on the work crew for about two weeks. Harrington was arrested Oct. 17, 1977 in Brevard County for breaking and entering with intent to commit a felony, grand larceny.

John Spolaki, information officer for the Seminole County Sheriff's Department, said police units were converging on the area this morning to begin the search for Harrington.

Harrington, who is believed to be on his way to the Daytona Beach area, was wearing only a t-shirt and pants. A prison shirt was found discarded in the area, Spolaki said.

Harrington is described as 5-feet, 10-inches tall, weighs 150 pounds, has short light brown hair and tattoos on both arms. One tattoo says "Luv" and another "Paul," Spolaki said.

Sawyer said the escape charge could add another five years to Harrington's sentence.

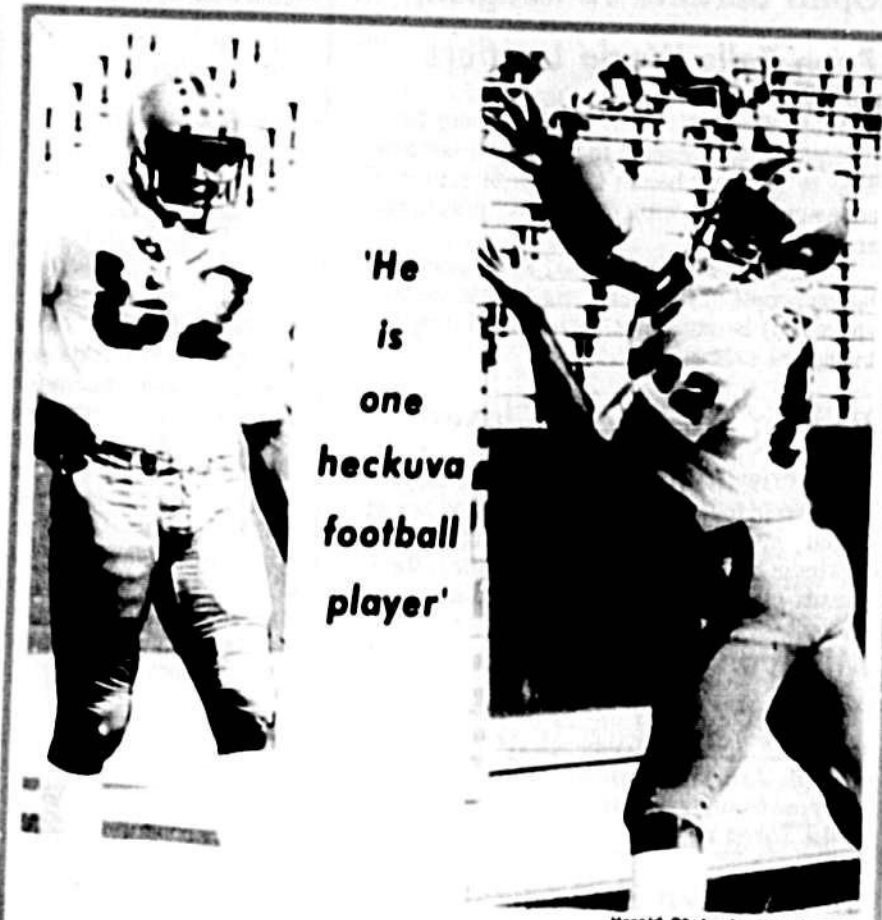

Rene McDowell, assistant maintenance engineer for the Department of Transportation, said he was working with a DOT employee putting reflector posts in a median strip when he escaped.

McDowell said the two men walked to the east shoulder of Highway 17-82 and the DOT employee went into the bushes for a few moments.

When he came out of the bushes, Harrington was gone.

The employee did not see Harrington leave, McDowell said. He said every morning at 7 an employee picks up the prisoners and brings about a dozen men to the Oviedo office for the day's work.

McDowell said this is the first incident of its kind since the program's inception, only a few months ago.

Cadet Clennie: Still Waiting

By JIM HAYNES
 Herald Staff Writer

GAINESVILLE — Four years ago Clennie Brundidge had seen his son play, although his wife, Lucille, had seen him help Army beat Navy last year.

Around West Point, Brundidge is already legend. Football team captains are held in high respect, but Brundidge is something more.

"He is one heckuva football player," says assistant coach Larry Luck. "He leads on and off the field."

The 6-foot-4, 225-pound tight end made second-team All-America as selected by UPI in his sophomore and junior years. As a sophomore he was ranked ninth in the country in pass receiving with 47 catches for 627 yards, and his 51 TD grabs equals a school record.

Last fall he caught 51 passes for 842 yards and four TDs, ranking 16th nationally.

Those last two seasons he had Leamon Hall, of Apopka, throwing the football to him. The offense at Army is not as effective this season, and his statistics are not likely to be as impressive. He had three receptions against Florida Saturday.

The Cadets call him, "A Man for Two Seasons" because he also plays on the basketball team after he takes off his shoulder pads in the fall.

Brundidge is a Sunday school teacher at West Point, and a member of the Fellowship of Christian athletes.

Egypt Likes Treaty, Moving Cautiously

By United Press International

Egypt today took a favorable but qualified view of the draft of a historic peace treaty with Israel that could officially end three decades of hostility between the two nations.

Moshe Dayan, Israel's chief treaty negotiator and foreign minister, was presenting the draft text to the Israeli cabinet today in Jerusalem for its approval.

Israeli and Egyptian negotiators announced in Washington Sunday they had resolved all the "principal issues" of a treaty under which Israel would withdraw from the Sinai and Egypt would allow economic and cultural ties with the Jewish nation.

A cautiously worded Egyptian statement issued in Cairo today was largely favorable to the draft treaty and high on praise for President Carter for his role in eliminating differences between Israel and Egypt.

"Egypt holds that some points in the draft might require further study to make it ready for signing," Presidential Press Secretary said Zaghlool Nassar said.

Nassar praised President Carter's intervention with the Israeli and Egyptian negotiators late last week to bring tentative agreement on the draft.

The spokesman thus implied that Egypt's reaction to the draft was largely favorable.

"Egypt must pay tribute to the wonderful and honest effort made by President Carter who held a lengthy meeting with the Egyptian delegation Saturday morning to push the process toward agreement and to overcome some difficulties and differences," Nassar said.

The Amendments

The Florida League of Cities at its weekend convention in Hollywood endorsed two proposed constitutional amendments: Nos. 3 and 7. They deal with single-member legislative districts and financial matters, including homestead exemptions.

What are the amendments? Beginning today, The Evening Herald will be presenting in-depth looks at the nine proposed constitutional changes on the Nov. 7 ballot.

The Story About Winter Springs And The EDA Audit

By DORNA BERTS
 Herald Staff Writer

A letter has been sent to the city of Winter Springs by the U.S. Economic Development Administration (EDA) Atlanta office, outlining what may be done by the city so that it will not have to refund $18,087 to the federal government.

The $18,087 was part of a $120,200 EDA grant awarded 21 months ago to the city for installation of water lines and fire hydrants in the mostly at-that-time undeveloped section of the city known as the Ranchettes.

The city will almost certainly have to repay the federal government the $18,087 designated for payment of the project Mayor Troy Pineda and federal law prohibits payment of this type fee to a government executive.

The city will almost certainly also have to repay the $2,206.85 listed as contingency costs, but interpreted by the auditor as unobligated funds in the bank.

The check to reimburse the city's general fund for the portion of the mayor's salary for time coordinating the program has been laying in the city clerk's office for the past 11 months un cashed.

Councilman John Daniels, the city's finance director, nearly a year ago, said he had been directed by a federal official, Charles Orley, not to sign the check and that such a payment for the mayor's salary was illegal.

The contingency fund is also in a bank account unspent.

Wayne Elmore, deputy director of EDA for local public works, said it is unlikely federal rules will be changed to permit either of these sums to remain with the city.

And, according to Mayor Pineda, since neither has been spent, both can easily be returned.

The funds which the city may be able to save, rather than reimbursing to the federal government, include money paid to the city's consulting engineer — Clark, Dietz and Associates — on a cost-plus basis (cost plus expenses and profit) and the money paid to a landscape architect for clean-up work.

This sum, already paid by the federal government, has been disallowed because a contract did not state stipulating compliance with the federal government's wage rules.

Elmore said the city was forewarned about the problems with the engineering fees. The problems may be corrected by changing the city's contract with the engineer, he said.

The city council for two weekly meetings in a row has declined to amend the engineer's contract as B.C. Conklin, engineer with the firm, recommended, until they receive a recommendation in writing from EDA.

The selection of the Winter Springs project for audit by the federal agency and the final solution to the disallowed costs in the project when that occurs continues a story that began more than two years ago.

The story began two years ago when it was announced that the federal government, in a measure to stimulate economy, would award grants on public works projects throughout the country.

"When the program was announced of a grab-bag on free money for public works, council gave Clark, Dietz and Associates authority to prepare grant applications."

"Everyone in city hall worked at some time or other on one of the applications. I provided basic information. We dreamed up six possible things for asking. We felt if we made six attempts, it

Fallen Tree Claim, Chief Top Agenda

The Sanford City Commission will be considering its second claim filed in about two months for damage to an automobile by a fallen tree limb and the selection of Ben Butler as police chief at 7 tonight at city hall.

Rev. Ermo P. Ingal, 216 West 11th St., filed a claim with the city Sept. 25, asking that he be paid $100.87 for damages to an automobile that occurred June 8.

Ingal's auto was damaged when a rotted tree limb fell on the car, according to the minister.

upped our chances," said Public Works Director Ray Bradshaw. "It worked up three pretty quick. It was Fire Chief Charles Holzman who recognized that 75-foot wide lots were platted in the Ranchlands, Sections 3 and 2A. There were definitely three, maybe four homes in that area. We included water lines for fire protection there in an application," said Bradshaw.

Zabel had purchased many of the lots remaining in Sections 2 and 2A, prior to the grant application. Within days after the grant award was announced the majority of the city council voted to put Pland on the payroll at $13,500 annually, saying the mayor would coordinate the federal project and be paid from the federal funds.

In June, a move began to recall Daniels from office. One of the charges listed against him was that he accused the mayor of doing something illegal in the federal program.

Candidate Drops Out Of Winter Springs Race

Patricia Reitzman, a candidate for the Seat 3 post on the Winter Springs City Council in the Nov. 7 municipal election, has withdrawn, City Clerk Mary Norton said today.

Jacobs and Jack L. Schreff for the Seat 1 post currently held by the development company is also asking the court to order Daniels to stop voting as a member of the council on the basis of a conflict of interest.

Another issue to be discussed tonight is the reinstatement of Butler as chief of police.

The conflict claimed by the developers is that Daniels has supervised the deannexation and lives in that area. Daniels denied a conflict exists, but an advisor of City Attorney Thomas Lang has filed a conflict of interest form in accordance with state law.

Most Principals Confident After Accreditors' Visit

By LEONARD KRANSORF Herald Staff Writer

Principals at four of five Seminole County schools visited last week by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools accreditation team are confident their schools will now get the accreditation they missed last year.

The one exception is Lake Brantley High School where "at this time they said they would not be able to accredit us," said Principal Darvin Booth. Like last year, the main problem with Lake Brantley was not having enough library books to meet the required 10 books per student.

Soviets Opt For Nuclear

An intriguing dispatch from Moscow says the Russians are planning to heat homes with steam from nuclear reactors in plants located relatively close to their cities.

Their technologists say they have found an "engineering solution" to what is considered the greatest potential danger in nuclear plants — a loss-of-coolant accident and reactor meltdown with a disastrous release of radioactive material into the atmosphere.

Further, the Russians see no problem in disposing of radioactive waste from their growing number of nuclear power plants and the steam-heating plants soon to be built.

They will concentrate it into a glass-like substance and bury it in salt deposits or abandoned coal mines in remote areas.

Considering the endless debate here about nuclear safety, this makes us wonder: Do the Russians know something that we don't? Or have they just decided to live dangerously?

Probably the answer lies somewhere in between. The fact that the new nuclear steam plants will not have the heavy concrete containment domes characteristic of our own nuclear plants does suggest a technological innovation.

As for safety, Soviet standards are presumed to be lower than ours.

U.S. astronauts, for instance, have hinted they would not like to risk their necks in a spacecraft as primitive as the Soviet's Soyuz.

What the latest development in the Soviet nuclear program does tell us is that the Russians have looked at the risks in harnessing nuclear energy and concluded to move ahead with it at a faster pace than most countries in the West.

And the news comes at a time when the argument over safety of nuclear plants in the United States may take a new turn.

An independent panel of scientists has just completed a reassessment of the "Rasmussen Report," a study completed in 1974 under Dr. Norman C. Rasmussen which sought to calculate the chances of a nuclear accident with highly fatal consequences.

The report's conclusion that the odds against it are astronomical has been the basis for defending the nuclear option through many recent battles.

The reassessment which began 13 months ago under Dr. Harold W. Lewis of UC — Santa Barbara supports many aspects of the Rasmussen Report, but finds fault with others.

The anti-nuclear lobby is sure to seize on it. Among other things, it questions the way the Rasmussen Report applies the laws of probability to reach its comforting conclusions. According to the Lewis team, the possibility of error in these calculations has been "greatly understated."

Physicists, mathematicians and others with nuclear expertise will now debate whether the Lewis study calls for any change in nuclear policy.

We are impressed, however, with the comments of Dr. Lewis. He says nothing has turned up to change his own conviction that nuclear power is here to stay.

Power-plant safety, he says, is the "least worrisome" of the issues.

What should concern us more, in his view, is the need to control international proliferation of nuclear materials that could be used to make bombs, and the tardiness in setting up a system for permanent disposal of nuclear waste in the United States.

The Lewis study may cast a new light on the risk-factors that go with nuclear energy, but it does not affect another risk — that fossil fuels will run out before there are reliable energy sources to take their place.

The Russians believe their nuclear steam plants will achieve a 30 percent reduction in the consumption of oil, gas and coal to heat homes and buildings.

Obviously they looked at their fuel inventory, weighed all the risks, and came down on the side of the nuclear option.

BERRY'S WORLD

Police believe the late John Roselli was rubbed out, gangland-style, to keep him from talking. But unknown to his executors, he had already told the starting tale to his attorney, Edward P. Morgan, a former FBI official, who tipped off the FBI on March 20, 1967.

We have obtained a confidential FBI report quoting Morgan's cautious concern. Because of attorney-client privilege, he did not identify his informant to the FBI. But he has now acknowledged to us that the details came from Roselli.

Morgan told the FBI that his client, with "the highest government approval," had planned to assassinate Castro. Even to the FBI, this was explosive news in 1967. But Morgan's next statement was even more explosive.

Remembered the FBI report: "The project allowed to proceed because when Castro became aware of it and created a number of suspects. By procuring captured suspects, he was able to learn the full details of the plot against him."

The Cuban leader, as the report says, decided to turn the tables. "He too could engage

Pop Warner League Teams Post Victories

Marvin Butler, Steve Memory and Jeffrey Sutton scored the touchdowns Saturday as the East Seminole Silver Lions posted a 23-18 victory over East Side Boys.

David Jacobs, Northside defeated the Teague Tigers, 14-6, despite a TD pass from John Luzzi to Jamie Tammie.

Two second-year running backs dominated by East Seminole Division contests in both conferences.

Steelers Unbeaten After Day Of Upsets

The Pittsburgh Steelers, who go after their eighth straight victory Monday night when they host Houston, became the NFL's only unbeaten team Sunday when the New Orleans Saints surprised previously unbeaten Los Angeles 16-3.

Bill Troup topped a 19-yard TD pass to Glenn Douglas in the second quarter and Mike Barnes blocked Jim Turner's potential game-winning 27-yard field goal attempt in the final eighth seconds to highlight Baltimore's upset over Denver.

East. Miami's Bob Griese, in his first start after being sidelined by a pre-season knee injury, completed 23-of-38 for 227 yards and two touchdowns, but couldn't overcome a punishing Patriots' ground game that led them to their fifth straight triumph.

Seattle Seahawks' main weakness — Ken Stabler's mysteriously inept left arm — to pin a 27-10 loss on the Raiders, and the Baltimore Colts held Denver without a touchdown on a route to a 7-0 victory over the Broncos.
