Fate Of Water Tower Hangs In Balance In Longwood

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

The fate of Longwood's 75-year-old water tower, the use of cellular telephones by the police department, what to do with a dormant developers' donation fund and possible elimination of the $100-a-month pay for Land Planning Agency members will be discussed Monday at a work session scheduled by the Longwood City Commission for 6:30 p.m. at city hall.

City Engineer Chuck Hassler is scheduled to report to the commission on the relative costs of rehabilitating the 7500-gallon tank as a historic landmark as the Historical Commission has recommended, and demolishing it as others advocate. The tank was taken out of use 6 1/2 years ago because it leaks.

Hassler has said it will take approximately $9,800 to tear it down in contrast to $29,000 to refurbish it plus $2,500-$3,000 a year maintenance cost thereafter. Some have expressed fears that because the tank is empty it could be blown over in a strong wind.

Mayor Dave Gunter, who is less than enthusiastic about restoring the water tank, has said, "I think the danger of its falling down is going to supercede its historical value."

The commission will also discuss the two cellular telephones used by the Longwood Police Department. Police Capt. Terry Baker said the phones were originally purchased for the police car used by Police Chief Greg Manning so that he could be in constant contact with his staff. But last year at budget time the commission agreed to pay Manning a $350-a-month subsidy for use of his own car on police business. Manning said he wanted to do that because of criticism about where and when he drove the city vehicle.

The car Manning had been using was then transferred to the detective division. Baker explained and along with it went the cellular phone. One of the phones is assigned to the car which is used by Lt. Jack Husland and to the other DEA Task Force, which includes an officer on loan from Longwood.

Baker said the department has gotten quite a bit of use from the cellular phones, which are especially handy in coordinating with other police agencies and in surveillance operations.

As to the salary plus benefits paid the five LPA members, volunteers who serve by commission appointment, it was started on Oct. 1, 1985 but was only legitimized by ordinance April 6, 1987 in a 3-2 vote. Gunter and Commissioner Lynette Dennis, who were on the commission at the time voted against paying the LPA members a salary.

The commissioners will also discuss what to do with the $3,944 developers' donations fund which has been dormant for more than two years. Acting City Administrator Don Terry said the fund was legitimate and had been audited. It was started several years ago when the city allowed developers to pay for materials for utility lines and have the city install them.

Tampa Lawyers Face Contempt Allegations

By Richard Whitaker
Herald Staff Writer

Two Tampa attorneys will have to defend themselves this week on charges that they harassed a member of the jury at the end of a negligence suit last November.

Geoffrey H. Steiner and Chris M. Limberopoulos have been ordered to appear before Circuit Court Judge Kenneth M. Telfer on Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. to show cause why they shouldn't be held in criminal contempt of court for their actions after a six-member jury didn't rule in favor of their client in a auto accident case on Nov. 18.

Steiner and Limberopoulos were representing Mark F. Weichselbaum in his suit against Dorothy Edwards Lee. Weichselbaum was seeking damages from Lee for negligence he claimed led to a auto accident on June 1, 1986.

In its decision against Weichselbaum the jury decided he hadn't suffered a permanent injury as a result of the accident. Because of the verdict, the jury Lee didn't have to pay damages, the Weichselbaum's attorneys were seeking from her.

Telfer signed the order for the attorneys to show why they shouldn't be charged with contempt on Nov. 20. In the motion he restrained the two men from making any further contact with the jury without prior permission of the court.

Steve Plotnick, chief trial attorney for the State Attorney's Office in Seminole County, said the two lawyers allegedly verbally accosted some jurors in the courthouse parking lot after the verdict was handed down. He added that one of the jurors was upset that the attorneys allegedly tried to contact her at home.

Plotnick said he was appointed by Telfer to act as special prosecutor in the case in November. "I'm going to present the jurors to show everyone the events (contempt) occurred and then I'll present legal arguments showing why what they did was wrong," Plotnick said.

"When somebody does something showing disregard for the orderly administration of justice a judge could view that as contempt," Plotnick said. He added that the alleged accosting of jurors by Steiner and Limberopoulos are in violation of the Rules of Ethics governing lawyers in the state.

Plotnick said the attorneys are charged with a violation of the Florida Statute that governs the Florida Bar Association. "Those

Day Of Decision In Iowa

1988 Caucus Begins Tonight

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — The 1988 presidential candidates face their first big test tonight, their White House aspirations all the hands of Iowa voters who will either endorse them or the approval of the caucus.

Democrats and Republican candidates tonight at 7 p.m. CST in schools, churches and living rooms across a stony state to pick their favorites in a complex caucus system that begins the road to the summer national conventions.

Though only 37 Democrats and 42 Republican delegates will be chosen as a result of tonight's work, the impact on the race in the first significant voting of the year is much greater, capable of creating a top candidate or boosting a contender from the middle of the pack.

The weather always a factor in Iowa, a blizzard was predicted for the night, but in the 20s, with a chance of light snow.

The state pre-caucus poll published by the Des Moines Sun-Bay Register, showed Sen. Republican leader Robert Dole at nearly Kansas with a comfortable edge over Vice President George Bush among the six GOP candidates.

Behind a late surge, Rep. Richard Gephardt of neighboring Missouri was ahead among the seven major Democrats, with Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois and Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts well within striking distance.

Former television evangelist Pat Robertson ran third in the GOP poll, 10 points behind Bush, but the two were dead even among those who promised definitely to attend a caucus. Robertson was the only candidate in either party to predict outright victory Sunday.

"Our people will come out in 12 foot snowdrifts, so I'm not worried about weather," he said. "I'll be in the state's 11,000-endorsers mountain building the last couple of days. It's just happening across the state."

Eleven of the candidates press. See IOWA, page 10A

Iowa Caucus

● WHAT IS AT STAKE: Democrats will choose 57 national convention delegates. Republicans will pick 37 national convention delegates.

● WHO IS RUNNING: There are seven major declared candidates in the Democratic caucuses: Bruce Babbitt, Michael Dukakis, Richard Gephardt, Albert Gore Jr., Gary Hart, Jesse Jackson and Paul Simon. There are six in the Republican caucuses: George Bush, Robert Dole, Pete du Pont, Alexander Haig, Jack Kemp and Pat Robertson.

● POPULATION: The 1980 census listed Iowa as having a population of 2.8 million people, including 110,000 farmers. Over 50 percent live in urban areas, the largest being Des Moines with a metropolitan population of 382,000.

● VOTER REGISTRATION: The latest figures from 1986 show Republicans with 494,727 voters, Democrats with 548,471 and 534,780 listed as independents. The latter group may attend either Democratic or Republican caucuses.

● VOTER TURNOUT: Party officials estimate 125,000 Democrats will attend 2,487 precinct caucuses. Republicans are expected to have as many as 125,000 people attend their 2,487 meetings.

● HOW TO WIN DELEGATES: Democratic caucuses will break up into presidential preference groups, with county convention delegates selected from those groups. No delegates will be chosen from any group comprising fewer than 15 percent of the attendees at each caucus, however. Republican caucuses will hold secret, presidential preference straw polls and will not choose county convention delegates on the basis of presidential preference.

Noriega Denies Drug Smuggling

MIAMI (UPI) — Panamanian Gen. Manuel Noriega claimed through lawyers and on television that U.S. drug smuggling charges were politically motivated, possibly by his refusal to join an American scheme to invade Nicaragua.

Noriega, the de facto ruler of Panama since 1983, also claimed through U.S. lawyers Sunday that Panama's refusal to extend the treaty giving it control of the Panama Canal beyond the year 2000 were behind the indictments in Miami and Tampa.

And in an interview on Panamanian TV, the CBS program, 60 Minutes, Noriega claimed former national security adviser John Poindexter urged him in December 1983 to find a pretext to invade Nicaragua so the United States could join the assault.

They were going to hit Nicaragua, Noriega told, 60 Minutes, through a translator. They were going to invade Nicaragua and the only reason they hadn't done it was because Panama wouldn't let us, and that's all there was to it, was Panama to get out of the way and allow them to continue with their plan.

Even U.S. ambassadors by Noriega had the blame for the grand jury indictments brought on Panamanian relations to extend the canal agreement that made a vague reference to conduct.

Webster Will Talk To Grand Jury

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

Robert Webster of Apopka has asked to appear before the Seminole County Grand Jury to discuss his contention that clerical officials cannot legally serve on other decision-making boards, like the county expressway authority and county port authority.

Webster, a member of the county charter committee and a Republican candidate for the Third District seat on the county board of commissioners, contends that the state constitution prohibits clerical officials from serving on those boards.

However, Florida Grand assistant county attorney who serves as the expressway authority's legal counsel, says the Seminole Circuit court has already ruled that the public officials serve on the

SOS Members Want To Help Sanford

Historic Districts Should Be Preserved For Generations, They Say

By Nancy Simmons
Herald Staff Writer

Save Our Sanford Chairman Glenn E. Domeni, 600 Oak Ave. who grew up in Jacksonville, says that throughout his life he has lived in historic districts and has watched them deteriorate year after year. Domeni and other members of the group don't want to see that happen in Sanford.

SOS members want to see the historic residential district as well as other single family residential areas preserved throughout the city.

Domeni says the group has 150 members and a board of directors consisting of himself, Joyce Mahon, 601 Myrtle Ave.

vice chairman, Betty Skates, 1108 Park Ave., secretary, Betty Solley, 713 Oak Ave., treasurer, and Jim Valentino, 717 Park Ave., legal officer.

The group was organized last summer and the first organizational meeting was held in October.

We want only positive change for Sanford, says Domeni, not any that the group has compiled a list of ten goals SOS members want to achieve. These goals include serving as a public relations and promotional agency to attract new home owners to the area.

Domeni says, as an example, he knows someone who recently moved here from Pennsylvania and bought a home in Lake Mary. The man wasn't really familiar with Sanford, according to Domeni, but as the result of discussion with Domeni, he is now looking at an older house in Sanford.

SOS also has gone on record against residential care facilities in single family residential areas. And while Sanford officials seem to perceive the issue as involving round care for the elderly, Domeni says SOS perceives it as a much bigger issue. "This is not just an elderly issue," he says. "You're also talking about the mentally and physically handicapped."

Domeni says he and his wife moved to Sanford to live in a nice residential area in a little town. They have a business, as manufacturer's representatives, in which they market gift items throughout Florida.

"Central Florida is a better location when you have the whole state to cover," he explains. He says his wife handles the business most of the time. As a treasurer, he works in Jacksonville one day, then has three days off, he adds.

POLICE IN BRIEF

Agents Arrest Sanford Brothers Accused Of Drug Dealings

A 30-year-old Sanford man who allegedly made a deal to sell undercover City County Investigative Bureau agents 1/2 ounce of cocaine for $250 was arrested at about 8:40 p.m. Friday. Arrested along with the man outside his home was his 36-year-old brother, who allegedly delivered the cocaine to that home after the deal was negotiated.

The brother also allegedly took the money for the deal just before the arrests were made.

Lee Robert Burgess of 556 E Pasadena Avenue, Longwood, who allegedly negotiated the deal, has been charged with sale and delivery of cocaine. His brother, Lawrence Lester Burgess of 1480 Holly Drive, Casselberry, who also reportedly had marijuana and drug paraphernalia in his possession, has been charged with sale and possession of cocaine, and possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. Bond for each was set at $2,000. Lawrence Burgess has been released from jail. Lee Burgess remained jailed in lieu of bond.

Man Charged In Rape

Sanford police reported charging a 20-year-old Sanford man in connection with the Jan. 26 rape of an 18-year-old Sanford woman.

The arrest of Leroy Young of 1831 Lincoln Ave., Sanford, was made at 9:30 a.m. Friday at the Sanford police station. He is accused of assaulting the woman after forcing her onto her bed at her home. Young's bond was set at $10,000 and he has been released.

Arrest Awakens Sleeper

Lake Mary police who confronted a man passed out in an inau pickup truck on the roadside of Interstate 4, Lake Mary, at about 4 p.m. Friday reported charging the man with grand theft auto in addition to other charges including driving under the influence.

The man who allegedly threatened police when he was awakened and who also reportedly had to be wrestled to the ground to be handcuffed has also been charged with resisting arrest.

A police records check showed that the truck the man was in had been reported stolen.

Daniel Gregory Sweat, 44, of Jacksonville, was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Driving Under Influence Arrests

The following persons have been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:

—Darryl Raynard Williams, 27, of Orlando, was arrested at 1:20 a.m. Saturday after his car, clocked traveling at more than 55 mph, was seen crossing the centerline of State Road 46, west of Sanford.

—William Eugene Kikpatrick, 35, of 301 E. Crystal Drive, Sanford, at 2:50 a.m. Saturday after his car was in an accident on U.S. Highway 17-92, Sanford. He was also charged with careless driving.

Burglaries And Thefts Reported

Dale Scott Stewart of 2361 Wacansa St., Geneva, gave sheriff's deputies the name of a suspect who may have stolen his 11 crates of stereo gear with a total value of $10,000 from a bin at Personal Storage, 8228 U.S. Highway 17-92, Fern Park, between Jan. 22 and Friday.

Jewelry with a total value of about $850 was stolen Friday from the home of Barbara Ann Weber, 115 Hattaway Drive, Altamonte Springs, a sheriff's report said.

A scale valued at $150 was stolen, along with 40 prescription pills and a strong box with a combined value of about $100 from the home of William Clyde Freeland Jr. of 2974 Embassy Court, Casselberry. A sheriff's report said the theft occurred Friday or Saturday.

A $2,000 door with leaded glass panels was stolen Friday from a Shiloh American Co., home at lot 55, 3723 Watercrest, Longwood, a sheriff's report said.

Penny Carter of Sanford reported to sheriff's deputies that a $150 volley ball net was stolen from Sunland Park, 401 W. Highland St., Altamonte Springs, Wednesday or Thursday.

A $500 gold chain with bows was stolen between Dec. 1 and Friday from the home of Vicki L. Green, 4424 Radio Ave., Sanford, a sheriff's report said.

A sheriff's report said tools and lawn care gear with a combined value of about $860 were stolen Thursday or Friday from the carport of James Charles Geniotto, 2014 Linden Road, Winter Park.

A $400 edger and a $250 blower were among the tools stolen Thursday or Friday from the home of Edward Robert Sansone, 5322 Lake Howell Road, Winter Park, sheriff's deputies reported.

Three Palestinians Killed By Israelis

15-Year-Old Boy Said Beaten To Death By Soldiers; Death Toll Now 47

BETT UMMAR, Israel-occupied West Bank (UPI) — Government troops shot and killed three Arabs in anti-Israel violence that Palestinian Liberation Organization officials vowed would continue "until Palestinian rights for self-determination and statehood are recognized."
A 15-year-old boy died Sunday of wounds allegedly suffered Saturday during a beating by soldiers, while a 10-year-old boy hit by shrapnel last week died Saturday night, the army reported. The five deaths reported Sunday brought to at least 47 the number of Palestinians killed since anti-Israel violence began Dec. 9.

The Arab-run Palestine Press Service said at least 28 West Bank residents were wounded by gunfire Sunday, but the army reported three wounded in addition to the three Palestinians killed.

It was the worst day of violence in the occupied territories since five protesters were shot to death by soldiers and 15 were wounded Dec. 22.

In Abu Dhabi, the United Arab Emirates, the PLO Sunday dismissed current U.S. peace efforts in the Middle East as an attempt by Washington to negate the "great achievements" of the 2-month-old uprising in the occupied territories.

A PLO executive committee statement vowed the violent protests would continue "until Palestinian rights for self-determination and statehood are recognized."

The statement said Washington's rejection of a proposed international peace conference and its "aggressive designs to impose limited Palestinian self-rule" were intended to abort the uprising and its great achievements.

Reverse Sting Nets Six

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

In a reverse sting unit Investigative Bureau agents nabbed six men who were allegedly involved in the purchase of 36 pounds of marijuana from agents. The arrests were made at about 4 p.m. Sunday in Longwood.

More than $17,000 was also confiscated in the deal, which was carried out at Denney's Restaurant, State Road 434 at Interstate 4.

Arrested were:
●Michael Dean Staley, 29, of Ransom, N.C., charged with possession of more than 20 grams of marijuana with intent to distribute, criminal conspiracy and possession of a controlled substance. He was being held in lieu of $3,500 bond.

●Dewayne Eric Varner, 21, of Liberty, N.C., charged with possession of a controlled substance and possession of more than 20 grams of marijuana with intent to distribute. He remained jailed in lieu of bond.

●Wayne M. Babjeck, 33, of Orlando, charged with traffic-ing in 28 grams of cocaine and possession of more than 20 grams of marijuana with intent to distribute. He was being held without bond.

Charged with criminal conspiracy and possession of more than 20 grams of marijuana with intent to distribute were:

●Mark Anthony Devasto, 27, of 241 Ringwood Circle, Winter Springs.

●Charles Webb Presnell, 31, of Orlando.

●Jeffre Dana Shepard, 30, of Orlando.

Devasto, Presnell and Shepard have been released on $1,000 bond each to appear in court Feb. 22.

CCIB agents reported arranging a meeting with the suspects at the restaurant. The agents reportedly sold the suspects 36 pounds of marijuana for $18,000. One of the suspects, Babjeck is also accused of buying $600 worth of cocaine from the agents. About $1,000 was confiscated from him, arrest reports said.

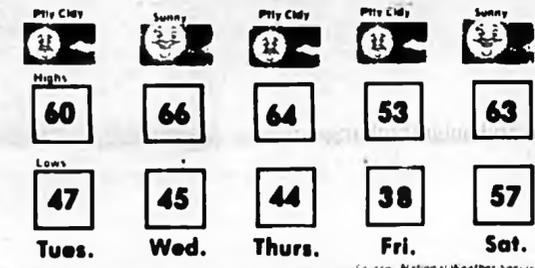

After the deals were reportedly complete, the arrests were made.

Like The Weather? Gonna Get More!

By Fred H. Cooper
Herald Staff Writer

To say that Seminoles view the weather with happy despair is not as oxymoronic as it first appears. Our citizens enjoy comparative weather viewing. Thus, the despair is occasioned by viewing the current and projected temperatures within our own territory followed by the happiness developed by seeing what the soothsayers say about conditions afar. This is particularly true with second year residents.

Let's take last week and this week as examples. The first three days of the week were warm with temperatures in the 80s, followed by 70s on Thursday, and 50s on Friday and Saturday. That was good, bad and indifferent. But wait, what about the northern climes? Zero to the 30s most everywhere up there. Last time residents smile while second year citizens hastily called yankee friends and rubbed it in. Ha, they say, don't you wish you were down here? (Be careful on this because very often these friends say yes, then bounce down for a visit.)

Well, this coming week will be very nearly a mirror image of last. It should be cool on Tuesday and Wednesday, cold on Thursday and colder Friday. Then warming for the week-end. Just as it was projected here last week, the temperatures did not get into the 30s, but they just might on Friday. But, really, if there is a dip into that forbidden zone, it will be just a little bit.

The rains might stay with us for a couple more days. Not hard, but the drizzling variety which can be so aggravating, especially when driving. It doesn't look like any Florida cities will be vying for United Press International reports and National Weather Service data were used in compiling this report.

"Cop-killer bullets, machine guns, undetectable plastic handguns..."

"What has happened within the National Rifle Association's leadership? What happened to the time when its concern was for hunting and gun safety?"

It appears to law enforcement that the N.R.A. leadership is now putting the profits of its gun backers ahead of the public interest.

In recent years, the N.R.A. has opposed law enforcement in our effort to protect our membership. You have probably heard of the N.R.A.'s lobbying for the armor-piercing, "cop-killer" bullets... for the sale of new machine guns... for the easier carrying of handguns, in Florida for example.

Now there's an even larger problem. The N.R.A. has launched a multi-million dollar campaign to allow the sale of undetectable plastic handguns.

We recently witnessed the horror caused by one handgun smuggled aboard a California airliner. Fortunately, because of metal detectors, that has been the exception to the rule. But technology now exists to produce an all-plastic handgun which can avoid detection by security devices at our airports and public buildings. Plastic handguns could soon be on the market; new detection devices are years away.

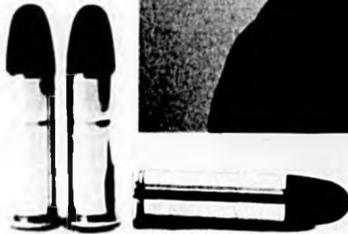

The U.S. Secret Service has testified that if these weapons become available, the protection of presidential candidates would be extremely difficult. The White House, where the Secret Service discovered 74 concealed handguns in 1986 alone, might have to be closed to visitors.

I am proud to be President of the nation's largest law enforcement organization, the Fraternal Order of Police. Our 189,000 officers patrol America, putting their lives on the line for public safety. Many of them are killed or wounded in the line of duty, and over seventy per cent of those incidents involve handguns.

While we in law enforcement believe law-abiding citizens have a right to own guns, we believe there must be some common sense with this right.

has the N.R.A. gone off the deep end?"

—Dewey Stokes, National President Fraternal Order of Police

Sale of cop-killer ammo would be legal if the N.R.A. had its way.

Every major law enforcement organization is calling for swift passage of legislation offered by Senators Strom Thurmond (R-SC) and Howard Metzenbaum (D-OH) to outlaw undetectable handguns. The National Rifle Association remains adamantly opposed to this measure.

Together, we can overcome the power of the NRA and bring sanity with the passage of legislation to outlaw undetectable handguns."

There are already more than 100,000 rapid-fire machine guns in private hands. The latest models are light and concealable. Congress passed a law to block their sale. The N.R.A. is trying to get that law repealed.

Joint Chiefs Support Treaty

At last, our military leaders have corrected their curious arms-control habits. They're now willing to endorse the treaty that would eliminate medium- and short-range missiles—without demanding a fancy new weapons system in return.

That should improve the odds that this arms-control treaty, signed by President Reagan and Soviet General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev, will be ratified by the Senate. And it makes good sense. After all, the Joint Chiefs of Staff say they strongly favor this pact, which calls for the dismantling of hundreds of Soviet and American nuclear missiles in Europe. So they shouldn't undermine their support by tying it to a bundle of costly conditions.

That hasn't been the case in the past, when the Pentagon used arms-control treaties as bargaining chips to pry more money and weapons out of Congress. In response to the 1972 strategic arms treaty, the Pentagon offered support in exchange for the Trident submarine-launched missile and the B-1 bomber, for instance. The military agreed to back a 1979 treaty, but not before exacting a promise of MX missiles. In these instances, the military paradoxically saw a treaty aimed at slowing the nuclear arms race as an opportunity to continue it.

Faced with budget cuts, admirals and generals surely must have had to hold their tongues this time around. No doubt, the Pentagon still has a lengthy wish list of weapons to present to Congress. But it isn't trying to load the wish list into the same package with the treaty.

To his credit, Adm. William J. Crowe Jr., chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has said the treaty should not be tied to the issue of correcting an imbalance in Europe's conventional forces that supposedly favors the Warsaw Pact nations. That conventional force question eventually will be addressed. But the intermediate-range nuclear force treaty—the first that actually would reduce the number of nuclear missiles in the world—should be put on the fast track.

By strongly endorsing the INF Treaty solely on its own merits, the U.S. military has recognized its importance to the superpowers and to our North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies.

Senate cynics who would cripple or delay the treaty by loading it down with "killer amendments" should take note. If the Joint Chiefs of Staff are willing to give it their strong unconditional support, senators should too.

Poor In Sad State

The national Urban League's president, John Jacobs, found one bright spot in the generally dismal state of black America: Increased political participation is helping blacks gain more control of their destiny. But Mr. Jacobs notes that the league's latest study of social conditions point to little black progress on most fronts.

The study shows that poverty rose during the Regan boom, that black family income continues to lag behind whites and that blacks remain nearly three times more likely to be poor than whites.

What must have surprised Mr. Jacobs was the Regan administration's refusal to even acknowledge that it has done more harm than good by slashing job training, cutting back on health care, refusing to make available more surplus food to the hungry—in short, raising the price of being poor while offering not a single innovative program to tackle the problems.

In fairness to this administration, it should be pointed out that the problems began long before Regan took office. What sets him apart is the fact that he has probably done less than any recent president to heal these festering wounds.

Videocassette Revolution Reaches USSR

The issue of freedom of speech—and consequently of freedom itself—has always been closely linked to communications technology. In ancient times, like today, tyrants tried to control what people said. But it may not have been too difficult a job if, in ancient Greece, all you had to do was rub out Socrates.

Fast-forward through history: the introduction of movable type by Gutenberg (in about 1452) made the job of repression harder. Soon, a person could print a thousand pamphlets. You could kill the man, but the words remained. It would not seem to be accidental that mass freedom—in America and elsewhere—followed the technological ability to easily communicate a variety of views through the printed word.

In our own time we have seen other technological marvels extend communications and—usually, but not always—extend freedom. Radio. Movies. Audio cassettes. Television. Although each of these technologies has also been exploited by dictators, their net effect has been to transmit a broader range of information to the public, much to the dismay of the totalitarians. Books and periodicals can be banned, but they are smuggled in. The Soviets continue to jam Radio Liberty, but an estimated 18 to 26 million Soviets per week listen to the programs, despite the static.

And now, another major technological step in the free flow of ideas is in motion. This one involves the videocassette recorder, and its sometimes-twin, the lightweight portable videotape camera. It represents a step up in class: we have learned in the West how much more potent television can be than radio or the printed word.

Some recent information compiled by the researchers at Radio Free Europe have indicated just how deeply the VCR has already extended into the Soviet empire. There are already an estimated 2 million sets in Eastern Europe. The number is growing very rapidly, and each set is typically watched by many viewers. The Soviet Union seems to be somewhat behind its client states in the cassette craze, but there too the VCR is established and the numbers are climbing sharply.

What do they watch behind the Iron Curtain? The states have set up official shops that offer approved tapes. But the big items are the cassettes brought in from the West. Some have political themes. But RFE researcher Vladimir Kusin says that, just as in the West, people are primarily seeking entertainment.

Now, entertainment is a broad category. There are action thrillers like James Bond, love stories, sitcoms, rock 'n' roll tapes, TV dramas and pornographic movies—like "Tango on a Mattress." There are also movies that have a social message—some blunt and bizarre like "Rambo," others much more sophisticated, like "Dr. Zhivago" and "Reds."

The totality of it shows Iron Curtain viewers a different world. There is wealth, poverty and violence—but also diversity, freedom, upward mobility and the dignity of being able to see what the citizen wants to see—not what the government wants the citizen to see.

This is "external glasnost." It goes far beyond what the official liberalization has allowed. It will not only grow, but likely remain in place even if, in the future, the communists pull the plug on internal glasnost.

Dole's Item Veto Idea

By Arnold Bevilacqua
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Presidents are supposed to be more powerful than governors, but when he moved into the White House Ronald Reagan quickly noted one area where he had less clout in Washington than he had in Sacramento.

As governor of California, Reagan had the "item veto"—the authority to reject specific items of spending within larger appropriations bills. This power exists in differing forms in 43 states, but it is denied to the president of the United States.

The purpose of the item veto is to give chief executives a way to keep legislatures from loading down money bills with what they regard as "pork barrel" spending proposals.

A governor with the item veto can go through a big appropriations bill and strike out individual items. But a president, without it, can only veto an entire bill even when it has only a few items he does not like.

Reagan has asked for line item veto authority in nearly every State of the Union address. But Congress, even when the Republicans controlled the Senate and had a working arrangement with conservative Democrats to work their will in the House, did not move to oblige the president.

But now comes Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., with word that he thinks the Constitution already provides a partial item veto. Campaigning for the Republican presidential nomination in Nashua, N.H., Dole cited Article 1, Section 7, Clause 3 of the Constitution that empowers the president to veto any "order, resolution or vote" approved by the House and Senate.

As Dole sees it, that may mean a president may veto a section of a spending bill that was added by an amendment to the original measure and approved by both houses of Congress.

That certainly would not cover every item a president might want to veto, but it might knock a few ornaments off some of the appropriations Christmas trees that Congress passes. It also is likely that the leaders of Congress would regard such a move as an unconstitutional usurpation of power.

Bureaucrats Abuse Flying Privileges

By Jack Anderson
And Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — The private jet is a time-honored freebie that our federal officials are loath to surrender to budget cuts. Why mingle with the masses in the airport when there is a government plane to take up for a spin?

Despite recent crackdowns on unnecessary flights at taxpayers' expense, an ongoing congressional investigation has indicated that bureaucrats aren't taking the advice to heart and are ignoring rules that require them to use government planes only if they are cheaper than a commercial ticket.

The Coast Guard, for example, owns a 20-year-old Gulfstream G-2 parked just a cab ride away from the capitol at National Airport in Washington, D.C. The plane is used for flying members of Congress, their spouses and their staffs, and government agency VIPs around the country on official business. It costs the taxpayers $3,173 for every hour it is in flight.

The 12-seater flew for 527 hours last year at a total cost of about $1.7 million. A Coast Guard spokesman said that the use of the aircraft was

VINCENT CARROLL

Improving Schools

Politicians often like to talk most about problems they influence least. So naturally the current crop of presidential candidates has been chatting incessantly about quality education, as if the federal government could turn our schools around.

Vice President George Bush twice voiced a desire to discuss education during his celebrated dust-up with Dan Rather. Bush has even allowed as how he'd like to be known as the "education candidate."

This folly is shared by most of his colleagues, too.

Why folly? Because the federal government simply can't do much to improve our elementary and secondary schools. It can funnel more money to them, of course, which in some districts might help attract better teachers or repair broken-down buildings. Yet neither lousy teachers nor lack of revenue explains why student achievement in the United States, especially in math and science, lags behind that in many developed nations.

We already devote a greater share of our wealth to education than most European countries and Japan. And there is no dire shortage of competent, devoted teachers. To the extent our schools fail, it is for reasons not easily addressed by national policy.

To understand why, consider the dozens of schools described by the U.S. Department of Education in the booklet, "Schools That Work, Educating Disadvantaged Children." These schools vary somewhat in approach, but all seem to share several characteristics: strong principals; fair but firm discipline; high expectations for students regardless of background; and an ability to stoke the involvement of even poor parents in their children's education.

This thesis is hardly unique. The scholar James Coleman has made a similar case in attempting to explain why the achievement gap between minorities and whites expands the longer they stay in public school, but shrinks the longer they're in parochial school. Apparently parochial schools succeed because they expect more of their students, refuse to indulge unruly kids, assign more homework and create a sense of community in which parents play an active part.

That last factor shouldn't be underestimated. A report by the National Committee for Citizens in Education summarizes scores of studies establishing a link between achievement and parental interest. How can the federal government possibly nurture vital family attitudes? It can't. But local schools and citizen groups can—if they try.

There really isn't any mystery about the components of a good school. This nation boasts many such schools already, private and public, which could provide a ready example for the even more numerous instances of educational mediocrity scattered across the land.

Yet while the tools exist to improve our schools, they're obscured by calls for more aid from Washington.

Doctors: Examine Everything

By Larry Doyle
UPI Science Writer

CHICAGO (UPI) — A 30-year-old married man walked into a Pennsylvania dermatology clinic to have a round, bumpy rash of his arm examined.

The rash proved to be nothing. Typically, the doctor would have looked at it, perhaps prescribed a topical medication, and sent the man home.

But, as part of an ongoing experiment, the man agreed to undergo a dermatological exam of his entire body. The idea was to study whether this sort of screening would uncover enough unsuspected medical problems to make the procedure worthwhile.

The doctor discovered a small purple blotch on the man's left thigh. It was Kaposi's sarcoma, a type of cancer often associated with acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

"At first the man did not admit to having any risk factors for AIDS, but upon further questioning it was clear he had," said Dr. Donald P. Lookingbill, of the Pennsylvania State University College of Medicine in Hershey, Pa. "But he could have gone a long time before he became sick enough to seek treatment."

This man's case is a dramatic example of the importance of full body exams, but as Lookingbill wrote in a recent Journal of the American Academy of Dermatology, it is not the only one.

"It is generally taught in medical school that it is worthwhile to do this exam, and that's what's generally believed in the profession, but I'm not sure it's that commonly done," Lookingbill said. "We wanted to prove that it's worthwhile."

Lookingbill and his colleagues performed whole-body exams on 1,106 consecutive volunteers at a dermatology clinic and found 162 important skin lesions, leading to diagnoses of previously unsuspected skin cancer, rashes and foot fungus in addition to the one AIDS case.

Lookingbill hopes his results will encourage dermatologists who have not already done so to make full body exams routine for new patients.

prudent and that many requests for it were denied because the requested route was served by a commercial airline for less money.

But weighing the cost of the flight appears to be the exception more than the rule for bureaucrats. A preliminary report prepared for the Government Operations Subcommittee, chaired by Rep. Glenn English, D-Okla., shows that most agencies use the government planes whenever there is an excuse to fly.

Before they take off, officials are supposed to meet two criteria established by the Office of Management and Budget. They have to prove that the same flight is not offered at a cheaper price by commercial aircraft and they must show how the trip can be justified economically. For example, a single airline ticket might be cheaper, but a private jet for several staffers going to the same destination could be justified as more economical than buying commercial tickets for all of them.

Investigators studied eight agencies and 28 aircraft and found that the first requirement was rarely met and the second was ignored altogether.

The report, obtained by our associate Jim Lynch, also noted that Department of Energy officials continue to fly thousands of hours each year, despite a recommendation from the department's inspector general in 1986 to stop using the DOE planes as air taxis for staffers. The DOE policy is that private planes should be limited to the vital "missions" of the DOE instead of "administrative" uses, but no one in DOE has ever defined what the difference is. The interpretation has been left up to the field offices or ignored. DOE spends $34 million a year on airplanes.

The DOE's Bonneville Power Administration stores two Beechcraft King Air 200s in Portland, Ore. The two planes were flown 831 hours between July 1986 and July 1987 at a cost of more than $800,000. More than 90 percent of the trips were made to ferry officials to meetings, and about 75 percent of them were to areas served by one or more commercial airlines.

The Western Area Power Administration classified most of its passenger flights as "missions," the investigators found. The agency made cost comparisons between flying commercially and using the government planes, but the comparisons "were frequently disregarded when they showed that commercially available flights were less costly," a December 1987 inspector general's report said.

The report also noted that the Nevada operations office of the DOE leased a helicopter for six months before deciding to buy it. The lease-to-buy option was written in such a way that the department was soaked for about $140,000 in lease payments that were not credited toward the purchase.

The Federal Aviation Administration has four jets that were flown almost 3,000 hours without officials ever justifying the trips under the economic criteria. Those flights cost more than $2 million.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration uses its own Beechcraft King Air 200 to fly its officials to what is considered a remote location—Wallops Island, Va. But there is a commercial airport within a one-hour drive of Wallops Island. NASA has another jet in Burbank, Calif., that also flies officials to remote sites. It cost about $600,000 to fly the jet 717 hours during the period the investigators examined. NASA did not meet either of the required criteria for flight approval.

Space Station Chief Retires

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Space station chief Andrew J. Stofan, the outspoken engineer credited with overseeing a sweeping overhaul of the beleaguered project, says he is retiring from NASA to pursue a career in private industry.

"It's a tough decision," he said by telephone Sunday from his home near Washington. "It was an unbelievable job. It's really been an interesting year and a half. The next guy who takes over is not walking into a world that's perfect ... but we've got a lot of things settled."

Widely respected within NASA for his 30 years of service, Stofan was named associate administrator for space station in June 1986. His retirement from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, effective April 1, was to be announced in Washington today.

Space Station

Original cost estimate: $8 billion
Present projected cost: $23 billion
NASA budget requests:
1988 - $767 million
1989 - $1.8 billion
1990 - $1.9 billion

Some NASA insiders said they thought Stofan was forced out of his position because of his outspoken views on a perceived lack of presidential and congressional support for the space station. But he said Sunday that was not the case.

"There have been no external pressures," he said, adding that he initially told NASA Administrator James Fletcher that he would take on the job only long enough to "get the space station going again, put it on firm ground."

Last December, Stofan said, he told Fletcher that he had accomplished his goal and that it was time to move on.

"I said, hey look, I think I've done what I promised to do and I'd like to go," Stofan said. "He wanted me to stay for the rest of his administration."

NASA hopes to have the space station, a permanently manned orbital research facility, ready for use in the mid- to late 1990s, but the project has been threatened by budget cuts.

In an interview at the Kennedy Space Center in December, before the station's fiscal 1988 budget had been resolved, Stofan said presidential support was vital for the project's survival.

"It goes right to the basic problem we have today, and that's leadership," he said. "It's a lack of or not enough leadership in the White House, in the Office of Management and Budget, in Congress and in NASA."

"And I think to have NASA do what it ought to do takes leadership in all those arenas. Remember, the space station is President Reagan's initiative, and a reaffirmation of that is needed if we are going to get through this process and get enough money to start this program."

The station originally was billed as an $8 billion program when President Reagan endorsed the project in his 1984 State of the Union address. Since then, more realistic figures have emerged and the station now is expected to cost more than $14 billion for hardware alone.

When administrative and shuttle transportation costs are figured in, the final price tag could exceed $23 billion.

NASA requested $767 million in fiscal 1988 to get the project rolling and planned to request $1.8 billion in 1989 and $1.9 billion in 1990. But House-Senate negotiators approved just $425 million for fiscal 1988.

Streetman Named To Wekiva Panel

Staff And Wire Reports

Fred Streetman, chairman of the Seminole County Board of Commissioners, has been appointed by Gov. Bob Martinez to a 13-member task force to study ways to protect the Wekiva River. Martinez announced the formation of the task force at Wekiwa Springs State Park.

The panel, made up of state and local officials, has until May 20 to forward to the governor proposals for preserving the pristine central Florida stream against encroaching development.

The task force chairman is Thomas Pelham, secretary of the Department of Community Affairs. DCA will provide the task force staff.

Other members are Department of Environmental Protection Secretary Dale Twachmann, Department of Natural Resources chief Tom Gardner, Secretary of Transportation Kaye Henderson, and Col. Bobby Brantly, director of the Game and Freshwater Fish Commission.

Regional officials are Harry Dean, executive director of the St. Johns River Water Management District, and Clifford Guillet, executive director of the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council.

Local officials besides Streetman are Lake County Commissioner Donald Bailey and Orange County Commissioner Vera Mae Carter.

We've mapped out a new area code to meet Florida's growth.

Introducing Area Code 407. Beginning April 16, 1988.

The number of new Florida residents has grown so much that we're creating a new area code—407—for the region north of the Broward/Palm Beach line to just north of Orlando. The creation of the new 407 area code means we'll be able to continue serving customers by providing new phone lines well into the next century.

Area code 407 will take effect on April 16, and there are a few things we suggest you do by then.

If you live inside the portion of area code 305 that will change to 407, you can tell friends and relatives about the upcoming conversion. (Your 7 digit telephone number won't change—only the area code.) And if you live outside this area, but call any numbers inside area code 407, you can correct your records to reflect the new numbers.

If you have any questions or you'd like a free brochure about area code 407, please call us toll free at 1 800 331-2355.

One more helpful tip about this change: It's easy to remember when area code 407 will be in effect—it starts one day after a date that's unforgettable to all taxpayers.

"We've changed the way we look But... not the way we cook."

Something Good is Happening at Holiday House and You're Going to Eat It Up.

The only reason to change a good thing is to make it better. That's exactly what we've done at Holiday House. We've expanded the salad bar and added a wider selection—take all you care to eat. So, now you can sit down for a fresher than ever salad to go along with your choice of delicious roast turkey, roast ham, roast beef, roast leg of lamb and other tempting entrees. And don't forget our unlimited fresh vegetables and freshly baked bread. Lots of reasons why 98% of our customers recommend us to their friends.

Come home to thirty years of fresh Florida tradition. And tell a friend. Something good is always happening at Holiday House.

Raiders Turn Daytona's Lights Out, 107-72

By Mark Dwyer
Herald Sports Writer

Malcolm Houston scored a game-high 21 points and freshman Mark Hadden netted 20 leading Seminole Community College to a 107-72 thrashing over Daytona Beach Community College Saturday night, in Mid-Florida Conference play before 151 fans at the SCC Health Center.

The Raiders improved to 19-6 overall and stayed tied for the MFC lead with an 8-2 mark. The Scots dropped to 16-11 overall and 4-6 in conference play.

"We shot the ball well and played very good defense tonight," Seminole coach Bill Payne said. "We played good for a change, the kids said before the game they were going to play well and they did."

Houston drilled a pair of three pointers in the opening minutes as Seminole rushed out to a 12-4 lead with 16:28 to play in the first half.

Terrill Barnes, who led Seminole in the opening half with 15 of his 17 points, exploited Daytona's weakness in the middle as he continually went to the basket and put down layups and power moves.

The Raiders opened a 21 point lead, 33-12, with 7:50 remaining off a pair of free throws by Hadden, Hadden added two more from the stripe to build the lead to 38-15 with 5:20 remaining.

Daytona put on a little spurt in the last two minutes to pull within 20, as the Raiders claimed a 51-32 halftime edge.

The Scots efforts to slow the ball down and work themselves back into the game backfired as SCC went on to dominate them in the second half. The Raiders were never threatened after building their early lead, the only negative part of their play was their loss of concentration after building the commanding lead.

"We're either all good or all bad," Payne said. "We need to become more consistent over the final part of the season."

Payne felt Daytona's attempt to slow the tempo down was a good idea, and that it might have worked if the Raider squad had not played an exceptional game.

"I think that's the way they'll (Daytona) have to play," Payne said. "We just had a good night and had a nice team effort."

Every SCC player managed to get into the scoring column, Holly Keller finished with two points but handed out 13 assists while coming up with a pair of steals, Keller came up with an intercepted pass and led Rob Williams, who finished with eight points and a game-high 13 rebounds, who then put down a two-hand slam. Keller then stripped the ball from Sean Sears and put down a one handed slam for his only shot attempt of the night.

The Scots came out in the second half with a full court press and tried to get themselves back in the game. DBCC had worked the clock and managed to get the ball inside, Barnes then swatted away a shot by Sears, Barnes then ran the floor and connected on a twisting layup to complete the Raider fast break.

Vince Emerson then came up with a rebound after a Barnes dunk attempt failed, Emerson took the ball right back at the basket, though, and put down a baby dunk taking the wind out of the Scot sails.

Daytona never put together any kind of rally as the Raiders play down low prevented any inside hoops. Daytona was continually forcing up long range jumpers as it finished the game shooting, 28-73, for a dismal 38 percent.

Seminole will host Central Florida Community College Wednesday in another tough and crucial MFC matchup. Payne feels the CFCC squad is the most talented in the conference and will cause problems for the SCC team.

"They have the starting lineup in the conference," Payne said. "They all shoot three pointers and love to run too."

Action will kick-off at 7:30 in the SCC Health Center and admission is free.

Jordan Shines Brightest

CHICAGO (UPI) - The NBA's All-Star weekend showcase became a two-day coronation ceremony for Michael Jordan of the Chicago Bulls.

Jordan, with a hometown crowd supporting him, won the NBA Slam-Dunk event Saturday and completed his award sweep Sunday by scoring 40 points, pulling down 8 rebounds and grabbing 4 steals in the 38th All-Star Game to earn the Most Valuable Player award.

The Chicago Stadium crowd of 18,403 earned its second assist of the weekend by cheering Jordan's every move in the All-Star Game won by Jordan's East team 138-133.

"I want to thank the NBA for bringing the game to Chicago," Jordan said after the game. "I think there were a lot of expectations as far as me getting the MVP. My expectations were just to have a good game."

Jordan fulfilled his expectations. He made 17 of 23 field goal attempts in 29 minutes and delighted the audience with steals and slam dunks.

Jordan also put behind him, possibly forever, the rumored All-Star Game problem that reportedly started his rookie year in Indianapolis.

In that game, Jordan started but scored only 7 points and took only nine shots. There were reports Isaiah Thomas had decided to keep Jordan out of the offense to spunk the eventual Rookie of the Year, who was already taking over the NBA.

On Sunday, Thomas handed out 15 assists and six went to Jordan. Thomas, a native Chicagoan of the rival Detroit Pistons, was booted at the start of the game. He was pleased to help Jordan do so well.

"We wanted to make sure if there was going to be an MVP on our team, it was going to be Michael," said Thomas. "Near the end of the game I looked up at the scoreboard and saw he had 36 points. We said, 'Let's see if we can get you 40,' and he said, 'Nah, Nah.'"

Jordan scored all of his 16 fourth-quarter points in the final 5:50. Only Wilt Chamberlain, who had 42 in 1962, had more points in All-Star competition.

Jordan became the second straight player, and ninth overall, from the host team to win the MVP. Last year, Tom Chambers claimed the honor in Seattle.

Jordan was backed by Dominique Wilkins with 29 points as the East won for the seventh time in nine games. Wilkins finished second to Jordan in the Slam-Dunk competition after a controversial low score on his last dunk and was having an MVP-type game Sunday before Jordan's final run of points.

"It would be out of taste for me to say this whole experience was unfair," Wilkins said.

Karl Malone scored 22 points to lead the West and Akeem Olajuwon added 21. Magic Johnson collected 19 assists for the West.

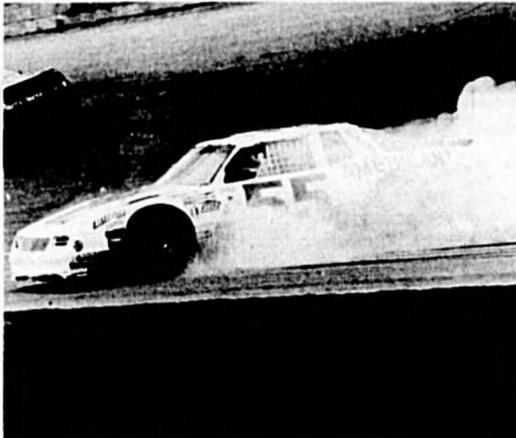

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar became the all-time leading scorer in All-Star competition when he sank a basket with 44 seconds to play. Abdul-Jabbar, who finished with 10 points, has 247 points, surpassing Oscar Robertson's 246.

"It was a five-down," Abdul-Jabbar said of the record-setting basket.

Dale Earnhardt (No. 3) takes the high groove and zips past Geoff Bodine in Sunday's Busch Clash at Daytona International Speedway. Earnhardt went on to victory in the Clash. The spin out at right was one of only few incidents in a pretty clean day of racing Sunday. This week's features are the Twin 125s on Thursday and the Daytona 500 on Sunday.

Earnhardt Takes Clash

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) - Busch Clash winner Dale Earnhardt, who prefers to do things on his own, will need help making up ground in next Sunday's Daytona 500.

Sunday's 20-lap Clash was the first race at Daytona International Speedway run with cars using the new one-inch restrictor plates on carburetors. The rule slows down the cars, bunching them together on the track, and again makes drafting an important part of any race strategy.

In recent years, drivers with the better cars could make up ground on their own. But after

SPEED WEEKS '88

Sunday's Clash, it is apparent drafting - driving with at least one other car to cut wind resistance and give a push to the front car in the pack - will be back in vogue. The rule will be used only in races at Daytona and Alabama International Motor Speedway.

Earnhardt, in his new black and silver Goodwrench Chevrolet, held off a strong challenge by Ford driver Davey Allison to win the third Busch Clash of his career and his seventh overall victory at the 2.5-mile speedway. Bobby Allison was third in a Buick, followed by Geoff Bodine and Bill Elliott.

"We sort of beat it (drafting) aerodynamically the last year or two," said Earnhardt, winner of the past two Winston Cup championships. "But now with the cars using the restrictor, it's more important to run with a good car pushing you. It takes two cars to pass one now. One car can't do it by himself."

The drivers who got out of line Sunday found that out quickly.

Fantastic Four County Teams To Battle For 4A-9 District Crown

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Editor

Both Lake Mary and Lyman had successful regular seasons and finished among the top-ranked teams in the state in Class 4A. But they know that, once the District 4A-9 Tournament begins, you can erase the slate and start the teams off at 0-0.

For the past few years, the district has been a shootout between Seminole County's "Fantastic Four," Lake Mary and Lyman will be the favorites but, once again, Lake Brantley and Lake Howell can not be counted out in what is one of the most competitive districts in the state.

The 4A-9 Tournament opens with first-round action tonight. Lake Mary hosts Daytona Beach Mainland; Lake Brantley is at Lake Howell and Spruce Creek hosts DeLand. Lyman, the No. 1 seed in the tourney, gets a first-round bye.

"This has always been a tournament of surprises," Lyman coach Ray Sandridge said. "The four county teams always play tough in the district and any one of them is capable of winning."

That has certainly been the case in the past three seasons.

A year ago, Lake Howell went unbeaten in the conference but was upset by Lyman in the district. Lake Mary's Rams then defeated the Greyhounds in the championship and the Rams went on to finish second in the state.

In 1986, Lyman claimed the district title only to be upset by Winter Park in the regionals. In 1985, Lake Brantley got out of the dog-eat-dog district and went on to finish second in the state.

"Whoever wins it has a real good shot of going to state," Lake Mary coach Larry McCorkle said. "But you always have to fight like heck to get out of the district and sometimes its almost anticlimatic to play the region game."

Lake Mary knows full well that whoever wins the district has a legitimate shot at the Final Four. The Rams were not district favorites last year but put it together at the right time and went all the way to the state finals.

"We're almost exactly in the same position as last year,"

McCorkle said. "We have the same number of wins, finished second in the conference and have really never put it all together for one game."

For the first time this season, however, Lake Mary may be in position to put it all together as it is expected to have all its players ready. Chris Kenefick, a transfer from Melbourne, has not yet had a chance to fully blend in with his new team and Ernie Broennle and Lee Alexander are back in the lineup after injuries.

"We have a few guys still hobbling around but we should have everyone ready by at least the second round of district," McCorkle said. "We're not overlooking the first, round, though because this time of year brings out the best in the weaker team because they have nothing to lose."

One team that appears to be peaking at the right time is Lyman's Greyhounds, a senior-dominated team with awesome offensive capabilities. If Lyman can continue to crank out the goals and get good defensive support from goalkeeper Kelly Walden and company, it will be a tough team to beat in the district.

Lake Howell and Lake Brantley may not have enjoyed the same regular-season success as in recent years, but both are skilled teams capable of pulling off a few upsets and shaking up the district.

Lake Howell has tied Lyman twice this season while Brantley has a four-game winning streak going including a victory over Lake Howell.

The Volusia County teams can't be overlooked but their chances of taking the district are slight. Spruce Creek may be the best of the lot as the Hawks have an impressive 19-2-1 record, but they have not played any of the Seminole County Class 4A teams. DeLand has had the experience of playing in the rugged Seminole Athletic Conference and may actually be the most seasoned of the Volusia teams.

When all is said and done, though, you can be sure that one Seminole County's "Fantastic Four" will bring home the district title.

Brantley Readies For Trip To Melbourne

Chris Fister
HERALD SPORTS EDITOR

Its tournament time around Seminole County and, for the Herald sports guys, that means it's not just a job, but an adventure. The first road trip of '88 is just around the corner.

The necessities for a Herald sports road trip include the following: Road map (preferably one of Florida); compass (not easy to read map while driving); cardboard box; Sports Illustrated swimsuit issue; case of beef jerky (optional); radar detector and, of course, smelling salts.

For this particular road trip, a body-guard might also be necessary. The destination of Tuesday night's trip is Melbourne (somewhere near Okeechobee isn't it?...just kidding) and Seminole County folks don't figure to get a warm reception in Bulldog territory.

Here's the story.

When Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots roll into Melbourne for the Region 2 girls soccer playoff, they can expect a pretty rude welcoming if not an all-out ambush. It is Brantley that has ruined what could otherwise be a perfect season for the defending state champion Lady Bulldogs.

The teams have met three times this season. The first time, early in the year, was a 2-2 tie and you can pretty much write that one off to it being too early to tell anything.

Midway through the season, the two locked up again in the semifinals of the Burger King Tournament. No excuses this time. Brantley just flat out kicked the living daylight out of the Bulldogs. Final, Lake Brantley 5, Melbourne 0.

Later in the year, Melbourne came to Altamonte Springs with the Lady Patriots missing some key starters due to injuries. Melbourne at one time had a 2-0 lead but Brantley battled back and it wound up a 3-3 tie.

The Lady Patriots go into Tuesday night's playoff with a 24-0-2 record and ranked No. 1 in the state. Melbourne is 23-1-2 and ranked fourth.

Because it has become such an intense battle featuring two of the state's strongest teams, there has been some animosity between the two. And most of it has been generated from Melbourne's side.

Whether it is because they are spoiled from success and can't stand the thought of being beat, or because they are just dweebs by nature, the Melbourne people have not been very sportsmanlike the last two times they have played Brantley.

After being thoroughly trounced in the Burger King tourney, the Melbourne fans became a bit unruly, first blaming it on poor officiating and saying it will be a different story next time.

It was a different story the next time the two teams played as Melbourne played much better than in the Burger King and Brantley did not have the same firepower, but played an inspired game with half the team injured.

The only thing that wasn't different was the unruliness of the Melbourne folks. It was seen on the field during the game when Kelley Barnes was red carded for cussing an official and following it up with a hand gesture. Afterwards, it was time for the Melbourne fans to sing the same old blues. "we got ripped and wait until next time."

Through all the bellyaching by the Melbourne people, Lake Brantley has remained a class act. Through dedication, talent and teamwork, Brantley has become a state powerhouse and, no matter how rough things get on the field,

Orbit Ball

Lake Mary's Tara Jackson (00) watches as the ball sails into orbit after she swiped it away from Oviedo's Jodie Switzer (24) in Seminole Athletic Conference action last week at Oviedo High. Both teams have tough tasks this week as they face Seminole High. Seminole needs to win only one of the games to win the SAC title.

SHS Girls Go For Title

Seminole High's Lady Seminoles need to win just one of two games this week to clinch their first Seminole Athletic Conference championship. The Lady Tribe plays at Oviedo Tuesday night and hosts Lake Mary Thursday night.

Seminole, 15-5 overall, has been impressive in the past few weeks as it takes a 10-game winning streak into this week's action. Last week, Seminole moved one step closer to the SAC title by knocking off DeLand. Seminole is now 9-1 in the conference with the only loss to DeLand. The Lady Bulldogs are 8-3 and Lake Howell is 7-3.

Seminole will have no pushovers in each of its two games this week. Oviedo, 13-9 and 3-7, gave Seminole some big problems the last time they met as the Lady Lions took the lead at halftime before Seminole rallied in the second half.

Seminole handled Lake Mary rather easily, 66-44, the last time the two rivals met, but Lake Mary has since won six of its last seven and is 10-11 overall and 5-6 in the league.

WRESTLING

when Shawn Heath pinned Lake Mary's Aaron Wheeler in 1:10 at 103 pounds. Scott Flores and Wayne Clayton then came through with consecutive victories for the Rams. Flores defeated Tom Parks, 8:3, at 112 pounds and Clayton upended David Palmore, 7-1, at 119.

Southridge came back with a pair of wins as Jones Cortez downed Enrique Carbia, 11-2, at 125 and Boris Pratt pinned Danny Zacco in 1:50 at 130 pounds.

Jose Carbia and Rob Richards kept Southridge from gaining the momentum, though. Carbia pinned Southridge's Cecil Gallego in 1:45 at 135 pounds and Richards stuck Robert Green in 1:13 at 140.

Southridge then got a big win from Shawn Martinez who outlasted Shane Stanley, 10-7, and John Dukes followed with an 11-1 decision over Lake Mary's Kent Lovvorn.

In a match-up between the state's top two 160-pounders, Lake Mary's Tracy Turner and Southridge's Brian Stewart battled to a 1-1 tie. Southridge then got a 1-1 decision by Scott Smith over Lance Stewart but Lake Mary's Ori Kantor kept it close by defeating Charles Anderson, 10-6, at 188 pounds.

Lake Mary then picked up a win by forfeit before Southridge clinched the victory at the heavyweight division with Russell Kirkham's 16-0 technical fall over Chris Israel.

Lady Rams Upend Rockledge

By Mark Blythe
Herald Sports Writer

Lake Mary's Teri Whyte and Tara Jackson spearheaded a second half comeback as the Lady Rams nipped Rockledge, 50-48, in girls prep basketball action Saturday night at Lake Mary High School.

Lake Mary improved to 10-11 overall and will play two tough games this week, on the road to Seminole Thursday and home against Vangaurd Saturday.

"Teri (Whyte) got into foul trouble early and they (Rockledge) went to the middle," Lake Mary coach Mac Blythe said. "Teri had a strong second half and rebounded a lot stronger than she did in the opening half."

Whyte finished with a team-high 17 points and a game-high 12 rebounds, Jackson added 12 points as Gina Dawson tossed in nine.

Sharon Green led all scorers with 27 points including a trio of three pointers, teammate Pam Wulf added nine points.

"When Teri went out of the game with her second foul, Green began to score," Blythe said. "Green is a good leaper and shoots the ball well, she scored a lot of points in the opening half when Teri was on the bench."

Green scored 17 points in the opening half as Rockledge built a 27-22 advantage at the intermission.

The Lady Rams came out strong in the second half and built a 38-33 lead after three quarters of play. A change in defense turned out to be the turning point in the game for Lake Mary.

"We changed our strategy for the second half and put a little pressure defense on," Blythe said. "The defense seemed helped and Teri had a good third quarter to get us going."

The Lady Rams have now won eight out of its last nine games and enters a week against two teams that handled them easily in their last meeting. Lake Mary, though, has now beaten four teams that it lost to earlier in the season and seems to be coming around.

"I think my team is finally understanding what I want from them," Blythe said. "It's been nice to see their improvement over the last few weeks."

MARY NIPS JAX KENNY

Lake Mary's junior varsity squad continued to roll Saturday with a 35-30 victory over Jacksonville Kenny at Lake Mary High School.

Lori Winnall and Kim Prater each had 10 points to lead the way for the Lady Rams. Winnall also added nine rebounds and nine steals in an excellent all-around performance.

Lake Mary, 16-2, will now participate in a Vero Beach junior varsity tournament this Friday which also features Bishop Moore and Lake Brantley.

ROCKLEDGE (46) — Wulf 9, Green 27, McCoy 0, Peele 4, Strain 4, Jablonski 2, Totals 194-74

LAKE MARY (58) — Whyte 17, Kuvach 2, Dawson 9, Jackson 12, Whyte 17, Kuvach 2, Liberato 0, Stoddard 3, Rountree 2, Totals 224-180

Halftime — Lake Mary 27, Rockledge 27, Fouls — Rockledge 16, Lake Mary 9, Fouled out — None, Three pointers — Rockledge 4 (Green), Wulf 11.

ICBA Battle: Tomcats Outlast Hawks, 45-44

By Mark Blythe
Herald Sports Writer

When the two undefeated teams met head on this week in the Inter-County Basketball Association (ICBA) junior varsity boys division, it was expected to be a good game. It couldn't have been better as the Florida PAL Tomcats from Oviedo nipped the Maitland Hawks 45-44.

The Tomcats used the inside strength of Leon Lowman and Scott Tesinsky, who led their team scorers with 18 and 17 respectively. Both came alive in the fourth quarter scoring eight points apiece. The Tomcats outscored Maitland, 18-14, in the final quarter to comeback and win the game. Todd Bellhorn aided the Tomcats with eight assists. Tommy Denning was the big gun for Maitland as he poured in a game-high 28 points, as Jeff Barr netted six.

In another JV game the Jackson Height Bobcats edged the Milwee Spartans 41-39. Matt Rall led Jackson Heights with a game-high 17 points. Timmy Shelton chipped in nine. Jeff Brodeur added seven as Reed Rasmussen connected for five. Mike Ek led Milwee with 13 points. Lou Rivera and Travis Clark each had 10 and Eric Katauskas added six.

In girls action the Florida PAL Maitland/Tuskawilla combo stayed unbeaten as they whipped Westmonte 44-7. Connie Bonaventure led all scorers with 22. Jen Loop led Westmonte with five points.

The Jackson Height Kittens remained one game behind as they took Eastmonte, 24-9. Mimi Tran scored a game-high 16 points. Erin Farrell added four as Heather Thekan dominated the boards with 17 rebounds. Susan Willis led Eastmonte with four

The Jackson Height Scorpions beat South Seminole, 21-17, in a tough battle. With 30 seconds remaining the score was even at 17-17. Jennifer Norton then scored the go ahead basket and Nancy Wood added a pair of free throws to ice the win. Wood was high for Jackson Heights with 12 points. Terri Kaleel added four. Jill Cayton led South Seminole with seven points as Melanie Schrupp had six.

In varsity boys action the Maitland Ravens remained unbeaten with a pair of victories, upending Tuskawilla, 79-47, and the Jackson Height Bobcats, 85-51. Against Tuskawilla, William Brooks led the way with 25 points. Branniff Bonaventure had 15 as Seth Rubin connected for 14. Josh Kohn led all scorers with 29 points as Mike Evans netted 14 for Tuskawilla. A well-balanced scoring attack led Maitland past Jackson Heights as Bonaventure scored a team-high 16 points. Rubin added 15, as Brooks and KK Wilson each netted 14. Todd Gies contributed 13 as Rhys Damie chipped in 11. Mark Bellhorn was the top gun for the Bobcats with 16. Ryan Wicks added 10 and Kenny Kroog eight. The Bobcats salvaged their weekend with a victory over South Seminole 51-36. Wicks was high with 14. Bellhorn followed with 13.

The Maitland Hawks defeated the Jackson Height Blue Demons 75-30. Alto King led five Hawks that reached double digits with 14. Jarus Meck, Scooby Quinn, Jimmy Johnson and Robbie O'Brien all had 10. Chad Caldwell led the Demons with seven points.

The Lady Patriots have always kept their composure. They have a supportive group of parents and fans who choose to cheer on the Lady Patriots instead of taunting the opposition.

If Brantley continues to conduct itself with the dignity it has all year, that will be an added advantage in a tough road game. And, if they play up to their potential, it will be another step toward the goal of reaching the State Tournament.

The Lady Patriots have received solid support thus far and having a good following at Tuesday's game will be a big boost. Hey, one way or another, we'll be there. Only, if you see us on the road, let us follow you.

Lake Brantley's Shannon Anderson (right) beats Melbourne's Julie Fleck to the ball in action earlier this season. Lake Brantley, No. 1 in the state, and Melbourne, No. 4, will lock up again Tuesday night in the Region 2 playoff game at Melbourne. Brantley is the only team to beat Melbourne this season while the two have also tied twice. Melbourne is the defending state champion while Lake Brantley is seeking its first State Tournament berth.

Stocks Open Sharply Lower

NEW YORK (UPI) - Prices opened sharply lower today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 47.74 last week, was off 21.89 to 1888.59 shortly after the market opened.

Declines outnumbered advances 879-222 among the 1,467 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 27,800,000 shares.

Stocks ended mixed Friday after a wave of program selling hit the market at the tail end of a day of trendless trading marked chiefly by investors' reluctance to commit themselves in an uncertain economic environment.

City Commissioner John Mercer, also an SOS member, is concerned too. He recently supported the city administration when it applied for a block grant which would have helped renovate the facilities and meet the needs of the lesser privileged at The Good Samaritan and Rescue Outreach Mission. However, at that time he also stated that he would not support any city money going into the Manna Haven facility.

Malone says that the presence of many old houses converted into apartment buildings also encourages the presence of a transient community. "We're not against poor people," she adds. However, many of the apartment buildings are not being kept up properly by the landlords, she said. She says the cheaper buildings do draw a transient community, which adds to the crime rate. She says that her property has been broken into 19 times-four times her house has been broken into and the other times something such as the chain on the outdoor grill has been cut.

But she adds that if the landlords would fix up the property, people might be encouraged to stay. They might develop a sense of community pride, she says.

Many blocks in the historic area will have several once beautiful old homes, converted into apartment buildings, Malone says. She says she knows most of them could not possibly be up to code, but that since she is already on the code enforcement board, she cannot give a complaint to the city herself. She says she believes the city knows about many of these old apartment buildings, but that nothing is being done about them.

Sanford Police Chief Steven D. Harriott, agrees that in neighborhoods where a large group of transients are located, the crime rate is higher.

Beautifulization of neighborhoods and parks in the city is another area of concern to SOS members. One SOS member, Martha Yancey, is the chairman of Sanford's Scenic Improvement Board.

Dollar Opens Higher Gold, Silver Mixed

By United Press International

The dollar opened slightly higher today in light trading on most major world money markets as traders awaited the report on the U.S. trade picture. Gold was mixed.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar edged higher against the Japanese yen in moderate trading, closing at 129.30 yen, up 0.75 from Friday's close of 128.55 yen.

Survey Shows Gas Prices Drop

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - The average price of a gallon of gasoline dropped three-quarters of a cent at the pump in the last two weeks, but rising wholesale prices could signal an end to the continuing decline, the Lundberg Survey says.

The three-quarter of a cent decline since Jan. 22 to an average 96.59 cents a gallon followed similar declines in recent weeks, said Trilby Lundberg, editor of the survey that tracks prices at 13,000 gas stations nationwide.

"But the price cuts could be coming to an end as wholesale and spot market gasoline prices have increased in much of the country," Lundberg said Sunday.

Any price increase will hinge on retailers' operating margins, which shrink as wholesale costs rise and pump prices drop, she said.

As of Friday, the average price for a gallon of gasoline at self-service stations was 87.55 cents for regular unleaded, $1.0259 for premium unleaded and 83.69 for regular leaded. At full-service stations, regular

The group also wants to eventually begin sponsoring cultural activities in the city. Domen says the group wants to sponsor art festivals and concerts in the park. However, since SOS is still in the early growing stages, those activities also remain in the future.

Members also want to see transportation systems, such as bike trails, which will minimize traffic congestion. Domen says he also would like to see four-way stops on all of the streets in his neighborhood. He says he believes those would cut down on a lot of needless trafficking through the area.

SOS also encourages citizens to be involved in what is going on in their city. "I believe you have to know what's going on in city hall," says Domen. In fact, he says that SOS serves as a clearinghouse of information. Any citizens having questions can talk to him or other SOS members, or attend the meetings. As far as citizen involvement, he also comments that "Who knows, maybe we can rules used to be called the Code of Professional Responsibility and they were called the Canons of Ethics even before that," Plotnick said.

The lawyers can only present legal argument as to why what they did after the verdict was given isn't contempt, according to Plotnick. He said there's no way the can prove they didn't approach the jurors afterwards. Plotnick said a lawyer can talk to a member of a jury after they hand down a verdict, but only to investigate a grounds for appeal of the case. Plotnick added that the contact with the jurors cannot be made without prior permission from the court, which in this case Steiner and Traders in Japan noted that most market players refrained from taking any large dollar positions ahead of Friday's release of U.S. trade figures for December.

In early New York trading, the dollar was mixed against key foreign currencies in light trading.

For November, the U.S. posted a trade deficit of $13.22 billion.

make a difference in the next election!"

Fundraising efforts will also be another phase of SOS activity. However, right now the only monies being generated are through membership fees. Membership cost is $10, except for senior citizens. Their cost is five dollars. The 20 original charter members paid $25 fees. Yancey said the money is primarily needed for publishing the newsletter and for stationery and postage.

Both Domen and Malone point out that SOS is patterned after organizations in other cities which push for the preservation of the character of the historic residential districts within the cities. They say that organizations similar to SOS are what have made the difference in cities such as Charleston, S.C. and Savannah, Ga. Malone says she believes that if the people of Sanford will work to maintain and preserve the neighborhoods, Sanford could become another Winter Park.

Limberopoulos didn't have.

If Steiner and Limberopoulos were found in contempt they would be guilty of a second degree misdemeanor, and could be fined as much as $500 and face a possible six months in prison, according to Plotnick.

The two lawyers could also face sanctions from the Florida Bar for their actions as well as the criminal penalties, Plotnick said.

Steiner or Limberopoulos have claimed that Leffler didn't follow proper procedures in bringing the contempt charges against them because he had them pulled out of court in Tampa to be informed them of the charges in a judge's chambers there. They further claim he violated the confidentiality of the nature of the alleged violations against them.

saying Poindexter sought Noriega's support in mid-1986 "to tailor its foreign policy to Washington interest plans."

"This request was denied, thus causing the start of a continuous campaign aimed at slandering him," the statement said.

Steven Kolin, one of the four U.S. lawyers hired by Noriega, said he will ask Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., who starts hearings on Noriega in Washington today, to allow lawyers to cross-examine witnesses.

Frank Rubino, another lawyer hired by Noriega, blamed the drug smuggling and racketeering indictments returned last Friday in Miami and Tampa on the apparent failure of the canal treaty extension.

"With the actual makeup of the Panamanian political forces, an agreement of such nature is impossible. Thus, the U.S. administration has spared no effort or insult to isolate Panama on an international level and destabilize the government." The Panamanian government statement read by Rubino said.

Committee Will Tour Sanford Middle School

The Local Advisory Committee of Sanford Middle School will meet Tuesday to look over the school's main building, to help decide whether the building should be renovated or razed and rebuilt as part of the 1985 school bond issue.

Sanford commissioners and school board members also have been invited to the meeting at 7:30 p.m. in the school's media center. Parents or other interested individuals are welcome to the informational meeting, at which school administrators will discuss their needs and dreams for the main building.

The group will tour the main building, which faces U.S.

Highway 17-92, to note size of rooms, administrative problems, and other aspects that will aid in the decision, said Roger Gardner, assistant principal.

An engineering cost estimate of renovation and bringing the building up to state standards would cost $3.7 million plus $15 per square foot, said Principal Dan Pelham.

"I think what they were saying was that the cost analysis of renovation was not worth it," Pelham said. "I've been saying all along that this structure needs to come down and a more modern structure needs to be built to meet the needs of today's students." - Brian Hedberg crossed Iowa Sunday in chartered planes and cars. Their last-minute advertisements saturating radio and television. Behind the scenes, telephone banks were busy trying to nail down final votes.

The campaigning, which in some cases began as long as two years ago, was set to end only late this evening, returning Iowa to quiet normalcy until 1992.

Republicans will choose among Dole, Bush, Robertson, Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, former Delaware Gov. Pete Dufort and former Secretary of State Alexander Haig, who has not campaigned actively in Iowa.

Democrats will vote for Gephardt, Dukakis, Simon, civil rights leader Jesse Jackson, former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt, former Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado and Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee, who virtually boycotted Iowa and based his hopes on sweeping the Super Tuesday state of Southern primaries March 8.

Bush and Dole toned down their personal feud Sunday, a bitter confrontation that in the last few days almost obscured the activities of other Republicans and drew attention away from the more gentlemanly Democrats.

Groot said the decision has been appealed to the Fifth District Court of Appeals and briefs are now being prepared for that court's hearing.

The expressway commission is composed of seven elected officials—the five Senate

County commissioners, the mayor of Sanford, and a Lake Mar city commissioner. The port authority membership includes one county commissioner.

Webster requested an appearance before the grand jury in a letter to Willem Daman, grand jury foreman. Copies of the letter were also sent to Gov. Martinez, Ed Austin, state attorney for the Yankee Lake investigation who is currently presenting that case to the grand jury, and the chief judge of the 18th judicial district.

Issue Of 27-Year-old Man's Beard Gets A Little Hairy

DEAR ABBY: I am outraged at your answer to "Bearded in Boston," the 27-year-old man who paid for his own education and is doing well on his own. He had been living away from his family (out of state) for the last five years, and when he returned with a beard, his father told him that if he wanted to come home again, he'd have to shave off his beard.

"Bearded" said he liked the beard and all his friends thought it looked great; then he asked you: "If I shave it off, what will I tell my friends?" Your reply: "Tell your friends your father refused to let you come home unless you shaved your beard."
Abby, why didn't you tell him to keep his beard, come home and stay somewhere else?

OUTRAGED IN BALTIMORE
DEAR OUTRAGED: From the mail I received, I didn't make myself clear. I did not advise "Bearded" to shave off his beard. I told him that if he shaved his beard, he should tell his friends that his father wouldn't let him come home unless he got rid of the beard.
"Had 'Bearded' asked, 'Should I shave it off?' I would have replied: "As a 27-year-old self-supporting adult, you should tell your father that you didn't need his permission to wear a beard—and if you're not welcome to stay with the family, you will arrange to stay somewhere else."
As a communicator, I flunked on this one. Pass the henfolk.

DEAR ABBY: I was appalled by "Burned Up in Newcastle," who raged against your commonsensical plea to let divorced parents stand together at their child's wedding, even though the parents have since remarried.
I should not have been appalled, for it is all too common for second wives to selfishly begrudge their husbands contact with their ex-wives and children, and to bitterly resent any show of generosity (gifts or money) to them.
When I married a divorced man whom I deeply loved, I encouraged him to visit his ex-wife and children and to be generous with them. And when his son married, I chose not to attend the wedding. I thought it was his child's special moment, and he would want his parents there together—which was all right with me. I knew who I was. I was his father's wife, and I also knew that the bonds established

Dear Abby

In every family do not simply go away because a divorce took place. I understood the feelings of children toward their divorced father, for I had previously had a husband who essentially abandoned our children because of the jealousy and selfishness of his second wife.

So many of us are walking around as emotional cripples because of horrendous experiences. Death we can't do much about—or unhappy childhoods—and for children, their parents' divorces. But we can do something about our private pettiness and jealousies. Let us pray for strength to control ourselves and not inflict unnecessary pain on others—especially children. Divorce is so common these days that anything we can do to soothe the wounds will invariably make us happier, and our society healthier.

BEN THERE IN CALIFORNIA
DEAR BEN THERE: You appear to be an extraordinarily kind and understanding woman. But your ex-husband who "essentially abandoned" his children because of the jealousy and selfishness of his second wife was no better than the second wife. No man (or woman) can be forced into any behavior that is incompatible with his (or her) character.

SCC Theatre Calls Auditions For Roles In "Children"
The Seminole Community College Fine Arts Theatre will be holding auditions for Children. Readings will be held by Director Susan Neal in the Fine Arts Theatre on Feb. 29 and March 1 at 7 p.m.
In Children, an absorbing play blending humor and irony, A. R. Gurney examines a well-to-do family's threat to its status quo. The prodigal son returns and poses a catastrophic idea that produces a crisis which they must resolve as a family even though they are torn by their individual and personal concerns. The mother is grasping for independence in her later years. The eldest child is battling her restrictive WASP upbringing. The middle son is constricted by the social mores to which he ascribes while his wife mourns for their loss of individuality.
There are parts for three women, one 40s-60s, the other two, 20s-30s, and one male, 20s-30s.
For information and/or scripts, contact Jackie Starren at the SCC Fine Arts Theatre, 323-1450 or 843-7001, Ext. 398.
Production dates are planned for April 13-17.

Dungy Named To Dean's List
Kathy L. Dungy, daughter of Patricia Bombke deBary, was listed on the fall semester dean's list at Belmont College, Nashville, according to James Stamper, vice president of academic affairs.
Dungy is a senior music education major.

"Adoption" Meeting Set
Adoptive parents will discuss the rewards and challenges of Special Needs Adoption Feb. 23 at 7:30 p.m. at a meeting to be held at the Children's Home Society, 212 Pasadena Place, Orlando.

Infection Can Cause Eardrum Perforation

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — My daughter, 19, recently had an ear infection. When the doctor looked in her good ear he noticed that the drum had several small holes in it. He was stumped as to the cause. Should we have it checked by a specialist?

DEAR READER — Perforated eardrums are most commonly caused by injury from foreign objects — such as hair-pins and cotton swabs used to clean the ears — and by middle-ear infection. Your daughter may have inadvertently pricked her eardrum while cleaning her ears.

A more likely explanation, in my opinion, is that she developed the holes during an ear infection. Did she ever have draining ears as a child? Sometimes, when infection ruptures the drum, healing is delayed and tiny perforations persist into adulthood. In addition, although childhood perforations usually heal, they do so with a thin membrane that may be difficult to see. Hence, your daughter may not have holes in her eardrum; they may just seem to be there. In my opinion, she should see an ear specialist.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I had my blood pressure checked. It was 180/90; my pulse goes over 100 with little activity. I also get what I call drunken spells if I get overworked — I laugh hysterically, have slurred speech, can't walk a straight line and feel higher than a kite. Sometimes I get shooting pains in my chest and have poor circulation in my feet. I've had a slight heart murmur since childhood. My doctor says all my tests are normal, but I don't feel normal.

DEAR READER — It's hard to put all of your symptoms into a cohesive diagnosis. Your blood pressure is too high, it should be rechecked on several occasions to see if it returns to a normal level. If not, treatment is indicated.

Your strange feelings are difficult to explain. The "drunken spells" suggest either poor circulation to the brain or emotional upset. The tendency to rapid pulse and the poor circulation to your feet are con-

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

One frustrating occurrence in bridge is the missing of an opportunity. Today West was presented with a bonanza by an aggressive overbid from South, but he failed to cash in on his windfall. South overcalled with two clubs, intending to bid spades later. The double of two clubs by West was a special negative double, suggesting that East-West could compete in either major. Of course if there was no major-suit fit, West felt comfortable in returning to diamonds. Meanwhile, North had enough cards that he wondered how everybody could be doing so much bidding. When North bid two no-trump, East didn't feel like introducing his hearts with a 12-point minimum.

When South finally bid four spades, West missed his opportunity. He should double for penalties. He can then lead his singleton club with fine chances of setting the contract two or three tricks, depending on what East's opening bid was based on. Not only was West timid in failing to double, but he was craven on defense. His opening lead was the queen of diamonds, enabling declarer to quickly ditch two heart losers. Then, when declarer finessed the queen of spades, West took the king and played a heart. East won a heart trick and was smart enough to save the day by playing ace and a club so that West could ruff. Down one was at least a plus score for East-West, but how much better to double and then take the first five tricks (ace of clubs, club ruff, heart, club ruff, and another heart).

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

By Bernice Bado Osool
YOUR BIRTHDAY
FEBRUARY 9, 1988

You will establish two enviable associations in the year ahead. They will be with people who will be as concerned about advancing your dreams as you will be about theirs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll conduct yourself well today in situations where you have authority over others. You'll be fair and just, yet firm if necessary. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Exercise your imagination today in matters that have far-reaching effects. Imagine the types of results you desire and start planning accordingly.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your best asset today is your ability to mastermind the affairs of others. The ways and means to improve conditions overlooked by them will be apparent to you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You could be quite fortunate today in situations that require some type of partnership arrangement. Get a strong ally instead of tackling the world unaided.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This could be the day for which you've been waiting to do some negotiating with the boss in order to improve your lot at work. State your case.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) An important objective can be achieved today, but you might have to use an indirect approach and go through an intermediary. Use your imagination.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll get to the top of the heap today by leaning on the arms of those you help. Keep this in mind if someone asks you to do him/her a favor.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll be an extremely effective salesperson today. This is because you won't promote anything in which you do not sincerely believe.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your imagination and flair in financial matters could be outstanding today. Focus your efforts on ways to generate profit.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) People who have to deal with you on a one-to-one basis will sense you're a power to be reckoned with today. They are not likely to overstep their marks.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The formula for getting others to do your bidding today is to appeal to their emotions. This is especially true of people whom you have recently helped.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Stronger bonds can be established at this time with a person you like, yet haven't been able to get close to. Take it on yourself to make the overtures.
