Brooks trial set

SANFORD — A May 4 trial date was set Tuesday for Terrance Jeffery Brooks, 14, after he pleaded not guilty to charges of first degree murder and attempted armed robbery.

Brooks is being held in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility. He is charged in connection with the death of Mark Edward Marsh Nov. 7 on Park Ave. in Sanford.

Textbook giveaway

SANFORD — School textbooks occasionally become outmoded and need to be replaced. Unlike some other school districts, the books are not thrown away or sold, they are simply returned to the public free of charge.

Today and tomorrow, the public is invited to the Seminole County school district's textbook warehouse to select free used textbooks.

The books can be used as tutorial aids, supplementary workbooks or reference material. The books are no longer in use in the schools, but have been a part of the schools' curriculum in the past.

Those who want to take home some of the books need to provide their own boxes or bags in which to carry the books, their own labor and their own transportation. The books will be given away on a first come, first serve basis.

There will be books from a variety of subject areas and they are appropriate for students from Kindergarten through the 12th grade.

The textbook warehouse is located behind the school board district offices, 1211 Mellonville Ave., Sanford. The give away will take place from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day.

Ulysses back on line

PASADENA, Calif. — A mysterious glitch caused the Ulysses solar explorer's instruments to shut down, cutting off the flow of scientific data to Earth for days.

Eight of the spacecraft's science instruments were running again Tuesday after the glitch over the weekend, and the ninth instrument should be back in operation within days, NASA said.

"It's not serious, but it's not really minor," said Don Meyer, deputy missions operations manager at the agency's Jet Propulsion Laboratory. "There is concern because we don't know what caused it."

A similar, still-unexplained malfunction occurred in 1991.

Ulysses was released from a space shuttle 1990 on a $750 million U.S.-European mission to study the sun's poles in 1994-95. The spacecraft was 379 million miles from Earth on Tuesday.

Chiles: Tax smokers

Cigarette tax pays to build jails

By BILL KACZOR
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles threw his support Tuesday behind a proposed 25-cent-a-pack increase in Florida's cigarette tax to pay for building more prisons. "During the next five years, we will add 21,000 new beds to Florida's corrections system to make sure we have the space to keep violent criminals away from our communities, and to provide alternate programs, such as county work camps," Chiles said.

Chiles last month had proposed a 3,800-bed expansion during the next budget year, but critics said it was inadequate to stem the flow of dangerous inmates being released.

Smokers dismayed; others say tax OK

SANFORD—The proposal to hit cigarette smokers in the wallet again, by hiking the per pack tax to pay for new prison beds was greeted with dismay from smokers. Some non-smokers, however, said an even larger tax should be imposed to discourage people from starting to smoke and to encourage smokers to quit.

The 25-cent increase in the state tax on cigarettes was introduced at the state legislature by Sen. Gary Siegel, Altamonte Springs and Rep. Carol Hansen, Boca Raton. Gov. Lawton Chiles

Parents file claim to sue

By VICKI DeBORNIER

SANFORD — Although the preliminary action to dismiss former Lakeview Middle School band teacher Stephen Paterson has been taken, there are some parents who believe that is too little, too late.

The Seminole County school district and Supt. Paul Hagerty have been informed that the family of a 15-year-old boy plans to file a lawsuit against them.

The board will be asked to vote on Paterson's termination at their meeting on March 9.

According to John Reichert, director of personnel, the decision to ask the board to approve his termination was made too late to get the item on the agenda for the Feb. 23 meeting, so the item will be placed on the docket for the next meeting after that.

Presently, the teacher is on suspension without pay and another teacher has been hired to replace him in the meantime.

Goodings' Lake Mary expansion reviewed

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Goodings is taking plans for a new office/warehouse before the Lake Mary City Commission Thursday night. The facility is planned for Rinehard Road.

The proposal has already been approved unanimously by the city's Planning and Zoning Board, with certain exceptions, which are to be decided by the commission.

The new facility will be the Goodings headquarters as well as a major storage warehouse operation, which would be moved to Lake Mary from its present location in Altamonte Springs.

Plans call for the first phase to include slightly more than 200,000 square feet of structure.

For the warehouse area, 158,000 square feet of space is planned, with 30,000 square feet for offices. Donald Jones, Real Estate Director for Goodings said he expects there will be a change in the plans which would make expand the warehouse space during Phase I of the project.

Local veterans object to moving proposed VA hospital to Brevard

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A new move has been started to have a veterans hospital built in Brevard County. A drive has been launched locally, to prevent it.

The East Central Florida Veterans Medical Center had been approved by former Veterans Affairs Secretary Derwinski, to be built at Crowtree Lakes in Orange County.

Horace Paul, president of the Seminole County Area Veterans Advisory Council, SCAVAC, said, "Now, with the change in the administration in Washington, Congressman Jim Bacchus is pushing to re-introduce his bill to have the hospital built over in Brevard County."

Although Paul expects objections to Bacchus' proposed change to be filed by Orange, Osceola, Volusia, and Lake Counties, Seminole was the first to voice its objections.

"Congressman Bacchus originally introduced the measure to have it located in Brevard County, but it was turned down by Secretary Derwinski. Now," he continued, "Derwinski has been replaced by Jesse Brown, and we have had a change in the government administration, so apparently Mr. Bacchus believes he can get the proposed hospital approved for Brevard again."

The Orange County site is northwest of the intersection of the Beeline Expressway, and the Eastern Beltway presently under construction between Orlando and Sanford.

"If it is built in Brevard County," Paul said, "it would certainly be available to people over there plus Indian River County, but if you draw a circle from the Brevard location, you would find half the hospital's coverage area is out in the Atlantic."

"At the location in Orange County," he continued, "it would be accessible from Brevard by the Beeline Expressway, and be centrally located in the middle of all of the counties involved."

Paul said a meeting was held on Jan. 22, with the heads of all local veterans organizations. "Everyone showed up except Brevard and Indian River counties even though they were invited," he said.

Board clarifies suspension of Sanford officer

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The suspension of Terry Mullins from the Sanford police force went back to the city Civil Service Board Tuesday night. Mullins had requested a clarification on the suspension.

Mullins was originally suspended with pay on Dec. 23, after a citizen complaint was filed against him. The complaint involved an incident that reportedly occurred on Nov. 12.

As a result, Mullins was accused of violating police department policy and city codes through the use of abusive language, and given the suspension.

When his case was brought before the Civil Service Board, rather than terminating him from his job, Mullins was given a suspension from duty without pay for 60 days.

Barbara Bush hospitalized after cruise

MIAMI — Former First Lady Barbara Bush on Tuesday was taken to the hospital for treatment of a wound to her arm, shortly after she and former President Bush returned from a Caribbean cruise, a Bush spokesman said.

"She's in perfect health. She had hurt her arm while they were still in the White House. The wound reopened," said Bush spokesman Andrew Maner from Houston.

Mrs. Bush spent a few hours at Jackson Memorial Hospital, Maner said. She had a 4-inch bandage on her left forearm when she left the hospital and appeared to be in good spirits.

Mrs. Bush said she felt "great" later outside of Christy's, a restaurant in suburban Coral Gables. "I just reopened an old injury," she said.

Former President Bush added, "Look at her. (She) couldn't be better."

The Bushes arrived in Miami Tuesday afternoon on a flight from St. Maarten after a four-day cruise to Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

George Bush said that he had enjoyed the trip and reported no injury to his wife.

Maner has said the Bushes stopped in Miami to visit their son Jeb and his wife and children.

The Bushes had planned on playing golf Wednesday before traveling to Jacksonville, where they were planned to stay at a private residence before heading home to Houston, Maner said.

U.S. 1 closes down for repair

KEY LARGO — At the height of the tourist season, U.S. 1 into the Florida Keys will be shut down at night for 2 1/2 weeks to repair a bridge, highway authorities said.

Starting Monday, cars will have to use the Card Sound Road bypass, which cannot handle trucks over 15 tons. Heavier trucks will have to wait until daylight to get into the Keys.

The shutdown is necessary to repair the C-111 canal bridge. From 8 p.m. to 7 a.m., cars will be detoured along Card Sound Road and bridge through North Key Largo to get back on U.S. 1 there. The detour adds about seven miles and has no multi-lane area for passing. The $1.50 car toll will be suspended.

Grocery stores, fuel companies and other merchants whose supplies are trucked in at night, as well as Monroe County, whose trash is hauled to Broward County by Waste Management trucks, will have to make other arrangements.

State officials knew the timing was bad but couldn't wait, said David Fierro, spokesman for the Department of Transportation.

"It's kind of emergency work," he said.

Actress badly mauled by dog

HOLLYWOOD — Actress Julia Benjamin-Foster, who has appeared in several soap operas and played a daughter in the "Hazel" TV series, was badly mauled by a dog while sunning herself in her yard.

Benjamin-Foster, 35, underwent three hours of surgery and took 400 stitches to repair the damage, her husband Peter Foster said Monday.

The attack occurred Sunday afternoon when the actress was alone in her yard and a neighbor's 130-pound Akita jumped on her, biting her arm and left breast.

"It took four guys to get the dog off my wife," Foster said. The neighbor has agreed to destroy the dog, which had committed a previous attack.

Benjamin-Foster played Quete Baxter in "Hazel" for the 1970-76 season, and later worked in "The Rockford Files," "The Young and the Restless" and "General Hospital."

Algae bloom kills lobsters' food supply

MARATHON — An algae bloom in Florida Bay threatens the state's largest lobster nursery, a newspaper reported today.

Fed by nutrients from decaying sea grass, the bloom has devastated 300 square miles of the bay bottom in Everglades National Park, according to The Miami Herald. The algae kills sponges, where little lobsters feed and hide as they grow.

"There's not a sponge left in Everglades National Park," said state biologist Tom Malheira. "They're all dead."

What's left is their fragile skeletons. "You just touch it, and it turns to powder," he said.

About 85 percent of Florida's annual commercial lobster catch comes from the Keys. Seven million pounds were hauled in last year, The Herald reported.

Florida lobsters reach dinner size after the age of 2, so it could be a while before the extent of the damage is known. But some people are already worried.

"If our crawfish stocks get wiped out, we'll be in pretty dire straits down here," said commercial fisherman Karl Leonard.

There was a similar bloom last winter, appearing in November 1991 and fading by the following January. Afterward, lobster researchers found their research area near Ninemile Bank had been wiped out.

Home license canceled

Probe shows neglect contributed to woman's death

By Associated Press

TAMPA — The state canceled an adult foster home license after an investigation concluded neglect contributed to the death of a 92-year-old woman.

When relatives came to visit Catherine Donnelly Dec. 23 they found her nearly comatose, suffering from dehydration and infected bedsores, according to a state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services report.

The report released Monday said her condition deteriorated when she didn't receive proper nutrition or medical care while in the foster home.

"Based on everything that was found, it all contributed to her death," said HRS spokesman Tom Jones.

HRS revoked the foster home license Jan. 6.

Adult foster homes provide care for elderly, mentally ill people of those unable to care for themselves. The state usually pays the cost, but Ma. Donnelly paid her own way for four years.

Her relatives had planned a pre-Christmas visit at the foster home run by Roland Gooddine. When they last saw Ma. Donnelly three months earlier, she could get up and about with a cane.

This trip, they wound up rushing the ailing woman to a hospital. When an emergency room nurse tried to move her, Ma. Donnelly screamed. Her buttocks were covered with sores that were open, draining and infected, the HRS report said.

She died the next day.

HRS investigator Mayra Morales found Ms. Donnelly's room at the foster home was dark and dusty; her mattress soaked with urine, the smell of which permeated the room. A window pane was broken.

When questioned about why he didn't seek medical help for the woman or tell HRS about her deteriorating condition, Gooddine, 69, repeatedly told Morales, "I don't know."

His wife, Louise, had provided most of the care during the 15 years the home was open, and received good marks from HRS. But she died in November and Gooddine apparently didn't tell that to HRS.

Ground-breaking set for exhibit

By WICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A ground-breaking will be held Monday at the Central Florida Zoological Park. The event will mark the start of construction on the latest exhibit, to be completed in May.

The facility will be home for Clouded Leopards, the smallest member of the large-cat family. The 1,500 square foot exhibit to be built at the Sanford zoo will feature a naturalistic habitat including trees, a pond, and plant life similar to what is found in China and Southeast Asia.

Financing for the project, $12,000, has been provided by American Pioneer Title Insurance, GulfAtlantic Title Agency, and the accounting firm of Deloitte and Touche.

According to Public Relations Manager Andrea Farmer, "Clouded Leopards weigh 35 to 50 pounds and stand 10 to 16 inches high at the shoulders. They have very short legs and long bushy tails."

She continued, "This endangered species faces threats in the Asiatic wild from habitat destruction and the fur trade."

A male and female will be on display in the new exhibit once it is completed some time in May. The male was born Aug. 28 at the Cleveland Metroparks Zoo in Ohio, and the female was born at Buffalo Zoological Gardens in New York on Sept. 7.

Only 96 Clouded Leopards are presently located in 25 zoological institutions across the nation.

Commenting on the cats, Ed Posey, director of the zoo said, "The zoo's goal is to contribute to the world wide preservation of this species through the eventual propagation of Clouded Leopards."

He continued, "This new exhibit will provide the essential environment to promote our long-range program for propagation and to support the global conservation effort for these unique cats."

The public is invited to the ground breaking ceremony Monday, which will include a brief ceremony highlighting the exhibit's planned features.

The Central Florida Zoo is located at 3755 N. Highway 17-92, just east of exit 52 from Interstate-4.

Tattoo enthusiast takes his shirt off to Disney

By Associated Press

BROOKSVILLE — A tattoo artist says covering himself with 57 Walt Disney characters is just his way of being a fan.

"I'm a Disney freak," said Jim Jones. "This is my personal tribute to Walt."

A bearded, burly 320-pounder, Jones is not the kind of person you would expect to be permanently branded with Mickey Mouse, Pluto or the Little Mermaid. Cinderella's castle is currently being tattooed on his back.

"Part of this is to show that there's more to tattooing than skulls and bones," said Jones, 40, who works at Mr. Ve's Tattoo Emporium. "Disney is something everybody likes. I wanted something that shows it's not just for bikers."

Jones said he plans to send a letter to Roy Disney — Walt Disney's nephew and heir to the Disney empire — asking him to endorse the work with his signature in tattoo.

Disney spokesman Charles Ridgway said Tuesday that's not likely to happen. In fact, he said the company strictly enforces its copyright and normally asks that any unauthorized reproductions of its characters be removed.

In 1989, the company ordered a Hallandale day care center to remove unauthorized murals of Mickey Mouse, Minnie Mouse, Donald Duck and Goofy.

So what about the tattoos on Jones' body?

"If they are already on his body, we would probably just ask him to desist from doing it any more," Ridgway said. "And if he's drawing the characters on other people, we would ask him to stop."

Jones said that would be a "travesty." He said he has never made a nickel from Disney tattoos and has no intention of keeping them off his body.

"I want to take this to the grave," said Jones, noting he spent his honeymoon at Walt Disney World, visits the park three to four times a month, decorates his home with Disney memorabilia and owns Disney stock. "I would be very offended if they asked me to stop."

POLICE BRIEFS

Resisting arrest charged

John Wayne Elam, 20, 2350 S. U.S. Highway 17-92, Longwood, was held on a resisting arrest charge Monday following his arrest for two outstanding battery charges.

A Winter Springs policeman reported he identified Elam as a wanted man following a traffic stop on State Road 434. When he asked Elam to exit the car he was riding in, the policeman reported Elam became upset and said his attorney had "taken care" of the warrants. The policeman reported Elam rolled up the windows, then broke a bottle.

The policeman smashed the car window with his "night stick" to remove Elam, but was unable to subdue him until a Longwood policeman shocked Elam with a Taser stun gun.

Suspicious fire is being investigated

By NICK PFEIFER
 Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The area has a new fire investigation operation. As a result of cooperative efforts, the cause of a suspicious fire in Midway may be determined quicker.

The recently formed Metro-Seminole Bureau of Fire Investigators, MSBFI, is investigating a fire Saturday in a vacant house at 2260 Sipes Ave., Midway. The blaze is being considered suspicious.

According to MSBFI Chief Fire Investigator Bob Christian, "The fire started in the bathroom, which is adjacent to the room in which the household heater is located."

"We found there appeared to be an amount of kerosene where there was no leak coming from the heater," he added, "and there was no source of ignition." As a result, the fire is being considered suspicious, and will be kept open and under investigation.

"The building has been vacant for a long time," Christian said. "It has been considered as a crack house."

The owner of the building has not immediately been determined. "We are checking records to find out who owns the house," Christian commented, "and so far no one has come forward to say they had any connection with the house."

Christian serves as Chief Fire Investigator with the MSBFI. "This is a cooperative fire investigative bureau that just formed at the first of the year," he said. "It involves investigators who operate on a revolving schedule from Seminole County, Sanford, Lake Mary, Longwood, Winter Springs and Altamonte Springs."

"Only Oviedo and Casselberry haven't joined the MSBFI," he added, "but as soon as they get involved in the first-response project, we'll have the entire county served."

Christian explained that the coalition now provides eight fire inspectors, rather than one or two which would be available depending on the location of a fire under the previous organization.

"This Midway fire is one which the entire investigative group is working on," he said, "and we believe that because of this improved consolidated effort, we'll eventually be bringing about 'bottle' arrests" in connection with this case."

Confessions used in carjacking and murder trial

By Associated Press

ORLANDO — Prosecutors in the country's first federal carjacking-murder trial are relying on the testimony of a participant and videotaped confessions by three defendants.

Jury selection began Tuesday after U.S. District Judge Patricia Fawcett rejected defense efforts to throw out the confessions in the shooting deaths of two youths and the wounding of a third in a Central Florida rural area last November.

Lawyers for the three young men contended they were coerced and lied to by Osceola County sheriff's investigators and FBI agents to admit to the shootings in exchange for what the defendants thought would be lesser charges that do not carry the death penalty in state court.

The three face maximum life sentences under the federal armed carjacking statute involving death. But they are to be tried later on first-degree murder charges in state circuit court. Convictions there can result in death in Florida's electric chair.

Outside the courtroom, defense lawyer William Sheaffer told reporters that the federal government "considers it an easy case and wants to send out a message" on carjacking cases.

But he said investigators were deceitful and intimidating in drawing a confession from his client, Jermaine Foster, 19. Prosecutors say Foster was the triggerman while the others stood by.

A lawyer for Alf Catholic, 21, also said his client was intimidated and misled by investigators to get him to admit his role in the case.

The other defendant, Gerard Booker, 22, withdrew his objections about his confession prior to the judge's ruling.

A fourth defendant, 17-year-old Leondre Henderson, earlier pleaded guilty and will testify against the others. In exchange, he is to be sentenced to life in prison in federal court and will draw a concurrent life term in state court.

All four have said Foster did the shooting. Killed were Anthony Faiella, 17, and Anthony Clifton, 20.

Faiella, Clifton and Michael Rentas, 20, were stripped, ordered to lie on the ground and shot in the head. Rentas was wounded in the hand he had placed on his head and played dead when the assailants drove off in the victims' Nissan Pathfinder. A female companion, Tammy George, was released unharmed.

Prosecutors say the defendants targeted their victims at a St. Cloud bar because they wanted to steal their vehicle to replace a stolen pickup they were driving which had developed mechanical problems.

Lawyers for Foster and Catholic argued Tuesday that their clients were duped by investigators into thinking they would get lesser charges and sentences if they admitted their roles.

"He was telling me that if I cooperated, . . . and gave a statement, I wouldn't be killed," the broad-shouldered Foster testified about the advice of one deputy, Homer Lee Butler.

Catholic, a tall, rangy youth whom the judge described as alert and articulate, said he tried to bargain with chief Osceola investigator Thomas Barber over a lesser charge. He saw a Masonic ring worn by Barber and told the detective he was also a Mason.

Catholic told the judge he also wanted somebody to help him figure out "the legal procedures" and that Barber told him that if he cooperated "I wouldn't be charged with first-degree murder and I wouldn't get the chair."

Hospital meant for veterans, not for fish

The matter had been resolved at one time. The East Central Florida Veterans Medical Center was to be built in Orlando. Now, the location is again the subject of controversy.

Horace Paul, president of the Seminole County Area Veterans Advisory Council is involved in a battle, along with similar organizations representing Orange, Osceola, Volusia and Lake Counties, to prevent a change of the location to Brevard County.

The change is being suggested by U.S. Congressman Jim Bacchus, who is recommending the facility be built in Brevard. Both Brevard and Indian River Counties are agreeing.

Bacchus represents district 15, which includes the counties of Brevard, Indian River, Osceola and Polk.

Bacchus had suggested the Brevard location previously, only to have it denied by the Secretary of the Department of Veterans Affairs. Since that time, the secretary has been replaced in the new cabinet, and Bacchus is again proposing the Brevard location.

Paul, in discussing the location, suggested a circle be drawn around both sites. He observed that half of a circle around the Brevard location would be over the Atlantic Ocean, whereas a circle around the Orange County site would generally encompass the seven county area the hospital is designed to serve.

The location proposed for Orange County would be extremely accessible by all. From the east or west, the Beeline Expressway would be used. From the north, which would include Seminole and Brevard Counties, the Eastern Beltway, which would be completed before the hospital is built, would bring people right to the door of the facility.

Certainly, a congressman is expected to look after the best interests of the area he has been elected to serve. The area to be served by the veterans hospital however, is all-encompassing, and should not be judged on a single county basis.

We urge veterans and concerned individuals to write to Congressman Bacchus as well as Congressman Bob Graham and all others who represent the counties involved in the location of this facility. The veterans hospital is to serve as many as possible in the seven county area. Don't allow them to make travel a hardship for those needing help in Seminole and these other counties.

Come home, Merry Kitten

My seven-year-old daughter, Elise, is dealing with the loss of her kitten who wandered away last Sunday or was taken from our home on E. Goodheart Ave. in Lake Mary. Crying it out and staying busy offers limited comfort because the hurt is too new. I suggested she write her feelings in her diary which can sometimes offer release. Expecting the typical short, simple sentences, I was surprised at the sensitive narrative she recorded.

Merry Kitten (named by my daughter for Merry Christmas) is an adorable, affectionate, 4-month-old, mostly white calico. If she is found a reward is offered. We can be reached at 328-7231 in the evenings or by answering machine during the day.

Writing this letter has been a release for me, much like writing in a diary.

Linda Michael Lake Mary

Enclosure: (By Elise (with spelling and punctuation help from her mom))

Merry Kitty, Merry Kitty where can you be?
My heart hurts and hurts when you're not here with me.

Please come home Merry, I love you so much. My house is all empty without you to touch. My heart hurts. When tears fill up my eyes, my chest gets tight and I have a hard time breathing. My Christmas kitten got outside and got lost. When I think about her and how much I miss her, my heart hurts. Mommy's hugs give me a place to cry, but the hurt is still there.

Devan's brother Derek said an alligator ate her. But I don't believe that. The mean big boy down the street said she got hit by a car. But, I don't believe that either. Mom and I rode our bikes all over looking for her. She wasn't outside long enough to get lost. Mommy thinks someone found her and thought she was lost and took her home with them. Now Mommy said I have to have hope that they will see our signs and bring her back or maybe take her to the animal shelter and we can find her there.

I don't understand what hope is. I think it's making a sad time happy in your mind. Right now, I can't do that. I'm too sad.

Please, God, have whoever has her bring her back to me. But if Merry Kitty can't come home, find her someone who loves her as much as me.

Clinton sentenced to one sentence

This being Presidential Birthday Week, let us consider how George Washington and Abraham Lincoln might have fared under the present rules of the road, and let us see if there is a lesson regarding Bill Clinton's stewardship.

It is 1790: In the capital (Philadelphia) the scribes ask "how's he doing?" Not well, Sam Donaldson says. "George Washington lacks vision." The Los Angeles Times is checking the cherry tree story, a credibility-buster. The call-ins on C-Span focus on Washington's nomination of a man who was not a horse thief, but knew one. The New Republic intones, "Americans no longer think their children will do better than their parents." George Washington's approval rating is down seven points.

It is 1861: The capital (now named, interestingly, "Washington") is asking, "How's he doing?" CNN reports that Honest Abe is stumbling. No wonder, say the guests on "Nightline." He received only a minority of the popular vote. On "The McLaughlin Group" the panelists stress that Lincoln's high voice robs him of the ability to inspire people. On PBS, Gergen and Shields agree that Honest Abe is "off message." Rush Limbaugh says, "Even Republicans are disappointed."

How are presidents judged? The late Clare Booth Luce said that every important president ends up with only one sentence in the history books. Less important presidents are ignored.

Thus, it is said, "George Washington was the father of his country." And, "Lincoln saved the union and freed the slaves." Teddy Roosevelt "busted the trusts." Franklin Roosevelt "ended the Depression and won the war." Harry Truman "contained communism." Don't bother asking about Grover Cleveland or Calvin Coolidge. What about Clinton? If he ends up deserving a sentence in future history texts, it will not be about his stumbling start, nor his diminished approval ratings. It won't be about Zoe Baird, or Kimba Wood, or about how he botched the handling of gays in the military.

Let us see if there is a lesson regarding Bill Clinton's stewardship.

That is not the stuff of history, but of media fire-storming driven by the expanding "electronic news hole." I grant that scandalizing our public personages offers a perverse and hypnotic sort of fun, but most of it is trivial. So what might Clinton's single sentence be? Is it the economy, stupid? I am dubious. What will spark this economy is the new wave of almost-rail capitalism. The layoffs, closings and restructurings can be temporarily tragic for individuals. But our businesses are sleek, stripped to the waist, able to compete for championships. That yields more prosperity for individuals. It is the hidebound economies of Europe that now must reform.

(Anyway, "He shrunk the deficit," is less than a trumpet of historical glory.)

Might health care be Clinton's call to greatness? If Clinton proposed dramatic socialized medicine, and if it worked wonderfully, that might do it. But he won't, because it doesn't. The socialized German system is in deep trouble. America will pick at the edges to make a good system better.

ELLEN GOODMAN

Clinton faces issue of fairness

BOSTON — Every parent who has presided over a family dispute has learned a thing or two about the importance of the word fair. Try parceling out anything from TV time to the last serving of pie and, if the decisions aren't made with laser-like precision, someone is going to storm out of the room crying, "That's not fair."

This gives you a rough idea of what President Clinton faces today when he presents an economic plan to a country often divided into squabbling factions. His plan is supposed to put everything on the table while keeping everyone in the room.

As the president put it in Michigan: "So we have to put together a plan that keeps my commitment to you, invests in you and your jobs, in your education, your health care, your future, that brings that debt down, that deals with the health-care crisis, and that does it in a way that's fair to all Americans." In my grandfather's words, good luck to you and the Red Sox.

We are at the end of 12 years that were patently unfair. We need not rerun the glorious details, but anyone who can divide has figured out that the rich got richer, the poor got poorer and the middle class...well, you remember the rest. There was a generational shift as well. The young grew poorer and the deficit shifted the elders' bills to the kids.

To give you an idea of how hard it is to turn the economy around and save money while satisfying the demands for fairness, turn off the talk radio, unplug the fax machine, take the phone off the hook, push the lobbyists out the door, and try thinking about one tough item: Social Security. Try putting the fairness grid over Social Security as it is and as it may change.

Do you think that Social Security is fair? OK. It has raised a large portion of the elderly out of the ranks of poverty. Those who worked for lower wages receive comparatively more in payments than those who worked at high wages. The program takes the edge off economic inequality.

Do you think Social Security is unfair? OK. The government still sends the most money to the least needy. Those who earned the highest income may also have the largest private income in retirement, and yet still get the biggest checks from Uncle Sam.

Think it's fair to the recipients? Sure. Everybody who paid into the plan gets to take out. The elderly gave, now they receive.

Think it's unfair to the contributors? Sure. It's the current workers who actually pay for their elders. The working poor are often paying for the retired well-to-do.

Think of it as a sacred pact between the generations? Fine. Today's elderly paid for yesterday's elderly. We pay for them and our kids will pay for us. In the meantime Social Security helps relieve people of the burden of supporting their parents.

Think of it as a scam between the generations? Fine. Those who retired in 1980 had to live less than three years to get back what they and their employers put in, even with interest. But those who retire in 2030 are going to have to live 18 years to break even.

Social Security is a hybrid — a popular, effective hybrid, but a hybrid nevertheless. It's part pension plan and part poverty program wrapped up as an entitlement. We respect it as a retirement plan and depend upon it as an anti-poverty program. It's probably not, uh, fair, to have such mixed expectations — but there it is.

That's why blocking the cost of living increases is a lousy idea. It would hurt the poorest undemanding the system's effectiveness as a poverty program.

But it's also why fully taxing Social Security payments to the upper half of the recipients — those with incomes of over $25,000 individually or $32,000 as a couple — is a good idea. These are the people who regard it and use it as a pension plan. If it's a pension plan, it should be taxed like every other pension plan, taxed like income.

It's only a fluke of history that Social Security was ever exempt from income taxes. In 1940, when the IRS made that ruling, recipients were few, payments were low, and it was seen as a government gratuity.

By 1983, when Social Security was in deep trouble, Congress voted to tax half the money going to the upper half. In 1993, we're in a different sort of trouble. The social compact between rich and poor, old and young, is sorely frayed. So's the bank account.

Raising the Social Security taxes for the better-off elderly to the maximum 85 percent will not only raise money — some $30 billion over the next five years — but also lower hostilities between members of this fractious American family. Yes, we've got some overwhelming economic problems. But this is one thing we can do that is, in a word, fair.

His plan is supposed to put everything on the table while keeping everyone in the room.

'Medical mafia' adds to health-care burden

WASHINGTON — It's unlikely that Hollywood will ever make a movie romanticizing the exploits of health-care fraud artists, yet there's growing evidence that a "medical mafia" of sorts has sprung up across the country, engaging the FBI in one of its most urgent law enforcement challenges.

No one "family" or "godfather" directs the medical mafia. Yet it's adding millions of dollars to the health-care burden already breaking the backs of American families. One government estimate shows that fraud and abuse add some 10 percent to U.S. health-care costs, which currently approach $1 trillion a year.

If accurate, that number suggests health-care fraud is shaping up as the savings and loan scandal of the 1990s.

FBI officials say such abuses include fraudulent billing schemes by medical equipment suppliers; nursing home scams; hospital billing frauds; psychiatric hospital and diet-clinic rip-offs; and "rolling lab" swindles that prey on the elderly and loot Medicare as well as private insurance.

The FBI has redeployed 150 agents nationwide on health-care cases, while the Justice Department has assigned 10 new positions to the job and formed a health care unit within its criminal division. But despite evidence of widespread white-collar looting, prosecutors have not gone after cases they regard as promising mere pocket change. Many prosecutors apparently only accept criminal health-care cases that involve $100,000 or more, because the workload from the savings and loan scandal and drug cases has so taxed resources.

Here are some of the scams contributing to the $80 billion-a-year health-care crime wave: Rolling Labs. According to the FBI, the vulnerability of the health care system to fraud is most vividly illustrated by California schemes that have involved more than $1 billion in fraudulent billing from as many as 200 physicians and other providers. The schemes revolved around getting people with health insurance to visit mobile labs, called "rolling labs," where non-invasive tests — such as health and blood pressure measurements — were conducted. The labs and doctors use phony diagnoses when submitting the insurance claims. Although some of the owners of these labs have been successfully prosecuted, no money has yet been recovered. Some six similar schemes are still known to be operating in Southern California.

Durable Medical Equipment (DME) fraud and kickbacks. DME firms pay kickbacks to health-care providers including doctors, nursing homes and hospitals in return for obtaining supply contracts. Medicare and private insurance firms are easy prey. These unscrupulous businessmen also employ telemarketing scams, and fraudulently bill unnecessary DME supplies and services.

Diet Clinics. Patients are solicited through promises of weight loss at normal expense. Sometimes patients are even provided free airfare to country club facilities, which can include chauffeured limousine service to the hospital. (Investigators commonly discover taxi and shuttle-bus services billed as ambulance services to insurance companies.) Patients are required, however, to submit to psychological exams, a series of blood tests, and X-rays, which are billed to insurers under the false pretense of a fabricated psychological malady. Under the guise of "group therapy," trips are taken to shopping malls and amusement parks and then billed as treatment for mental illness to private insurance carriers as a purported psychiatric diagnosis.

That number suggests health care fraud is shaping up as the savings and loan scandal of the 1990s.

Items listed above are in the order originally proposed on the agenda, but are subject to change at the commission's discretion.

The meeting will get underway at 7 p.m. in the commission chambers of the Lake Mary City Hall, 100 W. Lake Mary Blvd.

Goodings

During P&Z discussions, Goodings engineer Steve Norris estimated a work force of approximately 85 people in the office building, to be transferred from their present facility in Altamonte Springs.

Norris also told the board that the warehouse would operate with two shifts per day, of approximately 45 people in each.

The number of employees was brought up due to the request for a change in the number of required parking spaces for the facility. The city code for such a development calls for 258 parking spaces.

At the P&Z hearing, Norris reported there would be approximately 80 people on site for the entire operation at any one time. The figure has since been increased to possibly 110 employees. Goodings has requested the 258 spaces be reduced to only 170 maximum. The parking would not include the loading area.

Three other variances being requested include those dealing with the placement of parking lot lighting, the requirement for access road and drainage construction, and fire hydrant requirements.

City Planner Matt West is also asking the commission to consider several conditions. They include location of traffic signals, provision of a performance bond, permits required from the St. Johns Water Management, and finalization of the relocation of gopher tortoises prior to the issuance of permits.

The Lake Mary City Commission meeting will begin at 7 p.m., tomorrow night, in the commission chambers of Lake Mary City Hall, 100 W. Lake Mary Blvd.

Parents

Paterson was arrested last week by Sanford Police and charged with committing a lewd and lascivious act on a child under the age of 16 and with engaging in sexual activity with a child in custodial authority.

According to the arrest report, Paterson had engaged in sexual activity with several young men in his band class beginning as early as 1991. Parents said they had complained to the school district and that nothing had been done to remove Paterson from the classroom.

Parents told police they had not come forward to report a crime because the young men were afraid to speak out because they had to continue to face Paterson in the classroom.

Paterson was placed on professional probation by the state Department of Education in 1991 for playing a recording that was deemed inappropriate for children and for discussing sexual subjects with them. Mention was not made during the 1991 professional practices hearings of the charges currently brought against him.

Lakeview principal Jim Shupe, who was not at Lakeview at the time of the alleged incidents, was not available for comments this morning.

While district officials will confirm that a certified letter was received yesterday afternoon from attorney John C. Mitchell, who represents the family filing the suit, no one would comment on the contents of that letter.

According to Hagerty's office, the letter was received there and then passed along to Richard Wells, assistant superintendent for support services.

Wells was unavailable for comment this morning.

School board attorney Ned Julian said that he has not yet seen the letter, but that it is his understanding that it is a "claim letter."

Governmental entities must be served with a claim letter before a suit can be filed and they have six months before the suit itself is filed in court.

"I have no personal knowledge of what is in that letter but the district has not been sued at this point," Julian said.

Paterson was released Monday on $20,000 bond from the John E. Polk Correctional Facility in Sanford.

Though he was ordered held without bond by County Judge John Sloop at his initial court appearance last week, Circuit Court Judge O.H. Eaton ordered bond to be set at $20,000 at another hearing Monday.

announced his support for the package Tuesday.

Currently smokers pay anywhere from $1.45 for generics to $2.45 for namebrand cigarettes including tax.

A non-scientific sampling of opinions from Sanford residents this morning showed smokers oppose paying more money, but probably would not stop smoking even if the tax is passed.

"I've already had to drop down to the 99-cent pack cigarettes," said smoker Rick Shumaky, "because I couldn't afford the others. They (generics) make me choke."

Smokers Jerry Cain and Tammy Moore don't like the tax hike either.

"I'll probably quit (smoking) namebrands," Moore said.

Cain called the proposed 25-cent a pack increase, "ridiculous. I remember when Lucky Strikes only cost 25-cents a pack," he said, showing his brand choice. With the cost of cigarettes climbing, Cain said he would drive 1,100 miles to get cheaper ones. Cain pays nearly $20 for a carton of cigarettes now. "I might even cut down to half a pack a day," he added.

Non-smoker Chuck Volkema called the proposed tax, "The same old syntax. A political feel good plan which doesn't get to the heart of the problem."

By proposing a tax on cigarettes to raise revenue, legislators aren't addressing the problem.

"They are going after the smokers," Volkema said, "but they could just as easily go after (tax) the beer drinkers, then it would affect me, or people who buy fishing licenses. They don't have the guts to do what they have to do, like ending the sales tax exemptions."

If the tax is OK'd, non-smoker Randy Johnson said it might make smokers quit and would certainly make someone think twice before starting.

"I think they should put a $5 a pack tax on cigarettes," said George Hodge, a non-smoker. "Tax them to death. Maybe they'll tax them out of smoking," he added. He also favors banning smoking in public places. "Bird Island in Lake Jessup would be a good place to allow smoking," he said, noting that his wife, who smokes, would "love" his comments. Asked if smoking is permitted inside his house, he added with a smile, "My wife smokes wherever she wants to and I love it."

Ex-smoker Firth Sykes said, "Why punish the people who smoke?" He said a quarter increase per pack probably wouldn't stop anyone from smoking. "Maybe a dollar would." As a former smoker, Sykes is encouraging his children not to start smoking.

Mullins

Prior to last night's hearing, Mullins' attorney Thomas Greene said, "What we want to have explained now is whether the board meant a suspension for 60 consecutive days, which would be two months, or if it was for 60 work days, which means a suspension for a much longer time."

After requesting the clarification, board member Dave Farr, who made the original motion for the suspension, made a motion that the suspension be for 60 calendar days, effective when the decision was made.

early because of prison overcrowding.

Some of the cigarette tax money, estimated at $216 million the first year and growing to $245.9 million by the fifth year, would be used to operate the new prisons, for alternatives to incarceration, such as community-based work camps, and add about 1,000 new beds in juvenile justice facilities.

Chiles' endorsement gives bipartisan support to the cigarette tax legislation that has been introduced by a pair of Republicans, Sen. Gary Siegel of Altamonte Springs and Rep. Carol Hanson of Boca Raton.

Hospital

In a letter sent to the new VA Secretary Brown, Paul said, on behalf of SCAVAC, "It is our understanding that the VA budget plans you inherited from the previous administration included about $15 million for design of this medical center in the appropriations request for fiscal year 1994, with construction monies to be requested for fiscal year 1995."

He continued, "However, there is some indication that existing plans do not call for this hospital to be open until the year 2000. If true, this is absurd."

Paul said construction should be completed and the hospital in operation by no later than 1996.

Paul indicated that the facility, originally planned for Orange County, would provide approximately 2,000 beds, and serve between 143,000 and 220,000 outpatients each year.

"We don't know how soon we'll have some response from the VA," Paul said, "but this must be resolved soon and the facility built in Orange County, or it will mean more time delays."

Economic plan runs into turbulence

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — After days of preparing the nation for higher taxes, President Clinton is coming forward with a stern economic package the White House says will raise taxes on all American households earning more than $30,000. The plan already is off to a rocky start.

Even before Clinton formally unveils his $500 billion deficit-reduction package, controversy over its tax features sent the stock market reeling, produced taunts from Republicans and put the administration on the defensive.

But Clinton said the plan — designed to produce jobs, boost the economy and trim the federal budget deficit — will benefit most Americans despite the pain of higher taxes.

"Most middle-class Americans ... (are) going to be much, much better off," he contended Tuesday.

The president unveils his economic package in a nationally televised address to Congress at 9 p.m. EST tonight.

The program, according to administration and congressional sources, will contain a stiff new energy tax based on heat content of various fuels — a tax that will hit the middle class the hardest.

Also going up: taxes on Social Security benefits for retired couples earning more than $32,000 and the top tax rates on wealthy individuals and corporations.

A surcharge Clinton once said he would impose on millionaires is being expanded to families earning more than $250,000 a year. It will be roughly 3.5 percent, said the sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The four-year plan will match $250 billion in new taxes with an equal amount in spending cuts. It also boasts a $31 billion short-term stimulus package divided between job-intensive public works projects and tax breaks for businesses.

Despite extensive advance work, the plan is being launched in atmosphere of confusion and criticism.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks tumbled nearly 83 points on fears that higher taxes would short-circuit the economic recovery.

Clinton shrugged it off. But it was the largest single-day fall in the Dow in 15 months. "We don't like taxes. Period," said Peter J. Canelo, chief investment strategist at Natwest Securities Inc.

Republicans seized on the tax increases to remind Americans that Clinton had backtracked on a campaign pledge for a middle-income tax cut. "Hold onto your wallets," said Senate Republican leader Bob Dole.

And the administration found itself trying to explain Clinton's remarks in a televised address Monday night that those earning more than $100,000 a year would pay 70 percent of the higher taxes.

Did that mean individuals or couples? First the administration wasn't sure. Then White House spokesman George Stephanopoulos said it would include households — covering a husband and wife each earning $50,000, for example.

By day's end, the White House was saying the figure was arbitrary, and was generated by a computer evaluation of the total revenues in Clinton's tax proposals — including the energy tax — measured against households earning more than $100,000.

Actual tax rates wouldn't go up until the threshold of about $140,000 for individuals and $180,000 for families was crossed, said Clinton spokeswoman Dee Dee Myers. Then the top tax rate would be 36 percent, up from the current 31 percent.

Families making less than $30,000 will be protected from higher taxes by an increase in the earned income tax credit, which enables the working poor to get money back if their income falls below the level at which taxes are owed, White House aides said.

Wall Street answers Clinton with its biggest plunge in 15 months

By STEFAN FATSID
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — Wall Street answered President Clinton's economic "call to arms" with its biggest drop in 15 months.

The Dow Jones average of 30 blue-chip stocks fell 82.9 points Tuesday to 3,309.49, or 2.44 percent. Trading was heavy, with nearly 333 million shares changing hands on the New York Stock Exchange.

"The market's voting with its feet," said Peter J. Canelo, chief investment strategist at Natwest Securities Inc. "We don't like taxes. Period. End of statement."

It was the largest point drop since Nov. 15, 1991, when the Dow average fell 120.31.

The president brushed off the decline.

The Dow drop was less than apocalyptic, returning the average only to its January levels. It had risen 10 percent over four months to an all-time high of 3,442.14 on Feb. 5.

The Nasdaq index of over-the-counter stocks — which had gained about 25 percent since October — plummeted 3.64 percent. It dropped 25.15 to 665.39, its biggest point decline since late 1987.

The sell-off reflected the belief that higher taxes generally reduce Americans' ability and willingness to spend money as well as companies' ability to invest in their businesses.

It also demonstrated skepticism about Clinton's goal of convincing Americans that his $500 billion package of new taxes and spending cuts will reinvigorate the economy. In addition, many economists doubt Clinton will cut spending enough to dent the projected 1993 deficit of $327 billion.

"It's troubling because there's a long history of tax increases now, spending cuts someday," said Richard B. Hoey, chief economist at Dreyfus Corp.

Clinton laid out his plan in an Oval Office address Monday night in which he warned Americans of the sacrifices ahead and issued a "call to arms." He is to amplify the plan tonight when he addresses Congress.

Pharmaceutical stocks led Tuesday's decline. Clinton last week accused drug companies of price gouging and made them a target of health-care reform efforts.

Merck sank $2.50 to $37.87½. Bristol-Myers Squibb lost $2.37½ to $56.62½. Glaxo fell $1 to $18.75. Johnson & Johnson dropped $2.37½ to $42.62½, and US Healthcare lost $2.82½ to $45.75.

At a photo session, the president indicated he didn't believe the drop was related to his plan, and stuck by his pledge to reduce the deficit.

"The people in the stock market have known in general all along what was going to be in the program and the stock market's gone up markedly since the election," he said.

Asked if the tax proposals will harm the economy, he said: "I believe if we reduce the deficit it will stabilize long-term interest rates, free up money for growth and increase jobs."

Some economists wondered why a stock market drop had not occurred earlier. Clinton has hinted at higher taxes for weeks, and corporate America has expected to bear a bigger burden since he was elected.

Administration may seek taxes on health benefits

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Clinton administration is considering taxing employee health benefits to help finance medical care for poorer Americans and may also try to limit insurers' premium increases to bring down costs.

President Clinton's health care task force is also discussing ways to extend Medicare limits on doctors' and hospitals' fees to those they charge private insurance plans.

Hillary Rodham Clinton, who heads the task force, spent more than 3½ hours closeted in meetings with almost 60 members of the House on Tuesday to discuss the reform effort.

The White House acknowledged that a senior policy adviser, Ira Magaziner, had written a memo outlining a slew of possible tax increases to pay for the estimated $30 billion to $90 billion annual cost of extending coverage to America's 36 million uninsured.

The Wall Street Journal reported that Magaziner had laid out such money-raising options as a tax on insurance company premiums, making workers pay income taxes on health benefits above certain levels, new levies on alcohol and tobacco and a higher corporate tax.

Mrs. Clinton turned aside questions about taxes, saying, "There isn't a plan yet." But she added, "It's time this country faced reality and dealt with its problems."

A portion of the Magaziner memo of Jan. 26 obtained by The Associated Press laid out the task force's preliminary work plan. It said Clinton's bill would be drafted around principles that included:

—Creating a National Health Board to set a standard comprehensive benefit package for all Americans.

—Forcing all employers "to pay a percentage (perhaps 75-80 percent) of the cost of a standard plan for their employees and dependents."

—Setting up state-based health insurance purchasing cooperatives to negotiate coverage for small businesses and individuals. Consumers would choose the plan they wanted during open-enrollment periods.

—The unemployed and others outside the work force could buy subsidized coverage through these cooperatives.

—Consumers would be "given incentives to choose efficient plans," possibly by making them pay extra for more extensive coverage and taxing a portion of their employer-provided insurance.

Willis Craddison, president of the Health Insurance Association of America and a former Republican congressman, said a tax on premiums would be "bad news for consumers. You don't hold down health insurance costs by having government load additional costs on the companies."

The Magaziner memo warned: "Any comprehensive health reform plan will be controversial." It said critics will charge that global budgets will lead to rationing and that insurance reforms such as community rating will drive premiums up for the "young, male and healthy."

The White House has said that Clinton will ask Congress tonight to hold down Medicare payments to doctors and hospitals as part of his short-term deficit reduction plan.

Continuing the quest Greyhounds three wins away from state title

By RYAN ANDERSON Herald Correspondent

LONGWOOD — Lyman High School's boys' soccer team moved one step closer to accomplishing its preseason goal of winning the Class 4A state title with a 4-1 win over the Winter Park Tuesday night in the 4A-Region V game.

"We're not there yet," Lyman coach Ray Sandidge said. "We've said it before and we'll say it again, our goal is to win the state tournament. We're not going to be happy with anything less."

The Wildcats' lone score of the game came with 37:34 left in the first half, when Paul Saks drilled the shot past a diving Chris Lewis. Lyman countered 17 minutes later when Frank Cipolla launched a free kick past the Wildcat keeper.

"It was a tough game," said Sandidge. "We gave them a bad goal early. We just broke down defensively. After the goal, we just shut them down. They only got a couple of other chances.

"You've got to give Winter Park a lot of credit. We played them earlier in the season and it was a lot tougher game tonight (in their previous meeting, Lyman rolled to a 4-0 victory)."

Joel Dewberry capped the scoring with 3:49 left in the game, when he converted a throw-in from Danny McAvoy into the Greyhounds' fourth goal.

"I think senior leadership had a lot to do with the way we played tonight," Sandidge said. "All of the goals came from seniors. The leadership by our seniors has really been a factor for us all season long."

According to Sandidge, Lyman has lost to Winter Park three times in the regional game (the last time in 1990) but has never lost to the Wildcats playing at home.

"We have never lost to Winter Park at the Dog Pound (Lyman Stadium) since I have been here," said Sandidge. "We tied once and won about four or five other games."

The Greyhounds outshot the Wild Cats 16-5 and had a 6-0 advantage in corner kicks. Lewis saved four shots for the Greyhounds while Winter Park goalies David Cook and Rick Higgins combined for seven saves.

Lyman will play at Jupiter Friday night in the 4A-Section III championship game. Jupiter advanced by beating Melbourne 3-2 on penalty kicks in the Region IV title match Tuesday night.

Santa Fe ends SCC win streak

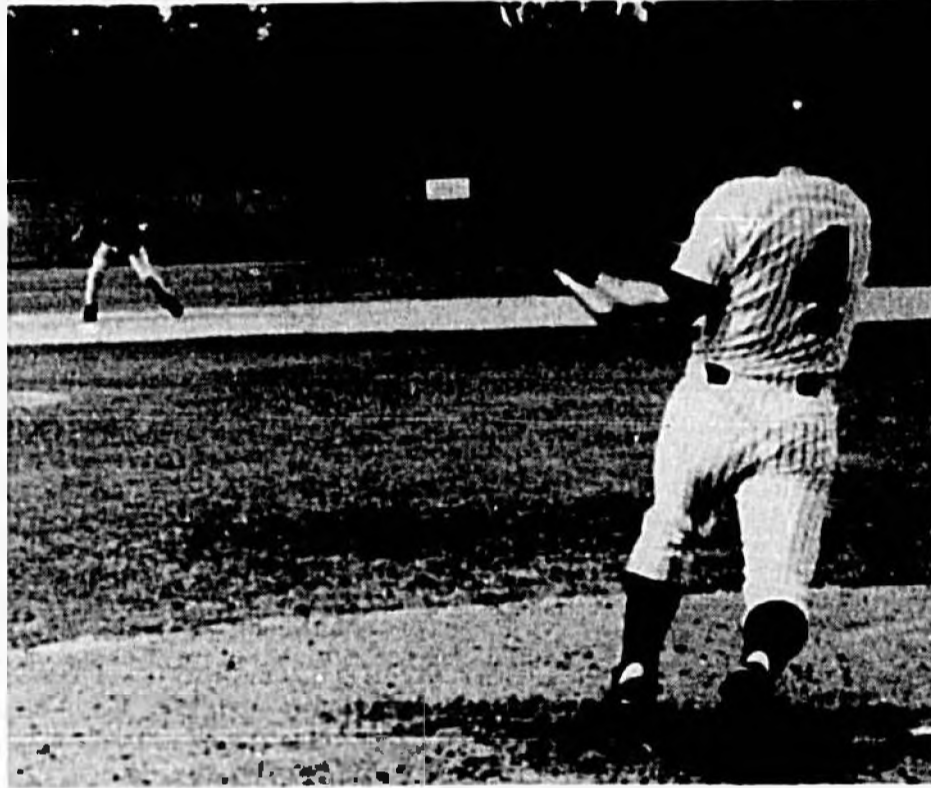

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Jack Pantelias' worst fears have been realized.

Before the season started the veteran Seminole Community College head baseball coach figured his team would have strong pitching and a tight defense, but he was not sure his team would hit.

Tuesday at Raider Field, the Raiders didn't as Santa Fe Community College pitcher Jason Hickey allowed only two hits, and four base runners total, in winning a 1-0

□ See Raiders, Page 2B

Sanford's Rick Eckstein (No. 4) had one of Seminole Community College's two hits, an infield single in the fourth inning, in the Raiders' 1-0 loss to the Santa Fe Saints Tuesday afternoon. He also reached base on an error.

DeLand starts fast, holds off Lake Mary

From Staff Reports

LAKE MARY — The early bird gets the worm.

Visiting DeLand High School came out of the locker room smoking, outscoring host Lake Mary by 10 points, 21-11, in the first quarter. That ended up the difference in the game as the Bulldogs posted a 78-68 victory in a 4A-District 9 boys' basketball contest Tuesday night.

The Rams actually had more field goals than DeLand, 29-28, and outscored the Bulldogs from the floor 60-57, but the locals were their own worst enemies, committing 24 fouls and sending the visitors to the foul line 33 times, which turned into 21 free points.

In comparison, DeLand was whistled for just 11 personal fouls and Lake Mary made only eight of its 14 charity shots.

Versatile Willie Norwood paced the Bulldogs with 22 points, while jet-quick point guard Devon Hough and muscle man John Demps added 16 points each.

The Rams, who fell to 5-17, were led by junior Jimmy Newberry's 21 points. Randy Brown and Richard Roche chipped in with 12 points each.

Lake Mary's scheduled Seminole Athletic Conference game with Lake Brantley has been moved to Thursday at 7:45 p.m. to accommodate tonight's girls' Class 4A-District 9 Tournament game pitting the host Rams, seeded No. 1 in the tournament, against two-time defending district champion, Daytona Beach-Mainland starting at 7:30 p.m.

NCAA Division II Poll
OVERLAND PARK, Kan. - The top 30 teams in the men's NCAA Division II

 pitchers' duel with the SCC's Robert Franklin in a Mid-Florida Conference contest.

The loss broke a five-game winning streak for SCC, which fell to 5-2 overall and 0-1 in the conference. The Saints improved to 4-3 overall and 1-0 in the M-FC.

The Raiders continue a four-game homestand today with a 3 p.m. battle with Alabama power Faulkner State Community College from Mobile.

Franklin, who came into the game 3-0, allowed only two base runners, one of which was erased on a double play, over the first three innings. But Santa Fe got to the righthander in the fourth.

With one out, Mike Strange singled and went to third on a single by Chris Wiggs. After a pop up for the second out, Ronnie Sowell singled to center for the game's only run.

Invitational

 scoring Alexander.

Mike Werner, Jason Rasmussen, Scott Johnston, and Chad Keasler followed with four straight singles. After Werner and Rasmussen's hits loaded the bases, Storey came in on Johnston's single. Werner and Rasmussen both scored on Keasler's hit to tie the score.

Johnston crossed the plate with the winning run when Chris Kleibel's fly ball bounced off the Seabreeze left fielder's glove and forehead.

Keasler led Lake Mary's 13-hit attack by going 3-for-4 with one run and four RBI. Johnston was 2-for-4 with two runs and two RBI. Rasmussen had two singles and scored a run while Werner singled once and scored three times.

For Seabreeze, Rance Winn and Jeff Davidson each hit a double.

Mike Carr was the winning pitcher for Lake Mary, working two innings in relief of starter Robert Vessey. Carr (1-0) allowed one hit while striking out one, walking one, and hitting a batter. In five innings, Vessey allowed nine runs (eight earned) on 10 hits, a walk, and a hit batter. He also struck out three.

Mike Lyons (1-0) was the winning pitcher in Lyman's victory over DeLand. Reed Fritch relieved Lyons in the fifth inning and wrapped up the game for his first save of the season.

Offensively, sophomore Tommy Dixon was 2-for-3 to lead the Greyhounds. According to Lyman coach Bob McCullough, Dixon will be the starting pitcher for Lyman tonight against Seabreeze.

Cook of the Week

County's first female deputy enjoys domestic scene

By ED KORGAN
Herald Correspondent

A Seminole County deputy has three hobbies: cooking, cookbooks and "precious moments" figurines.

Carol Jaques, Seminole County's first woman deputy has been with the sheriff's department for 22 years. She still remembers the two years prior to her becoming a road deputy when she worked in the accounting department. Many times she had talked about going to school and train to become a deputy. She was always discouraged because the sheriff, at that time, did not seem particularly thrilled about having a woman deputy.

One day right after an audit of the sheriff's department, she was called into her boss's office. Needless to say she was scared because she thought the auditors had found something wrong with her department. The day held much excitement because at the meeting she got the official okay to begin training to become a road deputy. Her days on the road are behind her and she now works in the fugitives section completing all the paperwork to extradite them in and out of the state.

Carol and her husband, Gene, who have raised two grown boys, have great compassion for those who are less fortunate. Over the years they have brought into their home five foster children and raised them as their own. Their present child, Lora, 15, has been with them for the past two years. She has fit right in the groove and enjoys the lifestyle and restrictions that are placed on her by the Jaques' family tradition.

She has to keep a good supply of different foods around the house because many times Gene will call in and ask her if he can squeeze just one more person into the meal. The answer is always yes and someone again will enjoy the hospitality of the Jaques family.

When it comes to cookbooks,

Carol Jaques prepares dinner.

Carol has them all. Her cookbook collection fills a whole room alongside one of the three gigantic freezers in the home.

The "chicken spaghetti" recipe is the favorite of many people who visit their home.

Pair happily wed without children

DEAR ABBY: Allen (not his real name) and I have been happily married for nine years. We have no children — by choice. I am 33 and Allen is 34. Our problem is Allen's parents. Whenever we get together with his parents, they start in with, "When are you two going to settle down and give us some grandchildren?" Allen is their only child, and when they start in with the "baby" talk, we tell them, "In due time" or, "We're working on it," but the truth of the matter is, we like our life the way it is and don't want children.

We both are professionals and are well-rewarded. We enjoy traveling and have seen not only the United States, but Canada, Alaska, the Hawaiian Islands, Europe, South America and the Orient.

Allen's mother is now nagging us to see a fertility expert about our "problem" — she doesn't know there is no problem. I've been on birth control since our marriage.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

I have never been disrespectful to my elders, but I don't know how much of their nagging I can take. Perhaps if you print this, they'll see it and recognize themselves, and leave us alone.

CHILDLESS BY CHOICE

DEAR CHILDLESS: Don't wait for them to see this. Tell them exactly what you've told me — that you like your life the way it is. Not every couple needs children to complete their lives. And should you change your minds in a few years, who knows what the future will have in store for you? You appear to be happy and well-adjusted. May it ever be thus.

Celebrate Mardi Gras with New Orleans dishes

This is the time of Mardi Gras. The celebration begins several weeks before Ash Wednesday and climaxes on Shrove Tuesday, the last day before Lent begins. New Orleans is known as the city of Mardi Gras, but you can celebrate no matter where you live.

The history of New Orleans has resulted in one of the most interesting food and cultural conglomerations in our country. The area was first settled by the French, but others from Spain, Acadia, Haiti, Africa, West Indies and Germany soon settled there. Each of the cultures has contributed to the collage of foods now distinctive of this region.

Cajun and Creole are two favorite flavors of the area. Cajun is more country-type cooking while Creole was originally more city or urban. Both of these cooking styles were influ-

Gumbo is described as "a soup thickened with okra and containing other vegetables and meat or seafood." Traditionally, it is served with hot cooked rice. This version has sausage and chicken over hot cooked rice.

About 8 servings — 300 calories each.

SAVORY GUMBO

Crumble sausage in 2 1/2 quart casserole. Microwave on 100 percent power 5-8 minutes or until no longer pink, stirring once. Stir to break meat into small pieces; drain. Stir in chicken, garlic and onion. Cover with casserole lid.

Microwave on 100 percent power 5-8 minutes or until chicken is almost tender. Stir in chicken broth and tomatoes, cutting tomatoes into pieces. Add okra, flour, thyme, oregano and bay leaf, mix well. Cover.

Microwave on 100 percent power 16-18 minutes or until heated through and thickened, stirring twice. Remove bay leaf and serve.

NEW ORLEANS EGGPLANT

- 1 medium green pepper, cut into 1-inch pieces
- 1/4 cup snipped parsley
- 3 Tbsp. tomato paste
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. dried thyme leaves

Combine celery, onion, garlic, and oil in 2-quart casserole. Cover with casserole lid. Microwave on 100 percent power 2 1/2-3 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Celiac disease linked to a cereal protein

DEAR DR. GOTT: I was hospitalized for malnutrition and malabsorption and was ultimately diagnosed with celiac disease. Can you identify the symptoms and provide more information on something I know very little about?

DEAR READER: Celiac disease, which causes diarrhea, is caused by a hereditary sensitivity to gluten, a cereal protein found in wheat, rye, barley, and oats. Patients are free of symptoms until they eat gluten. The protein affects the intestinal lining, leading to malabsorption of nutrients that, in turn, produce rash, anemia, weight loss, bone pain, and swollen ankles. Such patients tend to lose excessive fat in the stool, with resulting vitamin deficiencies.

The diagnosis is suspected by the medical history and is confirmed by a biopsy of the intestinal lining.

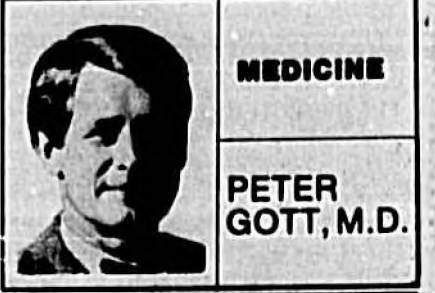

Treatment consists of a gluten-free diet. Because gluten is a common ingredient of many processed foods (including soups, sauces, hot dogs and iced cream), patients usually need expert advice from a dietician about which edibles to avoid.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffer from chronic dry cough. I've taken Seldane and Hismanal, yet neither seems to clear up my problem. Throat sprays are ineffective as well. What's your suggestion?

DEAR READER: Cough can have many causes, including allergies, infection in the chest or sinuses, chronic air pollution (such as from tobacco smoke) and a reaction to medication.

Seldane and Hismanal are both effective antihistamine/decongestants. If they haven't helped you, it's time to look more seriously for the cause of your problem. I assume you've seen a doctor, because the medicine you've been given is by prescription only. Therefore, return to your doctor for further testing. In my opinion, you need chest and sinus X-rays, as well as selected blood tests and -- perhaps -- tests of your breathing, to check for asthma.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Whatever else you feel about him, you have to agree that Woody Allen has written many funny lines. I like this one: "I'm not a fighter; I have bad reflexes. I was once run over by a car being pushed by two guys."

Many bridge deals require rapid reflexes. Some declarers, when they need a misdefense to make their contract, will play very quickly. This isn't kosher, but it often works. However, when defending, don't be hurried. Say that you want to take some time to think things through.

Rather than rely on speed, the declarer should play his cards deceptively so that the defender doesn't see the trap in time.

Playing in four hearts, the ingenious declarer wins the first trick with dummy's club ace, draws trumps and plays a diamond to the king. True, against some opponents this will work. West will lead a second club, allowing South to ruff and discard one of dummy's spade losers on the diamond queen. But against more sophisticated defenders it won't succeed. First, East will have played his two trumps in the order 5-2, trying to show a top honor in spades. Second, West will see that the club queen can wait. He will recognize the possibility of a discard and switch to the spade four at trick five.

As South knows East has the club king and is marked with a top spade (West didn't lead the spade king), West must hold the diamond ace. A more deceptive approach is to lead dummy's diamond at trick two and put in the nine. If West falls for the trap, later South can ruff out West's diamond ace and get his discard.

Readers are invited to send card-play questions to Phillip

Alder, in care of this newspaper. They can be answered only through the column.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Feb. 16, 1993

In the year ahead, you will have greater opportunities to assume more direct control over matters that were previously regulated by others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Substantial strides can be made today toward advancing your personal interests. In order to do this, you must be single-minded and focused on your objectives. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Things should begin to look up for you today regarding a situation where the odds had appeared to be working against you. The change could be due to Lady Luck's intervention.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A more binding relationship may soon develop with someone you consider a mere acquaintance. The change will require time to unfold, but it will be lasting.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You have the potential to achieve important objectives without the help of others today. However, a concerned ally will be watching in the wings, just in case you trip.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This is a good day to do more than merely contemplate your future plans. Take what you have devised thus far and put it into action without further delay.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) When dealing with your special someone today, try to be protective without being possessive. If you are unable to perceive the line of demarcation, you could disturb the relationship.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) When making decisions today that could affect you and your mate, try to slant them in his or her favor instead of your own. This is a way to assure that both of you will benefit.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Complications could begin to develop if you form a romantic attachment with someone at work. Keep everything strictly business today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your extravagant urges might surface today and tempt you to spend resources when you shouldn't. Don't let unruly impulses dictate imprudent action.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You are now entering a cycle where your luck should begin to show a marked improvement. However, if you start to coast, it could turn out to be counterproductive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Ideas you conceive today could be superior to those of your associates. They will be more receptive to your thoughts if you make them feel they are co-authors.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Financial indicators look very encouraging for you today, and this means you should give top priority to matters that can either make or save you money. (C)1993, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
