> About four years ago a Teen-Age Social Club was formed by a small group of boys and girls. Penny Blackford was the guiding spirit of this enterprise, as well as for the Sub-Teen group which is a fairly recent organization. The Teen-Agers are the guar-dians of the Sub-Teens in that they see that the Sub-Teens are included in many of the older children's activities. An example of the co-operation between the two groups is the annual Valentine Day Dance. At the dance a king and queen are chosen, and their crown bearers are chosen from the Sub-Teen group. The Altamonte Community House is used for their business and social meetings. A refreshment Committee is hept busy planning and sup-plying food for the ever-hungry members.

May 3 was a gala aight for the Sub-Teens. Some seventy invita-tions were sent out by the eldir group to be sure as one was ex-cluded from the dance for that night. On May 10 The Teen-Age Social Club will have their turn, and a dance is planned for that venier.

He emerged from his brief period as an advisor to Secretary of State Dulles with quite a number of people applauding him. When he speaks on the same platform as other leaders at Democratic party affairs, he stands out.

Stevenson is not campaigning. He does not want to run again. But events have a strange way of lifting men up and thrusting them forward. This could happen to Adlal E. Stevenson, though he is not seeking to run and the field of contenders is crowded. Many astute political observers say this is innossible. A few, including men who are also astute, say, "You know, it could happen.*
