Pay raise for cops

Lake Mary, union stalemate ends; money retroactive

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — A four-month deadlock in salary negotiations between the city and police union ended yesterday when Lake Mary cops through the rank of sergeant were granted a pay raise.

Police will have a retroactive salary increase, but not as much as originally requested by their union.

The City of Lake Mary and the Police Benevolent Association, (PBA), which represents the city's police officers, have been unable to agree with each other on a union contract.

Although this third year of a three-year union contract has been under discussion since last April, the difficulty in reaching an agreement emerged on Oct. 26, 1993.

Subsequent communications between City Manager John Litton and PBA President Robert Parmenter on Oct. 29 officially declared the matter at an impasse. The next move was to hire a special master to resolve the differences.

Nathan Kazin of Jacksonville, was hired, and following meetings and study, he submitted his findings on January 18. Kazin's recommendations regarding wages were not in keeping with union demands for an effective date upon ratification.

His recommendations regarding the merit pay plan were not in agreement with city suggestions that a cap be placed on salaries regardless of the merit raise.

As a result, an impasse was again declared.

The final step was taken during last night's city commission meeting. According to Florida Statutes on rejection of a special master's report by both parties, commissioners sit as a legislative body, conduct a public hearing, and take action after hearing both sides of the problem.

Campus parking

Parking on high school campuses across the district is becoming increasingly more difficult.

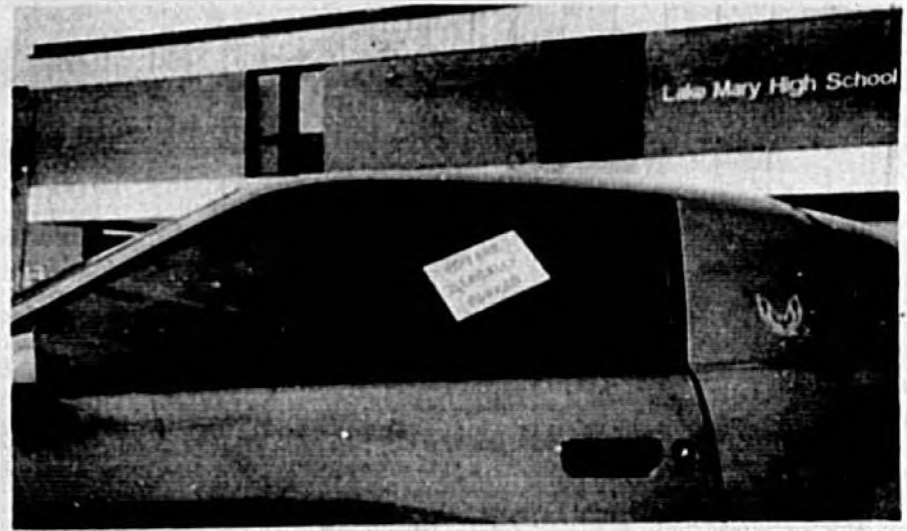

Lake Mary High School leads the pack of schools at the northern end of the county where parking spaces are prime pieces of real estate.

According to Boyd Karns, dean of students at Lake Mary High School, there are about 600 parking spaces set aside for students at the school and more than 700 students who have sought to purchase parking permits.

Some students who do not have parking permits and even some who do, will try to squeeze their cars in nooks and crannies around the front

County targets space, place to smoke, signs

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Room to grow, places to smoke and signs pointing the way are the topics of discussion for county commissioners Tuesday.

Commissioners will discuss initiating the process to acquire land for a future expansion of the County Services Building. They will also review a plan to install signs and information kiosks at the building to aid lost visitors. Finally, they will consider construction of employee break pavilions, a pledge they made to smoking employees more than a year ago.

After last year's effort to build a joint school-county administrative complex failed, commission chairman Dick Van Weide urged fellow commissioners to pursue acquiring land for the future expansion of the County Services Building.

Last year, county consultants recommended moving the Tax Collector's Office and other county functions out of the old hospital building and doubling the size of it to accommodate future staff increases for the remaining services. Most commissioners decided they needed a new Public Safety Complex first and delayed discussions about the County Services Building.

Teen to be tried as adult

MIAMI — A teen-ager accused of killing three motorists while drag racing his Corvette will be tried as an adult.

Dade County Juvenile Judge Steve Levine ruled Francisco Del Rey, 16, of Coral Gables, should be tried in adult court on three counts of manslaughter and one count of fraudulently obtaining a Florida driver's license. The boy was 15 at the time of the accident.

"The community would be better served," Levine decided Thursday after three days of testimony from accident reconstruction experts, the victims' parents and Del Rey's relatives and friends.

Del Rey is accused of racing his Corvette at more than 100 miles per hour on Dec. 30 against a Mustang, driven by Everett Price, 29, of Coral Gables. Prosecutors said Price also may be charged.

Police said the Corvette crashed into the side of a Chevrolet Chevette, killing Luis Perez, 21, of Miami, and Alvaro Cardenas, 19, and Carlos Rios, 18, both University of Florida students home for the holidays. The boy was 15 at the time of the accident.

If convicted, Del Rey faces 15 years in prison for each count of manslaughter.

He also is charged with using a fake birth certificate that said he was 17 to obtain a Florida license. A charge of driving under the influence was dismissed by Levine earlier this week.

Del Rey was being held on $15,000 bond.

If he had been charged as a juvenile, Del Rey would have remained in state custody until he turned 19.

Woman fatally shot at USF

TAMPA — A woman was killed when a man shot into a crowd at the University of South Florida campus, and the suspect later was shot by deputies when he pulled a gun on them, authorities said.

The woman was shot in the head Thursday as she left a concert on campus, said sheriff's spokesman Jack Espinosa.

Witnesses told police they saw the gunman shoot twice with a handgun at close range, striking the woman both times.

Shortly after the shooting, deputies confronted a man they said matched the description of the shooter. When deputies asked him to remove his hand from his pocket, he pulled a gun, and they shot him, Espinosa said.

The man, who was not identified, was taken to Tampa General Hospital, where he was in critical condition early today.

Neither the victim nor the suspect attended the university, said USF police Lt. Bob Staehle.

The gunman appeared to single out the victim, Staehle said, adding: "It was not a robbery; we're looking into a connection between the two people."

Two events were being held simultaneously on campus: a White Zombie heavy metal concert and a Luciano Pavarotti concert. Police believe the victim, whose name had not been released pending notification of next of kin, had attended the rock concert.

Smell overwhelms turnpike motorists

KISSIMMEE — It could be chicken manure on a nearby pasture or sludge from a sewage treatment plant. What ever the cause, there's a stench causing headaches for motorists on Florida's Turnpike.

"Strong odor — next four miles — do not stop — keep moving."

Turnpike authorities said they had to post a flashing sign Thursday with that message to prevent illness to drivers near the Yeehaw Junction exit.

Two people have been overcome by the smell and treated for minor ailments.

A motorist who stopped with her child along the Turnpike because of car trouble on Wednesday became ill. Then a state Department of Transportation employee sent to evaluate the situation was overwhelmed, said Turnpike spokeswoman Kim Poulton.

State investigating Dusseau

TAMPA — The state is conducting a criminal investigation into Florida Commerce Secretary-designee Charles Dusseau and votes he made on bond business deals. The Tampa Tribune reported today.

Dade Assistant State Attorney Joe Centorino said Thursday an inquiry had been upgraded to a full-scale investigation after his office reviewed a Florida Department of Law Enforcement background check on Dusseau.

"We really don't know what happened here, but we're going to find out," Centorino said.

Dusseau couldn't be reached for comment by the newspaper. Ron Sachs, a spokesman for Gov. Lawton Chiles, has said the governor has no intention of withdrawing Dusseau's nomination.

School reform

Auditors: Blueprint 2000 'trickling down to schools'

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Parents, teachers and employers have yet to figure out how to exercise the power they have over what goes on in classrooms, state auditors said.

The report comes three years after state lawmakers surrendered much of their say over school operations. Auditors visited five school districts and 28 schools and surveyed teachers statewide about the 1991 reform, which is titled Blueprint 2000.

"Blueprint 2000 is slowly trickling down to the schools," reads a report by the office of state Auditor General Charles Lester.

The potential for change is limited until teachers, parents and school boards understand the 1991 law, according to the audit.

"These stakeholders are slowly beginning to understand Blueprint 2000," the auditors wrote.

Randy Lewis, a spokesman for Education Commissioner Doug Jamerson, said a slow start probably was to be expected.

"You're looking at a rather massive, systemic type of reform," he said Thursday.

The auditors agreed in their report, noting there are a lot of people and institutions involved: 67 school districts, 347 school board members, 2,694 schools, 105,274 teachers, 2,694 principals and 52,000 people on school advisory councils.

Lawmakers agreed three years ago to lift many of the laws dictating what happens in Florida's classrooms.

Under the reform law, schools this year are supposed to be operating under customized plans for improvement drawn up with the input of advisory councils, composed of those most closely affected by a school's performance: teachers, parents and local employers.

The auditors found two other indicators Blueprint 2000 is "slowly trickling down."

Districts still are spending their money on the programs that used to be required under state law, and district or school staff do not appear to be questioning the status quo, "thus, the potential for change appears to be minimal."

Dade, Pinellas, Lake, Bay and Dixie counties are meeting the statutory requirements of Blueprint 2000, also known as accountability, according to the audit.

"However, in addition to compliance, we noted a variation in the extent to which the spirit of Blueprint 2000 was implemented," the auditors wrote.

The report said some advisory councils were actively involved in drafting a plan for improvement and others had far less say. Also, some principals varied in the amount of flexibility they allowed.

Attorney's ad on avoiding DUI charges violated ethics

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Attorney Herbert Hall violated ethics standards when he paid a newspaper almost $400 to publish a list of tips on avoiding drunk driving charges, the Florida Supreme Court has ruled.

The court said the list amounted to an advertisement for Hall's practice and it violated the strict guidelines established by the Florida Bar Association.

In an opinion released Thursday, the high court said Hall should be reprimanded. It also ordered the Bar to make clearer its ethics rules.

"This is one area that must have been a little gray," said Jerry Butterfield, a spokesman for the Bar in Tallahassee.

Hall, 43, who specializes in defending people charged with drunken driving, said the ethics standards were ambiguous. The issue went to the Supreme Court after Hall and the Bar disagreed on a local judge's ruling that Hall had erred.

Crawford backs forestry camp proposal

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Two years of battling forest fires and clearing trails could get juvenile offenders back in line better than a few months of boot camp, Florida's top farm official says.

Among a myriad of ideas floating around the Legislature, Agriculture Commissioner Bob Crawford said Thursday he's backing a $32.5 million juvenile forestry camp proposal by Rep. Alzo Reddick, D-Orlando.

"Young people who have had some problems can move to these camps, come out of their urban setting," Crawford said of the program modeled after California's use of ghetto gang members on forest fire crews.

Camp graduates would earn graduate equivalency degrees and help the state open to public use more of the 1 million acres of forest under the department's management, he said.

Lawmakers are debating a variety of crime prevention programs, boot camps and other juvenile justice proposals. So far, forestry camps have only been listed by a House juvenile justice task force as a possible recommendation, Reddick said.

The division of forestry would build four camps, in Leon, Clay, Levy and Collier counties, under a plan worked out by the division's fire control chief, Michael Long, and other officials at Reddick's request.

Judges would decide who goes to the camps, but they wouldn't be for violent criminals, Reddick said. The camps would hold a total of 200 youths.

"They'll be under direct supervision in small crews, supervised on a ratio of one to five, so I don't think there'll be any safety problems with anybody hiking or using the forest," Long said.

Those completing the program would learn enough forestry skills to qualify for some entry level jobs with the state forestry division, other state and federal forestry or environmental agencies, or private businesses such as timber companies, said Crawford.

Reddick said the program would be expensive, but would save money in the long run.

"My program teaches you some life skills, everything from cooking for each other to how to get along with each other," he said. "We would take a troubled youth about to enter a life of crime, and we return to you a citizen that has some job skills. That has some concept of esteem."

Reno: Too many crimes federalized under Senate bill

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Too many crimes better handled by local police and prosecutors could become federal cases under the Senate crime bill, Attorney General Janet Reno said Thursday.

"There's an effort in some of the Senate provisions to federalize too many crimes that should be handled by local prosecutors and should be handled by local police officers," Reno told her weekly news conference. "They're not federal issues, and they're not a federal problem."

Reno did not say which provisions she objected to.

The $22.3 billion crime bill passed by the Senate last November would make most gun-related violent crimes federal offenses subject to mandatory minimum sentences, such as 10 years in prison for possessing a gun during a robbery. Experts estimate more than half a million state and local offenses that could become federal crimes under the gun amendment alone.

In addition, the Senate bill would make federal crimes out of many gang-related actions, including encouraging someone to join a street gang involved in illegal activities.

House committees are at work on several crimes measures that might be combined with the Senate bill in a conference.

The Clinton administration is growing more favorable to the Senate bill daily but still has not spelled out its position on many of its specific provisions.

Reno said she hoped to have a specific proposal next week on one Senate provision she and President Clinton have said is too broad: the "three-strikes" plan to imprison for life those convicted of a third violent or drug crime.

"We feel it should be a limited bill," Reno said. "You can come up with a very good, 'three strikes, you're out' bill that focuses on the truly dangerous violent offender, the person that everybody agrees shouldn't be back out on the streets."

Once wary of sharp increases in mandatory minimum sentences in the Senate bill, Reno began calling it balanced between punishment and prevention during a visit Wednesday to anticrime projects in Baltimore.

On Thursday, she praised the Senate bill but stopped short of an endorsement.

"The Senate bill has some significant merits in it for prevention that focus on youth, focus on youth violence prevention, focus on drug courts," she said. "What we need to do is to see how the House works through its various pieces of legislation, what it decides to do, so that we come up with the best proposal possible."

On another matter, it was learned that Reno has asked aides to conduct an informal inquiry to be certain no Justice Department employee was the source for a story last week in the New York Daily News about the still-secret Park Police report on the suicide last July of White House deputy counsel Vincent Foster.

According to the Daily News, Lisa Foster told police her husband felt "he had personally failed" and talked about quitting his White House job.

Rate of women in poverty is rising

By KIMI MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Single mothers and women who have lost their primary source of income — their husbands — are four times as likely to live in poverty as the population as a whole, according to a study.

"What we have discovered can only be characterized as grim," said Gilda Nardone, president of Women Work, an advocacy group that conducted the analysis, based on census data.

"Even though these women's work-force participation rose significantly during the decade, their likelihood of living in poverty remained high."

The report, released Thursday, focused on the plight of single mothers and what it calls "displaced homemakers" — women whose primary occupation had been homemaking but who did not find fulltime, year-round employment after they became divorced, separated or widowed.

There were 17.8 million displaced homemakers in the United States in 1990, up 4 million since 1980, Nardone said.

The number of single mothers also rose, from 5.8 million in 1980 to 7.7 million a decade later, according to the report.

But while 11 percent of households in the United States lived in poverty in 1990, 42 percent of displaced homemakers who headed households and 44 percent of single mothers were impoverished, the study found.

"For millions of single mothers and displaced homemakers, the American dream is proving elusive because jobs are not providing economic security," said Nardone.

Displaced homemakers had a significantly higher rate of employment in 1990 than they did in 1980, the study found. Approximately half of all displaced homemakers were employed either part-time or part of the year in 1990, compared with only a third a decade earlier. But the poverty rate improved only slightly, from 39 percent in 1980 to 35 percent in 1990.

"Part of the reason is that displaced homemakers and single mothers are over-represented in service jobs, even compared to women in general," Nardone said at a news conference. "As you know, service jobs offer low wages few benefits, part-time work and little or no job security."

Kudos to auction participants

When a fundraising event goes off well, it deserves applause. Such is the case with the Seminole Community College annual Dream Auction held last Friday evening.

The 10th annual event managed to raise several thousand dollars to be used by SCC's scholarship foundation. It will result in a number of youngsters being able to continue their education even though they may not be able to afford it.

It will give our area, state and nation more educated adults who will be better able to succeed in this rapidly modernizing world.

The fundraiser was a sell-out. The Sheraton Orlando-North had all 420 seats filled, as was the case for the past several years.

Many individuals deserve praise for this: the organizers, planners, and businesses which donated the items which were auctioned.

Of prime consideration must be the individuals who paid $75 each for the privilege of bidding on some outstanding items.

It was good to see this take place. Too many times, fundraising is a difficult task from the start. People often are not willing to give of their time, talents or donations to make a project succeed.

This one is different. It involves higher education. We are fortunate to have people in our community who realize its importance and go all-out to make the drive a success.

The final amount of money obtained from this event won't be known for several weeks. Judging from several items which were auctioned at actual value, we believe the amount raised will allow the scholarship foundation to be generous this year.

Seminole Community College, its staff, Dream Auction participants, illustrious auctioneer Art Grindie, and all who were involved should be saluted. It is a good example of how people are willing to get involved in a project which is truly beneficial.

Spankology in lawmaking

I can't help but wonder just how all this blood, guts and gore on primetime TV hits all you wonderful people out there in Lalaland. It's there, you know. Almost nightly you can dye your rug a bright red with all the blood pouring out of the boob tube. Does it bother you? Even just a little bit? Not Why not?

Well now, folks, it apparently has bothered Congress. At least, they're making all kinds of threatening noises, like "Clean up yur act or we'll clean it up for you." Sounds great, doesn't it? Or does it?

I have one-very-pregnant question to ask. "Who is going to clean up Congress?" Seems to me that I've read and heard something about a House Post Office scandal, a Senate sexual harassment scandal, several tax evasion scandals, a few alleged campaign money transferal scandals, etc., etc., etc.

Mr. Clinton sure isn't going to do much if anything about it. He's got, according to network TV, mounting problems of his own. Besides, he is "their man in the White House."

And here's another little tidbit for you to chew on for awhile. I'll bet your last dollar that this has affected most likely eight out of 10 of you during 1993.

"The honesty and integrity of American business — in action." I hate to say it but all together too many of our business giants have, as the saying goes, been caught with their fingers in the cookie jar. A few tens or perhaps hundreds of thousands of dollars in fines and/or penalties assessed, and then it's back to business as usual. Horrendous, isn't it?

Just a couple of months or so ago there was another expose on evening network TV on one of the local Orlando channels concerning the ever popular automobile repair/ripoff racket. To be fair about it, some of the shops/stations diagnosed and fixed the "created problem — a defective fuse," quickly and at minimal cost. Some of the other shops/stations also diagnosed and fixed the "created problem — the tired fuse" and then went on to "fix and/or replace" several hundred dollars worth of perfectly good and correctly functioning parts.

No one, at any level of government, can legislate the compliance of honesty in anyone. Integrity is another attribute that cannot be legislated into existence. Government can, however, by the imposition of severe penalties for the "lack of" honesty and integrity, instill a might strong desire for both of those qualities in everyone. Simple solution, right?

It's a lot like the military. They, the officers and NCOs, cannot make you do anything that you don't want to do. But they sure as hell can make you wish — very dearly — that you had done it. It's called punishment — real or perceived — swift and sure. And I can damn well guarantee that the next time you have the opportunity to "do it or not do it," you'll do it.

Think — Tallahassee, think — Washington — think.

Students divided on Harding case

It's a toss as to which of the following three — Tonya Harding, the media or the public — has played the fool more shamelessly in the last three weeks of the nation's biggest manufactured controversy.

All three have ended up exemplifying Mr. Dooley's judgment about the vice presidency: "It isn't a crime exactly. Ye can't be sent to jail for it, but it's a kind of a disgrace. It's like writin' anonymous letters."

Ordinarily, I would not have cultivated a supple spine by writing about a person who desecrates the reciprocity of our good will. But a tough editorial about Harding in the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill's Daily Tar Heel surprised and intrigued me. Students tend to be far more tolerant than their morally rigid elders. But the editorial stood tall. "Not only has she admitted to knowing about the involvement of her husband and bodyguard in the attack," the editorial wrote, "but she actually concealed that information from authorities for some time."

"Let Tonya Harding make her money off the made-for-TV movie, but don't let her represent the United States in the world games."

No generation gap here. I think it would travesty the ideals of sportsmanship if Harding were permitted to skate in the Olympics. Like the DTH editorial, I thought she should stay home. But did other college newspaper editorials agree with the DTH? Most of those polled in a random telephone survey took no editorial position. Those that did were split three ways: Harding should stay home; she should skate in the Olympics because she has not been indicted, nor been given due process, and her only sin is having been victimized by the feeding frenzy of the media.

"We were discussing this in a sociology class," said the news editor of the wonderfully named University of Vermont Cynic. "We agreed it was a non-issue. Why was it in the news?"

No generation gap here.

Because it's "the most pressing issue facing the nation — Skategate," tongue-in-cheeked Duke University editorial.

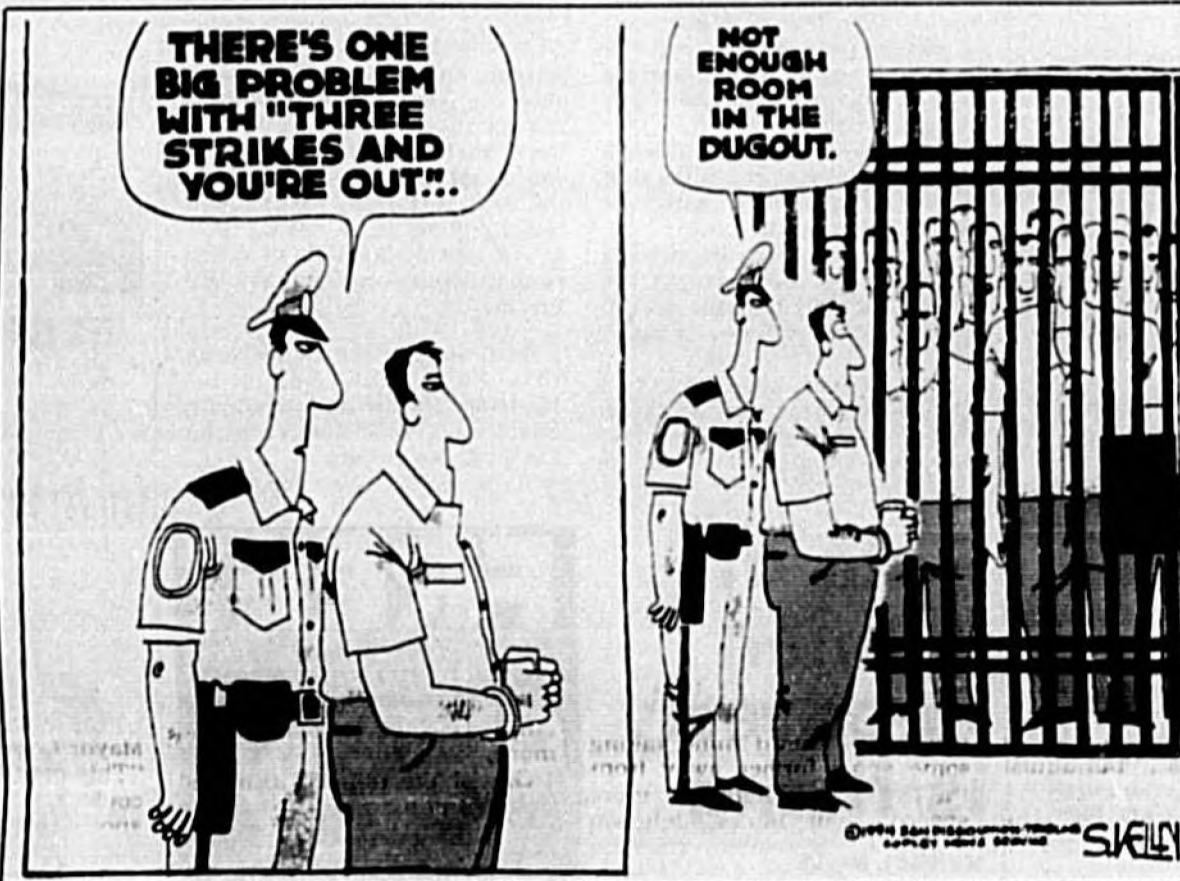

In Harding's backyard, an editorial spokesman for the Oregon State University Daily Barometer sympathized with the Duke feeling of being inundated by Hardingitis. "We have tried to avoid her. If people want to know about her, let them read the tabloids or watch 'Hard Copy.'"

"Oh, God!" jocularly moaned an editor of the University of Portland Beacon. "We have taken no editorial stand on her, but it is our feeling that she should be allowed to go to the Olympics."

The University of Oregon Daily Emerald agreed because "she should not be tried in the press."

Across the country at the University of Florida, Independent Florida Alligator sports columnist Derek Willis said that before the present controversy, he wasn't convinced that either Kerrigan or Harding had a good chance to win the gold medal. "The Ukrainian girl who won the world championship against them is the best."

A University of Minnesota Daily spokeswoman said she was "bothered by the lawsuit Harding had filed. It looks very defensive. But it's still not fair to judge her by what the media has written about her."

Disability Act and small businesses

WASHINGTON — Sometimes the most noble laws can have profoundly common side effects. As local governments and small businesses struggle under the weight of "unfunded mandates" from the federal government, a huge new cost is coming down the pike this summer — the Americans with Disabilities Act.

Combined with the threat of employer mandates in the Clinton health care plan, the 1990s may go down as the decade the government waged war on small business.

This year marks the second phase of ADA enforcement. Since 1992, nearly 500,000 American companies with 25 or more employees have had to comply with ADA. Beginning July 26, the act will extend to all companies with 15 or more employees — meaning that 750,000 businesses will now be complying with the ADA.

While the ADA is a boon to disabled Americans, making employment discrimination illegal, compliance with the act is expected to cost businesses at least $2 billion this year alone, exceeding any other unfunded mandate except for the Clean Air Act amendments.

Although the social benefits of the ADA — encouraging people to work rather than drawing checks from the government — will surely be great in the long run, many business owners fear the initial compliance may put them out of business. In the meantime, the biggest beneficiaries of the act will be lawyers. An army of pinstriped suits is already preparing to iron out the details — who must comply, and who will be exempt. Early indications are that legal activity will be brisk.

The buzzwords for complying with ADA are "undue burden." Any business owner who can prove that hiring a disabled employee will place an "undue burden" on their business will be exempt from complying. Unfortunately, those two words are sure to spawn a web of litigation that will drag into the next century. Based on interviews with several ADA experts, here are some of the issues that will be controversial in the coming years.

— The act covers former drug users. Although current drug users are specifically exempted from the ADA, it fails to define current drug use. In an effort to open up job opportunities for recovering addicts, the ADA's authors included as covered drug abusers who had been rehabilitated. It does not, however, make provisions for relapses, which are common among recovering addicts. Theoretically, police narcotics units may be forced under ADA to hire former drug addicts, provided they are otherwise qualified for police work.

— The ADA forbids discrimination against a recovering — or active — alcoholic who is "otherwise" qualified for the job.

If the driver for a trucking firm, for instance, has not lost his or her license because of previous driving under the influence, the driver may be able to make a case for keeping the job under ADA. In order to exclude such a person, an employer must prove that he/she poses a threat to themselves and others. This one will certainly keep many lawyers in the money for years.

— Courts must also define how long one must be disabled to qualify under the ADA.

The ADA is unclear on whether temporary disabilities — such as a broken leg — will be covered. In general, regulations indicate that short-term disabilities, with little or no permanent damage, will not be considered disabilities. Unfortunately, the language is vague enough to create an avalanche of litigation.

DONNA BRITT

For black men everywhere

WASHINGTON — During a recent address at a library, it happened yet again: A man in the audience stood and thanked me simply, "for the Valentine." Written in 1990 on a whim, "A Valentine for Black Men" is my most popular, and most requested-for-updating, piece.

Prompting hundreds of phone calls, and roses three years running from "the men of Morehouse" College, it won awards from the American Association of Sunday and Feature Editors and the National Association of Black Journalists. Since I wrote it, Justice Marshall has passed, Colin Powell has become a near-icon, black men are getting more plum movie roles. But brothers gone wrong still get the press. I continue to adore men, period. But black men — well, read on:

Statistics suggest they are "endangered." Oprah, Geraldo and TV specials say they're "at risk." Movies that deal with them positively show them largely as afterthoughts and background music; the rest say they're thieves and abusers, the architects and victims of the drug culture. Their own women shout their failings from the rooftops, from the pages of best sellers.

Even under all that weight, even with so many expectations of awfulness, black men manage to amaze.

I mean, really. Look at Michael Jordan, the Superman who turned empty air into his personal trampoline, who's now risking his immortality by pursuing a diamond-shaped dream. Or Denzel Washington, blending talent, versatility and an almost shimmering sexiness while retaining his image as a rock-steady family man.

Check out Nelson Mandela's amazing grace as he leads his nation into a chaotic future. Four years after emerging from a 27-year prison ordeal, the man appears hardly to have missed a beat.

This is a valentine for black men, from one black woman speaking for a lot more. And not just because men of African descent could use a valentine after so much bad press. It's for their being so good at so many things. For surviving so much. For being bigger and better than the hype could ever suggest.

I've been crazy about black men since the days when I jumped into my Daddy's arms as he arrived home from laying bricks. I've loved black boys since my brother, Darrell, swore to marry a girl just like me. Since ninth grade, when Ricky Jenkins, emboldened by the darkness at a blue-lights-in-the-basement party, slipped me my first kiss. Since 1970, when I learned that Gary Sewell — teased by his brother for having an 8-by-10 photo of me on his dresser — responded, "Look, man, I love her, even if it isn't cool."

I mean, really. Black guys know how to get to me. Like one over nine years ago, who saw me lumbering down a Detroit street, stupendously pregnant. Smiling, he whispered, "I bet you're gonna have a pretty baby."

It's for all the unheralded black scientists, inventors, doctors, philosophers, poets, architects, writers, entrepreneurs and everyday fellas that have improved, and continue to improve, all our lives.

It's for brothers who play against stereotypes: hoopster A.C. Green for showing that even macho athletes can extol celibacy; Cowboy Emmitt Smith for his modesty as he engineered Buffalo's Super Bowl extinction; and Tony Tomi Tone and Babyface for refusing to stop singing about love.

For pioneers like Thurgood on the bench, Cos on TV, Guion in space, Colin in the military, Sidney on screen and Doug in the governorship. For my late father-in-law, a Smithsonian geologist back when folks assumed every brother working there had to sweep floors. And for the black men who did sweep up — and who redressed and shined shoes — without compromising their dignity.

It's for the Older Brothers — my father and grandfathers and those whose names I'll never know. Men who wear hats beautifully no matter what's "in style," who remember women are more attracted to a sweet smile than a slick remark. Whose hard lives have taken only the harshest edge off their handsomeness, and who say, "How do you do, Miss Britt," in a "How ya doin'" age.

It's for the Younger Brothers, too, who wear baseball caps backward and miss-your-butt trousers and still manage to look too cute. For my husband — for all the sweethearts and spouses who take us to dinner, tell us their secrets and disprove what a white friend once revealed: "My father told me that black men can't feel romantic love," she said. "Carnal lust, yea. Real love, no."

For the cousins, co-workers and cut-buddies who kept me loving black men, when some other brother was telling me lies, driving me crazy.

Even with so many expectations of awfulness, black men manage to amaze.

Producer teaches how to start a cable network from scratch

By DIANE DUSTON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Television producer Sheldon Altfeld started a cable TV network from scratch and ran it from his West Hollywood apartment for seven years. Now he's teaching others to do the same thing.

The prospect of 500 cable channels being made possible by new technology has already inspired a plethora of new programming ideas, but there is room for more, Altfeld says.

The key to success, he says, is to have a unique idea that sounds fascinating to cable operators, advertisers and viewers.

"If you present something worthwhile, investors will beat a path to your door because they can see the long-range potential," he said.

Gordon Bizar, a Santa Monica entrepreneur, said he learned from Altfeld's seminar how to turn his idea for audience participation community action TV into the Action America cable network.

The interactive programming concept will be unveiled to cable companies later this month at a national cable TV trade show in San Antonio.

"Lack of knowledge can stop you faster than anything," said Bizar. "You think you've run into a brick wall. Sheldon shows you where the doors are."

Many people know a lot about computers and have ideas for interactive television networks, but they don't know how the cable industry works, Altfeld said. He tells his students to look for existing channels that may have a few hours a day of unfilled programming time and propose to fill it.

After attending the seminar, Bizar hired Altfeld as a consultant. His network is a high-tech version of the local news consumer assistance feature.

But through Action America, viewers will help each other solve problems with governments or businesses or with general frustrations about life's daily complications.

Viewers will use their telephones, fax machines and computer modems to communicate in real time through the TV network.

Altfeld broke into cable TV in 1979 with the Silent Network. He didn't know much about cable, but he did know that the 28 million deaf people in America had virtually no programming specifically for them. Using deaf entertainers, he started with two hours of programming on Saturday mornings. All the shows were presented with sign language, sound and captions.

Originally, the programs reached viewers on a country music channel. By the time Altfeld sold it in 1990, the Silent Network had expanded to 21 hours a week, reaching 14 million subscribers. It is being expanded for distribution to all types of disabled people as the Kaleidoscope channel.

Fraternity brothers charged in hazing death

By Associated Press

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. — More than half of the active members of a Southeast Missouri State University fraternity have been charged in the beating death of a pledge.

Two more members of the Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity were charged with involuntary manslaughter on Thursday in the death earlier this week of Michael Davis, 25. In all, seven of the fraternity's 10 members have been charged, and police said more arrests were possible.

Charged Thursday were Michael Williams, 19, and Laimoore Taylor, 22, both of the St. Louis area, police Sgt. Carl Kinnison said. Each faced one count of involuntary manslaughter and five counts of hazing.

The other five suspects were charged Wednesday and were arraigned Thursday. All seven were being held on $250,000 bond.

Cape Girardeau County Coroner John Carpenter said Davis was killed by a blow to the head but had "numerous significant injuries" including several blows to his chest and other parts of his body.

"It was a real bad beating," Carpenter said. "There's no other way to say it."

Carpenter said some of the injuries appeared to have been as much as a week old. He said pathology tests will determine that.

Davis, a junior studying journalism, was found unconscious in his apartment Tuesday and died later that day.

A father of one of the suspects said Davis had endured a fraternity initiation in which pledges ran down a line of brothers who hit them with their fists. The rite took place late Monday night on a campus football field.

Police would not confirm or deny the account.

The five fraternity members charged Wednesday with involuntary manslaughter are Carlos Turner, 19, Mikel Giles, 22, Isaac Sims III, 22, Cedric Murphy, 22, and Vincent King, 20.

Barnett Bank on U.S. Highway 17-92 in DeBary. They say he handed the tellers a note which demanded money and implied he had an unspecified weapon.

After getting what he came for, witnesses told deputies, the suspect got into a Jeep Cherokee driven by a woman and the couple headed south on U.S. Highway 17-92 toward Seminole County.

A Volusia County deputy spotted the vehicle and gave chase, officials said. He and two other officers followed the Jeep across the bridge into Seminole County where Seminole County deputies picked up the chase.

The couple was stopped in front of the Regatta Shores Apartments at Oak Avenue and the lakefront in Sanford.

When they were arrested, a white cowboy hat was in the back seat, McDonough said.

Another Volusia County deputy was injured in a collision with another vehicle as he attempted to help with the chase.

Deputy Timothy Willis was responding to the robbery call at about 1:20 p.m. when he stuck another car.

According to a report prepared by the Florida Highway Patrol, the agency which responded to the accident, Willis was traveling westbound on DeBary Avenue with his blue emergency lights engaged and with his siren blaring.

A 1985 Honda driven by Thelma Rentsch of Sanford was also westbound on DeBary Avenue. Willis struck her car, the report said, running her off the road and into a tree.

The report said Rentsch was not injured, but that Willis was transported to West Volusia Memorial Hospital where he was treated for injuries, including a broken arm. He was expected to be released this morning.

Meanwhile, the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) will question the Ponies about the DeBary and other robberies in which they are suspects.

missioners in building a joint administrative campus on the lakefront, but commissioners balked at potentially high up-front expenses and scrapped the idea.

Van Der Wedde suggested commissioners acquire land for the future expansion before prices increase, primarily targeting Jeno Paulucci's land on the lakefront north of the County Services Building. Other commissioners, led by Larry Furlong, prefers looking for land west or south of the building, preserving the lakefront for commercial development.

Commissioners will also consider upholding a pledge they made to smoking employees in 1992 when they banned smoking in all county buildings beginning April 1, 1993. When they did so, they assured employees who wanted to continue smoking they would provide shelters for them by the time the ban took effect.

They didn't.

But smoking commissioners Van Der Wedde and Daryl McLain continued to push for the shelters and Rabun will present options to commissioners Tuesday. Rabun proposes providing two covered shelters, one each at the County Services Building and at Building 310, which houses the Sheriff's Office.

The cost of each shelter ranges from $3,900 for materials if they are constructed with county employees to a high of $7,800 for screened, rain-shielded structures. Rabun recommends the in-house option.

of the school.

"And a lot of times students arrive at school late and try to sneak in by parking right up close," said assistant principal Fred Tombriss. "They've created a bit of a problem."

For the last few years, the school parking enforcement officials (administrators) have been slapping super-adhesive stickers on the windows of cars that are where they should not be to remind the students they are "parked illegally here."

At Seminole High School there doesn't seem to be the problem of finding a place for one's car.

"We've been very lucky in that respect," assistant principal Bobby Lundquist said. "I think we have more parking spaces than we do cars."

Not only does Seminole have fewer students (about 1,900 students as opposed to 2,400 to 2,600 students), but there are also fewer students who drive to school.

"We have no restrictions on who can drive to school other than to say they must have a valid driver license," Lundquist said.

Still, there are only 350 students who have purchased the $1 parking permit to have permission to park in student lots.

Teachers' and administrators' cars pretty much fill the remaining 175 spaces but, Lundquist said, there are enough spaces to accommodate visitors to the school.

At Lyman, assistant principal Rick Johnson said there are enough spaces to accommodate teachers and students, but visitors often find themselves either without a spot or parking in the far reaches of the campus.

"For example, next month for the Teach In (where people from the business community try their hand at teaching for a day) we're going to have to ask the teachers if they'd mind taking some spots further away from the building so there'll be more spaces for our visitors," Johnson said.

There are no immediate plans to construct additional parking spaces at Lake Mary High School, though administrators agree that "there is a problem". Neither are their immediate plans to reduce the number of students who have parking privileges.

However, additional parking spaces will be built at Seminole High School as a part of the new construction set to begin on that campus soon.

During over an hour of discussion as the final item of the commission meeting, both Parmenter and Lake Mary City Finance Director Randy Knight explained the two sides of the issue.

During public participation, three men stepped forward to urge the commissioners to grant the union recommended pay raises. One man, Dick Sawyer, who said he had been a security officer for two decades, told the commissioners that police were worth more than the average employees and should be paid more.

One of the conflicts centered over the union's request for a three percent wage increase. The city had recommended the increase be placed at two percent.

Although both sides agreed to a merit pay increase for exceptional service of zero to three percent, Knight called for a limit on salary levels if the merit pay would place the level above the limitations. The union representative suggested that not be left in the agreement.

Another difference surfaced over when the salary increase would become effective. The special master's recommendation called for it to begin when an agreement was reached between the two sides.

Parmenter said the delay in resolving the dispute should not be blamed on the police. "These men didn't have anything to do with the impasse," Parmenter said, "so they shouldn't be punished by not having this salary increase from the time they should have received it."

Commissioners eventually moved to accept the two percent pay increase rather than three. Sergeants will receive a four percent pay increase, as originally proposed by the union.

The Commission also agreed to the merit pay increase, but held firm on the salary cap which could not be exceeded by the merit pay.

Several commissioners expressed difficulty in agreeing to the retroactive pay however. Mayor Lowry Rockett explained, "This may not seem proper. We could try to see who was responsible for the delay, but perhaps that isn't the issue."

Commissioner George Duryea agreed, "I have difficulty with it too," he said, "but this is a people issue, so I'll have to go along with it."

"I'll support it as well,"

Rockett responded, "but I want to make it clear that we don't want to set a precedent with making this retroactive. If we go along with it, we should also send a message out to other cities and the PBA that these things must be resolved quicker."

The final vote was three to one. Commissioner Gary Brender cast the lone negative vote. "I am not against the raises," he said, "I just have this fear that we might be opening a door in the retroactive pay matter."

With the two percent salary increases, a police officer's hourly wage in Lake Mary will be between $9.65 and $13.51. For corporals, the salary will be $10.15 to $14.22. Detectives and Public Safety officers will have a wage range of $9.91 to $13.86.

Sergeants' pay increases, which were approved at four percent, will now have a salary range of $11.56 to $16.18 per hour.

One cause of strokes identified

By DANIEL G. HANEY
AP Science Writer

SAN DIEGO — A particularly dangerous form of cholesterol appears to be the single most powerful trigger of strokes, a discovery that may someday help doctors control these medical disasters, a study concludes.

The researchers found that people with high levels of this substance, called lipoprotein (a), are more than 20 times more likely than those with lower levels to suffer strokes.

"The single best factor for identifying people at risk of having a stroke was Lp (a)," said Dr. Janet H. Ransom, one of the researchers.

About 500,000 Americans suffer strokes annually, and nearly one-third are fatal. Strokes are the leading cause of disability among adults.

For now, there is almost nothing physicians can do to treat strokes. But that may change soon. Researchers are working on a variety of strategies that may reverse strokes or minimize the brain damage they cause.

By zeroing in on the underlying causes of strokes, doctors hope to identify those at high risk so they can be closely followed and treated speedily if the new treatments become reality.

Lipoprotein (a), or Lp (a) — doctors call it L-P-little-A — is very similar to low-density lipoprotein cholesterol, the so-called bad cholesterol.

Most strokes occur when arteries in the brain become blocked. Typically this happens when a piece of fatty material called plaque breaks loose from a buildup nearby.

Experts believe Lp (a) contributes to these dangerous buildups at least three ways: It interferes with the body's mechanisms for removing blood clots, it causes cells in artery walls to multiply and it helps lay down the fatty deposits.

Individuals' Lp (a) levels are controlled largely by their genes. Unlike low-density lipoprotein, it does not seem to be influenced by diet or exercise. Several pharmaceutical firms are looking for medicines to lower it.

Researchers already know Lp (a) is strongly associated with heart attacks, which have similar underlying causes as strokes. But the latest work suggests it is an even more important factor in strokes.

The research, based on a study of 265 stroke patients in Austria, was conducted by researchers from Karl Franzens University in Graz, Austria, and Biotechnology Research Institute in Rockville, Md., a firm that makes an Lp (a) test. The results were presented Thursday evening at a stroke meeting sponsored by the American Heart Association.

In the study, the stroke victims were compared with 289 healthy men and women. The researchers found that those with blood levels of Lp (a) that were 18 milligrams per deciliter or higher are 21 times more likely to suffer strokes than are those with lower levels.

This made Lp (a) an even more powerful predictor of stroke than having narrowed arteries in the neck, which was associated with a 15-fold risk.

Those who suffered strokes also had higher total cholesterol than did the comparison group, as well as larger amounts of low-density lipoprotein.

However, Lp (a) stood out as the most striking difference between the two groups.

The study "suggests that Lp (a) is much more specific than total cholesterol for predicting stroke risk," commented Dr. David Sherman of the University of Texas in San Antonio.

Overall, Lp (a) levels were 6.5 in the stroke patients and 1.3 in the healthy comparison group. However, one-third of the stroke victims had levels over 18.

At present, Lp (a) levels are not measured when people undergo routine cholesterol tests. They are usually measured only by research labs.

Kickoff to conference on aging

By PAT LEISNER
Associated Press Writer

TAMPA — Planners mapping policies for older Americans into the 21st century must consider the broader concept of an aging population, not just a population of elderly, an educator said.

The long-term needs of our society are interlocking, said Donna Cohen, director of the Institute on Aging at the University of South Florida.

She outlined the needs Thursday for planners of the White House Conference on Aging as health and well-being, housing, education, work and retirement and community and societal concerns.

The elderly are living longer and their numbers are growing. And baby boomers are close to 50 years old now. Both help weight the population at the top end.

Seniors, researchers and health practitioners presented ideas for the conference during all-day meetings in Tampa. It was the first of a four-city tour. Similar forums are planned for Los Angeles on Monday, Chicago on Thursday and Boston on Feb. 28.

"A myth that needs to be dispelled is that the elderly are a burden on society," said Bob Blancato, executive director of the conference, who attended the workshop.

"Aging is not bad," said Teresa Hanna, head of a nonprofit older adult services group in Tampa.

Seniors have to be treated with dignity and recognized for their contributions and their untapped potential, she said.

Gema Hernandez, a professor at the Center for Public Policy at Nova Southeastern University in Miami, said policy issues should include families as care-givers. "The family takes care of the young and the old. It should be a focus."

Blancato and Paul Kerschner, head of the Gerontological Society of America, heard from doctors, advocates, professors and seniors.

Chief concerns included health care, especially community-based and in-home programs as nursing home alternatives; maintaining independence, both social and financial; focusing on families as caregivers; ensuring affordable and comfortable housing; stepping-up Alzheimer research; and recognizing that along with longer life expectancy comes an increasing population of well and productive elderly.

Rain halts Lake Mary semifinal

By TONY DeBORMIER
Herald Sports Editor

COCOA — Soccer players take a degree of pride in the fact that their games are played in spite of almost any extreme meteorological conditions (lightning being the one notable exception).

Even the Class 5A boys' state semifinal game Thursday night between the Lake Mary Rams and Melbourne Bulldogs kicked off on time despite steady rains that turned the Cocoa Expo Center's field into a wading pool and forced the Rams and Bulldogs to wage a war of survival rather than one of skill.

That lasted all of 15 minutes and 30 seconds.

As the rain continued to fall in increasingly violent torrents and the puddles that marked the field began to grow and merge, the referee decided that the conditions had become unplayable and stopped the game.

The match will be played this afternoon at 4 p.m. It hadn't been decided whether the game would Despite steady rain that resulted in standing water on the Cocoa Expo Center field, Chris Campbell (No. 7, right) and the Lake Mary Rams appeared to be in control of their state semifinal contest with the Melbourne Bulldogs Thursday. But when conditions worsened, play was postponed until 4 p.m. this afternoon.

Rematches may turn up in girls' regional playoffs

From Staff Reports

Here we go again... maybe. Because of the new alignment and expanded format of the Florida High School Activities Association's girls' basketball state tournaments, the possibility looms of a sequence of rematches of last week's district title games in Saturday night's regional championship contests.

5A-REGION I
GLEN ST. MARY — This four-team bracket is a showdown pitting Seminole County — represented by the Lake Brantley Patriots (22-8) and Lake Howell Silver Hawks (32-2) — against the city of Fort Walton Beach.

Playing at Baker County High School, the Silver Hawks will face Fort Walton Beach at 6 p.m. with the Patriots going up against Fort Walton Beach-Choctawhatchee in the 8 p.m.

If the right teams win, fans could see either a rematch of the 5A-District 4 title game (that matched Lake Brantley against Lake Howell) or the District 1 championship contest (which included the two Fort Walton Beach teams) in Saturday's 7:30 p.m. regional championship tilt.

4A-REGION II
WINTER PARK — Two of the top-ranked teams in the state make up half of this regional bracket, the No. 1-ranked St. Cloud Bulldogs (32-1) and fourth-ranked St. Petersburg-Boca Ciega Pirates (27-3).

And the Seminole Fighting Seminoles (12-17) will have to beat them both to get out of the region. Tonight at Winter Park High School, the Tribe will go up against Boca Ciega at 6 p.m. before St. Cloud takes on the Clearwater Tornadoes at 8 p.m.

B-REGION 2
SEFFNER — Maitland's Orangewood Christian School Rams and The Master's Academy from Winter Park, combatants in the District 5 title game last Saturday, will join Tampa-Seminole Presbyterian and Lakeland Christian at Armwood High School this weekend. Tonight's 6 p.m. game pairs The Master's Academy with Seminole Presbyterian. At 8 p.m., Orangewood Christian takes on Lakeland Christian.

Danielle McPherson (No. 50) and her Seminole teammates will play in the 4A-Region II tournament at Winter Park this weekend while Wendy Lindberg (No. 25) and the Lake Howell Silver Hawks will participate in the 5A-Region I playoff at Glen St. Mary-Baker County.

OCS Rams earn spot in sub-regional

From Staff Reports

MOUNT DORA — Orangewood Christian School's Rams became the first of a possible four local boys' basketball teams that could qualify for sub-regional play with a 61-34 trouncing of Montverde Academy in the Class B-District 5 semifinals at Mount Dora Bible School Thursday night.

The Rams (18-10) go on to take on The Master's Academy from Winter Park in Saturday night's 7 p.m. district championship contest at Mt. Dora Bible.

The Master's Academy advanced with a 70-65 overtime victory over host Mt. Dora Bible.

Orangewood Christian led 18-6 after one quarter and 30-15 at halftime in cruising to its 18th victory of the season.

Jamie Hart led the way for the Rams with 13 points. Also scoring in double figures for the winners were John McCully with 12 points and Jakob Hardrick with 11.

Briar Corp. gains while Exterior falls off pace

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Briar Corporation thrust itself into title contention, but Exterior Homesavers wasn't as lucky in Sanford Recreation Men's Thursday Polar Bear Slowpitch Softball League action on a rainy night at Pinehurst Park.

League-leading M.A. Erectors held onto first place by whitewashing Exterior Homesavers, 12-0, in five innings.

But things are starting to get a little crowded at the top as Briar Corporation won a pair of nail-biters, 8-7 over S&S Raiders and 5-4 over Exterior Homesavers.

The Briar-Exterior game was a make-up from the first week of the season that was rained out.

The M.A. Erectors are now 4-1 on the season, but Briar is right on their heels with a 4-2 mark. Exterior Homesavers fell to 2-4 and the S&S Raiders are 1-4.

Next week, Exterior Homesavers plays Briar Corporation at 6:30 p.m. and S&S Raiders and M.A. Erectors battle in a doubleheader at 7:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. The late game is another make-up from January 13.

M.A. Erectors pulled off a soft blowout, scoring one run in the first inning and then adding three runs in each of the next three innings.

Highway safety tests

Minivans crash-tested at 5 mph; results, bad damage

This is the first year of low-speed crash tests for passenger vans (often called minivans) by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety. The tests consisted of front- and rear-into-flat-barrier, front-into-angle-barrier, and rear-into-pole. One van could not be driven after the five mph crash test. All seven vans tested sustained serious safety related damage. The biggest problem is repair costs which the institute labeled "budget busters." Even the van with the lowest total sustained $2,000 in damage while the van with the highest sustained more than $7,500 in damage.

The institute's president, Brian O'Neill, points out that the purpose of a bumper is to "prevent damage in minor impacts." Unfortunately, the federal bumper standard that applies to cars does not cover passenger vans. Of the seven vans tested, the bumpers on all the vehicles allowed much more damage than they should have. One van, when rear-into-pole tested, was unable to close its tailgate. Not only would this allow carbon monoxide to infiltrate the passenger cabin, but it could allow passenger ejection. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has opened a preliminary evaluation of this problem following a report of a side impact in which two children were ejected through the tailgate that came unlatched.

CONSUMER FOCUS

Passenger cars have bumpers with molded plastic covers over reinforcement bars and energy-absorbing materials (like polypropylene foam or hydraulic shock absorbers). Vans, on the other hand, have plastic bumper covers similar to those found on cars, but the underneath is a very different matter. Generally, there are no energy-absorbing materials to help cushion the crash impact. The resulting forces are directed to the body of the van.

The results can be very expensive, O'Neill states that "you can hit something at a mere 5 mph in a van and sustain much more expensive-to-repair damage than in a typical car. Our latest low-speed crash tests indicate this is the rule, not the exception." The federal standard for cars, now 2.5 mph rather than the stronger five mph of the 1980-82 model years, is weak but better than nothing, which is what now dictates bumper standards for vans. Because there are no regulations, van manufacturers have made little or no effort to ensure that bumpers fulfill their purpose, which is to bump without damage in low speed impacts.

In 1992, one out of every 10 consumers opted to purchase a van. Unless the results of these tests and public pressure can influence manufacturers, minivans will continue to be equipped with weaker bumpers than those found on most cars.

The following table lists the mini vans that were tested and the total repair dollar amounts resulting from the four different types of five mph impacts.

1994 Minivan	Total $
Nissan Quest XE	1,862
Oldsmobile Silhouette	2,554
Dodge Grand Caravan SE	3,963
Chevrolet Lumina Van	4,082
Toyota Previa LE	4,505
Pontiac Trans Sport SE	4,601
Mazda MPV	7,643

Note: Repair estimates are for damage in December 1993 tests. Dollar amounts reflect December 1993 parts prices and a labor rate of $32 per hour.

When you are making decisions on cars or vans — make sure you weigh all of your options.

PA messages fall mostly on deaf ears

DEAR ABBY: I am a 62-year-old man with a slight hearing problem. It's not the kind that can be helped with a hearing aid. I understand that about one in five people in my age bracket have some kind of hearing problem.

I do a lot of traveling to visit my family, who live all over the map. The announcements in airline terminals and train stations are sometimes almost impossible to understand, due to resonance and echoes. By talking slower and more distinctly, and making short breaks between each word, the message could be made much more understandable. Example: "flight" (pause) "number" (pause) "to destination" (pause) "boarding at" (pause) "gate number" (pause)...

Usually it sounds like, "Flight-numberthreeevensixtochicago-boardinggate six!"

Abby, I doubt if anyone with good hearing could have understood this one. I spoke to the flight attendant who gave the announcement, and she said, "Thanks, I never realized it!"

We hearing-impaired people would appreciate attention to our problem. There are many of us traveling now. No ramps to build, or wheelchair accessibility necessary — just a few lessons

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

In diction and enunciation. Thank you.

ROGER GILMAN, NEWPORT, R.I.

DEAR ROGER: What a public service you have performed for all travelers. Thanks in advance from them to you.

DEAR ABBY: Several months ago, a friend (I will call her Kate) offered to get some theater tickets for my husband and me. I had to be away on a business trip the day the tickets went on sale, and since "Jeff" and I wanted good seats, we took Kate up on her offer. We gave her the $150 for the tickets and thanked her for doing us the favor.

When we returned, Kate called with the news that she was able to get us excellent seats, and she would get the tickets to us soon. I saw her several times after that, but she never got around to delivering the tickets.

When it got close to the date of the performance, she finally confessed that she had "misplaced" them, but she was sure she could locate them. Well, she never did, so in addition to the disappointment of missing a great show, I was out $150.

My husband and I agree that Kate should reimburse us for the tickets she failed to produce, but neither of us wants to risk a confrontation. How should we handle this?

NO TICKETS

DEAR NO TICKETS: In this situation, a "confrontation" is in order — either call Kate, or write her a note asking her to kindly reimburse you for the $150 you gave her for the theater tickets you never received.

DEAR ABBY: I have a suggestion for your readers. When calling unexpectedly at someone's home, do not be too persistent when ringing the doorbell. Just because you know someone is there, do not assume that she hasn't heard you if she doesn't answer the door. It is not always possible for a person to answer the door when it rings unexpectedly.

I came home today to some upsetting news and was on "hold" on an urgent long-distance call when someone rang my doorbell. When the ringing persisted, and I heard someone banging on my front door, I feared it was some kind of emergency, so I dropped the phone and ran to the other end of the apartment and down the stairs to answer the door.

Well, it turned out to be a kindly gentleman from the church I had just joined — he was delivering a calendar! I ended up snapping at him, and for that I feel terrible.

Unless it is extremely urgent, or you know the doorbell doesn't work, or the person is hard of hearing, it's better to err on the side of caution. Ring once or twice, then wait. If there is no answer, come back another time.

Thanks for all the good you have done in the world. REBECCA P. IN ALBANY, N.Y.

Alcohol, other drugs lead to violent behavior

DEAR MARY: My boyfriend is a real doll most of the time. He's sweet and maybe a little shy, and would never say or do anything to hurt anyone, especially not me.

But when he's had too much to drink, he seems to turn into a different person. He's loud, rude to anyone who might say anything to him, and becomes real hard to deal with. In fact, when he gets like this, I'm kind of afraid of him. He's never tried to hurt me, but he makes threats to other people that I believe he means.

Is this normal? Do other people change like this when they have too much to drink?

CONFUSED GIRLFRIEND: DEAR GIRLFRIEND: If you've ever read Robert Louis Stevenson's "The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," you will recognize a classic description of the changes that alcohol and other drugs can make in an individual's behavior and attitudes.

In fact, it's long been known that alcohol and other drugs go hand in hand with violent behavior including murder, abuse, sexual assault and other crimes. Some researchers believe that drunk individuals do not correctly interpret other people's facial expressions and do not associate their behavior as the reason those around them become uncomfortable.

The drunk person often feels that others are picking on them or "asking for trouble" when this is not actually the reality. If and whenever you find yourself in a situation where anyone has had too much to drink and is becoming hostile and aggressive, take the very first opportunity to get away.

Unfortunately, it often leads to someone getting hurt, and that someone might be you.

A Man of Failure?

Years ago, someone catalogued the following failures:

Failed in business, '31
Defeated for legislature, '32
Failed in business again, '33
Elected to legislature, '34
Sweetheart died, '35
Suffered nervous breakdown, '36
Defeated for speaker, '38

Defeated for elector, '40
Defeated for Congress, '48
Defeated for Senate, '55
Defeated for Vice President, '56
Defeated for Senate, '58
Elected for President of the United States, '60

This man of failure? Abraham Lincoln.

Failures do not make a FAILURE, but rather CAN MAKE the person. Failures hurt, but they do not stop God. He has a way of taking the tangled failures of persons' lives and weaving a tapestry that not only helps, but becomes a "thing of beauty and joy forever."

IN BRIEF

Wesleyan church announces Revival

SANFORD — The Paola Wesleyan Church, 5650 Wayside Dr., will be having Revival services beginning Sunday, Feb. 20, and running through Friday, Feb. 25.

The times for the services are Sunday 11 a.m. and 6 p.m., and each week night at 7 p.m. The evangelist is the Rev. Noel C. Bates. All services are open to the public.

Dinner to benefit missionary trip

GENEVA — First United Methodist Church of Geneva will hold a spaghetti dinner and silent auction on Saturday, Feb. 26, at 6 p.m. in the Geneva Community Center. The event is open to all and the proceeds will be used to send its pastor, Jeanne Davis, to the Ukraine and to purchase Bibles for graduating high school seniors.

The cost is $4 for adults and $2 for children. Tickets are available by calling 349-9596 or 349-9625. Direct donations can be sent to Geneva First United Methodist Church, P.O. Box 980, Geneva, FL 32732. Please designate donations with "Ukraine trip" to help send the Rev. Davis to the Ukraine, or "Bibles," for the purchase.

'Super Supper' set

SANFORD — Holy Cross Episcopal Church, 401 S. Park Ave., will sponsor a "Super Supper" on Thursday, Feb. 24, at 5:30 p.m. in the church parish hall followed by a presentation and discussion, "The Gospel of Mark and the Church in a New World" at 6:30 p.m. This is the first in five part series to be presented by Father Al Cole, rector of Holy Cross Church, to be held Thursday evenings during Lent. Everyone is welcome.

Kennedy featured at Revival services

SANFORD — Westview Baptist Church, 4100 Paola Rd., 46A, is having Revival services Sunday through Wednesday, Feb. 20-23.

The Rev. Jerry Kennedy will be the evangelist. He was born in Montgomery, Ala., and grew up there. He is a graduate of Auburn University and the New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary. He is presently pastor of Raleigh White Baptist Church in Albany, Ga. Before going to Georgia he was pastor of the First Baptist Church in Altamonte Springs for nine years. He has also served as pastor in Mississippi.

The Rev. Jerry Kennedy

Sunday services will be at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. and services Monday through Wednesday will be at 7 p.m.

The public is invited to attend all services. A nursery will be provided.

A 'life-changing message'

SANFORD — On Sunday, Feb. 20, at 10:30 a.m. the community will have the opportunity to experience a life-changing message of the Florida Teen Challenge Ministries at Family Worship Center, 1770 W. Airport Blvd.

Teen Challenge of Florida minister to men and women who once had a life controlling problem, such as drug addiction and alcoholism. Only when they experience the truth of Jesus Christ are these individuals truly free from the things that once controlled them.

If someone you know is suffering from crack, alcohol, preception drugs, and immoral lifestyles, bring them to hear the life-changing testimonies of how Jesus Christ has set them free.

Pastor Jeff Krall invites the public to attend this special meeting.

Pastor appreciation program

SANFORD — The weeklong celebration of Morning Glory M. B. Church Pastor's 27th Appreciation Program will come to an end with the following services:

- Friday, Feb. 18, at 7:30 p.m., the Rev. Capher Siplin and Rose Hill M.B. Church will be in charge of services.
- Sunday, Feb. 20, at 11 a.m., Elder J. J. Ligon and Reddick's Memorial will be in charge.
- Sunday, Feb. 20, at 3 p.m., The Rev. Amos Jones and St. Paul M.B. Church will officiate.

The community is cordially invited to worship with the congregation.

Purim festivities at Beth Am

LONGWOOD — The Old Testament Book of Esther, known as the Megillah, describes the miracle which saved the Jews of Persia from destruction at the hands of the wicked Haman, the advisor to the King of Persia, Ahasuerus. Esther, the Queen of Persia, wife of Ahasuerus, and the niece of Mordecai, the Jew, persuaded the King to spare her people. The story is contained in the scrolls which will be read in all synagogues of Central Florida and throughout the Jewish community.

In honor of the heroism of Queen Esther, Jews observe a fast the day before Purim.

After sundown, the Megillah, the scroll of Esther, is read with a special melody. The following morning the Megillah is read again. In the late afternoon of that day, the Seudah, the traditional Purim meal, begins. The meal usually lasts for several hours.

Congregation Beth Am, 3899 Sand Lake Rd., will begin the Purim festivities on Thursday, Feb. 24, at 7 p.m. The Scroll of Esther will be read by Rabbi Merrill Shapiro. Parents and children will listen to the reading of the Scroll and will then attempt to drown out the name of the wicked Haman with noisemakers. There will be a competition to determine the loudest and the most original noisemaker! Most adults and children will be in costume. A costume parade will follow the reading of the Scroll. A feast will be held in the Social Hall featuring Hamantaschen, Haman's Pockets. Baked goods will be given on the following day to friends and relatives, as well as to the homeless.

All are welcome at Congregation Beth Am, on Thursday evening at 7 p.m. Please join us for this festival.

'Christ in the Passover' offered

LONGWOOD — What do the Jewish Passover and Jesus' Last Supper have in common? Susan Perlman, speaking on behalf of Jews for Jesus, will answer that question in a presentation called "Christ in the Passover" at Wekiva Assembly, 1675 Dixon Rd., on Sunday, Feb. 20, at 8 and 10:30 a.m.

Using a visual display of traditional Passover accouterments, the presentation enhances the Christian's understanding and appreciation of the Jewish background of the Christian Communion. Ancient and modern Jewish customs are discussed and described with an emphasis on the aspect of redemption which Christ accomplished at Calvary.

The program is open to the general public and a question and answer period will be available after the lecture.

Free lecture begins series at Christian Fellowship Church

You're cordially invited to hear Deirdre Brigham, director of Getting Well, speak at Christian Fellowship Church, U.C.C., at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Feb. 22, at Lake Mary Community Building, 260 N. Country Club Rd.

Deirdre Brigham, MS, MPH, MA, has been active in the area of behavioral medicine and its application to emotional, psychological, and physiological states for nearly 20 years. She holds masters degrees in Clinical Psychology, Public Health and Exercise Physiology/Wellness.

Deirdre Brigham

For additional information, please call the Rev. Art Arvey, 323-3119.

Love sweet love

The staff members of First Presbyterian Church prepared a tasty Valentine dinner for the congregation to show their love and appreciation. The dinner theater atmosphere included an array of talent from the congregation, from the Ding-Lings premier performance to young new stars.

The public hearing will be held in Room 1028, Seminole County Services Building, Sanford, Florida, on March 8, 1994, at 7:00 p.m. or as soon thereafter as possible.

Those in attendance will be heard and written comments may be filed with the Current Planning Office. Hearings may be continued from time to time as found necessary. Further details available by calling 321-1130, Extension 2444.

NOTE: Persons with disabilities needing assistance to participate in any of these proceedings should contact the Employee Relations Department ADA Coordinator at least 72 hours in advance of the meeting at 321-1130, extension 2941.

Persons are advised that if they wish to appeal any decision made at this meeting, they will need a record of the proceedings, and for such purpose, they may need to ensure that a verbatim record of the proceedings is made, which record includes the testimony and evidence upon which the appeal is to be based, per Section 206.0105, Florida Statutes.

Supplemental use of oxygen explained

DEAR DR. GOTT: I would like all the information you have on polycythemia. My mother is on oxygen 18 hours a day because of the condition, and she's having trouble adjusting to such a sedentary lifestyle.

DEAR READER: Polycythemia (too many red blood corpuscles) is often caused by other diseases, such as emphysema, certain tumors, cigarette smoking, or any condition that deprives tissues of oxygen.

For example, a harmless, adaptive form of polycythemia affects virtually anyone who lives at a high altitude, where the air is "thin" and lacks the oxygen content of sea level air. There is also a primary form of polycythemia (polycythemia vera), the cause of which is unknown.

Because your mother must breathe supplemental oxygen, I suspect that she has a form of secondary polycythemia, perhaps due to a lung disorder. In this case, it's the lung problem, rather than the polycythemia itself, which is probably causing her handicap. Patients with severe emphysema often need oxygen supplements, and such people understandably experience marked restriction in physical activity.

Of course, I'm guessing at your mother's condition, based on the limited information you supply. Consequently, I encourage you to clarify this issue with her physician. If she has emphysema, special breathing exercises, in conjunction with bronchodilator medication, might help her be less sedentary. Intolerance to exercise is not characteristic of polycythemia. Your mother should ask her doctor about this and, if necessary, see a lung specialist.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Blood -- Donations and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Mark Twain probably would have made a good bridge player. He said, "You can't depend on your eyes when your imagination is out of focus." In many bridge deals, you must imagine the lie of the opposing cards and look for a way to make your contract even when that distribution is unfriendly.

In today's deal, South opened with a weak two-bid, showing a good six-card suit and some 6-10 high-card points. Declarer won the opening lead with dummy's diamond ace, cashed the spade ace and led another trump. East's discard made South groan inwardly. But South had one chance left. He won with the spade king, played a heart to dummy's king, ruffed a diamond in hand and finessed the heart jack. However, East won with the queen and switched to the club queen. Now South had to lose four tricks: one spade, one heart and two clubs. "Can you believe it?" complained South. "Spades 4-1 and the heart finesse wrong." He was unlucky, but he could have overcome even these odds. How?

South thought he had 10 top tricks. And in a way he did. At trick two, declarer should ruff one of dummy's diamonds in his hand. (Alternatively, he can play a spade to the king and a spade to the ace, followed by a diamond ruff, and so on.) Then come two rounds of spades, bringing the bad news. But now South can continue with a heart to dummy's king, a diamond ruff, a heart to dummy's ace and another diamond ruff. He wins these 10 tricks: three top spades, two hearts, one diamond, one club and three diamond ruffs in hand.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bada Osof YOUR BIRTHDAY Feb. 19, 1994

In the year ahead you might be subjected to some unexpected changes of which you may not initially approve. Flow with events, because trends will have a way of correcting themselves.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There is a thin line today between what others perceive as constructive suggestions or thinly veiled criticism. Try not to step over it. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today if the methods you use are comprised of a series of faulty steps, don't be surprised if the end results are undesirable. Think things through in advance.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Subordinates will not easily forget or readily forgive if you treat them in an insensitive manner today. If you want respect, you must first be respectful.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) No one enjoys an error free existence and even you might make a few mistakes today. If you do, don't try to pin your blunders on others.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Because you might do things the hard way today, your probabilities for achieving your objectives may be lower than they should be. Operate with a purpose.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) Instead of inspiring you to try harder, challenging developments might intimidate you today and imbue feelings of defeat before you even make a concerted effort.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Today if you're stiff-necked or inflexible, you might not be able to cope with shifts or changes you didn't anticipate. Hang loose, don't let events overwhelm you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be pragmatic and realistic in career matters today, or else you might make a bad decision based on faulty information. Also don't request advice from someone who advised you unwisely in the past.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In order to advance your personal interests today, you may also have to look out for the welfare of one with whom you're involved. There's a chance you may not think it's worth it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Usually you're a patient person who is well aware of the fact Rome wasn't built in a day. However, this character asset might be overpowered today by surges of impulsiveness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It might be wise today to stay out of the personal affairs of two friends, even if both want to make disclosures to you. You could end up in the middle, ducking attacks from both sides.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Others tend to tell you their secrets, because they know you're not inclined to betray a confidence. Today, however, be careful you don't talk without thinking.
