Murder investigation

The Seminole County Sheriff's Office Violent Crimes Investigators worked from 10 p.m. last night until 8:30 this morning, checking the home of a homicide victim in Pine Hills, in Orange County.

Christina Matyas' body was found at 9 a.m. Sunday in a wooded area off McNeil Road, in Forest City. Deputies report she had been stabbed to death.

Sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough said investigators found some personal effects belonging to the woman, and some household effects in the garage of the woman's home, and have taken them in for processing.

McDonough said investigators are following up on calls received from citizens regarding a blond-haired man seen driving the victim's car into a shopping center parking lot on Monday. The man is described as white, six feet tall, weighing approximately 165 pounds, with shoulder length hair styled in a surfer cut.

Two arrested in robbery

A Sanford man and an employee of the Wendy's restaurant on Mitchell Hammock Road were arrested Monday night on charges they robbed the business early Sunday morning. Lonny Lee King, 18, 171-O Sail Point Apartments, Sanford, and Scott Winsor Walker, 30, 4179 Vinton Court, Oviedo, were taken into custody by Oviedo police and Seminole County deputies. Both were held on charges of armed robbery, grand theft, armed kidnapping and burglary. Police report both admitted to the crime under questioning.

According to reports, Walker, a Wendy's employee at King, a former employee, in the drive through area, indicated Sunday morning. Police say King grabbed the employees and forced them into the walk-in cooler. Then, with Walker's help, King then collected $1,983 from the office and placed the money in a bag. Donning a restaurant shirt and cap, King left the business after placing Walker with the other employees. Police investigators say the pair's actions alerted their suspicion.

Business boom begins

Official: Surge of interest, growth best in decades

By MARK PFEIFER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A man who has his hands on the pulse of area development says he is excited about a sudden surge of new businesses and predicts great days ahead for not only downtown Sanford but the surrounding area.

Dave Farr, executive director of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce detailed recent growth and its potential in the immediate future.

Farr spoke to the Rotary Club of Sanford Monday, and recapped his comments for the Sanford Herald on Tuesday.

"I don't know when we have seen such an influx of business growth in our city," he commented. "A year ago, we bemoaned the loss of one of our major businesses (Simplimatic Engineering at 2801 Airport Blvd.), but right now, there are representatives of at least four major companies bidding on that building."

"One of them, Dozier International, likes our area so much," he continued, "they indicated that if they don't get the Simplimatic building, they will continue looking elsewhere here in this area."

Testimony begins in murder trial

SANFORD — The relationship between a Sanford man and his girlfriend varied between harmony and friction but most of the time it was friction.

Details of the rocky relationship began to unfold Tuesday through testimony at the first degree murder trial of Derrick Gerald Taylor.

Taylor, 22, is on trial for the stabbing death of his former girlfriend, Kimberly Grace on June 28, 1993 at Seminole Gardens. Grace was stabbed by Taylor, witnesses testified Tuesday, at a neighbor's apartment directly above Grace's unit in the public housing project.

Citizens: Nix wider Rangeline

By SANDRA ELLIOTT

LONGWOOD — City residents spoke out loud and clear Tuesday night.

They do not want Rangeline Road widened, or any other work done which might increase traffic on the heavily traveled road which connects Longwood Hills Road to State Road 434.

Longwood Mayor Steve Miller assured the standing room only crowd at the start of the information meeting, the city commission nixed any widening of Rangeline Road when the county set aside $800,000 from a penny-sales tax fund for the road. Drainage and sidewalks which would enhance public safety are the improvements the commission wants.

Moratorium for road impact fees

By J. MARK SANFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners agreed to keep road impact fees at the same rate for another two years and will look at adjusting rates for day care centers, churches and for economic development incentives and a change of when the fees will be collected.

Commissioners decided to suspend two committees' review of the road fees for new construction. They directed planning staff to review the rate adjustments proposed by the committees and report back to them later this year.

Since February, the county's Municipal Technical Advisory Committee and Citizen's Advisory Committee reviewed the county's road fees for new construction. Each type of construction, such as homes or warehouses, are charged different rates based on nation standards for traffic generation for that type of construction.

The two committees reviewed several changes in the mix of factors that make up the fee. Included were fee reductions to accommodate taxes paid for special gasoline sales taxes collected by the county and the "excess capacity" on new roads above current traffic levels. They also looked at the impact of the latest construction "trip generation" standards.

'Rising star' tapped as Lyman principal

By VICKI BUCHNER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Supt. Paul Hagerty thinks the newly-hired principal at Lyman High School is "one of our rising young stars."

Peter Gorman is young. He's 30. Seminole County's youngest principal. When he was born, retiring principal Carlton Henley had already been at the helm at Lyman for a year.

Youth, however, should not be confused with lack of skill or lack of experience, Hagerty said.

He has risen rapidly through the ranks. Shortly after graduating from Michigan State University with a degree in elementary education, he got a job as a science teacher at Walker Middle School in Orlando. Two and a half years later he was promoted to administrative dean at that school.

The next year Gorman was made assistant principal at Meadowbrook Elementary School in Orlando and the next day he was named as the senior administrator in charge of the campus at the Winter Park Ninth Grade Center in Winter Park.

He has a master's degree in educational leadership and a doctorate in educational leadership and he's working on his MBA.

Actor's estate sued

GAINESVILLE — The estate of actor River Phoenix has been sued by insurance and production companies over two unreleased movies, claiming his drug overdose death cost them millions of dollars.

The Oscar-nominated 23-year-old star died Nov. 1 of an overdose of heroin and cocaine outside a Los Angeles nightclub.

"By taking illegal drugs, River J. Phoenix deprived the parties to the contract of his services and he therefore breached his obligation/duty," said one of the two lawsuits filed in Alachua Circuit Court.

The almost-completed "Dark Blood" project was scrapped after its star died, and the insurer was forced to repay producers and financiers almost $5.5 million.

Producers of the film version of Ann Rice's "Interview with a Vampire" recast Phoenix's role with Christian Slater but still want more than $185,000 in damages, the lawsuit said.

Phoenix's mother, Arlyn "Heart" Phoenix of Gainesville, filed her son's will in Alachua probate court late last year. The suit was filed after she rejected claims made by the two companies.

Teenager charged as accessory

FORT WALTON BEACH — A 15-year-old boy has been charged as an accessory, and police searched for at least one more suspect in the fatal shootings of a teen-age boy and girl.

The bullet-riddled bodies of Donita Lamar Head, 15, of Fort Walton Beach, and Lawanda Lathia Campbell, 14, of Crestview, were found Sunday in a wooded area near the Florida Panhandle community of Wynnehaven Beach.

The Fort Walton Beach boy charged with being an accessory after the fact to murder was arrested Monday after being questioned by Okaloosa County sheriff's deputies. His name was withheld because of his age.

The suspect told investigators he was present when the victims were shot, helped dispose of the bodies and cleaned up the evidence, said sheriff's spokesman Rick Hord.

He said at least one other person, a man in his 20s or younger, was involved, Hord said.

Environmental fine charged

SARASOTA — Florida environmental regulators have slapped a $9,500 fine on Mote Marine Laboratory for illegally cutting protected mangroves along its waterfront on Sarasota Bay.

Mote has agreed to pay the civil penalty for trimming mangroves without a permit. It also has agreed to pay $250 in costs for the investigation that led to the state allegations.

The fine was reduced $500 from the $10,000 maximum because of Mote's cooperation since the illegal cutting was discovered, said a spokesman for the state Department of Environmental Protection.

The nonprofit environmental research and education organization also has agreed not to trim any mangroves for five years for any reason.

Actor pleads no contest

FORT PIERCE — Wesley Snipes will plead no contest to reckless driving after the actor allegedly led a highway trooper on a chase last April that reached speeds of 135 mph before crashing his motorcycle.

Assistant State Attorney Al Hale said Snipes will enter the plea Aug. 3, then he and Snipes' attorney will enter a plea of sentencing recommendations to the judge.

The change of plea hearing was scheduled for the St. Lucie County Courthouse after Snipes' trial was delayed Monday.

Snipes' Miami attorney, Edward R. Shohat, said his client is likely to appear at the hearing. Snipes owns a home in Orlando and has starred in the motion pictures "Passenger 57," "Rising Sun" and "White Men Can't Jump."

Snipes, 31, allegedly led a Florida Highway Patrol trooper on a 30-mile chase along Florida's Turnpike on April 4, before crashing his motorcycle at the Jupiter exit. Snipes was not injured in the accident.

Panhandle rivers receding

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The federal government declared Gulf and Jackson counties as disaster areas, bringing to six the number of Florida Panhandle counties eligible for federal assistance because of the worst flooding in 65 years.

President Clinton already has declared disaster areas in Calhoun, Holmes, Washington and Walton counties. The flooding has left an estimated $40 million in damaged homes, roads, water systems and other public property, state officials said Tuesday.

Heavy rains also returned to parts of the western Panhandle on Tuesday, threatening to keep swollen rivers from receding and allowing residents in low-lying areas from returning to their homes.

"It's still in that chaotic stage," Gov. Lawton Chiles said.

'Wayne's World' district approved

Two counties will govern 'Disney-esque' complex

By TOM WELLS
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — Wayne Huizenga, owner of three sports franchises, is one step closer to the Disney-esque complex to showcase two of the teams.

Commissioners in Dade and Broward counties approved a special governing district for Blockbuster Park despite concerns by some residents of the cost to taxpayers and the environmental impact of the project.

Dade commissioners voted 8-3 early today, while their Broward counterparts decided 6-1 in favor.

"It's very important for us as a community not to shut this down prematurely," said John Hart, a Broward commissioner.

After the vote in Broward, a man in the audience yelled: "You sold out."

Betty Ferguson, one of three Dade commissioners who voted against the proposal, said, "We haven't spent enough time talking about ... what it will do to our water supply. I hope we'll focus on environmental issues that will affect many people after us."

Huizenga, chairman of Blockbuster Entertainment Corp., wants to build the sports and entertainment complex on the Broward-Dade county line just west of Interstate 75 and 3 1/2 miles from the protected Everglades.

The project would include a 45,000-seat stadium for Huizenga's Florida Marlins baseball team, a 20,000-seat arena for his Florida Panthers hockey club, two championship golf courses, an amusement park, hotels, shops and office space. Huizenga also owns the NFL's Miami Dolphins.

In Miami, Blockbuster lobbyist Ron Book told commissioners the project was an "unprecedented investment in South Florida that is truly — if you will — a dreamer's dream."

But in Broward, one resident considered the project a nightmare that will cost taxpayers money.

"Don't forget me, the little person when you are voting on this," Roslyn Chrea said. "Why should we pay for Wayne's fantasy. We can't afford it."

Blockbuster Entertainment, best known for its video rentals, says it needs its own government to build and run the $1 billion project because it would be too difficult to deal with three local governments.

The company's powers, such as condemnation decisions, would be limited and subject to local review. The attraction also will be subject to federal and state environmental laws, and the district's security force won't have powers of arrest.

Blockbuster said it isn't ready to put a figure on how much it will ask taxpayers to pony up for the complex nicknamed "Wayne's World." However, estimates for road construction in the area have been put at $150 million and $42 million for two new highway interchanges.

The Legislature approved the plan last spring on the condition that the biggest tourist attraction planned in Florida since Walt Disney World won the support of the counties and Miramar city commissions. The city on the east edge of the 2,500-acre parcel considers the issue next month.

The meetings in both counties were packed. In Broward — where Blockbuster is based — many looked forward to the complex.

"South Florida needs Blockbuster park," Harry Duncanson of the Greater Hollywood Chamber of Commerce said. "It will generate new business opportunities. It already has."

The plan, though, has angered some environmentalists and raised concerns of nearby residents who fear a rubber stamp on development on the edge of the Everglades and what effect it will have on the water supply.

Joe Podgor of Friends of the Everglades said Miami is exhausting its 300-million-gallon-per-day supply which it gets from wells and that wells will soon be forced to draw from under garbage dumps and other polluted areas.

"If we continue to build we are just going to run out of water," Podgor said. "We are going to be drinking polluted water."

Report shows programs impact

By WILL LESTER
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — The federal government has policies to protect wetlands, but a new Interior Department report says many federally supported programs actually damage the ecosystems — a problem dramatically illustrated by the Everglades.

The wide-ranging report, if acted on by Congress, could affect Florida in several areas including the sugar industry, the Everglades and the proposed Blockbuster Park, a planned sports and entertainment complex that would be built 3 1/2 miles east of the Everglades on the Dade-Broward county line.

"For the first time, this puts together all the information from the central valley in Alaska to the Everglades in Florida," said Jay Ziegler, an Interior Department spokesman. "There are a lot of things the federal government can do to protect wetlands by sensible federal policies without the need to impose new regulations on private landowners."

Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt urged Congress to take a closer look at a wide range of federal programs such as federal flood-control projects, farm loans and price supports, subsidies for road and housing construction in wetland areas, and tax incentives for the timber industry that encourage wetland conversion.

The flood-control projects and import quotas on sugar were singled out as having contributed significantly to the degradation of the Florida Everglades by promoting agricultural development of the region.

The Everglades provide South Floridians with the drinking water, protect coastal cities from floods and is host to dozens of federally protected animals and plants.

Blue Angels get first black leader

By Associated Press

PENSACOLA — The selection of Cmdr. Donnie Cochran as leader of the Blue Angels may help the Navy recruit more black officers, says a spokesman for the elite flight demonstration squadron.

Cochran, the only black pilot in the 48-year history of the Blue Angels, will return for a rare second tour, this time as the team's commander for the 1995-96 air show seasons.

"I think it'll be that much more of an incentive for young African-Americans to see a successful African-American officer servicing with the Blue Angels," said Lt. John Kirby, the squadron's public affairs officer. "I think it's very good for recruiting."

The Blue Angels' primary mission is to promote recruiting. Kirby said Cochran's selection was unrelated to his race, but Navy Secretary John H. Dalton announced plans last Friday to increase minority representation among officer ranks.

Overall, blacks make up 16 percent of the Navy but only 5 percent of its officers and 2 percent of its aviators.

Cochran will begin serving a two-year stint as leader of the six-plane aerobatic team based at Pensacola Naval Air Station after it ends its current air show season in November.

Cochran, 40, of Pelham, Ga., flew with the team from 1986 through 1988. His normal two-year tour had been extended for a third because the Navy wanted experienced demonstration pilots to make the team's transition from aging A-4 Skyhawk jets to its current F/A-18 Hornets.

Cochran, who is stationed at Miramar Naval Air Station, Calif., called the appointment "a great honor." He is serving aboard the aircraft carrier USS Kitty Hawk as a fighter squadron commander and unavailable for further comment.

Although Cochran has been the Blue Angels' only black pilot, Kirby said that lack of diversity is not because of racial discrimination. Other minorities have served on the team's ground crew.

The Navy has a relatively small pool of black pilots from which to choose. Of 213 black naval aviators probably fewer than 50 fly tactical jets, the only pilots considered for the demonstration squadron, said Lt. Dan Bates, a spokesman for the Bureau of Naval Personnel.

LOS ANGELES — It's the morning of June 13. A young woman lies in a puddle of her own sticky blood, her body torn open in an attack of repelling brutality.

Yellow police tape marks off the scene. Detectives bend over, eyes narrowed, searching for hair, fingerprints, the mark of a shoe. They fan out to question neighbors and family.

This is not the murder scene of O.J. Simpson's ex-wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, age 35. It's another corner of Los Angeles altogether, a world away from TV cameras, crowds of the curious and swarms of squad cars outside a condo gate.

This is the body of Georgia Denise Jones, age 33. No TV reporters come, no citizens are curious, and the squad cars roaming her Watts neighborhood are trying to control the all-too-common conditions that led to her death.

"I kept buying the papers every day to check," says her mother, Lee Ella Overstreet. "But it was never there. I guess it was like, 'Who cares? Guess they were all too busy with O.J.'"

Once, detectives could turn their undivided attention to every homicide, even in a city as big as Los Angeles. Journalists tracked down and chronicled all the "victims' stories. Neighbors talked of nothing else for months.

But these days, many homicides are more like Denise Jones'. They barely make a splash. Some hardly even register.

"It's like, no kidding? What's the big deal?" says Detective Rosemary Sanchez.

There have been 366 homicides so far this year in Los Angeles. June 13, the day after Ms. Simpson and Ronald Goldman were slain, was unusual: Only one person was killed in the city — Denise Jones, mother of three babies and one grown son.

Detective Sanchez and her partner went to the scene, a Watts sidewalk surrounded by tiny bungalows — some neat and tidy with cascading blooms of red bougainvillea, others dumpy with spindly brown weeds.

They walked the streets. They knocked on all the doors. Under bright but smoggy skies, they posted fliers asking witnesses to come forward anonymously. "We've not gotten any calls," Sanchez says a month later.

The percentage of murder cases solved by Los Angeles police varies from year to year. But generally, it is falling as the number of homicides goes up.

In 1972, 80 percent were solved; in 1992, 58 percent.

No one has been arrested in Jones' killing. "They think it was some kind of gang hit," says Billie Jean Brown, who lives near the corner where Jones died. "That's what I heard."

Jones had seen a murder. She wouldn't testify in court, but police sent her to live in another part of town anyway. They warned her to stay away from the old neighborhood.

But she came back. She was walking near her mother's house when the man rushed up, shot her seven times, then sprinted away.

"It's just a shame," says Brown. "But it's not really surprising, is it? I mean, we see a lot of murders around here."

Jones had left home at age 14 to live with a man and have a baby. When she was 15, she was arrested for robbery. As an adult, she'd been arrested more than 10 times for prostitution, drunken driving, drugs.

Three years ago, she got six months in jail for selling cocaine. Just after she got out, she offered an undercover officer sex for $10.

Her mother won't talk about it. "If she did do drugs, she never brought them around here."

"I loved her," the mother says. "I miss her already."

Help with flood relief

It's always time to practice the Golden Rule. Do unto others, as you would have others do unto you. This time, it's helping flood victims.

We may be thankful we don't have such severe flooding, but we can't overlook those who do. People have lost their homes, possessions, livelihoods, and even some friends and loved ones because of the flooding in North Florida, Georgia and Alabama.

Walk, for a moment, in their water-soaked shoes. Think of what it would be like to lose everything you have. And, as in some cases, to do so without having any flood or personal property insurance.

All would be gone. There would be no way to get it back. You would have no car, no home, no furniture, and maybe no savings with which to start over.

If thinking about the problems these people are going through is not enough, give it some practical evaluation.

Look at the closest body of water to your home, whether it's Lake Monroe, the St. Johns River, or one of our many lakes. Imagine how high the water would be if it rose 27 feet, as it has done in some parts of Georgia.

Would it have wiped out your property, your neighborhood, your entire city?

With the land types we have here in Central Florida, such severe flooding may never occur. In the past however, there have been occasions when heavy rain showers have caused minor damage in our area.

Flooding isn't the only problem we could encounter. There are hurricanes, tornadoes, and other severe weather disturbances.

If we were the victims, we would hope people elsewhere around the state and nation would send us whatever they could to help.

Let's do likewise. Let's join in the fund-raising efforts. The Sanford Salvation Army is also conducting an emergency drive to obtain bottled water and diapers for five north Florida counties.

In making cash donations, the Salvation Army and Red Cross can be trusted. Caution should be followed with other drives.

There have been occasions in the past where groups with well-meaning sounding names have conducted fund drives to help the needy. They end up using almost the entire amount for managerial or operational fees. Very little ends up being used for its purpose.

We suggest ... no, we urge ... donations be made to the American Red Cross, 705 W. S.R. 436 in Longwood, 32760, phone 332-4300, or nationwide at 1-800-842-2300, or the Sanford Salvation Army headquarters at P. O. Box 1946, Sanford, 32771, phone 322-2642.

Thousands are homeless to the north of us. Let's help them as best we can.

Net ban

The constitutional amendment to ban entanglement nets from Florida's inland waters is now certified to be on the ballot this November and the commercial netting lobby is already misleading the public. The net-users are claiming that there will no longer be fresh seafood available in restaurants, a falsehood that is easily dispelled. I've been in the seafood business for 25 years and know that the net-ban amendment has nothing to do with availability of fresh fish in your favorite restaurant or at home. Just look at the species normally sold in restaurants and supermarkets and you will find that virtually none of them is net-caught in Florida's waters.

The state's largest seafood chain, Red Lobster, uses not an ounce of the net-caught seafood that would be affected by the amendment. In a recent article in Florida Sportsman Magazine, Dick Monroe, public relations vice president of the General Mills-owned network, said, "Many of our fresh fish and all of our shrimp come from aquaculture operations around the world. A ban on netting in Florida will not have an impact on our business at all."

According to Monroe, the 60 Red Lobster restaurants in Florida served over 15 million customers last year, and not one customer chomped down on a Florida net-caught species.

Most species found in restaurants or fishmarkets will not be affected by the net ban: grouper, snapper, swordfish, shark, mahi mahi and wahoo are all caught by hook and line fishermen; crab and lobster will not be affected — they are caught in traps; the vast majority of shrimp is pond-raised or trawled offshore; catfish and salmon are pond-raised.

This November, Florida voters will have a historic opportunity to eliminate these invisible walls of death from our waters. Between now and November, I encourage every voter to match the species listed on menus and found in fish markets around the state. See for yourself that the net ban will not affect our selection of fresh or frozen seafood.

Results of Descriptions Contest

Luckily for the struggling Clinton international affairs team, my two foreign policy contests are now concluded. They might help: In an attempt to go up, it's always good to know how far is down.

Recall the background. I invited readers to submit ideas for a new foreign policy slogan. ("Containment" died when Soviet communism collapsed, and we need a new guidepost.) But readers have minds of their own. Instead of proposing what our new slogan (and policy) should be, most early respondents put a label on what they thought the Clinton policy actually was. So I did a second column announcing a double contest: one for prescription, the other for description.

Herewith, I offer the results of the Descriptions Contest.

Among the first entries (cited previously), were "The New World Impotence," "Symbolic Gesturism," "Wimplism," "Confusionism," "Grandeur Moronism" and "Stanley Greenbergism" (after Clinton's pollster).

I thought that first small batch could be a sampling error. But as the entries poured in it was apparent that something else was going on. Here are some samples from the 120 descriptive entries:

"Unattainment," "Surrealpolitik," "Abdictionism," "Clintonertia," "Clintonian Superpowerlessness," "Global Glibberism," "High-School Diplomacy," "Episodic Moronism," "Bumblebeism," "Neo-Carterism," "The Big Stick" (twice), "Vacuumistic," "Vacuous Slickism," "Liberte!, Egalite! Stupiditel," "Clintonlock," "Un-hesitating Indecision," "Undulated Ambivalence," "Willie Waffle," "Will Willie, Won't Willie?" "Backalidism," "Mercurism," "Big Blatherism," "Non-Inhalationism," "Naked Digression," "Steadfast Vacillation," "World Waffling," "Weak-Knee Warriorism," "Explanation" and "Wishywashingtonianism."

In an attempt to go up, it's always good to know how far is down.

The words "tip" and "flop" appeared many times, as in "Flip-Flop & Flim-Flam," "Flipflopocracy," "Flipdiplomacy," and "Flip Floplism" (twice).

Clinton's use of the United Nations, and its Secretary-General Boutros-Boutros Ghali, or vice versa, has not fared very well. Thus we have: "U.N. - Unemployed Nincompoops," "Challivanting"

A few entries may need explanation: "Speak Bigly and Carry a Soft Stick" (a Teddy Roosevelt knock-off), "Vacillanitous" (Vacillating and Puallanitous), "Bungeelism" (hanging and bouncing around on end of cord often stretched to limits), "FLUB" (Foreign League of Undulating Bureaucrats) "Widoid Riccas" (An ex-sailor's acronym for "When in danger, or in doubt, run in circles, scream and shout"), "COFOUT" (Consensus Operational Policy Overriding Unilateral Thinking), "Good Talk No Stick," (from baseball and Teddy Roosevelt), "Ozark Wilsonianism" (anonymously submitted in a National Security Council envelope, with neither word used in a complimentary sense), and "It's George Bush's Fault" (the problems were inherited).

Now, I think all this is somewhat unfair. But of the 120 entries, most accompanied by short essays, only one was clearly positive: "Conciliation" (from Ann Polek of Salisbury, Md.)

Drug smuggling is a sinister art form

WASHINGTON — The government's much ballyhooed war on drugs shows scant signs of victory, perhaps because drug runners are using ever more ingenious ways of concealing the contraband they ship to the United States.

A federal information-sharing unit run by the Drug Enforcement Administration and a half dozen other federal agencies in El Paso, Texas, keeps track of the concealment methods and prepares special reports for other law enforcement agencies.

The reports are stamped "Confidential" and not intended for publication, but we've reviewed several of them.

Among other things, the reports show that some drug runners are also adept wood craftsmen and metal workers. For instance, U.S. Customs officials in New York City recently found more than 30 pounds of opium sticks in the hollow backings of pictures and plaques arriving from Iran. Ironically, all of these pictures and plaques bore the stern visage of the Ayatollah Khomeini.

Hiding drugs inside large containers ostentatiously carrying innocent items, like farm equipment and wooden furniture, into America is such a favorite of smugglers, the DEA recently prepared an advisory to law enforcement officials about some of the more creative "containers."

Eight pounds of heroin were found inside four hand-crafted wooden room dividers arriving in San Francisco from Thailand. Wooden lamps and gaming tables coming from Lebanon into the San Diego airport were found to contain 280 pounds of hashish in backgammon tables and 15 pounds of hashish oil in the lamps.

Carved wooden figurines are another favorite. DEA agents in Seattle reported seeing a crack in a wooden bust of a South American Indian coming from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. Suspecting the piece had been sawed in half and glued back together, agents popped it open and found 4 kilograms of cocaine.

Another confidential DEA report noted that U.S. Customs marijuana seizures of this type at Miami, Atlanta and Guatemala City have generally involved commercial air couriers from Caribbean countries.

Traffickers will also hollow out the frames and runners of wooden shipping crates and pallets to conceal drugs. One seizure of shipping crates arriving at Miami International Airport on a commercial flight from Colombia yielded 94 pounds of concealed cocaine.

Another smuggling group, from Lisbon, Portugal, tested the use of hollowed-out shipping crates by concealing 43 bottles of wine. One confidential report notes that "it was an apparent 'dry run' test of the false floored shipping crate" which U.S. Customs discovered.

One interesting method originating in Thailand is the use of plywood sheets specially laminated to create internal compartments, or a stack of plywood sheets strapped together to conceal a large internal void area.

In the first instance, DEA agents discovered a pile of plywood in a Bangkok storage facility whose sheets were 1-1/8 inches thick. "Plywood sheets are seldom manufactured in thicknesses greater than 3/4 inches so suspicion was aroused," an intelligence report says. Though it appeared externally that the sheets were three sheets glued together, the middle was a false one concealing a large quantity of "Thai stick" marijuana packages.

Among other things, the reports show that some drug runners are also adept wood craftsmen and metal workers.

Desegregating frame of mind

BOSTON — This is how the story is absorbed into the American mind. The attention shifts from two dead bodies to a phalanx of lawyers. The chase scene turns into a crash course in search warrants and circumstantial evidence. And the national teach-in on domestic violence becomes a disheartening refresher course in race relations.

On a radio show this morning, a black woman insists that few would care if the victims were black. Over the fax machine comes an update of an elaborate O.J. frame-up fantasy signed, "An African-American." On the phone, a black professor recalls his visit to Seattle where two hotel employees told him, "They're cutting us down one by one."

Finally, a Gallup Poll solidifies these amorphous racial feelings into numbers. Sixty percent of black Americans but only 15 percent of white Americans think O.J. is innocent. Sixty-eight percent of white Americans but 24 percent of black Americans think the charges against him are true.

Black Americans are also twice as likely to think the media coverage has been too harsh. They're 50 percent more likely to think that Simpson won't get a fair trial. They're more convinced that race will prejudice jurors against O.J. and they're more sympathetic toward him.

Whatever the verdict of this double-murder case, we are confronted again with our dual citizenship in a state of separate realities. An apartheid of perceptions.

By and large, white Americans believe the O.J. Simpson case is only colored in the bright fluorescent hue of celebrity. Black Americans tend to believe that the charges have "darkened" the O.J. story as deliberately as the doctored cover photo on Time magazine.

In endless conversations about this case, white Americans pick over the evidence. Black Americans talk about their experience.

Across this great perceptual divide, accusations are lobbed back and forth. Whites are charged with denying or ignoring racism. Blacks with imagining or exaggerating racism. It happens again and again, in separate realities.

When Washington's Mayor Marion Barry was arrested on drug charges, most of white Washington agreed that the police had caught him. Most of black Washington said he'd been entrapped.

When the first Rodney King jury acquitted the police officers, there was a racial cry of "foul." But after the violence, many blacks in Los Angeles called it "an uprising" and whites called it "a riot."

In the wake of Mike Tyson's rape conviction, black church groups in Indianapolis called on members to stand by for their brother.

In the Senate confirmation hearings, Clarence Thomas railed against a "hi-tech lynching." How great would the racial divide have been if Anita Hill had been white?

Diversity exists within race as well as between races. There are shades of opinion as well as differences in experience. It's treacherous to try to calculate attitudes with the crude measure of race.

But for many blacks in America, the past is one long lesson in the difficulty of getting equal protection under the law. It's a case study of lynchings, white sheriffs, white courts, white power. It's a history of black victims ignored and black suspects hunted because of their color. Yet, when blacks quote this history, whites tend to say, yes, but that is history.

We are that far apart.

Even today, if a white woman crosses the street at the approach of a band of black teenagers, she may regard it as rational. If a black man driving his Mercedes is stopped by police, he may regard it as racism.

"If I'm dressed in a tank top and hooded jacket, I'm probable cause," says Charles Ogletree, a black Harvard law professor. Multiply that experience by the thousands. "Blacks," he says, "are very skeptical of being treated fairly."

It's black skepticism and white belief in "the system" that divides us in the polling data. It's the lens of our separate realities.

Henry Louis Gates, head of the African-American studies department at Harvard, believes the Simpson case "is about obsession, rage, jealousy" and only secondarily about race. But he isn't surprised that blacks are slow to judge one another. "Maybe the only people presuming his innocence are black people," he adds.

Once, O.J. Simpson said that his "greatest accomplishment" was getting people to "look at me like a man first, not a black man." But in the courtroom and in the news, the ways we look at him now show our deep racial division.

Separate realities. How do you desegregate a frame of mind?

We are confronted again with our dual citizenship in a state of separate realities.

Regarding restaurants, Farr said at least one if not more have been looking into land near the Seminole Towne Center Mall property. "One of the biggest organizations requesting information from the chamber," he said, "is General Mills, which has Olive Garden, China Coast, Ruby Tuesdays and Red Lobster."

He also discussed some of the movie and TV filming and taping which will or may soon be underway in Sanford. "Earlier this week," he said, "we had a University of Florida graduate student doing some taping in downtown Sanford as part of his graduate project."

"A movie called 'Walking Dead' is looking into our area, and 'Thunder in Paradise,' with Hulk Hogan, may be using some local sites for that TV series."

"There's another TV series called 'Fortune Hunter,' for which the pilot has already been shot, but they are investigating some of our Sanford area for part of their filming in the very near future."

He continued, "One of the locations may be the old Florida Hotel, which has been in relatively poor condition. But when the movie people saw it, they said it would be perfect for what they needed. By using it, they will be paying the owner enough so he can take care of the renovation project he has been trying to do for a long time."

"It's ironic, if the hotel had been fixed up already, the movie people wouldn't have been interested. So it's a case where not everything which is in top notch condition could come up earning a profit."

Farr was enthused about the development of the antique shops in the downtown area as well as several areas elsewhere in the city. "A lot of the credit for this kind of development should go to people like Helen Stairs and Barbara Farrell," he said.

The chamber executive did not believe the antique shops are as competitive as other businesses may be. "Actually," he said, "from people I have talked to, they say that since other antique stores have opened, their business is picking up, so it shows that the more we have, the more people we will attract."

He indicated that Barbara

Farrell, who is responsible for the renovation of Sanford's old fire house on Palmetto Avenue, is working with some friends toward developing another older building on South Sanford Avenue, into an art studio, or related business.

"We have some outstanding people in the membership of our chamber," he said. "All you have to do is listen to what some of them are doing, or what they find is happening in Sanford, and you can't help but be excited about what is going on."

Farr said in his address to the Rotarians, he didn't even go into the excellent future which may be facing the downtown waterfront area, through the continuing work of the Waterfront Master Plan Steering Committee. "That's something else," he said. "I believe we can expect big things to come out of that project."

Farr concluded by commenting that he had not seen such a flurry of development in the downtown and surrounding areas of Sanford in several decades. "It should make everyone have new hope for the prosperity and future of our city," he said.

Goldwater speaks out against job discrimination against gays

By CASSANDRA BURRELL Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Former Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater, who last year proposed lifting the military's ban on homosexuals, is urging Congress to approve legislation protecting gays against job discrimination.

"Job discrimination excludes qualified individuals, lowers work-force productivity and eventually hurts us all," the former Arizona senator said in a column published today by The Washington Post.

"Topping the new world order means attracting the best and creating a workplace environment where everyone can excel," he wrote.

Goldwater, one of the country's most conspicuous conservatives, surprised some when he urged the government to lift the ban against gays in the military in a June 1993 Post opinion piece.

"You don't need to be 'straight' to fight and die for your country," he said then. "You just need to shoot straight."

In today's article, Goldwater, the 1964 Republican presidential candidate against Lyndon Johnson, argues in support of a bipartisan coalition in Congress that has proposed legislation outlawing job discrimination against homosexuals.

"Congress is waking up to a reality already recognized by a host of Fortune 500 companies, including AT&T, Marriott and General Motors," he said. "These business have adopted policies prohibiting discrimination based on sexual orientation because they realize that their employees are their most important asset."

Discrimination hinders America's struggle to reduce the deficit and compete in a global economy, he said.

"It's not just bad — it's bad business," he said.

It also adds to the welfare rolls, Goldwater said.

"In urban and rural communities, hatred and fear force good people from productive employment to the public dole — wasting their talents and the taxpayers' money."

In the essay, Goldwater speaks out against the radical right, but assures the public he's still a conservative Republican who believes in democracy and the separation of church and state.

"The conservative movement is founded on the simple tenet that people have the right to live life as they please, as long as they don't hurt anyone else in the process," he said.

"No one has ever shown me how being gay or lesbian harms anyone else."

Goldwater, who has publicly discussed his grandson's homosexuality, also challenged the consistency of those who support booting gays out of the military but say they're opposed to discrimination.

incidents when Grace used a box cutter, "her weapon of choice" for keeping her men in line. He described the tool as a razor on a handle used to open boxes in supermarkets.

On the night of the stabbing, Christine Fields described how her neighbor stopped by for a visit in the early evening. After they talked for a while, Taylor came to the door and Grace went outside on the porch.

Fields and her 16-year old son, Edward, both testified they thought Grace and Taylor had gone to Grace's apartment downstairs. They did not hear any argument or loud voices from outside.

However, a short time later, a second knock came at the Fields' door and Grace backed into the apartment followed by Taylor.

Both witnesses described a silver bladed black handled knife Taylor held in his hand at his side.

Fields said Taylor acted normal and was calm.

"I seen him struck at her with the knife," Fields testified. She said Grace was apparently struck in the upper shoulder blade and said "Ouch" then fell on a dining room table. Grace then got up and went toward the kitchen. Fields saw Taylor strike the woman again with the knife in the upper part of the abdomen or lower part of the chest.

Fields took a two-year-old boy she had custody of and Grace's three-year-old son into a bedroom where her teenage son had gone after she told him to call police. The teen called police after Taylor left the apartment.

Looking through the bedroom door, the witnesses testified just before Taylor walked out the door after stabbing Grace, he said "I love you" to her. He made no other comments.

Grace appeared to be in pain as she attempted to instruct another neighbor who came in after the stabbing to apply pressure to her abdomen with a towel to halt the bleeding. Fields and her son testified.

Sanford policeman Fred Johnson, who knew Taylor for several years, described a number of "father-son type talks" the two had concerning Taylor's relationship with Grace. Johnson worked a community policing detail at the public housing development.

He said Taylor was obsessed with Grace and had said "If he couldn't have her, nobody else could have her."

During Johnson's testimony, he identified a blood-stained cotton blouse with gaping holes in the front as the top Grace was wearing the night she was stabbed. Johnson was one of the first police officers on the scene.

He said Grace was talking and Taylor did not appear she had sustained a deadly injury. However, he became aware of the seriousness of her condition after paramedics arrived. She was transported by ambulance to Orlando Regional Medical Center where she later died.

Testimony in the trial continues today.

Road

Another public meeting will be conducted in five or six weeks after more work is done by the engineering company.

Alex Hull, president of Professional Engineering Consultants, outlined the goals of the project, including minimizing impacts to residents, safety improvements and correction of drainage deficiencies.

According to data collected in the preliminary study, 17,600 vehicles per day travel the mile-long road. In traffic flow parlance, the vehicle volume is only one step away from total gridlock. The heaviest use of the road is in the morning and late afternoon as people travel to and from work, the engineers said.

There are six subdivisions on Rangeline Road. Petitions were presented to Miller signed by 273 residents, many from those subdivisions, opposing any widening of the street which might make it a more attractive cut-through for Lake Mary residents.

City police chief Greg Manning outlined some of the history of the road and said he opposes installation of a traffic light at the Rangeline Road and Church Street intersection because it would create more traffic accidents by people attempting to beat the light.

Suggestions for cutting the traffic volume, some offered only partly in jest, included stop signs at each subdivision entrance, speed bumps, a toll gate charging non-Longwood residents for using the road and even building a wall across it preventing non-locals from access. Strict police enforcement of speed limits were also urged. Manning said the police are trying to do the best job they can given their manpower.

Many city residents complained the county was dumping its traffic problem on the city, and not adequately dealing with the issue. New subdivision construction is taking place on Lake Emma Road in areas under county jurisdiction. The residents made it clear they want the city to make the decisions about the city road.

Rather than seeking another entrance onto Interstate-4 at Greenway or even E.E. Williamson, to funnel the growing Lake Mary population onto the highway, traffic is increasing on Rangeline Road. Many of the residents indicated they will contact county commissioners in support of the additional access to the interstate.

Residents also voiced concern that semi-trucks, concrete trucks and other large carriers are increasingly using Rangeline Road for travel into and out of Lake Mary businesses rather than use the Lake Mary access to the interstate.

Despite the sweltering temperature inside the city commission chambers, the crowd that packed the room listened patiently throughout the two hour meeting.

Several audience members noted the county has been attempting to widen Rangeline Road for years.

City engineer Fernand Tibler Jr. said the city's own comprehensive plan predicts that by the year 2005 there will be 32,000 cars a day on Rangeline Road and recommends the road be widened to four lanes. He suggested since residents oppose any widening that they contact city commissioners. "That needs to be taken out of the comprehensive plan," he said.

County engineer Frank Van-Pelt attended a portion of the meeting but did not address the gathering.

ELEANOR JANE BAKER
Eleanor Jane Baker, 75, Lancelot Way, Casselberry, died Monday, July 11, 1994 at her residence. Born Aug. 7, 1918 in Cabot, Pa., she moved to Central Florida in 1979. She was a homemaker.

BRIEFS

Water restrictions eased
The St. Johns River Water Management has lifted water shortage restrictions imposed a year ago in the Wekiva River Basin of Central Florida.

The area is west of Sanford, west of Interstate-4, and covers north Orange, northwest Lake and southeastern Seminole Counties. It consists of approximately 400 square miles of land.

Effective immediately, residents will be allowed to water their lawns at any time except between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. in the Wekiva Basin.

Hal Wilkening, assistant director of Resource Management at the District said, "We want to encourage all water users to continue to support water conservation efforts and give them that the District's Water Conservation Rule, which includes restrictions on watering between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., is still in effect for the entire district."

Outdoor irrigation of landscape and golfcourses had also been prohibited from 8 a.m. until 8 p.m. seven days a week, since last June. The restriction is now lifted.

Progress on park
SANFORD — A one-acre park in the Sanora Subdivision may become an affordable housing site. The change in use has been under consideration for several months.

During the work session of the Sanford City Commission Monday, a consensus was given toward proceeding with the process. Commissioner A.A. McClanahan suggested the city obtain the title to the land, then turn it over to a developer for housing.

The question regarding the matter has stemmed from unclear determinations over the actual ownership of the property, which has been platted for perpetual use as a park, or as a public benefit.

During previous discussion, it was determined that affordable housing would be of public benefit.

According to City Manager Bill Simmons, the next step will be to examine the charter of the Sanora Homeowners Association and other legal documents, to determine if the change in use would have to be approved by a unanimous vote of the entire association membership.

Simmons had recommended the commission "give a green light" to the concept.

The land has not been used as an active park.

Fees

County transportation Planner Dick Thomas said the standard for the number of trips emerging from homes increased slightly, from 5.03 to 5.08 trips per day, and large retail developments increased. But trips to small retail centers decreased as did those for larger offices.

But when the committees examined new construction costs, population and other factors along with the proposed adjustments, they found the rates would either stay the same or increase only slightly. The two committees concluded the rates should not be changed.

The committee did recommend special adjustments. The MTAC suggested a review of rates for day care centers and provisions for economic development incentives. The CAC recommended an immediate moratorium against the fees for industrial or warehousing uses. The CAC also recommended shifting the time of fee collection from time of building permit or development approval to the completion of construction.

Commissioners agreed to examine all the recommendations but the moratorium. They directed staff to examine the impacts of the other proposals at to report back to them during the budget review process this summer. Planners said a delay in fee collection could impact the county's road construction program and cause delays.

Clinton's homecoming: Health care, Whitewater

By JOHN KENNEDY
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON — After a week abroad, President Clinton gets no time for a homecoming celebration. Health care debate and Whitewater hearings are just around the corner in Congress, never mind the midterm elections just four months away.

In the Whitewater hearings, Republicans will be trying to exact a toll on Clinton, who is counting on Democratic allies to argue that the GOP, for political gain, is tilting ground already covered by the special prosecutor investigating the case.

And the early talk of a bipartisan approach to health care reform has given way to partisan divide as Congress prepares for floor debate on the issue most likely to catapult into the forefront for November's elections.

For Clinton, the combination of Whitewater hearings and health care votes in late July and early August present a huge political challenge, two simultaneous fights he can ill afford to lose.

And he enters what is likely to feel like the longest month of his presidency short of political capital.

A survey by the Republican polling firm Public Opinion Strategies found that 41 percent of Americans approve of Clinton's performance as president, while 48 percent disapprove. And of those who approve of Clinton's job performance, only 12 percent said they were strongly supportive.

"Those are really grim numbers," said pollster Bill McInturff. "The succession of Whitewater, Paula Jones, Haiti and this unproductive trip abroad has kept them from talking about the things voters want to hear — the economy, health care and crime."

But all that is about to change — at least according to the White House.

With speeches Friday in Pennsylvania and next Tuesday in Boston, Clinton hopes to energize the health care debate as a fight for health security for the middle class. From there, the White House plan includes new television ads, letter-writing and phone campaigns by labor unions and other allies, even a health care bus tour that the president and Hillary Rodham Clinton are likely to join at some point.

"Those who favor the Republican approach are going to have to go back to their constituents and say, 'Under our plan, millionaires are fine, welfare recipients are covered, members of Congress get terrific benefits but if you are in the middle class, sorry we couldn't help you,'" said Clinton adviser Paul Begala.

That argument, however, ignores Clinton's biggest short-term problem: winning enough Democratic votes for a plan acceptable to the White House.

The major obstacle is winning support for a requirement that employers provide health insurance, the easiest path to the universal coverage Clinton insists is his bottom line.

Clinton's sales campaign, both in Washington and on the road, will try to rally support for that. But if it fails, the White House will be faced with a decision many in the debate view as inevitable: a compromise that falls short of universal coverage.

For now, the administration won't entertain such talk publicly, even as it plans to claim victory for any health care reform and blame Republicans if it falls short of the president's goals.

Complicating things for Clinton, the search for votes centers on moderate Democrats from the South and the Mountain states — the two regions where his personal standing, and powers of persuasion, are weakest.

Still, mindful of his come-from-behind victories in last year's fights over the budget and the North American Free Trade Agreement, many Republicans are unwilling to bet against Clinton.

"I don't think they have the votes for an employer mandate," said McInturff, the Republican pollster. "But they didn't have the votes for NAFTA, either, and health care is easier to sell."

How the Whitewater hearings will affect all this is uncertain. If nothing else, several White House aides will find themselves spending hours before congressional banking panels investigating, at GOP insistence, contacts between administration officials and regulators investing a savings and loan involved in the Clintons' Whitewater real estate investment.

Bishop OKs plan for altar girls

By Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG — The bishop has given his blessing for Roman Catholic women and girls in the Tampa Bay area to assist priests on the altar during the celebration of Mass.

Bishop John C. Favalora announced the policy in the five-county diocese of St. Petersburg by letter on Monday. It takes effect immediately. His action comes after a Vatican decision this spring to allow girls as altar servers.

Pope John Paul II officially approved the practice giving girls the same opportunity as boys to serve, but left it up to bishops to decide in their individual jurisdictions whether to implement it.

Favalora said the change paves the way for a "creative approach for ministry at the altar" that could involve entire families, with parents serving as lectors and eucharistic ministers and their children as servers.

But the bishop warned that it does not open the door to the question of whether women should be allowed to serve as priests.

"The inclusion of women and girls as altar servers is by no means meant to encourage or invite any hope that this is a step toward the inclusion of women among the candidates for Holy Orders," Favalora said. "Pope John Paul II has definitely spoken for the church on this matter."

Teet: Egypt's mystery woman powerful puzzle from the past

By JOHN MANN
Associated Press Writer

SAKKARA, Egypt — Her name was Nadjet-m-Pet. "Teet" to her friends.

Archaeologists discovered her small but superbly decorated tomb in the spring as they dug into a mountain of sand in Sakkara, one of ancient Egypt's greatest burial grounds.

They were shocked. Her neighbors in death were men, a Who's Who of power brokers from the reign of Pharaoh Teti more than 4,500 years ago. She was the first woman found in the Teti dig with a tomb of her own.

So who was Teet? Egyptologists are picking through her tomb in search of the answer, but so much has been lost it is likely the truth will remain forever a mystery.

One thing is clear: she was special and powerful.

"Many things about her tomb are unique, including the fact it belongs to a woman," said Zahi Hawass, the antiquities official in charge of the cemetery of Sakkara, 17 miles south of the Giza pyramid.

There's no doubt she held an important position in the pharaoh's court because Teet allowed her to be buried near the entrance to his pyramid, Hawass said.

Teet's tomb was discovered by an Australian-Egyptian expedition led by Neguib Kanawati of Sydney's Macquarie University and officials of the Egyptian Antiquities Organization.

Archaeologists are pulling out tomb after tomb originally laid out along well-manicured avenues, much like a city block. Shifting sand covered the tombs over the ages, and new tombs were built on top of Teet's tomb 1,000 years after it was sealed. What lay below was heavily damaged.

Teet's tomb, 13 feet long and 6 1/2 feet wide, lost many decorations that could provide clues to her story. What survives is stunning.

The tomb is dominated by a large, expensive stone, tablet covering the back wall. Hewn from the finest white limestone, it is covered with delicately crafted hieroglyphs.

Egyptologists call the tablet a false door. Ancient Egyptians believed the souls of the dead could use the door to pass into the real world to accept offerings and greetings from visitors and reenter the nether world. Teet was buried just behind the door.

Hieroglyphs reveal not only her real name but prominently display her nickname — Teet. "Nicknames were very common in ancient Egypt," said Hawass. "Many of the same names, including Teet, remain popular in the Egyptian countryside today."

On the tomb's right wall are portions of a colorful scene showing 17 male servants carrying baskets of food, wine jars, beef, geese and other delicacies for Teet's afterlife. The artistry is first-rate, the colors original. Particularly magnificent is the blue used in decorating the baskets.

Descriptions in the tomb give clues to Teet's status in life, but like any good mystery, they don't tell all.

There is Hathor, the goddess of love and of women, who liked to sit under a sycamore tree. Hathor also was associated with queens. Teti had two queens — Khuit and Iput — both buried at Sakkara.

"Teet could have been a lesser queen or could have held a high position in a queen's court," Hawass said. Tomb descriptions call her a chantress, a title held by women who danced, sang or shook magical rattles in front of the dead queen's tomb, an important and prestigious job.

Religious duties often gave ordinary women a rare avenue to celebrity and wealth. Archaeologists digging in cemeteries around the Giza pyramids have found 50 tombs belonging exclusively to women.

IN BRIEF

AROUND THE STATE

Shula undecided about future

MIAMI — Don Shula says this may be his final season as coach of the Miami Dolphins. Shula said Tuesday he hasn't decided whether he wants a contract extension from new Dolphins owner H. Wayne Huizenga. The extension likely would be through 1996. "I can't sit here and say I want to coach three more years, and I can't say I want to coach this year and no more," Shula said. "I don't feel at this time that I have to make that decision, and I think Wayne understands that." Huizenga has said the decision about a contract extension is up to Shula, who last year broke George Halas' NFL record for career coaching victories. Shula's current three-year contract expires after this season.

Panthers sign Moller

MIAMI — The Florida Panthers signed 12-year NHL veteran Randy Moller, a defenseman and unrestricted free agent. Moller, 30, had two goals and 11 assists in 78 games last season with the Buffalo Sabres. He has played in 798 NHL games. The 6-2, 207-pound Moller was a first-round draft choice by Quebec in 1981. He also played for the New York Rangers.

AROUND THE NATION

Alou, Gwynn deliver NL in 10th

PITTSBURGH — Tony Gwynn barely slipped past Ivan Rodriguez on Moises Alou's double in the 10th inning, giving the National League an 8-7 victory and ending its record six-game losing streak in the All-Star game. Fred McGriff's two-run homer in the ninth off Lee Smith had tied it and earned him MVP honors. Gwynn, who doubled in two runs in the third, opened the 10th with a single off Jason Bere and scored on Alou's drive to left-center. Doug Jones pitched the 10th for the win and Bere, who faced only two batters, was the loser. Marquis Grissom also homered for the NL, while Kenny Lofton drove in two runs for the AL.

Mayfield joins Yarborough

OWENSBORO, Ky. — Stock-car driver Jeremy Mayfield is making a move that will increase the pressure on him but should provide the kind of security that he's been seeking. The 25-year-old Owensboro native signed with the team owned by Winston Cup veteran Cale Yarborough. Next Sunday, Mayfield will drive the No. 58 Thunderbird in the Miller Genuine Draft 500 at Pocono, Pa. Mayfield replaces the fired Derrick Cope, who signed with Cale Yarborough Motorsports at the start of the 1993 season.

Ole Miss can't brew

OXFORD, Miss. — Ole Miss football coach Billy Brewer, who had vowed to start his 12th season at his alma mater, was fired in the wake of a second NCAA investigation. The ouster by Chancellor Gerald Turner came 3½ weeks after Ole Miss officials announced an NCAA inquiry alleging 15 violations in the football program, which was previously on probation for two years after the 1986 season. The most serious allegation was that Ole Miss didn't put "more emphasis on the control and monitoring of its program" after the 1986 case.

NBA, union have until noon

NEW YORK — After a one-day trial, U.S. District Judge Kevin Duffy urged the NBA and the NBA Players Association to work out their differences before he issues a ruling they won't necessarily like. Duffy ordered both sides to submit final written arguments at noon today — but, at the same time, to keep trying to reach an out-of-court settlement. No talks between the two sides, who have suits pending concerning the expired collective bargaining agreement, were immediately scheduled. The NBA wants the salary cap, draft and right of first refusal ruled legal, while the union wants those aspects to be declared violations of the antitrust law.

Extra-inning thriller

Oviedo continues climb out of losers' bracket

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald Sports Writer

APOPKA — Win the inning, win the championship. That was the situation that faced the National Division teams from Apopka and Oviedo after the two squads had battled to a 4-4 after the regulation six innings in the championship game of the Little League Area 2 Tournament at the Apopka Little League Baseball Complex Tuesday night.

The deadlock continued into the top of the eighth inning, when a walk and a bad hop single keyed a three-run outburst and the Oviedo Nationals completed a run out of the loser's bracket to claim the Area 2 title, 7-4.

It was the third game between the two teams, with Apopka claiming the first meeting, 4-2, and Oviedo handing Apopka its first defeat, 18-6, Monday night to set the stage for the winner-take-all matchup. The victory sends the Oviedo Nationals into a survival game against the Area 1 champion Alta-

OCOEE — Even though they gave up as many hits Tuesday as they did all of last week, the Oviedo All-Stars strolled to a 10-0 win over Altamonte Springs in the winners' bracket final of the Little League Baseball District 14 Junior All-Star Tournament. Jorge Hernandez and Ray Brozzo combined on a three-hit shutout for Oviedo in a game stopped after six innings by the 10-run mercy rule. In the Area 2 sub-tournament last week, Oviedo pitchers allowed a total of three hits over three games.

Altamonte Springs, which suffered its first loss of the All-Star season, comes back tonight at 7 p.m. to play the survivor of Tuesday's elimination game between Windermere and South Lake. The winner of tonight's game will play Oviedo at 7 p.m. Thursday and, if necessary, 7 p.m. Friday.

Kenny Kayne, Hernandez, Ruben Melendez, Nathan Dancy, and Tommy Koubek each hit two singles for Oviedo in Tuesday's win. David Van Natta, Turner Elliott, Larry Cummings, and Brozzo each added a single.

Defensively, the Oviedo Juniors were anchored by Van Natta, who turned in a series of brilliant plays at second base to defuse potential Altamonte Springs rallies before they got started.

Taylor Gould, James Mitchell, and Josh O'Brien each hit a single for Altamonte Springs, which defeated Windermere 10-7 Monday for the right to face Oviedo.

SANFORD — Chris Youmans hit a two-run home run and Phillip Eubanks added a two-run triple to lead Sanford Post 53's B team to a 6-5 win over Convergent Resources in a summer high school baseball game Tuesday at Seminole High School's Alumni Field.

Post 53 (Seminole High School's summer team) took a 2-1 lead on Youmans' home run in the bottom of the second. Convergent Resources (Oviedo) came back to tie the score twice before Eubanks' hit provided the winning margin.

Jimmy Rabun pitched a complete game to notch the win for Sanford. Jason Fore suffered the loss for Convergent Resources.

Youmans and Eubanks also each added a single to Sanford's seven-hit attack. Brian Zaladonis doubled and scored a run. Ryan Hall contributed a single and a run. Brett Templeton hit a single. Andy Hall scored a run.

Fore hit a home run and a single for Convergent Resources. Mark Metcalf was 2-for-3 with two RBI. Richard Wright and Brian Baer both singled and scored a run. Josh Frost scored a run. Jeff Galvin had an RBI.

Bramlett, Keene claim Florida Pro 125 wins

Restarts key for Bramlett during Orlando victory

By PAUL MARSEGLIA
 Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — A much-improved Scott Bramlett outclassed a 28-car field to take top honors in the Florida Pro 125 Late Model race last Friday night, July 8, at Orlando Speedworld.

Bramlett, from St. Cloud, set the evening's third fastest qualifying time and, by an inversion of the top six qualifiers, started the race from the sixth position.

On lap 42, race leader Pete Orr and Daniel Keene, running in second, tangled and were sent to the back of the lead pack for the restart. Bramlett, who had moved up to third by that time, inherited the lead.

Bramlett charged to the point on the new start with Brian Campbell and Kevin Durden in tow. And despite seven caution and two red flag periods, Bramlett reclaimed the point on every restart and charged to his first-ever Florida Pro feature win.

"Our racing program has really come together," said the 23-year-old Bramlett, who is in his fourth season of racing. "Dave Crume at CRE Machine is building us a super engine and I'm a lot smarter driver. We're trying a lot of new things one the car and they're working."

"Restarts have always been my weak spot. For the past year, I have been working real hard to improve my driving with special emphasis on restarts. I'm real pleased. The hard work of my crew and my efforts paid off."

Orr, the pole sitter, jumped to the early lead after a side-by-side duel with Jimmy Britta for the No. 1 spot. Two laps later, Dick Anderson and Keene got by Britta to take over the second and third spots, respectively.

Anderson closed on Orr's rear bumper, but after six laps of SAMSULA — Tampa's Daniel Keene dominated racing action in the Florida Pro 125 Late Model event Saturday, July 9, at New Smyrna Speedway.

Keene, who set the evening's fastest qualifying time and, by an inversion of the top six qualifiers, started the race from the third position, overtook early leader David Russell on the fourth lap. From there on, the race was history.

Except for caution periods that bunched the field for restarts, Keene had a 10 to 12-car advantage over Dick Anderson, the runner-up car, and the rest of the field for a majority of the race.

After a caution on lap 103 that once again tightened the field for a restart, Anderson closed to Keene's rear bumper and hotly pursued him for the No. 1 spot. But that challenge lasted just two laps, when Anderson suddenly dropped off the pace.

Keene, driving the Victor Powell Ferneries Camaro, took the checkers 10 car lengths ahead of Anderson for his first-ever Florida Pro victory.

"We had no problems at all tonight," said Keene, a veteran Late Model pilot. "For some reason, this particular car runs real well at New Smyrna and it always qualifies well. To us, it's like old faithful."

Several months ago, Keene, driving "Old Faithful," set a new track qualifying record at New Smyrna's half-mile high-banked oval.

Russell jumped to the early lead as fellow pole sitter Jeff Williams was overtaken by Keene and Anderson before the first lap was completed.

After three laps of nose-to-tail racing, Keene took the lead. On the following lap, Anderson got by Ari Warnicke-Smith ripped back-to-back doubles into right-center field to plate the first run of the game.

Adam McCray followed with a bad hop single off the Apopka shortstop's chest for another run and one out later. Robert Swindle launched a long two-run homer to straight away center field to make the score 4-0.

Apopka got a run back in the bottom of the second inning on a wild pitch, then tied the game with the use of its "secret weapon" in the fourth inning.

With one out, Greg Hurley and Alan King reached on back-to-back errors to bring up pinch-hitter Joshua Turnage, who had come off the bench Monday night to hit a home run to bring Apopka to within a run, 6-5.

Turnage came through again as he singled to right to score Hurley. When the ball got past the Oviedo rightfielder, King scored and Turnage wound up on third. Michael Blazewitz then laid down a squeeze bunt on an 0-2 count to score Turnage with the tying run.

The score stayed tied until the eighth inning when winning pitcher Warnicke-Smith led off with a walk, the first free pass in the game from Gabe Powell.

After a strike out, Sam Hatfield hit a chopper that the Apopka second baseman tried to play on the short hop, but could not quite make the play and Oviedo had runners on first and second.

Swindle then dropped a single down the third base line, his third hit of the game, to score Warnicke-Smith with the go-ahead run. Hatfield wound up on third and Swindle second. J.C. Blass squeezed home Hatfield and Swindle came in on a single by Micah Thorne to complete the scoring.

Warnicke-Smith only allowed four hits and struck out 11, but he did hurt himself with eight walks and eight wild pitches. None of Apopka's runs were earned.

Doing the offensive damage for the Oviedo Nationals were Swindle (3-for-4, home run, two runs, three RBI), Warnicke-Smith (2-for-3, double, two runs, RBI), Wingate (double, run), McCray (single, run, RBI), Hatfield (single, run), Thorne (single, RBI), Jamie Zugelder, Doug Carpenter and Ryan Yeaman (one single each) and Blass (RBI).

Losing pitcher Gabe Powell gave up 12 hits, but eight of those came in the first and eighth innings. He struck out 11 and walked just one.

Providing the offense for the Apopka Nationals were Turnage (single, run, RBI), Alan King (single, two runs), Aaron Poff and Jeremy Bartholomew (one single each) and Blazewitz (RBI).

Mudcats to a 4-0 win over the Lemon Baseball School Juice Tuesday night at Lake Mary High School.

In the nightcap, the Juice pulled out a 7-4 win in eight innings.

Alexander struck out seven and walked five in his whitewashing of the Juice. Bryan Schumaker led the offensive support with a single and a solo home run in the fifth inning.

Nick Sosa, Jay Reynolds, and Rene Perez each contributed a single and one run scored for Lake Mary. Brent Wehmeyer added a single and two RBI. Dwayne Sanford singled in one run. Carey Hobbs also hit a single.

In the second game, the Juice jumped out to a 4-0 lead after three innings, only to see the Mudcats force extra innings by scoring a run in the bottom of the fourth and three in the seventh. The Juice then took advantage of three walks to score three runs in the top of the eighth.

Sosa paced the Mudcats with a double, one run, and an RBI. Jason Yero doubled and scored a run. Carlos Colon, Jason Garaszynski, and Schumaker each hit a single. Chris Kapelka and Robert Vessey each scored a run.

The Mudcats (12-8 overall, 8-6 in Torre League play) will host the Seminole Animal Supply Bullets (Lyman High School's summer team) in a doubleheader scheduled to begin at 5:30 p.m. tonight at Lake Mary High School.

nose-to-tail racing. Anderson slowed and pulled into the pits. With Anderson out of competition, Keene picked up the charge on the leader, but Orr was up to the challenge.

On lap 41, Keene got to the outside of Orr and, after a lap of wheel-to-wheel racing, the lead duo made contact coming out of turn No. 2 and were sent to the rear of the lead pack. While Orr and Keene tried to work their way back through traffic, Bramlett took command of the race.

Fifty-nine minutes after the first green flag dropped to start the Budweiser-sponsored event, Bramlett parlayed his flawless restarts and focused racing into a first-place finish, earning the winner's purse of $2,500.

"This was a really outstanding field of drivers," said Bramlett, who drives the Parts General Oldsmobile. "I knew early on that I would have to pay attention, stay out of trouble, and stay focused."

Rounding out the top five behind Bramlett were, in order of finish, Durden, Campbell, James Powell Jr., and Tuffy Hester.

"I am so pleased to finish second tonight," said Durden. "This is a new car, right out of the box, for us. For its first race, it was outstanding."

Misfortune struck early in the race for Jimmy Cope, who posted the sixth-fastest qualifying time. On the parade lap, Cope went behind the wall with a broken shifter. Seven laps later, a broken brake pedal sidelined Anderson.

As the race progressed, misfortune struck again. Near the halfway point, Orr got drilled by a competitor and stuffed into the turn two wall. Keene, who set the evening's fast time, cut a tire while running in sixth place and was done for the night.

Russell for second place. That's the way the top three positions remained for the rest of the race.

"I'm not offering any excuses. Daniel (Keene) drove an outstanding race," said Anderson, who drives the Citrus Chrysler MOPAR Dodge.

"Brakes were our downfall this weekend. Last night (at Orlando), I broke a brake pedal. And tonight, early in the race, I lost my brakes. To make it worse, when I was racing with Daniel near the end of the race, I lost a cylinder. I'll tell you, driving this car with no brakes will make an old man out of you."

Rounding out the top five were Scott Bramlett (Friday night's Florida Pro winner) and James Powell Jr.

"This is a real disappointing evening for us," said Russell, the pilot of the Horses Around Farms/Russell Automotive racer. "We had a car that was capable of winning, but we just couldn't get a bite on the track tonight. I don't know if it was because of the Speedi-Dry from the cautions or the slick surface."

The race, which took an hour and 10 minutes to complete, had eight caution periods and just the one lead change. Keene's pay day included the $2,500 winner's purse and $100 for being the fast qualifier.

Cook of the Week

Vegetables are a big part of her life, recipes

COOK OF THE WEEK

RENEE KEITH

SANFORD — This week's featured Cook of the Week, Tawanna Haines, may be a tiny person in size, however, she definitely has some rather large thoughts and ideas that she wants to apply in different areas of her life. "I guess I want to do a lot of the traditional things in life that most women look for," said Haines. "It's just that I'm not in a real big hurry to do it all at one time."

Florida has been home for Haines all of her life. She has grown up in Sanford and has attended local grade schools. Her last stop thus far was Seminole High School. She plans on attending Seminole Community College later on in the fall. At that time Haines will be looking into taking some career enhancement classes as she feels that she will have a better idea as to what direction she will have to go with her education. "Right now, I'm just kind of kicking back (education-wise) enjoying a few years off from school," said Haines.

Haines is currently employed at Cal's Produce in Sanford. "I like being around people and, I enjoy meeting new people," said Haines. Of course, her job affords her every opportunity of meeting someone different every day. "We stay quite busy so I can't just stop and visit whenever I want but I still have had plenty of chances to chat with my customers," Haines said.

When Haines is not working, she enjoys spending time doing the things she likes to do to relax. "Sometimes I just like to park my car and go bike riding. "It's the greatest way I can find for relieving stress." "Riding around just before the sun goes down makes it a bit more pleasant and enjoyable weather-wise," she said.

As far as cooking, Haines has her own likes and dislikes with food. "I would much rather have something to eat that is all or just about all vegetables. I do enjoy meats once in awhile vegetables or vegetable casseroles are just so much better tasting and they're really a lot better for a person," said Haines. "Working at Cal's gives me a good chance to pick up and bring home whatever I want to prepare for myself that evening." In this awfully hot weather, steamed vegetables with maybe your favorite gelatin salad makes for a quite light and very delicious meal.

Haines shared a vegetable tip and some of her favorite recipes. "With the heavy rain going on up north it's pretty safe to assume that vegetable prices may be going up. So if you find your favorite vegetable on sale or you just want to make sure you have some on hand when that particular veggie is out of season, go ahead and buy it now so you can freeze it for that future use. "Just clean and blanch your veggies in a large pot of boiling water. (Blanche for about 1 1/2 to 2 minutes). Let them stand in the pot until they're cool. Then place them in freezer bags and freeze."

No offense is best defense at gunpoint

DEAR ABBY: I am an intelligent 30-year-old woman. My husband's 36-year-old sister, Susan, and I are equal partners in a small dress shop.

Two young boys — no older than 14 — came into our shop. One pointed a gun at us. The gun did not look real, but who wants to take a chance? We had only $35 and some change in the cash register. Had it not been for the gun, Susan and I would have been a match for them. One of the boys dangled two shoelaces and wanted to tie our hands. I figured it would take about two minutes to break the laces, and nobody would get hurt — in case the gun was real.

Well, Susan got real steamed and was ready to crown them, but I told her to relax. They tied our hands behind our backs and told us to wait five minutes. Boy, was I suckered! Two seconds later, these kids whipped out two rolls of duct tape and, before we could pop the shoelaces binding our hands, our mouths were taped and we were bound hand-and-foot, then dragged into a dressing room. It was two hours before a customer came and released us.

Abby, Susan is furious with me. She says we were pitiable to allow a couple of punks to humiliate us; we never should have let them tie our hands in the first place, etc. I didn't enjoy being tied up either, but I think my judgment was sound.

It has been over a month and we are barely speaking to each other. Who is right?

DEAR CAROL: You and Susan are fortunate to have lost only $35, plus suffering the indignity of being trussed like a couple of chickens. Had you challenged the boy holding the gun (regardless of his tender age) you both could have been two more casualties on the evening news. Your having insisted on complying with the youthful robbers' demands my have saved Susan's life — as well as your own.

DEAR ABBY: What can we do (if anything) about relatives who never invite us to their house, even though they have been wined and dined at our home many times? "We don't invite people over, but come over anytime."

Have you any idea why people do this? We are on good terms with them.

DEAR TOLEDO: Either they are insecure about their ability to properly reciprocate, or too lazy to prepare for guests.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 68440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90068. All correspondence is confidential.)

Carolyn Cooper says there is much work to be done at mission.

Mission work a benefit to volunteer, individuals

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Correspondent

WINTER SPRINGS — The Rescue Outreach Mission on 13th Street in Sanford has served over 83,000 meals and distributed more than 600 boxes of food to needy people in the area. They provide shelter and can accommodate approximately 80 people at one given time. Over 560 people were provided shelter in 1991 and the numbers continue to increase with each passing year. They refer to other agencies for special help and assist with in-service counseling. Mother Weaver has become a household name in much of Sanford. Her care and concern for the needy has offered food, clothing and spiritual guidance to disadvantaged, homeless and abused individuals of all races, origins, sex and ages. They are a non-profit corporation funded in part by United Way and donations from organizations, individuals and churches.

Carolyn Cooper is one of the volunteers for the mission. She spoke of the real inspiration of the commitment to her work. "In November 1993 I met Mother Weaver," she said. "I was bringing turkey and other food that I had bought for their Thanksgiving dinner. It was really inspiring meeting her. She's a beautiful person. She has been a great inspiration in my life. I just can't emphasize enough of her great work and how wonderful she is."

Cooper stays busy with her five children, Anthony, Cynthia, Victoria, Lorenzo and Alonzo. Although they are grown now, her three grandchildren, Jasmine, Cynthia and Lorenzo Jr. keep their grandma on her toes. She is faithful in her worship at Orlando Christian Center and is active in her church although much of her time is spent at the mission.

"Since I've found the Rescue Mission, I try to devote my time here," she said. "There's a lot of work to be done. Since my husband passed away a year ago, it's been good for me. It's kept my mind occupied."

She spoke of some of the rules that overnight guests must abide by at the mission. "They have to be in at 9 p.m.," she said. "The dormitories are separated, men from the women, so they must stay in their area." Plans for the new facility were discussed. "Hopefully, they will start the new building soon," she said. "It will be for women and children." She displayed a map of the spacious floor plan.

Volunteering at the mission allows much work with Mother Weaver. "I find my duties here include whatever Mother Weaver and her daughter, Sylvia Drake, want me to do," she said. "That's what I'm here for. I hope to work in the new building too."

Cooper spoke of the purpose of the mission. "Our purpose is to help the needy to get on their feet again," she said. "We help them find housing and jobs." She talked of how she found the work to be very rewarding. "Not all the people that come through here have drug or alcohol related problems," she said. "Some are just down on their luck and have lost their job or a place to live. I picture in my mind, what if that was me. To see people in certain conditions, it makes my heart go out to them. I want to see things work out in their lives."

She admitted that it takes a special kind of person to work with the homeless. "I think to work with the homeless you need to be called of God," she said. "It's a special love God puts in your heart for others." The motto of the mission is painted clearly on the outside of the walls, "To God Be The Glory," in bold letters.

Microwave desserts cool and easy

Sweet endings for summer meals are not always easy to prepare, time-wise. Our very warm days call for light and refreshing cool desserts. These recipes are quick and easy to create. By using the microwave oven the cooking and baking will not add heat to your kitchen. All of the desserts can be made ahead to enjoy later with a glass of iced tea or cup of hot coffee.

Key lime makes a great flavor for summer desserts. You'll enjoy this creamy, refreshing cheesecake.

KEY LIME CHEESECAKE
3 Tbsp. margarine or butter
1 1/4 cups graham cracker crumbs
1 Tbsp. sugar
1/4 cup cornstarch
1 1/4 cups water
2 tsp. grated lime peel
1/4 cup fresh Key lime juice
2 eggs, beaten
2 packages (8 oz. each) cream cheese
1 cup sour cream
2 Tbsp. sugar

Microwave (100 percent) margarine in uncovered 2-quart batter bowl 45-60 seconds or until melted. Stir in crumbs and 1 tablespoon sugar. Press firmly into bottom of 9- or 10-inch microwave springform pan*. Microwave on 100 percent, uncovered, 1-1/4 minutes or until heated through. Set aside.

Combine 1 cup sugar, cornstarch and water in 2-quart batter bowl. Microwave (100 percent), uncovered, 4-5 minutes or until mixture boils and thickens, stirring once. Stir in lime peel and juice and beaten eggs until blended. Microwave (100 percent), uncovered, 1-1/4 minutes or until edges are bubbly, stirring once. Cool 30 minutes.

Microwave (100 percent) cream cheese in bowl 45-60 seconds or until softened. Beat cream cheese until fluffy. Beat in lime mixture. Pour into crumb crust. Refrigerate about 30 minutes or until partially set. Combine sour cream and 2 tablespoons sugar in 2-cup glass measure. Microwave (100 percent), uncovered, 2-2/4 minutes or until heated through, stirring once. Spread over cheesecake. Refrigerate until served, at least 6 hours. Cut into wedges; garnish with sliced lime.

Exercise may help intestinal disorder

DEAR DR. GOTT: Are there exercises or physical training that are helpful for irritable bowel syndrome? My physician is unfamiliar with this process.

DEAR READER: There are no exercises specifically for irritable bowel syndrome, a common intestinal disorder marked by excessive gas, abdominal discomfort, diarrhea, or constipation.

Nonetheless, general exercises -- such as brisk walking, biking or swimming -- may help you. As you may have discovered, irritable bowel syndrome is frequently worsened by stress and depression. Both these conditions may be tempered by exercise.

Therefore, regular exercise will benefit you not because of its effect on the intestine but because it could help relieve some of the tensions contributing to your symptoms. In addition, you might also try using Metamucil daily; its stool-bulking effect often stabilizes bowel function.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Irritable Bowel Syndrome." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been living in Florida for a year. The first six months, my health was fine and I felt wonderful. In January I met a gentleman and started seeing him. At once I developed sore throats. Although we are senior citizens, we engage in some heavy kissing. I went up north for a month and the problem cleared. Within a week of returning, I suffered from a sore throat and congestion. Am I allergic to my gentleman friend?

DEAR READER: Evidently, but consider also the possibility that you could be reacting to something like cologne or after-shave lotion that your gen-

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Every year in London, the House of Commons battles over the bridge table against the House of Lords. This year's was the 20th such meeting, with the Upper House leading 10-9. With one deal remaining, the Commons was ahead by more than 1,000 points. This was the fateful final deal.

Six spades is laydown if the trumps break 2-1 or the hearts are 3-2; a probability of almost 93 percent. But, as you can see, this is one of the seven-percent deals.

For the Commons, one North-South pair stopped in four spades and the second reached six spades but went down against accurate defense.

Both pairs for the Lords bid to six spades. In the given auction, South, Lord Gisburgh, opened with an Acol two-bid; strong and forcing for one round. North, Baroness Oppenheim-Barnes, instead of making a game-forcing three-spade raise, tried to convey that she had a wonderful hand for spades lacking top trump honors. Gisburgh was happy to raise.

West led the heart nine, hoping partner held the ace. But this gave away the position of the suit. Gisburgh won with dummy's ace, drew three rounds of trumps ending in the dummy and finessed the heart eight through East for 12 tricks.

At the fourth table, West led the diamond four. East won with the ace and returned the suit. South, Lord Smith, ruffed and drew trumps. On the second round, East discarded a heart! He had ignored this basic rule: Keep equal length with the dummy.

The Lords had won by the

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Ozel

YOUR BIRTHDAY
Thursday, July 14, 1994

Your pattern of friendships in the year ahead could be a bit more unusual than that to which you've been accustomed. It looks as though you may simultaneously form several little circles of pals.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your independence might mean too much to you today, and this may cause you to fail to cooperate with others in ways that could be mutually advantageous. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's best not to assume assignments today that could exceed your talents. No one will think less of you if you recognize your limitations.

VERGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be on your best behavior socially today, because someone on whom you're trying to make a good, lasting impression and who you're anxious to have admire you might be observing you from a distance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Competitive developments must not be handled indifferently today. If you underestimate your opposition, you might finish back in the pack instead of first.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Plans not predicated on realistic premises could have small chances for success today. Be practical, be purposeful, and be methodical.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Joint ventures that require you to put up cash in advance should be reviewed in detail today. Be sure you understand all of the ramifications before participating.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) For the sake of expediency today, you might be tempted to agree to something before weighing all the alternatives; later you'll wish you hadn't.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In order to perform at your best today, you'll need some type of consistent motivation. Lukewarm interests are not apt to generate your most earnest efforts.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A friend with whom you might be involved today has a bad habit of gossiping about others. Be careful what you say to this person, because he/she may talk about you when you're not present.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Success could be denied you today if your goals and objectives are not clearly defined. You must know what you want, why you want it and exactly how you intend to get it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone with whom you might be involved today may not be as frank and forthright as you are. Be a bit skeptical and don't believe everything he/she tells you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be very watchful today in your involvements with others where there is something of material value at stake. Be sure the facts and figures you are given all add up correctly.
