

Crowds Thrill To Performance

Thousands Witness Rotary Air Show

By KRIS NASH
Herald Staff Writer

Take about 14,000 paying customers and string them along the main runway at the Sanford-Central Florida Airport. Spread several hundred more across the concrete behind the containment ropes, where they line up at static display vans, cluster about concession stands and just generally mill around. Overhead, stick a pack of gaudy red, white or green aerobatic biplanes which roar through octagonal loops, rolls, dives and spiraling climbs, outlining each maneuver with trailing streamers of white smoke. Follow them up with the thundering, streamlined majesty of the U.S. Navy's Blue Angels, scissoring smoothly from one precise formation to another, whipping through a 30-minute series of maneuvers with a classic grace that brings gasps of admiration from the audience. Scatter untold thousands of additional onlookers along surrounding roadsides and in yards throughout the Sanford area and you've got the complete scenario, cast and setting of the Sanford Rotary Club's third annual Charities Benefit Air Show. Call it "The Roar of the Aircraft, the Swell of the Crowd." Approximately 6,000 persons on Saturday and another 8,000 Sunday paid their way in to watch the aerial exploits of most of America's top aerobatic professionals, according to an estimate by Rotaryan Tony Russi, chairman of program and ticket sales for the show. In addition to the aircraft routines, spectators craned their necks and peered into the bright sky to watch the plunging, criss-crossing patterns of sky divers from the U.S. Navy Parachute team as they rocketed down from about 10,000 feet, marked by streaks of colored smoke, finally popping their colorful canopies open around 2,200 feet. Ed Ballinger flashed across the runway so swiftly in his Conklin Comet Rocket car, holder of the Florida land speed record, that it was hard for the eye to follow him. And members of the Naval Training Center drill team and 50-state flag team executed maneuvers with stiff, military precision despite a stiff breeze that whipped through their heavy frags. Favorable comments could be heard along the entire length of the viewing line and Russi added that the performers, all top-flight pilots and veterans of

Bees Block Interstate Over St. Johns River

An estimated 100,000 bees blocked traffic in the northbound lanes on the I-4 bridge over the St. Johns River west of Sanford for nearly an hour early Sunday. Sheriff's deputies and Florida Highway Patrolmen stopped traffic at 3 a.m. while two disabled trailer trucks and five smashed bee hives were removed from the bridge. Deputy Frank Ambrose, said he responded to a Citizens Band radio report of disabled vehicles on the span to find that the beehives apparently had fallen from a vehicle and the area was swarming with angry bees. Officers said the trailer trucks had run over the beehives, damaging tires and air hoses. There were no reported injuries. Lake Mary beekeeper Don Regan was called to the scene by authorities. He said a hive usually contains 20,000 to 25,000 bees.

Area Enjoys A Balmly Easter As Northeast Swelters

Thousands of Seminole County residents, dressed in their finest, attended Easter worship services Sunday and spent the remainder of the almost flawless day at the air show, visiting friends or just enjoying the sunshine and high 80-degree temperatures. Meanwhile, a heat wave that brought 90-degree temperatures along the East Coast cut down attendance in the traditional Easter parades.

County Sees Water Rate Hike

Some 1,600 customers of the two utilities owned by Seminole County may be asked in two to three months for a 25 to 30 per cent increase in water bills, Utility Director Bill Dale predicted today. "We need more dollars," Dale said this morning at a work shop meeting called to discuss complaints from some customers about unclear wording on monthly bills. As rationale for the anticipated rate increase, Dale cited "rising costs" in labor, materials and just about everything else associated with running a utility. Seminole County entered the utility business last November with purchase of the two firms. At that time no significant rate increases were expected. But Dale said today the commission may be asked to approve a 25 to 30 per cent increase to cover spiraling costs.

About three per cent of the county's utility customers have complained that they are unsure about the time involved in penalty payments. Dale also said the commission will be asked for a policy decision concerning wording of bills. Dale said the final decision on whether to ask commissioners for the rate hike will depend on many factors. But he said it looks now about 30 per cent more money is needed in utility revenues to meet estimates of the county anticipated when the county bought the two firms. County Commission Chairman Michale Hattaway and Commissioner Harry Kwiatkowski attended today's meeting. Kwiatkowski said though the complaint factor is only three per cent, many customers are irritated by the penalty clause contained in the bills. On an unrelated but equally important issue, Hattaway said he will work with Exec. Asst. Roger Neiswender later today to come up with an "administrative procedure" regarding the county's unwritten policy of collecting "voluntary contributions" from area developers and builders. "I predict we'll have it for the board to decide on tomorrow," the chairman noted.

Orr Replies To Queries On SEEDCO

By ED PRICKETT
Herald Staff Writer

SEEDCO President Horace Orr today released answers to some 136 questions posed by an Orlando newspaper which Orr says "seek intent of criminality" on the part of the Sanford-based poverty fighting agency. Orr said he is releasing the answers to "all of the media." We have decided on this course to assure the widest possible public dissemination of the information on file and to avoid as nearly as possible arbitrary, capricious or self-serving interpretation." Today's release of the answers to the media is based on a decision Orr made at a Feb. 26 press conference in which he asked State Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Lakeland, for an audit to "clear the air" of charges leveled at SEEDCO. (The Seminole Employment Economic Development Corporation.) Chiles asked the General Accounting Office (GAO) to audit SEEDCO records, and the governmental watchdog agency agreed to perform the audit of books here in Sanford. The bulk of the questions center on SEEDCO's hiring of consultants from outside the county to perform jobs and studies for the agency. Orr's response was that he hires wherever the "expertise" can be found to get the job done. Other questions seek information about the agency's nine "ventures," or corporations purchased in hopes of putting welfare recipients on paying jobs. "Still others ask Orr if any SEEDCO, board or staff members "received any favored treatment from banks or lending institutions where SEEDCO money is being held on deposit. If so what favors were granted?" Orr's reply: "None, to my knowledge." Today, Orr said many of the questions were phrased in such a manner as to "seek an intent of criminality" on the part of the $23,000-a-year director or some of the agency's officers, board or staff members. The questions, he said, asked "anything they could" to elicit some "degree of criminality." Another small group of questions center on two "problem" ventures owned by

Thousands of Seminole County residents, dressed in their finest, attended Easter worship services Sunday and spent the remainder of the almost flawless day at the air show, visiting friends or just enjoying the sunshine and high 80-degree temperatures. Meanwhile, a heat wave that brought 90-degree temperatures along the East Coast cut down attendance in the traditional Easter parades. In an Easter sermon, the Rt. Rev. Paul Moore Jr., Episcopal bishop of New York, denounced businesses which make the "immoral decision" to leave New York and take their jobs to other areas. Sunrise services were held throughout the nation, observing the resurrection of Jesus Christ. Outdoor worshipers were held on the deck of the nearly 200-year-old USS Constitution in Boston Harbor, on the south rim of the Grand Canyon in Arizona, at the Meramec Caverns in Stanton, Mo., and on an ocean outcropping at Cape Elizabeth, Maine. President and Mrs. Ford drove by motorcade 10 miles from his Camp David retreat to attend Easter service at the 150-year-old Episcopal Harriet Chapel in Catoctin Furnace, Md. The pastor, the Rev. Charles Shaffer, said he prepared the service for his parishioners, "and anyone else who comes is welcome."

HINTS FROM HELOISE

"DEAR POLKS: Just dated my ex-obnoxious from my brides today and thought of something handsome, down. It has been that long, anyway, which I always did when I dated in China. Chinese are very creative people and a servant (which to me, Chinese are) is a great asset. How to decorate Easter eggs for the kiddies: Hard-boiled and use the usual construction paper and colored markers. Contrasting colors are pretty. Contrasting colors are pretty. Contrasting colors are pretty. Contrasting colors are pretty. Contrasting colors are pretty." (Note: The text in the image is partially obscured and repetitive.)

"DEAR HELDISE: I have been sick and during this time I have reached my limit for an idea for a present to buy for my mother. I was cross-stitching a pin..."

"DEAR HELDISE: I have an almost 11-year-old who has read your column faithfully ever since I began. I have always dreamed of sending you a hint. Well, here it is... I had a favorite old Eskimo because too short. So I cut off the bottom, made a hem, and the Eskimo came. I also cut off the top." (Note: The text in the image is partially obscured and repetitive.)

Alien Control Bill Welcome

The problem of how to cope with the social and economic problems caused by the entry of an estimated 4 to 12 million illegal aliens in to the United States each year is vexatious because punitive as well as benign considerations are involved.

Congress has itself been wrestling with the problem since 1972 when a series of hearings were held around the country to determine its scope. In recent years the House has passed bills similar to the current Rodino bill that would punish employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens. This approach was successful in a brief application of a California law several years ago.

However, the U. S. Senate always balked at following the House action. The Rodino and other bills to solve the illegal alien problem always were pigeonholed by Sen. James O. Eastland, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, who has refused to call a meeting of the immigration subcommittee for the last 7 years.

Consequently, it was good news when the Mississippi Democrat did convene the committee recently to consider his proposed amendments to the immigration act, which are not too different from those of Rep. Peter J. Rodino.

His decision to act augurs well for a measure to emerge from Congress this year that could open up as many as one million new jobs and take a long step toward relieving unemployment in the United States.

Banking Threat

Arabs from 20 countries met in Cairo recently to update their boycott list — a secret roster said to number 2,000 companies around the world being denied Arab business because they do business with Israel. Sixteen companies were added to the list at Cairo and 45 were removed. Among the latter is the British Leyland Motor Co. which presumably has agreed to stop selling cars and trucks to Israel so it can sell them to the Arabs.

This obvious form of economic pressure is getting increased attention in the U. S. Congress. Many American firms are said to be on the boycott list. Some have been removed after knocking under to Arab pressure. Bills before Congress would impose penalties against U. S. firms that yield to the boycott tactics — measures they could best avoid by taking a strong voluntary stand against the boycott.

The pressure that Arabs can bring on the U. S. economy is obviously growing. The Federal Reserve Board has revealed that $15 per cent of the deposits in America's six largest banks — about $1.5 billion — comes from Middle Eastern and North African oil producing countries. A threat to withdraw those funds could pose a serious problem for our banking structure.

Arab investment in U. S. banks and businesses, and purchase of U. S. goods and services, help recycle the dollars flowing to the Arab world through our heavy purchases of oil. In solving that monetary problem, however, the United States must not walk into a trap leaving a substantial segment of our economy at the mercy of foreign investors. The use by the Arabs of their anti-Israel boycott list should be evidence enough that they are willing to practice blackmail. We've had far warning.

Mail No Luxury

The dilemma of the U.S. Post Service was all too obvious recently when Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar addressed the Economic Club of Detroit.

The bulk of Mr. Bailar's speech is a well-known and oft-told tale. Inflation and rising costs of labor have forced reductions in mail operations even as the cost of mailing a letter or package has risen dramatically. The poorer service at a higher cost has encouraged the rise of more efficient private mail and package businesses.

The figures are from a survey conducted by the agricultural bankers division of the American Bankers Association.

If first class mail is a luxury? "Do all Americans really need a six-day-a-week delivery... to... front doors?" he asks. Our guess is that first class mail is more of a necessity than a luxury to millions of Americans. It is not an institution that they will relinquish readily. The same is true of daily mail deliveries.

If either is dropped, we predict that the Postal Service will find itself facing even graver financial problems. The time is coming when Americans will have to decide whether the mails should be self-supporting.

Arbitration Is Alive, Flourishing

In this lawsuit-prone age, it's good to observe that the idea of arbitration is not only alive but flourishing.

The year 1976 marks the 50th anniversary of an organization which has done yeoman service in helping Americans resolve their conflicts and which has firmly established its authority as an alternative to the courts — the American Arbitration Association (AAA).

Mention the word arbitration and most people will think of it primarily as a labor relations procedure. Actually, of the more than 35,000 cases that the association heard last year — 35,000 that did not wind up in the courts — 14,000 involved automobile accident claims, more than 11,000 dealt with labor-management grievances and 4,000 arose out of contract disputes between businessmen. Other cases involved consumer complaints, medical malpractice claims and even family and personal disputes.

Arbitration, the settlement of a dispute through the mediation of impartial third parties, is really an old American tradition. George Washington's last will and testament provided for three "impartial and intelligent men" to decide any disputes that might arise over the disposition of his worldly goods. The AAA was created in 1926 by the merger of two prior existing organizations, the Arbitration Society of America and the Arbitration Foundation.

By the time America entered World War II, companies and unions had already had some experience with the arbitration of grievances. This was given a big boost during the war years because the War Labor Board would not approve any collective agreement that did not provide for grievance arbitration.

By 1963, the Bureau of Labor Statistics was able to report that 89 per cent of all collective bargaining contracts had arbitration clauses. It was in this decade that the AAA first became involved in administering union elections.

In 1967, the AAA arbitrated 360 unannounced motorist cases. By 1968, the number had risen to 6,343. International trade arbitration also grew apace. Six foreign governments and nationals of 35 countries were involved in cases filed with the AAA in one year alone.

The past 50 years have but prologue for this organization, which is dedicated to helping people resolve disputes through the processes of reason.

There's money in farming. Bank loans to American farmers totaled no less than $2.8 billion in 1975, which is a sizeable chunk of anybody's economy.

Of that total, $5.9 billion — an increase of 9 per cent over 1974 — was borrowed from real estate and $18.2 billion — up 6 per cent over 1974 — was for farm machinery, fertilizer, feed and livestock.

The figures are from a survey conducted by the agricultural bankers division of the American Bankers Association.

Remember the energy crisis, the recession at its zenith, when the construction industry in Central Florida "bottomed-out" and the tourist industry was so severely hurt? Major industries with their reservoir of planners and thinkers were under, it is justice to cry "incompetent," under such unforeseeable circumstances. The more than ample supply of devices that they, which as you put it expresses "let them eat cake."

The composition of racism and prejudice is threads was developed by Johnson Gage, a Bloomfield, Conn., firm, which sent NASA its assessment of the problem in July 1973. In blunt language, the firm warned NASA confidentially that the standards for the space shuttle fasteners "provide for a loophole that allows (NASA) to accept outright junk."

Computer tests of the screw threads, meanwhile, revealed that millions worth of faulty threads had reached Rockwell International, the principal space shuttle contractor, as a result of the low standards. It was feared some of the inferior screws had found their way into the space shuttle equipment.

The minutes of a meeting at Rockwell's Canoga Park, Calif., facility show that the company engineers were worried about the fasteners. "The standards as currently written," stated the minutes, "are weak and ineffectual."

Although Rockwell's own fasteners were generally excellent, the company bought fasteners from outside suppliers and could not control "the quality of 6,000 vendors in 47 states," the minutes added.

A rocket similar to those used for the space shuttle was filmed by high-speed cameras around the launch pad. The precision films show the parts of the pad actually coming apart because the fasteners didn't hold.

Still, the aerospace industry found to keep salaries of elected officials. One is that the pay should be sufficient to attract talent while a second is that talented persons should give of their abilities to the system in return for rewards from the marketplace.

Another theory says that if the salary is too low, only the rich can afford to hold office and make the laws which govern us all. There are many, many others.

I would choose some position in between the theories mentioned. I think elected officials should be compensated well for their time and talent. But I do not think a $12,000 yearly salary for the part-time job of a state legislator is too high, just as $15,000 for the part-time position of county commissioner is too high.

But to hold public office for free, when, that's something else again. At any rate, Ryan says at this point in his life he is "financially able," to contribute larger sums to the charity of his choosing.

Interestingly enough a Seminole County candidate for the Florida Legislature is a candidate for the county commission say that they would not pocket the salaries that go along with the two elective positions if they get the jobs.

Candidates who say they will turn back their entire salary are either (1) Dedicated public servants, (2) Destructors of publicity, (3) Wealthy, (4) Candidates for the Nut House, (5) Candidates with an all-consuming desire for public office, or (6) Some combination of one or more through five.

Seriously, I'm sure that other reasons exist, but no less surprising when a candidate for public office offers to refuse to pocket his salary. Still the fact remains that Jim Ryan says, if elected to the legislature, he will pledge the $12,000-a-year salary to charity. And James Carlson, a candidate for the Seminole County Commission seat occupied by Republican Commissioner Richard Williams, says, if elected, he will return to county coffers his $15,000-a-year salary.

Many conflicting theories exist concerning

Ryan, a Democrat, says he will announce his candidacy for State Rep. Vince Fectala's seat on the first day he is able to qualify. He already has a deal made whereby he would turn the $12,000 over to charity.

Ryan's list runs as follows: Retarded children, 25 per cent; Central Florida Zoological Society, 25 per cent; American Cancer Society, 25 per cent; Salvation Army, 10 per cent; Boy and Girl Scouts, 10 per cent and others five per cent.

"Not to belabor the point," Ryan says, "but I heartily agree with your contention that a $12,000 yearly salary — plus 'other' benefits — is a great deal more money than any sensible person would consider to be fair and reasonable — for a part-time job."

Ryan says he sincerely hopes his announcement to turn back the salary is not considered a "political gimmick."

Last year he publicly announced that "when elected to the Florida Legislature, I will give my entire net income to charity."

Dickey: Gators 50-50 Chance On McTear

FLORIDA (AP) — Facing a possible investigation in the recruiting of sprinter sensation Houston McTear, Coach Dickey says he still sees a 50-50 chance of having McTear on the Florida football team this fall.

"It's not at all easy I got involved. We wanted McTear and he still is," Dickey said recently. "He's an exceptional athlete."

Dickey said he is confident that Florida coaches did not exceed the three visits allowed by National Collegiate Athletic Association rules in recruiting the senior wide receiver at Baker High School in the Florida Panhandle.

But McTear has not only indicated he's cooling off on the event going to college, his academic record is short of the 2.0 — equivalent to C average — required for intercollegiate competition.

Freshman admissions director Bill Kolb said McTear has not yet applied for admission or taken the 12th grade placement test. But Kolb added, as a potential scholarship athlete, a place is reserved for McTear or anyone who might replace him for the football team.

Dickey said that Florida coaches visited Baker High to check on how McTear was doing academically but on these visits spoke only to teachers and administrators.

"We have carefully gone back through all our records," Dickey said. "I must conclude we have only had three official visits with Houston."

McTear, who shares the world 100-yard dash record of nine seconds, has signed a letter of intent to attend Florida but recently has indicated he may skip college for professional track. The NCAA permits coaches from a member college to visit a prospect three times. An accidental encounter, called a bump, does not count as one of the official visits.

"A coach can't actively recruit a player after a bump or it will be counted as an official visit," David Brest, executive assistant in the NCAA enforcement department at Kansas City, told The Florida Times-Union.

Brest said that reports of excess visits is the type of thing the NCAA would investigate but refused to say if the McTear case will be probed.

McTear was quoted by the Miami News as saying that Florida coaches "came here so many times I can't even count them."

While in Pensacola for a high school track meet, McTear told the Pensacola News-Journal, "I saw them every time they came. They would be at the school talking to the coach and I would show up."

McTear later retracted his comments.

A POINT WELL TAKEN Seminole High baseball coach Jerry Mays makes his point, and the team seems to be taking it well, because the Seminoles are top-seeded in the subdistrict tournament this weekend in Daytona Beach. Seminole was 10-0 in subdistrict play and 17-5 overall. ## Nets Sweep Game, Fight

San Antonio, Tex. (AP)—The New York Nets won more than just the fourth game of their American Basketball Association playoff series against the Detroit Pistons in Detroit on Sunday. They won the fight, too.

In both locker rooms after the game, talk centered more on the second period fight, which erupted both benches than on the game, won by the Nets 110-108, which ended the series 2-2.

San Antonio's George Karl squared off against New York's Brian Taylor in the main event. "Taylor just hit the hell out of Karl," said Karl, who several times has complained the games in this playoff series are too physical. "We lost the fight, too."

Before Taylor and Karl could be separated, players from both teams had entered other arm-wrestling skirmishes across the court.

Police, coaches and referees eventually cleared the floor. "The best-of-seven semifinal series resumes tonight in Louisville, with the clubs tied 1-1."

Notes Coach Kevin Loughery said the fight was a result of the pressures normal to a playoff series. "It's just the intensity of the game," he said, and Taylor Ulrich upsets Frank Sedgman.

76ers, Bucks Eliminated

By The Associated Press
Remember the home-court advantage, that much-bally-hood edge for which various National Basketball Association teams screamed and clawed at each other through the final weeks of the regular season?

Well, the Philadelphia 76ers and Milwaukee Bucks will have all summer to try and find out where it went.

Both teams were eliminated from the NBA playoffs Sunday in the type of games in which the home-court advantage is supposed to be most prominent—close, hard-fought, pressure-packed contests, where every shot is on the line. Both were playing before enthusiastic crowds at their home arenas—and both were beaten.

The Buffalo Braves, trailing by as many as 11 points in the third period, nipped Philadelphia 124-123 in overtime; the Detroit Pistons, whose 36-46 regular season record equals the worst of any team ever to reach the NBA playoffs, edged Milwaukee 107-104.

Both were the decisive games of best-of-three preliminary round series, and the survivors are now matched against the top clubs in the two conferences. Detroit opens its best-of-seven series against the defending NBA champion Golden State Warriors in Oakland Tuesday and Buffalo begins play against the Boston Celtics in Boston Wednesday.

In the only other NBA playoff game Sunday, the Phoenix Suns beat the Seattle SuperSonics 103-91 to take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven quarter-final series.

The fourth quarter-final match, between the Cleveland Cavaliers and Washington Bullets, resumes Wednesday night in Landover, Md., with Cleveland holding a 2-1 advantage. John Shumate, who is getting used to bouncing out of hospital beds, made one of his fastest recoveries over the weekend—and it proved fatal to the 76ers. Shumate, who sat out last season with a blood disease, was felled by a wayward elbow Saturday night. He suffered a concussion, needed four stitches and spent the night in Buffalo's Millard Fillmore Hospital.

Just a dozen years ago, the normal starting field was 250, considered outlandish at the time. Today, on its 80th anniversary, there were nearly 2,200 entries for the Patriots' Day run from Hopkinton to Boston.

"We've done just about everything possible to limit the field, even lowering the qualifying time to three hours for runners under 40, but we still wind up with a big field," Boston Athletic Association race director Will Cloney said.

Despite a wild logistics jam, Cloney takes what appears to be an impossible task in stride—and without pay. A former Boston newspaper sports editor and college professor, Cloney, now an investment executive, grins and bears it.

"This is not bad for a nation that is supposed to be fat, lazy and out of shape," Cloney said during an interruption while checking to see if there was enough beef stew for the runners at the finish at the Prudential Building in Boston's Back Bay.

Marriage Counseling A Marketplace With Many Products

No One Therapy Is Right For Every Troubled Couple

By JOANNE and LEW KOCH (Second in series)
The Herald Service

We'd like you to think of marriage counseling as a marketplace. The marketplace was once a small one with only a few products.

But look at the marketplace now. A couple hoping to find a cure for an ailing marriage may not even know the name brands—Gestalt, Transactional Analysis, Bioenergetics, Psychodrama, Behavior Modification, Encounter Groups, Family Therapy, Sex Clinics, Pastoral Counseling, Marriage Encounter, Feminist Therapy—to name a few.

The best way to make your way through the maze of therapies is to learn—by asking questions, reading, talking to people who have therapeutic experience—what a particular approach aims to do. Remember, too, never submit yourself to anything no matter what it is called that seems humiliating to you.

In this article, we focus on three therapies in which husband and wife may participate as a couple.

Gestalt therapy Robert Salmahar, a gestalt-trained marriage counselor, explains, "One of the objects of Gestalt Therapy is to reactivate a sense of responsibility for one's existence." The therapy focuses on the surface pattern of one's life—whether it involves fatness, marital hostility or sexual dysfunction. The Gestaltist only deals with the past in a present-oriented way.

A woman may, for instance, want to discuss her mother because she thinks her mother is profoundly affecting her marriage—even though her mother died four years ago. The Gestaltist doesn't want to hear her childhood stories. He wants her to discuss her relationship with her mother only as it affects the present context.

The upshot of this exercise might be the woman saying, "Mother, what I am letting you do me right now is to prevent me from enjoying sex with my husband, making me hate and berate him because he is fun-loving, which is one of the reasons I married him, although you disapproved."

"Mother, we no longer have the relationship that we did when I was your child 25 years ago. This is to say good-bye to that part of you."

Salmahar describes this as a classic Gestalt event—saying good-bye to distorted elements that have been influencing you from the past. At that moment of breakthrough—a sudden grasping of the whole—the empty chair may seem magical.

But, if you are the woman in question, you must integrate the awareness into a new way of relating to your husband. Do you have the desire and resources for change? Can the therapist follow up the breakthrough with helpful observations? You should keep such questions in mind when you interview a Gestalt therapist.

Encounter Groups can be helpful. They can also be very harmful. One man we interviewed described the emotional euphoria he had experienced at a series of encounter sessions. In a moment of enthusiasm he followed the requirement for psychiatry and lasting emotional well-being. People in emotional difficulties are, nevertheless, full, intelligent human beings. They must be involved in the healing process if they are to solve their own difficulties.

Three major elements of the TA perspective include seeing behavior as transactions between the "parent or adult or child" within a person, and the notion of "games," and the concept of the "script." Lieberman emphasizes a destructive life script will tend to choose partners who engage with them in destructive games. Ralph was an alcoholic who chose as his partner Dorothy, who also drank heavily. They both wanted to quit, but played a "It you quit, I'll quit" game.

Finally, Ralph contacted Steiner, who agreed to see him if he agreed not to drink for one year.

The contract, an integral part of TA treatment, is a clear expression of what kind of cure or help is being requested—an equally clear statement by the therapist of what he can (and cannot) render.

As soon as Ralph agreed to pull out of the game, Dorothy followed with amazing speed. There were three important reasons Ralph was able to keep his contract to stop drinking: 1) his therapist would not play "rescuer"; 2) he no longer had a partner who would play the game; 3) he, himself, could no longer play either Persecutor or "It"—a non-person, a lynch.

As Ralph put it, "I don't have anybody to play with anymore, so I stop in it. It's been good not staying in it. It's been good for me because it makes me more independent. I'd better take care of myself."

behavior. They can also turn into pressure groups, coercing people into actions they will later regret.

Even if your motives are sound, you must carefully scrutinize the leader. Charismatic encounter leaders are dangerous. If a leader is described to you as inspiring, visionary, dramatic with a sense of mission—you are probably hearing about a charismatic leader to be avoided at all costs," Lieberman emphasizes.

Finally, while encounter groups can allow us to express feelings that we don't express in our normal lives, too many group leaders believe that expressing feelings is itself a solution to a problem.

Because of the many limitations and pitfalls of encounter groups, we tend to feel that couples with serious marital problems should seek clear of them unless the weekend is part of a more personalized, ongoing counseling program.

Transactional Analysis There are now over 10,000 TA practitioners treating people today. Millions of individuals mouth the terms "parent," "child," "adult," "strokes"—more thoroughly than anyone else in the country, recommends that a potential encounter group member question his or her own motives. "Do you feel an encounter group can 'save' you and change your life? If you expect salvation, major upheavals in your life and personality, by all means avoid encounter groups. Your risk of serious psychological damage is high."

Encounter groups should provide a supportive setting for practicing new or different

Growing Up To Problems No Fun

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am nearly 13, and I have been reading your column since I was about 11. From the looks of the way married people hate each other, it makes me afraid to get married.

I don't think it would be very much fun to be a grownup paying taxes and the whole political mess. I don't know what I am going to do when I get out of school, but I think I'd rather just spend my whole life in school than be an adult in a world like this one. People keep talking about peace and love, and all they do is go around hurting and killing each other.

What do you think I should do?

Saturday Night Causes Big Stir
By JAY SHARBUIT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - I fear the White House is swamped today by outraged telegrams and inquiries from the Spanish government. And the media is wondering if the White House has, well, "gone bananas."
You see, Ron Nessen, President Ford's spokesman, appeared on NBC's late-night "Saturday Night" comedy show to host proceedings that were racy and bawdy, and hampered by the White House's "Saturday Night" tradition.
