Royal Jewels Are Moved To Crowning Site

London Is Excited As Coronation Nears

By PHILIP CLARKE
LONDON (AP)—Britain's priceless crown jewels were moved secretly into Westminster Abbey today for the coronation. All along London's glittering coronation route thousands of excited people staked out claims to standing room—a full 24 hours ahead of Queen Elizabeth's historic crowning and procession. Only a single car of detectives guarded the historic relics—including St. Edward's crown and the jewel-studded imperial state crown—on the journey from the crown jeweler's to the abbey, where the coronation will take place.

QUEEN ELIZABETH II and her husband, Prince Philip, stop to chat with a New Zealand bandsman (right) during a garden party on the grounds of Buckingham Palace at which she formally opened the coronation season. Some 7,000 persons from all over the world attended. In center (back to camera) is Queen Mother Elizabeth, and approaching her is Princess Margaret. In white (left) is the Duchess of Gloucester, with the Duke not far behind. The Princess Mary (wearing large hat) talks with him. (International Radiophoto)

This great city bubbled with excitement in anticipation of the great day. The spirit of festivity swept into Buckingham Palace, where Elizabeth's son, young Prince Charles, played peek-a-boo with the crowds gathered outside. The four-year-old kept popping his head up in a palace window, to the crowd's shouted delight.

Queen Elizabeth carried on her official duties with the Duke of Edinburgh as they received guests from commonwealth nations in the white and gold throne room at the palace. She had lunch with Prime Minister Churchill and 10 commonwealth prime ministers.

The 27-year-old queen, the second Elizabeth to rule, wore a cream silk dress with a small, black pattern and a diamond spray brooch on the left shoulder. Her husband was in morning clothes.

She greeted the guests in a bare, a dais on which there was a single chair of state of crimson silk damask. The dark crimson canopy above was surmounted with a crown. The only woman presented to Elizabeth was the Begum Liaquat Ali Khan of Pakistan, attired in Eastern dress.

The capital's annual nearness of a great outdoor camp. Hundreds slept in parks and along streets in the chill of last night. As dawn broke, over 100,000 British soldiers, thousands more waiting through.

Nearly a half million spectators were expected to attend tonight coronation eve, in the open in wall (Continued on page six)

Talk On Service Is Given Rotary By George Touhy

George Touhy spoke on the third subject of Rotary which is the "Application of the ideal of service to every Rotarian in his personal, business, and community life."

Declaring that every worthwhile organization must have some ideal or precept toward which to strive if it is to amount to anything, he said that if Rotarians unite to achieve even a small part of those ideals which they have then their organization is worthwhile.

Francis J. Deland, former undersecretary of the Navy, is scheduled to speak before a Rotary club meeting on the subject of "Service to the Community" on Wednesday, June 17, and that members of the other service clubs have been invited to attend.

Jack Raligan, inmate case president of the club, presided in the absence of President Bob Harris who has been transferred to Jacksonville. Lewis A. Barley, manager of the Bulk Ice Plant of the City of Sanford, Corporation, was presented by Charles Morrison with a Rotary pin, "Code of Ethics" and "Adventure in Service" as a new member of the club.

In pointing out that in any organization there must be a transition from the ideal of service to the performance of good deeds in a community, Mr. Touhy presented three rules to go by in trying to help one's community.

He urged that everyone should give talents cheerfully whenever called upon for help, and suggested that although it is always possible to find excuses to get out of doing anything, they should be avoided.

He also suggested that everyone should try to perform those services required which are close at hand. There are too many, he said, who are ready to "nikk reindeer" when there are no reindeer, but can't do anything else.

As a third rule, he advised (Continued on Page Six)

Banks Will Observe Jeff Davis Birthday

In observance of the birthday anniversary of Jefferson Davis, banks in Sanford will be closed all day Wednesday. Employees of the Florida State Bank plan an all-day excursion to Haines City on that date.

However, Postmaster Joel Field announced that the Post Office will be open until the usual noon closing time on Wednesday.

The Sanford Public Library will be open as usual on the birthday anniversary of the president of the Confederacy. Closing time is 1:00 p.m.

In line with the usual Wednesday closing time during the summer, most of the City's business houses will be open only during the morning.

The Jordan's Good Food Line train shown above appeared in Sanford Thursday and Friday, and much to the satisfaction of the City's residents changed its way through the downtown streets. The three-car train, plus the engine and coal car, came here from Orlando after earlier appearances last week in Apopka and Leesburg. It left for its base in Orlando Saturday morning.

Angus Guy McKinley Jr., of Sanford was one of 153 seniors who received degrees this morning in climax Davidson College's 117th Commencement Exercises. President John H. Cunningham awarded McKinley the Bachelor of Science degree. E. H. Little, chairman of the board of Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Company, delivered the commencement address.

Doyle, Knowles Are Certified To Post

James W. Doyle Jr. and Warren E. Knowles were recently certified by the Civil Service Board for appointment to city positions.

Mr. Doyle was certified to the city manager for appointment as a community, Mr. Touhy presented three rules to go by in trying to help one's community.

He urged that everyone should give talents cheerfully whenever called upon for help, and suggested that although it is always possible to find excuses to get out of doing anything, they should be avoided.

He also suggested that everyone should try to perform those services required which are close at hand. There are too many, he said, who are ready to "nikk reindeer" when there are no reindeer, but can't do anything else.

McKinley Gives Main Sermon At School Services

"Be good, work hard, find your job in life." This was the advice given to 100 graduating Seminole High School seniors by the Rev. J. E. McKinley as he delivered the main sermon in the baccalaureate services held last night at the high school auditorium.

"There is one pertinent question you should ask yourselves," he said as he addressed the students. "What is your job in life?"

Mrs. John B. Ford, Wife of Banker, Is Victim Of Suicide

DETROIT (AP)—Mrs. Katherine Ford, wife of the Detroit industrialist and banker, John B. Ford, was found dead in her home yesterday, the Wayne County coroner's office said today.

Earlier Mrs. Ford's death had been attributed by a family spokesman to a heart attack.

Mrs. Ford, 53, was a Detroit social leader. Her husband was president of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

Dr. Benjamin Schutman, deputy coroner, said the announcement that Mrs. Ford had taken her own life by hanging at the Ford home in Dearborn, Mich., was not made public immediately.

Police of the suburb said Mrs. Ford had been in the Ford home for a week or more. Her family said she had not been dependent.

Recently Mrs. Ford and her husband returned home after spending a week together at Henry Ford hospital for physical examination.

The Fords, one of Detroit's wealthy families, are no relatives of the Henry Ford family. The John Fords' wealth has industry largely from the chemical industry.

USO Campaign Effort Nets Weekend Sum

The plan adopted by the United Service Organization to raise funds during their drive netted $40 over the weekend according to Mrs. Camilla Bruce, treasurer for the campaign.

Both the Sanford Atlantic National Bank and the Florida State Bank stuffed checks made out to the USO and needing only individual signatures in their monthly statements.

But even though returns from that source have been good, Mrs. Bruce said only $106.82 has been raised to date. The goal is $1120.

City Heads Scan Report Made On Sewer Problem

City Commissioners were today studying a report submitted by Paul W. Richards, public health engineer, concerning treatment of the City's sewage, preparatory to Wednesday night's open meeting of the City Board of Health.

Mr. Richards, who is engineer for the Southeast Drainage Basin, Division Water Pollution Control of the U. S. Public Health Service, was in Sanford two weeks ago at the request of the Florida State Board of Health.

His report from the regional office at Tampa was submitted through the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering of the State Board of Health and addressed to Mayor Hamilton Chase and the City Commissioners.

In accordance with your request to the Florida State Board of Health for a representative of the Public Health Service to advise the City of Sanford in a consulting capacity regarding treatment of the City's sewage, the writer visited Sanford May 18 and 19, 1953.

The object of the visit was to assist the City in determining the degree of sewage treatment necessary for Sanford based on preliminary surveys of Lake Monroe by the Florida regulatory agency. On May 18, the writer toured Sanford with representatives of the City and its consulting engineer, Robert M. Child Bride Threatens To Leap Off Miami Jail As Huge Crowd Watches

MIAMI (AP)—The pretty 16-year-old wife of an Army deserter was rescued from a narrow ledge on the 25th floor at the Balle County courthouse today after threatening to get her husband or FBI jump.

Mrs. Sheila Mossa tumbled into the arms of Sheriff James J. Kelly at 10:13 a. m. just five hours and 33 minutes after she was discovered sobbing and banging her head on the one-foot wide ledge.

She was brought inside the jail and jailed.

"I want my husband and I'll jump here in two hours. I will jump," Mrs. Mossa declared.

The two hours passed and she was still there, sometimes leaning against a stone ornament on the ledge to keep from falling.

"Get my husband here or I'll keep repeating. I tried to commit suicide before when I lost him. I was crazy when I can't see my husband."

Her husband, Pvt. James J. Mossa, 21, was taken to the Miami Field, Tampa, after his capture near Ft. Lauderdale Wednesday. Air Force authorities said he deserted from Camp Breckinridge, Ky.

Reports from Tampa said that the young soldier was being held in an Air Force plane, falling in line with Mrs. Mossa's story.

Mrs. Mossa was quoted as saying Sunday that she had asked his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Mossa, for funds last December to help him get a divorce.

Deputy sheriff said that might be the reason for his wife's actions today. She had helped him escape from the Miami Air Force stockade May 12 and claimed he hated everything about military life and didn't want to go to Korea.

Both Mossa and his wife were recaptured Wednesday after an extensive search. She was held as a federal prisoner in the women's cell block on the 5th floor of the 28 floor skyscraper courthouse on a charge of harboring a deserter.

Bill Seeks To Bolster Lagging Popularity

TALLAHASSEE (AP)—The House passed House Bill 1753 regarding Sanford boundaries; and Senate Bill 1013 regarding insurance.

TALLAHASSEE (AP)—A bill to levy an additional 2 cents a box advertising tax on Florida grapefruit passed the House 49 to 27 today. Opponents declared the popularity of citrus concentrate is reducing grapefruit sales.

It was a Senate bill passed by the House but the measure must return to the Senate for action on a House amendment setting up an annual $100,000 reserve fund to make a rebate to grapefruit handlers who do their own brand advertising.

The rebate would be on the basis of $1 for every $2 spent on brand advertising. The total rebates paid in any one year could not exceed the $100,000 in the fund. Advertising would be restricted to display material and newspaper, billboard, magazine, radio and television promotion.

Passage of the bill was the major action of the morning as House and Senate opened their final week of session with few major items of general interest or controversy on their agendas.

Rep. Murray of Polk County said the citrus industry feels grapefruit is "not overlooked" citrus advertising.

"We think we can at least build up the market for grapefruit so it will be profitable to have grapefruit in a citrus grove," he said.

Opponents declared growers have not approved the tax. Rep. Murray of Polk County said the citrus industry feels grapefruit is "not overlooked" citrus advertising.

streets tributary in the lake. The discharge of domestic sewage, industrial waste, and the uncontrolled dumping of "night soil" into these creeks cannot be condoned by the citizens of our community.

These existing conditions appear indicative of the lack of a long-range planned program of the sewerage system and probable failure to provide sufficient personnel and funds for the proper maintenance of the system. A most acute health problem confronts the City in these tributaries to Lake Monroe. Action to correct these deficiencies must be taken in the immediate future. This and convey it to a primary type sewage treatment plant, providing disinfection, to be constructed concurrently with the intercepting sewer and appurtenances. An outfall line to transport effluent to the main channel of the St. Johns River through the Lake should be included in the construction program.

THE SANFORD HERALD

It appears that Lake Monroe can be an important primary asset to the City of Sanford if the waters are not abused by the City depending on it for treatment of sewage and industrial wastes. The use of such a body of water for any purpose is only warranted when adequate treatment is not enough. The adverse and unreasonable impairment of the potential beneficial water uses of Lake Monroe and the St. Johns River in the vicinity of Sanford, if uncontrolled, can reduce or partially destroy the preservation of its available water resources. In regard to pollution conditions existing at other cities throughout Florida, or the Nation for that matter, each stream or lake must be considered as an independent problem with respect to impairment of the water quality by sewage or industrial waste to a degree which adversely or reasonably affects such waters for various beneficial uses.

It has therefore been determined by the writer that a minimum of primary sewage treatment is called for at Sanford both from the public health standpoint and the enhancement of economic benefits that can be derived by the City.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Explicit broken sewers, manholes, and appurtenances thereto discharging sewage to creeks in the City be repaired immediately in order to reduce to a minimum the quantity of sewage flowing through "leaky" leak cards in same areas of the town.

That separate sewer systems, sanitary and storm, be planned for the City to be constructed in the immediate future. In the interest of construction economy, storm water sewer systems should discharge to the creeks within the City.

That an intercepting sewer and new pumping facilities be constructed to pick up the sanitary sewage at points along the lake

That an intercepting sewer and new pumping facilities be constructed to pick up the sanitary sewage at points along the lake

THE SANFORD HERALD

It is understood by the writer that the present proposed plan provides for correction of a portion of the above defects and installation of the Sanford sewage collection system. This will only partially preclude the health hazard condition resulting from raw sewage discharged into Lake Monroe.

Based on the technical data set forth in earlier reports, the discharge of raw or only macerated, ground or comminuted domestic sewage from Sanford into Lake Monroe at the shore line 500 feet or into the channel of the St. Johns River through the lake will not instantly abate the bacterial health hazard existing at the present time near the retaining wall. During periods of low stage in the St. Johns, favorable winds will cause lake currents to set in return of bacterial pollution to the Sanford waterfront.

To dispose of untreated wastes from Sanford at any of the points in the preceding paragraph will in the opinion of the writer still render the southern shore of Lake Monroe contaminated and should be deemed grossly polluted by human bacteria and unsafe for recreational purposes such as bathing, wading, swimming, water skiing, etc.

"Since the national water pollution control act stipulates that in the development of water pollution control programs due regard shall be given to the improvements which are necessary to conserve waters for recreational purposes and agricultural, industrial and all other legitimate uses, the

TODAY'S BIBLE VERSE
One of the four gospels was written by a physician. He knew that faith is the greatest medicine in the world. They shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover.—Mk. 16:18.

The General Federation of Women's Clubs asks President Eisenhower to give more women top jobs. What more important job is there than rocking the cradle that rules the world?

A bill has become law setting up a charter commission in Orlando.
First thing you know they'll have the commission-manager form of government which Sanford adopted 30 years ago.

In Chattahoochee Mr. Lamb is suing his mother-in-law, Mrs. Wolfe for alienation of his wife's affections. He should have known a lamb didn't have a chance with a wolf.

A 17-year-old youth kills himself playing Russian roulette as his bride of three days looks on in horror. This seems a tragic thing, but it may have been for the best;
for what chance does a man have to make a success of his marriage or his life if he is stupid enough to play Russian roulette.

Seminole County's two hospital bills have become law without the governor's signature. We hope neither one of them will be needed, and they will not if the Supreme Court validates the bond issue which was voted by the people last November. But if it does not, these new laws will facilitate another election for another bond issue, and like the last it will carry five to one.

While Sanford years for a hospital there are those in Orlando who would abandon one they have.
Residents in the neighborhood of the excellent Holiday House resent its expansion, believe its operations lessen the desirability of the area for dwelling, fear an adverse effect on land values. Well, we wouldn't want to live next to the Empire State Building but we wouldn't object to owning a little real estate under its shadows.

The people will have to vote upon the question of longer sessions for the Legislature, come 1954.
For this Legislature, has adopted a resolution calling for a constitutional amendment providing for 90 day sessions instead of 60 days if three-fifths of the members think more time is necessary. Since the amendment also provides that a legislator's salary shall be $1,200 a year without extra compensation for overtime, you'd think there'd be few 90 sessions. But that isn't the way a legislator's mind works.
There would be.

In a broad program to develop Central Florida inland waters, the Legislature asks that the St. John-Indian River canal connecting inland Florida with the lower east coast by waterways be included in the federal government's South Florida flood control project. The cost of the canal would be but a drop in the bucket compared with the overall cost of the project and it would give pleasure craft bound for Palm Beach and Miami an alternative route to the East Coast canal, as well as opening up Central Florida to Canaveral Harbor and the Atlantic Ocean.

A number of 1956 gubernatorial prospects are presenting their feathers in this session of the legislature, according to Allen Morris in the Orlando Sentinel, who points out that previous legislative experience is almost a must with a gubernatorial candidate. Six of them he single out for special mention as most likely to run in '56: Charley Jesse, LeRoy Collins, Wallace
George, Farris Bryant, Perry Harvey, and Robert Ford. But not all the candidates are so well known to the voters. Legislative news

Long Live The Queen!

Americans normally take little interest in the coronation ceremonies of kings and queens of foreign countries, but because the ties with England are still close despite the blending with other nationalities in the United States, because the pleasantries of such a ceremony now especially stand out in the Arab realities of the world, but perhaps more than anything else because Elizabeth herself is to fall in love with, her coronation tomorrow will be watched with interest by millions of Americans as well as by 600 million people of the British Empire.

For Elizabeth is a queen in her own right as well as by the rules of accession. She is the daughter of George VI who ascended the throne when his elder brother Edward VIII married Wallis Simpson as the second son of George V who was the son of Edward the VII and the grandson of the great Victoria. And Elizabeth could, if she wanted to, trace her ancestry back through a long line of English Kings, James I, Henry II, King John from whom Magna Charta was wrung, William the Conqueror, Edward the Confessor, and right on back to the Alfred the Great who ruled in 871.

But she is also a very beautiful woman, with a rare amount of intelligence who has by her own charm and grace won for herself a place in the hearts of millions of people throughout the world. She could, if she were not descended from English kings make herself a movie queen in the best sense of the word. Though it is said that every man in England is in love with her she is the devoted wife of Prince Philip the Duke of Edinburgh, and the mother of two fine children.

Through she has been queen only a little more than a year and three months and is only 27 years old, she is already spoken of as a second Victoria, who saw England reach into those distant lands where the sun never sets.
Her advice is sought by the ministers of state, and even Sir Winston is subdued in her presence. She arises at 7:30 each morning and follows through as busy a daily schedule
as an American president.

Some of us may wonder why England, still in the midst of an austerity program, should hold such a costly spectacle just to crown a queen. But the British are thrifty with all their love of tradition and by no means all of the 5 1/4 millions this show will cost the government will be lost. Almost half will be regained from the sale of seats, many of them to Americans, and the lumber which goes into the stands, will be recaptured and built into government houses.

And what a boon this celebration will be to business.
Millions of dollars worth of souvenirs are being sold, many of them to Americans, and hotel reservations have been sold out for more than a year. Over 20,000 householders have volunteered to help accommodate the visitors. Stores are jammed.

The British are too good as traders to suggest that business plays any part in the coronation ceremonies and any hint of commercialism would be extremely distasteful to the traditionalists, but it cannot be denied that the tourist business has been booked solid for weeks and the tourist business is booming.

Investment In Life

A man in Ohio brought the world a lot of song and tears. It cost him $750.

A family of robins, like most wild creatures having little consideration for private property, built a nest in the shackles of a huge trailer. It must have looked like a good place to bring up their young. They were not bothered by the fact that trailers rent for $150 a day. It didn't bother the man who owned the trailer too much either. He cautioned all his employees to see that the nest was not disturbed.

In their own good time the robins flew away. Next year the fledglings which were hatched in the nest in the trailer will have young of their own. For $750 the trailer owner made a contribution to the continuity of life.

That sort of man will be repaid. Some morning when his spirits need a lift, when he may be troubled about business or personal affairs, he will see a robin on his lawn or hear one chirping away in the trees. He will know that his investment is still paying dividends.

An Unsynthetic Note

A gentleman by the name of James Devane, writing in a publication entitled "Information," offers the following arresting philosophy: "Certain characteristics mark the age in which we live. First, the men of our day are able to break everything down, but they cannot make a synthesis.
They have split the atom, but they cannot put its bits together again. They have broken Europe into fragments, but they cannot unite the broken parts. They have torn man into five different parts — political, economic, scientific, aesthetic and moral man. There is wanting something which can unite these five parts into a human being."

The gentleman is absolutely correct. But we wonder if his observation hasn't been inspired by too much reading of the old nursery rhyme which describes how Humpty Dumpty "had a great fall" from a wall and how all the King's horses and all the King's men couldn't put Humpty together again." It could be.—Savannah News.

He Worked For Others

John Pierson, as well known in Orlando as in Sanford, unselfishly gave himself to public service in support of his belief in the future of Central Florida and its people.
Willingly and gladly his time and energies were devoted generously to causes that benefit young people. His work in the Boy Scout movement went back 25 years.
When civic matters were involved, it was natural for him to be put on a committee and to John Pierson it made no difference whether he was chairman or just a member.
He worked with equal enthusiasm and self sacrifice until the job was done.
He was first to credit others with good work. He sought no recognition of his own contributions.
He staged the recent Armed Forces Day parade at Sanford with such smoothness that made it appear to have been the work of many men. He was in Orlando for the American Legion convention. He died the day he returned to his Sanford home.
Mr. Pierson was even tempered, friendly and an outstanding man of service in everything pertaining to the public good. He was well known throughout this

Central Florida area and his passing will be mourned by those privileged to have known and worked with him.

Childhood Hints

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKER
AP Newfeatures Writer

Fortunately for children, the time is now past when use of psychological tests is limited to determining the intelligence quotient, more popularly known as the "IQ."

According to Lillian Mould, a New Jersey psychologist and class-room teacher, it is becoming accepted generally that the child's emotions determine how effectively he will learn, and in what direction his intellectual development can be expected to progress.

In constructive group membership, in book-reading, in pursuit of knowledge, or in ingenious ways of defining authority.

defining The Child, she points out that gradually, through the use of psychoanalysis and through observation of children's play, art productions, conversation and behavior, the way a human being develops to emotional maturity has become known to some extent. Adults can at least gain some idea as to the specific problems children cope with and their feelings about them.

Today, she says, a battery of tests—instead of one test—is used. These consist of a psychometric intelligence test, and what are called "projective" tests, such as the Rorschach inkblot test, and the Thematic Apperception Test. Each of these explores facets of the child's personality. The findings are then integrated and used as a basis for determining the child's strengths, and problems, as well as for recommendations to his teacher in working with the child.

Probably the best known intelligence test is the Stanford Binet. This is an individual test and is used with children over the age of two years. It consists of a group of tests for each age level. The scores which a child makes yields a mental age, and from this and his actual age an IQ is determined.

If the results run close to a child's actual age, Miss Mould says, it can usually be assumed he is "running on all cylinders," and is capable of average achievement. But when some tests show grades below and others above his average, the results indicate that something is interfering with consistent and effective functioning—and that "something" is often an emotional problem.

But the Stanford Binet test has its limitations. It depends to a great extent on a child's ability to express his ideas through language. Those who cannot do so immediately penalized and fairly in such cases there are other ways of discovering what is the child's present level of mental functioning. One test of nursery and primary level children asks them to "draw the best picture he can" of a boy or girl. The clarity of the drawing, the way it is organized and the number of details included are carefully scored so that a mental age can be estimated.

There are also various "performance" tests that do not depend on communication via language. Many of these tests are as reliable as the Stanford Binet. Other tests explore verbal as well as performance ability.

Intelligence is just one aspect of the personality, she says, and testing is not complete unless it gives a rounded and comprehensive picture of the child. By presenting a child with a situation

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD—if you want to get a man, wear red and purple. Of course, the touch of landing a male is somewhat more complicated than that. But designer Edith Head advises that red and purple are colors which are the greatest stimulants to romance.

"Red denotes a quiet, smoldering kind of sex," she remarked. "Purple is the more explosive, passionate color. Put red and purple together in the same outfit—and watch out!"

Miss Head is a petite brunette who leans to softer shades in her own smart attire. Perhaps this is so she won't take the play away from the glamor girls she dresses. At any rate, she is all hepped up on this color business, and she says it's based on science, not fancy.

"Some of us designers attended a color institute recently, she explained. "We were addressed by a doctor who treats mental patients at veterans hospitals. He told us that colors very definitely play a part in our temperaments. He found that his patients reacted violently to certain colors and were soothed by others.

"Red and purple incite sex in a natural way. Natural colors—the brown of the earth, grey of stone and green of foliage—are restful to the mind. The depressive colors are dark brown and muddy grey, such as you might find under rocks.

"Thus doctors' waiting rooms are most effective in green or some other restful color. The doctor told us never to discard it when someone says that he or she can't stand a certain color. That color probably does have a bad reaction on them.

Head is demonstrating these theories in the current color musical, "Red Garters." (It's a Western fantasy, not a sequel to "Red Shoes.")

As in conventional melodramas, the villain (Gene Barry) will be dressed in black and the hero (Guy Mitchell) in white. The leading lady, Rosemary Clooney, will appear in a sexy red, Pat Crowley wears an innocent blue, and Joanne Gilbert starts out in black and white. That's because you don't know whether she's going to be good or bad. She ends up in the red.

There are five dance hall girls in the picture. They'll be in purple and red, natch. At least from the color standpoint, the film is shaping up as the sexiest in years.

The designer has glamorized a large number of female stars, and I asked about their color idiosyncrasies. Mae West, she recalled, hated green. She not only wouldn't wear it, but didn't want it in the same room. An indoor girl at heart, I guess.

Dotty Lamour is mad for blue. Barbara Stanwyck refused to wear brown, and red is verboten on Betty Hutton. Jane Russell is a sucker for red and purple, which may partially explain her success.

It finds that many of the newer crop of actresses—like Rosemary Clooney, Audrey Hepburn and Joanne Gilbert—are crazy about white." Miss Head added, "This is probably a trend, but I didn't know what the explanation is."

What about the men? Seems color psychology should also work for us. But we go on wearing the same drab hues year after year.

"Maybe that's what's wrong with civilization," Miss Head mused. "When get rid of their fringes, they're wearing white colors. Men take theirs out in violence."

State Legislature

Ben. Morrow, Lake Worth, moved for immediate consideration of the memorial, which was introduced and passed in the House where it had nearly 50 co-sponsors.

Morrow said it called upon the Congress to call a constitutional convention to amend the federal Constitution so that treaties made by the President and ratified by the Senate could not become law of the land when infringing upon basic rights of the state and the people.

Immediate consideration required unanimous consent to a waiver of the rules, Sen. Pope, St. Augustine, objected, saying he didn't think the Senate should adopt as a matter of routine a memorial to Congress when probably most of the senators had no idea what was being asked or why.

Immediately afterward, the Senate adopted a memorial to Congress which Sen. Collins, Tallahassee, said was designed to keep federal inspectors of the Veterans Administration from flood the state to check on schools under the GI bill of rights. Pope made no objection to immediate consideration.

San State Funds TALLAHASSEE (AP)—A ban on use of state funds for "propaganda" in the adoption or rejection of any proposed constitutional amendment would be imposed by a bill introduced today by Sen. Burgess, Oklawaha.

The bill would prohibit any board, department, officer, commission, committee or other person having authority to expend public funds to contract or enter into obligation for the payment of such funds for promoting passage or defeat of a constitutional amendment.

They brought bed-rolls, blankets, and even hammocks to swing between trees.

Planes stacked up to land at London's two big airports. Special trains and boats disgorged thousands of others from abroad.

Traffic along the teeming six-mile coronation route virtually is at a standstill. Solid swarms of pedestrians have all but taken over many main thoroughfares.

The lucky ones—about 250,000 in all—who have seats in specially built, bright-painted stands along the route will be taking their places early tomorrow.

But perhaps four million more will see the queen on her way to and from her crowning in ancient Westminster Abbey before 7,500 distinguished and invited guests.

An estimated 80 million other Britons will watch the spectacle on television.

Among those knighted were two of Britain's most popular sports figures—world champion jockey Gordon Richards and Jack Hobbs, veteran cricket star.

Young Queen Elizabeth may go to Westminster Abbey some time tonight to pray on coronation eve just as did her father, King George VI, before he was crowned 16 years ago.

Yesterday, Trinity Sunday, the queen worshipped in the gold-paneled queen's chapel in the grounds of Marlborough House, where Queen Grandmother Mary lived and died.

There—with her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, and the Queen Mother at her side—she knelt in quiet prayer while millions of loyal subjects prayed at similar services throughout Britain.

The weather was giving the coronation officials the most worry. The latest forecast covers coronation day is for continuing cool weather with "occasional rain or showers but some sunny intervals."

Suicide Phone Call Acted On Too Late

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Police report that a local physician's suicide telephone call to a girl in New York state resulted in notification of Los Angeles police, who sped to the doctor's apartment last night and found him dying.

The victim was Dr. Edward A. Handel, 48. His death is listed as probable suicide.

Officers say this is what happened: Dr. Handel telephoned the girl, known only as Janet, telling her he was despondent and intended to take his life.

The girl immediately called the telephone supervisor here of the Dunkirk exchange, under which the doctor's phone is listed, asking the supervisor to contact a friend, Dr. M. R. Brothers.

Dr. Brothers telephoned police and a radio car sped to Dr. Handel's apartment. He was found sprawled on the floor, unconscious. He died quickly, despite artificial respiration and an injection of adrenalin. There was no indication of the cause of death.

Officers said Dr. Handel, who was divorced and had two children, attempted suicide last December and at that time declared he would do it again and "no one will know by what means."

Elizabeth Crowned Queen In Spectacle Of Pomp, Pageantry

Once Near Tears, New Ruler Beams Smile

By The Associated Press
LONDON—Britain crowned Elizabeth II today in a magnificent spectacle of ancient pomp and pageantry, before the wondering eyes of her 16-year-old son, heir to the throne.

The thunder of guns and the pealing of bells proclaimed to millions in London the formal accession of Elizabeth the Queen, the first coronation of a woman since Victoria, 116 years ago.

Crowds massed 25 to 35 deep around the queen going from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Abbey, and coming home again. Only 7,500 persons were in the abbey, but millions more could see the 2 1/2 hour ceremony by television, for the first time.

Cries of "God Save the Queen" blended into a mighty roar from thousands of throats as the queen's purple and gold coach left Westminster abbey for the main coronation procession five miles and more through the center of the old capital.

The 27-year-old queen, who had looked drawn near the close of the long abbey ritual—and once near tears—flushed her smile. The Duke of Edinburgh was beside her.

There was a deluge of rain as the main procession got under way. The inside of the queen mother's coach was lit by newly installed fluorescent lighting which glinted on her coronet and jewels.

As the state coach bearing the queen and the Duke of Edinburgh arrived at the palace, members of the crowd clamored on the walls of the palace itself for a final clear view of the royal pair before they went inside.

The queen smiled radiantly and the duke grinned as the long historic day neared its close.

The only two fixed events showing on their program were a Royal Air Force show, delayed and rearranged because of the bad weather, and the queen's broadcast at 8 p. m. (3 p. m. Eastern time) in which she will appear in a sunshiny competitor with each other for control of the day. But the millions who had gathered to cheer the queen stood firm in sites some had staked out 48 hours ahead of time.

The sun burst through lowering clouds when Elizabeth was presented to the congregation inside the abbey as "your undoubted queen."

A cloudburst drenched the lamppacked capital at the moment of crowning. It rained steadily for 20 minutes, stopping only a few minutes before the consecration services ended. More than 1,300 persons counted the queen's coronation in the crash of crowds, with 25 hurt seriously enough to go to hospitals.

Prince Charles, who is four, was brought to the abbey just before Archbishop Canby had placed the jewel-encrusted crown of St. Edward upon the head of Britain's seventh queen, symbolizing the continuity of the monarchy to the service of more than a half century.

Fouracre Thinks Lake Dredging Is Threat To State

A fear that continued dredging of lakes in the state would result in making a desert out of Florida was expressed today morning by Commissioner Olin Fouracre at the regular session of the County Commissioners at the County House.

Fouracre made the observation after the Commissioners had heard a plea by property owners on Big Bear Lake that dredging being done there would result in permanent damage to the waters of the lake.

Robert Webster, Mrs. James Antrim, and Jesse R. Keller appeared before the Commission with a petition signed by 50 residents which stated:

"We, the undersigned residents, and property owners on Big Bear Lake, Seminole County, earnestly request that steps be taken for the purpose of determining whether or not dredging operations on this lake will result in permanent damage to the waters of the lake."

We further request that proper steps be taken to stop control all dredging until the facts are determined.

Chairman J. F. McClelland pointed out that the County has no jurisdiction in the matter and suggested that those concerned file an injunction immediately.

"If I lived on the lake, I would file an injunction right away," Mr. McClelland asserted.

Mr. Webster explained that one individual who had recently moved to the lake was conducting dredging operations and that the water used for drinking had become discolored.

Big Bear Lake is a narrow but long lake. It would be possible that dredging might drain the water making property adjacent to the lake worthless.

Commissioner R. C. Dodd said that some group in the County should have control of lakes, but that a special act would have to be passed by the Legislature and that it would be impossible at this late date to have such a bill introduced by the legislative department.

Howard Hughes, caretaker at Big Tree Park, appeared before the Board to ask clarification of the terms under which E. H. Hittcher would be permitted to make use of the Big Tree path in connection with the latter's new project.

Students meet legislators. Among two thousand Florida high school students, who have visited Tallahassee and the capital to participate in the "Know Your Government" program at Florida State University in Tallahassee, this week were students from Seminole High School, Sanford; Lyman High School, Longwood; and Oviedo High School, Oviedo. The students were greeted in the state capital by Sen. Lloyd L. Boyle, center left in right; Gov. W. Williams, Jr., and Rep. Mark N. Cleveland, Jr. all of Oviedo.

City's Sewerage Problem To Be Aired Tomorrow

A supper at the Vacht Club at 5:30 p. m. will precede tomorrow night's important session at the County House at 8 o'clock when Dr. Abel Waldman of John Hopkins University will submit his report on Sanford's sewerage problem.

City Manager Tom Lemon, who made the announcement, said that representatives of the State Board of Health, the United States Public Health Service, City Commissioners, and members of the Seminole County Medical Association will be present at the luncheon and meeting.

Mayor Randall Chase urged all persons interested in the problem to attend the open session which will be held from 8 to 10 p. m. in the Court House to permit a greater attendance.

Dr. Waldman's report is expected to influence the City's decision on a sewerage disposal plant. The initial outlay would be about $250,000 and operation costs have been estimated at $200,000 annually.

Commissioners themselves are divided as to the advisability of a treatment plant. Mayor Chase has called it a useless expense while Commissioners John Kader and William Stemper are in favor of a plant. Other Commissioners have not yet come out for or against the proposal.

Robert M. Angus, an engineer who is planning the city's sewerage and water expansion program, pointed out that the total cost of all recommended improvements would amount to $1,216,507. He indicated that if the people of Sanford felt that they could afford

Highest Mountain, Everest, Is Scaled First Time By Man

LONDON—A coronation eve announcement by Buckingham Palace disclosed last night that a British expedition has planned the first ascent in man's first successful attempt to scale the world's highest mountain.

News that two climbers in a party headed by Col. John Hunt had successfully battled their way to the summit of the icy peak in the Himalayas May 29 was relayed to Queen Elizabeth II last night, a palace spokesman said. He described the dramatic news as a coronation "gift."

A message from Hunt relayed to Buckingham Palace said, "All is well."

The final assault on the Central Asian peak in the Nepal-Tibet border—reportedly the third attempt by Hunt's 15-man expedition within the last few weeks—was made by a New Zealand hero-keeper, Edward P. Hillary, 34, and a veteran guide of Nepal's Sherpa tribe, 38-year-old Tenzing Norgay.

London newspapers hailed the achievement as the beginning of a new Elizabethan era of British daring. They compared the deed with the triumphs of Captain Cook, Sir Francis Drake and Antarctic explorer Robert Scott.

That a New Zealander and a tribesman from Britain's longtime ally Nepal won the final victory was looked upon here as another symbol—like the coronation of Commonwealth unity. Reportedly they carried Nepal's flag to the top, along with the British colors.

The climbers raced against the approaching storms of the summer monsoons. It had been reported previously from Katmandu, Nepal, that they had failed to reach their goal due to the brief and good weather and had given up hope.

Duke Of Windsor, Duchess Witness Coronation On TV

PARIS—For the second time in his life, the Duke of Windsor watched the coronation of the British queen, a crown he gave up for the woman he loves.

The duke and his wife, the former Wallis Warfield Simpson of Baltimore, watched the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II on television in the home of a close American friend, Mrs. Margaret Thompson Biddle of Paris and New York.

About 100 guests were present in the home, in the center of Paris, to watch a televised version of the proceedings in London.

The duke and duchess had front row seats in a large salon before the screen. They arrived late and talked animatedly until the ceremony in London began to reach its climax, then fell silent.

"At the conclusion, the duke said: 'It was a very impressive ceremony.'"

He had not been invited because of a protocol bar former heads of state from attending the coronation.

Queen Elizabeth was nine years old when the duke gave up his throne to George VI on Dec. 11, 1936. He had been king of England for about 11 months, from Jan. 20, 1936, to George VI was crowned King in 1937.

Excess Profit Tax Plan To Withhold End Is Called Best UN Funds Over Red Bar To Depression Issue Is Scrapped

WASHINGTON—A Republican congressional leader agreed today to scrap a proposed tax against further U. S. funds for the United Nations if Red China should be admitted to the U. N.

The decision was announced by Sen. Bridges (R-NH) after a White House meeting of GOP Senate and House leaders. Eisenhower had suddenly called the special meeting this forenoon.

Bridges said the President endorsed a substitute proposal that both House and Senate should oppose the admission of the Chinese Communists to the U. N. under any circumstances at this time.

Bridges added that it was the sense of the meeting with the President concurring, that the country not only would oppose Red China's admission but would take active leadership in keeping the Communists out of the world organization.

Bridges and Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) said today's special meeting was called because of indications that the British among others, may press for the admission of Red China in connection with a Korean settlement.

Bridges is a key figure in the matter as chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Several officers on the committee said they were not convinced by the pro-extension arguments of Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey yesterday.
