Five Dead, Millions In Damage

Gloria: In Like A Lion, Out Like A Lamb

Hurricane Gloria turned into more of "a lady" than expected and was just a tropical storm Saturday, but left at least five dead, millions without power and East Coast officials still counting the property damage in her wake.

'All I can say is thank God it wasn't worse," said Babylon, N.Y., Fire Chief Bill Froelich.

A state of emergency was lifted in Delaware. New Jersey, Virginia and North Carolina but remained in effect in Rhode Island, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont.

Utility crews worked around the clock to repair power lines that were ripped down by the storm's flerce winds, leaving half of Connecticut without electricity and more than 1.5 million other homes on the eastern seaboard in the dark. Officials said it could be days before all power is restored.

Evacuees emerged from shelters, boat owners from North Carolina to Maine assessed the damage to their craft, casinos in New Jersey planned quick reopenings and homeowners began checking their insurance policies.

A child steps on a nail, a neighbor falls off the roof of his home while fixing a TV antenna, an elderly woman suffers chest pains, someone trips and fulls down the stairs and thinks they have a broken ankle — all of these people are likely to seek and receive emergency medical treatment.

It's something we don't give much thought to until a crisis comes up and we get an insider's view with no choice in the matter.

But, Florida Hospital, for this week's Emergency Medical Services Week sponsored by the American College of Emergency Physicians, will be giving Seminole County residents a chance for a first hand look at how the pros handle medical emergencies. In unincorporated Seminole County through August of this year the county Emergency Medical Services Division of the Department of Public Safety (firefighters) has responded to 3,042 calls to assist persons in need of emergency medical care.

Manager of emergency medical services for the county, Barbara Smith, said, in most cases it was the county's 100 or so firefighters, all with dual emergency medical technician training, who responded.

For more serious cases, 17 safety workers trained as paramedics were called in to assist, she sald.

Jury Gives Ex-Deputy $550,000 For Injuries

A former Seminole County sheriff's deputy won a 50 percent victory late Friday when a jury awarded him $550,000 for injuries he received when his patrol car was struck by a motorcycle driven by a minor who got drunk at a pizza parlor. John Huston, 39, had sued Shakey's Pizza Parlor for more than $1 million, contending they were liable because they served about 15 beers to 18-year-old Andreas Kish of Sanford who later ran into Huston with his motorcycle. The jury also ordered the pizza parlor to pay Kish $8,200 because of their negligence, and ordered Kish to pay Huston $1,000 for negligence.

The jury, which got the case in the fifth day of trial Friday, found Shakey's 50 percent at fault, Kish 30 percent at fault and Huston 20 percent at fault. Kish testified he was at

Jaycees Set Up Arresting Situation

By Deane Jordan Herald Staff Writer

A common presumption is about to go up in smoke Tuesday when a state law banning smoking in public places, except where designated by signs, goes into effect. The presumption is that smoking is permitted unless specifically prohibited. Not any Further, a work place is a public place under the five-page statute which authorizes law enforcement personnel to ticket offenders. Compliance with law by government agencies will be protect the public health, comment of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

Enforcement of the new law apparently depends upon persons who are not only willing to report infractions but are also willing to testify about the incldent. Judging by the few people who are fined for illegally smoking in elevators - already against the law - the new law may be more smoke than fire.

The statute, known as the Florida Clean Indoor Air Act. #85-257, is " ... designed to ing areas that are reasonably free from tobacco smoke," said Alvin Bork, managing director of the American Lung Association of Central Florida in Orlando.

"The major emphasis of the Clean Indoor Air Act is the fact that it reverses the current presumption that smoking is permitted unless otherwise prohibited. This law presumes an area is non-smoking unless it is specifically designated as a smoking area," he said.

While the law is specific where people cannot smoke, prosecumeasured by the state Depart- fort and environment by creat- tions for breaking the law will depend on people reporting an infraction to police. Since it is not a criminal act, it will be handled like a traffic ticket in county court and would not involve the State Attorney's Office, a spokesman said. The statute provides for a $100 civil fine on first conviction and not more than a $500 fine on each subsequent convictions.

If a law officer sees an infraction, he can ticket the offender and in that case the officer, as in traffic violations, becomes the witness and represents the state. If the officer did not see the infraction but a witness is willing to testify, the person can be ticketed. The matter will be handled in county courts like traffic tickets before a county judge. As with parking tickets, subpoensed offenders who do not show up for trial can be arrested on a bench warrant issued by the judge. If the case goes to trial, the witness must also appear to testify.

A "public place" according to the statute generally means enclosed indoor areas people visit such as government buildings, restaurants with seating for 50 people or more, retail stores (excluding tobacconists), buses, trains and their terminals. It also includes elevators, hospitals.

Reagan-Shevardnadze Meeting Termed 'Useful'

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Whether the pre-summit meeting between President Reagan and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze produced any changes in either nation's stance on arms control will probably not be known

Shevardnadze delivered to Reagan a personal letter from Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev containing what U.S. officials called a change in the Soviet arms control stance and what the Russians called "concrete ideas and

Neither side would say what was in the letter, but it was assumed that it may have contained a widely publicized Soviet offer to reduce offensive missiles and warheads by 40 percent in exchange for a U.S. agreement to stop development of the space-based defense system known as

But Reagan told reporters after the meeting his position on "Star Wars" is "where it has always been. We are determined to go forward."

Secretary of State George Shultz said he welcomed the Russian proposal as a change in Soviet position and a potential basis for negotiations. .

"It's different from what they have been saying (at the arms talks) and we look for it to be put on the table in Geneva," Shultz said, "Combined with what we have on the table, we hope that can lead to a process of genuine negotiation. So we welcome that."

Hussein Seeks Weapons Purchase

WASHINGTON (UPI) - King Hussein of Jordan, bolstered by the administration's decision to sell advanced weapons to his nation, is prepared to discuss with U.S. officials the status of negotiations in the Middle East.

Hussein was scheduled to fly to Washington Saturday for talks with U.S. officials, including Secretary of State George Shultz. He will meet President Reagan Monday at the White House.

Reagan Friday sent notification to Congress of the decision to sell Hussein fighter aircraft, advanced missiles and armored vehicles. The price of the package is estimated between $1.55 billion and $1.9 billion.

In his message to Congress, Reagan said he was determined "to provide the kingdom of Jordan with the tools it needs to help defend its people as King Hussein courageously pursues peace with Israel."

A few hours before the sale was announced, Hussein told the U.N. General Assembly he is prepared to move toward direct negotiations with Israel. State Department officials said they believe Hussein's promise fulfills the requirement of an amendment to the Foreign Aid bill.

Mathias Will Not Run Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Veteran Sen. Charles Mathias. R-Md., a leading Republican liberal, has decided not to seek e-election in 1986, Capitol Hill sources said Friday

At the White House, assistant press secretary Dale Petroskey praised Mathias as "a fine senator" and added, "we are going to miss having him in the Senate after

IN BRIEF

Power By Naming Prime Minister MOSCOW (UPI) - Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev

further consolidated his hold on power by naming Nikolai Ryshkov to replace ailing Prime Minister Nikolal Tikhonov.

'Nikolai Tikhonov was relieved of his duties of chairman of the Council of Ministers of the U.S.S.R. (prime minister) in connection with retirement for health reasons," the official Tass news agency said Friday.

Ryzhkov's appointment puts Gorbachev supporters in most key government posts. They include President Andrei Gromyko. KGB chief Viktor Chebrikov and Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

Tikhonov, a close associate of the late President Leonid Brezhnev for five decades, was appointed prime minister in 1980 to replace Alexei Kosygin.

Ryzhkov, a specialist in economics and heavy industry who turns 56 today, was elected a full member of the ruling Politburo in April - a month after Gorbachev assumed power.

In his letter of resignation, read by Gromyko to the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, Tikhonov wrote, "The state of my health has considerably deteriorated lately. A consultation of doctors persistently raises the question that I terminate my active work, and consequently, retire."

After the letter of resignation was accepted, Gorbachev nominated Ryzhkov to replace him and the Presidium unanimously supported the proposal. Tass said.

Gandhi Acknowledges Defeat

NEW DELHI. India (UPI) - Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi said his Congress (I) Party may have been overwhelmingly defeated in Punjab elections but it "won the war for India's unity" by showing Sikh separatists could not disrupt the balloting.

"The Congress (I) may have lost the electoral battle but it has won the war for India's unity and integrity and that was the fundamental aim of the Congress (I)." Gandhi said in a statement Friday.

Gandhi said the 63 percent voter turnout in Wednesday's election - despite calls for a boycott and threats by Sikh extremists - showed the people of Punjab opposed 'separatism and terrorism.'

The prime minister said the turnout demonstrated popular acceptance of an agreement between the government and moderate Sikhs to redress political and economic

"They have blessed the accord. Democracy has won,"

Gandhi said.

Voters in India's wealthiest state, weary of months of violence that claimed hundreds of lives, gave the moderate Akali Dal party enough seats in the state Assembly to allow it to form a government without partners for the first time.

Graham Veto Of Teacher Certification Bill Nets Educators' Ire

By Jim Searls Herald Staff Writer

The Florida teacher's Tuesday thanks to Gov. Bob Graham's veto of a bill enacting tough new teacher certification standards. The Issue has become a political football, according to some education leaders, with Seminole County teachers lined up against the veto, according to Seminole Education Association Executive Director Marshall Ogletree.

The Florida teacher's certification law specifies that anyone wishing to teach public school in Florida have at least a bachelor's degree and a minimum number of hours of education courses. That includes a year of classroom teaching as an assistant teacher.

The bill the legislature had approved this year for initial certification required: subject area testing: a college degree with a 2.5 grade point average: substitute teachers and athletic .coaches must have certificates; the department of Education to process an application within 90

For renewal of certificates it required: that each candidate be evaluated at least once during the certificate's five year validity period and that the evaluation be developed and negotiated at the local level and approved by the Department of Education: that the applicant earn at least 3 credit hours or the equivalent in-service credit for each area of specialization to be retained on a certificate with a minimum of 6 credits required for all; that the coursework or inservice credit limits each applicant to one renewal during each five year validity period; provides that an applicant may select and pass a subject area test in Heu of

Doctor Study Says New'Hi-Tech' Pills Give You"3 Times" Faster Weight Loss

No Dieting—Eat Normally Diet Pills Do All the Work

DEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)— Good news for people who want to lose weight. In a recent highly successful clinical weight loss study, ALL people tested lost weight using an amazing new "hi-tech" diet pill program. The study was conducted by a panel of medical doctors in California on several groups of overweight people and the results proved conclusively that the new hi-tech pills test group lost weight almost "3 times faster" than the group tested using the famous grapefruit pill diet.

All Lost up to 1 lb. Per Day Best of all, the pills allow you to "continue to eat all of your favorite foods without changing your normal eating or exercising habits and still lose weight easier and faster than ever before, starting immediately." Remarkably, ALL people in the new 'hi-tech' pills clinical test group lost weight (an average of 1/2 lb. per day up to 1 lb. per day.) It also helps eliminate bloat and

"Pills Do All the Work"

!- According to the clinical study, "the pills alone do all the work while you quickly lose weight with NO starvation "diet menus" to follow, NO calorie counting, NO special exercise, and NO hunger pangs." You simply take the pills with a glass of water before meals.

Powerful Appetite Suppressants The new pills contain a powerful clinically proven appetite suppressant that an advisory panel of doctors have determined to be "safe and effective for weight loss." In addition, the pills also contain a remarkable calorie-free dietary fiber that expands in your stomach and tends to give you a partially satisfied feeling before you cat. Thus, the new combination of ingre-Gients in the pills act 2 ways to aid in curbing your appetite, causing you to eat less, take in less calories, and lose weight without feeling deprived or hungry. Pills Contain ALL Daily Vitamins

No need to take any vitamins to main-tain your good health and energy because the pills are fortified with ALL (100%) of the U.S. Government USRDA recommended daily vitamin requirements.

Jo-Ann Fabrics, owned and operated by Cleveland-based Fabri-Centers of America, Inc., has opened a new store in the Zayre Plaza, Sanford.

A major Grand Opening Celebration Sale for the Zayre Plaza store is scheduled for Sunday.

The new Zayre Plaza store is the 9th Jo-Ann Fabrics serving the Orlando area.

Jo-Ann Fabrics is one of the country's largest retail fabric chains with more than 650 stores. The company began in 1943 when the first store was opened in downtown Cleveland, Ohio.

During the past five years alone, Fabri-Centers has opened more than 200 stores and currently is operating in 35 states and the District of Columbia.

Jo-Ann Fabrics will carry thousands of yards of fabrics. maintain a one-stop sewing center and will stock sewing accessories and notions, as well as a selection of patterns from such leading pattern companies as Simplicity, Butterick and McCall's, company officials said.

The new store will feature a sewing machine department with a selection of Singer sewing machines, including the new line of "Miracle Machines," as well as a full line of accessories and related products.

Mass buying power enables Jo-Ann Fabrics to serve the customers in the best way possible, allowing the new Zayre Plaza store to stock only the latest fashion fabrics and notions at the lowest possible price, according to company

Barrier-Free Apartment Shown

WASHINGTON, D.C. - At the special request of the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped, modular manufacturer Cardinal Industries Incorporated showcased its barrier-free apartment at the Inspire 85 Festival in Washington, D.C., Sept. 19-2 on the Washington Mall.

The three-day event saluted the accomplishments of the disabled and the observance of the International Decade of Cardinal's modern one-bedroom barrier-free apartment exemplifies how people with disabilities can be integrated into urban and suburban living environments, the company said. The exhibit was co-sponsored by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Exterior features of the Cardinal barrier-free unit include larger parking spaces, reserved at-your-door parking, wider sidewalks, curb ramps, and ramped entranceways with rails. Other features found on the apartment which was showcased in Washington included wider door openings, lever door handles, low pile carpeting, higher electrical outlets, lower light switches and lever water faucets.

The barrier-free kitchen offers an adjustable kitchen work surface and lower wall cabinets. Shelves and closet hanging rods are also lowered for easier accessibility.

Included in the upsized bathroom are reinforced tub walls for grab bars.

HUD recognized Cardinal as a leader in providing barrier-free apartments and its ability to retrofit standard units to suit the needs of disabled residents quickly and

UPS Overseas Service To Begin

GREENWICH. Ct - United Parcel Service has announced it will begin service to and from Europe on Oct. 7. UPS will deliver to every address in the 48 contiguous states packages and documents originating in France, West Germany, England, Scotland, Wales Northern Ireland, Belgium, Luxembourg and The Netherlands.

Service to Europe from the U.S. will be introduced in phases, beginning with a number of states in the Northeast. "We expect within the next several weeks shippers in the rest of the U.S. will be able to send packages and documents to every address in these countries through our system," said UPS Chairman Jack

"International air delivery represents one of the transportation industry's fastest growing segments," said Rogers. "However, no carrier has been able to offer direct service between Europe and every address in the 48 states. We believe that capability, combined with our dependable service and low rates, will make UPS a leader in this area.

Rates for packages and documents will be generally the lowest published rates of any air company and include door-to-door delivery and customs clearance. A special rate will be available for documents sent in a letter container supplied at no charge by UPS. The individual package weight limit will be 70 pounds.

Most shipments will be delivered in two business days after pickup.

Shoe Store In On Celebration

Knight's Shoe Store, 208 E. First Street, Sanford, is an official participant in the National Shoe Celebration and Sweepstakes, which runs through Oct. 16.

"The celebration and sweepstakes was designed to call attention to the gigantic footwear industry's fashion awareness, craftsmanship and dollar value of footwear. This event is also a way of saying thank you to all our customers for their support," said store owner Don Knight.

A half million dollars of national prizes will be given away including an Around the World Trip for Two. vacations to Hawaii. Disneyland. Disney World and a thousand weekend getaways. Entry forms are available at Knight's Shoe Store. No purchase is necessary, of course.

"The Shoe Celebration is so unusual," Knight said, "because it is the result of intensive planning and tremendous cooperation among footwear retailers who do not look at themselves as competitors, but members of an extremely creative industry.

"Because of all our efforts, shoes are no longer thought of as just necessities or accessories. They are vital fashion statements ... they cover America's lifestyle from scientifically constructed athletic, baby and orthopedic shoes ... to work boots and all weather footwear ... to the most luxurious leather dress and formal shoes.

We are celebrating the designers, creators, and retailers who have shaped the industry and nurtured its versatility. status and growth."

Hard-Hit Citrus Processors Sell Out

By Susan Postlewaite UPI Business Writer

MIAMI (UPI) - Several citrus processing plants in central Florida's citrus belt are up for sale, victims of devastating orange crop freezes that ruined their supply of fruit.

Miami businessman Charles McKay, who specializes in exporting entire agroindustrial plants, expects to sell three on behalf of their owners to budding citrus Juice squeezers in Central America and the Caribbean.

His International Equipment Services in Miami hopes to begin dismantling the plants for shipping within six months.

"There isn't stifficient crop to sustain the infrastructure in Florida that exists," McKay

Mark Belcher, manager of grower relations and market analysis for Valley Citrus Products near Lakeland, said dozens of small citrus processors in central Florida would sell their processing plants if they could, including him.

"Most of the small plants in the state are for sale," said Belcher. "I'm not saying people are panicking and trying to get out. I'm saving they could be bought.

The orange juice industry has been centered in Florida for about 40 years, ever since researchers invented the method of processing oranges into concentrate. Since 1978, demand for orange juice has grown so dramatically that large Florida processors now must import concentrate from Brazil to keep their plants full.

Despite a series of freezes that has slashed Florida's production from 206 million boxes in 1980 to 114 million boxes this year, Florida will supply about 50 percent of the orange juice consumed in the United States in 1985, said Dan Gunter, an economist with the state Department of Citrus. Adding on the imports from Brazil, Florida will process about 80 percent, he said.

Gunter believes the industry in a few years will spring back stronger with superior stock trees that produce oranges more

Meanwhile he said he believes it makes sense for processors to sell equipment if they can.

Two small plants - Southern Gold Citrus Products near Orlando and Sunstar Foods in Kathleen, already have been dismantled and sold to buyers in Honduras and the Dominican Republic.

The biggest processors in the state, Procter and Gamble, Coca-Cola Foods and Beatrice, which owns Tropicana, have established import ties with Brazil and can buy enough pulp to keep their plants going. They say they have no intention of pulling back their investments in Florida.

McKay declined to identify who owns the three plants he is selling - a $4 million concentrate plant, a $1 million bottling and packaging plant and a $1 million cattle feed plant - because the owners haven't told their employees the plants are on the Last week, Chancellor Charlie Reed announced that tuition may increase as much as 39 percent over the next three years. Now, news has filtered out of Tallahassee that the state university system's admission standards may be going up. But that's all the discouraging news.

Those college students who fail the CLAST test may not be eligible to receive state-funded student loans. CLAST is the College Level Academic Skills Test. Under state law, students must take the test after completing their freshman and sophomore years.

About the admission standards, UCF President Trevor Colbourn said: "It's likely that the state university system will raise the admission requirements to rival those of other states." He said Florida's requirements are considerably lower.

Colbourn said that as resources become more limited, difficult decisions will have to be faced. "One of those decisions will be deciding who will not receive an education."

Here are the SAT admission standards for the nine universities in the state system:

Florida Atlantic, 1,000; Florida International, 1,000; Florida State, 950; UCF, 900; University of Florida, Florida Atlantic, University of West Florida, and the University of North Florida all require scores of

The new rules governing the CLAST test will not take effect until 1986. As it stands now, this is what will happen if a student does not pass the test:

Academic records will be placed on hold.

This would prevent registration for classes. •State funded financial aid would no longer be available.

•Students will be required to sign up for a one-semester waiver in which they would take remedial classes and retake the test. If a student passes the test on the second try. he or she could continue with upper division. courses. Those who do not, would be required to take more remedial classes and take the test again.

But this year things are different around campus. For one thing, students are swelling with pride, and for another, UCF has an upbeat, positive coach and an undefeated

Coach Gene McDowell knows that the Redbirds are eager to avenge last year's 28-24 upset. But he thinks UCF will not only win again, but do it convincingly.

Aide Says McKay Will Not Run For Governor's Post

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - An aide to U.S. Rep. Buddy McKay said Friday that the Ocala Democrat will not seek his party's 1986 nomination for governor.

Greg Farmer said McKay has decided to remain in Washington to avoid uprooting his family and to pursue budget and other initiatives that appear likely to pay off soon McKay had been courted by centrist Democrats since Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter, the acknowledge frontrunner in the race for the nomination, announced two weeks ago that he would seek rejection to his Cabinet post rather than run for governor.

"He took a serious look at the race and we felt very confident it was do-able," Farmer said. "He just decided it wasn't something he wanted to do. He's beginning to make some progress up here on some stuff he'd been working on and he just doesn't want to walk on that."

Farmer said inquiries proved McKay could summon enough financial and organizational support to mount a credible campaign, despite the head start enjoyed by Senate President Harry Johnston and former House member Steve Pajcic. Both have been organizing for the race for months.

"There may be a moderate-conservative vacuum on the spectrum right now and he would have filled that vacuum." Farmer said of McKay. "Since the images of the two (frontrunners) have not been established yet, it would be difficult to say who (a McKay campaign) would have hurt."

Farmer added: "He felt like the candidates in the race were pretty good guys and he didn't feel a burning desire to get into the race."

Space Agency Engineers Gear Up To Launch Satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) - Two days behind schedule, space agency engineers geared up to launch an unmanned Atlas Centaur rocket late today to send a costly communications satellite into orbit.

Blastoff had been scheduled for Thursday night, but an electronic control device on the rocket's second stage acted erratically during testing and engineers decided to delay blastoff to replace the balky unit.

A spare unit was installed and checked out Friday and launch was rescheduled for 7:36 p.m. EDT today. Perched atop the workhorse Atlas Centaur is an Intelsat communications satellite.

Restaurants Oppose AIDS Cards

MIAMI (UPI) - The 3,000-member Florida Restaurant Association has issued a strongly worded statement opposing a proposed Dade County ordinance requiring restaurant food service employees to carry health cards certifying they do not have AIDS.

The association cited prohibitive costs of testing and certifying food service workers in Dade County and contended that health cards would serve no purpose.

"Health cards as a protection against communicable diseases are useless and were rightfully abandoned (by the state) in 1974." the association said in a statement.

"Costs for implementation of health cards are prohibitive," the group said. "There are 80,000 food service workers who would be affected. Estimated costs for physicals and lab costs are running as high as $100 to $200 per worker," the statement said.

Killer Whale Born At Sea World

ORLANDO (UPI) - Kandu did it after 17 months of pregnancy, giving birth to a six-foot, 300-pound female that was the first killer whale to be born at a Sea World.

"Both calf and mother appear to be in excellent condition." Dr. Lanny Cornell, vice president and zoological director, said Friday in announcing the birth.

He said the calf emerged head first in a "textbook" delivery at 6:21 p.m. Thursday in the 5 million gallon killer whale facility.

Kandu, who weighs more than 5,000 pounds, first was suspected to be pregnant in July 1984. Based on the date pregnancy was confirmed, and assuming 16 month to 17 month gestation. Kandu had been pregnant since the spring of 1984, Cornell said.

The father is Shamu, 27, who has been at home with Sea World since 1969.

Smoking is also regulated at public meetings including not only those of governmental agencies but also meetings of homeowner, condominium, or renter or tenant associations not held in a private home.

In Sanford, city and county buildings will have signs posted by Tuesday designating where people can smoke.

Frank Falson. Sanford city manager, said the city commission will discuss the topic Monday at a workshop. He sald department supervisors have already designated smoking areas on sketches of buildings. The county commission has already discussed the issue and supervisors have made plans to designate smoking areas, said John Percy, the county's director of public services.

Percy said, while the county commission has not established a procedure to follow should a person ignore the statute, most likely the person would be asked to stop smoking or move to a designated area. He said officials would probably try to be cooperative. If that didn't work, he non-smoking areas. said, officers would be called to ticket the person.

At the Seminole County Courthouse, judicial administrative assistant Lois Walker has issued a list of smoking areas including the west side of the mezzanine, the holding cell, a first-floor witness room, and outside the courthouse. Hallways, corridors, and lounge areas are non-smoking areas as are the Judges' chambers, the east side of the mezzanine, the court reporter's office, Juvenile Arbitration Program offices and the offices of the Guardian Ad Litem program. Bork said private employers are required to develop, implement and post a policy regarding the designation of smoking and

"That policy shall take into consideration the proportion of smokers and non-smokers. Smoking areas are not required to be designated." he said.

According to the statute. employers who make reasonable efforts to develop, implement and post such a policy will be complying with the law. An entire area may be designated as a sinoking area if all workers routinely assigned to work in that area at the same time agree, If one person disagrees, an area cannot be designated a smoking

The prohibition about smoking in a public place does not apply to rooms or halls used for private social functions.

Howell Kicks 'Noles, 14-12

By Sam Cook Herald Sports Editor

Lake Howell's Silver Hawks put as much effort into blocking extra points as they do making them. While Jeff Philips exercises his accurate foot, the Howell defenders throw themselves in front of those

It's a pretty good system. Seminole found out how good Friday night. Lake Howell used two extra points by Philips, a blocked PAT kick by Ron Campbell and a Seminole misfire on a two-point conversion to provide the margin of difference while trimming the Tribe, 14-12, in Seminole Athletic Conference football before 2.500 fans at Lake Howell's stadium.

"We work on that every day in practice," Bisceglia said after the game. "We just overload one block was very important to the game. It's paid off two weeks in a row for us.

Last week, the Silver Hawks befuddled a West Orange punter on two occasions and came away with a 14-6 win. Friday's victory upped the Lake Howell mark to 3.0 overall, 1.0 in the SAC and 1-0 in the District 5A-5. The Hawks brace for an Apopka Invasion next Friday.

Seminole, meanwhile, wasted a strong defensive effort to fall to 0-3. The Seminoles are 0-1 in the District 4A-5 and 0-1 in the SAC. They must now get ready for arch-rival Lake Mary next Friday at Lake Mary.

Head coach Dave Mosure, still seeking his first win, was devasside and turn them loose. That tated by the loss. "Lake Howell did a good job of controlling the ball," he said. "(Mark) Schnitker is tough. We knew that. But we are still making the same young mistakes. Young or not, we should have won this game.'

> It wasn't for lack of opportunities. Seminole took the opening kickoff and marched the ball to the Lake Howell 42 on strong running by Jeff Blake. Dwayne Willis and Mike Levant. Blake had a 14-yard scamper on an option left.

At the Howell 42, however, Blake rolled right and gunned the ball off the receiver's shoulder pads. It popped straight into the air and was gathered in by Lake Howell's Bill Wasson at the Howell 23.

The Silver Hawks immediately fed Seminole a healthy diet of Schnitker, a bruising fullback who rumbled for 100 yards on 20 carries. He picked up 4, 8 and 8 yards to the Howell 48.

More importantly, he laid the guise for next play. Quarterback Mark Wainwright optioned left. stuck the ball in Schnitker's grasp, then pulled it out and took off around the left end. Wainwright, not known for his

As the ball sailed through the uprights on Kelly Greene's 30-yard field goal, with it went over a year of frustration for Lyman's Greyhounds. The look on many of the players, coaches and fans faces was one of dazed Jubilation.

Not only did Lyman end the losing streak Friday, but it may have put life back into the '85 season.

"It's a new season," Scott said. "We have to keep on working now. With the losing streak over, it will make it easier for us to concentrate and get the job done."

What made Friday's win even better was Lyman broke the string at home and against one of its biggest rivals in Lake Brantley. "It seemed like the biggest game I've

Both teams did everything they could to get psyched up for Friday's game. Many of the players on both squads shaved their heads and there was a lot of pregame talk.

Bodine Upstages Points Leaders

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. (UPI) - Geoff Bodine upstaged the pre-race publicity given to NASCAR's points leaders by turning in the fastest time Friday in first-day qualifying for Sunday's 400 mile NASCAR event at North Wilkesboro.

Bodine gunned his Chevrolet around the .625-mile track at 115.213 miles per hour to hold first position in the race for the pole and $7,000 in bonus money. He earned a $1.500 bonus for his first-day efforts.

Second fastest was Tim Richmond in his Pontlac at 114.329 mph.

Friday was supposed to be a qualifying duel between 1985 success story Bill Elliott and Darrell Waltrip for the pole in what may prove to be pivotal race of the 1985 NASCAR

Winston Cup points race.

Waltrip, who won the points championship in 1981 and 1982 driving for Junior Johnson. trails Elliott by 23 points. In the past five races. Waltrip has chipped 120 points off what appeared to be an insurmountable Elliott lead.

Waltrip's Chevrolet ran surprisingly slow Friday and Elliott produced 114.086 mph in his Ford Thunderbird, good enough for the third spot heading into today's qualifying. Waltrip was fifth fastest with a speed of 113,774 mph. Ricky Rudd was fourth in his Ford Thunderbird with 114.045 mph. Sixth fastest was Dale

Earnhardt, 113.734: seventh was Terry Labonte. 113.711: eighth was Bobby Allison,

The winner of the pole will be decided Saturday on the basis of a two-day best-lap average. The fastest second-day qualifier for one of the race's 30 spots who was not among the top eight Friday will receive a $500 bonus.

Waltrip holds an advantage over Elliott on short tracks of less than 1-mile in length. The advantage is intensified at the North Wilkesboro track, located oly eight miles from Johnson's shop in Ingle Hollow, N.C.

"There's a little extra incentive when we're here at North Wilksboro," Johnson said. "Everybody on the team lives around here and wants to do well at home. If we don't they pleasant when we win."

United Press International Major league baseball's pennant races were brought to a crawl Friday as Hurricane Gloria forced postponements in New York and Montreal.

In New York, the Yankees, who were rained out with Detroit Thursday, announced their game against Baltimore would be postponed before the storm hit Friday. The Yankees trail the AL Eastleading Toronto Blue Jays by 5 14 games.

The Yankees' game against the Tigers will only be made up if it affects the outcome of the division race, but because the Orioles are still in town. theYankees will be forced to play a double-header against Baltimore on Sunday at 1 p.m. EDT.

The St. Louis Cardinals, who lead the New York Meta by four games in the NL East, have the difficult task of playing a double-header Saturday at 3:20 p.m. to make up their rained out game against the Expos in Montreal.

The storm that knocked out powerlines, flooded highways and disrupted travel from North Carolina to New England.

Jays' Lamp Lights Road to Pennant

TORONTO (UPI) - There's a significant reason for Dennis Lamp's surreal 1985 season.

"Last year," his catcher, Ernie Whitt, points out, "he was in a role he wasn't suited for.

"This year," Whitt says of Toronto's long relief ace. "he is in a role he is suited for."

Which may be why the right-hander was 11-0 by Sept. 26, had one save and a 3.44 carned run average. Lamp pitched 102 innings in 49 games.

Two winters ago the Blue Jays signed Lamp to a large multi-year contract, figuring he was going to fill the hole as a short relief man - even though he'd been a starter for three years with the Chicago Cubs and a swing-man for three seasons with the Chicago White Sox.

Turns out the 6-foot-3, 215-pound Lamp couldn't fill that short relief hole.

A.L. Baseball

He pitched in 56 games, all but four in relief, but saved only nine games. For someone who's supposed to be a closer, that's a bit like going to the bank intending to withdraw $60,000 - from an account with only $6,000 in it.

Lamp was only 8-8 with a 4.55 carned run

"To me." Toronto manager Bob Cox said, "he did not do that badly. The fans expect too much. Every time we sign a free agent, they're not supposed to give up a hit or give up a walk.

'The first or second day of spring training," Lamp said, "Bob came up to me and said, 'I hope you don't feel the whole (disappointing 1984) season was placed on your shoulders.' That meant a lot to me. It had been a long winter.

When I came to spring training, the main thing was for me to be consistent." said Lamp, who now holds the Blue Jays' record for consecutive wins. "Last year I wasn't consistent. So from the manager's viewpoint, why put a guy out if he isn't effective?'

Lamp is a sinker-slider pitcher who, up to a point, needs to pitch a lot so the ball stays down. This year he's easily getting all the work he wants or needs. He also is continuing a weight-flexability training program he began last

"I'm getting older," the just-turned-33 Lamp said. "So every year you go to spring training just wanting to keep your job. There's a lot of young guys out there after it - especially here." Lamp had no feeling of awe or am.

"Are you kidding? I went through a lot of bad times with the Cubs," he said. "I pitched effectively but got no runs. You just take what they give you. You go out to pitch and you can only control what you do.'

the Los Angeles Dodgers pull it off? In Vero Beach, where sunshine and palm trees seemingly contrasted with the ominous clouds of a new season, the mainstay, throwing two one-hitters, a Dodgers readled a run at the National League West with a fourth-place team 12-4 record with a 2.42 ERA. minus NL ERA champion Alejandro

So how did they reach the point where they were on the brink of clinching the division the San Diego Padres had a lock on last year? Start with Pedro Guerrero, who moved made a bid for the league MVP with the second-best batting average (.325 nearing the end of the month) and home-run total (32). Guerrero, who had just 16 home runs in 1984, carried the team through the summer. His importance was underlined when he was out of the lineup earlier this month with an injured wrist: the Dodgers had their worst slump of the season.

The pitchers derserve a good deal of the credit.

Orel Hershiser more than made up for the loss of Pena, out most of the year with a shoulder problem. Hershiser, an ineffective reliever the first 16 games of last season, continued to sparkle as a starter. Entering the weekend series against San Francisco, he was 17-3 with a 2.06 ERA.

Hershiser Stops Giants For 10th Consecutive Win

United Press International

Orel Hershiser is delivering a better finish than a car wash. -

Hershiser, who has led Los Angeles down the stretch, notched his 10th consecutive victory Friday night, helping the Dodgers draw closer to the National League West crown with a 6-2 victory over the San Francisco Glants.

The decision lowered the Dodgers' magic number for clinching the division to five. Any combination of Los Angeles victories or Cincinnati losses totaling five will return the Dodgers to the playoffs after an absence of one year.

"Every time we win, they have got to win also," said Hershiser. "And they have to be disappointed if we keep winning. Right now our job is to keep rolling and we'll win it."

Hershiser's win marked the longest skein of consecutive victories by a Dodgers pitchers since Bert Hooton won 12 straight in 1975. It boosted Hershiser's record to 18-3. Vida Blue, 7-8, failed to finish the second inning, when the Dodgers batted around and scored four runs.

"He was getting the ball up in the

caine trafficking trial has been recessed until an appeals court rules whether to permit certain testimony from major league baseball players and a former team mascot.

The trial of former bartender Jeffrey Mosco was halted Friday shortly after it began, following a prosecution appeal to a ruling by Judge Paul A. Simmons which would have barred certain testimony by former Pirates Dale Berra and Rod Scurry and former Pirate Parrot Mosco, 30, is charged with 12 counts of selling cocaine to major-leaguers between Aug. 20, 1981 and Dec. 1, 1984.

The appeal was filed with the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court after Simmons ruled the prosecution may not call Berra, Scurry and Koch to testify against Mosco because none of them can remember specific dates when they claim to have bought cocaine from Mosco.

Indians Upend Angels

Angels came to town having won seven of their nine meetings with the Indians this year, and tied for first place in the West. After a 7-3 Cleveland victory, the Angels remain deadlocked with the Royals, who lost to Minnesota, 4-1.

"Nobody can take us lightly, and this win proves it," Indians manager Pat Corrales said. "I'm sure (Angels manager) Gene Mauch didn't expect us to roll over and die, and we didn't."

Andre Thornton's two-run double highlighted a five-run fourth inning, and Neal Heaton, 9-17, snapped a personal fourgame losing streak, working six innings. Vern Ruhle, who relieved after Heaton developed a

Expanding Oviedo Little League Sets Fall Barbecue For Oct. 19

The annual fall barbecue of the Oviedo Little League is scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 19, according to Ed Niemiec. president of the league. The cooking and sales will take place next to the Meat World parking lot in downtown

The barbecue will again feature pork rib dinners for $4 and chicken dinners for $3.50. Niemiec said its purpose is to raise funds in support of improvements being made at the league's fields on King Street. Serving hours will be from 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. The dinners include home-made colesiaw and baked beans.

The timing of the event, on the same day as the Lawton Elementary School carnival, picks up a tradition that has interrupted last year by the dedication ceremonies for the new school building.

"The growth we had in the number of players last year was tremendous." Niemiec said. "We expect the growth to continue with the many new families moving into the area. A fourth field is part of our plans to handle this growth."

Tickets for the dinners may be purchased in advance from members of the Oviedo Little League board of

Shriver Can't Look Past White

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) - No. 2 seed Pam Shriver of Lutherville, Md. may have to guard against looking ahead when she faces Anne White of St. Petersburg Saturday in the semifinals of a $150,000 tournament.

Top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd meets Lisa Bonder in the other semifinal of the Virginia Slims of New Orleans, and should the top two seeds advance to Sunday's final. Shriver would come up against a woman she never has defeated.

Shriver coolly eliminated No. 5-seeded Wendy Turnbull Friday night, 6-2, 6-0, in a quick 40-minute match with the Australian offering little resistance.

Shriver will have to be more convincing today against White, who has notched two upsets in this tournament over No. 7 seed Peanut Louie of San Francisco, 6-4, 6-0, and over No. 3 Zina Garrison of Houston, 6-2, 6-2, en route to the semifinals.

Little Is UCF Women's Coach

ORLANDO (UPI) - Nancy Little, teacher and coach at High Point College in North Carolina for the last six years. was named Friday head coach of women's basketball at the University of Central Florida.

Little, 39, replaces Joe Sanchez, who accepted a similar Job at Wake Forest. Little is a native of Charlotte, N.C., and coached in the North Carolina public schools 10 years before joining High Point, where her teams were 73.56 in basketball and 115-49 in volleyball.

She also has served on the NAIA executive committee and was chairwoman of the 1984-85 NAIA All-America selection committee.

Central Florida opens ita season Nov. 25 at Auburn.

Kriek Upsets 'Tired' McEnroe

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) - A tired John McEnroe says he is thinking of laying off tennis for a while.

"I definitely need a rest," said McEnroe after he was upset Friday night by Johan Kriek in the quarterfinals of a $277,000 men's tennis tournament.

McEnroe lost to Ivan Lendl in the U.S. Open final and then suffered a stomach virus. He said a short break from the circuit would help him.

"I don't want to break my behind for that chance to be No. 1 if I won't be able to play for the next four or five vears."

Special to the Herald

After an emotional 14-12 win over Seminole, Lake Howell coach Mike Bisceglia cited his whole team for an outstanding effort. Most coaches usually do. But if you were to pick out one particular player who contributed the most to the Silver Hawk win, it would have to be Bill Wasson.

Wasson, a 6-1, 185 pound junior who wears the number 82, is "Mr. Versatility" for the Silver Hawks. He is a slotback on offense, plays safety on defense, returns punts and kickoffs, and is also the team's punter. And when he is on the field which is just about every play - it seems like he is also always around the football. He has that magic quality to be where the ball is.

During Friday's win over the Seminoles. Wasson caught a 17-yard touchdown pass, made an interception to stop a Seminole drive, and punted the ball five times for an average of 41 vards, including a pressure 45-yarder that pinned Seminole back inside their 20-yard line with

Just another "average night" for the multitalented Silver Hawk.

"He does it all." Bisceglia said. "He played the whole game on defense, half the game on offense and punted the ball real well. "This is three weeks in a row he has caught a touchdown pass." Wasson's touchdown reception came midway through the first quarter on a crucial third and goal play from the Seminole 17 to give the Silver Hawks an early lead that they never relinquished. From a slot right position, he got free on the outside around the seven yard line and quarterback Mark Wainwright lofted the ball to him. Wasson made a nice over the head catch and easily took it in for the score. "I lined up inside and it was just a simple out Howell secondary would be in for a big test play," he said. "Mark laid it up there beautifully and I just pulled it in."

The Silver Hawk touchdown drive came after Wasson had intercepted a pass on Seminole's opening drive of the game. Seminole quarterback Jeff Blake gunned a short pass into traffic and the ball was knocked up into the air. And almost naturally, Wasson seemed to be in the right place at the right time and the football fell into the hands of number 82.

Although Wasson played an outstanding game. It may not have even been as strong as last week when against West Orange. In that game, he also turned in a touchdown saving tackle on a fourth and goal play from the two.

With all the different things that Wasson does for the Silver Hawks, it wouldn't come as any surprise as if he drives the team bus during away against an impressive Seminole passing-attack. Seminole quarterback Jeff Blake was intercepted three times and hit just four of 11 passes.

"It was the biggest challenge our secondary has had," said strong safety Matt Aliberti, a senior who had one of the interceptions. "I think we proved ourself tonight." Teammate Randy Nixon agreed. "I believe we played well," the juntor cornerback said. "It is time our secondary got some recognition."

Joel Miller ignited the drive.

With a first-and-goal at the five. Dunn was thrown for two consecutive losses and Friendly went nowhere on third down. On fourth down, Delflacco set up for a 26-yard field goal, but it was faked. Gowan, who quarterbacked some last year. tried to hit Brooke Christian in the corner of the end zone but Lyman's Chuck Sheele knocked down the pass and Brantley came away empty.

Lyman took posession at the nine and drove out to the 21 before Scott Radeliff unloaded a 50-yard punt to the Lake Brantley 29. After an incomplete pass by Delflacco on first down. the Patriots fumbled the ball away on second and Bobby Decker recovered for the Hounds at the Lake Brantley 18.

On first down, Thomas bolted for 11 yards to the seven and the senior speedster carried the final seven yards on the next play for the TD. Greene's kick gave Lyman a commanding 17-3 lead with 2:41 left in the third quarter.

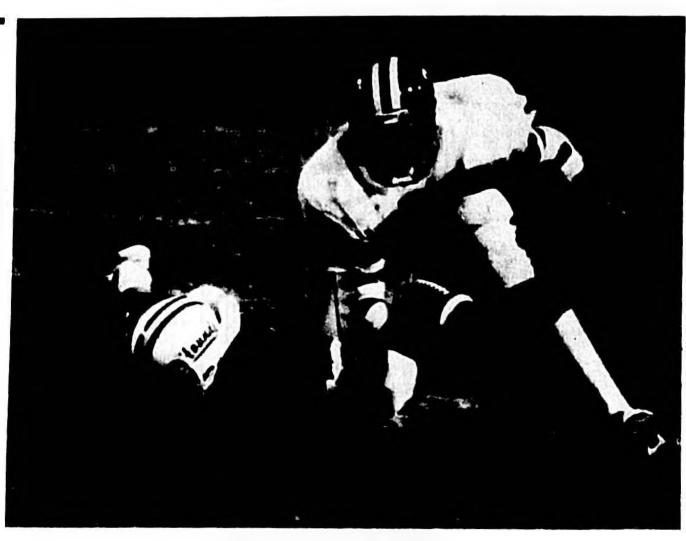

Lake Brantley put together another threat on its next possession as it drove down to the Lyman eight. Dunn's 15yard run and Friendly's 13-yard gain led the way. On first down at the eight. Dunn tried to dump one off to Miller over the middle. The Brantley wide out tipped it and Lyman's Radeliff intercepted at the two-yard line as the third quarter ended.

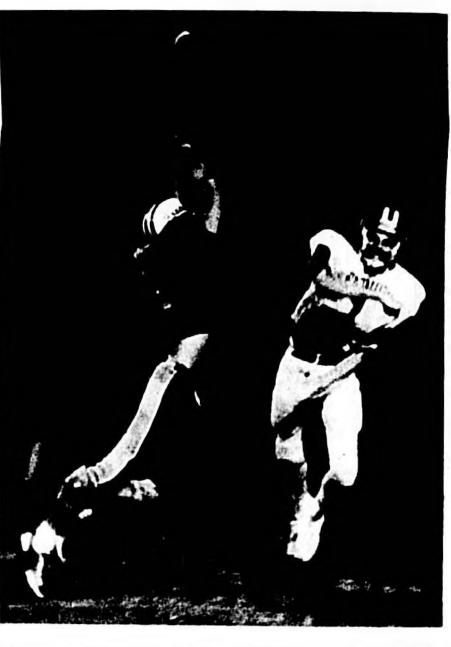

When the fourth quarter started up, the rain started to come down. Brantley pulled within 17-10 with 6:11 left when Friendly scored from two yards out and Delflacco added the kick.

The Patriots then tried an onside kick but Lyman recovered. The Greyhounds got down to the Brantley 13 before being stopped, and Greene came in and nailed a 30-yard field goal to sew up the win with 1:04 remaining.

"When that ball went through the uprights, I felt a big weight lifted off my shoulders," Scott

Almon, who coached at Lyman last year, saw it diflerently, "They (Lyman) just unloaded the weight to my shoulders," said Almon.

The Lyman defense didn't give Lake Brantley a chance to breathe Friday night. Above, Cornellus Friendly is tripped up a Lyman defender as he tries to break outside. At left, Scott King puts the pressure on Lake Brantley quarterback Dave Delflacco. King, a junior who swings between linebacker and defensive end, later made a clutch interception which ignited a Greyhound scoring drive. Lyman's 20-10 victory over the Patriots snapped a 13-game losing streak which dated back to Nov. 18, 1983.

foot speed, was so open he romped 48 yards to the Seminole 9 before Dennis Lawrence saved the TD.

"Can you believe that quarterback (Wainwright) ran 50 vards on our defense?" Mosure said.

"It would be nice if Mark were a step quicker," Bisceglia agreed. "But he was quick enough on that one. It was a great fake." At the 10, the Tribe defense stiffened. Schnitker could get just one up the middle. Two dropped passes and a holding call moved the ball back to the Seminole 18. Wainwright, who was on target all night (8 for 12 and 4 dropped), found Wasson alone in the right flat. He led him perfectly and the 6-2 junior used finger-tip control to tuck it in and sprint 18 yards for the score. Philips kicked the PAT and Howell had a 7-0 lead with 5:31

Both defenses went at each other the rest of the first quarter until Blake found a crack one minute into the second quarter. The strong-armed sophomore rolled left behind good protection and found Herb Hillery open on the sideline. He lofted a perfect toss and Hillery gathered it in and beat the Howell secondary for a 57-yard score with 11:22 left in the half.

The extra point was next. Campbell, who has made a habit of unsettling kickers this year, broke through and swatted down J.J. Partlow's attempt. It kept the Silver Hawks on top.

Seminole, fired up by the score, was in great position to take the lead four minutes later when middle linebacker Brian Brinson made a perfect drop and picked off Wainwright's lone mistake of the night at the Lake Howell 38. Wainwright, nevertheless, prevented a TD when he intercepted Brinson at the Lake Howell 10, It would turn out to be an important stop.

On first down, Curtis Rudolph powered up the middle to the 8. On the next play, however, something strange happened. Blake, apparently seeing something in the Howell defense, changed the play at the line of scrimmage from a run to a pass.

He took two steps back but Howell's Jim Nutter was in his face. He engulfed Blake as he tried to throw and the ball went right to defensive tackle Craig Wagner. After he got over his initial shock, the 230-pound junior stormed 51 yards to the Seminole 42.

"Nutter was on a stunt and Steve Ryan tipped the ball." Wagner satd. "It just fell in my hands so I started running."

The Hawks, though, couldn't capitalize on that opportunity but they did cash in on the game's one controversial play later with 1:09 left in the half. After Theron Liggons made a great interception of a Wasson halfback pass, Seminole had the ball at its 25.

On first down, Blake tossed a swing pass toward Willis in the right flat. The ball went incomplete but Campbell, knowing it was a borderline pass or lateral, covered the loose ball at the Seminole 18. The official ruled it was a lateral and Lake Howell ball.

Wainwright then hit Todd Bates for 12 yards to the 6. Two plays later, he found Schnitker for five to the 1. Schnitker then bulled the final yard and Philips added the PAT for a 14-6 lead. Just 35 seconds remained.

Both teams traded possessions in the third quarter until Seminole finally put together a five play, 68-yard drive for its second score. Willis, who picked up 74 yards in 12 carries for the night, had the big gainer of 43 yards to the Howell 17. After he bounced for one more, Willie Evans streaked around the left end after a nice pitch from Blake for 16 yards and the score. Blake had Rudolph open in the right end zone for two points but his pass was underthrown. Lake Howell led, 14-12, with 11:04 to

The Silver Hawks controlled the ball for the next six minutes with Schnitker doing the work. They moved to the Seminole 30 before stalling. Philips boomed a 47-yard attempt which fell three feet under the crossbar with 5:56 to play.

Seminole wasn't done just yet. The 'Noles moved the ball quickly behind runs from Willis and Levant to the Howell 39. On fourth and less than a foot, Levant was stopped six inches short of the first down with 3:04

"I knew they were going to pinch," Mosure said about the play. "But I still thought we could get a foot."

The foot, as it had all night. belonged to Lake Howell.

In 1983, Hipple suffered a knee injury in the final game of the season against Tampa Bay, sidelining him from the Lions playoff game against the San Francisco 49ers and costing him the 1984 starting lob. After fully recovering from the injury, the 6-foot-2, 198-pound Hipple returned in 1984 against the Bucs and once again sustained a knee injury.

"I have a little bad luck against Tampa Bay," Hipple admitted, "As a matter of fact, the only times I've been hurt in NFL have been against Tampa Bay - both of them have been knee injuries."

While he admits they are ironic occurrences. Hipple said the knee injuries shouldn't make him overly cautious Sunday when he starts his fourth game of the year.

"I don't that'll distract me Sunday because of the different team they have

down there," he said, "It's basically the same personnel, but we have their defensive coordinator (Wayne Fontes) so he's on our side now."

Detroit will be banking on Hipple to help the Lions, 2-1, rebound from Sunday's 14-6 loss to Indianapolis. Meanwhile, the hapless Bues, 0-3, are hoping to pick up their first win of the year after dropping a 20-13 game Sunday to New Orleans.

"Our season has not started well, but if anyone is writing it off. I think they are premature," said Tampa Bay coach Leeman Bennett. "I think we have the ability to defeat Detroit and anyone who saw our first game with Chicago knows we can play with them."

Lions coach Darryl Rogers said he knows better than to chalk up an automatic win against the Bues. One reason being Tampa Bay running back James Wilder, the NFL's top rusher with 393 yards on 75 carries and the NFC's leading receiver with 20 catches. Detroit is ranked No. 23 overall in total defense.

'He's phenomenal," Rogers said of Wilder. "We can expect to see Wilder a whole lot. We hope that we can slow him down, but (Indianapolis' George) Wonsley made a whole lot (of rushing yardage) last week and we do believe that Wilder is much better than Wonsley."

Besides Wilder, the Lions are also concerned with their injury situation for Sunday's game. Fullback James Jones (knee) is listed as doubtful, left guard Chris Dieterich (sprained knee) is definitely out and outside linebacker Mike Cofer is questionable.

The Bucs, however, may also be without some starters as wide receiver Kevin House (knee) and tight end Jimmie Giles are both listed as questionable.

While Detroit is worled about slowing Wilder. Tampa Bay fears the Lions passing game. Hipple has ample targets in wide receivers Jeff Chadwick and Leonard Thompson, as well as Wilbert Montgomery out of the backfield - all of which are game-breakers.

QB Confrontation: Marino Vs. Elway

DENVER (UPI) - Despite quarterbacks Dan Marino and John Elway dueling each other for the first time Sunday, the first meeting between the Miami Dolphins and Denver Broncos in a decade has the look of a first-rate defensive game.

Flying bodies likely will be more decisive than forward passes when the teams meet, particularly if weather forecasters are correct. Predicted snow and near-freezing temperatures could keep offensives

Each team is 2-1 following a narrow season-opening loss and two Impressive wins.

Elway, the former Stanford University star, is outperforming Marino for the first time since the two came into the league in the 1983 season. Much is being made of his rate of three touchdown passes per game - Marino's pace all of last scason.

Dolphins coach Don Shula is not immune to the hype. "Marino versus Elway should get everyone excited," he said.

Marino, who played for a moresuccessful University of Pittsburgh program, is considered to be the best of six 1983 first-round draft choice quarterbacks. In the spring of 1983, Elway was the No. 1 draft choice, and Marino was the sixth quarterback taken.

Elway turned out to be less poised than Marino when the two entered the pros. and he is just now showing a calm and steady hand at the controls. He said that until recently, his reaction to a blitz was to think. "Oh God, here comes the blitz." He still has a tendency to fear interceptions and launch passes too hard and too high. Physically, Elway is considered to have more athletic tools than Marino. He can scramble and roll out, weapons that Marino does not possess. But his impatience and quickness to freelance has ruined plays and angered his coaches. With Marino coming into his backyard, Elway is aware of having to prove himself. When put under those kinds of pressures in the past. however. Elway has suffered a few breakdowns.

Coaches and players this week

Football

have called both quarterbacks "great" and added to the buildup for the first meeting, but until Broncos wide receiver Steve Watson spoke his mind, those statements were careful.

'Marino is nowhere near the quarterback that John is. Just walt. You'll see. John's got the arm, he's got the legs, he's got the smarts. He's got it all," Watson said.

Watson's statement is just one more reason why defense can be expected to shape Sunday's game.

"They shut down Kansas City," Broncos center Billy Bryan said of the Dolphins defense, "and Kansas City had been scoring in bunches. That's impressive.'

Coach Chuck Studley's young defense will benefit from last Sunday's 31-0 victory over the Chiefs and the return to action of contract holdout Bob Brudzinski, a left linebacker.

Elway has spent long hours studying Miami's defense.

'Any time you shut out a team like Kansas City, you've got to have something," he said. The Broncos defense, led by a veteran front line and key pass rusher Karl Mecklenburg, have taken note of one statistic in particular about Miami's offense. Marino has not been sacked in three

The Denver defense is showing signs of returning to strength for this important contest. Strong safety Dennis Smith, who close observers says is the key to the defensive secondary, surprisingly practiced this week and says he will play. He has been sidelined with a dislocated shoulder.

The defense's inspirational leader, linebacker Tom Jackson, also has been practicing. A weak knee has kept him sidelined this season.

The teams have not met since 1975. A meeting in the AFC Championship game was shortcircuited last season when the Broncos were upset by the Pittsburgh Steelers in an AFC semifinal game.

Will you be next to win a $3,500 down payment on a new Babcock Home?

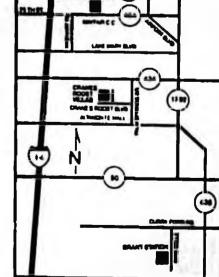

The Babcock Company continues its celebration of 50 years of quality home building with a spectacular offer to introduce their three newest

On July 1, 1985 the Albert Black family of Sanford won $3,500—enough for a down payment on a beautiful new Babcock home at Grant Station, Mayfair Meadows or Crane's Roost Villas.

Simply come to the preview center at any one of these unique Babcock communities and choose a key from our Golden Anniversary bowl. If it's the right key, you win $3,500. To use as a down payment on a beautiful new Babcock home. Or any way you want.

But hurry! Before that right key is gone. No purchase necessary. Offer good only at Grant Station, Mayfair Meadows and Crane's Roost Villas. Entrants must be 21 years of age. Only one winner per family.

Belle Rumbley will tell about her collection of mounted animals, native to Florida, during the Seminole County Historical Museum's Open House festivities.

Bring Family To Museum ben House

17.92 (opposite Flea World). Sanford, will hold Open House from 1-4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 6. The museum will be open to the public at this time and Seminole County residents are encouraged to come and bring their children and grandehildren.

Of particular interest to young people will be a special one-day exhibit of native Florida animals, mounted for display by Tallahassee taxidermist Bob Rumbley, a former Sanford resident. These animals were originally prepared for Rumbley's mother, Mrs. Belle Rumbley, a retired Sanford school teacher.

Mrs. Rumbley will be on hand to describe the circumstances under which the animals were found. In the case of some animals, permission must be granted before they can be mounted for display purposes.

Visitors will hear about "Deer One," the fawn whose death in a fence was most unusual; "Otto,"

Seminole County Historical the grandfather otter: "Carlyle," Museum, located in the County the contented bobcat; "Freddy," Services Center off U.S. Highway the baby fox: "Tom," the wild the baby fox: "Tom," the wild turkey and many other animals and birds.

For this occasion, Dick Dove, a Sanford taxidermist, is loaning the museum the skins of the three poisonous snakes common in Florida so that people will be better able to recognize these dangerous inhabitants.

The Central Florida Zoo will have several live animals native to Florida on display during the afternoon.

The purpose of the museum is to collect, restore and preserve artifacts that will keep alive the history of Seminole County and help future generations appreciate the role Seminole County has played in the growth of Florida and of the United States.

The museum belongs to the residents of Seminole County. The Historical Commission urges everyone to visit it, enjoy it, and help make it even better. Community support is vital to its future success.

From A Load Of Pure Junk To Jewelry, Airplanes And Antiques, Dell Can Sell

By Susan Loden Herald Staff Writer

Will you give, will you go. will you make it? Will you give a dollar, will you go a dollar, will you make it a dollar?" That chant has rolled off the tongue of Lewis C. Dellarco (Dell) Sr., thousands of times in the past 23 years.

Dell is a 71-year-old matchmaker who matches bargain hunters with their buys in the ancient tradition of the auctioneer. Give him anything from a load of pure junk, to jewelry, to antiques to airplanes and as fast as his tongue can wag. Dell will rack up the sales.

It's been that way in Sanford for 22 years since he and wife Ruth came from Ohio and he began selling for the old Farmers Auction which he bought out in about four Dell was carrying on a grand tradition. He said the Farmers Auction was probably the oldest in the state, starting over 50 years ago. Eventually he moved his business to another site and carried on.

Over the years Dell has also held many sales away from his own auction house. which he recently sold. For 12 years he has held auctions for Seminole County, with the next one scheduled for late October. He also is the auctioneer for the city of Sanford, the school board, the Kiwanis Club, Rotary clubs and other groups.

"I raised the first dollar for the zoo about 15 years ago,' Dell said. And although he isn't happy about the proposed move of the Central Florida Zoological Park from Sanford to Orlando, he still auctions items to benefit the zoo, he said.

For charity auctions he takes no commission, but in other cases he's paid a commission, which also covers the costs of advertising and hiring help to run the event, he said.

And helping out at auctions is how Dell, a former baker, got hooked on the game. "If anybody had told me I would have been an auctioneer I would have told them they were crazy," he said. For a year in Ohio he assisted an auctioneer, doing setups and collecting cash. He decided he wanted to take microphone and gavel in hand and step to the podium

"In a way you have to be a showman when you're up on that block. You have to be pleasant. You have to be courteous and have a smile on your face sometimes when you don't feel like you should. It's a show to a great extent," he said.

His boss advised him to go to auctioneer school. He took that advice and he and Ruth. his wife of 39 years, spent a three-week summer vacation at auctioneer school with Dell picking up tips from about a dozen auctioneers all who specialized in auctioning a specific item.

Training sessions were held 14 hours a day for six-day weeks. And at night Dell and his classmates would line up in a field between two stands of poplar trees to shout out and practice the auctioneer's chant, he said.

Although his objective is to move as much merchandise as quickly as he can. Dell said, he learned at Reppert's Auction School in Indiana

Shake Away The Blues Without Going Broke

By Michael Histand NEA Feature Writer

How often, during a bout of the blues, have you wondered if your worries warrant psychological counseling? And how often have you dispelled the thought of therapy because of its high price and prolonged commitment? Freud may not have intended psychiatry to be convenient, cost-effective and self-motivating. But short-term therapists do.

Short-term therapists are like master mechanics," says Milton Berger, the co-director of the American Short-Term Therapy Center in New York City. "They must have a long and complete education so they can fix the carburetor without tearing down the engine." A hybrid approach to counseling, short-term therapy is a less expensive, less time-consuming course of therapy that benefits people who wouldn't normally see a therapist. The key to successful short-term therapy is focusing on one or two specific problems. Then. the patient and therapist work at identifying the problem, understanding past and present events that may have given rise to it and resolving it in as short a time as possible.

Berger says that the most effective treatment comes from borrowing techniques from a variety of therapies: gestalt therapy, transactional analysis, psychoanalysis, assertiveness training, encounter groups, family counseling and behavior

"A short-term therapist doesn't allow prolonged sidetracking into other problems," says Berger. "If a patient goes too far away from the specific problem, whether it's work or family related, he won't go back to face it. It's our duty as therapists to resist a patient's inertia and desire for someone to rescue him and to remind him that he is responsible for himself."

David Grant, a copywriter for an advertising firm, turned to a short-term therapist when he found that he was boring friends with his negative comments on everything from restaurants to a friend's new car. He knew that something was disturbing him, but hesitated when he thought of seeing a counselor because he was wary of a "long-term commitment that I knew I couldn't afford.'

After eight visits with his short-term therapist, Grant realized that he had been sitting quietly through an office shake-up, afraid to ask his boss what was going on.

"I knew my work was good but I needed some affirmation from the boss. So at his the therapist's) urging I went in and asked if he had any problems with me.

things were fine, and thanked me for asking. I felt a little embarrassed, but I never had to see the See THERAPY, 2C

The Woman's Club of Sanford literally "unveiled" its work of art, the renovation and redocaration of the quaint old club building, when members and guests gathered Wednesday for a membership coffee.

The lovely clubhouse sparkles with a refreshing aura of charm and elegance.

The renovation project was under the chairmanship of Beth Welebob who did a "fantastic job." according to several club spokeswomen.

Over 200 women as well as city officials including Sanford Police Chief Steve Harriett. Fire Chief Tom Hickson, City Manager Frank Faison and Jack Horner, president of the Greater menu. Sanford Chamber of Commerce. attended the annual event.

The coffee was hosted by the club's Board of Managers with Martha Yancey, second vice chairman. Greeting the guests at the door were Ann Brisson, club president; Sanford Mayor Bettye D. Smith. first vice president; Dorothy McReynolds, Viola Frank, Lessie Pauline and Lourine Messenger, Faye Kelly directed the guests to the beautifully appointed refreshment tables. Pouring the coffee were Jeri Kirk and Ann Brisson.

It's Time The State Of Bachelorhood Was Honored

DEAR ABBY: We have a Bachelor's Day get your vote? Mother's Day, Father's Day, and now someone has proposed a Wife's Day. Therefore, why not a "Bachelor's Day"?

There is a long list of bachelors who have made worthwhile contributions, and I think it's time the state of bachelorhood was appropriately honored. Some famous bachelors:

The saints: Paul, Luke, Francis of Assist. Thomas Aquinas. Jerome and both Augustines.

There were Plato. Voltaire, Paine. Also, Christopher Marlowe, Walt Whitman and Marcel Proust. And the famous artists Leonardo da Vinci. Raphael and El Greco. Mustcians: Beethoven, Brahms, Liszt, Chopin, Schubert and Handel more than two decades ago that a pro doesn't talk so fast that the audience can't figure out what he has said.

And let's not forget Roger Bacon, Sir Isaac Newton, Andrew Carnegle and Thomas E. Lawrence (known as Lawrence of Arabia). Also J. Edgar Hoover.

"People say, 'I don't understand auctioneers.' I say, 'Hey, you'll understand me.' I go fast enough, because in auctioneering your money is where you can sell as many items as possible in the limited time." But not too fast.

Dell also holds auctions for individuals following a death or divorce. In those cases, he said he offers three options. The owner of the goods could sell them to him out-right; he could take them away from the home and hold an auction elsewhere: or he could hold the auction at the home of the owner of the goods. In the two latter cases Dell works for a commission of from five to 35 percent.

And, he said, given a choice the owner of the goods should opt for an on-site sale. "An auction on the premises will always bring a lot more." Dell way a certain amount. You don't let those people out there know you don't know a darn thing about what you're selling. That's how you proceed. But you really have to know something about it or you can't push the price."

And in pushing the price, in making the sale the auctioneer sometimes pays. The strain on his voice got the best of Dell about six years ago when he had to have polyops removed from his vocal chords. A hazzard of the trade that left him speechless for about six weeks, he said.

The only other time he has been speechless was, he said, when Florida Auctioneer's Associttion, of which he is a past president and secretary, and serves as a director, named him auctioneer of the year last year. He was further honored, he sald, because the "Lewis C. Dell Award," which he received will be given to the top auctioneer in the state each year, is in his

However, in meeting people with goods to sell he has picked up a few interesting collectibles over the years, such as a set of about 400 Japanese sakt cups. an old-time telephone and ice box, a "Gone With the Wind" lamp and a collection of bells, boats and horse figurines.

'Catch Me, If You Can'

With The New VASCAR Units, That Should Be No Problem For Seminole County Deputies

By Susan Loden Herald Staff Writer

Speeders bewarel Seminole County sheriff's deputies have a new speedtracking toy that can outfox even your radar detector.

But Sgt. Jerry Riggins, who heads the sheriffs traffic division, said the ability to outdetect your radar detector isn't the prime reason for the addition of VASCAR devices to four traffic patrol cars.

The $1,800 VASCAR units are Riggins' choice over radar, and the answer to his prayers, because of their accuracy and versatility.

"This isn't the silent viper out there to get fuzz busters or anything like that," Riggins said. "We're not discriminating against or picking on the segment of the motoring public that has fuzz busters.

"I'm absolutely not bothered by fuzz busters. Look at the purpose of a fuzz buster. A guy's driving down the road, his fuzz buster goes off, he slows down. That's our overall objective, to slow down traffic, not to write tick-

But Riggins said with the addition of the VASCAR units, his officers will be writing more tickets because VASCAR is effective in areas and situations where radar is useless.

Although VASCAR has been touted as an anti-radar detector device. Riggins said that's not what makes it his choice over radar in putting the brakes on speeders.

VASCAR, an acronym for Visual Average Speed Computer And Recorder, is a fairly simple timing device that doesn't emit any signals, as radar does. The electronic signals sent out by a radar unit, which bounce off an approaching vehicle and send back an instant reading of speed, are also picked up by radar detectors and warn those whose vehicles are so equipped that if they don't slow down they may buy themselves a ticket. Radar has to be aimed directly at the target vehicle, limiting its use to detecting only the speed of on-coming vehicles. Riggins said. It can't single out a car in heavy traffic. And other conditions, such as rain, may interfere with the reading, Riggins said.

VASCAR isn't hampered by any of these limitations.

Housed in a small black box mounted on a car dashboard. VASCAR emits no signals. It's a timing device that allows a trained operator (trained by the Florida Highway Patrol which also uses the devices) to accurately measure the distance between any two points along a highway and time a vehicle as It travels between them.

The unit then electronically computes the average speed based on the measured distance and time, Riggins VASCAR can be used to clock vehicles approaching a patrol car from either the front or rear. And a lawman can park far back from the roadway instead of on the edge of the road, as radar requires. As long as he can sight traffic, the VASCAR can read the speed of any vehicle he singles out of a pack. Riggins said.

All the officer has to do is pick two sight points - telephone poles. markings on the road, shadows ... then flip a switch on the VASCAR. when a suspect vehicle hits that point.

gadgets are said to be even more VASCAR.

Sheriff's Sgt. Jerry Riggins accurate and versatile than radar, monitors his VASCAR speed if you've gotten a speeding ticket tracking device along a busy in Seminole County lately, you stretch of highway. The new may have been caught by then flip it again when the vehicle hits the second measuring point.

That gives the unit the reading it needs to calculate and display the average speed of the vehicle as it traveled from point to point, Riggins

Riggins said he expects to see the VASCAR units put to their greatest use in school zones, areas of heavy traffic, and traditional high-speed

But VASCAR won't replace radar. he said. "It's like comparing apples and oranges. They both have their uses," with radar being most effective in singling out speeders on an interstate.

VASCAR came on the scene about 16 years ago, according to FHP Sgt. Chuck Williams. However, it fell out of favor with troopers because it was hard to find replacement parts. But now he said the problem has been solved and VASCAR is the speedercatching gadget of the future.

The FHP is slated to have 100 VASCAR units on the road this year and the system is used in the patrol's speed-tracking aircraft, Williams said. Riggins expects VASCAR findings to hold up well under court tests, and being a relatively new device legal challenges are assured. "The courts are accepting it. If the operator can document and prove his training and that the unit is calibrated properly (calibrated daily by the operator and checked annually by the FHP), that he operated it properly, he can't be beat," he said.

Riggins said he feels he's doing the public a service enforcing traffic laws. The driving public, however, don't understand. "They don't appreciate it at the time, but if they look at the overall objective, they didn't violate Jerry Riggin's law, they violated the law of the state of Florida that I'm sworn to enforce."

Motorists who get ticketed for speeding are fond of asking police. Why aren't you out arresting robbers, rapists or murderers?' That's very important too, but more people are killed in traffic accidents. You may be only robbed or raped once. You can only be murdered once, but statistics show if you drive 50 years you're going to have four accidents and one of them is going to be serious."

With Seminole County traffic flow increasing daily. Riggins said he needs all the help he can get in enforcing traffic laws. VASCAR, he said, is just what he needs. But It won't mean an end to the need.

Speeding "is just human nature. Everyone wants to get where they're going as quick as they can," he said. Everybody is in a hurry nowadays.

"We need to enjoy the traffic the way it is now, as bad as it is, because it's only going to get worse. These are the good ol' days.'

What Shape Would The Economy Be In If? ...

I have finally gotten around to seeing "Back to the Future." I find myself endlessly intrigued by the notion of traveling back in time to fix something in the past.

In the film. Marty only gets to fix the personalities of his parents and to save the future life of his friend. But what about the opportunity to save a whole society? I have been fantasizing about a trip back to the 19th century, in which people are saved from the harsh reality of unregulated capitalism, and are blessed by the early introduction of the modern welfare state.

In the fantasy, I watch what happens to Hyman Minsky, a poor immigrant seeking freedom from the oppression of poverty. The experience is a revelation.

I first catch up with Mr. Minsky upon his arrival, with his wife and two children, in New York in 1890. He is poor. He is unskilled. He speaks little English. He is also very ambitious. He was, after all, willing to leave friends and country in search of a better life in a strange land.

Mr. Hyman's first encounter is with a social worker who greets him warmly.

"Welcome, welcome, Mr., uh. Minsky! You and the family will be wanting to find a place to stay. Fortunately, you'll find that rents are cheap. The robber barons that own the apartments used to gouge tenants mercilessly, but now we've got rent controls, so rents are only $8 a month. Unfortunately, it's a little hard to find a place."

Mr. Minsky nodded happily.

After six days of fruitless search. Mr. Minsky happened on a couple who were carrying suitcases down to the sidewalk. Sensing an opportunity, he went up. The building superintendent was surveying a newly vacant apartment.

"You're, in Juck, Mac. Those people left suddenly. Usually, word gets out someone's leaving, and right away you get 100 people lined up to rent the place. Rent's $8 with the controls. Of course, there is a little deposit for the key, just a little thing between you and

"It's $100. You just got here, though. right? No money? No problem, Mac. I'll make you a little loan. You just pay me a dollar a week, as along as you're here. These places are so hard to get, you're not likely to move. Remember, this is just a little thing between us - don't mention it to anyone, OK?"

Mr. Minsky nodded happily. His next stop was with an employment counselor.

"You've worked in construction? Too bad. Jobs there are a little scarce right now. Actually, jobs are a little scarce. period. We've got a minimum wage, though, so you won't have to take sweatshop wages. The bosses have to pay you $1.25 a day - not like before, when you might get only $1. In the meantime, you get 40 cents a day unemployment.'

Mr. Minsky nodded happily. After weeks of search, Mr. Minsky's unemployment benefits ran out. His savings were nearly gone. He was told. however, not to worry. He could go back to the social welfare worker he had seen before, and get welfare benefits.

"You're in luck, Mr. Minsky," the welfare worker said. "The state will

The era of space-age miracles and high-tech heaven is upon us and it is producing a brave new world of basket cases.

United Way: Helping Time Fly

Time certainly does fly. For most of us. For some, however, time drags on at an agonizingly slow pace.

Time can be a big enemy if you're one of those unfortunate souls fate has dealt a cruel blow to: Left you handicapped ... put you at risk of losing everything you own ... put you in desperate need of emotional support, or made you a helpless drug or alcohol addict reaching out for human kindness.

Yet, even for those whose misfortunes seem unbearable there is hope. Hope through community support provided via myriad social services furnished by United Waysupported agencies.

And speaking of how fast time flies, it's that time of year again when volunteer fund raisers will be pounding the pavement for endless hours determined to make or exceed their quota to reach the United Way's 1985-86 goal.

That goal in Seminole County this time around is $550,000, and there's every indication local residents won't let United Way down. They haven't in the past, and there's no reason to believe things will be different this year.

That's because there seems to be no other fund-raising effort that is met with such strong community support — and no other such effort believed-in so fully - as that of United Way.

And as was the case last year, Seminole County has an extra special interest in the United Way fund drive. This year's Honorary Campaign Chairperson in Seminole County is Leigh Moncrief, the 9-year-old daughter of Sanford lawyer, Kirby Moncrief.

Leigh has spina bisida, but doesn't let that stop her from participating in the junior girl scouts. She was chosen for the spot, say United Way officials, because of "her courage, strength, hope and love ... She embodies the very spirit of the United Way movement ..."

When United Way volunteers ask for your support, go ahead and give it. It's one of the more deserving causes you can get involved

Maybe your contribution will make time pass a little faster for someone.

Truck Deregulation

Transportation deregulation, which took a detour during the last presidential election, is rolling again.

A long-awaited Reagan administration proposal to finish the job of interstate trucking deregulation has been sent to Capitol Hill. The proposal would give truckers more choices in what commodities they carry, the routes they take and the rates they negotiate with their customers.

The proposal also would end the Interstate Commerce Commission's role in trucking, a campaign promise made by President Reagan. Such a move has been in the works for two years, but some believed the administration was spinning its wheels because of the politically powerful Teamsters Union.

We support the president's efforts to get government off the backs of business and the American people. Partial deregulation in trucking has already helped small operators and has resulted in cheaper rates for shippers and some reductions in high pay scales for unionized truckers.

Perhaps the most serious issue generated by deregulation critics concerns safety. They say truckers, faced with more competition. are cutting corners in safety. State officials need to address this issue.

The road to deregulation has been bumpy. as experienced by the airline and telephone industries. But both consumers and shippers can gain from elimination of the remaining economic restrictions in trucking.

It's Time For Some Frank Dialogue

Recently I was invited to debate a repre- ard Nixon's visits to communist China and then sentative of the Soviet Union on contemporary international issues before a large crowd at the annual festival of the Italian Communist Party.

My first impulse was to reject the invitation. not because I was fearful of debating a Soviet opponent, but because I was fearful of the American public's reaction to an American politician speaking at a meeting sponsored by the Italian communists. But after urging President Reagan for the past several years to enter into a dialogue with the Soviet communist leadership, how could I, as an American public figure, run away from a dialogue with the Italian communist leadership? The Russians are supposedly our most dangerous rivals, whereas the Italian Communist Party has officially endorsed the NATO alliance and blasted Moscow for its 1968 occupation of Czechoslovakia and its current occupation of Afghanistan.

But beyond this, even if the Italian communists were opposed to us across-the-board, where is the logic in praising Mr. Reagan for journeying to Geneva for discussions with Moscow's top communist and endorsing Richspurning the invitation for debate and discussion with the Italians?

So I accepted the invitation and debated for two hours with Nikolai Kovalsky, a toughminded, highly articulate deputy editor of Pravda, on the Issues of the Cold War and the arms race.

While in Italy I was asked by representatives of the Christian Democrats, currently the largest Italian political party (the Communists are a close second) and the Socialist Party (a distant third in party strength) if I would accept invitations to speak before their party functions in the near future. I agreed to do so. It is my hope that other American political figures will be involved in exchanges with our European counterparts in the various political parties.

At one point in the Italian debate, Mr. Kovalsky asserted that the arms race was driven by what President Eisenhower had called "the military-industrial complex" in the United States. Mr. Kovalsky was right in part about Eisenhower's warning. But I was able to remind him and the audience that in an unusually candid exchange at Camp David in 1959 with Soviet Premier Khruschev, Eisenhower confessed that whenever he tried to restrain military spending his military advisers would warn him that the Soviets were developing new weapons that would reduce the United States to second-rate status. To this Khruschev replied: 'For me it is just the same. Some people from our military department come and say, 'Comrade Khruschev, look at this. The Americans are developing such and such a system.' And we take the steps which our military people have recommended."

And so, I contended, the military-industrial complex does push the arms race, but it pushes It in the Soviet Union as well as the United States. It takes two nations to fuel an arms race, just as it takes two nations to negotiate an arms control agreement.

It warmed my soul to witness several thousand Italians loudly applauding these lines. but I was even more inspired by the applause Mr. Kovalsky and I received each time either of us made a reference to the necessity of bringing the nuclear arms madness under control.

Getting Jump On Jealousy

We all know that Frankie and Johnnie were lovers. That is, until Frankle looked over the transom and saw her "lovinest man" in the arms of Alice Bly. She threw back her kimono, took out her little .44 and shot him "right through the hardwood floor - 'cause he done her wrong."

So goes the old folk song about icalousy, that painful feeling most of us have had at one time or other. It's the motive in murders and the central tragedy in some of the world's great literature.

Seventeenth century poet John Dryden called it "the jaundice of the soul," and Joseph Addison, in The Spectator, wrote that jealousy is what one feels when he's not sure he is "equally beloved by the person he entirely loves."

The green-eyed monster always involves a human triangle. This is a premise of a new book by Nancy Friday. In her treatise, titled simply, "Jealousy" [Morrow and Co.), the author writes in the titillating, mentally disrobing style of her previous best-sellers, "My Secret Garden" and "My Mother/Myself.'

"Jealousy," then, is about rivals. The little boy dotes on his mother's love and is devastated when he thinks she loves his father more. The adolescent girl competes with her mother for the affection of her adored father. When his best friend takes up with another, a young man is hurt; a wife is humiliated when her husband discards her for a younger woman.

Ms. Friday explores the myth that women are more often jealous than men. This is partly an outgrowth of the notion that we gain our identity through men: Lose your man and you lose your identity.

On the other hand, if a man loses his love, he doesn't have to lose his sense of self.

It is entirely possible, however, that men fear Jealousy far more than women. To lose a woman to a rival is the ultimate blow to one's manhood and honor. And to make sure this doesn't happen very often. men have set up rules throughout history to punish unfaithful wives much more than unfaithful husbands.

When King Arthur discovered Queen Guenevere was having an affair with Lancelot, she was sentenced to burn at the stake. In the Middle Ages, men locked their wives in chastity belts before going off to the Crusades.

View From Managua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (NEA) -Visitors to Nicaragua are surprised to find a different nation than the delicate non-aligned status, now one presented by the U.S. govern-

In little more than a week, in conversations with leading figures in the government, opposition leaders. peasants and American officials, a portrait emerges that varies greatly with President Reagan's description of Nicaragua as an exporter of revolution, an oppressor of its minority populations, a violator of human rights, and a threat to the stability of the region. A group of American blacks has just completed 10 days of walking and talking throughout Nicaragua - from Managua, the capital, still filled with vacant lots and damaged buildings, to Estell, where the contras destroyed a bridge and burned two buses in late August, to Bluefields on the Atlantic coast, where an ambitious experiment in self-government for the region's seven ethnic groups promises to revitalize a neglected area. Nicaragua is in the process of defining itself. With fewer people than Chicago, it is hard to imagine this lovely land of beaches, jungles. lakes and volcanic mountains as a threat to anyone. In last November's elections elections characterized off the record by a highly placed American official as "at least as fair as elections in Jersey City or Chicago" - the Sandinista Party won 61 of 90 seats in the National Assembly. which is currently drafting a new constitution. Eight other parties participated, including three small Marxist parties, whose politics are far to the left of the Sandinistas, and three larger parties on the right. The constitution's drafters expect it to guarantee a confinuation of the country's political pluralism and mixed economy, as well as its threatened by the U.S. economic embargo.

La Prensa is the opposition newspaper whose strident, anti-Sandinista tone has made it subject to almost daily, often petty, censorship.

One sign of La Prensa's standing in this country came in 1980, when 80 percent of its editorial staff left to form Nuevo Diario, an often critical "supporter" of the changes the revolution has brought.

"Sometimes the government misinterprets the will of the people." Nuevo Diario's editor, Xavier Chammaro, told the Americans. "Then the paper steps in." Nuevo Diario has been critical of what Chammaro describes as "economic mishandling.'

The paper, like La Prensa, is subject to similar, if seldom enforced, censorship. But Chammaro was quick to point out that censorship is really in the hands of President Reagan." If he halts the aggression, Chammaro said, we can go back to the way it was in the first two years of the revolution, when there was no censorship. La Prensa, he said, obviously reflects the opinions of the Reagan administration.

Were last November's elections fair? "I'm 53 years old," Chammaro told the Americans. "This is the first time I have seen fair elections in Nicaragua."

The toll of the guerrilla war on this small nation has been tremendous. In Esteli, where the contras attacked last August, Carlos Manuel Morales, governor of the region. listed the casualties: 7,344 killed (including 28 doctors, so vital to the region): 6,300 children orphaned: and 180,000 people displaced.

WILLIAM RUSHER Leftist

Runs Amok

America's liberals are whipping themselves into an absolute frenzy over South Africa - a performance all the more remarkable because conditions there today differ from prior conditions only in being visibly and substantially better. Just within the past two years, the almost 1 million Indians and the 2.5 million Cape "coloreds" have been enfranchised, and last January the Botha government followed this up by calling for a "national forum" in which black spokesmen would be invited to discuss with the other group's ways and means of bringing the nation's black majority into the political process as well.

And yet, incongruously, the chief result of these hopeful developments has been an escalation of terrorist acts internally (as African National Congress revolutionaries rushed to kill or intimidate all black "collaborators") and furious denunciations abroad.

In the United States, to be sure the "South Africa issue" was, quite apart from its merits, an emotional godsend to liberals smarting from their trouncing at the polls last November. The nuclear issue hat been skillfully knocked out of their hands by Mr. Reagan with his Star Shield proposal, which left liberals in the dismaying position of having to argue for deterrence through Mutual Assured Destruction, Suddenly the award of the Nobel Prize to Bishop Tutu, and his adroit use of the ensuing publicity, suggested new means of achieving a moral "high." American liberals have been mainlining South Africa ever Few, however, can have experienced the moral raptures achieved by Leon Wieseltler in the Sept. 30 issue of The New Republic. Wieseltier is reputed to be the house leftist, even by TNR's generous standards, and perhaps his backpage fulminations are to be understood as his personal opinion only. But there are plenty of people on the staff who know better, and I can't help thinking they must have been privately ashamed of Wieseltier's performance.

"Anybody." he shricked, "who cannot bear Sakharov's internment in Gorky should not bear easily Mandela's internment in Pollsmoor." Why not? Sakharov hasn't committed crimes of violence - specific and odious acts of terrorism, of which he was duly convicted and for which he is serving a prison term.

Green Beret Falsely Accused

By Jack Anderson And Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON - Fame has its price. Col. James "Bo" Gritz, the much-decorated Green Beret officer who tried to rescue American prisoners of war in Southeast Asia. wound up mentioned in an FBI affidavit, accused of weapons deals with the Hell's Angels.

The FBI evidently dismissed the charge as idle gossip, a bit of name-dropping by a club member to a bureau informant. Gritz denied it, as did the motorcyclist to whom the accusation had been attributed. Here's the story:

On May 17, 1984. in Winchester. Va., the informant, code named "C5," was talking with Ronald Cheeseman, president of the Angels' Binghamton, N.Y., chapter. They were in a group making a "run" to

Myrtle Beach, S.C. Cheeseman told C5 that he and Manhattan chapter president Sandy Alexander had gone to Rio de Janeiro to look over a new chapter

"Cheeseman mentioned to C5 that while in Rio, Alexander ... had met with Bo Gritz, who traveled to Rio to meet with Alexander," the affidavit states. The informant said Cheeseman described Gritz as "an individual with whom Alexander had been negotiating weapons transactions for some time." But Alexander's attorney told our associate Tony Capaccio: "The paragraph in the affidavit is not accurate. Mr. Alexander denies saying that to Mr. Cheeseman." The following day, by sheer coincidence. New Jersey State Police flagged down Alexander and 13 other bikers on U.S. Route 40 near the Delaware Memorial Bridge. They were on their way to the get-together in Myrtle Beach.

The cops seized Alexander's book of phone numbers, which contained Gritz's unpublished number in Nevada.

Gritz said he has never been in Rio. Then how did his name and number wind up in a Hell's Angel's little black book? Gritz said that about 18 months ago he got a letter from Alexander on Angels stationery. It suggested ways that "Cuba could be given back to the Cubans," Gritz said. adding. "He wanted my suggestions.

Gritz said he "wrote back what I thought was a 'Dear Citizen' letter." He also gave Alexander the phone number of a Special Forces buddy, Gary Goldman.

"Bo laughingly called me up and said he gave Alexander my number," Goldman said. Alexander called him and "wanted to do something that would make the country look favorably on the Angels." Goldman recalled. He themonce."

wouldn't say what the Angel's plan was, except that it was "bizarre, outrageous and the American public would absolutely shudder."

Gritz said he did meet briefly with Alexander, at the biker's request, in Gean, Nev. "We established some kind of rapport." Gritz said. They discussed Alexander's idea for rescuing Americans in Southeast Asia. Alexander felt this would create good publicity, which would help members of the motorcycle club get Alexander continued to call and write to Goldman. When Alexander was arrested in New York during the FBI's recent drug crackdown. his wife called to see if Gritz and his friends could help "get them out of jail," Goldman said.

"The bottom line is that we never went anywhere with them," Goldman said. "Bo met with one of By Mohammad Lufti reality. The Palestinian people have proved with their lives that the PLO is their sole legitimate representative. Even the United States is slowly realizing after the debacle in Lebanon that only legitimate representatives of all parties concerned can deliver on agreements reached at negotiating tables. A number of Israelis are also slowly realizing this fact.

Peres and his Likud partners do not seem to grasp that in a state of war, it is generally enemies who make peace with one another. Israel made peace with Egypt, long viewed the most militant and nationalistic of Arab States. Why, then, does largel persist in its obsessive refusal to talk to the PLO?

Because talking to the PLO means recognition of the entire Palestinian problem, the problem of a people expelled from their land. Such recognition then requires redressing the wrong that was done to them - admitting that one's country committed a grave injustice. It also means giving up the West Bank and Gaza in total to resolve this problem in total, not finding some "Interim" arrangement that facilitates continued control over the land. But this is exactly what Peres - not to mention Likud hawks - are most anxious to avoid.

Peres' plan stipulates that Palestinian stipulated.

delegates to the final negotiations would be chosen from the occupied territories only. He thus insists on solving only the problems of the Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza. But what of the Palestinians in refugee camps in Lebanon who live under nightmarish conditions of insecurity and fear? What about the Palestinians in Kuwait who are refused work permits and residency, but have no passport to fly elsewhere? What about the Palestinians in other parts of the world, who are insisting on their national identity?

Their rights and aspirations, too, must be addressed.

The Arab countries have carefully called for an international conference as a context for negotiations. Israel agreed to a similar conference in 1976 in Geneva despite the fact that the Soviet Union had no diplomatic relations with Israel at that time. Today, Israel and the U.S. refuse to attend an international conference on the weak pretext that the Soviet Union is not constructive in its pursuit for peace.

Are the U.S. and Israel, who caused so much bloodshed in Lebanon, any better? Israel and the U.S. want to keep the Soviets out so that they can guarantee a U.S.-sponsored pro-Israeli solution that will not necessitate total withdrawal from all areas occupied in 1967 as the UN Security Council has

The israett peace plan has not coincided with any goodwill gestures towards the Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza. Contrary to what Israel officials would have you believe, Palestinians in the occupied West Bank and Gaza have not felt any changes in the "quality of life" since the takeover of the supposedly "donish" Peres government. The freeze that Likud imposed on municipal elections in the West Bank is still in effect. Major Palestinian cities are still run by Israeli mayors contrary to local laws. Salaries for government paid civil servants have dropped in real value from the equivalent of U.S. $400 to less than U.S. $200 a month. The West Bank and Gaza economy as a whole has disintegrated as a result of Israel's policy of 'economic annexation.'

The human rights record of the Peres-led government is not one of a country seeking peace. Palestinian universities are still closed down for the flimslest of reasons, travel liens and other collective punishments like curfews and arbitrary business closures continue to characterize Israeli rule.

I point to all the above in order to show that peace cannot be accomplished by eloquent press statements and carefully worded diplomatic propaganda.

The fact of the matter is that keeping the West Bank and Gaza is more important to most Israelis than achieving peace in the area.

Help U.S. Business Compete With Imports

Getting the Congress to end deficit spending, and to go to noninflatable money - gold coin - are fundamental, long-range measures to help cure the underlying causes of economic problems, including the difficulties U.S. businesses, workers and consumers are having competing with imports. But two paramedic measures which Congress could take would give U.S. businesses the competitive strength to reach a better future in the marketplace.

One of the major edges have had is price. American consumers are cost-conscious, trying to maintain a budget. They will shop for the most value at the best price. Our foreign trading partners have, so far, been able to compete with lower prices on comparable products.

Protectionist actions, such as tariffs and quotas, which merely drive up the price of imports, would only cut off American consumers, and set up destructive trade wars. The results of the Smoot-Hawley Act of 1930 worldwide depression - are ample demonstrations of what not to do.

If government could help American businesses to lower their prices, however, imports would face genuine competition in the U.S. marketplace, and American consumers would benefit, as well.

Congress can do that.

A wide variety of federal taxes on businesses and products exists. A so-called "business tax," however, is but a deception, for it, along with all other costs of doing business, must be passed along to the customer if a company is to remain solvent. A study on the retail price of a 1980 midsize Ford sedan, for example, revealed that, of the $10,000 show-room price tag. Ford Motor Co., its vendors. transportation, advertising, and warehousing contractors, and its dealers received only $5,100. The other $4,900 - almost half the price tag - was the cost of various taxes and of compliance with regulations. Another study, a few years ago, found 180 separate taxes, from wheat field to grocer's shelf, in the retail price of a loaf of bread.

If such a sizable portion of each dollar an American consumer pays for an item is nothing more than hidden taxes and the cost of regulations, it is no wonder that the U.S. made product's price tag is often higher than that of the import next to it on the retail shelf.

Congress can't tell companies in another country how much to pay their workers, but Congress could end federal taxation on businesses and products, and deregulate manufacturing, doing business, and the marketplace. Without those handleaps, U.S. products could compete in the domestic marketplace with price, as well as with quality and innova-

Detaxation and deregulation ought not to add to the federal deficit which Congress must face. Whatever reduction in tax revenue would result be offset by the federal budget reductions Congress could achieve by deregulation, as regulations enforcement program expenditures become unneces-

Congress can never solve an American's economic problems for him, but Congress can get government out of the way, so that an American can solve his or her own problems. Detaxation and deregulation would enable Americans to better compete with imports, but would Congressmen and Senators ever do anything so rational as to actually stop causing the very problems that give some of them so many opportunities for speeches, campaign promises, and pork barrel deals to buy votes? Yes they would, if private citizens let them' know about it.

To let one's elected representative I have been so disturbed that I have know takes courage and a postage stamp, as well as a vote on election day. But that is far easier to do than it is to eventually have to emigrate to find work, as so many citizens of other nations have had to do. That doesn't have to happen here.

Kent H. Williams Los Angeles

Censor Rock Lyrics

I am a 58-year-old Grandmother who has been diligently trying to help the cause of the Parents Music Resource Center.

The Senate Commerce Committee hearing Sept. 19 should have been heard and viewed by every parent and grandparent of young children and teenagers who are rock record devotees. It is becoming more obvious how many parents are not fully aware of the extreme and explicit contents of these rock lyrics and the MTV videos.

I have been upset by the MTV programs my young grandchildren, ages 9 thru 16, are so engrossed in viewing. They have stayed glued to the TV in a state of hypnotism, devouring every gesture and inuendo.

investigated how I could have these offensive videos removed from my cable reception. True, it is hard to make out and understand all of the lyrics clearly, but even a deaf mute doesn't need closed caption to get the message the performers are trying to get across. I was told, yes, they could sell me a box to lock out any channel I wanted to, at an extra cost plus an additional charge to my regular monthly cost. I couldn't believe it, I had to pay to have that sludge removed!!!??? I commend the two ladies, Mrs. Tipper Gore's and Mrs. Susan Baker's efforts to bring this cause to the public. If the two groups, the supporters of PMRC and the membere of the Recording Industry Association of America, work together, they could come up with a method of censorship where as both groups could benefit.

I am very serious in doing whatever I can to uphold my responsibility to my grandchildren, as an interested grandparent, to help stop the glorifying of sex, extreme violence, drug abuse and Satanism that is so vividly displayed, to the tune of so called music. The TV programmed MTV videos, record covers and their contents should be censored in such a way to prevent the viewing and purchasing by young peope before they are of the age to be considered adult enough to form their own censorship. WE OWE THEM THIS.

The Teacher Knows Where 'Austrailia' Is

By United Press International

The Phoenix (Aris.) Gasette

Every few years. Americans are shocked by national statistics which show U.S. students don't know the capital of their own state, can't identify the vice president of the United States, and are unable to locate Japan, the Soviet Union or France on a world map.

Faced with these unsettling results, we blame the children, the schools, the teachers, ourselves. cartographers, everybody, nobody. That's why a recent homework assignment for a sophomore class at Sunnyslope High School is so disturbing. Students in a social studies class were asked to locate 48 countries on the map. Among these "nations" were:

Phillipines. Austrailia. Uraguay. Lybia. Morproceo. Puerta Rico. Kwait. Artica (?). Union of South Africa (last called that in 1961).

... You would think an interested teacher could get the correct spelling for the term's first assignment. Or the teacher may not care. Does anyone?

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

When President Harry S Truman proposed in 1948 the creation of a civil rights commission, he had in mind a panel that would work on programs to eliminate discrimination from this society. After its formation in 1958, the commission retained its independence, to the occasional chagrin of some occupants of the White House. But all that has changed under President Reagan, who apparently has felt a need to politicize the commission to tailor its recommendations to his own philosophy. ... The makeup of the boards is now 36 percent female and 64 percent male, a significant decrease from previous administrations. Forty-six of the 50 chairmanships are held by white men. The percentage of black chairmen dropped to 18 percent from 41 percent in January, and women chairmen dropped to 8 percent from 39 percent. ... it appears that the Reagan administration would approve of having very few blacks or women on any of the commission's panels. That in itself is a civil wrong.

The Dailas Morning News

When the Senate took up the immigration bill the other day, it stripped off the amendment of Sen. John Heinz, who wants Social Security to be separated from the general budget, as it was origionally designed to be.

The move made sense: the Heinz amendment was unrelated to the subject of the immportant immigration bill. But what Heinz wants to do makes a lot of sense, too. The senators voted to put the matter aside for further study by the budget and finance committees.

Social Security was lumped in with the general budget years ago to disguise the size of the big budget's deficit - Social Security was running a surplus in those days. Today, with the younger generations' confidence in Social Security shaken and the problems of maintaining the system's solvency continuing, it is clearly time to dispense with the old scam and put Social Security finances in their own spotlight.

The Hartford (Conn.) Courant

If all military medical professionals were as competent and dedicated as Capt. Benjamin "Hawkeye" Pierce, that paragon of a surgeon on television's "M-A-S-H," no one would worry that American soldiers and their dependents weren't getting the best medical care.

In the real world of military medicine, however. there's cause for concern. Quality is uneven and sometimes inadequate. That's why having civilian physicians monitor patient care at the 186 U.S. military hospitals is a praiseworthy policy switch that's long overdue.

The high turnover among military doctors many of whom enter the service directly from medical school and resign as soon as possible to pursue lucrative civilian careers - works against achieving high-quality medicine. ... But civilian peer review, enabling objective scrutiny by able. experienced physicians, is an important step toward ensuring that military medical care is the best it can be.

The Daily Iowan, Iowa City The Rev. Benjamin Weir released from captivity in Lebanon after more than a year has reopened the issue of U.S. policy in the Middle East.

The immediate problem for the Reagan Administration is that the terrorists have demanded the release of convicted terrorists imprisoned in Kuwait, threatening to kidnap - and execute more Americans if the United States doesn't meet their demands.

As the concentrated furor and administration paralysis caused by the last hostage crisis testifies, the Reagan Administration undoubtedly hopes the latest flurry can be contained to a few days, that Weir and the families of the remaining six hostages will sink back into oblivion after they are interviewed. If the terrorists are savvy and serious - and it appears they are both - they will make sure the issue does not fade.

But the hostages are only an immediate problem. ... The real problem is that the administration has no clear Middle East policy.

It's a simple matter to change a light bulb. A few quick turns and you switch darkness into light. Suddenly all the corners in the room come clear again.

Suppose you could solve all your problems that simply. Suppose that by a flick of the wrist you could flood your troubles with light and understanding. Are you sure you could stand the sight?

Theological Debate

It May Mean Renewal For The United Church of Christ

By David E. Anderson UPI Religion Writer

The United Church of Christ, which traces Its heritage to the world of the 17th century Puritans, is in the midst of a theological dialogue some believe could bring renewal to the 1.7 million-member denomination.

Long considered one of the most liberal of mainstream Protestant church bodies, the denomination - a 1957 merger of the Congregational Christian Churches and the Evangelical and Reformed Church - is also viewed as the ultimate expression of a church that has submerged theology in the name of social activism.

But for the past year, a little-noted theological debate, encompassing sharply differing factions in the church, has begun to take shape and is at a point where it could decisively influence the church's future.

Recently, 140 laity and clergy gathered in Craigville, Mass., to examine the way the Bible operates in the life of the church and its members.

The meeting was a follow-up to several other events, including a 1983 "appeal" to the church's executive council signed by 39 theologians, a first Craigville meeting and its statement, a manifesto by theological (Iowa) Declaration" and a statement by social activists known as, "The Prophet Speaks to Our Times.

"Across the spectrum of opinion in the United Church of Christ there is a tendency for theological thought to be utilitarian, in the service of programmatic ends, without sustained, disciplined reflections on the present condition of the church," the theologians said in the 1983 appeal. "What is needed, is a sustained rethinking of our theological tradition."

The Craigville meetings are one response to that concern.

At the most recent session the issue of the authority of the Bible - an issue being wrestled with throughout Christianity was the major focus.

For two days the participants wrestled with three questions: In what way can it be said that Scripture is God's Word? What is the relationship between the authority of Scripture and the authority of tradition? What is the relationship between the authority of Scripture and the authority of lived experience in diverse social, cultural and historical situations?

While the participants issued a conservatives known as "The Dubuque 1.200-word "witness" statement at the conclusion of their deliberations, they came up with no easy answers to their questions. And they readily acknowledged they were not in unanimity on the issues.

Views of the participants varied widely. from consideration of the Bible as "the written Word of God, the infallible rule of faith and practice for the church" to the view the book is "an earthen vessel" and personal experience is critical in reading the

The "witness" statement borrowed from both, saying: "An emerging theme of consensus among us was that the authority of Scripture, the authority of tradition and the authority of experience are inextricably bound together. Any one or two taken apart from the other(s) would not be faithful to our understanding of how God speaks to us."

The Rev. Avery Post, president of the denomination, says the debate is a sign that "God is the midst of us, shaking us out of theological lethargy, judging us for pining after cheap grace.

And theologian Frederick Herzog says "sisters and brothers in other denominations may want to take note. We may be fighting, also, part of their battles."

Couples Seek To Wed Off The Record

When I first brought up the subject about eight years ago. many church people were scandalized. But times change.

Now the office of Church in Society of the American Lutheran Church (the second largest Lutheran body in the United States) has issued a study document urging the church to They desire the love and comseriously consider the matter.

out and say it is in favor of sex. The thing is, they can't clergymen marrying older afford it unless they live together couples who are living together (or want to), even though they bring no marriage license with them.

But it asks this probing question:

"If a couple believe that legal marriage is not the answer, can the church recognize and bless a committed relationship apart from government regulation? Can a churchly ceremony for such relationships be developed?

The reasons many widows and widowers today believe that legal marriage is not for them is that they would lose muchneeded money - in pensions or Social Security benefits - if they remarried.

It they don't want to live alone. because in the eyes of the state panionship they get by living The paper does not come right with a person of the opposite unmarried. Yet they would feel better inside if they had the blessing of the church on their union.

> But can the clergyman join two people together in wedlock "before God" without at the same time marrying them in the eyes of the state? The two ceremonies are one and the same. Perform one and you perform the other.

is there a way to break this interlocking of the civil and religious rituals?

Some ministers will perform a marriage ceremony - an unoffleial one - so the couple can feel and act married and still keep their individual Social Security benefits (and the widow her deceased husband's pension) that "no minister may solemnize a marriage unless he has ascertained the right of the parties to contract a marriage according to the laws of the state." Ergo show me a marriage license.

My friend, the Episcopal priest, is familiar with this law. He is not opposed to it. He believes we must have an ordered society. He does not take sides with those who say "If the law doesn't fit my needs, I'll break it."

On the other hand he feels there are situations in which something Jesus said can be applied. To paraphrase Jesus. 'The law was made for man not man for the law." In cases where society unjustly imposes financial penalties on older persons wanting to get married, he feels Jesus' words are in order.

As regards "lawful marriage," the Episcopal marriage ceremony says only that "If any persons are joined together otherwise than as God's Word doth allow. their marriage is not lawful." That is, scriptural sanctions must not be disregarded. What it seems to come down to is this: Can you be married in the eyes of the church - so you feel you are not "living in sin" and yet not be married in the eyes of the state, so you can collect money which otherwise you would not be entitled to?

Is this any different ethically from businessmen and others taking legal advantage of technicalities ("loopholes") in the income-tax laws to save money?

Maybe we ought to work toward more equitable Social Security and pension laws. The Lutheran study document recommends that too. But until such new laws are enacted. should the church take its Master's view toward the law in If he is satisfied that the man situations that stand to bless and woman "intend to live man and pose no danger to

First Try Was Unmitigated Disaster

Pentagon Press Pool Now Working Smoothly

(EDITOR'S NOTE: UPI reporter Eliot Brenner was one of 12 journalists in the Pentagon pool assembled last week to witness military maneu-

By Eliot Brenner

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A second test of the Pentagon's system to covertly whisk reporters to the scene of fighting involving U.S troops appears to have been a considerable improvement over the first disastrous effort.

The exercise - in which reporters were flown to Fort Campbell, Ky., to witness part of a regular military practice maneuver - stayed a secret until announced at the Pentagon.

It also was to test communications. Print reporters - wire service, newspaper and magazine — filed their copy both through the Pentagon message system and dictated to their editors on regular telephone lines. A radio reporter used a commercial phone to send reports to the Pentagon, where they were relayed to radio networks. A helicopter rushed videotapes and a television correspondent's reports to Nashville for distribution to all networks.

The pool system was established following news media complaints about being cut out of the invasion of Grenada and being allowed onto the island only after several days had passed.

The first test of the pool reporting system in April, however, was by many accounts an unmitigated disaster.

Word that the reporting pool had been activated leaked before the reporters left Washington. The Pentagon duty officer logged 22 calls from organizations not in the pool before the reporters ever left town.

When reporters got to Honduras there were problems filing their reports. Copy filed on shipboard during a Marine landing took 51/2 hours to get off the ship, in part because one military communications system on the vessel failed and other higher priority messages backed up in the second system. Copy sent by a commercial telegraph firm was slow to arrive. And there were problems getting television tape and still photographs back to the United States.

But the Sept. 19 test went far smoother, although the arrangements could still have stood some improvement.

The mission's secrecy was lifted near noon Thursday, in mid-afternoon, when reporters got back to a base press center from the field, a 550-word account of the test and mock invasion was filed on the wires of United Press International and The Associated Press after it was dictated to Washington bureaus by the two wire service reporters on the trip.

But because all three written pool reports did not go into the Pentagon message system until the last one was written and the three were sent as a package, it took time to reach Washington.

The package arrived at the Pentagon for distribution to all news media about 6:45 p.m. EDT, a little more than 3 hours after the last report was finished at Fort Campbell. The message had no priority status in the military message system.

Although there were two more media members of the pool than during the first test, the logistics were a bit easier and the entire sequence of what reporters might do and see was compressed into less than 24 hours.

In the first test, reporters were moved out of the country and shuttled between the shore and vessels offshore. They returned home five days after they left.

Col. Dante Camia, the lead escort officer for the pool, said that the first time the Pentagon 'probably tried to bite off too big a chunk" in establishing a pool coverage system. Last week's test, he said, turned out "light years ahead of where we were" in April.

The pool reporters were escorted the entire time and not free to wander off on their own, and base officials knew the pool would be coming. Soldiers were told only some visitors would look in on their efforts.

The scenario set out by the manuever's planners had elements of Grenada and Nicaragua. There were hostage medical students held by a local strongman and "Sannaese" perhaps a synonym for Sandinistas - in the inythical Marxist nation of Sanna, whose president fled amid economic rlots.

The U.S. forces won, stabilizing Sanna after hostage Americans were freed by invading U.S. forces. The American troops over five days also turned back the invading force of a Sannan aliv. El Planoa.

The U.S. troops were bound to win from the start. Planners manipulated the situations presented to the U.S. commanders by the weaker opposing forces to test their reactions to different tactical situations thrust on them.

Massive resources backed the 4,000 troops from various batallions of the 101st Airborne Division on the base sprawled across the Kentucky-Tennessee line.

An impromptu airfleid was set up for rapid helicopter refueling. An adjacent 40-bed field hospital went up, ready for surgery in just two hours and ready for full business 5 hours after it arrived. Some meals were cooked in field kitchens, and packaged field rations were sent to troops at the front.

There was door-to-door fighting in a mock village, as well as night assaults, airborne attacks. artillery firing, helicopter straffing runs and plain old slogging through the underbrush searching

A Gritty View Of Early Christian History

Kingdom of the Wicked, by Anthony Burgess, (Arbor House, 377 pp., $18.95)

The latest work by the author of "A Clockwork Orange" is a sort of expanded edition of the Acts of the Apostles - in context, and told from the termite's point of view within the rotting woodwork of the corrupt Roman Empire.

Burgess's fletionalized version of early Christian history - a Literary Guild main selection — carries the church from its beginnings as a huddled mass of frightened disciples in an upstairs room in Jerusalem through to the brink of worldwide greatness.

It follows itinerant preachers Peter, Paul, Luke and Matthew around the empire, telling many of the same stories told in the Acts - but telling them from close at hand, not from the reverent distance maintained in Biblical accounts. Here we read of men, not saints - men who disagree passionately over the course the church should take and men so thoroughly frightened by the magnitude of what they are involved with that they run in terror after performing their first major miracle.

Burgess, drawing on contemporary writings and more recent works, also puts early Christianity in perspective with speculative accounts of how the major figures of the crumbling world inhabitated by the early Nazarenes reacted to the sprouting religion.

Parading across the stage of the first century A.D. are Pontius Pilate, Herod Agrippa, Eleazar, and a succession of Roman emperors - mad or besotten or both - including Tiberius, Caligula, Nero and their conniving relatives.

There is also a fictionalized family -

Caleb the Jewish Zealot; his sister, Sara; her Roman centurion husband, Marcus Julius; and others - who will seem more than vaguely familiar to anyone who watched the television miniseries "A.D."

There is a reason for that: Burgess wrote "Kingdom of the Wicked" as preparation for working on the scenario of "A.D.", much as he wrote the poem "Moses" and the novel "Man of Nazareth" in preparation for other amall-screen series.

Happily, thanks in no small part to Burgess's skill with the language, this sprawling yet intimate story of the first Christians and their times - from the first Easter to Vesuvius - is far more satisfying in novel form than it turned out to be on television.

'Glory' Enjoyable Despite Lack Of Depth

Depths of Glory, by Irving Stone, (Doubleday, 635 pp., $17.95)

Irving Stone's previous biographical novels have been popular because they are an effortless way for the reader to feel as though he or she has come to know the subject. The same is almost true of "Depths of Glory."

The subject this time is Camille Pissaro, one of the early members and leaders of what became known as the Impressionist movement.

Through Pissaro's life. Stone gives an overall picture of the movement and the hardships of the brilliant but misunderstood members, many of whom make an all too occasional appearance in this lengthy novel.

The Impressionists were much maligned at first for their break with tradition in subject and style, and with the French standard-setting Academie des Beaux Arts. Pissaro and his colleagues suffered abject poverty and ridicule for years, with only one gallery owner and a rare critic willing to back

Stone describes Pissaro as a man who is a dedicated artist who feels for the suffering of his family but whose love for art overrides all else in the end.

In addition to his professional problems. Pissaro broke with his parents and eventually was disinherited. Not only did he barely scratch out a living, he lived with and eventually married a woman who had worked in his home as a maid.

It took decades for the Impressionists to gain full acceptance and appreciation. Their struggles come through in Stone's book, but the reader with any familiarity with the artists is left wanting more details about the personages and movement.

But then, you don't read Stone for a definitive study. Bearing that in mind, "Depths of Glory" is an enjoyable picture of an artist in one of the brightest periods

Are Terrorists Always Mean And Nasty?

The Good Terrorist, by Doris Lessing. (Knopf, 375 pp., $16.95)

The terrorist with a heart of gold and her head in the clouds - that's Alice Mellings, the protagonist in Doris Lessing's new novel, "The Good Terrorist.

The book is set in modern-day London. Alice and an ever-changing group of friends and acquaintances set up house - "squat." If you will - in abandoned homes and make improvements so the buildings aren't torn down.

The other major characters include Jasper, the man Alice loves but who can't love her back; Bert and Pat, a couple who split in part because Pat is more serious about her political goals: Roberta and Faye, who are lesbians; and Comrade Andrew, the mysterious inhabitant of the squat next door.

All fancy themselves as terrorists and have their own political party, the Communist Centre Union. They try to get cozy with the IRA and the Soviets. But when their real test of terrorism comes, the effects are less than satisfying.

Alice is the type of person you'd like as a friend. She is aggravating, but you can depend on her, whether it's to bury garbage in the backyard or to get money for grocerles. Lessing's portrayal of Alice's relationship with her parents especially hits home.

Alice may not be a great terrorist in the traditional sense, but she's a nice person. That makes the book worth reading. -Melanie Rigney

Here's What Baseball Is Really All About

Good Enough to Dream, by Roger Kahn, (Doubleday, 351 pp., $16.95)

The Uti a Blue Sox certainly wouldn't go on · ke because of dissatisfaction with their pensions and the network television contract. They lived on $500 a month.

They had no hopes of a World Series. They competed for the championship in the New York-Penn League, a ragtag Class A outfit with teams in towns like Oneonta, Little Falls and Eric.

They had no hope of being called up to the big club, or even up to Double A. They were part of a nearly extinct baseball breed - an independent minor league team. There was no New York Mets or Los Angeles Dodgers organization to pay the bills.

Roger Kahn, a lifelong baseball fan and writer who wrote the bestselling "The Boys of Summer" about the Brooklyn Dodgers of the 1950s, found that baseball gets into your blood.

After a life of watching the game and longing to play it. Kahn finally decided to do the next best thing - own a minor league team.

department, says science as many as 30 percent of adults suffer from fear of computers.

Men, trained since childhood not to be afraid of machines, tend to have an easier time than women. Children don't seem to have any trouble making the adjustment to new technologies.

"I haven't seen any computer phobic children," says Dr. Edna Foa of Philadelphia's Anxiety Disorder Clinic.

He reported the good news to his social worker.

"A job? Well, good. Those are hard to find. Of course, now that you're earning money, we'll have to cut off your aid. Just between you and me, Mr. Minsky, you and your family would be better off to stay on relief. You'd get a little more money than you'll get at the restaurant, and it's a lot more secure. Take my advice, Mr. Minsky. Just relax. Stay on the
