Paulucci Firm To Challenge Petition

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Paulucci Enterprises will go to court in the next few days to stop the city of Lake Mary from including on the Dec. 2 city election ballot a referendum concerning the zoning of property owned by the firm.

Tom Stevenson, Paulucci's Sanford representative, said the suit would be filed in the next few days.

The question concerns whether the voters wish to repeal an ordinance passed by the city council in August rezoning the 23-acre Paulucci property on Rantoul Lane at 46A to permit apartment-townhouse development and the development of a three-acre commercial strip along the highway.

City Clerk Connie Major Thursday night certified to the city council that a petition to have the question placed on the ballot contained a sufficient number of signatures — 5 percent of registered voters.

Abbott Herring, an attorney representing Paulucci Enterprises, insisted Thursday night that the council had to be the ultimate judge of the sufficiency of the petitions. He said the council had the right to determine the petitions were insufficient because placing the question on the ballot is contrary to a Circuit Court decision in Seminole County several years ago.

He said a decision in a suit involving Altamonte Springs called a similar charter provision permitting citizens to place the repeal of ordinances on the ballot "unconstitutional."

City Attorney Gary Massey disagreed with Herring, saying the charter language calling for the city clerk to certify the sufficiency of the petition is clear. He said under the charter the city council has no role in certifying the petitions.

Massey also said the Altamonte Springs case is not identical to the Lake Mary situation because it concerned an ordinance to change zoning, not to repeal existing zoning. He said the council had no choice but to place the question on the ballot.

The council, also in line with the city charter permitting the council to reconsider the zoning, voted to uphold its previous action. The vote was 2-1 with councilman Ray Fox and Victor Olvera voting in favor while Burt Perinchief voted against. Councilmen Gene McDonald and Francis Mark were absent.

Immediately after the majority of the city council adopted an ordinance in August changing the zoning on the Paulucci parcel from agriculture to multi-family and commercial, McDonald announced he would lead an effort to have the zoning repealed. He said the proposed development would create traffic problems and strain police and fire service.

Mayor Walter Sorenson Thursday night urged Paulucci representatives to reconsider the court action. He said the council could repeal the zoning and Paulucci's representatives could file for a new zoning of planned unit development which the planning and zoning board had favored. Planned unit development zoning permits tighter control by the city.

Herring said, however, his client would have no guarantee that another petition would not be circulated to overturn that zoning also.

The firm plans to construct 140 townhouses and apartments and the commercial strip.

Lake Mary To Ask State To Halt Track

The Lake Mary City Council, expressing its displeasure at the prospect of a horse-racing track locating within the city's bounds Thursday night voted unanimously to instruct City Manager Phil Kulbes to write letters to state officials citing the city's strenuous objections.

The council also decided to decline an invitation from Marc Robinson, president of the proposed track, to a briefing at Robinson's office in Longwood.

Mayor Walter Sorenson said a meeting in Robinson's office could give the city council "sunshine problems," referring to the law requiring the governing body to conduct business in the public.

The council agreed that Kulbes should tell Robinson he is welcome to make a presentation before the council at a public meeting in the city.

Kulbes also reported that he had written the Pari-Mutuel Wagering Commission requesting that the city be notified when the proposed racing dates for the horse track will be considered so that the city can protest.

Saying he has been swamped with objections to the proposed quarter-horse racing track by citizens of the community, Councilman Ray Fox said he wished to "nip it in the bud."

Fox said he intends to "do battle" over the track and if necessary would do it alone. Speaking about the amendment to the pari-mutuel wagering law, passed in the 1980 session, which exempts pari-mutuel wagering facilities within cities from complying with city's building and zoning codes in new construction, Fox said the fact "our Legislature made this possible is an outrage."

Fox moved that Kulbes prepare letters to Gov. Bob Graham; the chairman of the pari-mutuel wagering commission and the director of the Regulated Industries Committee of the state House of Representatives "pointing out in very specific terms the feelings of the city council." He said the letter should point out the feelings of the citizens against the track and that industries in the city are "less than happy" with the prospect of a pari-mutuel facility being located in the city. Fox said the amendment to the legislation was handled in an arbitrary and capricious manner.

He asked that copies of the letter be sent to every elected representative at the state level from this area to the Florida League of Cities. In addition he asked that telegrams of protest be sent to the five top elected officials in the state.

Fox asked that the language of the letter and telegram be "couched in terms that leaves little doubt to someone who might have trouble understanding that (the) council does not like it and is not inclined to sit still in a situation like this." Fox criticized the method in which the amendment concerning the cities was adopted in a "hurry up" fashion to complete the session.

After Councilman Victor Olvera seconded the motion, Councilman Burt Perinchief stated his concerns that the letters might imply that the entire city is opposed when no survey had been made to determine this.

Fox said a total of 55 citizens contacted him to protest the location of the track in the city. In addition he said officials of industry, business persons and two representatives of two civic organizations complained to him.

Fox said a letter of objection to the track is on file from Qwip Industries, which earlier announced its plans to locate corporate headquarters in the community. One industry spokesman told him, Fox said, that it will not expand if the track is located in the city.

Councilman Vic Olvera said he knows of one industry in the city which has placed its plans to "expand a large amount for the city" on hold until the horse-track issue is settled.

Maintenance workers Bob Meyers (left) and Denver Johnson of the Sanford Public Works Department replace this aluminum street lighting pole on French Avenue south of 25th Street. The aluminum poles, which usually last "forever," says Public Works Director Bob Kelly, have to be replaced only when an accident occurs. A motorist ran into this pole. The city spends about $100,000 per year in power costs in its citywide street lighting program. Poles and lights are maintained on a regular basis.

Blast Rocks Missile

DAMASCUS, Ark. (UPI) — An explosion at a Titan II missile silo early today jarred the Arkansas countryside for miles, sent a huge mushroom cloud into the sky and injured 10 Air Force personnel.

Gov. Bill Clinton said he was told there had been no nuclear explosion, and other officials said no radiation had been detected in the area.

The Air Force would neither confirm nor deny the presence of a nuclear warhead on the missile but the explosion sent a huge column of toxic smoke hundreds of feet into the air, forcing the evacuation of an estimated 1,000 people.

"I don't know if it had a nuclear warhead on it," said John Fullerton, operations supervisor of the state Office of Emergency Services. "The Air Force won't tell you because that's classified but I assume it did."

The injured Air Force maintenance men, suffering burns and inhalation of toxic fumes, were hospitalized in Little Rock and Conway. At Conway, six were admitted but two were released after treatment. The four admitted suffered first-and second-degree burns but were listed in satisfactory condition.

Fullerton emphasized that the concentration of toxic fumes posed no danger of a further explosion.

"They (toxic fumes) should be dissipated now where there should be no danger except in low places where they could get trapped," Fullerton said.

Fullerton added, "We have not found any (radioactivity). The Health Department has monitors up there and so far they've had negative results."

People living within a 10-mile radius north of the site and those living five miles south of the site were evacuated. A larger area north of the site was evacuated because of wind direction. Authorities began allowing evacuees who live more than five miles from the site to go home about 8 a.m. CDT.

Gov. Clinton said Air Force officials had assured him there had not been a nuclear explosion and that none could occur.

The explosion caused the predawn sky to light up "like daylight" and Monty Rowell, a newsman for KCON radio in Conway, said he was about a quarter mile away when it occurred.

"All of a sudden a loud explosion occurred," Rowell said. "I had my back to it. When I turned around I saw a large, orange mushroom cloud up in the air. It was followed by a smaller explosion that I heard and it added more to the cloud."

Rowell said debris was "flying from the cloud" and "several pieces of concrete" hit the highway.

New Hospital Clears Another Hurdle

By DIANE PETRYK
Herald Staff Writer

Hospital Corporation of America (HCA) received unanimous approval Thursday for its proposed 226-bed Sanford hospital from the Project Review Committee of the Health Systems Agency of East Central Florida (HSA-ECF) said James Tesar, Seminole Memorial Hospital administrator.

Approval must yet be gained from the full HSA-ECF regional board which meets Sept. 25 and the state Office of Licensure and Certification in Tallahassee, Tesar said. But once those approvals are received, he said, construction on the new facility can begin.

On Sept. 15, the Seminole Sub-area Council of the HSA-ECF voted 8-2 to recommend approval of the HCA proposal.

Plans are to locate the hospital at U.S. Highway 17-92 and Mangoustine Ave. on Lake Monroe. Tesar said construction is expected to be completed within two years, but could be completed in 18 months if there are no delays.

Tesar attended last night's Project Review Committee meeting with HCA corporate representatives and Seminole Memorial Hospital Trustee Dr. Robert Gay and Chief of Staff Dr. Kenneth Wing.

"I was very happy with the results and hope next Thursday goes as well," Tesar said.

2 Weeks Left To Claim Refunds From Hospital

People who received medical care at Seminole Memorial Hospital between 1976 and 1978 have only two weeks left to file for part of about $25,000 in refunds awarded to patients under a class action suit.

As of last week, only $2,727 of the $27,303 released by the court award had been claimed by former Seminole Memorial patients.

The ruling in the suit was made after attorneys for several indigent patients denied free or reduced-rate care under the hospital's federal Hill-Burton obligation proved the hospital had used the wrong formula to determine how much those patients would be charged against the obligation's account.

This led to a quick depletion of funds and denial of lowcost or free care to other hospital patients during those years.

Persons who believe they might be eligible to claim some of the cash must register with either the hospital at 322-4511 or Central Florida Legal Services, 322-8983, by Sept. 30 or lose out on any chance of recovering the money they had to spend on hospital bills.

The money also is available to wipe out unpaid debts to the hospital by eligible former patients.

'Shogun' Mania Spreads

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Almost half the nation may be glued to their television sets to watch tonight's finale of "Shogun," the 12-hour NBC miniseries that has not only boosted the network's morale but has led to a run on sake and sushi.

Japanese restaurants in Los Angeles provided TV sets for customers who might otherwise have stayed home to watch the series. One customer was seen lugging a portable TV into a sushi bar before dining on the raw fish and seaweed.

The network predicts 4,100 million viewers will be tuned in tonight for the final segment of the video version of James Clavell's best-selling novel.

Huge U.S. Report On Iran Ready If Tribunal Opens

By United Press International

The State Department reportedly has prepared a massive top-secret document on four decades of U.S. involvement in Iran in anticipation of "international tribunals" on the hostage issue, but President Carter stated categorically there would be no U.S. apology for past American actions.

In Iran's parliament Thursday, hard-line deputies angrily demanded "repentance" by the United States and spy trials for the 52 American hostages, now in their 321st day of captivity, Tehran Radio said in broadcasts monitored by the BBC in London.

But the growing threat of war with Iraq prompted parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani to interrupt the debate so deputies could discuss the crisis with Iraq, which abrogated a 1975 border treaty that gave Iran's strategic Abadan oil refinery access to the Persian Gulf.

Somoza's Body In Miami

MIAMI (UPI) — The body of former Nicaraguan strongman Anastasio Somoza, killed in a bazooka and machinegun attack in Paraguay on Wednesday, was flown to Miami today for funeral services and burial.

A DC-8 chartered by Somoza's family arrived at Miami's International Airport from Asuncion at 9:34 a.m. EDT. Only immediate members of the family were allowed to greet the plane.

The casket containing the body of the man who ruled Nicaragua for 12 years was transported in a white hearse to a Cuban-run funeral home in suburban Coral Gables, where it will remain until Saturday.

The slain strongman's family has tentatively scheduled a funeral mass Saturday morning with burial to follow at Woodlawn Cemetery.

Somoza Suspect Shot Dead

ASUNCION Paraguay (UPI) — Police shot to death "Captain Santiago," one of the suspected assassins of ousted Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza, in a blazing gun battle today near the Paraguay River, and Somoza's body was flown to the U.S. in a hurried predawn flight.

Police said they cornered Hugo Alfredo Irurzun, alias "Captain Santiago," in Lambare, 5 miles south of Asuncion along the Argentine border, and killed the member of the self-styled Argentine People's Revolutionary Army around midnight Thursday.

The time and place of Somoza's funeral were not announced. Airport officials said the chartered plane was authorized to land either in Miami or Washington, D.C.

Refugees Mourn

MIAMI (UPI) — About 100 Nicaraguan refugees held a symbolic wake for slain Nicaraguan strongman Anastasio Somoza Debayle on the eve of the arrival of his body for burial.

"Nicaragua today is in mourning because the leader of democracy and anti-communism was cut down by assassin bullets," said Aurelio Montenegro, an exile leader and son of the last mayor of Managua under Somoza.

The refugees, some weeping, gathered Thursday around a symbolic coffin outside the headquarters of the Rumanitarian Committee to Aid Nicaraguan Refugees and sang the Nicaraguan national anthem.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: Thousands of Connecticut residents lost electrical service because of thunderstorms that swept through New England and brought with them lightning and heavy rain. Thunderstorms also swept through southeastern Texas and showers were reported along the central Gulf Coast and up into North Carolina early today. Lightning and heavy rains left more than 35,000 Connecticut homes without power early Thursday. Rain flooded a power substation serving about 1,900 utility customers in New Britain, Conn., leaving them without power for more than seven hours.

Burglars Ransack 2 Forest City Homes

The thieves entered Yeaple's home by forcing a sliding glass door, then pulled open drawers, spilling their contents on the floor, deputies say.

Deputies say Scharff's home was also ransacked with the contents of drawers strewn about.

CHULUOTA MAN ARRESTED

A Chuluota man was jailed Thursday on charges he burglarized a Sanford home late last month, deputies say.

Robert M. Heath, 43, of 101 4th St., was ordered held in lieu of $5,250 bond on charges of burglary and grand theft.

Deputies say Heath burglarized the home of A.G. Kinny, 314 Idylwilde Drive, Sanford, and taking more than $1,000 property

GUN TAKEN FROM CAR

A $218 revolver was stolen from a Sanford man's truck Thursday as it sat in the Flagship Bank parking lot, police report.

Lenord Terry, 1706 W. 12th St., told police thieves pried open a window of his pickup between 7:30 a.m. and 6:35 p.m. and took only the .38 caliber Smith and Wesson gun.

CARPET PUT DOWN, PICKED UP

Auto-Train Subsidiary

Railway Services Lays Off 77

Seventy-seven persons temporarily lost their Sanford jobs this week when an Auto-Train subsidiary lost a contract with AMTRAK for the construction of new freight cars.

The employees of Railway Services Corp., Auto-Train's car construction and repair subsidiary, were laid off when AMTRAK canceled an order for 15 new cars on a 25-car contract, said company spokesman Tom Tucker.

Tucker said the AMTRAK cancellations also affected two other railroad car companies, and was in no way related to Auto-Train's financial woes.

Railway Services Corp. does expect to hire back the employees as soon as new work orders come in, said Tucker. He said employees have given no date for a return to work. All the laid-off employees work at the company's yard just west of Sanford.

In other action this week taken by Auto-Train and the Washington D. C., bankruptcy court overseeing it, Washington, D.C., attorney Murray Drabkin was appointed trustee of the company without opposition from either Auto-Train or its creditors, as expected by company spokesmen.

Drabkin now takes charge of running the company until a plan is formally approved for repayment of the $10 million Auto-Train owes to various creditors or the company is declared bankrupt beyond salvation and dissolved.

Tucker said Auto-Train will continue to run all scheduled trains this weekend and in the foreseeable future.

3 Nominated For Circuit Judgeship

The judicial nominating committee of the 18th Judicial circuit, (Seminole-Brevard counties) has sent three names to Gov. Bob Graham for possible appointment to the circuit judgeship left vacant since Judge Joe Cowart was appointed a judge of the appellate court.

Gary Massey, chairman of the committee, said the three recommendations sent to the governor include: Gilbert Goshorn, Charles Harris of Brevard County and Terry Ackert, Seminole County's domestic relations commissioner.

A quirk in the law requires the committee to nominate three persons for the position, although the appointee is likely to be Gilbert Goshorn, who won election to the office on Sept. 9. The balance of the term of Cowart, for which the appointee will serve, expires Jan. 1.

Goshorn's term of office will begin in January.

Massey said the committee will accept applications until Oct. 10 for the Circuit Court judgeship left vacant with the resignation of Judge Volie Williams in August.

Massey said the committee has changed its rules and in the future will hold a hearing to receive input from the public on persons being considered for recommendations to the governor for appointment.

Political Newcomer Runs In Altamonte

Bob Reis, a newcomer to city politics, qualified Thursday as a candidate for the Altamonte Springs City Commission seat currently held by Commissioner Peggy Childress, according to City Clerk Phyllis Jordahl.

Reis will oppose Gary Shader, an attorney in the city who earlier qualified for the same position. Mrs. Childress has said she will not run for re-election.

Reis was actively involved in Mrs. Childress campaign for the city commission two years ago.

Shader previously ran unsuccessfully for the city commission.

In the meantime, no one has qualified to oppose incumbent Commissioner Lee Constantine. Constantine is completing his first two-year term in office and is currently deputy mayor of the city, elected to that post by his colleagues.

Also up for election one year remaining in the term of Mayor Norman Floyd resigned effective Nov. 3 to seek election to the county commission. Floyd lost in the Democratic primary on Sept. 9.

The only candidate who has qualified for the office of mayor is George Perkins, a former three-term city commissioner and president of a publishing company.

The candidate-qualifying period will end Monday. Persons wishing to vote in the Nov. 4 city election have until Oct. 4 to register. They may register at city hall or at the either the old county jail or the Interstate Mall offices of Elections Supervisor Camilla Bruce.

Pulitzer Prize-Winning Author Porter Dead At 90

(UPI) — Pulitzer Prize-winning author Katherine Anne Porter, who stirred the literary world with her short story collections and best-selling novel "Ship of Fools," died Thursday afternoon at Carriage Hill nursing home. She was 90.

Miss Porter had been slowed in recent years by a series of strokes, and in April entered the nursing home. Doctors would not comment on the cause of death, but a nursing home spokeswoman said she thought Miss Porter just died of old age.

The spokeswoman said Miss Porter "had been alert until the last minute."

A newly laid carpet and several light fixtures were stolen over the past week from a home under construction in Sanford, deputies say.

The items, reported missing from a home in the Sylvia Glade subdivision, were valued at $500, they say.

SENTENCED IN FORGERY

A 23-year-old Orlando woman was sentenced to serve three years in prison and two years on probation for forging her name on a stolen check.

Circuit Judge Volie Williams sentenced Claudia Washington, also known as Claudia Watson, to the prison term for the theft of $950 through fraud.

In other sentences handed down by Williams this week:

— Larry Bumbalough, 27, of 2531 S. Cameron Ave., Sanford, was sentenced to five years probation and 15 weekends in county jail for the theft of a radio from a car on April 4.

— Jacqueline Monroe, of Orlando, was sentenced to serve the next 51 weekends at the Seminole County Jail for helping steal watches and jewelry from an Altamonte Springs store last March.

Monroe was one of several persons who entered Brands, State Road 436, on March 8 and cleaned out a jewelry counter.

— Thomas Doak, of Gloversville, N.Y., was sentenced to three and a half years in prison then three and a half years on probation for the theft of a motorcycle from an Orlando man.

When Doak was stopped earlier this year in Interstate-4 on the stolen motorcycle, he was also using another man's driver's license, patrolmen reported.

— Mark Jackson, 23, of Orange City, was sentenced to two years in prison and three on probation for the March 28 burglary of a doctor's office.

He pleaded guilty to breaking into the office of R.E. Ballentine, 602 E. Lake Drive, Altamonte Springs, and stealing drugs and other items.

— Harrison Conway III, 21, of Orlando, was sentenced to two years in prison and three on probation for the theft of a rifle from Jesse McGraw, 1343 Laura St. Casselberry.

— Tracy Hilton, 19, of 900 Turtlemound Drive, Casselberry, was sentenced to six months to five years in prison for the May 2 burglary of a truck parked at the Circus Circus nightclub on U.S. Highway 17-92, Fern Park.

MOTORCYCLE STOLEN

An X-ray technician's motorcycle was stolen Thursday from the Seminole Memorial Hospital parking lot, Sanford police say.

The $1,500 cycle, owned by Kyle Bauer, 1318 Douglas Ave., Sanford, was taken between noon and 8:45 p.m., they say.

TRAILER BURGLARIZED

A man living in an isolated trailer on Old Geneva Road came home Wednesday to find about $1,300 of his property taken by burglars, deputies say.

Elden Tozier told deputies the burglars struck between 8 a.m. and 1:45 p.m.

Deputies say the thieves pried open the trailer door and made off with jewelry, guns, camera equipment and food, leaving other valuable items behind.

Leading Economist Colean Dead

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Economist Miles Lanier Colean, who helped draft legislation creating the Federal Housing Administration and who coined the phrase "urban renewal," died at his District of Columbia home of congestive heart failure. He was 82.

Colean, who died Tuesday, came to Washington in 1934 to serve as the FHA's technical director and later as its assistant administrator.

writing for national magazines, reviewing books for The New York Times and spent some time in Hollywood creating film scripts, which she described as hack work.

NATION IN BRIEF

Carter Sees Positive Signs In Unemployment, Building

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter, using the advantage of incumbency and the power of television to chalk up election-year points, says the recession may well be over, but the nation is still on an economic roller coaster.

In an opening statement during his nationally televised news conference Thursday, Carter ticked off a list of administration accomplishments concerning the economy, saying the "progress of America goes on."

"Here at home, there are some encouraging economic signs," Carter said, seeing bright spots in unemployment holding steady, unemployment compensation claims being reduced, the creation of 470,000 new jobs, a rise in housing starts for the last three months and an increase in new durable goods orders.

Carter Would Use Weapons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter says, if necessary, he would use atomic weapons to defend the security of the United States and Western Europe. He warned potential aggressors "their attack would be suicidal."

Carter was asked at a nationally televised news conference Thursday if it was "realistic" for an American president to believe he could limit his response to a Soviet nuclear first strike.

Carter said he discussed a "common knowledge" with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev when they signed the Strategic Arms Limitation Accord (SALT II) in Vienna last year.

As for his own policy, Carter said, "I would try to defend my nation's integrity and its security and the integrity and security of our allies without resort to atomic weapons, but if necessary, to defend the freedom and security of Western Europe and this country, then I would use atomic weapons."

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Rosalynn Carter Criticizes Reagan In Visit To Area

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Rosalynn Carter criticized Ronald Reagan today for his opposition to Medicare and Social Security programs.

Speaking to the Governor's Conference on Aging at Seaworld, a tourist attraction west of Orlando, the first lady defended President Carter's record on programs affecting older Americans and pledged their continuation.

"He has worked for better home health alternatives to nursing homes, fought to control hospital costs, and proposed a national health plan that will insure every older American in the case of catastrophic illness," Mrs. Carter said.

Saying she hesitated to inject politics in her message to about 500 senior citizens, Mrs. Carter said she was reminded in reviewing her husband's record, "that our opponent even opposed Medicare."

Although Reagan suggested on several occasions in the past that perhaps Social Security should be voluntary, rather than mandatory, he said more recently he supports the Social Security system.

Promising a continuation of mandatory Social Security under a Carter administration, Mrs. Carter said it was, "simply too important to be voluntary as we have heard in this campaign."

Mrs. Carter also told the audience the president is committed to protecting Social Security benefits against inflation and has no intention of reducing the current formula for cost-of-living adjustments.

Her remarks came at the final session of the conference on aging, the first of 50 such statewide conferences leading up to the White House Conference on Aging in 1981.

Pilot Not Certified For Flight

MIAMI (UPI) — The pilot of a DC-3 that crashed into the dark shark-infested waters of the Gulfstream last Friday, killing all 34 persons aboard, was improperly certified to fly a charter flight, an investigator said Thursday.

The Federal Aviation Administration was investigating whether freelance pilot Bill Selva was persuaded by Florida Commuter Airlines to fly the DC-3, even though Selva lacked the proper ratings to fly a charter flight.

Gunter, Stone Trade Barbs

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — U.S. Sen. Richard Stone and Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter traded charges during a tense face-to-face encounter occurring when Gunter barged into a Stone news conference.

During the brief incident Thursday, Stone charged that Gunter refused to identify the sources of $185,000 in campaign funds to cover up the fact that many of the contributors were insurance people.

And Gunter accused Stone of neglecting his official duties in Washington this week, saying he has missed 17 roll call votes in the Senate and made only four, for a voting record of 19 percent.

Official Results Released

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — U.S. Sen. Richard Stone led Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter by only 29,378 votes in his bid for Democratic renomination against five challengers Sept. 9.

Complete but still unofficial results from the Democratic races were released Thursday by the secretary of state's office. Results from GOP races will be available today.

The tabulation showed a total voter turnout of 1,107,626, less than 40 percent of those registered.

Stone received 205,227 votes, way short of the number needed for a first victory win. Gunter won the runoff position with 234,605 votes to 175,336 for Buddy MacKay and 168,134 for Richard Pettigrew. Jim Miller, Tampa, and John Coffey, Moore Haven, brought up the rear with 18,118 and 17,418 respectively.

Keep Grave Shut, Judge Rules

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) — A civil district judge today denied a British author permission to open the grave of alleged presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald for an autopsy and identification.

In a seven-page letter mailed to attorney's, District Judge James Wright issued a temporary injunction against British author and attorney Michael Eddowes. Wright also said a hearing on making the injunction permanent will be held later.

The injunction was requested by Oswald's brother, Robert Oswald of Wichita Falls, Texas, who had said an exhumation would cause him "grave mental anguish." Oswald also had claimed Eddowes sought to open the grave purely for financial profit.

Wright, however, declined to enjoin the second defendant in the case, Rose Hill Burial Park, the site of the grave.

In the order, Wright said Oswald had shown a potential for harm and injury to himself if the grave was opened, but that Eddowes had not shown a clear reason for the exhumation.

The thrust of Eddowes' argument is that Lee Harvey Oswald defected to Russia in 1959 and was replaced at some point by a look-alike Soviet agent, and that "alien" agent returned to the United States in 1962 — with wife Marina and a child — as Lee Harvey Oswald and killed President John F. Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963, in Dallas.

Reagan Not Racist, Carter Tells Press

United Press International

President Carter says he is not mean, Ronald Reagan is not a racist, the press is obsessed with the issue and the whole matter "should be dropped."

What about charges that he runs a "mean" campaign?

"I try to keep a moderate tone and I try to discuss issues and I do not indulge in attacking personally the integrity of my opponents and I hope I never shall," he said.

Production Halted On Rely Tampons

The manufacturer of Rely tampons, linked by health officials to toxic shock syndrome, is temporarily halting production. But one consumer group says "responsible" stores should remove the Procter & Gamble product from their shelves immediately.

Cuban Hijackers Return For Hearing On Charges

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — Handcuffed and subdued, the first Cuban hijackers ever returned to the United States by Fidel Castro were given a hearing on air piracy charges Thursday by a U.S. magistrate speaking through an interpreter.

After the 90-minute hearing, Orecencio Perez-Perez, 26, and Juan Adega-Fresneda, 25, were ordered held under $750,000 bond each on charges they hijacked a Delta Air Lines, Boeing 727 jet with 104 passengers and six crewmen aboard.

Perez at one point suggested, through Harold Blum who interpreted for both Spanish-speaking men, he might get a job and pay his bond a little at a time.

Graham Urges President To Let Refugees Leave

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham says the decision by Cuban Premier Fidel Castro to return two hijackers to this country for prosecution is encouraging but that the Carter Administration should move now to unilaterally return all disgruntled Cuban refugees to their homeland.

"I think it is good news and bad news," Graham said at a news conference Thursday when asked about Castro's move.

He said if those who would commit air piracy to return to Cuba are aware of Castro's decision, some may be deterred from acting. But he said others still will be desperate enough to hijack airplanes.

The governor said one possibility would be to airlift all those refugees wanting to return to Cuba.

2,000 Refugees Converge To Seek Tough Cane Jobs

HIALEAH, Fla. (UPI) — Chaos and fistfights erupted when over 2,000 Cuban and Haitian refugees converged on a state employment office Thursday seeking work as cane cutters.

The employment office had expected about 500 people to apply for the tough and tedious work of chopping sugar cane in South Florida.

About 30 of the early arrivals managed to push and shove their way inside the offices. Ten police officers were sent to the scene to try to maintain order in the long line of refugees, many of whom arrived at the employment office with their bags packed.

There were no arrests or injuries, officials said.

Most Haitians On Boat To Seek Homes In U.S.

MIAMI (UPI) — Most of the 349 unwilling visitors to the United States who arrived on a hijacked Haitian ferryboat may want to stay permanently, immigration officials say.

Preliminary interviews with the passengers of the Chantal, a hijacked 113-foot coastal steamer that journeyed from Port au Prince to Miami Beach with load of passengers and crates of chickens and rabbits on deck indicate many of the people want to remain, Deputy INS Director Richard Gullage said.

Also Thursday, a chartered plane arrived with 76 Cubans, including some children sucking pacifiers, who have been trapped in the U.S. Interest Section in Havana since taking refuge there in May.

Carter To Shift Refugee Load Off State

MIAMI (UPI) — The burden of processing and settling the thousands of Cuban and Haitian refugees arriving on South Florida shores will be shifted to another part of the country under a plan announced by the Carter Administration.

The plan includes setting up a new processing center outside Florida for arriving refugees, closing the existing refugee facilities in Dade County and increasing efforts to settle refugees outside South Florida.

Jack Watson, White House chief of staff, announced the plan at a meeting with CubanHaitian task force and city and county officials Thursday.

He said the site of the new processing center will be announced next week. Meanwhile, the Tent City set up under an interstate overpass near downtown Miami as a shelter for homeless refugees will be closed by the end of the month, and two centers for processing Cubans and Haitians on the outskirts of the Everglades will be shut down within a month, he said.

The hundreds of Tent City refugees, Watson said, will be moved to rented hotel rooms.

Watson also promised support of two bills that would provide $100 million to help meet the health and social needs of the refugees and more money to educate their children.

More than 124,000 Cubans have arrived in South Florida on the refugee sealift that began April 21 and has continued despite a presidential order that it stop May 15 and a Coast Guard blockade of the Florida Straits.

In the past five months, almost 7,000 Haitians have beached on South Florida shores, most packed gunwale-to-gunwale in wooden sailboats.

A federal study released last week showed more than 80 percent of the Cubans who have been resettled in the country have stayed in Dade County, and virtually all the Haitians.

Larry Mahoney, public affairs officer for the Cuban Haitian task force, said the federal proposal was a welcome one.

"There was a general feeling of strong Washington response for the first time and a sense of new direction," said Mahoney.

But other local officials were more critical.

Dade County Mayor Steve Clark said, "One hundred million is a good start, but we need $1 billion."

Miami Mayor Maurice Ferre, who raised the issue of the sharp rise in crime in the area, got assurance that the federal funds could be used by local governments to assist local police departments in halting the crime wave.

Watson pointed out other measures to help curb the refugee problem included increased vigilance of the Florida Straits to halt the Cuban boatlift.

THE TOYOTA COROLLA SPORT COUPE

It may not look it, but the Toyota Corolla may be one of the most inexpensive automobiles you'll ever own. Because it's built on the concept of total economy of operation. That means:

It's Inexpensive To Maintain

According to a recent study of 52 new 1979 competitive models, Toyota Corolla owners had the fewest problems.† That means they didn't spend a lot of extra money on service.

It's Dependable

By having the fewest problems and saving extra money on servicing, we think Toyota Corolla is one of the most dependable cars in its class.

It's Economical

Even though it comes with a larger 1.8 liter, 4-cylinder engine, the 1980 Toyota Corolla is more fuel efficient than ever. 41 EPA Est. Hwy. MPG. 27 EPA Est MPG.*

Helping to squeeze more miles out of every gallon are such standard features as:

Around The Clock

By DAVID M. RAZLER

While the matter of the life or death of a German shepherd condemned by the county's animal control board awaits preparation of papers requested by a county court judge, courthouse secretaries say they are taking heat from animal lovers and others who want to let the judge know how they feel about whether it should live or die.

Rolf, the shepherd remains held by court order at the Seminole County animal shelter at Five Points. He may be released next week to his owner, if a court motion by his owner is granted.

Last month, the county's Animal Control Board met to consider a complaint by a woman who said she was bitten by Rolf and others who live near the yard in Oviedo where the dog was kept who had complaints about his behavior.

At the end of the hearing, the control board voted to declare the dog vicious and asked County Judge Alan Dickey to order it destroyed.

But Rolf's owner appealed to the judge to save his dog, who he believes may need some obedience training, but is otherwise a good animal.

At the moment, Judge Dickey is awaiting a transcript of the hearing to find out what evidence was presented to the board before he holds a hearing and makes a final decision on the dog's fate.

But courthouse secretaries, many of whom are not even in the same office as the judge who will make the decision on whether Rolf lives or dies, say they have been getting calls from people who are upset that Dickey might order Rolf be killed and people who are upset the dog might go free.

The calls have not stopped at the courthouse doors, either. They have spread next door into the State Attorney's office, because assistant state attorneys are given the task of formally filing complaints made against animals in Seminole County.

"You're getting the animal lovers and the closet animal haters," said one attorney. The calls seem to come in everytime Rolf or the Animal Control Board come up in a news story, he and the secretaries say.

Rolf's final fate will not be decided for some time as the animal control board prepares to hold an additional hearing on whether the dog, can be allowed to live without posing a threat to neighbors.

Courthouse employees say they hope for some solution in the dog case soon, no matter which way it goes. Then people might stop holding them responsible for something they have no control over.

Eyeing The Agee Loophole

Congressional committees in the House and Senate have been searching in recent months for ways to protect the identities of American intelligence agents without compromising First Amendment freedoms in the process. It has proved no easy task.

Specifically, Congress is attempting to short-circuit Philip B.F. Agee and Louis Wolf, both U.S. citizens bent on destroying American intelligence operations in foreign countries.

Agee, a former CIA agent who now describes himself as an "aspiring Communist," has written two books sprinkled with the names of people he says are employees or agents of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Agee also serves as a director and guiding light of the Covert Action Information Bulletin, a Washington publication specializing in the exposure of Americans allegedly employed overseas by the CIA. The Bulletin's editor is Louis Wolf, a man whose views on U.S. intelligence activities appear to coincide with those of the turncoat Agee.

Wolf boasts of having published the names of more than 2,000 American intelligence operatives. Last July, unidentified gunmen attacked the home of an American diplomat in Kingston, Jamaica said by Wolf to be the CIA's station chief in that country.

The diplomat and members of his family escaped injury but the Kingston incident prompted House and Senate intelligence committees to report similar bills making it a felony for anyone to disclose the identity of a covert employee of a U.S. intelligence agency.

The bills would permit the prosecution of present or past government employees, such as Agee, who exploit their access to classified information to undermine U.S. intelligence activities. This provision would close a gaping loophole that left the Justice Department unable to prosecute Agee because he had violated no known federal statute.

While the activities of Agee and Wolf have demonstrated the need for corrective legislation, the two bills in question nonetheless raise disturbing constitutional questions.

The Senate bill, for example, might subject journalists and their publications to prosecution for routine articles on CIA activities abroad. This is not what the Senate committee intended, but the language of the legislation in unnecessarily broad.

And both committees experienced obvious difficulty in deciding whether to distinguish between private citizens publishing speculation and those persons using access to government secrets for subversive purposes. As it now stands, both bills include prohibitions on private citizens as well as those presently or formerly in government service.

Legislation closing the "Agee loophole" is long overdue. But the full House and Senate would be well advised to delete language that might make criminals of journalists and other citizens guilty of nothing more than responsible exercise of their First Amendment rights.

Poverty: Fact Of Military

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — "Join the Navy: Live in Poverty."

That is not what is written on those colorful recruiting posters — the ones stressing faraway places and exotic adventures, the ones used to lure young men and women into the all-volunteer military.

But for more and more service families, subsisting at the poverty level has become a fact of military life.

Joan (not her real name) appears to be a typical young housewife. In her late 20s, she has three youngsters and a husband with a responsible job in the anti-submarine force based at the Jacksonville Naval Station.

This should be an enjoyable time of life for Joan. But it isn't.

"Every day you worry if there is going to be enough food, if the meals you are able to give the children are nutritious enough," she says. "You worry about clothing. You worry about everything. There is just never enough money."

Joan and her family live in a house trailer. Their budget, based on her husband's take-home pay of about $160 a week, does not allow for recreation or entertainment. In fact they cannot even afford a phone.

They were recently forced to sell their car. Now they worry about losing the trailer, which is their only asset.

Only one thing enables the family to survive: Since they are living below the official poverty level, they are eligible for about $120 a month in federal food stamps.

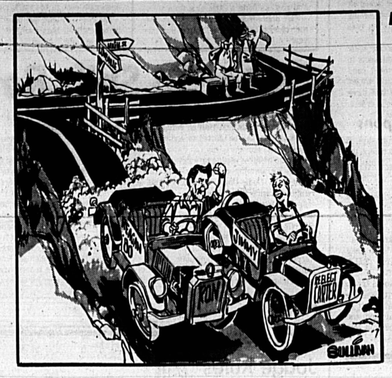
"For enlisted families, the only answer is for the wife to work full-time," explains Joan. "But with the number of young women around here looking for work, jobs are very scarce. And if you're young and have children like I do, that is not really a viable option. What you would have to pay for child care would eat up everything you could earn."

Joan's story is far from unique, says Dick Young, the base's public-affairs officer. A career Navy man, Young is now retired and working as a civilian.

"Enlisted personnel below the level of an E-4 with two years' service are simply not eligible for on-base housing," says Young. "For those above that level, there is a two-year waiting list. This is a rather expensive community to live in. Housing is expensive; apartments rent for around $300 a month. Public transportation is almost non-existent, so you almost have to maintain an automobile. Many if not most of our young enlisted people are having a big financial problems."

Young explains that money is especially tight for service families like Joan's: "Over the last eight years or so, military pay across the board has failed to keep up with increases in the consumer prices. But the basic problem is that the entire military pay scale is simply not geared for the young enlisted family man.

"Given military benefits, a single enlisted man living in barracks can make it if he manages his money intelligently. But the enlisted man who is married is in trouble unless his wife can find a decent full-time job. And for the young enlisted man — or even the young junior officer — with children, it's almost an impossibility."



BUSINESS WORLD

Bankruptcy On The Rise

By MARIANNA OHE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — They come into lawyers' offices desperate for a way out.

They are people with modest incomes — and some with not so modest incomes — who have overextended their credit.

And with the tight credit restrictions imposed between March and August this year, they haven't been able to borrow more to pay their bills.

New York's Consumer Credit Counseling Service says the average debtor seeking its services to straighten out his finances is a member of a three-person family, earning $15,000 annually, carrying $8,000 in consumer installment debt and spending $400 more than he makes per month.

Bankers call the increase in individual bankruptcies appalling and refer to some law firms that advertise to attract bankruptcy clients as "bankruptcy mills."

Attorneys say eased bankruptcy laws represent a longneeded change.

Whatever the viewpoint, the new liberalized bankruptcy law that went into effect last October — coupled with an economic slump marked by inflation, increased unemployment and tightened credit — has caused the number of individual bankruptcy petitions filed nationwide to soar.

According to the U.S. federal court's bankruptcy division, 209,081 individuals filed bankruptcy petitions between Oct. 1, 1979, and July 31, 1980, up 23 percent from 169,967 during the same period a year earlier.

Overall, however, consumers are paying off their debt. Federal Reserve figures show outstanding consumer debt contracted in July for the fourth consecutive month, dropping $600 million following a record decline of $3.46 billion in June.

But although consumer credit restrictions have been dismantled and credit is easier, individual bankruptcies are expected to continue high in the current turbulent economic situation.

The stigma of bankruptcy has greatly lessened under the new law, which refers to the petitioners as debtors rather than bankrupts and allows them to claim greater exemptions and protect more of their assets.

"We're appalled by it," said Richard Kane, president of New York's Citicorp Credit Services which handles Citibank's Mastercard and Visa bank cards.

"Bankruptcy is being merchandised and we are the victims. People who are in less than desperate straits now have bankruptcy available to them. We actually get warning letters from customers saying they are considering bankruptcy."

Kane said bankruptcies now account for 25 percent of the delinquent accounts his operation writes off, compared to 10 percent about a year ago.

Irvin Picard, U.S. trustee in bankruptcy for the southern district of New York, said some lawyers' practices "raise concerns. We have taken some to court and the court has asked them to reduce their fees," he said.

One bankruptcy lawyer who faces Citibank in some 25 cases a week rebuts the bank's accusations, saying more than 95 percent of his clients who file for bankruptcy don't want to do so but have no alternative.

"When a woman lays a 38-caliber pistol on your desk and says she's going to shoot herself, believe me you know she is not happy about filing for bankruptcy," he said.

This lawyer said he is seeing the same kind of client as before, but a lot more of them, and that his own bankruptcy business has increased by more than 100 percent under the new law.

He defends advertising by lawyers, legalized about a year and a half ago. "It allows people to know more about bankruptcy, so that they no longer believe what the banks say about never being able to get credit again (and) provides a valuable service by directing people to specialists."

The Abbie Hoffman 1980 Story

Well, Abbie Hoffman is back among us.

Although as it turns out, he never really was away. The clown prince of the radical '60s spent his underground '70s crusading for the environment, testifying before congressional committees, being appointed to federal commissions, tending his tomato garden in full view of upstate New York neighbors and getting acquainted with middle age. The founder of the Youth International Party is now 43.

It just goes to show where a little plastic surgery and a lot of gall can get you.

And as if all this weren't enough to keep a fugitive busy, Abbie also found time to keep in touch with the family. He got together regularly with brother Jack, often at baseball games. It seems he has an establishment weakness — he's a Red Sox fan.

For sister Phyllis, the wife of a Mexican government official, there was less fun in the rendezvous game. On one attempt, she had to shake her bodyguards before meeting at a theater.

It was a harrowing experience, she confided in a UPI report: "No one (in Mexico) goes to the movies by themselves... 'Pssst', a man whispers to me. I didn't know if the guy was coming on to me or if it was Abbie. I was so scared that I left."

Throughout the six underground years, Abbie was also available for interviews at the drop of a newsperson's suggestion to his numerous aboveground contacts. In one of the last, a pre-summer outpouring to the Washington Post, he made it clear that the nose might be new but otherwise he was the same old Abbie:

"I'm very very upset about the myth of the (figure from the) '60s... who went cynical in the '80s ... I want people to know I'm not coming back embracing the system ... I'm coming back fighting..."

If he says so. Still, fighting spirit seems to have less to do with his surrender to New York state authorities on narcotics and bail-jumping charges than sense of timing.

As Abbie sees it, the times they have a-changed Vietnam is still a sensitive but no longer an inflamed issue. There is less hysteria about drugs. And three years of dickering at a distance in surrender conditions apparently have given him some hope of drawing less than the 15 years to life conviction could bring.

Also he has a new book out, ripe for promotion.

Talk about your full lives. And with so much of it still ahead of him, one wonders what Abbie can possibly do for an encore.

There's news from Libya and for a change it is not connected with Billy Carter.

That country's live-wire leader, Col. Muammar Qaddafi, has called for union with Syria, which as accepted in principle. Never mind that they are separated by a thousand miles of Mediterranean.

JACK ANDERSON

Still No Answers From Sen. Stewart

WASHINGTON — Ordinarily I do not report developments that raise questions about a political candidate in the last days before an election. In fairness to the candidate, he should be allowed sufficient time to answer the questions raised before the voters go to the polls.

But the case of Sen. Donald Stewart, D-Ala., is different. The senator has made my reports on his 1978 campaign finances an issue with his constituents, who will vote in the Democratic primary runoff next Tuesday. So the charges are no last-minute surprise.

At the same time, Stewart has steadfastly refused to provide convincing answers to the questions raised by my reports. If Stewart won't give me the answers, maybe he'll give some to the voters of Alabama before Tuesday. In that hope, I'll report the latest developments in the Stewart case.

The FBI and a federal grand jury have been investigating Stewart's campaign finances and the statements he has made about them. Some of Stewart's personal bank records were turned over by Justice Department attorneys in Birmingham on Sept. 5.

Because of Stewart's stubborn refusal to give satisfactory answers to these questions, I wrote my reports. Gene Boyd, Jack Buchanan and Tony Capaccio investigate. I also enlisted the services of a respected Birmingham attorney, W. Eugene Rutledge, to help research the public records. Some of the findings raise nagging questions about the senator's strange finances.

According to the public record, for example, Stewart's personal share of the mortgage debt on various properties in which he has a sole or partial interest is at least $393,000. Yet his only income in his financial report for 1979 appears to be his $60,082 Senate salary, plus a modest $4,500 in speaking engagement fees and a maximum of $3,500 in rental income.

Immediately after his election in 1978, Stewart managed to make a down payment of about $28,000 on his Washington home, valued at approximately $150,000. Incredibly, that was a year when he reported earnings of only $24,000, had borrowed more than $239,000 for his Senate campaign and was already engaged in a number of sizable mortgage ventures.

Although Stewart refused to answer questions from my reporters about his financial status, he was clearly worried about their investigation — so worried, in fact, that he called Rutledge at 1 a.m. on Sept. 3.

Rutledge was sound asleep. Stewart asked the startled attorney if he had filed a complaint about him with the Justice Department. Rutledge answered truthfully that he had not.

Stewart then demanded to know if Rutledge had "done a report for Jack Anderson." The attorney acknowledged that he had examined the public record at my request.

Then, as Rutledge recalled the conversation, Stewart said angrily: "Gene, I'm going to get you after the election." He then wanted to know where Rutledge was — a strange request from someone who had just placed a call to a man's house at 1 a.m.

When Rutledge hesitated, the senator chided him, saying: "What's the matter, Gene, are you afraid to tell me where you live?"

"Look it up in the phone book," advised the lawyer, before hanging up and going back to sleep.

Footnote: The 46-year-old Stewart came to Washington with promise of a bright future. He brought with him a populist reputation for taking on the big utilities, and he quickly impressed his Senate elders by working hard and learning the legislative ropes. By burning the midnight oil, Stewart became assistant majority whip and landed choice committee assignments.

But his finances have raised a cloud of doubt that could eclipse Stewart's promising career. He would do well to give Alabama voters better explanations than he has provided so far.

NOSE-COUNT NO-NO'S: The White House was warned by its former counsel, Robert Lipshutz, that it's against the law to demand political favors in return for federal jobs. That doesn't appear to have deterred President Carter's aides during the national drug count.

The inspector general of the Commerce Department, the Census Bureau's parent agency, is investigating three serious allegations that census workers were told that to get a job they'd have to agree to work for the Carter-Mondale campaign.

The complaints originated in Springfield, Mass., Traverse City, Mich., and Muskogee, Okla. The most serious charges came from a high-level census office in Muskogee, who was fired after she complained to the inspector general's office.

The Muskogee official charged that prospective census workers were told they'd have to do political work. She also charged that female applicants were told they'd be expected to provide sexual favors for visiting Democratic politicians.

Writer's Voyage Down River Allows Close Look At Chinese

(Leaving China after 18 months, UPI Peking Bureau Manager Robert Crabbe sailed 850 miles along the Yangtze River in central China from Chungking to Wuhan, halfway to Shanghai enroute to a new assignment. Here is his report from the river.)

By ROBERT CRABBE

WUHAN, China (UPI) — Mark Twain would be the ideal companion for a ship voyage down China's turbulent Yangtze River.

That old Mississippi riverboat pilot would have appreciated the Chinese helmsmen who dodged rocks, rapids and sandbars on an 850-mile voyage from Chungking to Wuhan.

One of the largest rivers in the world, the Yangtze is placid and almost a mile wide after it leaves China's mountain country at Ichang and starts its slow descent to the Pacific at Shanghai.

But for 444 miles from Chungking to Ichang, the Yangtze is a narrow torrent, trapped by cliffs and mountains that seem to reach to the sky.

Little lighthouses on anchored boats mark the worst shoals. The pilots swing the four-deck, shallow-bottom ship from bank to bank, skirting the whirlpools and rapids and other ships coming upstream.

Riding the Yangtze current, the vessel averages about 18 miles an hour downstream. It travels about half that fast on the return voyage upstream to Chungking.

The 2½-day voyage from Chungking to Wuhan costs $37.30. Children go at half fare if they are under 4 feet, 3 inches, tall. A line painted on the wall in the Yangtze Navigation Co.'s Chungking office is where candidates for half fare take the test.

Once aboard, the four-deck, green and white ship is a pleasant surprise. Second class cabins where most foreign tourists stay are clean and comfy.

Chungking is hot with summer temperatures of 100 F and above at mid-day. Yet in the Yangtze gorges there is always a breeze and the ship is comfortable. There is no air conditioning, but cabins have electric fans. They heat up quickly if the doors are closed. At night, modesty is forsaken, and tourists sleep with the doors open.

There is a refrigerator aboard. It does not make ice but puts a slight chill on beer and soft drinks. Water (warm) is not available unless you ask for it repeatedly. Bottles of beer and soda are set out in the galley at meal times and passengers are encouraged to help themselves.

Not until the end of the voyage do you learn that you are charged extra for them.

Coming aboard, the foreign passenger also learns he will be charged a flat rate of $6 a day for food. There is no menu. You pay whether you eat or not.

The helpings are gargantuan. At lunch and supper, six main courses of Chinese dishes are set in front of you. Despite the torrid weather, they also serve hot soup.

My wife and child and I pick listlessly at the excellent food but can't get half of it down. The waitress keeps bringing more dishes. We politely ask her to stop. She ignores us.

In the end, we walk away from a table groaning with food. In ration-short China, I hope somebody got to eat it.

Native Chinese passengers pay a lot less — and eat sensibly — in another part of the ship. Some of them crowd around the windows of our dining room to gape at the food the foreign tourists are wasting. Most are blank faced, but a few wear bitter expressions.

China is short of arable land and has to feed 1 billion people. Even the mountains towering over the the Yangtze Gorges have not been neglected for crop growing.

Cascades of terraces with stone walls cling to the hillsides. Cliffs are dotted by isolated farm villages with children playing outside the houses.

During a voyage down a river in China, a visitor might come upon a such as this, where a man works on a duck farm. This farm in the Sijiqing (Evergreen) People's Commune helped to contribute to the more than 3.2 million ducks produced last year in China.

Yet farming in the Yangtze Gorges appears a desperate struggle. Many of the terraces have been ripped apart by soil erosion and seem about to collapse.

The first day out of Chungking, the ship ties up for the night at Wanxien, a river port of 240,000 population. From the river, this city clinging to a mountainside looks picturesque, but it is one of the poorest places I saw in China.

To reach it, you climb 176 steps in the heat from the river to the main street. At the foot of the steps, dozens of Chinese boys swim merrily in the polluted, muddy waters of the Yangtze.

After Ichang, the river broadens and the mountains are gone. The ship passes through tedious flatlands.

Otherwise traffic is light: an occasional passenger ship beating its way upstream, and even a few unmotorized junks rowed by Chinese.

At the big industrial city of Wuhan we pass under one of the four bridges that cross the river, and the riverboat adventure is at an end.

Will Real USC Please Stand Up?

Trojans Face Test Against Gamecocks

By United Press International

Will the real USC please stand up.

Over the last decade there has been only one school with those initials recognized as a perennial college football power — the University of Southern California.

The Trojans have been to the Rose Bowl in nine of the last 13 years and have won three UPI Board of Coaches national championships since 1972.

Enter the University of South Carolina.

The Gamecocks, better known for their basketball prowess during the last 10 years, have put together perhaps their strongest football team in history and are eager to land a place among the top 10 before the season is over.

The Gamecocks have outscored their opponents, 110-0, in their first two games and have unveiled an explosive offense that leads the nation.

However, there's a catch.. The Gamecocks' opponents in their first two games have not been nationally known powers — the University of the Pacific and Wichita State. Neither team would scare Charlie Brown's All-Stars.

Now it's time for the Gamecocks to crow ... or become a chicken dinner.

Southern California is South Carolina's opponent Saturday night, marking the first time the two schools have ever met on the gridiron. Needless to say, South Carolina is on the spot.

"South Carolina is obviously a very good team," says USC Coach John Robinson, "and they could develop into one of the five or six best in the country.

"Their offense is similar to ours in many ways — and in George Rogers we'll see one of the premier running backs in the country. He's extremely explosive."

Rogers, being publicized as a candidate for the Heisman Trophy, is averaging 11.3 yards on 23 carries so far this season and has broken off touchdown runs of 72, 55 and 44 yards.

Southern California is coming off a last-second 20-17 victory over Tennessee and Robinson is looking for improvement on both sides of the line.

"We were able to play with some rhythm and pretty good offensively, but we have a long way to go," Robinson said. "Continued improvement is the key to our offensive future."

In other games involving top 10 teams, No. 1 Alabama visits Mississippi, No. 2 Ohio State travels to Minnesota, No. 5 Texas plays host to Utah State, No. 6 Nebraska entertains Iowa, No. 7 Pittsburgh travels to Kansas, No. 8 Notre Dame plays host to No. 12 Michigan, No. 9 Georgia entertains Clemson and No. 10 Florida State plays host to East Carolina. Third-ranked Oklahoma is idle.

In other top games, Penn State plays at Texas A&M, Stanford travels to Boston College, Washington plays host to Northwestern, Missouri entertains Illinois, UCLA plays host to Purdue, Houston entertains Miami (Fla.), and Arkansas plays host to Oklahoma State. North Carolina is idle.

Lyman Field Victim Of A Few Sickies

"It's a shame that a lot of people spend so much time and energy to make something nice only to have it destroyed in just a few minutes by a few sick people."

That's how Lyman High principal Carlton Henley felt Thursday morning after he arrived at the Greyhound campus to find that some time between late Wednesday night and early Thursday morning, vandals destroyed parts of the Greyhound football field and swimming pool.

Apparently some idiots in a pickup truck carved a few sculptures on the field, leaving a massive re-sodding job ahead. Henley says he has no idea how much the damage totals up to, but Lyman's field will be in poor shape for the remainder of the season. The campus swimming pool was filled with every loose poolside fixture imaginable. Concrete benches, oxygen tanks, tables and chairs.

The timing of the vandalism raises a few questions. The Greyhounds are scheduled to play Lake Brantley Saturday night in what is labeled as the fiercest of Seminole County grudge football games.

Was the destruction of the football field done in the name of school spirit and rivalry? Henley doesn't think so.

"Usually before the Brantley game we have a little something like this," informed Henley. "But in the past it hasn't been anything bigger than a little spray paint on the walls or something like that."

Despite Saturday night's big game against the Patriots, and all rivalry considered, the Lyman principal feels chances are good that the vandalism was not performed in conjunction with the football game.

"My guess is that it might have been a former student or two looking to stir up some trouble and have the focus put on the football game," said Henley.

The Longwood Police Department is investigating the incident but has little to go on. The Greyhounds have an expensive football repair job staring them in the face.

After discovering the damage, Henley quickly contacted Lake Brantley, not to accuse the Patriots of anything, rather to warn the campus of what transpired at Lyman with encouragement to be on the lookout for any possible vandalism on the Lake Brantley campus.

"I hope that none of our students does anything foolish as far as this is concerned," said a hopeful Henley. "I really don't think it has anything to do with the football game."

The vandalism certainly can't be condoned in any respect. And as Henley says, hopefully the act wasn't committed on the basis of school spirit and rivalry.

The Patriots and the Greyhounds have, however, shown a penchant for some extra circular activities prior to the annual Lyman-Lake Brantley game, but in the past nothing as damaging as the football field or campus pool has come to pass.

The incident casts an unfortunate cloud over both football teams. The players on both squads can't win either way in this case. If the vandalism was indeed performed by either school's players, the act takes on not only criminal proportions, but lends an unhealthy stance to prep football. If the cat was committed by outside individuals, both schools still bear the stigmatism of vandalism related to school sports activities.

Either way, both schools were victimized. The Greyhounds have to repair a football field and Lake Brantley comes under suspicion for the act.

It's too bad the vandals didn't spend their extra time buying a ticket to the game instead of destroying hard to come by school property.

Lyman had one of the better football fields in the county. But thanks to a few sickies, that's gone now, at least until next season when only time heals the wounded roots of expensive sodding.

Rookie Ties Vet For Texas Lead

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — Rookie Gary Hallberg fought his tendency toward an impatient golf swing by taking a brief layoff prior to the Texas Open golf tournament and the rest paid off.

Hallberg fired a 6-under-par 64 Thursday over the 6,525-yard Oak Hills Country Club course to tie with veteran Fuzzy Zoeller and Bill Rogers going into today's second round of the $250,000 Texas Open.

Hallberg said the impatience that had been dogging him for some time faded when he birdied No. 1 with a chip in from 40 feet.

"I went out there and I felt real good," he said. "I hit 17 greens, drove it well, just played a real solid round."

Zoeller played without the back problems he has suffered since high school days.

"It (back trouble) is a day-to-day thing," he said. "I might not be able to be out of bed tomorrow morning, but today is no back problem at all. "As a matter of fact, I think the warm weather should help me."

The 150 golfers had an easy time in the 92-degree heat on Oak Hills' course, which most contestants agreed was in perfect shape.

Rogers, who moved into the three-way tie later in the day, got an eagle on No. 10.

"(That) kind of got me in the frame of mind you need to play this golf course," he said.

Three golfers were tied at second-place, 5 under par: Forrest Fezler of Tallahassee, Fla., Jeff Mitchell of Lubbock, Texas, and Terry Diehl of Rochester, N.Y.

Hamlin's Six Under Stands For KC Lead

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. (UPI) — Looking for keys and contact lenses inside your car is not a good way to start a day, but shooting a coursereord 6-under 67 provided a good day's end for Shelley Hamlin.

It also gave the 31-year-old president from Fresno, Calif., the first-day lead in the Kansas City LPGA Classic, and kept her flying high — quite a bit differently than the way she began Thursday.

"I arrived in a cloud," said Hamlin. "I locked my keys in the car ... and my contacts, also."

As her brother, Kent, was trying to break into the car, she quickly got ready. She tried to relax, because her brother — who also is her caddy — had theorized after her 40th-place finish last week she "was taking it all too seriously."

Two good 5-iron shots later — one that dropped 1½ feet from No. 1 pin for a birdie putt, and the second that dropped in for an eagle on No. 2 from 153 yards — she turned to her brother and said, "Kent, your theory's great."

"I had an awful lot of irons close to the pin," she said of her best round of the year. She was especially proud of the eagle.

"It's the first time I sank one without seeing it," she said.

But she was just as proud of her newfound consistency that allowed her to play the 18 without a bogey.

The only golfer to give Hamlin a close run in the first round was Barbara Mocnik of San Diego, Calif., who shot a 34-34-68 with two bogeys.

Hole No. 17 proved to be Moxness' downfall and she was lucky to cone out with a bogey-5. A drive went into the left round and her second shot hit the backside of a sloping tray and bounded across the green into the tree. A drop, a good chip and a short putt gave her the bogey.

"When I hit that shot I thought it would go long, but I didn't think it would fly that far," Moxness said of the bad bounce.

Brenda Rego was alone in third with a 36-34—70 on the 6,383-yard, par-73 course. Hollis Stacey, Debbie Austin and Lori Garbacz all had 3-under-71s to tie for fourth.

Sandra Post, who won last year's Kansas City stop with an 8-under 284, Thursday hit a 35-40—75 to tie with Donna Caponi Young, 37-38, and 10 others at 2-over par.

Tribe JV Impressive

Seminole High's junior varsity football squad got off to an impressive start Thursday night by rolling over the Mainland Buccaneers by a 34-8 score.

Halfback Dion Jackson put the Tribe out in front in the first quarter with a 90-yard touchdown scamper and the Seminoles made it 12-0 just before the end of the initial period on a four-yard blast by Joe Whack.

Mainland got on the board shortly before halftime by converting a Seminole fumble into a short drive to trail 12-8.

Jackson added to the Tribe lead in the third period on a 22-yard scoring run with quarterback John Polk going in for the conversion. Polk added a one-yard scoring plunge in the fourth quarter with backfield mate Whack rumbling in for the two-point conversion. Seminole's final score came late in the fourth period when defensive back George Johnson came up with a poor Mainland punt and ran it in from 10-yards out.

Jackson sparked an impressive rushing night by the Seminoles who chalked up 286 rushing yards in their season opener.

"We had the first night jitters," commented coach Bobby Lundquist. "But we settled down and did a pretty good job."

Pop Warner Gears Up Saturday

Yarborough Parting With Johnson

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. — Cale Yarborough has decided to part company with Junior Johnson following the 1980 NASCAR Winston Cup season, but Yarborough wants to give the Johnson team two going away presents — a fourth championship and a modern record for pole positions.

"We're down a little in the point race (77 back of leader Dale Earnhardt), but I want to win the championship more than ever," said Yarborough after announcing that he would be driving for the M.C. Anderson team in 1981. He replaces Benny Parsons.

Sims Buries All Doubts About 'Old Rookie' Image

By United Press International

Poor, old Billy Sims, the pro scouts propounded, always with the emphasis on "old."

The 23-year-old rookie rusher for the Detroit Lions, whose only critics were those who researched his birth date, has buried the doubters who felt the Oklahoma Heisman Trophy winner might have a limited life in the NFL.

For an old man, Sims has been running circles around defenses so far this season and has a chance Sunday to do what no rookie ever has accomplished — rush for at least 100 yards in each of his first three NFL games.

Sims rushed for 153 yards in his NFL debut against Los Angeles and added a 134-yard effort against Green Bay last week.

He will seek to complete the hat trick Sunday against the winless St. Louis Cardinals. But more important, Detroit, which finished tied with the worst record in the league in 1979, could win their third consecutive game to get off to their fastest start in a decade.

A triumph at the Silverdome also would give the Lions one more victory than they recorded all last season. The chaos in Lions' fortunes has not been lost on Detroit coach Monte Clark.

"I've been fortunate in my career to taste a lot of the good things that come with winning," Clark said. "If you keep on winning, keep on performing right, there will be enough credit to go around."

Sims leads the NFL in rushing, rushing average (6.8) and touchdowns (five) and has gained 158 yards on just four pass receptions.

Ironically, he will be matched against last year's outstanding rookie rusher — Ottis Anderson — who also gained more than 100 yards in his first two rookie games in 1979 but fell short of the record in the third.

St. Louis Coach Jim Hanifan has been keeping busy looking for optimistic signs in two losses to the New York Giants and San Francisco.

"I would venture to say that as fine a team as the Pittsburgh Steelers is going to lose two games this year," Hanifan said. "And whether it's at the start, in the middle, or at the end, they all count the same when it comes down to the final shot."

Blue Jays Snap Yank Streak At 7

By United Press International

Luis Leal was one member of the Toronto Blue Jays Thursday night who refused to be a clay pigeon for the New York Yankees.

After watching his team squander a four-run lead in the 10th inning and lose, 8?7, in 13 innings, in the completion of Wednesday night's suspended game, Leal was given the ball on short notice in the second game and went out and stopped the Yankees on two hits, 2-1?

"Leal was in command all the way," said Yankee Manager Dick Howser after the 23-year-old righthander, pitching on 20-minutes notice, snapped the Yankees' seven-game winning streak.

We scored our only run on a freak play," Howser continued. "He did a number on us."

Toronto Manager Bobby Mattick said he was not surprised at Leal's performance.

"We think he has a chance to be a heck of a pitcher," said Mattick. "He gave a lesson on how to use the changeup tonight."

Leal said the sudden assignment didn't faze him.

"They told me I was pitching," said Leal. "I told them to give me the ball."

Dave Stieb originally was scheduled to start the second game, but the Yankees pounced on him for four runs in the 10th inning of the suspended game to tie the score, so Mattick switched signals and went for Leal.

The only hits off Leal, who bested Tommy John, were back-to-back singles by Reggie Jackson and Jim Spencer in the fourth inning. Jackson scored the Yankees' run when Spencer was caught in a rundown between first and second.

Orioles 7, Tigers 3

Ken Singleton's two-run single capped a three-run seventh inning rally that gave Baltimore its victory. Scott McGregor, 19-7, was the winner with Tim Stoddard making his 23rd save.

Brewers 9-5, Twins 8-0

Gorman Thomas' two-run homer, his 35th, with two out in the ninth inning gave Milwaukee a 9-8 victory in the first game. Lary Sorensen fired a six-hitter and Ben Oglivie hit his 30th home run to help the Brewers complete a sweep.

Royals 5, Angels 2

Rance Mulliniks singled home two runs and Willie Wilson stole two bases to extend his string of consecutive thefts to 28, breaking Ron LeFlore's 1978 AL record of 27. George Brett stroked two singles in three atbats to raise his average two points to .398.

Red Sox 8, Indians 3

Jim Rice had three hits and drove in four runs and Garry Hancock clouted a two-run homer in sparking Boston to victory.

Rangers 10, A's 6

Mickey Rivers had four hits, including a two-run single, to help Texas over Oakland. Danny Darwin, 12-4, earned the victory and Steve McCatty, 12-14, took the loss.

White Sox 5, Mariners 4

Houston Sinks Slumping Reds

By United Press International

Every year about this time, breaths get shorter, pulses beat faster and explanations get more hackneyed. So, Houston Astros' Manager Bill Virdon can be excused for restating the obvious.

"This is very definitely a big win for us," he said, after the Astros had whipped Cincinnati, 10-2, Thursday, to snap a three-game losing streak and remain one game behind the Los Angeles Dodgers for the lead in the National League West.

"It's a big win because at this stage, you can't stay down too long," Virdon said.

Joe Morgan, who turns 37 today, delivered a two-run homer to highlight a three-run seventh inning that broke open a 2-2 game.

"People say we don't have power, but on the road we have just as much power as anyone," Morgan said, referring to his eighth homer and another two-run shot by teammate Jose Cruz. "It's just the ballpark we play in — the Astrodome — where nobody has any power."

The loss to Houston dropped third-place Cincinnati 5½ games behind the Dodgers, who beat San Diego, 7-3.

"We might be in too deep, deeper than we can get out of," said Reds' third baseman Ray Knight.

In other NL games, Los Angeles dropped San Diego, 7-3, and Atlanta nipped Atlanta, 2-1.

In the American League, Boston defeated Cleveland, 8-3, Baltimore beat Detroit, 7-3, New York nipped Toronto, 8-3, in 13 innings, in the completion of a suspended game, before Toronto came back in the regular game, 2-1, Milwaukee swept a double-header from Minnesota, 9-8 and 5-0, Kansas City defeated California, 5-2, Texas topped Oakland, 10-6, and Chicago edged Seattle, 5-4.

Dodgers 7, Padres 3

Dusty Baker smashed a two-run homer to highlight a three-run outburst in the third inning, sparking the division-leading Dodgers over San Diego. The Dodgers collected two more homers in the eighth from Ron Cey and Mickey Hatcher.

Braves 2, Giants 1

Chris Chambliss hit a two-run homer and reliever Rick Camp pitched out of bases-loaded, none-out situation in the ninth to lift Atlanta. The Giants scored their only run in the eighth on a sacrifice fly by Milt May.

Harness Ace Sets Record Time

Niatross Cruises In Jug Race

DELAWARE, Ohio (UPI) — When Billy Haughton and Joe O'Brien talk harness racing, people listen.

Haughton and O'Brien have won seven Little Brown Jugs between them, Haughton a record five and O'Brien two.

On Thursday, however, all either of them could do was sit back and watch as Niatross, possibly the greatest harness horse to ever go to the starting gate, cruised to a straight heat victory in the 35th running of the Jug in record-setting times.

Driven by Clint Galbraith, who also co-owns and trains the bay son of Albatross, Niatross captured the first heat in 1:55, breaking the previous Jug mark of 1:55 by 5-5 set in 1978 by Falcon Almahurst.

In the second, Niatross erased that mark with a sizzling 1:54 4-5 clocking on the Delaware County Fairgrounds oval, Texas, and Terry Diehl of Rochester, N.Y.

The combined heat times of 3:49 4-5 is also a world's record on a half-mile track.

"There is no way you are going to beat Niatross on a mile, half-mile or five-eights mile track," said the crafty O'Brien, who drove Storm Damage to fourth and second place finishes in the two heats. "He's just a super colt."

"Like I've said all year," said Haughton, the driver of Trenton Time, "Niatross simply is a great colt and a great competitor. What more can you ask?"

The wins were the 15th and 16th in 18 starts this year for Niatross and the 29th in 31 races in his career. The $104,717 he won Thursday in the Jug boosted his 1980 earnings to $1,133,896 and his career mark to $1,748,796, both records.

Storm Damage earned $52,659 for his fourth and second place finishes in the two heats; Trenton Time finished second and fifth and Tyler B third and third, both earning $27,993; while Tami's Man, fourth and fifth, took home $13,996 of the $207,000 purse.

"It has to be the greatest moment of my life," said Galbraith of his first Jug victory. "We had a lot of racing luck, starting with the draw when he got the pole."

A crowd of more than 45,000 people watched as Niatross nailed down the second jewel of 3-year-old pacing's Triple Crown, with the Messenger Stakes at Roosevelt Raceway yet to come. He already has won the Cane Pace at Yonkers and, by winning the Messenger, can become the first horse to take the crown since Most Happy Fella in 1970.

Fading Winds Halt Cup Races

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — The Australians were determined to match the U.S. defender's record today in the America's Cup series after their chance for a dramatic victory evaporated in softening winds.

The yacht Australia was ahead by almost four minutes compleating the race expired, forcing the New York Yacht Club's committee to call the contest.

Only twice before in Cup history have races been thrown out because the time limit expired, most recently in 1977 when the U.S. defender Courageous missed victory over Australia by 200 yards.

"We were very unlucky not to win the race," said Australia owner Alan Bond. "We're disappointed that lady luck didn't shine for us. On the other hand, it wasn't a day wasted. Australia has every capability of winning races and we will continue until proved wrong."

The match will be rerun today with Australia hoping to make up its 1-0 deficit in the best-of-seven series.

The Aussies caught a freshening breeze on the next-to-last downwind leg, while Freedom sat dead in the water, its sails flapping hopelessly.

Freedom skipper Dennis Conner had outraced the Aussies with superior speed, sails and tactics over the first four legs, leading by a comfortable 1:42 at the start of the fifth leg.

Conner said "it was a little disappointing to see the wind fall apart," and his yacht fall behind. But he was egcouraged by his overall sailing performance.

"Any time a boat finishes ahead of you it's cause for concern," he said. "But I felt we had a strong day. We sailed a very sound race tactically. We were able to open up on every leg."

Freedom was the heavy favorite to preserve the New York Yacht Club's 129-year grip on yachting's most coveted trophy.

Webster Ruling Has 'Sonics Fuming

SEATTLE (UPI) — Seattle Supersonics' owner Sam Schulman was exasperated Thursday after learning the seemingly resolved Marvin Webster compensation case will have to be reconsidered.

"This is very hard for me to believe," groaned Schulman from his Los Angeles office. "The whole thing is ludicrous, absurd."

Earlier Thursday, Special Master Telford Taylor ruled in New York NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien must reduce the compensation given to the Sonics in return for their loss to the New York Knicks of center Marvin Webster, a key element in the Seattle team that made it to the NBA championship series of 1979.

Taylor, however, did not specify what the revised compensation should be.

Originally, the Sonics were awarded Knicks' power forward Lonnie Shelton, their 1979 No. 1 draft choice and $450,000. The New York club, protesting vigorously, took the matter into the courts and finally gained a compromise three months ago when O'Brien ordered the Sonics to give back either a draft choice or $725,000.

"Now it's at the point where we are being asked to return to the Knicks more than they were originally willing to give us — without any negotiating — back when this whole thing started," Schulman said.

Schulman apparently wasn't the only one to hit the roof over the new decision.

"I callec the NBA office and was told O'Brien was absolutely livid," the Sonics' owner said. "There was talk that he (O'Brien) would ignore Taylor's request and not do anything about it."

Drivers Take Aim At Yarbourough

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. (UPI) — Thirty-nine Grand National drivers attempted to break Cale Yarborough's track record of 114.057 miles per hour as qualifying began today for Sunday's 250-mile stock car race at North Wilkesboro Speedway.

Yarborough, who has won 12 pole positions this season, set the one-lap qualifying record prior to the Northwestern 400 in April, but Bobby Allison, winner of three events this year, claimed the number one starting slot with a record two day average of 113.797 mph.

Two days of time trials will determine the first eight starting berths in the 30-car field. Each driver drove two consecutive laps today. The procedure will be repeated Saturday. The better lap each day counts with the average of the two deciding the first eight positions.

The fastest qualifier each day will receive $1,500, and the best two-day average will earn an additional $3,500.

Qualifying runs Saturday are scheduled to begin at 1:30 p.m. with positions 9-30 being decided.

The top 17 drivers in the Grand National driving championship standings have entered the $114,815 event scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Yarborough and Allison are among five former North Wilkesboro winners entered in the race. Allison has three triumphs at the five-eighths mile track, while Yarborough has visited victory lane on five occasions.

Other former winners are Richard Petty, who scored a record 14th North Wilkesboro win in the spring race and has won the fall race five times; Darrell Waltrip, who has two wins; and Benny Parsons, winner of the 400-lap event in 1979.

Second-year driver Dale Earnhardt, who won the pole position last year, has competed in only four races at the Wilkes County track with his best showings being two fourthplace finishes.

Santo Continues Speedway Success

New Smyrna Beach, Fla. - Continuing his strong showing on the New Smyrna Speedway high banks, John Santo turned fast time, won the fast heat and took his 12th late-model feature of the season on Saturday night.

Wayne Heckle, who has had a super successful season in the Sunshine State this year, also qualified fastest and went on to win the thunder car finale at the wheel of the familiar orange and black Parts Mart Camaro.

Master mechanic "Hammerin" Jack Simmons traded his monkey wrench for a steering wheel and drove the Denny's Restaurant stocker to victory in the first street stock heat and the main. Bob Crosby won the four-cylinder heat and feature, while the 5-lap spectator race went to Ed Keffer.

Running on good used tires and using a two-year old engine for power, Santo, relying almost uniquely on the recently added aerodynamics which made the car handle so much better, saw his pursuers LeRoy Porter and Mike Laws drop out of the main with various mechanical woes.

Veteran Joe Middleton was second, followed by defending track Champ Mark Gibson, Tiger Tommy Funk and second heat winner Wayne Phillips.

Wayne Heckle, who has won 37 features this season, dominated the thunder car feature, pulling away and lapping everybody but second place finisher Jimmy Sills. Frank Wood, who crashed during late afternoon practice and whose crew did a super race car rebuilding job, bested Heckle in the fast heat, but was sidelined by a flat tire in the main. Third to fifth were Jerry Fitch, Joe Coupas and John Cochran.

Following Simmons in the street stock main was Wild Bill Kinley who hadn't finished a feature in ages. Third was former Florida State Late Model Champion Dumont Smith, replacing his injured son Lance. Steve Rumbaugh was fourth, followed by the "Idol of Millions" Chuck Loomis who won the second preliminary event in a dead heat with B.J. Harrison.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Saturday, September 20, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY
September 20, 1980

This could be a very busy year, work or careerwise. Additional duties and responsibilities are likely, but the compensation for them will be greater.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Others may seek frivolous activities to provide them with enjoyment today, but you won't be content unless your time is spent productively. Satisfy your urges.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're a take-charge type today, but you are able to be so by ingratiating yourself rather than by irritating others. Hail to the chief.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Initially, involvements important to you may appear to be going awry today. This impression is erroneous. The final tally will please you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Strive to communicate with persons today who have been on your mind of late, but with whom you have not been in touch. Something unexpectedly advantageous could result.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is a good day to expend your efforts on things to enhance your security or material foundation. Substantial improvement can now be made in these areas.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Situations on which you put your personal stamp today should work out to your satisfaction. Don't delegate things you can better do yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You don't have to be around a lot of people today in order to be happy. In fact, some solitude to sort out your thoughts will do you a world of good.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Activities today challenging your inventive or innovative abilities will be the ones you most enjoy and perform the best, especially if pals are involved.

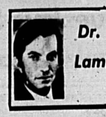
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Recognition for past efforts you felt were overlooked will be forthcoming today. Accept compliments from admirers with modesty and gratitude.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You grasp the essence of new ideas or concepts very quickly today, and you will find ways to apply them which can advance your self-interests.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There is a strong possibility you can profit today from something for which another has already done most of the spadework. What you'll add is worthwhile.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) Being No. 1 won't be that important to you today. This will please your companions. Your efforts will be spent making them feel like stars.

Have Fun Each Day To Avoid Fatigue



Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a 17-year-old male and I'm 160 pounds and 5 feet 7. I know I'm about 20 pounds overweight. I'm an overeater but I do eat a balanced diet. As long as I can remember, I've also lacked "get up and go," even though I get at least eight hours of sleep a night. I always seem tired.

I'd like to know if there are any physical deficiencies or diseases which can explain my lack of energy. I notice that people who seem to have boundless energy often achieve greatness or success.

I read that Margaret Thatcher, the Prime Minister of Great Britain, only sleeps about five hours a night and yet she's a dynamic leader.

How does one's metabolism or the way he feels influence his output and ability to reach his full intellectual potential?

DEAR READER — I'm pleased to see that you would like to reach your full potential. Motivation is a big factor in what anyone achieves. Psychological factors are often more important than metabolic factors in determining people's levels of energy. To illustrate, if you were told suddenly that you were going to be able to make a trip to London or do something that you really had been anxious to do all your life, your energy would zoom instantly.

That should tell you a lot about people. They're energetic about the things they want to do. In contrast, when a person must do things that he doesn't particularly enjoy or doesn't want to do, he becomes fatigued.

One of the best weapons against fatigue or loss of energy is to do something every day that you really enjoy. Now some people have to cultivate things to enjoy because they're never gotten themselves involved in enough things to find out what they like or don't like.

As The Health Letter I'm sending you explains, about 20 percent of the people who have chronic fatigue or loss of energy do have an underlying medical problem. This could be an underactive thyroid gland, although that's rarely the cause, or an infectious illness.

When tuberculosis was common, we often wondered if a person who complained of fatigue had TB. Anything that interferes with providing oxygen, whether it's an anemia or a problem with circulation, contributes to fatigue. I would guess that most of these are unlikely in your case.

Young people are sometimes fatigued because basically they're depressed or confused about their future and the rapidly approaching time when they must support themselves and accept adult responsibilities.

Being in poor physical condition can cause fatigue.

Inactivity breeds more inactivity and more fatigue. For much of our inactive society a sensible regular exercise program is a good stimulant.

Think about the ideas that are presented in The Health Letter I'm sending you and then see if you can involve yourself in things you really enjoy. Set some goals for yourself in things you really enjoy. Set some goals for yourself that are related to the things you enjoy and it could do a lot for your energy level.

"I'm getting old," said the Professor. "Maybe I should give up bridge."

"What's the matter?" asked the student. "The grand slam contract was a reasonable one. In any event my raise to four clubs might have been a bad bid."

"It was," replied the Prof. "On the other hand it got us to the makeable club grand slam and I misplayed it."

"What could you have done?" asked the student. "I don't see any squeeze and the diamonds were not finessable."

"Right," was the reply. "Still this was what we call a 'book hand.' It is found in books and in some form or another has appeared in every bridge column. I'm just too old."

Do you readers see what the Professor had overlooked in the play? If not, here it is. After cashing dummy's ace and his own king of clubs, declarer should stop to lead out his ace and king of diamonds. If the king of diamonds were ruffed he would be down one since he would still have a trump left in dummy to ruff out a low diamond.

It just happened that West had been dealt just one diamond and just two clubs so the Prof could have led out his third-high diamond, ruffed a low diamond, come back to his hand with the ace of spades, drawn East's last trump and made the grand slam.

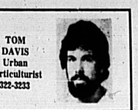
Sod Webworms One Of Worst Lawn Pests



TOM DAVIS
Urban Horticulturist
322-2333

Sod webworms are by far one of our worst lawn pests and are capable of doing extensive damage to most all Florida lawn grasses.

Within the last three weeks about 95 percent of all incoming residents having problems with St. Augustine lawns has been due to sod webworm attacks.

So, particularly if you have St. Augustine grass, learn to recognize and control these destructive pests.

The adults of the sod webworm are small, brown moths with a wing spread of about ¾ inch. The larva are small, greenish caterpillars which range from about one-twenty-fifth inch long when they first hatch to about ¾ inch long when mature. This is the stage that does damage to lawns by chewing up the grass blades.

These caterpillars rest in a curled position at the soil level during the day and do their feeding at night. The newly hatched webworms produce little or no visible damage to the grass. However, as they reach maturity, damage appears to show up almost overnight.

When inspecting your lawns for sod webworms, look for grass blades with notches chewed out along the sides of the blades. By parting the grass back, you can often see the little green caterpillars resting in curled positions.

One final test could be made by mixing about ½ ounce of a mild liquid dishwashing detergent in a sprinkle can and applying this on about two square feet of lawn where damage is evident. If caterpillars are present, they should begin crawling to the tops of the grass blades.

Heavy infestations can eventually encompass very large areas of lawn. When grass is severely damaged during hot, dry weather, it may be killed altogether.

However, if the infested grass is kept well watered, it can often recover from a large amount of webworm feeding.

When it is established that sod webworms or other lawn caterpillars are the problem, start control measures promptly. Sprays of Dursban or Sevin will provide good control. Treat the entire lawn thoroughly, giving particular attention to areas obviously heavily infested. Make spot treatments only if the lawn can be watched closely from day to day.

I would suggest a repeat application in ten days for heavy infestations.

Home Ec Agent Feels She's 'Back Home' Again

BARBARA HUGHES

Seminole County has a new Home Economics Extension agent to fill the vacancy left by the April 18 resignation of Louise Gill and she is Barbara Hughes.

Originally from St. Petersburg, Miss Hughes taught high school home economics in El Paso, Texas, before coming to Sanford to start work on Sept. 12.

She is a graduate of Texas Tech and has a master's degree from Okalhoma State University. She will be working with the women in the Homemakers Extension Clubs and the youth involved in the 4-H Club program.

"I feel like I'm back home and am looking forward to my work here," Miss Hughes said. "Everybody's been very helpful."

Just because her job involves cooking, sewing, sewing and other homemaking skills, doesn't mean she's just a homebody. Twenty-seven-year-old Miss Hughes is also an outdoor girl, who enjoys jogging, bicycling, horseback riding and tennis. In fact, she has already enrolled in a tennis class at Seminole Community College.

She does most of her own sewing, likes to cook for other people and is looking forward to sharing these skills with others in the new agricultural center, which she says has a modern demonstration kitchen.

Her job will also involve other fields of interest to many people these days such as human development skills, home management, consumer education and energy conservation.

"With the economy the way it is," Miss Hughes said, "there is going to be a sharp increase in attendance for such classes by people who want to learn about preservation, energy saving and making their own clothes to cut down on expenses."

Miss Hughes' office is presently at the old Agri-Center, but she hopes to be moving in to the new building off U.S. Highway 17-92 just north of the entrance to the Seminole Community College old campus.

She will be glad to answer any questions concerning programs and information available or about homemaking problems if you will call her at 322-7128.

Ada Reilly, Mrs. William S. Brumley Sr. and Anne Campbell at DAR meeting during Constitution week.

Constitution History Told To Daughters

Sanford Mayor Lee P. Moore and Lake Mary Mayor Walter A. Sorenson signed proclamations declaring Sept. 17-23 as Constitution Week as proclaimed by President Carter.

An informative program on the history and adoption of the Constitution was presented by Mrs. A. W. Reilly, president of the Sanford Chapter of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary.

Mrs. Reiley and the VFW Auxiliary vice president, Mrs. Anne Campbell, also gave a resume of the endeavors of the VFW and their work with the Veterans' Administration hospitals in Gainesville and Tampa.

Regent Mrs. William S. Brumley Sr. presided at the business meeting and announced that the Fall Forum of the Florida State Society of the DAR would be held at the Americana Hotel, Daytona Beach, on Sept. 26 and 27.

Refreshments were served by the hostess to 17 members, the above-mentioned guests and also guests, Mrs. Burch Cornelius and Mrs. Ruth Bartholomew.

Garden Circles

Jacaranda

The Jacaranda Circle of the Garden Club of Sanford met at the home of Mrs. Carol Johnson at Longwood.

A tour of plant nurseries was made.

New by-laws were discussed, plans for the year were completed and new year books were distributed.

Three new members were enrolled. There were 23 regular members in attendance.

Mimosa

Mimosa Circle of the Garden Club of Sanford held its first meeting of the club year at the Central Florida Zoological Park. The business meeting was presided over by the circle chairman, Mrs. S. B. Swaggerty.

A Horticulture report was presented by Mrs. Brooks Jones. The discussion was on Ginger Lily. Several types were discussed. An informative discussion followed on other types of horticulture.

Items coming from the garden club board were as follows: workshops will be held beginning Sept. 16 at 9:30 a.m. and each Tuesday morning thereafter until the Bazaar on Dec. 5-6; the October General Meeting will be a Christmas Preview; members were asked to bring their favorite Christmas decoration for display.

The next circle meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Carl Chorpening.

The program will be on dried flowers.

GARDEN OF THE MONTH

The home and grounds of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Speer, 106 N. Virginia Ave., captured the Garden of the Month Award for September, according to Mrs. Brian Schanel of the Camellia Circle of the Garden Club of Sanford. The ranch-style home features a neat overall well-balanced landscape including a profusion of colorful crotons across the front. The Speers and 14-year-old son, Syd, maintain the yard.

Honor Parents' Rules If They Pay Bills

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I hope and pray that you will print this letter, as this problem has plagued my friends and me for many years.

I'm a 19-year-old girl, living with my parents and attending a very strict Baptist college. My parents are paying for my education.

Abby, I've been listening to rock music for over eight years without my parents' knowledge. They found the tapes and were crushed. They say they can no longer trust me. I apologized for having kept it from them, but explained that I didn't tell them because I knew rock music is against their beliefs. They say that rock music destroys young people and that I cannot keep the tapes in the house. I told them that I have developed my own convictions, and as long as I don't disturb anyone with my music I should be allowed to keep the tapes and listen to them.

Who is right? Must I get rid of the tapes and turn my radio dial to the religious station? Or should I be allowed to make my own choice of music as long as I don't bother anybody?

ME IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR ME: As long as you live in your parents' home and they are paying for your education, you must follow their rules. Once you are on your own, you may do as you please.

DEAR ABBY: I was invited to a pool party by a friend who had been invited to bring a friend. I did not know the host.

The afternoon was spent swimming and drinking around the pool. Then we dressed in our casual wear for dinner, to be served on tables around the pool. As I sat down, I accidentally knocked over a champagne glass and it broke. The host told me where the glassware had been purchased so that I could replace it. That seemed reasonable to me, although I would not have made that suggestion to a guest of mine. (Accidents will happen.)

Well, I phoned the store the following day and learned that a single crystal champagne goblet cost $15!

No way can I afford that on my modest income. I might add, I was not drunk and the table was a glass-top type with no tablecloth to buffer a fallen goblet.

I usually don't mind paying for my mistakes, but I consider it totally inappropriate to place such costly glassware on the table for a causual swimming party. I plan to send a note of apology and enclose a check for $25 to help toward replacing said. What do you say?

J.

DEAR J.: Your note and check for $25 seem reasonable to me. Find out if you are insured against such breakage. And is your host? (Many are, and don't realize it.)

DEAR ABBY: I am a grown woman who is in a very embarrasing situation. The daughter of a friend was recently married, and I sent her a luncheon cloth with matching napkins for a wedding gift. She phoned me to say that the color did not go with her decorating scheme, and asked where it was purchased so she could exchange it for another color.

Well, Abby, I've had this luncheon set for years. It was given to me as a gift, so of course it can't be exchanged.

How should this be handled?

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Tell her that it was purchased years ago (it was) and cannot be exchanged.

Cowan-Biddy Vows Spoken

Ann Cowan, formerly of Sanford and Paul Harrison Biddy were married Aug. 16, at 11 a.m. at the John Knox Presbyterian Church, Orlando, in the presence of the immediate families and close friends.

A reception followed at the Red Lion Apartment Clubhouse. The couple will make their home in Winter Park.

Legal Notice

PROBATE DIVISION
File Number 80-353-CP
Division Probate
IN RE: ESTATE OF
ANTHONY PLACIDO,
Deceased
NOTICE OF ADMINISTRATION
TO ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS OR DEMANDS AGAINST THE ABOVE ESTATE AND ALL OTHER PERSONS INTERESTED IN THE ESTATE:
YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED that the administration of the estate of Anthony Placido, deceased, File Number 80-353-CP, is pending in the Circuit Court for Seminole County, Florida, Probate Division, the address of which is Seminole County Courthouse, Sanford, Florida, 32771. The personal representative of the estate is Margaret Placido, whose address is 513 Celery Avenue, Sanford, Florida 32771. The name and address of the personal representative's attorney are set forth below.

All persons having claims or demands against the estate are required, WITHIN THREE MONTHS FROM THE DATE OF THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE, to file with the clerk of the above court a written statement of any claim or demand they may have. Each claim must be in writing and must indicate the basis for the claim, the name and address of the creditor or his agent or attorney, and the amount claimed. If the claim is not yet due, the date when it will become due shall be stated. If the claim is contingent or unliquidated, the nature of the uncertainty shall be stated. If the claim is secured, the security shall be described. The claimant shall deliver sufficient copies of the claim to the clerk to enable the clerk to mail one copy to each personal representative.

All persons interested in the estate to whom a copy of this Notice of Administration has been mailed are required, WITHIN THREE MONTHS FROM THE DATE OF THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE, to file any objections they may have that challenge the validity of the decedent's will, the qualifications of the personal representative, or the venue or jurisdiction of the court.

ALL CLAIMS, DEMANDS, AND OBJECTIONS NOT SO FILED WILL BE FOREVER BARRED.

Date of the first publication of this Notice of Administration: September 12, 1980.

COUNTY IN BRIEF

County Commission Amends Hospital, Life Policies

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County Commission this week approved amending the current group hospitalization and life insurance policy to allow for voluntary coverage of full-time-temporary and part-time-permanent employees, but did not deal with continuing coverage for retired personnel.

The county previously had no insurance program for temporary, part-time or retired employees. A request from Judge Volie Williams to be continued in the county's hospitalization group after his retirement and during his temporary appointment prompted commissioners to ask staff to determine if and how this could be accomplished.

By special act, circuit court judges are allowed as state employees to participate in the county's group hospitalization at their own expense.

The premium will be paid monthly by the employee at the same rate the county currently pays for its regular employees — $36.75 monthly or $441 per year. To be eligible, the employee would have to complete the 90-day working period. Part-time employees must work at least half time over the 90 days and full-time persons must work 37-50 hours.

The county presently has 12 permanent-part-time employees and no temporary full-time.

Planning Agnecy Approved

The commission unanimously passed this week an ordinance establishing the Areawide Planning Agency with the city of Lake Mary. The agency will consist of 10 members — five each appointed by the city and county.

CETA Positions Approved

Additional CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) positions funded for 12 months under Title-D have been approved by the commission for the Grove Counseling Center, Inc. in Longwood and Sanford Child Development, Inc. Approved for the Grove Counseling Center was a work-recreation monitor with an annual salary of $6,969 plus fringe benefits totaling $1,589.30. Sanford Child Development will receive six teacher aides to provide better educational care for pre-school children for a total of $44,160. in salaries and benefits.

Lakeview Change Backed

The commission this week approved a request by Richard C. Browne to vacate a portion of Ford Street in the Lakeview subdivision.

Sweetwater Plans Accepted

Preliminary plans were accepted by the commission for Sweetwater Oaks Section 18-A, submitted by Everette Huskey, and Sabal Palm Drive West and Club Road and Sabal Palm Drive South, submitted by Sabal Point, Inc. The arterial roads are being platted prior to the lots in the latter subdivision.

Aerial Photos To Be Made

The commission this week awarded the contract for professional services for aerial photos on Lake Mary Boulevard from Markham Woods Road to County Road 427 and State Road 436 from Wymore-Douglas Road to Oxford Road to Southern Resource Mapping Corp.

Epileptics Ask County To Fund Jobs Program

The Seminole County Commission approved funding for 11 program operators for 1980-81 fiscal year, but postponed action until next week on two others after the four commissioners were deadlocked.

Vying for the remaining funds under CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) Titles II-B are a new in-school work experience program to be administered by the Seminole County School Board and an existing classroom training for job placement program operated by the Epilepsy Association of Central Florida.

The school Board program would train those accepted in training program in school while they await openings in other existing programs for jobs and provide short-term jobs.

The comdission was split 2-2 in the absence of Commissioner Dick Williams, who was out of state on personal business. Commissioners Sandra Glenn and Robert Sturm voted for allotting $118,000 for the epilepsy program, while commissioners Bob French and William Kirchhoff voted against it.

While there were several persons speaking in favor of the epilepsy program, no one was present representing the school board.

The epilepsy program had been given low priority by the Prime Sponsor Advisory Committee and county staff because of the ration of staff to number of participants.

It was pointed out that the epilepsy patients are given transportation to the center in Orange County and receive the benefit of staff and facilities partially funded by other counties.

Merle Evanchyk, executive director of the Epilepsy Association, said the program provides positive placement in jobs or college for a segment of the population not served by other agencies. The program has a 86 percent success rate in job placement, he said.

Several epileptics who have benefited from the testing, counseling and training provided by the program, made an emotional and sometimes tearful appeal to the commission to renew the funding.

One young epileptic woman said : "It is better to go through the program and get skills than stay home and draw Social Security, which we are eligible for."

Walter Wilson, another patient in the program, said most epileptics do not have driver's licenses because the state law requires them to go for five years without seizures to obtain a license. He said there is no program in the United States exactly like this one and "people down here should be proud."

Because of the program, Wilson, at 27, was able to live alone for the first time and cook and budget for himself.

Those funded under CETA Titles II-B, II-D, IV, VI and VII were Seminole Community College for five classroom training programs; the Seminole County School Board for a career employment service and an in-school work experience program; Florida State Employment Service for three on-the-job training programs and Seminole County Mental Health for a sheltered workshop.— JANE CASSELBERRY

CRIMEWATCH

Reward Offered In Homocide

Special to the Herald

At approximately 12:30 p.m. July 10, 1980, the Seminole County Sheriff's Office received a call concerning a murder victim.

It seems that Jeff Mazzula had tried to telephone his sister, Verlleen Mazzula, several times, and received no response. Jeff then drove to his sister's house at 2609 Holly, which is located near Howell Branch Road and State Road 436 in Seminole County. After knocking on the door several times, Jeff found an open window to his sister's duplex and entered her residence.

There he found Verlleen's body lying on the living room floor, an apparent victim of a single gunshot to the head. You may recall that the victim had recently testified in federal court concerning the passing of counterfeit money.

If you have any information concerning this homicide or any unsolved felony crime in the central Florida area, call Crimewatch at 849-2482. Outside the Orlando dialing area, dial the operator and ask for WX-2482. You may remain anonymous, and you may be eligible for a reward.

Los Angeles To Greet Satellite During 200th Anniversary

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Tom Van Sant thinks Los Angeles should be its own birthday cake, candles and all.

To help celebrate the city's 200th anniversary next year, Van Sant has begun work to set the city atwinkle with lights, and he is getting some official support.

If he succeeds, the residents won't get to see the spectacle — not directly — but then neither will anyone else. It would be visible only from space.

Mirrors set at precisely calculated angles throughout the city are to flash beams of reflected sunlight at a Landsat satellite as it passes over the city at an altitude of about 600 miles.

Van Sant knows that because he has already tested the concept. He and a dedicated band of 11 assistants, including five city surveyors, spent five days tromping through the sagebrush in the heat of the Mojave desert, placing 90 such mirrors on carefully angled supports.

NASA and the U.S. Geological Survey, which operates Landsat, helped by working out the exact angles needed to reflect sunlight at the satellite at just the moment its cameras blinked as it sped over California at 22,000 mph.

It worked.

Visible in the upper right hand corner of landsat photo E-30829-17421-5, below Shadow Mountain, about 90 miles north of Los Angeles, is what appears to be a giant eye, 1.4 miles across, peering back at the satellite.

The eye has a few barely visible flaws. Big desert jackrabbits hopped onto a few mirrors, cracking them.

Van Sant, a boyishly energetic environmental artist of 49 who is known for his spectacular kites, wants to set 3,000 mirrors throughout the Los Angeles area on a day next spring as part of the bicentennial celebration, all angled to flash simultaneously at the satellite as it photographs a 100 square mile area.

The plan calls for every school in the area, from grade school to university, to put out a mirror.

It has been endorsed by city school officials and the 200 Committee which is making bicentennial plans. It would cost $250,000, which Van Sant says he is confident the bicentennial organizers will get from the area's aerospace and other high technology companies.

The plan requires $75,000 worth of mirrors, protractors and levels, and some basic math skills to get the orientation correct.

The satellite photo "will symbolize Los Angeles at the end of its second century and the beginning of its third," said the 200 Committee's executive director, Jane Pisano.

"First, by showing the geography of Los Angeles from space, we see the past in geological terms. Second, by seeing how the population has settled the area, we see in a spatial way how the present day communities are inter-related. Third ... the project symbolizes man's relationship to space, and how better to give people a feeling of the future than to have them share the perspective of a space traveller."

Van Sant, who was asked to come up with something to commemorate the bicentennial, said he got the idea as he contemplated the fact that although fireworks are traditional for such festivities, "for 1,000 years, there has been no fundamental change in pyrotechnics.

"The Chinese have done everything we do on the 4th of July," and, he conceded, "the next phase of fireworks was economically and ecologically unfeasible — something like big rockets and huge explosions."

"So I thought I'd reverse the process — why not put the pyrotechnics on the ground and the people in the sky?"

Sanford, Florida — Friday, September 19, 1980

Patio or pool-side furniture has undergone quite a change from the folding aluminum chair days, but the new look, such as the molded PVC on which Altamonte Springs Linda Joyce is seated, may have some drawbacks or require special care the consumer should be aware of before buying.

Finding The Right Outdoor Furniture

At one time, people were satisfied to put out a couple of folding chairs when entertaining friends around the pool or patio, but with increased gasoline prices, people are entertaining more than ever at home. As a result, they are furnishing their pool and patio areas more like the inside of their homes except the furniture is weatherproof.

Rudy Hussian is the manager and buyer for Horizon Casual Furnishings in Longwood and he finds people are looking for outdoor furniture that reflects their own taste and sense of style.

Redwood, aluminum and wrought iron have long been used for outdoor furniture, he said, but there are several new materials gaining in popularity.

Instead of bare metal, many aluminum pieces now come in a variety of colors and, instead of folding, are welded into a one-piece unit. Better quality aluminum pieces are double-tube at stress points, said Hussian, but the customer usually does not know this unless pointed out to him by a reputable salesman. This type of construction may cost a little more but it will significantly extend the life of the furniture.

Furniture made of PVC (polyvinyl chloride) pipe is the latest inovation to hit the market, Hussian said, but he is not certain whether it is just a fad or not. "It looks different but it may not hold up."

While PVC is used in a variety of products, many furniture builders are not sure how long it will stand up to Florida sunlight.

Some PVC furniture is assembled with pipe fittings like a piece of plumbing, but newer pieces such as the table and chairs shown on the Leisure cover are being molded to resemble wood and bamboo.

Some PVC furniture is comparable in price to other materials, or may be slightly higher. Warranties vary. Some manufacturers will

High School Juniors Can Audition For Show

Channel 24, East Central Florida's Public Television Station, will audition high school juniors interested in hosting a regularly scheduled segment on a new public affairs program currently planned for fall.

The position available is to act as a liaison between Channel 24's viewing audience and the youth-high school community of East Central Florida. It will entail conducting televised interviews with guests of interest to young people, planning coverage segments and reporting on activities and events in which students would be interested.

To qualify for an audition, interested high school juniors must first write a 250-word or shorter essay on how television can address the issues of concern to Central Florida's youth. Essay submissions must accompany a recent photograph and brief resume, or description of recent academic and extracurricular interests and achievements.

They should be sent to the show's producer, Pat Kline, at Channel 24, 11316 East Colonial Drive, Orlando, Fl. 32817, by Oct. 10. Students will be selected to audition from among the entries received.

replace a piece up to one year, while others have no warranty at all. Hussian said many aluminum pieces come with a lifetime guarantee.

The webbing and cushions are other points the consumer should investigate before deciding on a particular style. "Suntan oil raises havoc with the vinyl straps," Hussian reported. "If it's not virgin vinyl, it will almost dissolve the material."

Many cushions look like they can be left out in all kinds of weather. The nylon polyester fabric covering the cushions is not bothered by water but the filling is another matter. Polyurethane synthetic foam is like a sponge. It will soak up water and take a week to dry, while polyester dacron will dry almost immediately. "If it is exposed to the weather," suggested Hussian, "make sure it is filled with dacron."

Director Believes In Speed

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — People who do both TV and movies know that TV films are produced at a faster pace. Some of them claim that's what's wrong with TV — too many compromises for the sake of speed and budget.

But Buzz Kulik sees it differently. He likes the speed of TV production. He calls himself "a child of television," but today he does both TV and features. His latest is the fast-moving movie starring Steve McQueen, "The Hunter," which he directed.

"The truth is," says Kulik, "that I really can't get used to the thythm of movie production. I remember when I did an episode of 'Climax' — live — every other week, and we were on a 55-week schedule.

"So I know what it is to work fast. I believe that motion pictures could be produced much faster. The trouble is that when any of us — myself included — gets on a feature film set, we automatically slow down."

He says "The Hunter" took 83 days to shoot; on the screen, it runs about two hours. A year or so ago, Kulik directed the TV miniseries, "I'Pom. Here to Eternity," which ran about six hours. That was three times longer than "The Hunter," yet it took him less time to film — some 50-odd days.

"I don't think RV production suffers because it is made fast," he says. "When I am doing a movie and have the extra time, I have to work hard to make it look as though I'm doing something.

"In reality, we all play games. I remember once years ago, working with Lee Garmes, he's dead now, but he was one of the top cameramen in Hollywood. He had a reputation for being very slow. We came in a day under budget and I asked him about his reputation for being slow.

"He said he could work faster, but when he did, the producers didn't think they were getting their money's worth. So he said he fiddled with the lights, and stalled for time. We all play those games on movie sets, even today."

One of the casualties of the actors' strike is the three-hour NBC movie about the Wall Street crash called "The Day the Bubble Burst." Production was halted by the strike, with the film only half done.

Everybody is hurt by the strike, but actors like Torill are hurt most. She is pretty much an unknown here, although big in her native Norway. And she was hoping that "The Day the Bubble Burst" might have changed that. Now she will just have to wait until the thing is finished, if that day ever comes.

Torill is a lovely blonde singer who had left Norway to carve out a pretty good career in Europe — particularly, for some reason, in East Germany — as a singer. But then she got married and her husband said he wanted her to quit singing. Dutifully, she quit. She helped her husband in his travel agency in Grimstad, a Norwegian coastal resort, for four years. When the marriage broke up, she took off for America to seek her fortune, as so many have done before her.

"I decided to go to either San Francisco or Peking, China," she says. "But I spoke English and no Chinese, so I decided on San Francisco."

She got a job with a San Francisco nightclub, and from that start has been branching out gradually. As part of her act, she did some of Marlene Dietrich's numbers — there is a strong resemblance between the two women — and that was what attracted the people who were producing "The Day the Bubble Burst."

The part of Marlene Dietrich is an integral factor in that script. So Torill was hired, and she has already finished her part in the film. She imitates Dietrich in "The Blue Angel," perhaps the German entertainer's most famous role.

Torill is naturally frustrated because the film's premiere has been delayed. She has had some offers already on the strength of that part — a film in Australia, for one thing — but had hoped for more.

She'll just have to wait. So will we.

Jerry Lewis Unhappy With Movie Business

Jerry Lewis is unhappy with the movie business. In a piece titled "Jerry's Revenge" in a recent issue of Los Angeles magazine, Lewis' reply to writer Merrill Shindler's question — "After making 40 films in 20 years, why did you stop 10 years ago?" — is as follows:

"I didn't want to contribute any of my time, talent or energy to the garbage that was coming out. I was badly burned that last year. In 1970 they started to double-bill my work with 'Deep Throat,' and I said, 'Forget it!' I'm not knocking pornography, but don't put it with my work.

It doesn't make any sense. I remember waking up the day I found out I had been double-billed with 'Deep Throat,' and I had to make a very important decision: either to find the man who did that and kill him or deal with it sensibly. I got so turned off ... I was in the middle of some very heavy negotiations with 20th Century-Fox on a long eight-picture deal ... and I told them to shove it.

"I didn't want any part of anything. I was so down on the film business that I didn't go to the movies. So in answer to your question, I waited until they cleaned house. Everything in this business is a cycle; I figured I'd come back when they'd cleansed the cycle. I think it's about ready."

David Frost Spends Few Days Alone

By CINDY ADAMS

NEW YORK — David Frost, who rarely travels light — that is, without a woman along — checked into Miami's Eden Roc Hotel alone. Two days of suntan and bad rest later, he flew to London — Cathy Lee Crosby is putting together a cafe act to take a shot at Vegas — Singer Sylvia Syms is teaching a quickie course on music at Northwood Performing Arts Institute in Dallas.

Dorothy Stickney willed all her possessions, collections, memorabilia, scrapbooks, etc., etc., to the Museum of The City of New York — should the time ever come — Dorothy Loudon ("Sweeney Todd," Tony winner for "Annie") surprises me — not in terms of her success but in terms of her transportation. One day I saw her swishing through town in a battleship-size chaffeured limo. The next day I saw her waiting for a bus on Central Park West.

Phyllis Diller: "Everybody says I'm a beautiful person inside. Leave it to me to be born inside out!" — The American public regested their swashbuckling hero, Errol Flynn, being called a Nazi spy. The much-bellyhooed book didn't sell —

Farrah Fawcett is still as demanding as though she were running hot. Demands studios give her a round-the-clock limo and, on location, a portable jacuzzi — Barbar Stanwyck's TV pilot for a sitcom series will probably only be shown at the Smithsonian on account of it seems that Madison Avenue gave it the thanks-but-no-thanks treatment.

Gene Kelly: "The most dedicated actor I know is Frank Sinatra. When we worked together he'd rehearse from dawn to dusk. He'd never stop even though he was drenched with perspiration until he got those dance steps right even though he knew most of it wouldn't reach the finished movie" — Barbra Streisand: "People print lies about me because I demand 50 takes to get a scene right. I'm called difficult to work with. I'm not. I'd just a perfectionist" — Angie Dickinson would like her face a little larger; "Mine's so small there isn't enough space on which to go to work with artistic makeup."

Cronies are lining up on both sides of Mr. & Mrs. Sylvester Stallone, taking bets on how long they continue to share their Ella'n Hers towels. Word is ely Sly will be on the slink again. Seems he has a hobby; it's called Other Women.

Ever since he came off the moon, astronaut Neil Armstrong wants his feet on the ground. No publicity. He lectured on the campus of Illinois University but allowed no press. They showed up and he ducked out — John Ritter tossed a party to celebrate the fact that he is no longer referred to as Tex Ritter's son. Fact is, the newest crop of fans yarn, "Tex who?"

'Women's Room' Top-Rated Show

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The Women's Room" was the most watched program on network television last week, which was a victory for women's lib, a swipe at the male ego and a warning to networks that audiences won't watch reruns indefinitely.

It also was a lucky break for the Carter-Mondale campaign.

ABC beat its rivals in the Nielsen ratings decisively for the week ending Sept. 14, in what should have been the first week of its new season. CBS and NBC did not plan to begin their new schedules until Sept. 15, even before the Hollywood actors' strike put new series programming on hold.

The televised version of Marilyn French's novel captured 45 percent of the viewing audience. Considering the feminist, antimale slant to the show, it suggests the audience drew largely from women in the 18-49 age group. That's the audience advertisers are most anxious to reach.

The pulling power of "The Women's Room" proved a bonanza for the Carter-Mondale ad campaign, which had a four-minute commercial tagged onto the end of the show. "The Women's Room" coattails helped Carter-Mondale draw 30 percent of the viewing audience into watching its paid political ad.

The Carter-Mondale ad buyers also struck it rich by coattailing part one of ABC's "Pearl" mini-series repeat, again walking away with 30 percent of the audience. Ed Clark, the Libertarian candidate, tagged onto CBS's "Anatomy of a Seduction" Tuesday night for a 28 percent share of the audience.

The best Reagan-Bush could do was tag onto the third episode of ABC's "Pearl" for a 27 percent share of the audience, and Reagan-Bush suffered a disaster with a fiveminute spot on NBC following "A Man Called Sloane." Only 14 percent of the audience watched.

"The Women's Room," a controversial show bolstered by star names and performances in Lee Remick, Colleen Dewhurst and Patty Duke Astin, played against a solid schedule of reruns on its rival networks. Possibly the natives are getting restless about repeats.

The audience certainly was enthusiastic about NBC's "Shogun," and that audience was swelled — if only slightly — by the efforts of Japanese diplomats in New York.

One NBC executive received a call Tuesday from Hiroshi Ota of the Japanese Embassy, who said he and other members of the embassy were holding "Shogun" viewing parties for American friends. By the end of the first evening, the Americans were saying "domo" before departing, which "Shogun" viewers know means thank you.

The 10 top-rating network television programs for the week ending Sept. 14, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co., were:

1: "The Women's Room" (ABC); 2: Three's Company (ABC); 3: NFL Monday Night Football (ABC); 4: That's Incredible (ABC); 5: Dallas (CBS); 6: Laverne & Shirley (ABC); 7: M-A-S-H (CBS); 8: "Pearl" part 1 (ABC); 9: (tie) 60 Minutes and The Jeffersons (both CBS).

Fred Silverman Clowns About NBC's Bad Luck

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — NBC Chief Fred Silverman says the network's luck has been so bad that if the popular "Dallas" soap opera were an NBC program, whoever shot J.R. would have missed.

Silverman, speaking recently to the Hollywood Radio and Television Society, also said NBC suffered through both the American boycott of the Moscow Olympic Games and the actors' boycott of the Emmy Awards.

"But I'll tell you something," Silverman said. "I'm not going to get burned on the World Series like I did with the Olympics and the Emmys. I'm going to cancel the World Series before anything can happen to it."

J.R. Ewing, the main character in "Dallas," was shot by an unknown assailant in the last episode of the series about life of a Texas oil tycoon.

Young Poets

These poems are by elementary schoolers from Seminole County. They resulted from the Florida Poetry In the Schools program. These pupils are taught by poet Bob Wishoff of Oviedo. Pupils are generally provided with a theme, but are not told what they should write.

The Elephant

An elephant is so big and fat,
If he stepped on you,
You would go flat.
When he walks in the jungle,
He makes everyone tumble.
He likes the water nice and cool.

Paul

I wish I had a shirt that was a refrigerator that had candy pickles and steak.
I wish I had a chair that could make me fly and could turn into a little car and no one would know about it.

Norman Hansen

The Sun

The sun is bright,
The sun is dark.
Sun oh sun, what are you?
People say you are fire,
But I think you're a planet.
You give light at day
But not at night.
I think that people are scared of you,
But I'm not.
If you're alive
Will you come see us?
Please sun oh sun
The kids would be happy

Viewers Like Young Stars Of '3-2-1'

Liz Moses, Leon W. Grant and Ginny Ortiz, the three young co-hosts of "3-2-1 Contact," logged more than 30,000 miles visiting scientists at work.

"Dear Marc, I wonder if you were scared when you petted the bee?"

"Dear Lisa, When you flew in the balloon, it must have been fun. Was it pretty up there? I felt just like I was in a balloon."

"Dear Trini, I liked it when you thought you found a fossil, but it was only a horse bone."

For millions of viewers, the three young hosts of PBS's "3-2-1 Contact" have become much more than television heroes. Viewer reaction indicates that using real youngsters rather than adult hosts has made the series about science and technology come alive for children.

And at least one prominent scientist believes that this approach to teaching science may help to reverse some of the negative feeling about the subject.

In all of their travels across 22 states filming 70 short documentary stories for the daily series, the program's hosts — Leon W. Grant (Marc), Liz Moses (Lisa) and Ginny Ortiz (Trini) — were aware of their roles as surrogates for their audience. "The questions we asked were the kinds of things that an average kid would want answered," said Ginny. "We wanted to be like standins for the kids, really make them feel they were there with us."

"We also got to try out a lot of things that kids would want to try for themselves, like surfing, snorkeling and ballooning," Leon notes. He admits that like many in his audience, he had seen little relation between these activities and science until his travels for the program.

"Take riding in a roller coaster (a scene in an early episode of the series). At first I didn't realize where the science was, but there's a lot of physics involved."

"And who would think about ice skating involving science?" chimes in Liz Moses. "Yet it is knowing how to use natural forces that makes you able to use your body to make spins and turns. The children watching learn with us just how much science is involved in everything we do."

It is this surprise about discovery that a youngster needs to stimulate his or her own curiosity, believes Roger R. Johnson, science education professor at the University of Minnesota.

Lack of teacher enthusiasm is a major factor, Johnson says, observing that even 9-year-olds feel this lack. "When asked if their teachers really liked science, 60 percent answered, 'I don't know.'"

Part of the reason may be the teacher's own lack of knowledge, he feels. "Too many teachers think they should know all the answers. When students ask why the sky is usually a paler blue in winter, the teacher should admit that he or she doesn't know and suggest that they all check out some books or call a physics professor."

Johnson likes the way this show finds answers. "The teen-agers help with dolphin sonar experiments, see the giant whirlpools in the Bay of Fundy and travel 30,000 miles before the series is over. It's interesting that they don't visit a science class. They do what television does best—take you where you couldn't go yourself. Other segments show the trio figuring things out — why a doorbell won't ring in a vacuum, for example. It's nice to hear the word 'why' again."

Just how real Marc, Lisa and Trini have become to their audience can be seen from the number of non-scientific questions they receive, about such things as their birthdates, ages and favorite colors. Grant, Ms. Ortiz and Ms. Moses have been invited to a seventh birthday party in Stillwater, Okla., a home-cooked meal in Holliston, Mass., a Sunday outing on a New England farm and a summer vacation in North Carolina. One admirer in Portland, Ore., wrote to Liz with a personal request: "I am 9 and I always wanted an older sister and I was wondering if you'd be my sister for pretend."

"Where weight control is more than just a diet"

Director Glum About Future Of Films

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — Tony Bill is directing films at a time when he believes the movies may be on the road to obscurity.

Bill, who began as an actor and then moseyed over into the production end of the business, started off with a bang by doing, "The Sting," as his third picture. Now he has directed, "My Bodyguard," the little gem that has garnered great reviews and is destined to make everybody bundles of money.

Bill knows the movie business, and he is bearish about its future, as well as its present. Even the immediate past wasn't so hot.

"I think the quality of film has been going down for years," he says. "This summer, it has sunk very low."

The root cause of the decline, like the root cause of almost everything except stomach trouble, is economic. Dollars and cents have combined to build a climate for filmmakers that is not healthy, says Bill, and he sees a bleak future for motion pictures.

"I think more and more movie theaters will close," he says, "and they will be replaced by what I call 'presentation houses.' They will show the occasional big 70mm extravaganza and have rock concerts and things like that.

"But movie theaters, as we've known them, will be a thing of the past. The Hollywood film industry will only make those infrequent extravaganzas, plus grinding out low-budget feature films for export."

The only glint of sunshine on his gloomy horizon is cable TV, already becoming a force in the industry. Bill says that "ancillary sales" — sales of film to cable and network television, syndication and airlines — can make a movie break even before a single ticket has been sold at the box office.

"Even a little thing like the sale to airlines," he says, "can be significant. That can amount to a half-million."

Bill believes that, now that he has his feet wet in the directorial pool, he will do more directing. The "My Bodyguard" experience was pleasant all the way through.

Bill has always had a penchant for going with untried people as his writers.

David Ward was unknown when he wrote "The Sting" for Bill. "My Bodyguard" was a repeat of the same story. That script was written by a young writer named Alan Ormsby, who was in Bill's class at Sherwood Oaks Experimental College. Bill read the script and liked it.

"I called him up," he remembers, "and I said, 'Alan, I'm going to say something I've never said before. Somehow, I'm going to make your script into a movie!'"

And, somehow, he did. He had help (and money) from executive producer Melvin Simon, and he assembled a fine cast. Most of the actors were unknown, too, although there are roles for veterans like Ruth Gordon, John Houseman and the emerging Martin Mull.

"Casting the youngsters was hard," says Bill. "I prefer fresh faces. Most of the cast had never acted professionally before. One of my stars — Adam Baldwin, who plays the big brute — is really miscast. He's too nice looking to be a brute."

Bill says he wanted to find a brutish-looking young man who was sensitive underneath. But, he says, he found that all the brutish-looking young men he interviewed were brutish underneath, too.

Bill, you will be happy to learn, has not totally abandoned his acting career.

During the last several years, as he produced, he acted from time to time. He had a nice part in "Shampoo" and another in the TV mini-series, "Behind Closed Doors."

"I'll do more producing and more directing," he says, "and I will probably do some acting from time to time, too. For me, acting has become like a paid vacation."

No. 1 Song Gives Singer 'Respect'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Randy Owen of the country group Alabama gets a lot more respect from his in-laws now that he's come out with a No. 1 song.

He's getting so much attention from relatives and friends that he has to leave his quaint farm in Alabama for the North Carolina mountains to find peace and quiet to write more songs.

"It's getting harder to write," says Owen, who penned the group's biggest hit, "Tennessee River." "Now I don't have those hours and hours I did before our group made it.

"I'm getting very little peace and quiet these days. Now my kinfolks and friends that weren't crazy about me, now they really like me," he says, "I don't mean that facetiously. That's really the truth. I can't get on my tractor and drive around without someone wanting to talk to me."

But Owen, a husky singer with a thick black beard and mustache and hair that touches his shoulders, is not complaining about the attention. He says he and the other members of the group — Jeff Cook, Teddy Gentry and Mark Herndon — have been waiting for recognition for nine years.

"It's quite easier at home now," he says. "My wife says that it's all been worthwhile. She can tell her folks, 'Hey look, this long-haired guy I married, hey, he's being successful.' I've got some credibility with the in-laws now."

Owen, Cook and Gentry are cousins who grew up in the rural area of Fort Payne, Ala. They have been kicking around together for most of their lives, playing southern honky tonks, high school dances and even discos to put food on the table for their families and still have enough to travel to the next small city for a performance.

"We'd be in one real redneck country place one night and the next night we'd be in a sophisticated disco," Owen says. "We would survive discos. I believe it is very necessary for a group just getting started to be flat flexible.

"My first goal was just to be able to make a living playing music. My next goal was to have a hit record by the time I was 30. We achieved that, just when I became 30," Owen says. "Now my goal is to have a No. 1 album."

Alabama first cracked the national music scene with the song, "My Home's In Alabama." Then came "Tennessee River," which provided Owen with enough money that he doesn't have to worry about money for a while.

But he and the band were concerned about falling into a musical trench.

"We are trying right off to get away from the stale songs and the river songs. We've gotten about 400 river songs pitched to us," Owen said.

"Some are pretty good but we don't want to do the Ohio River, The Tennessee River, the Little River, the Potomac River. Then we would have to start doing state songs. We could do all 50," Owen chuckles.

So, the band is coming out with another album, and Owen warns there will be no "My Home's In Kentucky", or "The Mississippi River."

"I have to tell you I don't have another 'My Home's In Alabama' written right now," he says. "If people grade the next album on whether we have another song like that, they'll be disappointed because it won't be there.

"If they grade us on being able to come up with something that's good — being able to change — then I think the next album will be better than the first."

Whether or not the group achieves the same success with the next album they did with the first, Owen says he'll never forget the feeling of achieving his "ultimate dream."

"My dream has always been to write a song that becomes a big enough hit that people in the audience will know the words," Owen says. "We found out they know the words. That's the ultimate, when people come to see you instead of to drink a beer."

They Also Ran: Valiant 3rd Party Bids For Presidency

By DAVID M. MAXFIELD
Smithsonian News Service

John Anderson's independent bid for the White House places him in the company of a long line of presidential contenders dating back to 1832 who compaigned outside the two-party system. Though many of these politicians achieved considerable sway over the course of American history, few of them — very few — were successful at the polls.

The name James B. Weaver hardly springs to mind today, but in the 1892 presidential contest, he campaigned against the gilded grip that many felt Eastern bankers and industrialists then held on the nation's economy. A general in the Union Army during the Civil War, Weaver was a popular figure whose platform and influence during the election sparked wide interest for the first time in an agenda of progressive reforms. And yet, Weaver, a Populist, came in third place with 9 percent of the vote, losing to the Democratic candidate, Grover Cleveland.

More recently, of course, George Wallace captured the attention of the press and voters with his "common man" themes, but he, too, fared no better than third with 14 percent of the 1968 popular vote.

Teddy Roosevelt's colorful "Bull Moose" campaign of 1912 shaped the outcome of that election, won by Woodrow Wilson.

"With rare exceptions, third-party and independent candidates have been irrelevant to the outcome of presidential elections," according to Frederick S. Voss, a historian at the Smithsonian's National Portrait Gallery and a contributor to "Every Four Years," a new book about the presidency. "But they still keep on running," Voss says, "some simply as a lark and others in dead earnest."

Perhaps what motivates the also-rans are, in fact, those rare exceptions. The Republican party, the party Anderson sidestepped to run on his own this year, is after all "the greatest success story in the history of American third parties," Voss points out.

Founded in 1854 in a rural Wisconsin church by dissatisfied Whigs and Democrats, the Republicans by the election of 1856 had become a major party on the strength of their anti-slavery platform. And just four years later, the Republicans attained the dream of all minor parties — the election of a president, no less than Abraham Lincoln.

In the 1884 election, some historians say, a Prohibitionist candidate was one of the decisive forces in electing the Democratic nominee. This is what happened: in pivotal New York state, John Pierce St. John (the Prohibitionist) tallied 25,016 votes — largely drawn from Republican ranks. In so doing, he took just enough support away from the GOP's controversial nominee, James G. Blaine, to tip the Empire state and ultimately the presidency to Cleveland.

One other rare case: Teddy Roosevelt's 1912 "Bull Moose" campaign against his old political protege, William Howard Taft, proved a far cry from the usual third-party effort. Roosevelt, who had come to view Taft as a traitor to the Republican progressive spirit, actually outpolled Taft but not the Democratic nominee Woodrow Wilson, who entered the White House with a vote total less than the combined tally of the two old political allies, 6.3 million votes to 7.6 million.

Whatever the future holds, the past intticates that the numbers, influence and votedrawing power of minor party candidates tends to rise and fall with fluctuations in the nation's economy and security. "In times of stress and ferment, minor parties emerge and flourish," Vos says. Weaver's widely supported 1892 crusade against the excesses of the Gilded Age, for example, contrasts with the 1928 election, a time of prosperity when the six minor-party candidates won a combined total of only 2 percent of the vote.

"The sudden collapse of euphoria after 1929 and the subsequent onset of the national Depression, however, brought a resurgence in the fortunes of minor parties," Voss points out, "in 1932 — even while Franklin Roosevelt pushed on to resounding victory — third, fourth and fifth party candidates had once again found an audience."

They have continued strong ever since, and with the complexity of U.S. issues and problems growing each year, Voss predicts that "they will run in ever-greater numbers." In 1980, The Federal Election Commission reports, 32 candidates are registered as presidential contenders under federal law requiring that each raise or spend at least $5,000. Among them are Socialist, Communist, Independent and Libertarian candidates. Besides these hopefuls, there are dozens of other would-be White House occupants who need not register because of the limited scope of their campaigns. (Some candidates actually have no dream of winning; they run to educate the public about their views.)

But the story of the also-rans is not all trends and statistics. It cuts across some rather colorful characters in American history, including one William Wirt, who in 1832 became the nation's first third-party candidate, in the modern sense of the term.

Although not truly interested in seeking elective office, Wirt nevertheless accepted the nomination of the Anti-Masonic Party that year because of his deep-seated antipathy to Andrew Jackson, whom he considered a demagogue and despot. But Wirt never managed to get out and campaign, admitting that he had none of the "captivating arts and manners of professional seekers of popularity." He even tried to withdraw from the race when the National Republicans refused to back him and nominated, instead, Henry Clay, but the Anti-Masons persuaded Wirt to at least stay on the ballot.

With anti-Jackson vote split between himself and Clay, the first third party candidate was bitterly disappointed over "Old Hickory's" election...and also relieved that his venture into presidential politics was over. "A culprit pardoned at the gallows," he later said, "could not have been more light-hearted."

The first woman to run for the White House — Victoria Woodhull — mounted what must be one of the most bizarre campaigns in U.S. election year history. No proper Victorian lady she, Woodhull outlined her principles to a New York audience in 1871, calling not only for the franchise for women, Voss says, but something considerably more radical. "Yes, I am a free lover," she told her audience, declaring it her "inalienable constitutional right" to love whom she may, when she may, and "to change that love every day" if she so pleased.

Compared to Victoria Woodhull, who eventually left the States to marry an English banker, the next woman to seek the presidency, Belva Ann Lockwood, seemed prim and retiring. Adept at circumventing academic and professional barriers standing in the way of women in the 19th century, Lockwood, a lawyer, entered that already interesting 1884 campaign against Cleveland, Blaine and St. John. Nominated by the National Equal Rights Party, she viewed her candidacy as a means of publicizing the feminist cause. Ignoring Blaine altogether, Lockwood quipped that the real contest was between herself and Cleveland. The results? Cleveland, 4,874,986. Blaine, 4,851,981. Lockwood, 4,149.

Then there were the 20th-centruy campaigns of Socialist Eugene Debs: he threw his hat in the ring five times. Unlike Wirt's earlier campaign, Debs ran vigorously each election year, although he knew, according to Voss, that he stood little chance of winning. His goal was to edgucate the public, but if he never did succeed in placing socialism in the mainstream of American politics, Debs certainly added a curious chapter to election lore.

Sentenced to prison in 1918 for his anti-war speeches, Debs ran his campaign from the jail cell. "And so," Voss notes, "American voters faced the novel choice of casting their lot with a convict. Amazingly enough, nearly 1 million of them did."

WORLD IN BRIEF

Iranian Parliament Members To Visit Occupied Embassy

Members of Iran's parliament will visit the occupied U.S. Embassy on Monday to examine alleged evidence of American crimes, the Moslem militants holding the U.S. hostages said.

But there was no word Saturday on whether the deputies will meet with any of the 52 hostages, now in their 322nd day of captivity.

The militants said after the failed U.S. effort to rescue the hostages April 25 most of the Americans were dispersed to other cities to prevent another attempt to free them.

The Majlis, or parliament, is charged wit deciding the fate of the hostages, and many deputies in debate this week called for them to be put on trial as spies and executed if convicted.

British Deny Ulster Plot

LONDON (UPI) — The government today denied a report Britain is grooming Protestant extremist Ian Paisley to lead an independent Northern Ireland that would be free to make peace with the Irish Republic.

"In a remarkable policy about-face, the British government is grooming The Rev. Ian Paisley as the future leader of a breakaway Ulster which would make its own constitutional arrangements with the Irish Republic," a report in London's Daily Mail newspaper said.

U.S. Eyes Troops Near Poland

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is carefully monitoring what appears to be a significant buildup of Soviet troops near Poland's eastern and western borders.

Secretary of State Edmund Muskie said Friday "it would be wise not to overlook" the possibility the buildup is connected with Polish political developments.

A State Department official said the buildup, first noticed about three days ago seems to be connected with normal fall maneuvers of the Warsaw Pact in Eastern Europe. The official said the Soviets may be using their normal fall exercises to remind Polish dissidents of the continuing presence of Soviet military power on their borders.

However, other sources said the buildup is different from the usual autumn pattern, involving supplies and lines of communications that appear to be aimed at Poland.

Cuban , Partner Dock

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Cuban cosmonaut and his Russian partner docked their Soyuz-38 space capsule with the orbiting Salyut-6 laboratory 200 miles above the Earth, Radio Moscow reported today.

The arriving spacemen were Cuban Arnaldo Tamayo Mendez, who holds the rank of lieutenant colonel, and the Russian who is commander of the Soyuz-38 mission, Col. Yuri Romanenko.

Radio Moscow beamed a broadcast to Cuba and the rest of North America announcing the successful linkup.

"The Soyuz crew has boarded the Salyut station, where they were welcomed by Leonid Popov and Valery Ryumin," the Soviet radio said in an English-language newscast monitored in Moscow.

Jury Indicts 12 On Drug Charges

By DIANE PETRYK
Herald Staff Writer

Twelve men arrested in Sanford Aug. 21 were indicted by a federal grand jury in Orlando Thursday on charges of conspiring to possess with intent to disbrute marijuana in violation of the federal laws pertaining to controlled substances, said United States Attorney Gary L. Betz.

Betz, U.S. attorney for the middle district of Florida, said the defendants named in the felony indictments are:

David Nathaniel Wainer, 34, of Ft. Lauderdale, Kenneth Logan Craig, 32, of Ft. Lauderdale, Robert Allen Karley 32, of Lauderdale by The Sea, James Willis Frankum, 26, of Chicago, Ill., Joseph Scott Laing 31, of Worcester, Pa., William Joseph Purvis, 26, of Pensacola, James Ray Rotenberry, 29, of Pensacola, Kenneth Charles Young 26, of Chicago, Gary Anthony Gianni, 23, of Deerfield Beach, Fla, Joseph Mike Giardine, 23, of Deerfield Beach, James Robert Ham, 29, of Sunrise, Fla., and Richard Loren Holland, 37, of Sunrise.

The men were arrested in Seminole County in the vicinity of the Holiday Inn at State Road 46 and Interstate 4 by agents of the Drug Enforcement Administration and the U.S. Department of Justice and deputies from the Seminole County Sheriff's Department. At least one man was arrested at the Inn and several more in the streets around it, agents said.

The officers seized eight automobiles and approximately $281,000 in cash, a ton of marijuana and eight guns.

Rezoning Near Hidden Lake Tabled

Three of five items on the agenda at the Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission meeting Thursday night were tabled.

Requests for a change in zoning on the borders of both Sanora and Hidden Lake developments were tabled after residents from those areas registered protests.

Cardinal Industries requested a change in zoning from planned unit development to general commercial, apartments and single family homes. Commission members objected to the proposal to build homes containing 700 square feet in that area.

The request for a zoning change was tabled.

At the same meeting, A.B. Peterson Jr. requested a change of zoning at property north and south of Airport Boulevard at Hidden Lake, from planned unit development to single-family homes, mobile homes, apartments and commercial.

Peterson said the owners wish to redevelop their plan for the south side of the road. On the north side they are planning a 30-to 40-acre mobile home park, some general commercial and some apartment zoning.

A number of Hidden Lake residents objected to the single-family homes, proposed to contain 1,300 square feet. They also didn't want businesses or apartments at the entrance-way to their development.

The board approved rezoning from planned unit development to mobile homes, apartments and general commercial at Americana Carriage Cove. A 1½ acre parcel fronting County Road 427 was approved for commercial zoning.

The commission granted the request of a property owner for a sideyard setback between lots 68 and 69, Ramblewood, Unit 1, to save an oak tree.

The commission tabled a request for consideration of a site plan for six duplexes on lots 5 through 10, Block 9 of Dreamwold, located on the east side of Lake Avenue, south of 24th Place. The board requested a better site plan be submitted.

Seminole Allocates Nearly $2 Million For CETA Projects

By DIANE PETRYK
Herald Staff Writer

Almost $2 million in federal funds has been allocated by Seminole County to six local agencies to provide jobs under the 1980-81 Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

Seminole County Senior Manpower Planner Gary Earl said the Seminole County Commission approved:

—$44,160 for Sanford Child Development Inc. to hire six teacher aides for pre-school children.

—$1,205,782 for Seminole Community College for three basic programs that would serve 790 students. The programs are designed to provide both occupational skill training and other support such as high school equivalency diplomas and the teaching of English as a second language.

—$333,704 for the Florida State Employment Service to provide on-the-job training for 210 clients. During the training period with private employers, CETA reimburses employers 50 percent of the employees base wage.

—$245,511 for the Seminole County School Board to provide an in-school training program for about 96 youths and 80 jobs under a youth employment training program.

—$180,702 to the Seminole County Mental Health Center to provide work experience in a sheltered workshop for 66 persons with emotional or psychological disabilities.

NATION IN BRIEF

9 Injured As Explosion Rocks Chemical Plant

FITCHBURG, Mass. (UPI) — A powerful explosion that ripped through a chemical plant injuring at least nine people, two seriously, has forced about 3,000 residents to flee a cloud of volatile, toxic gas.

Firefighters labored through the early morning hours Saturday, to prevent two leaking tanks of polyvinyl chloride at the Great American Chemical Corp. from exploding, by pouring millions of gallons of water over them.

Heavily populated residential areas around the 4-acre plant were evacuated shortly after one of three tanks containing the chemical exploded about 9 p.m. Friday, ripping apart the top floor of the three-story brick structure.

Gas Leaks Hurt 80 Diners

HAMDEN, Conn. (UPI) — Gas leaks, at two restaurants on the same city block, that interrupted a wedding reception and slightly injured more than 80 people were unrelated, police said Saturday.

Most of the victims — none of whom were seriously injured — were overcome while eating dinner at a wedding reception Friday night at the Sleigh House on Dixwell-Avenue. Exhaust fumes leaked from a gas-fired water heater, causing nausea and fainting, authorities said.

Just as police declared a medical emergency under control, they were called to Jimmies Restaurant, further down Dixwell Avenue near the New Haven city line, on a report of a similar problem.

Somoza Burial In Miami

MIAMI (UPI) — Family and friends of Anastasio Somoza, the slain former ruler of Nicaragua, gathered Saturday under heavy security to bury him in the city where thousands of his henchmen and supporters fled when his reign was ended by rebels.

As dozens of mourners filed past his open coffin in a Coral Gables funeral home Friday, they wept and shouted and sang the Nicaraguan national anthem and the hymn of Somoza's Liberal Party, ousted last year by Sandinista rebels.

"Viva Somoza," several shouted. "Somoza, we will avenge your blood."

Author Mulls Oswald Appeal

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) — British author Michael Eddowes, supported by the wife of accused presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald, says he is considering appealing a judge's temporary injunction halting the opening of the Oswald grave to determine the identity of the body buried there.

Civil District Judge James Wright issued a temporary injunction Friday against Eddowes, 76, who had sought to have an autopsy performed on the corpse. The British author and lawyer hoped to prove or disprove his theory a Russian agent assumed Oswald's identity and killed President John F. Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

Students Find Dorms On Wheels

IRVINE, Calif. (UPI) — As the school year begins, college students across the nation are moving into dormitories, returning to the old frat or sorority house, or lining up roommates to share an apartment.

They drive their "dorms" to school and park for the year.

Since last fall, the school has had a trailer park and its 80 spaces were sold out immediately.

"The cost is the important thing. Where else could I have a place of my own for about $150 a month, with food and utilities? It would cost around $390 for the apartment alone around here.

"I bought a 21-foot trailer for $2,100. I paid half and my parents paid half."

The school charges students $80 a month to park a trailer or recreational vehicle in the 3-acre "Irvine Meadows West" and to hook up to electrical, telephone and sewer lines. There also is a community building with showers and toilets.

"It's definitely different," said Marty Van Voorhis, 19, a sophomore biology student who lives in the 19-foot, $9,500 trailer his parents lent him.

"It takes some getting used to, living on your own, buying your own food, fending for yourself. It's quieter than living in a dorm but that's good for studying.

"The community is close-knit. We have a meeting about every week to discuss what's going on, make rules, like where we can park our cars, things like that.

"And we're right on the campus, so we're part of the campus social life, in addition to our own community. We have our own parties. Sometimes we go from trailer to trailer, different food or something at each one.

UC-Irvine, in Orange County just south of Los Angeles, is only about 5 miles from the Pacific Beaches.

"We've had a lot of interest from other California campuses," said Vicki Freimann, associate director of student housing. She worked six years to get the park built, which required persuading the administration to take out a construction loan that is being repaid out of the rental fees.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: A freak windstorm drove hail "as big as hens' eggs" through a small community in northwestern Iowa and residents in the higher elevations of western Montana braced themselves for the first big snow of the year. A heavy snow warning was posted early today for the western mountains of Montana in elevations down to about 5,000 feet. Forecasters said as much as a foot of snow was expected to fall in the higher elevations.

Children For Sale

Thai Parents Lease Youngsters To Factories

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — The frightened children huddled on hard benches in open stalls around Bangkok railway station are on the market to be used as child labor.

They all look undernourished. Some are mentally retarded, judging from the eyes that show no awareness of anything around them.

The child workers comes from the drought-stricken provinces of northeastern Thailand. Their sisters and brothers are starving and any asset around the house that can be sold or leased out on contract must be sacrificed for the family.

"Do you want some workers?" shouted a women dressed up in a brightly colored outfit, grabbing a passerby's arm. "Boys or girls? How old do you want? They can do anything you want them to do, come with me and take a look."

Another man approached: "You better come with me, I have better workers to show you. How many do you want? What kind of factory you are running?"

According to a survey by the national statistics office, nearly 200,000 children between 11 and 18 years of age are working illegally in Thailand's factories. The number is increasing.

The survey said there are more than 3,000 factories in Bangkok alone employing children. Most factories that hire children produce candy, textiles, plastics, zinc sheets and iron rods. The working hours average 12 hours a day with no day of rest.

Most child laborers are leased out by their parents to factory agencies for 2,000-3,000 baht ($100-150) a year. The survey said 32.9 percent of children who work in factories need money to help their families, while 26.3 percent are forced by their parents to work and 23.4 percent are working because they have no money to continue school.

They are housed in decrepit attics, given two low-quality meals a day and kept locked up for fear they will escape.

Even with the poor working conditions, many are still better off than at home.

"Do you want to go home?" one 12-year-old girl factory worker was asked.

"No, at home we are always hungry. I want to work," she said.

"The problem stems from the parents themselves," a Labor Department official said. "They are so desperate, sometimes they bring their children down to the employment agencies themselves.

"Even a few thousand baht means something to them," the official said. "With their ignorance and poverty, they don't have anything to feed their children at home and believe that by sending them out the children are sure to get fed and clothed — and the parents also get some money."

From time to time, police raid illegal factories and rescue hundreds of children. The police send the waifs home, sometimes only to find later that their parents have sent them back to the sweatshops.

In July, police raided a weaving factory on an outskirts of Bangkok and rescued 15 12-year-old girls. They all looked underfed and some had skin diseases or had become crippled because of the heavy workload.

One girl from the provinces named Sunant said, "I lived with my grandmother after my parents died," she said. "One day, a woman approached my grandmother, and I was taken to work in Bangkok in this weaving factory."

Sunant said she and another 14 girls worked in that factory for about two years. They were not allowed to leave factory premises during the 5 a.m. to 9 p.m. working hours. At night, they slept in a locked room on the second floor of the factory and they were given only four baht (20 cents) per week for pocket money.

The 15 girls were sent to a child welfare house before being sent home.

A welfare department official said last year alone 227 young girls and many boys were sent to the house before being returned to their parents. Some of the children were repeaters — they had been rescued more than once but had been returned to the sweatshop by their parents.

Factory owners prefer to use children because they work for lower pay and can be intimidated, with threats, to work harder.

Thailand has a child labor law but it often ignored. Violators face a maximum fine of 20,000 baht ($1,000) or up to six months imprisonment.

But criminal charges are rarely filed against factory owners who are caught violating the law and the factories are often not closed down because they also give employment to some adults.

Labor department DirectorGeneral Charoen Siriphan recently said the department will soon crackdown on all factories that employ minors without meeting regulations on working conditions, kinds of labor and hours.

But Charoen said better law enforcement was only a small part of the solution to the mistreatment of children.

"The problem of child labor will remain unsolved as long as the government is unable to improve living conditions of the people, especially in the northeast where most child workers come from."

Americans Suddenly Discover Old Exercise: Walking

By United Press International

It is as if mankind suddenly discovered a physical capacity he's had for a million years or more. Everyone's talking about walking, writing about walking, and some — never before much beyond the easy chair — are taking up walking.

Call walking the nation's newest exercise craze.

Yet millions of words have been set down through the centuries about the joy and physical benefits of walking. Hippocrates called it "man's best medicine." Henry David Thoreau wrote that, "Two or three hours of walking will carry me to as strange a country as I ever expect to see."

Classical and early English literature seems to have been written largely by men who were prodigious walkers, and Ralph Waldo Emerson and Thoreau helped carry on the tradition in America.

Among U.S. presidents, the most-famous walkers included Jefferson, Lincoln and Truman. President Carter is better known as a jogger.

The walking cult has produced an outpouring in recent months and weeks of books on how to condition for walking, how much to walk, where to walk, what to wear, how walking conditions the body, the psychological benefits, who should avoid walking, and the advantages walking has over jogging and running for fitness.

There are far more walkers than any other types of exercisers. But po one seemed to pay them much mind until recently, although the current accent on fitness — through running, jogging, tennis, biking, swimming, et cetera — has stepped up the total numbers of people on the go physically.

For example, the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports reports that, "Other activities generate more conversation and media coverage, but none of them approaches walking in the number of participants... walking is an exercise for all ages.

"Approximately half of the 152 million American adults (18 and over) claim they exercise regularly and two of every three list walking as one of their activities.

"Nearly 35 million adults walk for exercise virtually every day and another 15 million do so two or three times a week."

The council says further that walking is the only exercise in which rate of participation does not decline in the middle and later years. In a recent national study, the highest percentage of walkers (39.4 percent) for any group was found among men 65 and older.

In fact, walking is becoming so much our lifestyle (the automobile and television set notwithstanding) that a couple of professors at the Pennsylvania College of Podiatric Medicine estimated the average American will walk in excess of 115,000 miles in a lifetime.

That's quite a jump over previous estimates of 65,000 to 70,000 miles, they said. The study, by Drs. James E. Bates, president of the Philadelphiabased college, and Gerald A. Gorecki, chairman of the department of podiatric medicine, involved 30 adults whose jobs ranged from sedentary to active. Pedometers recorded their walking for 30 consecutive days, showing an average of 4.3 miles covered daily.

Multiply by the current life span of 73.3 years and you get the 115,000-mile figures.

The researchers conceded there were limitations on their research but said walking studies are needed for "future occupational, socioeconomic and other data in relationship to factors of coronary disease, peripheral vascular disease and obesity."

The president's council says that walking, once dismissed as "too easy" to be taken seriously now has "new respect as a means of improving physical fitness... Done briskly on a regular schedule, it can improve the body's ability to consume oxygen during exertion, lower the resting heart rate, reduce blood pressure, increase the efficienty of the heart and lungs, and help burn excess calories.

Since obesity and high blood pressure are among the leading risks for heart attacks and stroke, walking offers protection against two of our major killers.

Fitness experts agree that walking takes longer to shed pounds than some of the more strenuous activities — jogging, running. But not as much longer as you might think.

One of their findings: jogging a mile in 8-½ minutes burns only 26 more calories than walking a mile in 12 minutes.

The conditioning effects of walking improve dramatically at speeds faster than 3 miles per hour (20 minute miles). At that rate, the collegians burned an average of 66 calories per mile. When they increased their pace to 5 miles an hour (12 minute miles) they used 124 calories per mile.

By way of comparison, they burned 164 calories per mile when running at 9 miles per hour.

Caloric consumption also varied with the weight of the walker, said Dr. Allen Douma, associate director of health education for the American Medical Association.

A pace of 3 miles per hour will consume 180 to 330 calories, varying with the weight of the person from 120 to 220 pounds. The president's council has a table of energy expenditure for a 150-pound person in various activities. Consumption is based on an hourly rate.

Moderate activity — where walking, bicycling, gardening, swimming, golf and bowling fall — ranges from 200 to 350 calories burned. Vigorous activity — tennis, fast cycling, running, for instance — consume from 420 to 900 calories. That 900 is at a running rate of 10 miles per hour.

AMA puts the matter of walking and weight loss another way: Walk an extra mile each day at a brisk clip and you'll take off 10 pounds in a single year, provided that your food (caloric) intake remains unchanged.

If you're impatient and that sounds like too slow a loss, expand your walking schedule. And while you're walking off the pounds and getting back into shape, consider how many years it took to put on those extra inches. Or more pleasantly, contemplate the scenery, as was Thoreau's wont.

I bought a pedometer when I launched my own walking schedule that ultimately, with my calculator on the caloric chart and a daily weigh-in, removed 25 pounds and a bunch of sedentary habits.

The program, under which I never felt better physically or mentally, also took off inches where they needed to be taken off. My walking schedule might be a little strenuous for some — I checked with my physician before stepping up the stepping, as it were.

The pedometer would show about 3 miles weekdays (to and from office and to appointments) and from 6 to 8 each Saturday and Sunday. I divided those longer walks into two sections.

The important thing I found — and the experts agree with me — is to make walking a daily and regular habit.

Contrary to a general opinion that exercise only stimulates the appetite so you eat more, and thus increase caloric intake, it does not. As a favorable starter, if you're out walking you are far from the vicinity of the refrigerator and the temptation to snack is removed.

Dr. Fred A. Stutman, who has done extensive research in the fields of exercise physiology and cardiac rehabilitation, says the theory that exercise enhances the appetite probably began with "people who spend their time eating taco chips in front of the television set."

But, says the doctor, animal and human studies show that regular exercise can actually decrease the appetite. It's been suggested that exercise regulates your appestat — the brain center that controls appetite. It redirects the blood flow away from the digestive tract. It stimulates muscle utilization of blood fats, instead of blood sugar.

Stutman, a former Air Force physician now practicing family medicine in Philadelphia, is author of one of the better guides to exercise — "The Doctor's Walking Book" (Ballantine Books, New York).

But there are dozens of others on the market, some of them not only "how to", but also guides to major walking attractions. If you would like a guide of your area, one of the best is "Walking Tours of America" developed by the Kinney Shoe Corp. and the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports. (Collier Books, New York). It breaks tours down regionally and by state.

Among the best sources also is that council.

"Three miles of brisk walking will accomplish the same thing as three miles of jogging," says C. Carson Conrad, the council's executive director.

It even provides a pamphlet showing some simple stretch, reach, bend and situp exercises for a pre-walk warmup.

Dr. Tutman gives these general tips:

—If you experience chest pain, excessive fatigue, dizziness, shortness of breath or pain and discomfort anywhere in your body, see your doctor immediately before you resume walking.

—Avoid walking immediately after meals. Give time for food to digest.

—Maintain proper weight.

—Avoid walking out of doors in extremes of cold or heat and when the humidity is high.

—Do not smoke, since carbon monoxide buildup decreases the delivery of oxygen to the tissues and nicotine narrows the blood vessels, further impairing the circulation.

—Walk at least every other day to maintain maximum physical conditioning.

—Limit your alcohol consumption since it has an adverse effect on the heart and on your capacity to exercise.

—Heart rate should not exceed 90-110 beats per minute (depending on your age — you might check your physician on this). But remember any walking program at any speed is beneficial.

—If you tire, stop and rest. Four 15-minute sessions or three 20-minute sessions daily are just as effective as a continuous one-hour walk.

Next time our lifestyle today is getting you down, go take a walk — an old-fashioned walk

Wide Variety Of Organizations Promote Walking

New HCA Hospital Closer To Reality

The Hospital Corporation of America and residents in Seminole and Southern Volusia counties received welcome news this past week when two administrative agencies gave the go-ahead to build a new hospital in Sanford.

The move is a big step toward improving health care in our area. Although some area hospitals may not be altogether pleased with the increased competition, there can be no doubt that a new hospital is needed. Seminole Memorial Hospital officials — and patrons of the current facility — can point to a number of deficiencies at the hospital:

— Operating rooms are too small. Doctors, nurses, patients and equipment are being squeezed — certainly an unhealthy situation.

— There is a shortage of treatment and examination rooms.

— The emergency room is often overcrowded.

— Various departments are not logically located.

— Patients' rooms are too small and bathrooms are not conveniently located from many rooms.

—The heating and cooling system is inadequate, occasionally resulting in discomfort for staff and patients.

— Because of a shortage of rooms, patients sometimes have to play the waiting game.

Of course, the hospital could be renovated. But such a move would make little sense. Hospital Administrator James Tesar estimates a savings of only $864,000 if renovation were chosen over a new facility. That would certainly be a case of being penny-wise and pound-foolish. Why settle for the limitation of an old structure when, for a relatively few more dollars, a truly outstanding facility can be constructed?

At the first hearing, an Orlando General Hospital representative objected to more beds for the new hospital, saying many Seminole doctors use his hospital and they were turned down for more beds. But the answer is simple: residents of Seminole County and our neighbors in Volusia County deserve an excellent hospital which will meet their needs for years to come.

Although there are a few more hurdles to jump, it looks like that's exactly what we're going to get.

Crisis In Turkey

There was nothing surprising about the recent military coup in Turkey. For months, the generals had hinted that a coup was a distinct possibility unless the country's civilian government could demonstrate progress toward reviving the sick Turkish economy and curbing sectarian violence and terrorism.

Try as it might, the government seemed helpless in the face of rampant inflation, high unemployment and political violence claiming 2,000 lives just since January. Finally, the army decided that enough was enough.

Washington usually deplores military coups directed against civilian governments. In Turkey's case, however, it would be well to withhold judgment.

The generals, led by army Chief of Staff Kenan Evren, obviously fear the possibility of an Iran-style convulsion that would tear Turkey apart and end a half-century of secular rule.

Such an event would be a disaster for Turkey, NATO and the United States. Turkey's strategic location and its half-million-member armed forces make it the linchpin of NATO's southern flank. Turkey bars direct Soviet access to the Middle East and limits Russian entry into the Mediterranean.

Accordingly, the Carter administration ought to continue its efforts to marshal international economic help for Turkey and to assure it of steadfast Western support in its time of undeniable crisis.

Around The Clock

By DORIS DIETRICH

The Daughters of the American Revolution have just completed the observance of Constitution Week.

These Daughters are real proud of their heritage and the organization is one of the oldest and most prestigious in the country.

On the local front; a group of lovely women make up the Sallie Harrison Chapter of the DAR. They have adhered to certain traditions and certain values that make them special and proud citizens. Yes, they hold a special place in history.

The Daughters' daughters will carry on until daughters run out — which may just happen in years to come.

Today's trends and lifestyles among the young marrieds is to remain childless. Many couples do not want the responsibility of parenthood with more and more women pushing the childbirth rate under.

Who was it that said the modern career wife preferred nursing a hangover at 2 a.m. to nursing a baby?

On the other hand, experts say most men would like to have a Jr. to carry on the family name — to say the least of having a fishing or ballgame partner.

Statistics show that over 50 percent of married women work outside the home — mostly of necessity.

But, more than 40 of every 100 adult women in the United States is single today — never married, separated, divorced or widowed.

And a lot of them like it that way, in a new lifestyle that has brought forth a new sociological category, the "stable single."

"The new, mostly urban-centered kind of single woman, whose primary interest is her personal and professional development, is a startling, unprecedented phenomenon," says sociologist Dr. James Bernard. "Throughout history women have never been like that."

What sets this new woman apart? She puts more value on her work than her social life. She sees marriage or a living-together arrangement as an option, not a necessity. And, according to Dr. Bernard, she is not likely to settle for a man who is less than everything she wants.

The "single stable" is apt to look with scorn on the singles bar as outmoded or even ridiculous. "You do not meet Renaissance men in singles bars," says Christina Schoonmaker, a New York advertising representative.

To sum it up, today's "single stable" is genuinely interested in her career, seems to be happy and therefore far more appealing to both sexes than one who is continually frustrated with her work. For her, motherhood is out.

So it looks like it's up to the other 60 percent of the women to make arrangements with the stork for our future citizens. Wonder how many of that percentage are unqualified?

Let's hope that women of the future will give birth to more than careers or it may be, "So long, daughters — and sons too."

Smoking Unfair To Workers?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Somehow I never thought of a butt can as being an unfair labor practice.

But in a case now pending before the National Labor Relations Board, the role of "smoking buckets" looms large.

Their legality depends, apparently, on the context in which the butt cans are placed at the disposal of the workers.

If an employer who previously had banned smoking on the job suddenly rescinded that rule and made butt cans available, you might think he was a real sweetheart of a guy and a prince among bosses.

But if this big-hearted gesture came during the midst of a union organizing drive, it might be construed as...well, let's pick up a copy of the NLRB hearing record and take it from the top."

The employer in question is Allen-Stone Boxes Inc. of Halls, Tenn., target of unfair labor practice charges filed by the United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers.

Part of the complaint alleged that at the time a union organizing campaign began, the company "had a rule which prohibited smoking during working time."

But a week or so before the workers were to vote on whether to form a bargaining union, "small smoking buckets were placed beside the machines of the employees and they were told they could smoke."

At a hearing conducted last year by NLRB administrative judge Henry Jalette, management indicated its motives in lifting the smoking ban were not entirely altruistic.

A company official testified that "the no-smoking rule had been ignored by the employees, by going to the restroom to smoke, to such an extent that productivity was affected."

The firm asked its fire insurance underwriter to permit the workers to smoke elsewhere and, by coincidence, he said, the request was granted shortly before the union election.

The union, however, looked at it differently. It argued that lifting the smoking ban "constitutes the grant of a special privilege whose purpose was to interfere with the employees' exercise of a free choice."

In his decision on the complaint, which has been appealed to the full board, Jalette sided with the union.

"In my judgment, it defies credulity to believe that the employees' disregard of the non-smoking rule was so blatant and extensive that it created a productivity problem, and that the only solution to the problem was to permit them to smoke," he wrote.

Neither, he added, could he believe "it was mere coincidence that approval from the owner was obtained so shortly before the election."

On this and other points, Jalette found the company guilty of unfair labor practices and ordered it to "cease and desist."

If the NLRB upholds his findings, the Allen-Stone butt cans presumably will be removed from the premises and the workers will be back sneaking puffs in the washroom.

Health Still A Problem

Black Americans seem to be getting sicker and healthier at the same time, according to "Health United States," a new publication of the Department of Health and Human Services (formerly Health, Education and Welfare).

We are healthier in the sense that the entire U.S. population — which includes some 23 million blacks — is healthier. The declines in smoking among teen-agers, in heart-disease mortality and in cancer mortality for those under 45 apply to blacks as well as whites.

But we are sicker when our health is compared with that of white Americans. When race is factored out in statistics on the delivery of health care or the incidence of disease, the American sniffle become black pneumonia.

For instance, the rate of births among U.S. teen-agers has been going down since 1972. That is a relief to parents and educators concerned with youthful sexuality.

But those rates remain much higher among black teen-agers than among white teen-agers — 34.2 vs. 10.9 births per thousand females between the ages of 10 and 17.

That is compounded by the fact that the black infant-mortality rate stands at 23.6 deaths per thousand, twice as high as the rate for whites.

Among U.S. ethnic groups, Asian-Americans were found to enjoy the highest incomes, the most education and the lowest death rates. These statistics will probably be altered by the latest influx of Asian immigrants, many of them penniless, illiterate and poor health.

As might be expected, black Americans have the lowest incomes, the least education and the highest death rates. (American Indians had been first in deaths in the 1950s and 1960s; by 1970, they had begun to die less quickly than blacks.)

One measure of accessibility to health services — such as doctors, hospitals and specialized treatment — is health-insurance coverage, whether through private plans, Medicare, Medicaid or the military. Blacks are more likely than Hispanics but less likely than whites to have any kind of medical insurance.

A black child is less likely to see a doctor than his white or Hispanic counterpart. That is not surprising given the few black physicians in the United States.

Blacks and Hispanics are five times more likely than whites to receive their medical treatment in hospital out-patient clinics or emergency rooms. "Within all major racial and ethnic groups," the report notes, "the poor use these facilities more often than the non-poor."

In 1900, a white baby boy could expect to live to age 46 and a white baby girl to age 48. But a non-white boy could only expect to live to age 32 and a non-white girl to age 33.

By 1977, a white boy's life expectancy had increased to 70 years and a white girl's to 77. But a non-white boy born in that year could only expect to live to age 64 and a non-white girl to age 73.

It all goes to show that being black in America is still dangerous to your health.

JACK ANDERSON

Mugged In Leningrad

WASHINGTON — The Soviets have made it brutally clear to Daniel Fried that detente is dead. It happened in Leningrad where he's a U.S. consular official. He was mugged by Russian rowdies who pummeled him with the efficiency of a KGB goon squad.

The attack occurred while Fried and his wife were walking together recently on the city streets. Soviet officials claim Fried's attackers were simply drunken hooligans, but intelligence experts suspect it could have been the handiwork of the KGB.

Top-secret State Department cables disclose the meager details of the assault, which has the diplomatic corps seething. The assailants accosted the American diplomat for no explained reason. His injuries were serious enough to require medical attention, although he was not disabled.

His wife, Olga, was untouched, but she provided the sound effects, yelling with all her lung-power.

The strange absence of any police is what makes the intelligence experts suspicious. As one source explained to my associate Jack Mitchell, the Soviet police aren't likely to let an American diplomat wander around Leningrad or any other Soviet city without plainclothesmen trailing a couple of blocks behind.

All foreigners are subjected to a certain amount of secret police interest, but diplomats — particularly Americans — are so closely watched that a spontaneous attack by vagrant drunks is difficult to believe.

Intelligence experts speculate that the assault could have been a deliberate warning intended to send a message to the United States — a warning against American contact with Soviet dissidents. Sources tell me that Russian "drunkards" have a habit of materializing whenever an American is suspected of being in too close contact with dissidents. It is not known if the Frieds were in touch with dissidents.

Members of Congress who have been to Leningrad recently have related disturbingly similar stories of burly, slovenly dressed Russians suddenly looming into view before or after the congressmen's interviews with dissidents. One congressman approached some tough-looking men he suspected were KGB talls and warned them not to harm the dissidents to whom he had just been talking.

The State Department delivered a quiet but stiff official protest to the Soviet government over the Fried mugging. But the Russians stick by their dubious story that the diplomat's beating was the result of a chance encounter with some street louts.

The significance of the incident is not lost on our Kremlinologists, who note that even in the darkest days of the Cold War, the personal safety of American diplomats was rigorously guaranteed.

BAYH AT BAY: Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., got no brownie points from right-wing enemies for his chairmanship of the committee investigating Billy Carter. On the contrary, the National Conservative Political Action Committee, which put Bayh on its hit list, used the "Billygate" investigation as a club to beat Bayh with.

"Can Birch Bayh Judge Billy Carter?" asked a recent NCPAC ad in the Indianapolis Star. It then alluded to Bayh's previous "relations with unregistered foreign agents" in the so-called "Koreagate" scanda.

Sen. Jacob Javits: A Sad Story

N.Y.'s Senator Jacob Javits was upset by the challenge of Alfonse D'Amato, the little-known town supervisor of Hempstead, Long Island, but Javits has presented a painful spectacle this fall. Some might find heroism in it, but it struck many as pitiful.

Javits, who is on the Liberal Party line and still in the running, is 78 and even if he were to win the three-cornered Senate race and serve a fifth six-year term he would, of course, be 84. But he suffers from a motor neuron disease, which affects the nervous system, looks frail and walks with considerable difficulty. Though he seems clear-headed, the toll of six more years can affect his chances of remaining effective. A graceful retirement a la Senator Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut would seem called for.

Javits is not indispensable. What is he doing clawing for political advantage, trading insults with Mr. D'Amato, and looking forward to another tough campaign against political opponents?

A tough campaign in which the subject of his health will once again be a central issue?

A tough campaign made even tougher because in losing the Republican nomination to D'Amato, he is left to battle it out on the Liberal line not only against D'Amato but also against his Democratic opponent, Congresswoman Elizabeth Holtzman.

What has impelled Javits, in the late autumn of his life, into this messy situation?

Age and health aside, Javits is a political anachronism. When he entered New York politics after World War II, the state Democratic Party was still controlled by machine types, mostly Catholic and not especially liberal.

For an ambitious young politician, Jewish and very liberal, it made sense to run as a Republican — made sense only in the then context of N.Y. politics. In his first race as a Republican, Javits also had the endorsement of the Communist Party.

A sharp political technician, Javits has to some extent changed with changing times. He deserted Goldwater in 1964, but this year he is giving at least nominal support to Reagan. And why has Javits, running as a Liberal, could support the Republican presidential candidate — not John Anderson, the Liberal Party's choice?

Although Javits has always been reasonable on business-related issues, is knowledgeable about defense, and has no illusions about the Soviets, Javits is a big spender on social issues, a big bureaucracy politician, and, really, preposterous in the Republican Party of 1980.

So why does he not retire, like Cincinnatus or Thomas Jefferson, and allow calm to descend over his final phase.

There's the pity. Javits' sole interest in life seems to be politics.

There's nothing else. He is "Senator Javits," and cannot imagine any other identity. Even his wife Marion calls him "Senator Javits."

A very sad story.

Protesters Of Movie Should Examine Own Church

A front page article in Monday's (Sept. 15) Sanford Herald recounted the public display of righteous indignation by members of the "Lighthouse" youth group of Sanford's First Assembly of God, 304 W. 27th St.

Their indignation, according to the write-up, was incited by a local theater's showing of the movie, "Wholly Moses."

By publicly displaying their opinions they have unspeakingly elicited public response. Please allow me to exercise my right to respond.

I choose not to question their right to express their opinions, their right to public assembly, or their right to have whatever religious beliefs that may suit their fancy.

I do, however, choose to question the down-to-earth honesty of what this particular congregation espouses to be righteousness.

For seven years I had the dubious privilege of hearing of their righteousness. I lived directly across the street and they bellowed and howled at the tops of their lungs. "Look at how righteous we are," was what they yelled. But actions speak louder than words.

My own "righteousness" is open to debate, but that is not the subject at hand. In 1977 our family split apart and our house went "on the block." The First Assembly of God got wind of our misfortune and entered into negotiations to buy our house with a view toward converting it to a meeting place. The negotiations dragged on for several months. We were finally forced into foreclosure.

It is a matter of public record that our former home was snapped up at a bargain price on the steps of the county courthouse by the First Assembly of God. Patience is a virtue; is it not? What was once our humble home is now known as the "Lighthouse," situated at the corner of South Elm Avenue and 27th Street.

During the unsuccessful negotiations the house was vacant except for some personal belongings tightly sealed in boxes. The boxes were ripped open and several items stolen from them. There had been no break-in. We had entrusted a house key to an estimable member of the congregation.

"First Assembly of God," How hollow it rings in my ears. To me the translation, "Hail to Thee, Almighty Avarice," seems closer to the truth.

Church Protest Hurts

For years my family listened to the early Sunday morning radio and heard thought provoking words and beautiful religious music rendered by the great Mormon Tabernacle Choir before we departed to our own church for Sunday morning services at the Sanford Congregational Christian Church.

Some few years after we relocated and built our beautiful sanctuary, another church chose to build across the street from us. I and others of our church were elated to learn that our new neighbors were the Church of the Later Day Saints (Mormon). Their membership as did ours built their Church themselves and owe no one. I am told they pay taxes on their buildings except their sanctuary; they even pay taxes on their Fellowship Hall. No other church that I know can make that claim. It was a pleasant revelation to learn that the people of our neighbor church were the nicest, well-dressed and neighborly people and are a credit to our neighborhood.

On Sunday Aug. 24, this beautiful church and its dedicated people were picketed by a group of laughing and childish acting people carrying protest signs picketing their church. They were not content to confine their picketing to the streets but trampled on the well-kept grounds. One of the hippie protestors carried a sign which read "Honk if you like ERA". He seemed to care less if his ill-mannered gesture caused some adults not to be able to hear the spoken word or make it difficult for children to hear a prayer or a beautiful church hymn.

The good Lord tried in his merciful way to stop them from picketing or interferring with a drenching rain but they returned later so they could be seen on television.

Every Church in Seminole County should publicly condemn that act in a letter of condemnation it should be forthcoming from the various area ministerial associations and that should be in bold print in every area newspaper. Other churches and denominations should not be apathetic because no one knows who will be picketed next or for what reason.

This whole unfortunate episode just may be the beginning of the attack to break up our churches or places of worship and we cannot afford to turn our backs. Let's don't be like the lazy man who sat at the bow of the sinking boat and watched his friends frantically bailing out the water. He exclaimed, "I'm sure glad that hole is not in my end of the boat."

Kelly Needed In Fight For Freedom

Your Thursday editorial on the political demise of Richard Kelly is worthy of extended comment, because on that occasion believers in a free and responsible America lost another of their few remaining friends in Washington.

If, during the past 30 years, the President and a majority of the United States Congress had been of the persuasion and voting record of Richard Kelly, we would have a different country today. The national debt would have been less than one hundred billion dollars; the price of a loaf of bread, of an automobile, or of a home would probably be one-fourth of what it is; well dressed able-bodied people living today on food stamps and welfare would have been employed in productive private enterprise; employers, unable to find help because people no longer have to work, would have had an available labor force; labor unionism would still be within the scope of the purposes for which it came into being; the nation would still be a number one military power instead of a second rate power; the capability for self-defense is highly questionable; our courts would be adhering to constitutional principles of individual responsibility, instead of spewing out decisions to further the spread of socialist-collectivist expediency; and the crime rate in the nation would probably be five percent what it presently is. I regularly contributed to such a man's campaign even though I could not vote for him because my precinct was not in his district. Such was the caliber of the man dumped by the voters apparently because of his involvement in Abscam.

By contrast, a U.S. Senator has practically a 100 percent record of voting for the destruction of free America. He has voted for profligacy, against self-reliance and the American work ethic, for individual irresponsibility, for wrecking national defense, for spendthrift and inflationary programs, and for the collectivist line which has converted us to socialism.

Never in history has a free nation or empire, including the Roman empire, been able to survive the conversion to socialism. The decay to date shows that this country will be no exception. The senator never had to work for a dollar in his life and possibly lacks the economic comprehension to recognize that fact. Conceivably it is just his lack of integrity and moral character. Certainly his involvement in the drowning of a young woman was such, that had it been someone else, one wonders if there might not have been a prosecution for manslaughter. Far from being dumped by the voters for this record and this conduct, this man barely missed nomination for the Presidency of these United States.

All of these facts raise a question as to the awareness and depth of thinking of the majority of the American electorate. One wonders how people can so readily and continually vote for their own destruction.

The situation poses one other nagging little question. You have to wonder who prompted the F.B.I. to initiate the Abscam proceeding, and Why, and who selected Richard Kelly as one of those to be approached!

Look On Bright Side

I have heard much about salaries being so low, groceries and everything being so high. I thank God every day for we are living so much better now than we have ever lived.

I pay taxes on my home and car, I pay insurance on my home and myself. I buy anything I want to eat except T-bone steak and shrimp. I eat out a lot. I pay the same for gas everybody does. I donate and do for others all the time and feel good about it. It will even be a big deal to do for others. You prosper better, too.

I started drawing an annuity check in 1962. I live comfortably and have what I want and put some in the bank. I cannot complain about my income and the prices. What I am getting at is times are better now than I have ever seen it.

I will take my annuity check and high prices to ever going back to those days when I couldn't make ends meet. Now I can go and do most anything I want to. I can't believe the older people can't remember how hard it was to get a nickel to ride the streetcar. I walked most of the time. People are blaming the prices on all the men in office. Just go back to 1929 when I married and see how much their salaries went up to get to where they are today. Sure the prices went up, too. That's common sense.

Everybody wants their cake and eat it, too. The car companies have been forced to layoff employees because of labor troubles and foreign competition, and I am sure that some of the layoffs would be glad to take the good salary they were making to get back to work. If you want more money, it's common sense the company has to go up on its products to pay the employees.

I hear every day people downing the President and politicians. But if they would think back as I do, they can see how all the people in office have really done a wonderful job. What people want is for them to keep getting a raise but for the prices to stay the same. Just ask everybody how much more they have today than they did back in 1920.

I thank God every day for having what I have. A lot is the people being spoiled and not knowing how to manage what they have.

Let them think about when they really get sick. They can get a good doctor, go to a hospital and come out with very little to pay, if any. Back then you couldn't even go to a doctor, much less go in the hospital, if you didn't have any food, you had to eat gravy and bread if you had that.

Now they have company checks, Social Security and food stamps. I hope everyone will come to their senses and be proud of what they have, and that they will divide with those less fortunate.

Do unto others as you would have them do unto you. They will be grateful for what they have, they will be like me, never complain again.

Program In Crisis

This Food Stamp situation is getting more serious as Social Security goes up.

Something else will have to be done to alleviate this. For instance, in July, we got $84 in Food Stamps, and in September we got $79.

At this rate, the program would be phased out; then what will these people do? This is a good way to kill off these people and voters.

With rent, insurance rate going up, along with inflation, the figures may look good on Social Security Checks to these people on fixed incomes, but it sure doesn't go far.

We are not like some people who get Food Stamps that don't need them, like the rich!

Let's Cool Jury Room

I have a gripe. So do 17 other people that serve on the grand jury with me. I am also sure that Chief Assistant State Attorney (18th Circuit Court) Chris Ray will agree with me and some judges too!

Why did they build such a nice, beautiful new courthouse and then not air condition a room where jurors have to sit and pass judgment? We don't even have a fan in this room. It is a small, hot room and the door is kept locked so there is absolutely no air. Anyone who has sat in there on a hot July or August day will tell you it is very unpleasant. How can they expect a person to do their best when they are uncomfortable?

Let's check into it and do something about it soon.

Thank you.

Heat Prevents Justice

How can a judge and jury give a fair verdict in a 90 degree hot box? Justice cannot be carried out when the judge and jury are so uncomfortable that they get to be disagreeable and their minds are not on the subject that they are working on — but are swayed by their discomfort.

We have here in Seminole County a very beautiful but a monstrosity of a courthouse building that is not very practical or adaptable for the purpose that it was built for. The work space is less than 60 percent of the floor space area. The county commission members that held office during the time that this county court building was planned and built, were more interested in its beauty than its use or purpose. It hardly seems possible that they made a study to evaluate whether it would be practical and adequate for the future.

In these modern times when air conditioning is a necessity, people that are helping to pay for it expect to enjoy its comforts. The county commissioners that were in power at the time this building was planned and built accepted an air conditioning system that was not sufficient to adequately cool this building. It is a very costly item to increase an air conditioning system after the building is built. This glass building draws a lot of heat. Even with the smoked or shaded glass it draws more heat than masonry. It is about time that something is done to cool this grand jury room so that the judge and jury do not have to sweat it out.

Candidate Considers Steps To Capture Sign Bandits

Campaign signs have become an expensive proposition for candidates.

Single-faced 4 feet by 8 feet signs cost about $40 each while double faced signs cost about $60, not counting the additional wood necessary to put them up.

Pat Southward, D-Lake Mary, who is running for the State House of Representatives, says she has been having a high incidence of vandalism of her signs. If it doesn't stop, she plans to take action similar to that taken by a group of candidates in Lake County.

Several candidates in Lake County have pooled their resources and are offering rewards of $500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the vandals.

It reminds me of the story two years ago when Bobby Brantley R-Longwood was losing signs. More and more were being removed from their road side locations by someone.

Signs belonging to several candidates, including Brantley, were found in a back yard of a home. The homeowner said he thought the election was over and the signs fair game. So he picked them up to build an animal shelter of some kind.

On Monday the gossip about whether Norman Floyd will really retire from politics or run for another term as mayor of Altamonte Springs will end. Monday is the last day for candidates to qualify in Altamonte. Not only is the one year remaining in Floyd's term up for election but also up are two city commission seats.

Floyd in an interview early this past week said he had no plans to ever run for public office again. He resigned effective Nov. 3 to run for the county commission.

Although he had been elected to three terms as mayor of Altamonte, he suffered a stunning defeat Sept. 9 at the hands of Gerald Korman for the Democratic nomination for the District 3 seat on the county commission. Floyd didn't carry a single Altamonte precinct. He did carry two Sanford precincts.

Floyd took his defeat philosophically, saying maybe it was for the best and adding that he had gotten the best night's sleep election night that he had gotten in a long time. "I'm not bitter. I'm relieved," he said.

Information for history buffs about the presidents:

— In order to pay the salaries of George Washington and members of Congress, the United States had to borrow money from three banks.

— The shortest inaugural address in history was only 135 words long and was given by Washington. The longest address, 8,443 words, was delivered by William Henry Harrison, the ninth president.

— Thomas Jefferson introduced the handshake into presidential politics, deviating from the standard method of greeting men used to greet others — a bow from the waist. Theodore Roosevelt had the record for handshaking. He is said to have shook hands with 8,315 persons at a reception on New Year's Day in 1907.

— Jefferson during his eight-year term as president amassed a $10,000 wine bill. His favorite way of warding off colds was to soak his feet in cold water every morning.

— The shortest period of time any president ever spent in office was Harrison, who caught a cold on inauguration day and died one month later. The longest time in the presidency was spent by President Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who was elected to four terms, but served 12 years, one month and eight days.

— The largest president was William Howard Taft who was six feet tall and weighed over 300 pounds.

— John Adams who served from 1797 to 1801 read fluently in seven languages while John F. Kennedy read 2,000 words per minute with almost total comprehension.

— Gerald Ford served as both president and vice president but was not elected to either office.

— Richard Nixon is the only president to have resigned his office.

Seniors Should Play Key Role In Fall Campaign

The fall campaigns for the White House and Congress — plus state and local offices in many areas — are now under way. It's vital for us seniors to pick our candidates — and to pick them carefully.

The platform planks on the aging may be the most significant documents to have come out of the political conventions. They make important reading for all senior citizens — and for those who will join our ranks during the next four years.

Call or visit local offices of the Republican and Democratic parties to request copies of their planks on the elderly. If the office doesn't have the material, ask where you can get it.

This will give notice to both parties that we intend to vote in our own best interests, as do other sectors of the American electorate.

No matter what else we read about the candidates and the issues, the party planks on the aged should be studied with care.

In fact, activists among us should gather local seniors together to discuss and analyze what both political parties propose for us. What we learn should guide our hands when we vote.

Leaders of these meetings should not invite representatives of either party to attend.

Certainly there will be some senior citizens at these sessions who consider themselves Republicans. Others will think of themselves as Democrats. A third group will declare themselves independents.

Our aim will not be to change their party affiliations. What we will try to do is to arm brother and sister seniors to go out into the world and ask questions.

The politicos of all persuasions will hold meetings in our communities at which they will extol their parties and their platforms. It will be up to us to attend these meetings and raise the issues that concern us.

Our implication will be, "We'll vote for your candidate if your program and your candidate are in line with our needs as senior citizens."

Our demands will begin with an end to all forms of age discriminations against seniors.

We may ask for an end to all mandatory retirement.

We may insist that our Social Security income remain free from taxation and continue to be increased to keep pace with inflation.

We should demand that home health care be expanded and that nursing homes and adult homes be more effectively policed.

We should challenge both parties on inequities against women, such as the penalties now paid by two-worker families in the Social Security system.

We should ask for adequate funding of energy assistance to the elderly.

We should demand solutions to the substandard housing of low-income seniors. We should seek protection from condominium converters for moderate- and high-income seniors.

In short, we seniors must try to write our own ticket. We need to say to the parties and their candidates, "You vote for our needs and we'll vote for you."

Counting current and soon-to-be seniors, about 35 million votes are at stake. Let's make all of them count!

Tribe Defense Turns Mainland Away

Seminoles Sting Bucs Early For 20-6 Win

By BENTON WOOD
Herald Sports Writer

The Sanford Seminoles received a tough lesson in football last week courtesy of the Evans' Trojans. Coach Jerry Posey and his troops learned well, however, as they passed on some of their lessons to Daytona Beach Mainland Friday night.

The final result was a 20-6 victory for the Fighting Seminoles as they took the first step in defending their Five-Star football title in conference openers for both squads.

Sanford exploded with 14 points, two minutes into the ballgame. But it took a 56-yard interception return by linebacker Lee Young with :55 seconds left in the contest, to give the Seminoles their final touchdown of the evening and level its record at 1-1 for the young season.

"We were ready for this game," Young said following his clinching touchdown. "As soon as I turned around, I saw the quarterback threw the ball right at me, and then it was all over."

Mainland was unable to get a first down on its opening series of the night. Following a punt, senior running back, Robert Guy dashed 55-yards on the first play from scrimmage giving the Seminoles a 13-0 advantage with 9:51 left in the first quarter.

The Seminoles couldn't manage a first down, giving Mainland excellent field position at the Sanford 35-yard line following a 34-yard punt by senior, Jim Voltoline.

It took the Bucs just six-plays to get on the scoreboard as junior signalcaller, Terry Hawkins, found tight-end, Floyd Miles, open for a six-yard touchdown pass, eight seconds into the second period.

"We had three bombs thrown over our heads last week"-Tribe defensive coach Roger Beathard.

The Seminoles countered with an 11-play, 61-yard drive of its own. However, quarterback Jeff Litton fumbled at the Mainland seven yardline and defensive end, Julius McCray, pounced on the football.

"If we'd have scored at that point in the game, we could have been gone," said a pleased coach Posey afterwards.

The Bucs traveled from their own seven yard-line to the Sanford nine with eight seconds left in the half. But Hawkins underthrew his receiver in the endzone and Guy picked off the pass to end the half.

"We had three bombs thrown over our heads last week," said Seminole defensive coordinator Roger Beathard of the 27-2 loss to Evans. "And then coming up with four interceptions tonight had to be a confidence builder for the secondary."

"Our receivers were open all night," he replied. "He (Terry Hawkins) couldn't get them the ball."

Hawkins was a mere 6-17-3 during the evening for 108-yards.

"We had too many breakdowns," Wallace continued. "Everytime we needed a crucial play on third-down, something would go wrong."

"They showed some improvement over what we saw off them," Posey commented.

Guy was the leading Sanford ball carrier on the night, grinding out 72-yards on nine attempts.

"Their offense is similar to Mainland's in that the quarterback likes to roll out. We have to key on the quarterback and have him worry about our defensive men'afe at."

The Buccaneers slipped to 0-2 for the season. After an open date next week, Mainland faces Spruce Creek October 3 in its home opener.

Rushing: Sanford: Guy 9-72, Pace 8-49, Littles 4-14, Litton 4-1 Mainland: A. Hawkins 19-94, Williams 10-33, T. Hawkins 4-7.

First Downs: Mainland 14, Sanford 5

SEMINOLE'S NICE GUY

Seminole High's senior standout Robert Guy was a man in the right place at the right time for the Tribe all night long against the Mainland Buccaneers. Guy led the Seminoles in rushing on the night, Guy also teamed up with his defensive backfield mate to victimize Mainland quarterbacks no less than four times for interceptions as the Tribe defensive unit halted a pair of Mainland scoring threats Friday night, turning the Bucs away repeatedly to give head coach Jerry Posey his first victory, an important Five Star Conference win, on the young season.

Houston Star Holds One-Shot Edge

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — Even though Bill Rogers has won more than $627,000 in his six-year pro career, he has won only one tournament. But he's in a position now to capture his second tour event midway through the 51st annual, $250,000 Texas Open.

The former University of Houston star carries a one-shot lead into today's third round of the tournament after firing a consistent (under-par 67 Friday to leave him at 9-under 131 in two trips around the Oak Hills Country Club course.

The foursome of Terry Diehl, Mark McCumber, Hale Irwin and Fuzzy Zoeller are at 132.

My thoughts are that it's my time," said Rogers, and "I'm going to play aggressively the next two days. There is no reason in the world why I can't get out there and shoot 8-underpar for the next two days."

If he does, it ought to be good enough to win, but in addition to the four golfers just one shot back, two more — Bob Murphy and Lee Trevino — are only two shots behind at 133.

"I'm confident I'm going to shoot another two good rounds," said Trevino, who moved another step closer to wrapping up the Vardon Trophy — the award that goes to the golfer with the lowest stroke per round average for the entire year.

Another stroke back at 134 was Curtis Strange and the brother team of Danny and David Edwards.

And Diehl stayed close to the leader despite four-putting the par-3 second hole. He birdied the last five holes to shoot a 67.

"Outside of taking a little mental walk on No. 2," Diehl said, "I played a very solid round of golf. I hit 17 greens, I hit a lot of good golf shots, I hit a lot of good putts."

Moxness, Hamlin Share LPGA Lead

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. (UPI) — A malicious cart path, a double-bogey and some "embarrassing" missed putts were not enough to ruin the golfing of Barbara Moxness, Shelley Hamlin and Donna Caponi Young in the Kansas City LPGA Classic.

Hamlin and Moxness tied at 7-under par 139 Friday to share the second-round lead in the tournament.

Young, in third place, pinned the blame on a cart path for her only bogey in a 68 round, which put her at 3-under 143.

"That damn' cart path on nine," she said. "I hit it right down the middle — it hit the cart path and rolled all the way to the water hazard. It was awful. I thought it (the shot) was perfect, but life isn't perfect."

Life at least seemed charmed for Moxness and Hamlin, who shot a 2-under 71 and 1-under 72 respectively to head into today's third round as coleaders. Hamlin credited some lucky putts; Moxness cited karma, a little less intensity and a little more effort on holes that were giving her trouble the day before.

"For me it's a matter of not putting pressure on myself," said Moxness, of San Diego, Calif. "I'm trying to cut it back and enjoy the game more. When it's your time to win, everything goes right."

Hamlin said she loved the challenge of playing through big galleries. "The Kansas City fans were fabulous (Friday)," she said. "I sank a 1½ footer (on No. 11) just to save par and they really clapped ... I think it inspired me."

Sandra Post, last year's winner of this LPGA stop, shot a 4-under Friday to better her two-round total to a 2-under 144. Post birdied six of her last 10 holes to shoot 32 — an LPGA record on the back 9 at the Kansas City stop.

Rogers Holds Texas Lead, Pair Tied In K.C. Event

Colts, Bucs To Upset

Rolling With Flow Nets 10-4

Second week NFL action still held a few surprises in store for unwarry prognosticators. But despite the slight of hand, a la Miami, Denver and Seattle, Kenny Stabler's Monday night performance against the Cleveland Browns left me 10-4 on the week and 12-11 overall. Not earth shattering, but good enough for a .667 season percentage thus far.

Week number three looks like easy pickings, until the scores start rolling in late Sunday afternoon that is.

On with the countdown

Baltimore at Houston.

Some how the Colts have come up with a darn good defense. Funny, but those same guys looked like a spaghetti strainer against the pass last year. Can Bert Jones have an affect on the defense. You bet, especially when the defense is sitting on the bench watching Bert drive the offense.

Speaking of driving, Mr. Stabler got in about forty minutes of playing time by completing 23-of-28 passes Monday in playing keep away from Cleveland.

I almost went with the Colts to upset Pittsburgh last week and Jones drove Baltimore to the Steeler four-yard line before coughing up the pigskin with three minutes left. Reasoning says the Colts should be down after the strong effort against Pittsburgh and a first week win against the Jets. But when this NFL is reasonable. Upset time. Baltimore 28 Houston 27.

Buffalo at New Orleans.

Right now the Bills should be 0-2. Right now the Saints should be nestled in a sidewalk bar on Bourbon Street, drowning their collective sorrows with a few stiff ones over their inept start.

Buffalo showed at least consistancy with wins over Miami and the Jets. New Orleans has nothing to show but Archie Manning's broken nose at the hands of Chicago last week.

The Bills roam free on the Saint's defensive range. They leave Manning unbroken but slip away with victory number three. Buffalo 24 New Orleans 20.

Pittsburgh at Cincinnati.

To laid the Steelers have a score to settle. To laid Cincinnati has found unique ways to lose the past two weeks. This has all the earmarkings of another upset. Except Pittsburgh wants to atone for the embarrassing loss the Bengals obliged the Steelers with last year and Pittsburgh still remains the best fourth quarter team in football. Pittsburgh 24 Cincinnati 17.

Kansas City at Cleveland.

This one should be entitled, "Tale of Two Heartbreaks."

Sam Rutigliano is big on his browns. But then again he's big on maalox and ulcers too. That's what he'll have for sure if the Browns don't generate some offense after Monday's dismal showing against Houston.

The Chiefs on the other hand displayed that while they are improved, they are still young and lack consistancy. Give this one to the hometown Brown faithfulls. Cleveland 16 Kansas City 13.

San Diego at Denver.

It's division showdown time in the west. NFL reports confirm that eight additional air traffic controllers have been assigned to keep an eye on the passing duel between Dan Fouts and Matt Robinson. Give this one to San Diego's bearded wonder by the hair on his chin. San Diego 31 Denver 27.

San Francisco at New York Jets. What are the 49ers doing at 2-0. What are the Jets doing at 0-2. Beats me but things change this week.

Washington at Oakland.

The Skins sure have looked shaky in their first two outings while Oakland has been both up and down. Washington has to stay close to the high flying Eagles and after the way Philly handled Dallas sees this weekend as a stepping stone ahead of the Cowboys. Oakland gets stepped on by an inspired Redskin defense. Washington 24 Oakland 10.

Richard Todd can't look bad three weeks in a row. But he's not totally responsible for the Jet's offensive breakdown. San Francisco certainly has no plans to roll over and play dead, but the 49ers have already equalled their 1979 win production so why go overboard this early in the season. New York Jets 24, San Francisco 21.

Miami at Atlanta. Take this game. Please, anybody take this game. Compliments to the Sentinel Star's Brian Schmitz. After Miami's miracle comeback against Cincinnati, Schmitz labeled the Orange Bowl gang the Miami Bucs. Nice one liner Brian. Atlanta will either win big or lose small. Atlanta 30 Miami 20.

Minnesota at Chicago. The SPCTPFP has considered banning this game and rescheduling it for next year, when Chicago has a BYE. The SPCTPFP by the way is the Society For Prevention of Cruelty To Pro Football Players.

Tampa Bay at Dallas.

If the Cowboys can't run and can't throw on Denver, the Cowboys can't run and can't throw on Tampa. Somehow the Bucs won their third straight. Don't ask me how. McKay doesn't even know yet and probably won't until the final two minutes. Tampa Bay 21 Dallas 20.

St. Louis at Detroit. Gary Danielson displayed admirable courage under sorrowing circumstances last week. Billy Simms proved why he'll be Rookie of the Year. The rebuilt Lions roar to win number three. Detroit 30 St. Louis 17.

Green Bay at Los Angeles. Jack Youngblood spoke on Thursday night football about how ready the Rams are to play now that contract problems are being resolved. And when Jack Youngblood speaks, everybody listens. Los Angeles by a pair of Dow Jones'. Rams 24 Green Bay 13.

Monday Night — New York Giants at Philadelphia. Normally this would be a night to watch the 9 o'clock movie and committ sacraledge against the holy turf of Monday night football.

But Ron Jaworski is being hailed as the second coming of Poland while Phil Simms continues to unpress. Jaworski's cousin used to be my boss in the Army. I didn't care much for Lt. Jaworski, but quarterback Ron marches his civilians to another win. Philadelphia 24 New York 21.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Liberty Christian Rolls To 41-26 Mid-Florida Victory

Rob Watt led the Sanford school's victory with 122-yards rushing on 14 carries, good enough for a pair of touchdowns. Mickey Bennett also turned in a strong effort by adding 62 yards on four carries. Bennett also rambled for a pair of touchdowns on identical 55-yard pund returns.

Quarterback Justin Thomas got into the scoring act by hitting wide reciever Chuck Swann on a 13-yard scoring strike. Swann also booted four-of-five extra points for Liberty.

Phillips Cops Mayfair Win

Frances Phillips carded a 32½ to cop the weekly feature of the Maryfair Women's Golf Association tournament at the Sanford course Wednesday.

Eloise Hunt finished second with a 34 while Marge Horne earned third place honors with a 35. Other top finishes included Vivian Conklin and Pauline Rose with identical 35½'s, Irene Harris with a 36, Zella Eisselle and Margaret Botts with 36½'s and Marge Persson with a 37.

Tribe's Bando Under Knife

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Cleveland Indians announced Friday catcher Chris Bando, this year's Southern League batting champion, will undergo surgery next Friday at the Cleveland Clinic.

Bando, 22, the brother of Sal Bando of the Milwaukee Brewers, batted .349 this season for the Chattanooga (Tenn.) Lookouts, Cleveland's Class AA farm club. He will have surgery on his left thumb.

Nuggets Waive Gary Garland

DENVER (UPI) — Gary Garland, a 6-4, 180-pound one-year veteran of the National Basketball Association, was placed on waivers Friday by the Denver Nuggets.

Tennis Anyone?

By LARRY CASTLE

Popular Pairings Called Mixed Doubles, Or Divorce

The American Net Style

Perhaps the most popular of all the forms of tennis is mixed doubles. It is the most popular, for at least the first time you play it. After that it can become a tedious ordeal or it can become a very challenging and exciting form of competition: Mixed doubles (in case anyone does not know or has tried to forget) is a male and female on one team and a male and a female on the opposing team. Other than that, mixed doubles should be played the same as regular doubles. I say should because it seldom is played the same in most cases the stronger player dominates their side of the court. I have seen mixed doubles matches where one player will tell their weaker partner," you stand in this spot and if a ball happens to come right at you, you may hit it, I will cover all the rest of the court," (usually about 95 percent). Or we have all seen mixed doubles matches where the weaker player never gets to put a racket on the ball unless they are serving or receiving.. This is mixed doubles, this is really two on one tennis, or Australian doubles. Mixed doubles has to be played like normal doubles if it is to be an exercise in good tennis. Both players must be able to cover the shots that are in their territory. Both must be able to serve, return serve and volley. It is a 50-50 proposition. These are the teams that are successful. In traveling all over the state to play mixed doubles tournaments, it has been evident that the most successful mixed teams are those in which both players are average to good players. A team with one very strong player and one very weak player seldom is successful. Of course, there are many instances where both players are very good, these are your championship teams and high ranking teams. At any rate, mix doubles is a tremendous game and can and should be enjoyed by all, as long as all participants understand that mixed should be played just like ordinary doubles. You play to the weaker player, if the shot calls for hitting at a persons feet or even right at the person, you do it. No quarter is given, none is taken. It's every person on an equal basis full responsibility for all.

We can't leave the subject of mixed doubles without mentioning another form, husband and wife doubles. This should not be confused with ordinary mixed doubles. Husband and wife doubles is an all together different ball game. After every husband and wife tournament we play in, my wife and I vow never to play another tournament together, (of course we always do, she's the only one who'll play with me). My wife plays with many other men in mixed tournaments and can tolerate double faults, missed set-ups, and weak returns. I play with other mixed partners and am always telling my partner, "good try" — after a blown set-up, or "even though you've double faulted 11 straight times, your form is good." For some reason we can do this with other partners but when it's our wife or husband who makes the error, it's grounds for divorce. Would you believe that in one state husband and wife tournament, a girl threw her racket at her husband and hit him in the head? His comment was that "That was the only accurate shot that she had made all day." A man in the same tournament poured a full can of gator-aid on his wife, during change over. They recovered and won the tournament.

Husband and wife doubles must be approached with right attitude. One should not be too hard on your spouse for making bad shots. Use terms like "That's O.K.," "nice try," and "you'll play better next time," Supress the urge to use "klutz," "powder puff serve," or "I'll take it." You may not win much; but things will go better around the house.

Fumbles Haunt Lion Offensive Unit

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Sports Editor

St. Cloud head football coach Tom Greer called it revenge. Oviedo coach Joe Montgomery labeled it disappointing. The scoreboard called it 20-0 in favor of the St. Cloud Bulldogs before an Oviedo home crowd Friday night.

The numbers on the scoreboard weren't the only things in favor of St. Cloud. The Bulldog defense, sparked by the play of sophomore linebacker Jerry Shepard and senior David Noah at defensive tackle had Oviedo's numbers all night long. St. Cloud limited the Lions to nine yards on 36 rushing attempts to shut off Oviedo's ground game. Equally impressive was the Bulldog secondary which checked Lion quarterbacks Jody Huggins and Robert Isner on just seven completions for minus 13 yards.

In addition to strangling the Lion offense for a minus four yards on the night, the Bulldogs allowed just three Oviedo first downs, one on the Lion's first possession of the game and a pair late in the fourth quarter.

St. Cloud forced a trio of Oviedo fumbles and recovered all three. The Bulldogs coughed the pigskin up five times but managed to recover three of their own fumbles.

"We had a good revenge motive coming into this game: Last year Oviedo beat us 8-6 in our first game as a 3A school and we didn't want that happening again tonight."

The snake-like senior slithered his way into the end zone on a seven-yard scoring run with 2:11 remaining in the first quarter to put St. Cloud ahead 6-0 and followed up with a two-point conversion pass to David Grohosky seconds later to push the margin to 8-0.

Paul's backfield mate Chuckie Thompson electrified the partisan Lion crowd on the opening play of the second half when he took Darryl Johnson's kickoff at his own 16, followed a Bulldog blocking wedge up the middle and bounced through a late opening hole to race 84-yards untouched for the Bulldog's second score that put an emotional nail in Oviedo's comeback coffin.

Quarterback Paul failed on a two-point conversion jaunt but St. Cloud completely turned Oviedo away when Jerry Shepherd rambled in from the six-yard line following a 30-yard completion from Paul to wideout Jeff Leeper and the aid of a facemasking penalty.

Those fumbles continually gave St. Cloud possession in excellent field position. One Bulldog score came on the kickoff run back, another came after the offensive Lions played give away at the Oviedo 24, while the third Bulldog score was the only long drive of the night covering 55 yards.

The loss dropped Oviedo to 0-2 overall and 0-1 in Orange Belt Conference play while St. Cloud rose to 2-0 in both conference and overall standings.

"We've got some good defensive performances tonight," said Greer about the statistics. "We aren't big at all, heck we've got a couple of 190-pound tackles and a couple of 150-pound ends, but we're quick, that's how we beat them off the ball all night, with our quickness."

The Bulldogs had a little proving to do for Greer before they drove off with victory number two of the young season.

Greer explained, "We took everybody's car keys away two weeks ago and told them they could have 'em back when we won our second game. Well in two weeks we won two games so the kids get their wheels back," said the crew-cutted St. Cloud coach.

Greer had a few words of praise to heap upon his multi-talented quarterback Curtis before heading for the team bus also.

"We'll take a look at the game films and see who wants to get the job done. Depending on what we see, they're could be some changes to get things going."

Give St. Cloud the credit," complimented Montgomery. "They had a quarterback who started for them for four years and they had a lot of experience back from last year."

That lack of experience, especially on the part of a young offense is something Montgomery knows he'll have to deal with.

"Young players take patience and we have to do a better job as a coaching staff, but this thing is long from over," promised Montgomery. "We didn't quit tonight and we don't have any intentions of quitting. There will be some happy times for Oviedo football before this season is over."

The Lions have an extra week to come up with the formula for the first of those happy times, Oviedo has a BYE next Friday before traveling to Kissimmee to tackle the Kowboys.

Oviedo had difficulty generating much offense Friday night against the St. Cloud Bulldogs. These two fumbles, both recovered by St. Cloud added to the young Lion's frustration before a home crowd.

Disney Team Format Gets New Beginning

October 16 is going to be a great day for Central Florida. That's when the 1980 Walt Disney World's National Team Championship will begin to unfold its magic that has produced stardom from the ranks of struggling young professionals.

Six hundred golfers, 240 professionals and 360 amateurs will tee it up over three golf courses competing for prizes and prize money well worth over $390,000. This will be the first year for this format, according to Phil Ritson, General Chairman of the National Team Championship.

The Disney World Golf Championship had its beginning in 1971 when the Golden Bear Jack Nicklaus won three straight single events. Then in 1974, at Lake Buena Vista, the first time the team championship was played at Disney, Hubert Green teaming up with Mac McLendon won the tournament with a total of 255. The following year, 1975, saw Jim Colbert and Dean Refram break the record with a 252. Then in 1976, Jacksonville's Woody Blackburn with partner Bill Kratzert won in a playoff. Grier Jones and Gibby Gilbert won in 1977 and Florida Mini-tour player Wayne Levi with Bob Mann won in '78. By the way, after Levi's win in the team championship, like others before him, Bill Kratzert, Mac McLendon, found the Disney magic evident as the then young 25-year-old went out on the pro tour and won more than $140,000. Wayne's previous winnings on the tour prior to the team event was a little over $8,000. Last year Ben Crenshaw and George Burns took the championship by three shots over Defuniak Springs, Fla. product Sammy Rachels and playing partner Jeff Hewes. Also tying for second place were the teams of Jacobsen-Weibring and Bess-Halldorson.

The new format will place three amateurs with a team of professionals. The amateurs will be chosen by a blind draw; the professionals by an open draw. The teams will be fairly close as to ability as the draw can be given four handicap bases where golfers from zero to 6 handicap will be placed. 7 to 12 and 13 to 18, thus giving each team a low, a medium and a higher handicapper. Each team will play on a different golf course, either Palm, Magnolia and Lake Buena Vista, each day. The team of amateurs will play with a different set of professionals each day. The way the format is set up everyone will know who they are playing with and where, in advance.

On Sunday, Oct. 19, the final day, the cut for the professionals will be 40 teams and ties but now they will play without their amateur partners. Phil Ritson predicted the cut after three days would be around 19 or 20 under par.

An extra added attraction, while the pro's are playing on Sunday although it has nothing to do with the tournament, will be the top 25 teams will be invited to play in another tournament on the Palm course. They will be guests of Card Walker, Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer of Walt Disney Productions.

The dynamic General Chairman Ritson, who has spent 12 to 15 hours a day on this new format explained what his biggest problem will be during the tournament.

"As you can guess moving 600 people back and forth from Lake Buena Vista to the Disney Golf Resort or wherever they will be staying will be a large but pleasant problem. Not only will we be moving the golfers but their wives, their friends and 600 golf bags."

The breakdown on the $390,000 purse, which is one of the largest on the PGA tour will be $350,000 paid out to the top professional teams. The remaining $40,000 purse will be for the winning professionals during the pro-am. The amateurs will receive prizes everyday on each golf course plus overall prizes for the winners. But most important the proceeds from this prestigious event will benefit junior golf.

Speaking of junior golf, the PGA Tour Wee Links course at Disney will be officially opened by a ribbon-cutting ceremony on Oct. 15 at 2 p.m. There will be a special exhibition by the top professionals between 1 and 2 p.m. at the Magnolia range. All junior golfers are invited to mingle with the professionals and later at the Wee Links, will be allowed to play with their favorites free of charge.

The PGA Tour Wee Links was actually designed for all junior beginners and the green fees of $2 for 12 holes plus a free playing lesson makes it a bargain.

Finally, the cost of the tickets for the team championship will be $8 per day but the best news is, all children accompanied by an adult is free. That is practically an offer you can't refuse.

Do you have a question on golf? Maybe a gripe? How about an accomplishment you or your club has done or are about to do? Let us know by writing, Golf Review, Evening Herald, P.O. Box 1657, Sanford, Fla. 32771

Major League Baseball Roundup

Baltimore Shades Blue Jays 8-6

By United Press International

It's a good thing for the Baltimore Orioles Doug DeCinces doesn't practice what he preaches.

A few days ago, DeCinces was quoted as saying that it was all over for the Orioles in their quest to beat out the New York Yankees for the American League East title.

"I never heard of a player quitting with two-thirds of the final month of the season yet to play," Orioles' Manager Earl Weaver said, in response. "I'm not mad, I'm just surprised."

Apparently it was all a misunderstanding because DeCinces did not show any signs of quitting Friday night when the game was on the line.

The veteran third baseman hit a two-run homer in the 12th inning to give the Orioles an 8-6 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays. The triumph kept the Orioles five games behind the first-place Yankees in the AL East with only 15 games remaining.

The Yankees, meanwhile, held on to their lead by beating the Boston Red Sox, 2-1, on Bobby Brown's seventh inning homer.

Tigers 4, Indians 3

Al Cowens collected three hits, including a tie-breaking double, and Tom Brookens belted his eighth home run in an 11-hit attack that paced the Tigers to victory.

Brewers 4, Mariners 0

Twins 6, White Sox 3

Butch Wynegar and John Castino each singled in a run to spark a four-run eighth inning that lifted Minnesota. Winner Al Williams, 4-2, allowed nine hits in eight innings.

Royals 13, A's 3

Angels 6, Rangers 2

Frank Tanana scattered seven hits and Dan Ford and Brian Downing drove in two runs each to pace the Angels. Tanana, in winning the seventh of his last eight starts, evened his record at 10-10.

Pirates Shade Mets 4-3

Bucs Close Eastern Gap To 4 Games

By United Press International

Just when it seemed the Pirates would miss the ride to October, they decided to do a little motoring.

"I don't know how anyone could write us off in the pennant race," Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner said Friday night, after Pittsburgh pulled to within 4 games of the East lead with a 4-3 victory over the New York Mets.

"They wrote us off last-year too," said Tanner. "Our guys are ... capable of winning 13 or 14 and the division."

Montreal and Philadelphia, the teams ahead of the Pirates, are doing their part to allow Pittsburgh to rejoin the chase. Both blew one-run leads in the ninth so the Expos still lead the Phils by 2½.

With Pittsburgh trailing 3-2 in the fifth, ex-Met John Milner doubled in two runs to lift Rick Rhoden to a 6-5 record and drop loser Ed Lynch to 1-1.

"When you're throwing the ball right and your rhythm is there, the number of pitches doesn't matter," said Rhoden, who threw 140. "It felt good to go nine again."

In other games, Chicago shaded Philadelphia, 4-3, St. Louis outslugged Montreal, 9-8, Cincinnati downed Los Angeles, 10-7, San Francisco nipped Houston, 4-3, and San Diego handled Atlanta, 7-4.

In the American League it was New York 2, Boston 1; Baltimore 8, Toronto 6, in 12 innings; California 6, Texas 2; Minnesota 6, Chicago 3; Kansas City 13, Oakland 3; Detroit 4, Cleveland 3; and Milwaukee 4, Seattle 0.

Cubs 4, Phillies 3

Pinch-hitter Jerry Martin, haunting his former teammates, singled in a run with one out in the ninth after Philadelphia missed a scoring chance in the top of the inning. "It was tough," said Philadelphia Manager Dallas Green.

Cardinals 9, Expos 8

Montreal blew leads of 7-2 and 8-7 and eventually lost on George Hendrick's two-run double in the ninth. "It was a terrible loss," said Montreal Manager Dick Williams.

Reds 10, Dodgers 7

Giants 4, Astros 3

Tom Griffin, 4-1, and Al Holland combined on a six-hitter and San Francisco took advantage of two first-inning errors to score four runs.

Padres 7, Braves 4

Newport Protest Threatens Australian Cup Victory

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — The 28-second victory won in a rare afternoon of America's Cup finish by the Australian challengers may be handed to U.S. defender Freedom today after an international jury's protest decision is handed down.

Under blue Coast Guard beacons, the Australians evened the score Friday, 1-1, in the best-of-seven Cup series.

The Freedom crew protested the outcome of the race with the New York Yacht Club's committee while their tactician Dennis Durgan was telling a post-race news conference there was a "50-50 chance" it would be dropped.

Three jurors from Italy, Canada and Mexico, were scheduled to hear Freedom skipper Dennis Conner's arguments at 10 a.m. Durgan and Freedom manager Edward duMoulin said the dispute involved an incident on the last leg but refused to discuss it.

"It's the only thing I can think of," said Hardy.

Racing rules say only each yacht must be equipped with "emergency running lights."

"We won that race fair and square. There were no incidents whatsoever. There was no grounds for a protest as far as we're concerned," said Alan Bond, Australia's fiery owner.

The victory was only the third for a foreign challenger since 12-meter yachts were introduced to Cup racing in 1958. Australian boats won the two previous races.

DuMoulin called the contest "one of the most phenomenal races I've ever witnessed" and 1970 defending Cup skipper Bill Ficker described it as "one of the best 12-meter match races in the history of the event."

The Freedom camp asked for today off, raising speculation they were trying to avoid another dose of difficult light air racing.

Powered by a special laminated mainsail, Australia pulled past Freedom minutes off the start and kept their lead until the next-to-last leg.

The lead see-sawed to Freedom and then back to Australia a half-mile from the finish in whispering breezes.

The light winds were supposed to favor the white-hulled Aussie yacht with its innovative flexible mast but Bond said, "The boats are very close. I think the races are going to be very tough."

Cale Yarborough The Man To Catch At Wilkesboro 250 Event

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. (UPI) — Cale Yarborough, who was among the drivers who complained about a slick track, posted the fastest speed Friday on the first day of qualifying for Sunday's NASCAR 250-mile stock car race at North Wilkesboro Speedway.

Yarborough, driving an Oldsmobile, nipped Benny Parsons for the $1,500 given to Friday's fastest qualifier with a speed of 110.963 miles per hour. Parsons' Chevrolet was clocked at 110.925 mph on the five-eighths mile track.

Starting positions for Sunday's $114,815 race will not be determined until today. Each of Friday's top eight qualifiers had to run again today with the top average speed for the two days determining their starting positions.

Positions nine through 30 will be set in qualifying today.

Bobby Allison, winner of three races this season, was third-fastest at 110.663 mph in his Ford, and Harry Gant was fourth in a Chevrolet at 110.457. Rounding out the top eight were Lennie Pond, Dave Marcis, Darrell Waltrip and Dale Earnhardt.

Richard Petty, a 14-time North Wilkesboro winner who ranks second to Earnhardt in the Grand National driver's standings, posted the 10th fastest time of the day.

Practice runs were delayed more than two hours because a sealer used on the track's asphalt left it slick. Yarborough was among drivers who requested that the first qualifying session be delayed a day, claiming the track was unsafe.

"Unless it's a lot better before Sunday, we will have only about one and a half carwidths in the upper part of the turns," Yarborough said. "Anybody who tries to pass in a turn will be in trouble."

Griese Not Happy With Benched Role

UPI Sports Writer

Miami Dolphins' owner Joe Robbie once called quarterback Bob Griese "the cornerstone of the franchise," but the 35-year-old rock of consistency has been moved from the huddle to the sidelines, where he'll spend Sunday watching the Dolphins battle the Atlanta Falcons.

Griese, who completed just 3 of 8 passes for 36 yards and failed to direct the Dolphins to a single score in their skimpy 17-16 win over Cincinnati, officially lost his starting job this week to Don Strock.

Griese has not taken kindly to the demotion, even though he was benched as early as last November when the Dolphins started to enter a tailspin.

"I can still lead this team," said Griese, who came off the bench twice last season to help Miami clinch the AFC East title.

The Dolphins needed help last week to defeat Cincinnati, scoring their last 10 points on a fumble recovery in the Bengals' end zone and on a field goal that was set up by a blocked punt.

"We've got to get more balance in our offense," Shula said after the game.

Shula said Griese was "victimized' last week by heavy booing. He said an inexperienced line did not give Griese enough time to set up and throw.

"Every time we'd get something started, we'd make a mistake and get shut down," said Griese. "We've got to get better."

Even though the Dolphins appear to be playing a game of musical quarterbacks, Atlanta Coach Leeman Bennett says the unsettled situation may work in Strock's favor.

"He'll be attempting to prove to the Miami people he should have been the starter all along," said Bennett.

Sport Magazine Tabs Stalworth As Top In NFL

NEW YORK—John Stallworth of the Steelers outpointed Dallas' Tony Hill as the best wide receiver in the National Football League on the basis of a rating system devised by Sport Magazine.

A six-man panel of coaches and Pro Bowl players rated receivers on a scale of one to five in each of ten key receiving categories. This means that the "perfect" receiver would score 300 (6x5x10). The results, appearing in the current (October) issue of Sport, show Stallworth with 275 points. Hill, with 270, finished a scant one point ahead of Lyman Swann of the Steelers.

The ratings of the other players comprising the NFL's top eleven wide receivers are Ahmad Rashad (Minn.), 264; Nat Moore (Miami), 263; John Jefferson (S.D.), 255; Harold Carmichael (Phil.) and Wesley Walker (N.Y. Jets), 249; Steve Largent (Seattle), 248; Drew Pearson (Dallas), 247; and Stanely Morgan (N.E.), 245.

The six-man jury rating the receivers for Sport were: George Perles, assistant head coach of the Steelers; defensive coordinators Ed Biles of the Oilers, Buddy Ryan of the Bears and Doc Urich of the Redskins, and cornerbacks Mike Haynes of the Patricks and Willie Buchanon of the Chargers.

Four of the top-eleven receivers scored perfect 30s in a category: Stallworth for catching in traffic, Swann for adjusting to the ball, Carmichael for leaping, and Walker for speed.

Following is the breakdown of ratings by category in the Sport poll:

Here's How They Stack Up

Stalworth comes out slightly ahead of Dallas' Tony Hill in Sport Magazine's formula for tabulating the top pass catchers in the National Football League.

Shea Splashes To Raider Slalom Skiing Crown

SCC's David Shea emerged the winner earlier this week in Seminole Community College's Annual Slalom Ski Competition, conducted by the Raider intramural sports programs.

The ski competition enjoyed the largest in the history of the school Originally the water skiing event played to small crowds but has gained increased interest among SCC students and is now one of the school's most popular intramural programs.

BUSINESS IN BRIEF

Atlantic Bank To Require Credit-Card-Member Fee

Atlantic Bank will require an annual membership fee for credit card holders beginning Nov. 1.

Atlantic BankCard Association, Atlantic's bank card subsidiary, provides both MasterCard and Visa services and has established a membership fee schedule which will reduce the fee for those customers who have both cards. A single membership will be $15 and a dual membership (both cards) will be $25 or $12.50 per card.

Atlantic is implementing the membership fee to defray a portion of the substantial increase in costs associated with providing charge card and credit services. Beginning in 1969, Atlantic was one of the first banks to issue credit cards in Florida and has not charged a fee for this service since that time.

Credit Card Usage Drops

Two typeroducts of the early spring crackdown on retail credit and the resultant recessionary psychology among Florida consumers have been a reduction in credit card usage and a corresponding increase in payment by personal check.

Derek Noske, president of TeleCheck Southcoast, the check verification subsidiary of Barnett Banks of Florida Inc., said that Florida consumers are typical of those in the rest of the nation. "A person going into a store today is less likely to pull out a plastic credit card and more likely to pay for an item by check," he stated.

"We've noted a higher incidence of check-writing by Floridians since credit controls were imposed in April," Noske continued, "as calls from our participating TeleCheck merchants ran 15 percent higher than normal during the spring and summer months."

Farr Opens Realty Office

Dave Farr announced this past week the creation of a new real estate office to serve the Sanford - north Seminole County area. The firm, "Dave Farr's Real Estate Supermarket," opened its doors at 2540 S. Laurel Ave. (behind Sambo's) in Sanford.

Farr, a nine-year resident of Sanford, has been serving the real estate needs of many in the central Florida area for the past 4½ years. He has been a 1 million producer for the last three years and went over the 2 million dollar mark in 1979.

Bell Office Saves Energy

Woody Wilson, Sanford Southern Bell Manager, said that the company's success in keeping fuel consumption down in the face of aggressive educational and maintenance programs, "but we're going the extra distance to further reduce our fuel energy use."

Southern Bell maintains a fleet of 87 vehicles in Sanford. Company drivers are taking part in an extensive drivers education program, including audio-visual programs on effective fuel-saving techniques, proper speeds and tire inflation, and vehicle maintenance.

Redesign of van interiors for downloading is currently being implemented as well as replacing full-sized cars with subcompacts, which has resulted in miles per gallon going from 15.8 to over 30 mpg.

Southern Bell is tracking miles per gallon for each vehicle through a computerized system which runs a variety of tests in different combinations. Test results that are not within the acceptable limits are noted, and motor vehicle supervisors can make certain that the vehicle is properly maintained. Also used is a piece of electronic test equipment which can be put on a vehicle to tell how to fine tune that vehicle to get maximum gasoline mileage.

Bloodworth Gains Sun Post

John C. Bloodsworth has been promoted to vice president and real estate loan manager at Sun First National Bank of Orlando.

He will be responsible for the administration of real estate loans, including commercial activity, in the counties of Orange, Seminole, Osceola, Volusia and Brevard.

Bloodworth, 31, has been involved in the credit analysis and mortgage loan activity with Sun First of Orlando since 1974. He is a graduate of the University of Florida and the National School of Real Estate sponsored by the American Bankers Association. He served in the U.S. Army.

Mayo Gains UCF Position

Dr. Edward J. Mayo, formerly of the University of Notre Dame, has been appointed director of the University of Central Florida's Dick Pope Sr. Institute for Tourism Studies.

As the first person to hold the position on a permanent basis, Mayo will be charged with developing policies, directing research and service activities, and promoting support for the institute by the travel industry and the community.

Size Of Citrus Crop Drops

United Growers said today early returns from its statewide poll of citrus growers indicate "considerably smaller" round orange and grapefruit crops than last season's record for both fruit commodities.

Results of the 14th annual poll will be released Sept. 25 with the USDA's official 1980-81 season crop forecast to follow on Oct. 10.

Some areas, particularly in the north-central and northern Polk County production districts, are reported running as much as 30 percent off projections in many early and mid-season round oranges with the late Valencia orange crop "somewhat lighter" than last year.

Those were the grand bit hovered by the "surprise freeze" on March 3-5 which swept Florida and a high citrus producing areas of the north and western tiers of many trees at the critical moment of bloom.

AREA BUSINESS SPOTLIGHT

Janice R. Springfield, (left), executive vice president, was promoted to executive vice president and cashier of all Seminole County Flagship Banks. She accepted additional responsibilities in the operations area of the bank and will be assuming this position immediately. She has been with Flagship since 1956 and presently serves on the Executive Committee and Finance Committee. Mrs. Springfield will be phasing out of the lending area in order to take on the additional responsibilities. She is presently president and director of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce and vice chairman of the board of Seminole Memorial Hospital. Mrs. Springfield resides with her husband, Wendell, and son, Wen, on Banana Lake, Sanford. William J. Hart (right) has been promoted to vice president of Flagship's Commercial Loan Department. Hart joined Flagship in May 1980 with 18 years of experience in banking. He moved to the Florida area in 1974 from Philadelphia, and was formerly with commercial banks in Miami and Orlando. He graduated from St. Joseph's College in 1963 with a bachelor's degree in economics. He is a graduate of the University of Virginia Graduate School of Banking and the Wharton School of Finance at the University of Pennsylvania. Hart is active in the community and is treasurer and member of the Executive Committee of the Metropolitan Orlando Urban League and state treasurer of the United Negro College Fund. He is an active member of the Parish of St. Mary-Magdalen Roman Catholic Church and a member of the Sanford Rotary Club. He resides with his wife, Anna, and three children in Maitland.

Bell Laboratories scientists (above) test a new technique which someday may allow video signals to be carried in digital form over conventional telephone lines. The experimental technique, which will require further exploration before being developed for service, could help reduce the cost of video transmission to remote locations, and make it possible for customers there to obtain such services as videoconferencing. Woody Wilson, Sanford, Southern Bell Manager, said: "Color television requires transmission of over 100 million bits of information per second. Much of this information is repeated because usually only part of the TV picture changes from frame to frame. By electronically tracking the moving objects in a picture and predicting their change in position, the new technique reduces the required transmission rate to about 1.5 million bits per second." Today, television signals are commonly transmitted by coaxial cable or microwave systems. The new technique, called "motion compensation" coding, would allow television signals to be transmitted over a single pair of telephone lines.

MR. AND MRS. DENNIS WARREN SR.

Linda Edwards, Dennis Warren Exchange Vows

Linda Diann Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Edwards, 1612 Peach Ave., Sanford and Pvt. Dennis Warren Sr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Warren, 806 Willow Ave., Sanford, were married Sept. 13 at 5 p.m. at the Westside Improvement Association Center, Inc., Sanford.

Given in marriage by her brother, Ernest Edwards Jr., the bride chose for her vows a bridal gown of satin and lace, with wrist length sleeves, lace yoke and a lace trimmed capelet. Her floor-length veil of net and lace was sprinkled with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of tropicana flowers with matching streamers.

Serving as bridesmaids were Barbara Gray, Philis Warren, Gloria Fisher and Katrina Graham. Their gowns were light green with white lace trim. Each carried a single mum of light green with matching streamers. Light green baby's breath accented their hair.

Pvt. Fitzgerald Gartman served as best man. Usher-groomsmen were Pvt. Wonzel Boyd, Johnnie Ray Warren, Author Barnes and Walter Law. Ring bearer was Bernard T. Mitchell Jr.

The reception was held at the site of the wedding. The couple had a wedding trip to Daytona Beach.

Pvt. Warren is presently in the United States Marine Corps were he is studying electronics and will be stationed in Los Angeles, Calif.—MARVA HAWKINS tour. Linda accepted and also started performing as a backup singer and opening act for Blakley. The tour ended in New York and Linda fell in love with the city. She moved there in 1977 and began the long hard struggle to success.

Club dates were hard to come by so Linda started polishing her performing skills by entertaining in the streets, a not common activity in Greenwich Village. Linda staked out a claim on Fourth Street between Sixth and Seventh Avenue and started singing.

Friday and Saturday nights she would play and sing, slowly gathering an audience who would drop coins in her open guitar case. The case also served as a bulletin board for Linda's posters. Whenever she was appearing at a club, she would tape a notice to her case to let her growing fans know where she was playing. She also asked them to fill out cards so she could add them to her growing mailing list, sending them announcements whenever she appeared in a club.

She admits it was a tough life but it gave her valuable experience in performing for the public.

From playing in the streets to making her demo tape, to getting a manager, performing in clubs, forming her trio and getting her name before the public, Linda has progressed up the show biz ladder. Her next goal is to "have a few gold records, working big concerts and touring." She laughed, but added seriously that those are her dreams and she is working hard to make them come true.

Another goal that will be a measure of Linda's success, while not so flamboyant as a big concert tour or a wall full of gold records, but important nonetheless, is Muzak. "When I hear myself on Muzak in banks and stores throughout the country," she said, "then I'll know I've made it." She is determined.

That picture, that look on her face, that determination symbolizes a lot for Linda. "I'd like to use that picture on my first album cover," she said. —TOM NETSEL

80th Birthday Calls For Celebration

Mildred Sandusky was honored at a coffee at the Fellowship Hall of the Presbyterian Church on Sept. 13 from 10 a.m. to noon.

About 55 guests gathered to help her celebrate her 80th birthday. Among those present were Mildred's niece and nephew, George and Carol Barry, and two grandchildren from New Smyrna Beach.

Also members from the Lake Mary Womans Club, Garden Club and Homemakers Club attended.

Hostesses, led by Mary Terry, included Oladel Cochran, Genevive Cochran, Virginia Anderson, Namerle Stevenson, Mildred Donaldson, Anna Decker, Joan Hyatt, Mae Freeman, Betsy Nelson, Debby Kandelac and Pat Fox.

Autumn colors decorated the hall. A tablecloth made by the Sanford Garden Club, won by Peggy Aiken and presented as a gift to the church, was used on the table. A centerpiece of mums and leaves was surrounded by all sorts of goodies.

Unfortunately, Mildred's family were unable to attend but entertained her royally when she visited her daughters in Ohio just recently.

Ladies Day for the wives of the Rotarians proved to be a huge success. Breakfast was served on Sept. 11 at Mayfair Country Club. A presentation of Rotarian activities was made.

Honored lady of the day was Mrs. Pete Jamison. Mr. and Mrs. Jamison are the parents of the first baby to be born to a Lake Mary Rotarian since the club began seven years ago. The new mother and baby received many useful gifts.

Dick and Betty Lindmeier are back in their home in the Forest after a month at their camp on Eagle Lake, Ontario, Canada. Due to inclement weather on arrival they were unable to land on the private airstrip.

All in all the weather was most refreshing while they were there.

Ray and Pat Fox took an interesting mini-vacation over the Labor Day weekend. To celebrate their 29th wedding anniversary they boarded the Amtrak train in Sanford and rode to Jacksonville. There they were met by Ray's stepfather and family and even presented with a bouquet of fresh flowers.

From Jacksonville they enjoyed the rail ride to Miami and then back to Sanford. Pat declared the trip was most enjoyable, the reclining seats comfortable and food in the diner very good. She said it was interesting seeing little Lake Mary from a train."

Ray Fox III, better known as "Tri," who is the oldest son of Ray and Pat, returns to college this week to work on his second master's degree.

Tri has a master's in Cultural Anthropology from Florida State and now will obtain the second one in history from the University of Florida.

Youth Day in Lake Mary has proven to be a very successful project — one that bears repeating annually.

The Rev. Paul Kagle, chairman of the Rotary community services committee, has worked diligently for its success.

Enthusiasm ran high in the fifth grade at Lake Mary Elementary School as posters were displayed for the various candidates.

After a primary and general election the following students were elected to take office for the day: Mayor, Tonya Stowe; City Manager, Virginia Mayo; City Council, Eddie Murphy, Tom Barganian, Joyce Barganian, Trista Kennedy, Laura Grabofski; Police Chief, Paul Evans; and Fire Chief, Tina Coburn.

The day started with breakfast at Mayfair with the Rotarians. Activities continued through the day and at 7:30 p.m. the "councilmen" took over to weigh city matters. As a finale all those who participated were presented awards of merit.

First, a fast run up to Spartanburg, S.C., to leave some of that green stuff in the mill outlets. Back to the old sewing machine!

Next, we wandered through the north Georgia mountain roads over to Helen. This town has shown initiative and as a result lures many tourists into the quaint village of shops that appear to have been transplanted from Switzerland.

Again, over back country roads we wended our way to La Grange where we celebrated our 20th year of tolerance and much happiness by dining, "In Clover." This is a Victorian mansion turned into an elegant eatery. Much of the decor is in tact. We highly recommend their Beef Wellington prepared by special order.

Vince spent two days playing three of the four golf courses at Callaway Garden just north of Columbus at Pine Mountain. I chauffered the golf cart and enjoyed the beautiful natural scenery. The Gardens will be a glorious sight in about three weeks when the mums and other fall flowers, along with the turning leaves color the landscape. A trip well worth taking.

After two evenings visiting with relatives, we again kept to the country roads en route home. We were impressed with Eufaula, Ala., where an entire street is lined with Civil War mansions that have been restored. Magnificent!

Lake Mary Woman's Club will hold the first meeting of the season Thursday at 10 a.m. in Fellowship Hall of the United Presbyterian Church. A covered dish luncheon will follow the meeting. Dessert, beverages and rolls will be furnished.

Pat Fox is the hostess. Three door prizes will be awarded.

DORIS DIETRICH
OURSELVES Editor

With the arrival of September,

Came a host of fall splendor.

Soon there will be December,

And all of those we remember.

The fall season is off and moving. Terrific.

School is back in full swing, the clubs and organizations are right behind them and the cultural groups have high hopes.

The Sanford-Seminole Art Association is planning the Annual Fall For Art Show on Oct. 11 and 12. According to Bettye Reagan, the show is going to be "bigger and better than ever."

Jan Freeman, president of Seminole Mutual Concern Association, says she is real excited about this year's concert season. Three concerts scheduled to date are the Florida Symphony Orchestra, Tommy Dorsey Band and "Best of Broadway."

"We need to raise a lot of money and need a lot of support," Jane said, "to help stress how important the cultural arts are to the community."

The reception to kick-off the membership drive is scheduled Oct. 18 at Mayfair Country Club.

And Beta Sigma Phi Chapters have begun their hustling and bustling season. Betty Jack and Margie Beine are chairmen of the annual BSP Valentine Charity Ball which is coming up next February.

In case you are an animal lover, Phyllis and Art Grindle will be hosting a benefit auction for the Humane Society of Seminole County on Sept. 28, at their home, 115 Live Oak Lane, Altamonte Springs, from 2 to 6 p.m.

The $10 per person tickets must be arranged in advance. Included are cocktails and a buffet.

Several persons are still talking about the first annual auction last year. "It was just fantastic," a humane society buff said.

The talk around town is Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole is planning a membership drive reception that is going to put a "Gone With the Wind" setting to shame. Shh!

And speaking of Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole, those who attended the benefit performance staged by Sonny Turner and his players are still raving.

"An Evening With The Family" at Sheik's in Orlando, was very Vegas and very enjoyable.

Sonny's repartee with the audience was outstanding. And the kids were so excited over being in the limelight with the popular celebrity.

We all loved Sonny's infamous "Candy Man" portrayal. He passed out lollipops to all the younger crowd who were invited to join him on stage. This lively segment was followed by a surprise disco contest which was a rousing and innovative experience since some of the dancers had never danced. But for the most part, Sonny was overwhelmed at the talent shown by some of the Ballet Guild family.

Jennifer Cowley and her partner won the first prize, a crisp $5 bill, followed by Lisa Clontz and Bobby Brantley Jr., who also won $5.

Jan and Ernie Cowley were on hand to cheer Jennifer on. Jean Clontz, Lisa and Todd, and Patti and Bobby Brantley, and Lenny and Bobby Jr., had a stageside table and were in on a lot of the action and audience play.

Toward the beginning of the show, Sonny called Lenny Brantley on stage to dance with the girl entertainer in his group. Lenny liked that — or seemed to, anyhow.

Sonny recognized several from the Sanford delegation including Miriam Wright and Valerie Weld, the guild artistic directors and choreographers; Mary Blair, the guild public relations rep.; and Sandy Dunn, show coordinator.

And the tables were more than slightly turned when the Ballet Guild Board president Pat Scott, walked on stage and presented Sonny with a framed "Certification of Appreciation" from the guild. He seemed real touched.

The evening's ticket proceeds were directed to Ballet Guild.

Dr. and Mrs. Norman A. (Norma and Lizi) Helfrich attended the National Italian American Foundation's Second International Conference and Third Biennial Tribute Dinner in Washington, D.C. from Sept. 11-13.

Jeno Paulucci is the chairman of this foundation and gave the welcome address. The event honored the Italian-American Congressional Delegation of the 96th Congress and eight outstanding Americans of Italian heritage including actor Henry Fonda.

Liz said President Carter gave a short talk before the antipasto. Vice President Mondale and Gov. and Mrs. Ronald Reagan stayed for dinner.

Other notables included high government officials and business and professional people from Italy and the U.S. The evening ended with dancing to the Peter Duchin Orchestra.

Liz and Norm toured various historical monuments and also visited Hillwood, the home of Marjorie Meriweather Post (actress Dina Merrill's mother) which is now a museum.

Clowning Around...

It's never too late to observe National Clown Week which was last month. Just this week Seminole Memorial Hospital sponsored a Clown Workshop presented by the "Fun and Frolic" of Bahia Temple, Orlando, the workshop was designed with the pediatric units in mind. SMH Candy Stripers and other interested persons attended. The workshop featured Robert Sparkman (Sparky the Clown) who made up clown faces; Calvert C. Gary who came dressed as a clown; Jim Douglas, instructor of balloon animals; and Ray Withrow, instructor.

Company in the San Gabriel Valley. Right from the start they refused to charge admission. After 10 years of performing, appearing on television and radio in their own programs, and tutoring, the Pirigyis moved to Central Florida.

When not planning performances and rehearsing, they earn their living by teaching piano and voice at Streep's in Orlando and through private tutoring.

With this year's season just starting, the Pirigyis said they can use a few more singers in their company. "Not necessarily opera singers," Pirigyi said, "just people who like to sing." Interested parties are invited to call them at 671-5713.

They hope to be able to perform in Sanford this year as they have in years past, but arrangements have not been completed as yet. They have always been well received by audiences here. "The people of Sanford have really turned out," Pirigyi said. "They've been very responsive."

For dedicated artists who freely give their time and talents, a responsive audience is the finest form of payment they can receive.

Rose Of Sharon 134 Marks Anniversary

The Rose Of Sharon No. 134 Order of The Eastern Star will observe its annual anniversary, at St. Matthew Missionary Baptist Church, Midway area. A special musical program has been planned. The highlight of the occasion will be the crowning of the Queen Miss Rose Of Sharon, according to Mrs. Eva Stephen, Worthy Matron.

I had a brief chat with an old friend and classmate, Rev. Herbert V. Reid and his lovely wife, Laura, when they were in the city visiting with his grandmother, Mrs. Ada Dennis.

Rev. Reid is pastor of The Gethsemane Grape Street Baptist Church in Buffalo, N.Y. He is moderator of the Western District Baptist Association. Along with his church work he is very active in the community activities.

The Rev. T.S. Johnson, husband of Mrs. Zelma Blacksheare Johnson, formerly of Sanford who now resides in West Palm Beach, will be in the city today as the guest speaker for Homecoming at St. James. It's always a pleasure to have the Johnsons in our city.

Why Impose Intellectual Garbage On Children?

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: We recently got cable television, and our 12-year-old daughter has been watching R-rated movies even though we would prefer that she not do so.

She said there is nothing wrong with it because she knows what is going on in the world. We're afraid that she'll soon think that the behavior portrayed in these movies is the norm.

Are we square in believing that a 12-year-old really doesn't need to watch a constant stream of sex and violence?

What do you think? And what should we tell her? She is a very level-headed girl. IN A BIND IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR IN: Responsible parents would not permit their children to eat garbage, so why tempt them with intellectual garbage by making it so handy and accessible? If you believe you are exposing your daughter to a constant stream of sex and violence" with cable TV, you shouldn't have it in your home.

Do I think you're "square" No. However, I do think you're unrealistic to have R-rated movies available on TV at home while telling your 12-year-old you prefer she didn't watch them.

DEAR ABBY: The last three times we have been invited to a wedding, I have called the bride's mother and asked if her daughter was registered, or if she had some suggestions on what the bride could use.

All three times, the mother has hemmed and hawed, and ended up saying, "They have so many things already," or, "She's been on her own for some time and has everything she needs, so why don't you just give them the cash instead? I'm sure they can use it."

Abby, I have never given money for a wedding gift, and I don't intend to start now.

I plan to send a gift, and I don't care if it's the only gift they receive. Am I wrong?

DISGUSTED IN WISCONSIN

DEAR DISGUSTED: No. You asked the bride's mother for some "suggestions." She offered one. But you are not obligated to accept it.

DEAR ABBY: The letters from people who are hard of hearing interested me because my mother has had that problem for years.

I wonder how many of your readers know that there's a small piece of equipment that can be attached to the telephone receiver to amplify the sound? We put one on my mother's phone three years ago, and it has been a godsend.

She can push a little button with her thumb and raise the volume of the caller's voice. There is a small installation charge plus a small charge added to her telephone bill each month.

I can't understand why the telephone company doesn't advertise this item, as it would be a tremendous help to so many. Perhaps if you print this, others will inquire. It would be a kindness.

HELPFUL HELEN

DEAR HELEN: Thank you. Now if Ma Bell would just come up with a gadget that would signal those non-stop talkers to say goodbye.

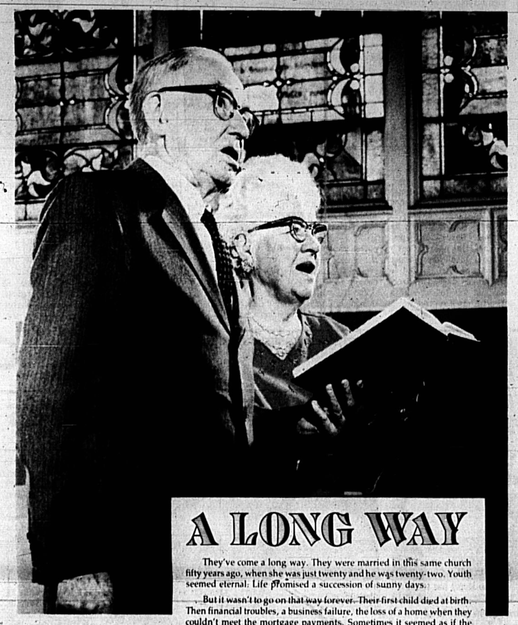
...THE HOPE OF OUR COMMUNITY,

The Church...

OUR NATION!



A LONG WAY

They've come a long way. They were married in this same church fifty years ago, when she was just twenty and he was twenty-two. Youth seemed eternal. Life promised a succession of sunny days.

But it wasn't to go on that way forever. Their first child died at birth. Then financial troubles, a business failure, the loss of a home when they couldn't meet the mortgage payments. Sometimes it seemed as if the clouds outweighed the sunshine.

But there were good times, too. Times of joy and laughter, success, wonderful children, wonderful grandchildren. Through it all, their faith and love for each other never faltered.

Throughout our own life, can we all say as much?

The Young Adults along with the No. 2 Choir of New Mount Calvary Church will be featured in concert on Saturday, Sept. 27 at the New Mount Calvary M.B. Church in Sanford, 7:30 p.m.

Also appearing will be Miss Yvonne Williams of the Macedonia Baptist Church, Osteen, and the New Bethel M.B. Church Choir of Sanford. The concert is open to the public.

110th Anniversary Set

New Salem Primitive Baptist Church will observe its 110th Anniversary this Sunday. The Rev. Arthur Graham and the Clearwater Missionary Baptist Church will be in charge of the 11 a.m. worship service. At 3 p.m. the Rev. O.D. Williams and the local church will be in charge. Communion and the Feet Washing Ceremonies will be given with all local ministers and deacons invited to be a part of this special service.

Nazarene Pastor's Conference

Dr. J.V. Morsch, district superintendent, will preside at the annual conference of pastor's and wives at Moody Keswick Bible Conference in St. Petersburg. The conference will begin Sept. 29 and conclude at noon, Oct. 1. Pastors and wives from this area are expected to attend. The program includes addresses by Dr. Homer Adams, president of Trevecca Nazarene College and Dr. Ponder Gilliland, pastor of the Bethany First Church in Bethany, Okla.

Morning Service Added

Beginning Sept. 28, the Ravenna Park Baptist Church, 2743 Country Club Road, Sanford, will provide two morning worship services for the community. Worship times will be 8:45 and 11 a.m. with Sunday School being 9:45 a.m.

Mission Sunday Observed

The Grace United Methodist Women will observe Mission Sunday, Sept. 21, during the 11 a.m. service and a covered dish dinner at noon. Dr. William Hughlett, a retired missionary from Africa will be the guest speaker. He will also meet with the youth 6 p.m., Sunday and will be guest speaker at the United Methodist Women's luncheon Monday, Sept. 22, 11:30 a.m.

Cornerstone Service

Bethel A.M.E. Church, Midway will have the cornerstone laying service for the educational building, at 3 p.m. this Sunday. The service will be conducted by the Rev. R.V. Webster of St. Stephen A.M.E. Church, Jacksonville, choirs and ushers will join in the worship service. Rev. Marcus Burke, pastor.

Friends Day

The Youth and Young Adult Choir of Zion Hope Missionary Baptist Church will observe "Friends Day", Sept. 28, at 11 a.m. The guest speaker will be Emory Blake. At the 3 p.m. services, various choirs will be featured in a musical program. Rev. J.L. Brooks is pastor.

Revival Continues

Revival services, which began Thursday at First Baptist Church of Deltona, continue nightly through Wednesday at 7 o'clock. The evangelist is the Rev. Goodman. There is special music each night and a baby nursery is provided. The church is located at 1200 Providence Boulevard.

Jackie Gillespie of Titusville will be the inspirational speaker and Sandra de Zouw will provide the special music. There will be a stitchery display by Artoria Designs.

Ichthus Officers Installed

The Senior High Fellowship of First Presbyterian Church, Sanford, has taken the name Ichthus Fellowship. Officers for the coming year were installed last Sunday during the 11 a.m. service. They are Miss Donna Pfeifauf, president; Miss Robin Kurts, vice president and program chairman; Chip Gregory, treasurer and retreat chairman; Kathy Hall and April Osteen, chaplains and meal coordinators.

Appreciation Dinners

An appreciation dinner will be held on Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Community United Methodist Church fellowship hall for the church ushers and their wives. On Thursday at 7 p.m. the choir members and their spouses or dates will be honored at a dinner.

Guest Preacher

The Rev. George E. Dunn Sr. will be guest preacher at the 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. worship services this Sunday at the First Baptist Church of Sanford.

The church waived the by-laws concerning the one year election of deacons and will vote upon all ordained deacons willing to serve as active deacons for one year at the Sept. 28 morning service.

Says Church Report

Arms Race Is 'False God'

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

The Theological Commission of the Reformed Church in America has taken a long look at the world's nuclear arms race and pronounced it an idolatrous, false religion that must be opposed at every step.

The denomination, which grew out of the Dutch migration to the United States, traces its history in this nation back to as early as 1628 and is the oldest Protestant denomination with a continuous ministry in the United States.

It takes its theological lead from the Reformers Zwingli and Calvin and is not a pacifist denomination such as the Friends or Church of the Brethren.

But on the issue of the arms race and the potential for nuclear war, the Theological Commission, in a lengthy report to the church's General synod, criticized what it called the "modern church's easy conscience" in the face of war.

"The fundamental religious character of the nuclear arms race is seen first in its appeal to the human longing for security," the study said, "or more precisely, its manipulation of that longing."

"The nuclear arms race and the widespread support or acquiescence in it enjoys are founded on the illusion that security can be guaranteed by 'strategic superiority,' that is, that salvation belongs to the strong."

"The certain sign of a false security, a false god, is the greater insecurity which inevitably results from its religious pretensions," the study said, adding that each advance in the arms race "carries us not nearer the gates of Heaven but closer to the abyss."

"Woe to those who go down to Egypt for help and rely on horses, who trust in chariots because they are many, and in horsemen because they are very strong, but do not look to the Holy One of Israel or consult the Lord." (Is. 31:1)

"While a measure of defense is necessary in a fallen world, that nation is most secure whose citizens are adequately fed, housed, educated, employed and cared for," the commission said.

It said that while there were many reasons to oppose the arms race, the chief reason for the church's opposition is that nuclear weapons "are idolatrous — an affront to God."

"Reformed theology emphasizes both the majesty of God and the ever-present human propensity toward idolatry," it said. "Ultimate weapons, ultimate enemies, ultimate ends that justify any means require a false god to sanction them."

The report used the Apostle Paul's category of "principalities and powers" — superhuman, transpersonal realities that condition earthly life — to categorize the driving force behind the arms race.

"The nuclear arms race has taken on a life of its own, compelled by superhuman powers of evil that seem to defy the best human intentions," it said.

But it found in Christ's defeat of the powers in his death and resurrection a source of hope for Christians contending against the nuclear arms race.

"It is decisive for Christian opposition to the most bizarre and threatening idolatry of our age," the report said.

"The faithful church today will stand in the power of love against the false gods of the world," the report concluded. "She will condemn any preparation or use of nuclear force and the godless morality of security through might."

Bishop Announces District Changes

The DeLand District, which includes Sanford, will have a change in district superintendents as the result of moves announced by Florida United Methodist Bishop Earl G. Hunt Jr., due to the death in August of the Rev. Dr. A.A. Hedberg, pastor of First United Meth

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Sunday, September 21, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY
September 21, 1980

A new assignment or position could put a greater load upon your shoulders in the year ahead. It will be a major breakthrough, with a larger paycheck.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll start to realize today that you did the right thing when you resisted scrapping projects or ventures when lack of progress greatly disappointed you. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In areas where you have previously dawdled, you may see the dawn of a new sense of urgency. This will be due in part to a fresh surge of ambition.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Some information may be passed on to you today that should not be divulged, even to your closest confidants. Fortunately, you are very good at keeping secrets.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't be surprised today if an organization to which you belong wants you to seek office or assume extra duties. Once you get into the swing of things, you'll like it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There is more financial opportunity around you than usual today. It's not from new enterprises, but from old things which can be rejuvenated. Be alert.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You could experience something today that will teach you a very valuable lesson: Have faith in your ideas and plans. They can work out as you envisioned.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You could feel that the vicissitudes of life have gotten the better of you for a while today, but many of your troubles should soon begin to depart.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Something serious could occur today in a relationship you deem very important, whether it bodes for good or ill depends upon how tactfully you handle it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This may not be a day of total rest and relaxation. Some duties cry for attention. It would be wise for you to heed their call.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There may be a spot in which you've been unable to fully express the aptitude you feel you have for it. You could begin to do so today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There are major changes in the mill that could be advantageous to you materially. They could be so subtle, however, that you might not recognize them.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may form a bond with someone to whom you've never been as close as you'd like. It will be a very important relationship.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

In 1912 players of the new game of auction bridge had great trouble trying to get into the bidding with a hand like: S- A K x x H- A K x x D- x C- K Q x x x if an opponent opened the bidding with one diamond. In those early bidding days you just didn't bid four-card suits, all doubles were for penalty and you just didn't bid notrump when you couldn't stop the opponent's bid suit.

About that time Major Charles Eaton in New York and Bryant McCampbell (also inventor of the 4-3-2-1 point count) and others invented the takeout double.

This completely artificial bid is now in such universal use that a player who doubled an adverse suit opening bid for penalty would be using an artifical convention.

Until 1957 a double by the partner of the opening bidder was always a penalty double. Then Alvin Roth started using the double by this player as a takeout double.

Thus, with S- A J x x H- K 10 x x D- x x x C- x x x you would have a perfect negative double of a two-club overcall of your partner's one-diamond opening.

These negative doubles have not been embodied in standard American as yet, but have been almost universally adopted in expert tournament play. You and your partners may want to start using them in your own games.

We will discuss them in our next two Saturday articles. Even if you don't want to use them, they are now an integral part of expert bridge and they should prove of interest.

For Monday, September 22, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY
SEPTEMBER 22, 1980

A new and more ambitious you will begin to emerge in the months ahead. Your nonsense attitude will enable you to accomplish what you set your mind to.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The right type of partner can be an enormous asset to you today in your financial affairs. Seek someone who is practical and trustworthy. Your chances of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth date.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Things may not necessarily come to you today in the way you envisioned, but the end result should be very much to your liking. Sit tight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your nature is a bit ambivalent today. You're both cautious and speculative. The blend, however, makes for a winning and rewarding combination.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be on your toes today. An unusual situation could develop which may enable you to get something you felt was out of reach. A pal might make it possible.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Size up career situations objectively today and you should see that you are in a fortunate position to realize an unfulfilled ambition.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Material foundations can be strengthened today if you begin to implement plans for a future harvest. Be patient. Don't expect a crop to appear overnight.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Joint ventures have a better-than-usual chance for success today, provided you assume the leadership role. Be a delegator instead of a dependant.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Situations usually under your direct control may be in the hands of others today. Even though this is disturbing, things should work out.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone you've been hoping would back you up where your work or career is concerned is now swayed to your cause. His or her input will be felt.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Substantial achievements are possible today. You're capable of utilizing your talents and ingenuity to the fullest. Seek goals worthy of your efforts.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's important today to have faith regarding the outcome of events. Your positive attitude will prompt you to take all the proper steps.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Profits can be enhanced in your commercial dealings today if you probe for ways to strengthen your position. Don't jump at initial offers.
