BORDER GUARDIANS

For almost a year, Border Patrol officers were aware that Simonovich was engaged in questionable activities, and when they learned that the Russian wanted to talk with Murphy, they at once began some quiet, but intensive, investigating.

Oddly enough, the original tip-off about Murphy came from Washington, D. C., rather than from Miami or Cuba. Border Patrol officers in Florida didn't even know Edward William Murphy existed, let alone that he was mixed up in alien smuggling activities, until an immigration officer in Washington, D. C. telephoned the Miami office.

A letter followed the phone call, which gave the Border Patrol additional information about the mysterious Murphy, including his current address.

The address turned out to be the residence of Murphy's mother-in-law. Adroit questioning produced the fact that Murphy lived with his wife in a trailer at the TropicAire Airport just west of Miami.

Border Patrol officers went to the TropicAire Airport and discreetly inquired about Murphy. The man wasn't around, but the officers learned he owned a small two-place plane, a BT 13. More than that, Murphy made suspended sentence for grand larceny, right in Miami!

By the very nature of their business, law enforcement officers are suspicious; they have to be, and the Border Patrol is no exception. By the looks of things, here was a set of very suspicious circumstances.

As the Border Patrol saw it, this is the way things shaped up:

(1) They were almost positive that Simonovich was engaged in alien smuggling out of Cuba. However, the identity of the person or persons transporting aliens was unknown.

(2) A definite "tip" had come in that Edward William Murphy had a tie-in with Simonovich.

a living ferrying larger planes to Cuba for several well-known Miami businessmen who were dealers in aircraft.

While the Border Patrol was learning these interesting facts, several other facets of Murphy's past life were unearthed. A check with John T. Barber, immigration officer in charge at Havana, proved a dud, as at the time Murphy was not known to have engaged in any questionable activities. However, cooperation by the Civil Aeronautics Authority disclosed that Murphy had resided in other cities in the United States besides Miami. A check with the police departments of these cities revealed that the suspect had served one year for grand larceny and had been picked up in several towns on smaller charges, for investigation.

Furthermore, Murphy had a

(3) Murphy was an expert pilot who ostensibly ferried planes from Miami to Cuba.

(4) Murphy had a criminal record, and was believed to be the "type" of young man who would be engaged in the dangerous business of smuggling aliens.

It wasn't until two months after the original tip-off that the Patrol got its first big break. On the afternoon of Sunday, March 28, 1948, the manager of the Fernandina Airport telephoned the Border Patrol office in Jacksonville that a red Cessna plane had landed and was taking on a large load of gas. The manager further said there were "four or five Oriental-looking passengers aboard." Most important of all, the manager gave the Patrol the plane's license number.

Immediately, the Civil Aeronautics Authority was called for help. Despite the fact it was Sunday, the head of the CAA was located in Atlanta, Ga. In a short time it was learned that the red Cessna plane was registered to two eminently respectable Miami businessmen. A fast check revealed they had sold the plane to Murphy, but Murphy hadn't bothered to change the registration. That absolved the Miami businessmen, and pretty clearly established that Murphy was running aliens. From then on, things began to happen fast. For several days, the Border Patrol was only one jump behind Murphy. The CAA got on the ball and informed the Patrol that the red Cessna had stopped at Raleigh, N. C., after leaving Fernandina. The next morning, Murphy and his load of aliens landed at Teterborough Airport, N. J., 20 miles from New York City. With the Patrol hot on his heels, Murphy had taken his human contraband to the city in an automobile, exact destination unknown. In the meantime, the Miami office of the Border Patrol had been busy. Officers there learned that Murphy had made numerous telephone calls recently to Miami, from a hotel in New York. This information was given to New York police along with a photo of Murphy. The net was tightening, but before it could be closed, Murphy disappeared from New York.

SKID ON SLIPPERY PAVEMENT KILLS 2

Father and Son Lose Lives as Car Crashes into Pole in Storm Near County Line

James W. Deolittle and his son, Jerry, were killed yesterday afternoon in a tragic accident when their car

Skids are less likely on CONCRETE

The difference between a deadly skid and a safe, quick stop is often the pavement. You can stop faster, even in the rain, on concrete. That's because concrete's gritty surface gives your tires a firm, tight grip, wet or dry.

Besides permitting better vehicle control, concrete makes nighttime driving safer too! Concrete's light-colored surface reflects up to four times more light than dark colored pavements. You can see farther and have more time to slow down or stop to avoid danger.

Concrete roads also are safer because they're free from hazardous ruts, washboard wrinkles and raveled edges.

It's worth remembering that when the weather is rough you're much safer on skid-resistant concrete.

Today we are presenting some of the recipes sent by our readers, making use of the splendid pecans grown so plentifully in our state. We are also announcing the recipe-of-the-week winners for the month of December, as follows: December 4, Mrs. Irene A. Ostrom, Lantana, Shrimp Stuffed Eggplant; December 11, Mrs. E. E. Stokes, Atlantic Beach, Seafood Jubilee; December 18, Mrs. Lester Griffin, Ocala, Tropical Fruit Cake; December 25, Mrs. J. L. Armstrong, Fernandina, Turkey Roll-up. Send your Florida recipes to Recipe Editor, All Florida Magazine, Ocala.

PECAN LAYER CAKE

3 cups Florida pecans, chopped fine; 1 1/2 cups sugar; 6 eggs; 2 lbs. cake flour; 1/4 tsp. salt; 2 tsp. baking powder; 2 cups whipped cream; 1 tsp. vanilla; 1/4 cup powdered sugar.

Grind or chop nuts to the fineness of corn meal. Beat the egg yolks and sugar together till they bubble. Mix the baking powder, flour and chopped nuts lightly with the stiffly beaten egg whites and fold this into the yolk and sugar mixture. Bake in two layers in pans lined with waxed paper and greased well, using a moderate oven (350 degrees), for 15 to 20 minutes. Let cake cool in the pans. Put together with the whipped cream, flavored with the sugar and vanilla. Use on top of cake also, putting on thick and in rough swirls.

—Mrs. S. L. DeGrom, Daytona Beach.

PECAN PUFFS

1/2 cup butter; 2 lbs. sugar; 1 tsp. vanilla; 1 cup Florida pecan meats; 1 cup cake flour; confectioner's sugar.

Beat the butter until soft. Add the sugar and blend until creamy. Add the vanilla. Measure, then grind the pecans in a nut grinder. Stir the pecans and flour into the mixture. Roll the dough into small balls. Place them on a greased baking sheet and bake in a slow oven (300 degrees) for 45 minutes. Roll the puffs while still hot in confectioner's sugar. When cold, roll again in confectioner's sugar.

—Mrs. A. R. Janitz, Parker.

PECAN PIE

2 lbs. all-purpose flour; 1/2 cup brown sugar, light or dark; 1/2 tsp. salt; 1/2 cup butter; 3 eggs; 1 cup corn syrup, light or dark; 1 tsp. vanilla; 1 cup Florida pecan halves.

Start oven at 375 degrees. Mix flour, sugar, and salt together. Melt butter. Beat eggs until bubbly and add flour mixture, butter, corn syrup and vanilla. Arrange nuts in bottom of unbaked pastry shell. Pour egg mixture over pecans. Bake 10 minutes and reduce heat to 325 degrees, then bake 45 minutes longer.

—Mrs. William Graves, Oklawaha.

PECAN LOAF CAKE

2 cups cake flour; 2 tsp. baking powder; 1/4 tsp. salt; 1/2 cup soft shortening; 1 tsp. vanilla; 3 eggs; 1/2 cup milk; 1/4 cup water; 2 cups chopped Florida pecans; 1 cup sugar.

First, light the oven at 350 degrees. Then sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Cream shortening, sugar and vanilla thoroughly. Beat in the eggs. Stir in about one-third of the flour mixture along with the milk and water, gradually adding the remainder of the flour mixture and beat until fluffy and smooth. Stir pecans into one-fourth cup flour until they are completely rolled in flour, then stir into the cake mixture. Pour into loaf pan lined by five by three inches and bake about one and a half to two hours—or until thoroughly done. Let stand five minutes before turning out of pan.

—Mrs. E. Whittney, Tallahassee.

These Were Favorites of '55

By LILLIE MAY MARSHALL

DURING the months over which we have published our Floridians' Favorite Recipes Contest and our Tradition in the Kitchen page, we have had many requests for copies of the recipes used, from readers who have misplaced various issues. Now, at the beginning of 1956, we are looking back, and publishing again, some of those which have been favorites with our readers.

Florida Shrimp Aspic

This lusciously pink dish is made by Mrs. Ray Richardson of Atlantic Beach, as follows: Dissolve one tablespoon unflavored gelatin in one-half cup cold water and add to a can of hot tomato soup. Mix in two packages softened cream cheese and allow to cool. Then add half cup mayonnaise, a cup chopped Florida celery, three cups Florida shrimp mashed with fork, minced onion and salt to taste. It's as good as pretty, molded, chilled and served on lettuce.

Swamp Cabbage

A dish as truly Florida as its citrus fruit, is this one which Mrs. Annie S. Thomas of Ocala describes as being cooked "as it was originally intended to be." Strip the swamp cabbage down and down until it is tender and sweet. While preparing, have about a half pound of salt pork—or white bacon—cooking slowly in about four cups of water. Add the swamp cabbage, chopped, and boil slowly for about an hour, or until meltingly tender and most of the water is absorbed. Then pour sufficient cream—not milk—according to Mrs. Thomas, over all, to make a good sauce. Cook a bit longer. Sprinkle paprika over top and there's a succulent, beautiful dish!

Florida Pone-let Cornbread

A real "Cracker" cornbread, especially good with Florida vegetables, or buttered hot and enjoyed with a cold glass of milk—is described by Mrs. Byron Suber of Grotto. Sift two cups Florida water-ground meal (it's the meal that makes the difference) and one teaspoon salt. Add one and a half cups sweet skimmed milk and three tablespoons bacon drippings, then sufficient hot water to make mixture almost as thin as batter. The consistency is important—just thick enough to hold shape when dropped by tablespoonsful onto hot greased griddle. Small individual pones are formed. Can be cooked in aluminum pan, but will brown and form crunchy crust on iron griddle. Bake in hot oven until golden brown all over and edges are crisp. Try it, if you haven't already.

Strawberry Delight

And what a delight is this one suggested by Mrs. C. K. Borden of Lake Worth. In quantity to serve seven to eight, cream half a pound of butter with one and a quarter cups sugar. Add a pint of strawberries and half a cup broken pecans and fold in two egg whites, stiffly beaten. Line an oblong or square glass dish with broken vanilla wafers and cover with the berry mixture. Continue in alternating layers, letting wafer crumbs form top. Refrigerate until ready to serve.

Florida Orange Cream Fluff

This is a dessert Mrs. Frank Robinson of Tampa recommends as one which men, in particular, like and of which they most always take "seconds" and brave souls, "thirds." Blend together four tablespoons each Florida lime and orange juice, one tablespoon grated Florida orange rind, a 15-ounce can sweetened condensed milk and yolks of two eggs, in top of double boiler. Stir until thickened. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into above mixture. For each serving, split two lady fingers lengthwise and stand at sides of individual serving dish. Pour orange cream into center. Chill if desired. Garnish each serving with an orange slice. Mrs. Robinson recommends it as a perfect dessert for a heavy meal and states it can be prepared in 10 or 15 minutes—or hours ahead.

Here's a good start for good food during a good new year!

Chicken Pilau (right) has been from the early days of Florida, the stand-by for "gatherings" or just family dinners, in-doors or in the open.

Swamp cabbage, perhaps the most traditional of Florida dishes, is a favorite cooked, as well as a base for a most unusual tasting salad.

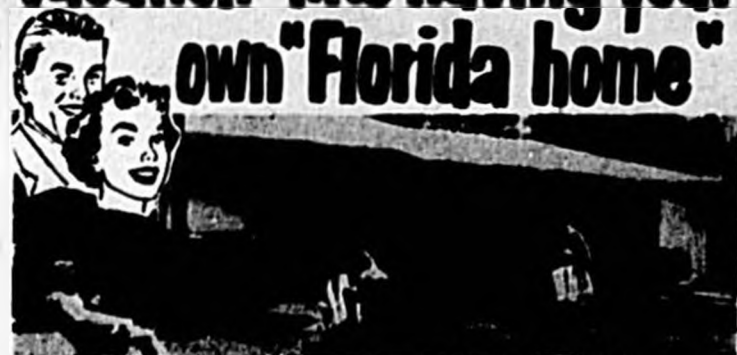

Shrimp aspic, "pretty as a picture," tastes good, too. Strawberry Delight (upper right) is an easy-to-make dessert, delicious and eye-appealing.

MIAMI'S MAGIC WATERWAYS

Turning southward, they moved at a leisurely pace to a point where Coral Gables waterway breaks the shoreline of Biscayne Bay and winds its way into the heart of one of America's most beautiful residence areas.

Threading back down the waterway, the Farrons reached the open water of Biscayne Bay again and skimmed along powerfully and smoothly to the mouth of the Miami River, in downtown Miami. There were half a dozen bridges to be passed under before reaching Munn Isle, where they went ashore and were greeted by Seminoles, clad in tier upon tier of color.

These chickee-dwelling Indians are stoic and solemn reminders of another era, when Seminole-paddled canoes required days to cover the historic waters, which the Farrons were doing with their outboard junket in a matter of hours.

Further down the river, stately homes built four to five decades ago came into view, reduced by the elements to large, rambling shacks.

Out on the bay, giving the motor its head, they raced toward Miami Beach, slowing down to meander through Indian Creek, lazily along in the shadow of Miami Beach's pastel painted hotel row, only a few minutes—but hundreds of years—removed from the Indian village they had left behind.

The sun was setting then, and the Farrons headed for home. The easily transported cruiser, "My Jean," went with them, for to the Farrons, like thousands of other Floridians, their boathouse is the family garage.

Outboard motoring is a way of life to the family when Jerry isn't working as South Florida manager for Farren's Tree Surgeons, Inc. Both Jerry and Jean are Rollins College graduates, having been married in the chapel there. Former residents of Daytona Beach, they have spent much of their time afloat since coming to Miami six years ago, and they find a day-long look at Miami from the water fun—a weekend.

Gym Champions Compete

By E. J. CAMPEAU

"The way she performs, it looks so-o-o easy"—we thought as we saw seven-year-old Judy Wills of Gulfport, Miss., go through her championship tumbling repertoire. After trying it, however, we decided to take up knitting, instead!

Members of a very large audience were thrilled with the show of grace, beauty and symmetry of motion demonstrated by contestants in the First Annual South Florida Gymnastics Championships for Women, held recently at Naples.

It was there that little Judy Wills, holder of the Florida AAU, Southern AAU and the Texas tumbling title and others, repeated the sterling performance which had won her previous crowns, and which gave her a new one there, in the junior championships.

Contenders were present from St. Petersburg, West Palm Beach, Tallahassee, Florida Southern College, Florida State University and Naples, as well as from the Hines School of Gulfport, Miss., and Murphy High School, Atlanta, Ga.

The judges, George Cary of St. Petersburg; Joe Calvetti of Lakeland, himself a former national champion of the high bar; and Sam Balle of St. Petersburg, present national flying rings champion, found their job a difficult one.

Beverly Cude, Canadian all-around sokol champion, representing Florida State University in the senior girls' division, carried off the all-around trophy as the South Florida champion, together with other trophies and medals, for her spectacular performances.

Topal Staton, of St. Petersburg, was winner of second place honors; Marilyn Staton of St. Petersburg, third; and Cassie Collawn of Naples, fourth.

The title for junior girls—under 15 years of age—went to Judy Kowalsky of St. Petersburg. Her team-mate, Ruth Stewart, was second, and Janice May, Louise Bračk and Evelyn Staker, all of Naples, third, fourth and fifth respectively.

Drill teams from Florida Southern, West Palm Beach Recreation Department and Florida State University demonstrated unit team coordination in beautiful form. Girls of the Florida Southern team kept flags waving, all the while they performed their routine. The West Palm Beach unit, composed of 11 and 12-year-old girls, performed with castinets to piano accompaniment.

The Florida State University team, with rhythmic gymnastics, won first place in this competition, and Florida Southern placed second.

While the growth in this country, especially in the South, has been rapid during the past few years, it is not known when or where gymnastics originated. Germany's and the Slavic countries' immigrants brought the sport here many years ago, but whether it started in those areas, or was an activity that the Roman legions or perhaps the Greeks, introduced, is still a question in which the experts seem vague. Be that as it may, it is one of the most beautiful of all athletic events from the spectator's standpoint, and women's participation is steadily increasing.

It is interesting to note that of the approximately five recreation program sponsored competitive gymnast teams in the

The first AAU gymnastic championships for women were held in 1931. Early this year, two events were staged at Hartlett Park Youth Center in St. Petersburg, the recent meet at Naples being the third one in the state.

Miami's Magic Waterways

By LILLIE MAE MARSHA

MIAMI began with a river, and its first settlement was at the mouth where, after tumbling over rapids, the Miami River finally foamed into Biscayne Bay. The rapids are gone now, but the river flows on, carrying water from the great Everglades sea of grass to the Atlantic.

The first homes followed the river bank inland. Then came the canals, opening more and more acres to water traffic and giving waterfront property its value.

Miami is still a city of waterways. Floridians are among the most boat-minded folk in the world, and Miamians are no exception. Typical of the vacation-the-year-around spirit of so many Miamians who work hard during the week, but for whom every weekend is a treasured vacation, are Jean and Jerry Farrens, who are enthusiastic boaters. Together with their children—Bruce, two and Gloria, four—they set out on a recent weekend in their 16-foot Owens outboard cruiser powered by a 30-horsepower Evinrude motor, to prove that from art museum to primitive Indian village, the waterfront can literally be covered in a day's time.

They sailed past rotting hulks that have lined parts of the Miami River for years. They saw a one-time Mississippi River stern-wheeler being overhauled, and they watched fishermen sort pink-boiled crawfish before shipping them off to market.

Launching their boat—"My Jean"—by the Rickenbacker Causeway, the Farrens cruised to Virginia Key—an island, like Miami Beach—connected to the mainland by causeway, here to visit the Seaquarium, seawest of South Florida's attractions.

Among the tenants of the Seaquarium, they found fierce sharks and barracuda mingling with tiny, neon-hued residents of the Florida reefs, educated porpoises wearing permanent smiles, crashing from the water and hurtling 16 feet into the air to snatch food from the hand of their trainer.

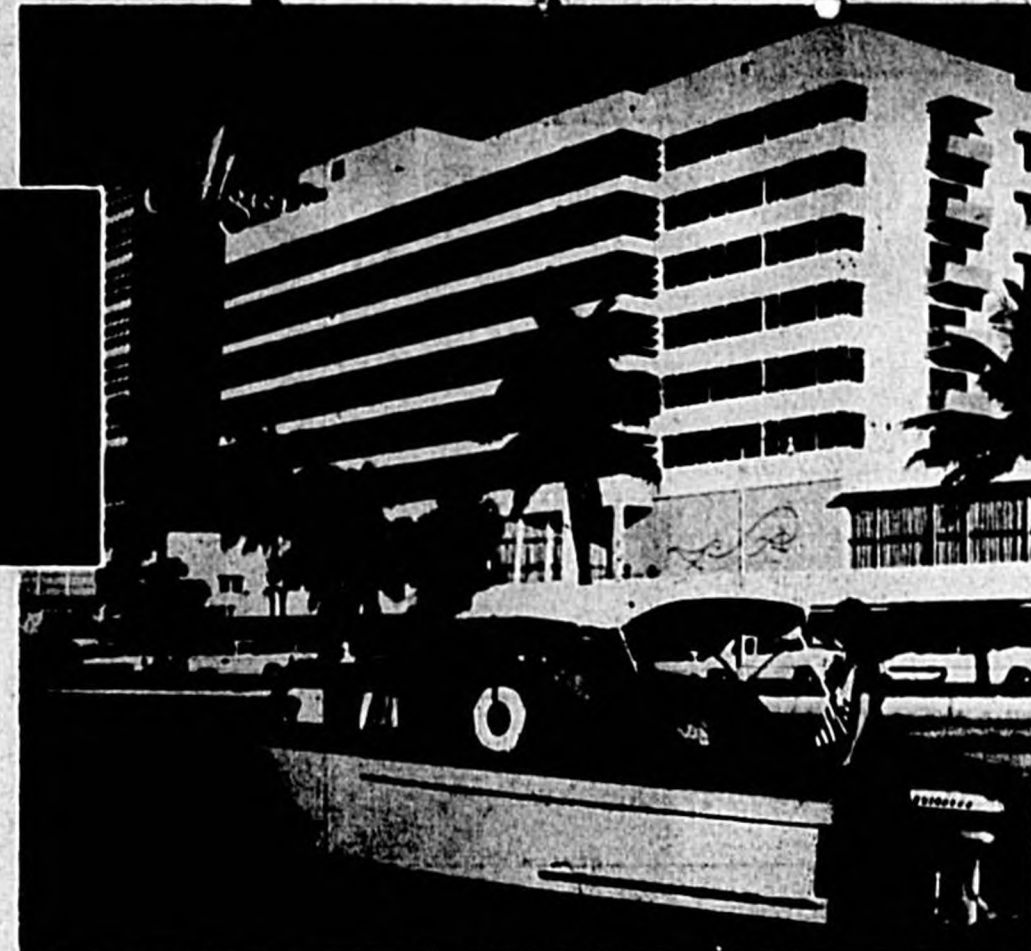

Moving on, they moored at the docks alongside the Marina Restaurant and lunched a la drive-in style.

Then, picking their way through shallow waters, they entered Key Biscayne at the end of the causeway, and the home of Crandon Park, Dade County's largest recreation area.

They rounded the southern tip of the five-mile long island—a one-time coconut plantation still covered with thousands of palms—and off Cape Florida into the open Atlantic where fishing is good, particularly for barracuda.

Heading back to the Miami mainland, the adventurers nosed the boat up to the seaward side of Vizcaya, the fabulous estate of James Deering, millionaire. Vizcaya has no moorings, so the sea-going sightseers had to be content with a view of the formal gardens, described and pictured in a recent issue of All Florida Magazine, from their bobbing boat.

WHAT faces Florida in 1957

As we start out today on a new year in Florida's history, we pause to remember our state's glorious past, in an attempt at predicting its future. All of us sort of wonder what the 366 days of this year hold for Floridians, and we ask ourselves if we can expect the continued progress of the past several decades to hold true this year in the fields of agriculture, industry and tourism, our three economic giants.

From where we sit, surrounded by reports and surveys from leading research organizations throughout the country, and basing our predictions on facts and figures ably supported and reliably reported by these groups, we can truly say that Florida's light shines brightly in 1956.

Let's look at Agriculture: (Figures supplied by Florida State Marketing Bureau, Jacksonville).

Florida fruits and vegetables grossed the producers some $441,000,000 during the 1954-55 season, compared to $402,000,000 for the previous year. This is a noteworthy gain of some $39,000,000. Citrus accounted for $245,805,000, and vegetables for $173,723,000 for an exceptionally high spot in Florida's agricultural picture. Miscellaneous fruits grossed $20,408,300, some $5,000,000 more than last year.

Following through on the agricultural picture, live-stock sales totaled $58,398,000; poultry, egg and dairy products were worth $78,681,000; general field crops were valued at $67,002,000; and miscellaneous specialties like pecans, tung nuts, honey and flowers sold for $29,002,000—for a total Florida agricultural gross value of $673,016,300.

The outlook for this year's agricultural products:

Citrus: The United States Department of Agriculture predicts a 133,600,000 box Florida citrus crop, or 6,000,000 more boxes than last year. For the growers in general, this is good news, for it's a bumper crop. For the pickers and handlers, there's plenty of work; and for the processors, a steady flow of fruit throughout the season. The breakdown is 91,000,000 boxes of oranges, 38,000,000 boxes of grapefruit and 4,600,000 boxes of tangerines.

A high level of demand for Florida-produced food is indicated as high income, and employment prospects will apparently hold to their high level of last year. Farm prices for vegetables last year were remarkably steady and the coming year should be another successful one.

Prospects for the 1955 feed production appear excellent, with a record carry-over of feed grains. Production in this state, of corn, oats, dried citrus pulp, citrus and blackstrap molasses, will continue to supply a large proportion of the total concentrates fed. The long range outlook for beef cattle is good, as many ranchers continue going along with the suggestion of improving quality of cattle rather than increasing numbers.

The large increase in hog and pig production gives that portion of the agricultural picture an unfavorable scene, with lower prices forecast this coming year. Consumption of dairy products is expected to rise, while this state is still in the grasp of a deficit as a poultry-producing area. The latter may change, but this depends upon greater efficiency in operating the poultry farm to decrease cost.

Along with agriculture is the lumber production, which will increase because of building expansion, population growth and favorable conditions for new industry. The demand for wood pulp and paper is expected to increase, while naval stores will remain at the same level of last year.

Now for the industrial scene:

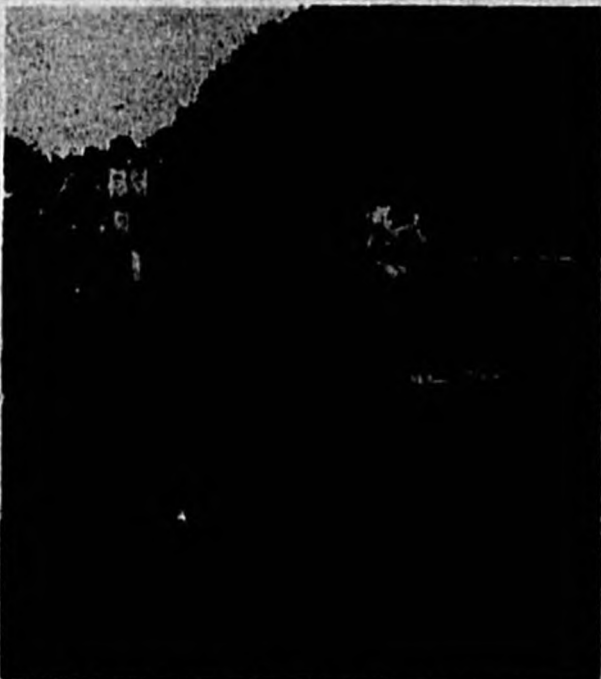

Where once tourism was the greatest aspect of Florida's economy, today it is industry. Migration of new businesses to this state in recent years has increased the state's manufacturing dollar volume to a point where it now exceeds the total revenue from tourism.

Day in and day out, new industries continue setting up plants in this state, while businesses already in Florida, seeing their sales increase in line with Florida's growing population, make plans for expansion of their existing facilities.

The statistical abstract issued by the State Chamber of Commerce and backed up by reliable figures reports the following gains between 1940 and 1953:

Wages and salaries, U. S. 293 per cent; Florida, 454 per cent; bank resources, U. S. 214 per cent, Florida, 430 per cent; increased industrial activity, U. S. 10.8 per cent, Florida, 50.1 per cent; retail sales, U. S. 309 per cent, Florida, 469 per cent; and population, U. S. 7.6 per cent, Florida, 27.1 per cent.

In 1947, the U. S. Bureau of Census reported 2,807 manufacturing plants in Florida and today there are more than 5,000 such plants, with the number increasing daily. The dollar volume of the manufactured products equals $1,500,000,000.

The major reasons for industry coming to Florida are proximity to major markets in the Southeast, good climate and living conditions, an adequate supply of labor and raw materials, good water supply, good transportation and power facilities, and a friendly, co-operative citizenry and government.

Perhaps another factor in the industrial expansion of Florida is the strategic position of this state in relation to Latin American markets, which are claiming more and more attention of American businessmen. More than half of this country's exports, exclusive of military supplies, goes to nations to the south of Florida.

Another indication of progress in trading with Latin America is the Inter-American Cultural and Trade Center to be constructed in Miami at a cost of more than $70,000,000. When in operation, expected to open December 1958, it will feature the cultural, educational and development aspects of Inter-American relations.

So the prospect for industry in 1958 is good, with additional plants slated to either come south or open branch offices in this state. Those contemplating a move to this state will experience no difficulty in securing skilled, productive workers, because this state's manpower pool has varied skills, keen intelligence and broad experience in many fields. The universal desire of skilled workmen to live in this state is Florida's greatest industrial asset.

And then we come to tourism:

Here the scene appears brighter than ever, as high incomes and better living conditions; fewer working hours and more leisure time; more vacation plans, better retirement systems; better highways and transportation facilities all spell millions and millions of winter visitors heading toward the Sunshine State.

Naturally, word of mouth is the best advertising and the better than 8,000,000 persons that visit our state each year are our best advertising salesmen. Each year, also, hundreds of professional societies, business associations, and industries of many kinds hold their annual conventions here in this state, with many members later returning for longer visits and eventual retirement as residents.

The money these folks spend in Florida during their annual visits amounts to an estimated billion dollars. In 1954, there were 8,200,000 out-of-staters visiting this state and contributing $960,000,000 to the commonwealth's economy. This was a two per cent gain over 1953, in both numbers and income.

So, with these items in mind as we look toward the coming year, we can truthfully say the outlook is favorable for the continued prosperity of Florida. This can be measured by most facets of growth and progress, from our educational institutions where the enrollment is increasing by leaps and bounds to an estimated 700,000 pupils in our schools today, and to our commercial fish catch where more than 200,000,000 pounds of fish were taken last year from the state's waters.

NATHAN MAYO

Brief Biography of Nathan Mayo

Nathan Mayo, Florida's Commissioner of Agriculture, was appointed by Gov. Cary Hardee, Nov. 1, 1923, and has been re-elected each four years since for a total of eight terms. He will have completed 33 years of service when his present term ends, the longest continuous service of any of Florida's state cabinet officers.

He served as county commissioner of Marion County in 1913, and represented Marion County in the State Legislature in 1921 and 1923. He has managed a number of businesses and still retains an active interest in the citrus and nursery industries.

Mr. Mayo was named Farmer of the Year by the Southern Agriculturist in 1937. He was presented with an honorary membership in the Florida State Horticultural Society, and in 1939 was honored by being named president of the National Association of Commissioners, Secretaries and Directors of Agriculture. He is generally referred to in this state as the Grand Old Man of Agriculture.

A member of Kiwanis, Mr. Mayo has in the press of many state duties continued making the luncheon meetings of that civic group. He has received numerous awards in the field of agriculture and public service since his entrance into the life of serving the people of Florida.

Mr. Mayo married the former Nura Newsome of Ocala. They have two sons and a daughter. The Mayo home is in Summerfield.

HALF TIME show at the Orange Bowl game at Miami is a spectacle unmatched by any other Bowl and is televised nationally.

The Festive Bowl

By DUKE JORDAN

WHETHER Miami's Orange Bowl Festival or Orange Bowl game comes first, both have grown into major national events. Moving into the 22nd annual edition, the 1966 grid classic will match two of the nation's top pigskin machines—the University of Maryland and the University of Oklahoma.

The festival's sports program this year was expanded with the first annual Orange Bowl collegiate basketball tournament, December 27-30 at the Miami Beach Auditorium, featuring teams of Columbia University, New York University, University of Santa Clara, Tulane University, West Virginia University, Yale University, Florida State University and the University of Miami.

The football lid is kicked off at 8:15 p.m., Monday, December 26, with the eighth annual Shrine North-South All Star game in the Orange Bowl, the third annual Orange Bowl Midget grid classic played Friday, December 30, at the University of Miami athletic field, Coral Gables.

"Red" Dawson has told the football side of the Orange Bowl game, but the half-time extravaganza that goes with it is something else—and distinctly Orange Bowl—since no other bowl can approximate its color and novelty. It will feature the introduction of the 1966 Orange Bowl Queen, Lynn Brown of Fort Lauderdale, and her four princesses: Faye Anthony, West Palm Beach; Mary Jane Door, Winter Park; Diane LaPrade, Miami Springs, and Jackie Hart, Kankakee, Ill.

For sheer phantasy, plans for the New Year's Eve King Orange Jamboree parade this year topped all others with "Atlantis, the Lost Continent" as its theme, the cavalcade of charm including 50 floats, more than a score of bands and a beauty cast of 1,000 plus, climaxed by the Orange Queen's float.

Growing as a festival feature each year, the Junior Orange Bowl parade seen at 2:30 p.m., Friday, December 30, in Coral Gables where the bands and floats, on small fry scale, stack up numerically with the jamboree parade. Among the entrants: the All Star Twirlers of West Palm Beach, the Musical Majorettes from Hollywood and the Hi Steppers Twirling Club with its junior band from Fort Lauderdale.

The International Orange Bowl Regatta runs December 26 through January 1 on Biscayne Bay off Miami Beach with outboard and inboard events scheduled with time trials for world records and seven power boat races from Italy among contestants.

Youngsters from Latin America, Canada and most sections of the United States take part in the International Orange Bowl Junior tennis tournament December 28-31 at Flamingo Park, Miami Beach.

Regarded by growing thousands as the entertainment "bargain bill," the fireworks festival finale January 3 in the Orange Bowl will repeat major portions of the New Year's Eve parade, the entire half-time pageant of the grid classic, an aerial thrill act and an exciting fireworks display.

HEAD COACH BUD WILKINSON
University of Oklahoma

HEAD COACH JIM TATUM
University of Maryland

Two of the nation's most successful football coaches will pit powerhouse teams for the mythical national championship in the Orange Bowl. Rumor has it that Bud Wilkinson learned the "split-T" at Jim Tatum's knee. Nothing could be farther from the truth, says "Red" Dawson, former head coach at the University of Pittsburgh and also a member of the University of Minnesota coaching staff when Wilkinson was a player.

CHAMPIONSHIP

By "RED" DAWSON

YOU never can be sure how a game will shape up—that's what "makes" football. Monday's Orange Bowl game in Miami, between Oklahoma and Maryland for the mythical national championship, pits two teams with devastating scoring punches, but it could wind up as a battle of superb defenses.

Familiarity is the answer for the defenses getting the nod. Nationally rated number one Oklahoma and number three Maryland both employ the split-T offense, and each team should recognize the other's attack with the greatest of ease.

It happened in the Orange Bowl two years ago, when Oklahoma won a hard-fought 7-0 defensive battle, and there's every reason to believe that bowl spectators and a national TV audience will see another tight game Monday. However, there's the possibility that one or both coaches may have probed by the first meeting and will have designed surprise plays that could make a wide open game.

There has been quite a bit of publicity about the teacher-pupil aspect of this meeting between the University of Oklahoma and the University of Maryland coaches. Bud Wilkinson was Jim Tatum's backfield assistant at Oklahoma in 1946, and stayed on as head coach when Tatum moved to Maryland. Since both have been going great guns with the split-T, a popular argument developed among pigskin followers: who was doing the best job with the split-T, the master (Tatum) or the pupil (Wilkinson)? Actually, Tatum and Wilkinson learned the split-T offense at the same time from Don Faurot.

Coach Faurot gets the credit for introducing the split-T formation into college football. He was using this variation of the T at Missouri as early as 1942.

Faurot coached a Navy Pre-flight team in Iowa for a season during World War II, with Tatum and Wilkinson as two of his assistants. They picked up the fundamentals of the split-T together at Oklahoma in 1946. Suffice it to say they were both apt pupils, for since that time they have gone their separate ways and developed split-T teams that have produced for them the finest won-lost records of any active coaches.

The biggest advantage of the split-T is its simplicity. It adapts itself well to college football, where practice time is limited, since there are very few basic plays to learn. (See diagrams on page 15.) And, although some fans cry for a more varied attack, the split-T does pay off in victories—Wilkinson and Tatum have proved that, much to the discomfort of proponents of other systems.

Spectators at the Orange Bowl game, who are familiar with the T formation, will notice the difference in the two attacks. The straight-T, made famous by the Chicago Bears of the Sid Luckman era, depends on a stellar punter at quarterback and a jarring fullback to make it click. Passers of the Luckman or Otto Graham (Cleveland Browns) stripe are hard to find—even the pros have trouble in finding enough to go around—but the coaches were under pressure to use a "modern" attack. The split-T was the natural answer to their problem.

As in the straight-T, this offensive maneuver revolves around the quarterback, who handles the ball on every play. Rather than being an out-

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Lowell "Red" Dawson, nationally known sports figure, is a transplanted Floridian, now residing in Ocala, where he is a sales representative for Gulf Oil Products Corporation.

The son of a small town doctor of River Falls, Wis., Dawson has carved quite a name for himself both on the gridiron and on the sidelines as a coach. He began his college playing career at Tulane University, graduating with the class of '32. While there, he played as a quarterback under Bernie Bierman, considered to be one of the all-time great coaches.

Dawson went to Minnesota with Bierman in 1933.

and remained an assistant coach for four years. He was head coach at Tulane from 1936 through 1941. Following World War II, Dawson organized the Buffalo team of the All American Conference. He was head coach of the Buffalo Bills for four years, until a league merger dissolved the team.

After finishing the defensive platoon at Michigan State for two years, Dawson became head coach at the University of Pittsburgh from 1953-54, when he retired for health reasons to the Sunshine State.

His answer to "How do you like Florida?" "Wonderful!"

standing passing artist, however, the split-T quarterback must be a fine runner with a quick mind and sharp reflexes, besides being able to throw fairly accurately upon occasion to keep the opposing defense off balance.

The split-T has two distinct characteristics: one, the wide spacing of the line, and two, the option play. In the latter, the quarterback runs laterally behind the line of scrimmage after receiving the ball from center. He then has the option of charging forward, if a hole opens, or passing laterally to one of his backfield mates. This runner, who has been trailing the quarterback, then goes wide around the defensive end—and prays for blockers.

Most split-T teams are adding the so-called "bully series" to their offensive patterns. Georgia Tech has been one of the early exponents of this series, originally made famous by Eddie Le Baron on the West Coast. This variation gives the defense additional problems.

In the bully series, the fullback plants past the quarterback on either side and continues on through an opening in the defense's line. The quarterback sticks the ball in the fullback's mid-section and the game starts. The trick is to fool the defense as to who keeps the ball. The charging fullback may have it concealed in his bent-over position or the quarterback may have retreated it before starting his familiar option play toward the outside of the line.

In either case, the defenders have to alertly diagnose the play and deploy their players to the best advantage. And, of course, there's always the danger of a short hook-pass to an end who has sneaked behind the linebackers or a long pass from an innocent-looking halfback.

So, it would seem that the Orange Bowl competitors are loaded with offensive weapons, and the size of the score depends upon how well each can defend against its own system of attack.

Oklahoma, under Bud Wilkinson, has breezed through its 10-game schedule, unbeaten and untied, and taken its seventh straight Big Seven Conference football championship. The Sooners are working on a 29-game string of consecutive victories, the best record of any team in recent years. Their last record blemishes were a loss to Notre Dame, 28-21, and a tie with Pittsburgh, 7-7, the first two games of the 1959 season. They are nearing the fine record of Wilkinson's 1948-51 teams which went 81 games before the University of Texas called a halt with a 9-7 upset.

These two unbeaten streaks have given Wilkinson an enviable record of 80 wins, seven losses and three ties—a .919 percentage. His bowl record is 2-1.

Jim Tatum's Maryland Terrapins also are working on an undefeated string of their own. After a 9-7 defeat by the University of Miami midway through the 1954 season, the Terrapins have won 14 straight and picked up their second Atlantic Coast Conference crown in three years.

It would be difficult to forecast which of these two juggernauts will bounce backwards when they collide in the Orange Bowl, or what the score might be. But one thing's for sure—the split-T will pay off for one of them—unless it's a tie!

Both Maryland and Oklahoma have placed players on various All America Teams.

The Turps were represented by center Robert Pellegrini on most first teams and halfback Ed Vereb on the third team. Maryland players receiving honorable mention were: Russell Dennis, end; Mike Sindusky, tackle; Jack Davis, guard; and quarterback Frank Tamburello.

The Sooners landed their star junior halfback, Tommy McDonald, on the first team and their 1954 All America guard, Bo Bolinger, repeated on nearly every team selected by the coaches and sports-writers. Honorable mention went to: tackle Edmond Gray and Calvin Woodworth; guard Cecil Morris; center Jerry Tubbs; and backs Bob Burris, Clendon Thomas, Jim Harris and Billy Pricer.

Proceed At Your Own Risk

By WOODSON T. ALLEN

Another HAPPY NEW YEAR is with us. The coming of the new year, though it has occurred to me so many times that a bit of the novelty has worn away, is still a favorite season with me. In fact, I'm willing to go on greeting them indefinitely.

This is the time, of course, for New Year Resolutions. I don't formally record my resolutions, nor even announce them. I do spend a bit of time in reflecting upon some of my more brilliant stupidities of the past year, and I quietly resolve to avoid some of them in the coming year. I admit that this course is not likely to make any earth-shaking contributions to human progress, but I find it saves me some time and trouble.

For 1966, I will break my rule, and announce my big resolution. It is: "This year, I will not check up on the author." Maybe this needs an explanation. I have always been a self-appointed auditor of the printed page. I have wasted countless hours in research for which I am but ill equipped, expecting to find some writer in error as to fact, quotation, or mathematics. I rarely finish reading anything; I'm in the floor with a dictionary or the encyclopedia.

One detestable author stated that his ship was going northwestward through the Panama Canal, from the Pacific to the Caribbean. You know and I know that the Pacific Ocean is west of the Caribbean Sea; the Pacific Ocean is west of EVERYTHING. But every map in the house sides with the author.

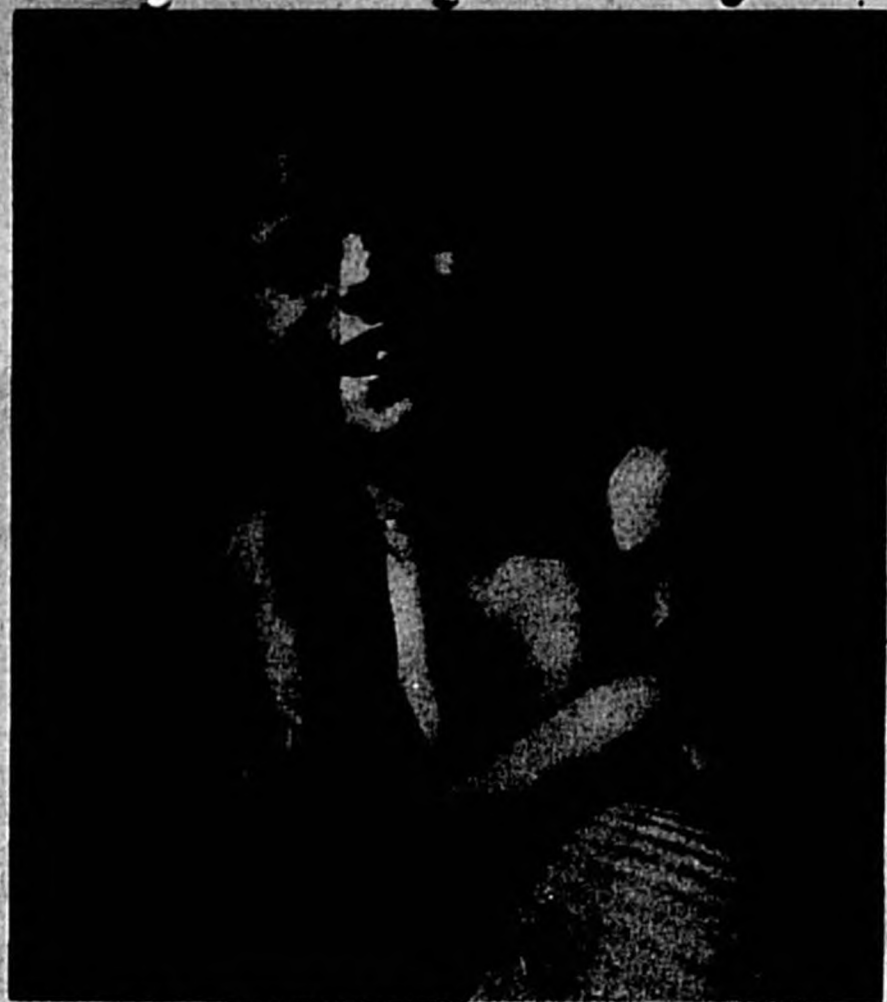

A magazine article referred to the underground electrical cables in New York. In very hot weather, the cables must be inspected, and ventilated, when necessary. The writer of the article went along for an inspection, and one cable was found to have a temperature of 85 degrees Centigrade. He remarked that this equals 131 degrees Fahrenheit. I dropped the magazine, and grabbed pencils and paper.

Now we all know that to convert C to F, we either multiply C or F by nine-fifths, or possibly by five-ninths, or maybe we divide one by the other, and then we add (or do we subtract?) 32. Well, I never did get to finish reading the story, and I was unsettled for days. Finally, a nine-year-old neighbor explained the computation to me. I don't seem to remember the formula just now, but it involves fractions.

In these two cases alone, I figure I wasted enough time to build a bath-mat. Then came Mr. Murphy's column in the local paper, quoting "Over the river and through the wood to Grandfather's house we go—" I tore into all of the books in the house to find the poem—I was going to write a surprisingly clever letter to him, pointing out that it should have been "—to GrandMOTHER'S house we go." Naturally, when I finished down the page, it was right, and I wouldn't put it one inch past her to have looked it up, just like I did, when she wrote the column. I came with I know how it turned out, but I spent the rest of the evening with "Barrett's Quotations."

Well, it looks like a lean year for bath-mats. HAPPY NEW YEAR.

Looking Over All Florida

The most hospitable welcome anywhere is to have a glass of some delicious beverage thrust upon you the moment you set foot over the threshold. The visitor to Florida gets a glass of orange juice for free at each of the six state Information Stations located at strategic points along Florida's northern border. How these Welcome Stations are organized to give the tourist a quick orientation course in the Sunshine State is told in a special article.

There, also, an old timer to these pages, Ash Wing, asks the provocative question, "Are Beauty Contests Worth It?" Ash, who is one of those rare birds, a gentleman of the old school, has been a beauty contest judge more times than you can shake a drum majorette's baton at. He advances the surprising theory that unusually pretty girls develop in their teens a feeling of inferiority and goes on from there to describe the effect beauty contests have on the entrants.

Until recently the mangrove tangle of the Southwest Coast was an impassable jungle. An entrance is now being cleared to make this mysterious wilderness accessible to the tourist and outboard-explorer. Florida residents and visitors alike will not want to miss next week's article on the opening of the Water Gate into the 'Glades.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

IT'S ALL FLORIDA

Congratulations on the fine articles in your All Florida Magazine. What I like about it is that it's just what the name implies—all Florida.

I enjoy reading it from cover to cover, the articles on Florida sports, recipes for Florida cooking, fights to me in Florida, and stories about Florida people.

Keep up the good work!
ART GREEN, Miami Beach.

CONCERNING OSCEOLA

There is scarcely a week that passes, that your magazine does not carry some information or inquiry about Osceola, the Seminole chieftain who led the Seminole Indians in a fierce and bitter struggle with the settlers in the second Seminole War.

The Florida Historical Society has given this subject much time and thought. In the Florida Historical Quarterly, January-April 1965, one will find all the information needed or required. These informative papers were written by some of Florida's most brilliant historians.

There are many fine and fine histories of this Indian chief, including the famous Civil War period. Each period is described in detail and leaves the reader with a vivid mental picture of the man-of-war-of chief.

Dr. Mark Spanglish writes brilliantly on Art Yehuda from his birth to his death at Fort Meade, S. C., a month after he was sent there by our government. The political issues that followed are made clear in this fine Osceola edition, which offers as much historical information as a man-of-war-of character, and should come "back" to many a fan.

WILLIAM A. SPANG, Jacksonville.

A WORTHWHILE SUGGESTION

I love to cook—especially new-to-me dishes. Have a family that thoroughly enjoys trying the results of my experiments—a happy combination—as I thoroughly enjoy your Florida Favorite Foods column. Here's a suggestion:

The woods will soon be full of hunters. How about asking what is done with what they kill? How do they cook it? Also what is cooked over campfires?

Then there are the unusual holiday specialties. What do they do with those pig heads in butcher cases near New Year? How do they make head cheese, etc.? You know the old saying about black-eyed peas and hog's head for New Year. How is it prepared? And such meat as liver pudding?

So many would like to try these and other simple kinds of food and less expensive but satisfying dishes. What do the home folks do with all the onions, mushrooms, etc., that one sees? The butcher sells them but seldom knows how they are cooked.

MR. L. S. GALT, Deland.

A THOUGHTFUL GESTURE

Thought you might be interested to know how I've been using my weekly copy of All Florida Magazine.

Whenever friends come to Miami from time to time and I always hand them several issues of the magazine. It acquaints them with the state and makes them feel like they're right in the heart of the land.

Your articles are timely, colorful and informative.

Patrol Is Ever Alert
for Smuggled Aliens

BORDER GUARDIANS

By CLEVELAND van DRESSER

This is the second in a series of true experiences of the United States Border Patrol, the Federal law enforcement body charged with the duty of protecting our country from infiltration by aliens from foreign countries. It carries the official approval of the United States Department of Justice, under whose authority the Border Patrol functions.

IN THE history of virtually every Federal law enforcement agency, there are certain criminals that stand out from all the rest. These comparatively few evil doers oftentimes cause more trouble than scores of run-of-the-mill law breakers combined.

The F.B.I. had its Dillinger and Willie (The Actor) Sutton, among other headliners, including leaders of Murder, Inc. During the roaring prohibition era, agents of the Alcohol Tax Unit skirmished with such redoubtable characters as Dutch Schultz and Al Capone. Lucky Luciano was a king-sized worry to the Bureau of Narcotics and the U. S. Customs, as well as other Federal operatives.

The U. S. Border Patrol, too, has some stand-out characters in its special field of activity—smuggling of aliens. In the entire history of the Patrol in Florida, one criminal—Gregorio Simonovich—towers head and shoulders above all others of his kind. In retrospect, this man assumes heroic proportions, if such a description can be applied to a law breaker.

This White Russian—linguist, diplomat, and alien smuggler deluxe—operated out of Havana, Cuba. For more than five years he engineered the surreptitious transportation of Europeans, Latin Americans, Chinese and other aliens into Florida from Cuba.

The Border Patrol was well aware of Simonovich's exploits, but was forced to stand by in helpless frustration as the master smuggler engineered and got away with deal after deal.

No small-time operator was Gregorio Simonovich. He charged fancy prices—usually from $1,000.00 to $1,500.00 per head—and guaranteed delivery anywhere in the United States. To say that the wily "Grinka" (The Fox—Simonovich's nickname) had a smoothly functioning organization, is the understatement of the decade.

Simonovich was in an absolutely unique position, as far as alien smuggling was concerned. For a number of years prior to 1947, he was actually in the employ of the U. S. Immigration Service at Havana. He spoke several languages fluently and his services as a linguist were in great demand by immigration officials in questioning aliens concerning possible legal admittance to the United States. In the course of his duties, Simonovich became well known at the U. S. Embassy in Havana. His connections in the Cuban capital were to be invaluable in his alien smuggling racket, as will be apparent as this tale unfolds.

It is not known exactly what caused Simonovich to switch from being a highly regarded employee of the U. S. Immigration Service to a top-notch alien smuggler. Presumably, the opportunity to make a hatful of dough out of rich foreigners who were pathetically eager to get into America, proved too much of a temptation for him to resist. In his youth, during the Czaristic regime in Russia, Simonovich had lived high off the hog, and the opportunity to re-instate himself to a position of opulence was not to be ignored.

Like all good strategists and generals,

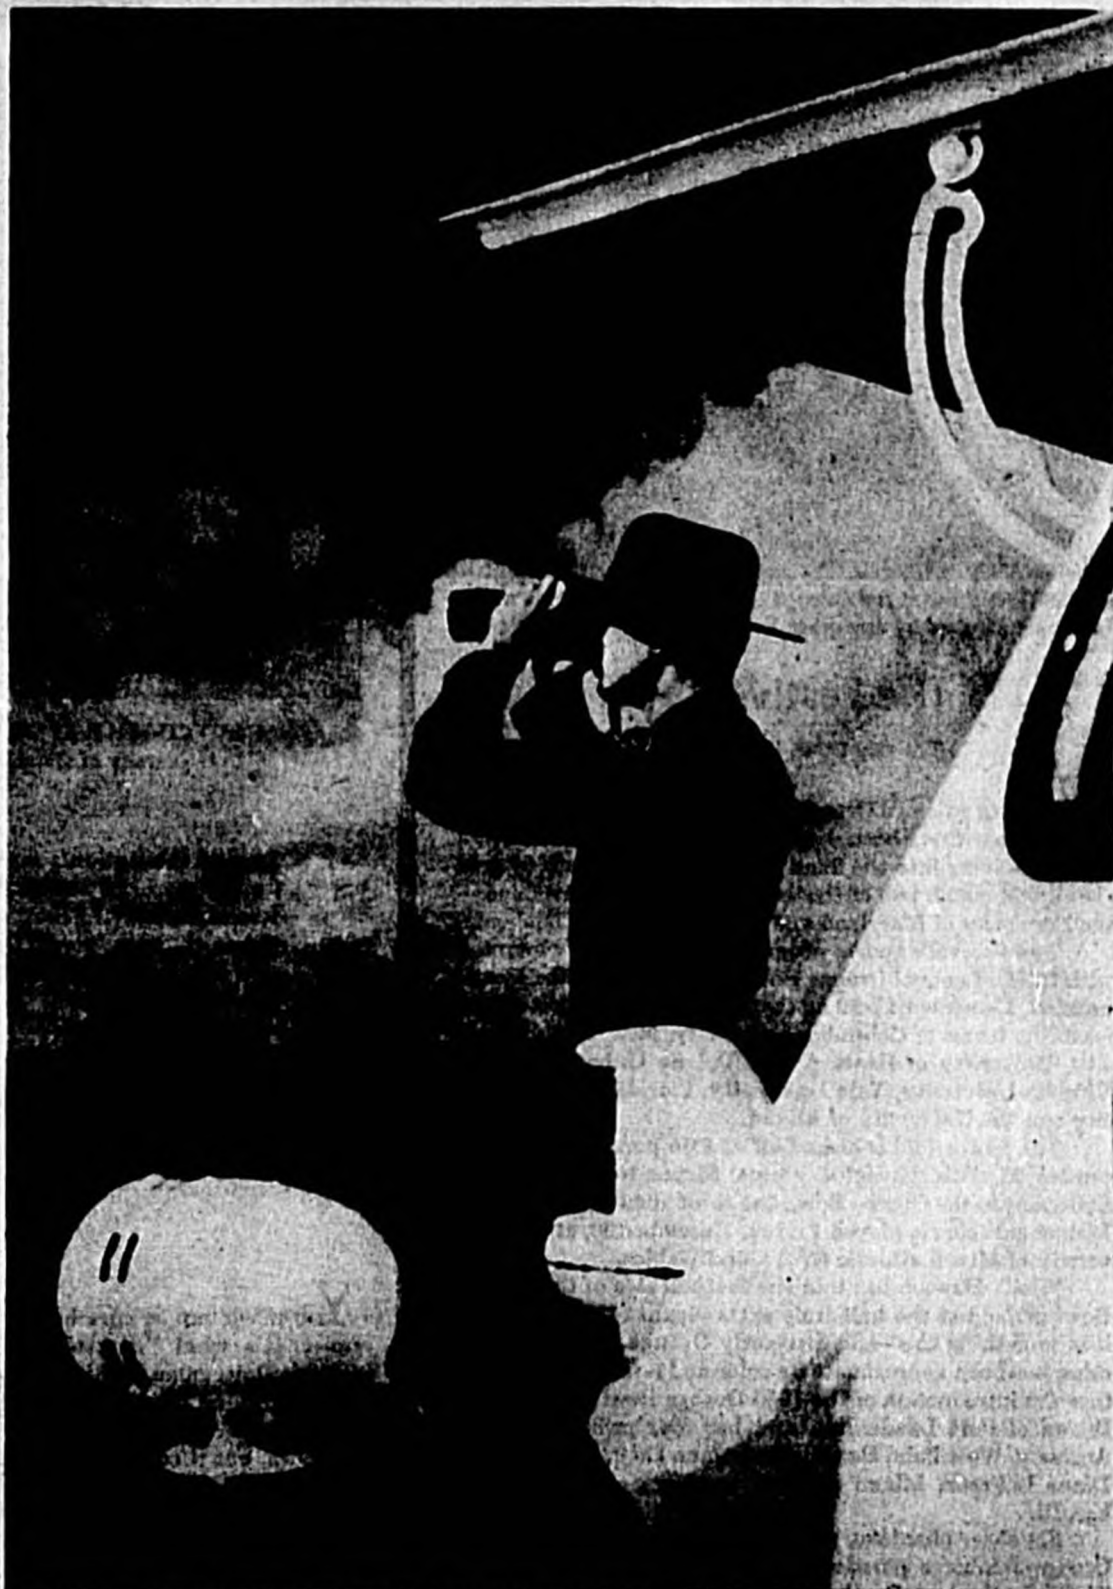

Gregorio had a willing army of subordinates, all of them expendable, as far as he was concerned. Although his hirelings didn't know it, Simonovich would drop any one of them like a hot stove lid if there was any hint that "Mr. Big" would be implicated.

In short, Gregorio Simonovich was a "criminal's criminal." He worked behind the scenes, and with diabolical skill manipulated the cogs of his well-oiled alien smuggling machinery. Those who worked for Simonovich made good money while they lasted, but one after another they were arrested, convicted and sent to prison. As fast as the Border Patrol knocked off one "employee," Simonovich got another to take his place and continued operations almost unhampered.

If, as Shakespeare put it, "All the World's a Stage," then Gregorio Simonovich was a super director. When the play threatened to go sour, it was the actors, not the director, who got fired.

Key man in all of Gregorio's smuggling operations was usually an airplane pilot. The first definite hint that a master smuggler was in business occurred on Jan. 30, 1948, from a chance remark overheard at a small airport west of Miami. An "informant" (whose name cannot be given for obvious reasons) reported to Border Patrol officers that he had heard a man inquire for an Edward William Murphy. The inquiry included the statement that "Simonovich wanted to talk to Murphy right away."

Cabinet Receives Note On Speeches From Indian Chief

NEW DELHI (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru has sent to his Cabinet a formal note describing the speeches of Soviet leaders while on tour here as embarrassing to the Indian government, reliable sources said Wednesday.

The note was said to cite the "great difficulty" however, of taking any action to soft-pedal the speeches of Soviet Premier Bulganin and Communist party boss Khrushchev, who used India platforms to assail Western nations.

During their tour, despite India's avowed neutrality in the cold war, Bulganin and Khrushchev repeatedly blasted "Western colonialism," pro-Western pacts such as the SEATO and Baghdad alliances, openly sided with India on the Kashmir and Goa issues and used an Indian platform to announce the explosion of the Soviet Union's biggest hydrogen bomb.

The Great Lakes carry more than two thirds of all the inland transport in the United States.

WRONG REPAIRMAN
BALTIMORE (AP)—The television set was on the blink, so Mr. and Mrs. Armand H. Beard put in a call for the repairman.

Later, Mrs. Beard was talking on the telephone to her daughter-in-law. She mentioned that the repairman hadn't arrived yet.

Just then, the door bell rang. Beard admitted a man carrying a small bag.

"Where's the patient?" the visitor asked.

DRAPPEARING ACT
MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Dag Hammarskjold, Secretary General of the United Nations, caught newsmen off guard yesterday and pulled a fast disappearing act.

Arriving here for a rest, the Swedish diplomat quietly stepped from his plane and hid from waiting reporters and photographers while his aide rented a blue and white car.

The aide then wheeled the car up to the rear of the airport terminal and Hammarskjold ran for it. He hurled his luggage into the car and away they went.

The aide said Hammarskjold was "here for a rest" and didn't want any publicity.

1955 Is Quickly Fading Away; Happy New Year To All In '56

The trials and the triumphs, the sorrow and the joy, the things we did right and the mistakes we made, of the twelve months called 1955, are behind us. A year ends. The effects of that year, the results of the things that happened in it, do not end. They continue to influence all the time that is left to us and to those who come after us.

One gift enjoyed by man is his ability to learn from experience, to put the time that has passed into use in the time that is and the time that is to be. Thus, in 1956, we will do our best to make a better world, starting right here in Sanford and Seminole County. We will be trying for those exalted goals that man has always sought—peace, with each other, and that perfection which will help us as individuals to find peace with the Supreme Being. We will continue to make mistakes, just as those behind us made. We may even repeat some of our past errors and follies. But, along with those about us, we will continue to learn, too.

Ahead is a new year. We celebrate its arrival with gay parties. Let us mingle with the gaiety a certain solemn resolve to use the new year for what it is—the most precious gift man is given—time to try to grow better.

Here at The Sanford Herald, all of us wish you a Happy, Prosperous, and a Peaceful New Year. The entire staff of your newspaper joins together in the great hope that we will achieve in 1956 all that we had hoped to achieve in 1955, along with those added wishes that a prosperous year that is sliding behind us has prompted all to build their

Lester Tharp Retiring

A half century is a long time. And to be exact it means fifty years.
 Yet, without fanfare, without boasting and shouting about his many accomplishments and experiences, some with smiles and some with heartaches, a citizen has worked for nearly fifty one-years at the same job.

Through these half century of years, this neighbor we write about, has served his fellowman in many ways. Through his influence others have been led to a church, through his influence and help churches have been built, through his generosity and kindness others have been led to realize that there is a finer side of life.

Yet, day by day, he has never omitted his loyalty to those by whom he was employed. His company was his first duty, aside from the duty one must set somewhat higher because of belief that loyalty to an employer included Christian obligations.

Customers of Western Union were kings to Lester Tharp and he served them faithfully with his storehouse of experience and knowledge.

Lester Tharp has completed nearly fifty-one years of service as a telegrapher, employe, and manager for Western Union.

He has worked for his fellowman during catastrophes, national emergencies, wars, floods, happy events and sad ones, and throughout these experiences kept uppermost in his activities, loyalty.

For thirty-one years Lester Tharp has served Sanford and Western Union as manager of the Western Union Office here and for thirty-one years Sanford has profited by his being here.

Now, Lester Tharp is retiring. He came to Sanford because of an emergency and because of choice he remained here to become one of Sanford's most faithful and respected citizens.

Lester Tharp will be missed from his position behind the desk at Sanford's Western Union Office.

But as he stays here with us as a "retired" citizen, we will benefit from his vast storehouse of knowledge, experience, and loyalty.

About all that we can add is "Congratulations Jack", you have earned your rest. Western Union will miss you!

Board Overruled By Federal Court

NEW YORK (U. S. AP)—A federal court of appeals has overruled the National Labor Relations Board in upholding a union's right to picket the customers of a struck company.

The case involved a strike of typewriter servicemen against the Royal Typewriter Co. During the strike, which has since been settled, the NLRB obtained a court order to keep the strikers from picketing independent companies who took over Royal's service jobs. The ban also applied to picketing of Royal customers who used this independent service and forwarded the bills to Royal.

The NLRB, which obtained the court order at Royal's request June 15, 1954, argued that the picketing was to induce the customers to employ to join the strike.

JAMES MARLOW Federal Aid May Get Blocking

WASHINGTON (U. S. AP)—Don't be surprised if federal aid to education is blocked in Congress in 1956 over a fight to prevent any of the money from going to states which maintain racial segregation in public schools.
 Many Democrats and Republicans say they favor providing federal money for new school buildings. But the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People will do its best to have something to say about it.
 This is the NAACP's position:
 1. When government money for educational purposes is given to states which do not comply with the Supreme Court's decision of May 1954 to end segregation, then the government is in effect helping support segregation.
 2. Therefore, if a federal aid to education law is passed the NAACP wants tacked on to it a ban against giving any of the funds to states which it says "defy the court."

The NAACP will have some support in Congress. Just how much is not clear. Most Southern Democrats will certainly vote against any federal aid bill which contains the kind of amendment urged by the NAACP. Last year a federal aid bill was left high and dry in Congress.
 There was a fight then over such an amendment. Rep. Powell (D-NV), a Negro, proposed it in the House. It was killed but not before Powell had a fist fight with Rep. Bailey (D-WV) over the subject.
 In the end, the House never did vote on the bill itself.
 Powell, one of those upon whom the NAACP is depending to lead the fight in Congress, says he will offer a similar amendment in 1956 when the federal aid bill comes up.

But the NAACP will probably want Congress to ban other kinds of federal aid for schools in states which are not integrating. The government gives money to land grant colleges, for vocational schools, and to school districts overcrowded because of some government activity in the area.

Money for those purposes is handed out by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Clarence Mitchell, director of the NAACP's Washington Bureau, recently wrote to Dr. Harold C. Hunt, undersecretary of the department. Mitchell said "accused" the department would not continue to give money to states continuing school segregation. Hunt reminded Mitchell that the Supreme Court left it up to federal district judges to see that the high court's ban on segregation is carried out in their jurisdictions.

So, Hunt said, before the department considered withholding school aid money there would have to be a "determination" by a federal judge that a particular state or school district was not complying with the Supreme Court's ruling.
 Mitchell said yesterday that, in view of Hunt's reply, it is up to Congress to write into legislation a ban on the use of federal money for schools in states which "defy the court."

MRS. CHARLES ANDERSEN
Margaret Wilson, C. Andersen Take Marriage Vows Thursday

The First Presbyterian Church was the scene of the rites uniting Miss Margaret Adelle Wilson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Wallace Wilson, and Charles Jennings Andersen, son of Mrs. Maner H. Andersen Dec. 29, at 4 p. m. with the Rev. A. G. McInnis officiating.

The semi-formal ceremony was performed against a background of palms, memorial candelabras and baskets of mums and gladioli. Pews were marked with large satin bows and flowers in keeping with the bridal theme.

Mrs. George Touhy, organist, played the traditional wedding marches and Dick Aiken, soloist, sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer".

Beautifully dressed in a bridal gown of chantilly lace over a tulle bodice, Miss Wilson was given in marriage by her father. The gown of traditional white featured a full sweeping skirt of lace and net over the satin. Her fitted sleeves terminated to a point at her wrists accentuating the points of lace insets that came in intervals at the neck. A tiny Peter Pan collar of lace points dotted with sequins further complimented the dress.

The bodice was tight fitting to bring out her slim youthfulness and the gown was of floor length. She wore a tiara on her head brilliant with pearls and attached to a veil of nylon tulle, above length, with a narrow strip of chantilly lace tipping the edges. Her bridal bouquet was composed of white alabaster camellias interspersed with satin.

Wedding Party
Mrs. James Powell, sister of the bride and matron of honor was gowned in a dress of dark green taffeta showing a bouffant skirt, street length. The slim bodice was overlaid with a white lace jacket. Her cascade bouquet was of yellow chrysanthemums and pom poms.
Miss Benny Wilson, also sister of the bride, and bridesmaid, wore a gown similar to that of the matron of honor and carried a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums and pom poms tied with harmonizing ribbons.

George Lobb was the best man and usher-groomsmen were Carl George, Clifford Lundberg, Steve Lobb and Richard Lobb all relatives of the families.

Mrs. Wilson chose for her daughter's wedding a rich purple silk crepe dress adorned with sequins and featuring three-quarter-length sleeves. Her corsage was a single orchid.

Mrs. Andersen wore a powder blue afternoon dress with a tucked bodice and flared skirt. Her corsage was also an orchid which she pinned on her left shoulder.

A reception was held immediately after the ceremony in the church annex which was beautifully decorated with bridal flowers. The cake and punch table was overlaid with a white linen cloth and centered with an arrangement of flowers.

The couple cut a three-tiered wedding cake which was topped with a miniature bride and groom. Those helping serve cake and punch and acted as floating hostesses were Miss Caroline McInnis, Mrs. Ernest Cowley, Miss Katherine Brown, Mrs. Fred Ganat, Mrs. Victor Greene, Miss Barbara Ruprecht and Mrs. Robert R. Berg.

THE SANDS OF TIME

Remember that old song which says, "The sands of time are sinking fast"? Whether we like the idea or not, it is most certainly true, and there is nothing we can do about it.

Nothing? That depends on what we mean. Assuredly we can do nothing to stop the sands of time from running through the hour glass of life, but we can do much to make those hours worthwhile, and the Church stands ever ready to help us.

The Church is made up of people like us, working together to spread the message of the gospel. The Church brings comfort to those who sorrow, gives strength to those who are weak. The Church needs us to help carry on its work. When we are busy in the Church helping others, we do not worry over the ceaseless flow of the sands of time.

Are you doing your part in the Church? Do you need its help? Its doors are open, its welcome unchanging. "The sands of time are sinking fast"—how are you spending the days and hours?

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services: regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Church Groups Recently Find Pressing Need

A demanding need was uncovered recently when local church groups, visiting the Mount Dora Orphans Home to deliver Christmas gifts, found children without shoes, beds for girls, and space to house boys.

The Children and Youth Division of the First Methodist Church of Sanford, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wall E. Z. Baxter, pastor of the Stafford Memorial Methodist Church, and Robert M. Baker, a ministerial student, visited the orphans home to take gifts which turned out to be the only Christmas gifts the children would receive.

"They found that there were five more boys in the home than space was available. They were being housed in a tin building hardly decent enough for occupancy," it was stated.

"There are 22 boys in the home and 30 girls, all from broken homes and ranging in age from three to 15.

"The group visiting the home found that there was no recreational equipment at all for use by the 52 children. Recreation was possible only through makeshift creation.

"The most crying need, uncovered by the visit, was for shoes. All of the boys need shoes, some of them are without shoes altogether and must go about barefooted. Some of the girls need shoes for winter protection.

"Double decker bunks are badly needed for the girls. The space is available for them but they are lacking beds in which to sleep," Baker related.

The Mount Dora Orphans Home, an interdenominational institution even though it is sponsored by the Church of Christ. They are operating on an approximate $20,000 yearly income which is received monthly through contributions.

Medicines, hospitalization, eye care and other such necessities are being furnished through the generosity of physicians and civic clubs of Mount Dora.

Only nine people are employed to operate the home and each one receives only $75 per month as salary and with room and board furnished.

Local citizens who would like to contribute to the home are asked to contact Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wall

Powell's Office Supply Co. Moving During Weekend

One of Sanford's prominent businesses will be moving to a new location over the New Year's weekend.

Powell's Office Supply will move from its present location, 110 Magnolia Ave., to the new store across the street in the completely renovated Russell Building.

The new home of Powell's Office Supply will be in the large store building where Sherwin-Williams Paint Company recently opened a new branch store.

Powell's Office Supply, in its new store, will be able to take care of the needs of their many customers with additional space and greater conveniences.

They will be open for business in their new location Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock.

Savings Account Holders To Receive Year End Dividends

Holders of savings accounts at the First Federal Savings and Loan Assn. will find their balances increased by a total of $14,000 in dividends that are being added for the six months period from July 1 to Dec. 31, according to George Touby, Executive Vice President.

The figure represents an increase of 22.3 per cent over the similar six-month period of last year, it was said.

The dividends now being paid are at three per cent a year added to the payment of June 30 total over $14,000 that have accrued to the savings accounts during the current year.

"In spite of the fact that this has been a year in which merchants and business men generally have seen sales increases that have been most encouraging, people have continued to add to their savings to provide for future emergencies or to build up funds for some specific use," Mr. Touby said.

"The earnings provided on the savings plus the adequate insurance and safety have been instrumental in the mounting interest in our savings accounts," he said.

Jet Pilot Heads Plane Out To Sea

FREEPORT, N. Y. (AP)—An Air Force jet pilot, out of fuel and unable to find a place to land on Long Island during a snowstorm, bailed his plane to sea last night.

The pilot bailed out.

First Lt. Richard A. Edwards' parachute dragged him into icy water behind Jones Beach on the Long Island shore. Shouts for help brought a fisherman, Edward Green, 57. He pushed a float over 500 feet of ice to the pilot.

In a state of shock, Edwards was given hot coffee at a nearby fishing station. He kept muttering, "Am I out of the water? Am I out of the water?"

LONG WAY TO GO!

Unconscious Man Found On Roadside With Nail Wounds

PALATKA (AP)—Officers today sought to solve the strange case of an unconscious man who was found on a Putnam county roadside with nail wounds and burns on his stomach.

Highway Trooper H. L. Sipple who brought the man here from just south of nearby Satsuma estimated his age at 30 and said he carried papers which indicated his name was Donald H. Skinner of Philadelphia, Pa.

He was taken later to the Veterans Hospital at Lake City without regaining consciousness. Attendants there said last night they had been unable to obtain any information from him.

Sticking in the man's stomach were 15 one-inch nails and there were 12 or more burns about the size of a 25-cent piece. Dr. C. M. Knight who treated him here said the nails had not penetrated the abdominal cavity and the wounds appeared to be several days old.

Seminole County Baby Derby In Full Swing

The first Seminole County Baby Derby is in full swing, with not just one, but two storks beating their wings through the ether from Babylon towards the double finish line.

All facts concerning this exciting race are detailed in the large cooperative advertisement on page three of today's Sanford Herald. Expecting parents are advised to read this page closely. Perhaps some real down-deep concentration may help also towards making them the luckiest people in the county.

If the hoped-for baby arrives at some time near the glimmering close of 1955 or the dawn of '56, then be sure the birth is recorded by a physician exactly as outlined on page three. Above all make certain that the exact hour, minute and even the second of birth is placed on record. Victory in the baby derby may be decided by the flutter of a stork wing.

In addition to the valuable array of gifts presented by Sanford merchants, The Sanford Herald will give paid-up subscriptions of the Herald to winning parents—one whole year to the first of '56 and six months to the last little citizen of 1955. Should either of the storks deliver a whole basketball team of babies, their lucky parents may claim the $750 sterling silver tea set at Kaders.

Youngster Calls Help For Mother

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP)—Charles Finkenstadt, 24, doesn't know how to dial a telephone.

But he worked with the instrument long enough to get firemen to revive his mother Mrs. Virginia Finkenstadt after she collapsed yesterday.

Charles fumbled desperately until an operator noticed the erratic signal. She rang the fire station.

The youngster was unable to tell his name or his address.

"Where's your mother?" asked a fireman.

"She's on the floor," Charles replied.

Firemen extended the conversation to have the call traced. Then they raced to the home and found Mrs. Finkenstadt unconscious on the floor.

She was revived by oxygen and taken to a hospital for observation.

Top Disaster Staff Of Red Cross Sent To Flooded Coast

According to an announcement made by the Seminole County Chapter of the American Red Cross, the Red Cross has assigned 115 of its top disaster staff to the West Coast flood areas to assist chapters in emergency operations and follow through with rehabilitation. Fifty-seven shelters were in operation over Christmas, housing and feeding more than 20,000 refugees. Early estimates are that between four and five thousand families will look to the Red Cross for long-term assistance in getting back on their feet.

While these estimates indicate that costs may run between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000, ARC president Wilworth Bunker has announced that no special fund campaign will be conducted. Chapters are authorized to accept voluntary contributions towards meeting the needs of disaster victims and are asked to publicize this.

Red Cross operations are underway at these principal locations:

California: Guerneville, Forestville, Central Sonoma County, Napa, Plumas, and Del Norte Counties.

Oregon: Lane, Jackson, Douglas, Benton, Josephine and Coos Counties.

Lester Tharp Tells Of Retirement Here Following 31 Years

Letters Damaged In Plane Crash Received In City

Evidence of the crash of an Eastern Airlines plane at Jacksonville recently is showing up in Sanford through the delivery of U. S. Mail.

Letters with burned, frayed, and water soaked, edges, recovered from the burning plane are being delivered to addressees here in the Sanford Area.

One letter to The Sanford Herald, and one to a Sanford Herald employee have been delivered to addressees marked "damaged in plane crash."

Although of two and three cent stamp denominations, the letters were being rushed through a new service inaugurated by the Post Office Department, to the latter's recipients by air.

Possibly more of these letters will be delivered in the near future as the Post Office Department sorts and identifies individual pieces of mail taken from the plane in the early morning crash near the Jacksonville Airport.

Western Union Post Left Many Experiences Told By Manager

Beginning his telegraphic career in 1903, and after managing the Western Union in Sanford for the past 31 years, Lester Tharp has announced his retirement from active service.

Tharp came to Sanford from Lexington, Ky., in May 1924 in an emergency capacity for Western Union but liked the town so well he has remained and made it his home.

Prior to coming to Sanford Tharp had been employed for a few years with Associated Press, United Press Associations and several brokerage firms. He also served as Morse telegrapher for several brokerage firms. He also panned.

Duties as a Morse telegrapher, Tharp's service carried him into many cities and states, and although reluctant to talk of his experiences, some of them he likes to recall, such as his emergency work during the great Dayton, Ohio flood in 1913; the opening of the automobile speedway in Indianapolis, Ind.; working in several courtrooms during some of the nation's outstanding murder trials; and his three day assignment on the receiving end for the Cincinnati Associated Press members covering the sinking of the Titanic; as well as many other interesting events which he covered as a Morse operator.

Tharp also worked as telegrapher er in many major league baseball parks, race tracks and during many other special events including several presidential campaigns.

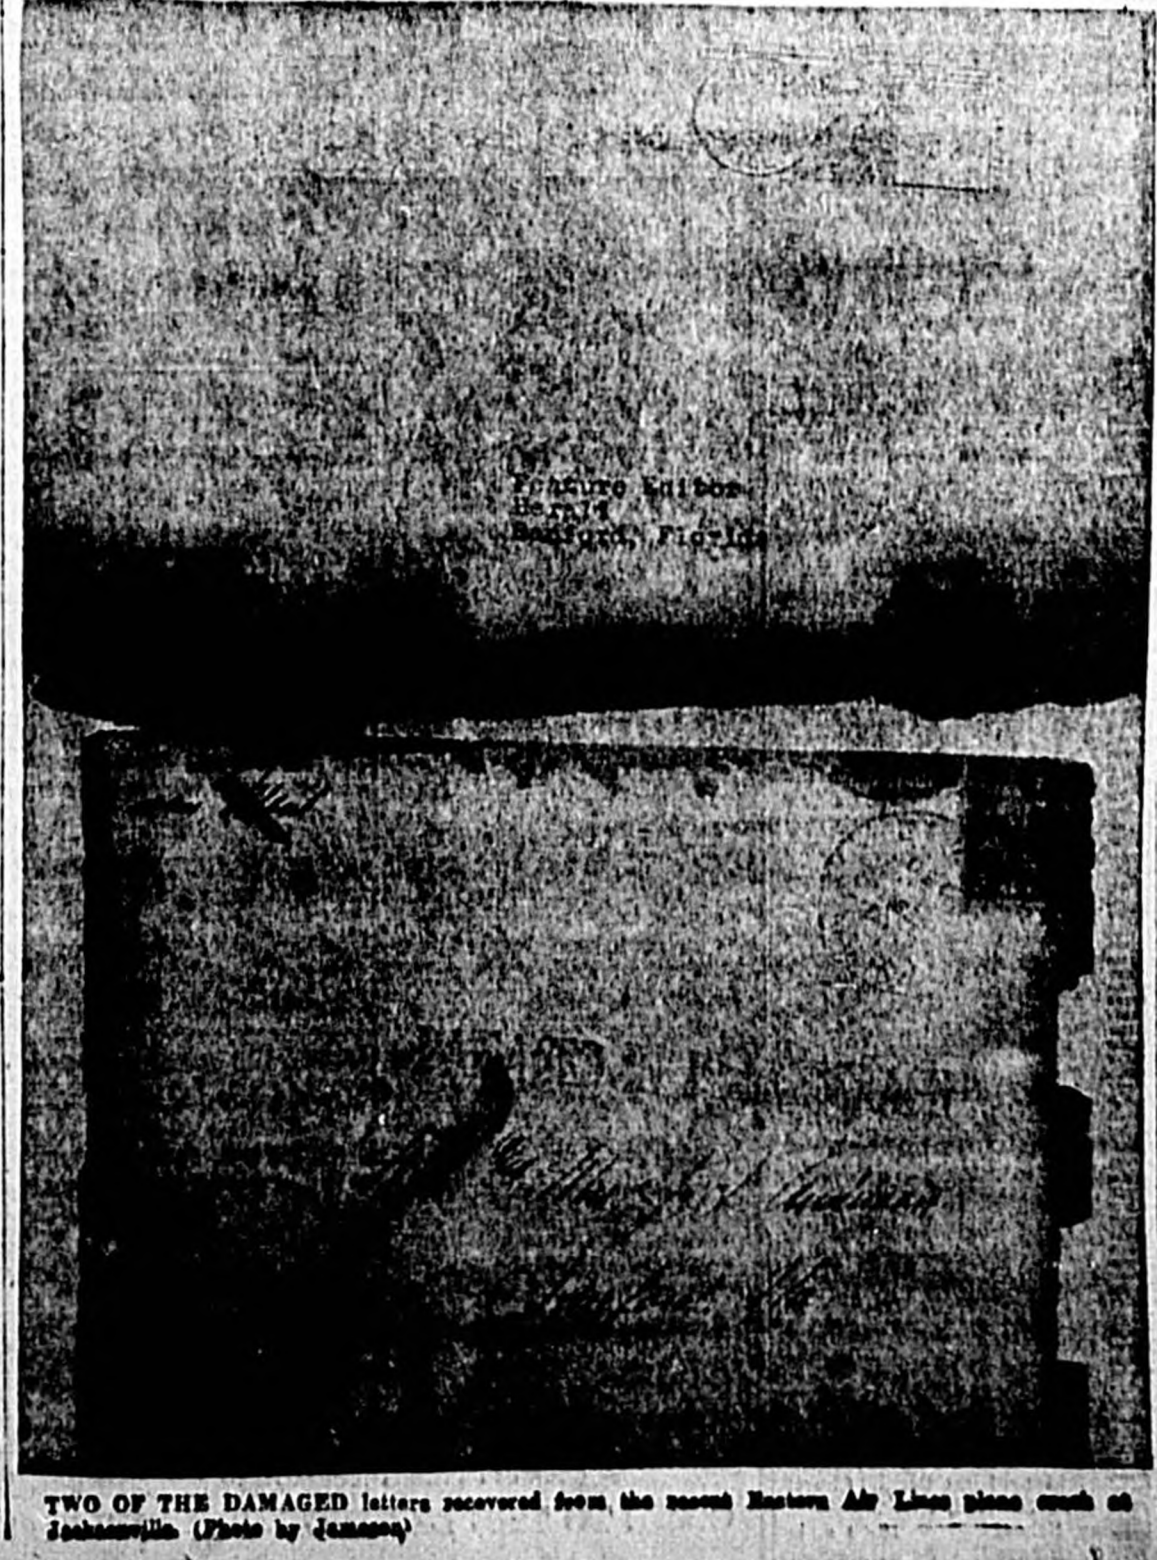

The retiring Western Union Manager's profound interest in baseball and other sports events is keenly shown now with his versatility in reporting such occasions by wire.

With the advent of the automatic telegraph, Tharp saw the passing of the Morse operator in his specialized field and returned to Western Union as a manager. He began his telegraphic career as a messenger in Mt. Sterling, Ky., Feb. 1, 1903.

When Tharp began as a messenger for Western Union the typewriter had just come into use among telegraphers, the panned copy was still widely used. Tharp recalls that 31 years ago only two telegrams could be handled simultaneously over one wire while today, Western Union carries hundreds of messages on a single circuit.

Tharp is a member of the First Christian Church where he is an officer. He is a past president of the Kiwanis Club of which he has been a member for over 25 years.

Among the many messages of congratulations on the completion of his half-century of service is one from G. F. Osborne, District Superintendent for the Western Union Telegraph Company. It reads: "My personal congratulations upon the completion of nearly 31 years of loyal and untiring service you have rendered Western Union at Sanford since May of 1923 and your nearly 31 years of telegraphic service. May you thoroughly enjoy the well deserved retirement from active duty with good health and relaxation for a long, long time to come."
