$1 Billion Complex Planned

Part Of 250-Acre Development

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

A major shopping center almost as large as Altamonte Mall is planned for the area on Highway 46A just west of Interstate 4. The retail center is planned as the centerpiece of a $1 billion 250-acre development adjacent to Heathrow, the planned community being developed by Jeno Paulucci.

Heathrow Town Center, a regional retail center, will be a cooperative project of Heathrow Land & Development Corporation, a San Diego-based shopping center developer, and a Los Angeles architectural firm. It is scheduled to open in 1992.

The $150 million retail center is intended to be a new "downtown" in central Florida, linked to the Heathrow International Business Center and other locations in the Centerra area by a "people-mover" transportation system. It is described as an integral part of a new 150-acre development adjacent to Heathrow called the Camelot Project.

Under the agreement, The Hahn Company of San Diego will develop the retail center, and The Jerde Partnership of Los Angeles, designer of the Disney EPCOT urban core, will design it.

The Camelot Project is described as a 150-acre development surrounding Town Center, and will include an international cultural and trade center, convention center, hotels, offices, apartments and condominiums. Those phases are in preliminary design stages.

Paulucci said he expects the new center "to establish the core of a vibrant new downtown for central Florida, an experience that will attract visitors from many miles around for the sheer joy of shopping, dining, and being entertained in style."

The retail center, planned to be over a million square feet at full development, will be on a 100-acre site just west of I-4 between Highway 46A and the proposed western segment of the Orlando Beltway. By comparison, Altamonte Mall has 1,200,000 square feet.

A people-mover system, for which a feasibility study is underway, is planned to link the retail center with other locations in the Heathrow area and eventually expand to connect with a regional people-mover system, Paulucci said.

Heathrow Development officials did not have information on what stores are planned to anchor the shopping center nor that the tallest structure would be. They also said they do not know how many jobs it will create, what the timing of various stages of construction will be, nor how large the parking area will be.

Center architect, The Jerde Partnership, was described as the creator of innovative designs for many retail and mixed-use centers, office buildings and other developments. The firm designed The Hahn Company's Horton Plaza retail and entertainment complex in downtown San Diego, as well as the Olympic Village for the 1984 Games in Los Angeles. Jerde also designed EPCOT Center's urban core, and the 5,000-acre master plan for EuroDisney in Paris.

The Hahn Company is one of the largest retail center developers in the United States, with 46 centers in 16 states, totaling 32 million square feet of retail space.

H. Gordon Wylie, chairman of the Heathrow Land and Development Corporation, said "We welcome this commitment by the Hahn Company. The Hahn development will meet the high standard of quality the Paulucci family has set for the Heathrow Community by creating here the first regional center for the 21st century."

Reagan: Last Year Will Be 'The Best Of The Eight'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Insisting "we're not finished yet," Ronald Reagan offered Monday to work with Congress in his final year as president to enact the policies needed to guarantee a legacy of prosperity, strength and lasting peace.

"We are strong, prosperous, at peace and we are free," Reagan assured the American people in his seventh nationally televised State of the Union address, delivered to a joint session of Congress.

"This is the state of our union," he said. "And if we will work together this year, I believe we can give a future president and a future Congress the chance to make that prosperity, that peace, that freedom, not just the state of our union, but the state of our world."

As he trumpeted a resurgence of political and economic freedom, the twin pillars of his conservative revolution, Reagan, who turns 77 Feb. 6, sought to remain a force to be reckoned with in the twilight of a presidency weakened in 1987 by scandal and defeat.

Reagan proclaimed democracy to be "everywhere on the move" and defended his assertive foreign policy as one that has "replaced 'Blame America' with 'Look up to America.'"

Far from the gloomy days of a year ago, however, the president seen Monday night was, in many respects, vintage Reagan: vigorous, at times feisty, brimming with optimism and ever ready to dispense the pundit and critics.

But even as he reached out in the lame-duck year of his presidency to a Congress controlled by Democrats bent on electing one of their own to the White House for the first time since 1976, leaders of the opposition offered a far different view of the state of the union.

In the official Democratic response, House Speaker Jim Wright and Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd charged Reagan's policies had, instead, left a grim legacy of fiscal irresponsibility and economic weakness.

The two top Democrats said Reagan now has the responsibility to work with Congress to repair the damage through tougher trade laws, better education, job training and sensible pay-as-you-go budgets.

"We have come to the end of an era," Byrd said. "The 'feel good' slogans have gone flat with time. The dark side of the Reagan years has only begun to loom."

Congressional reaction was split along partisan lines. Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., said Reagan's "tone was a little more cooperative but I didn't seem much more substantial." He called on the president to send a balanced budget to Congress instead of just talking about it.

Conservative Rep. Robert Dornan, R-Calif., was delighted by the speech. "Right up to the finish line, 'one more year.' He's going to be a terrific activist president."

After a year when the Iran-Contra scandal added to the perception that his political clout had been diminished, Reagan hoped to convey a simple message: 1988 will see him hard at work on what aides described as an unfinished agenda and a still uncertain legacy.

No mention was made of the political crisis that gripped his administration last year. Instead, rosy assessments of the economy and the outlook for improved relations for the Soviet Union highlighted a speech that lived up to earlier White House billing as short on bold new proposals.

Looking back over the last seven years and ahead to his place in history, Reagan took credit for "an economic and social revolution of hope" at home and "a complete turnaround, a revolution" in America's standing around the world.

White House officials said the absence of fresh initiatives, a contrast to previous years, reflected a sense of realism about what Reagan can expect to accomplish this year.

Reagan set the moral high ground — and safe political ground — by advocating educational

Local Viewers Favor Bush, Condemn Rather

Staff and Wire Reports

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President George Bush, claiming CBS News bushwacked him with another round on the Iran-Contra scandal, scored quick points with viewers for his extraordinary live stand-off with anchorman Dan Rather.

A conservative media watchdog group promptly called for Rather's resignation Monday night after the unusual exchange dominated the half-hour broadcast, and quickly grew into a heated confrontation between the two men.

Locally WCPX-TV, the CBS affiliate broadcasting the interview in the Central Florida area, received immediate response from viewers in support of Bush.

Mike Schweitzer, WCPX general manager, said his station received 161 calls on the one telephone line into the newsroom after the interview. Schweitzer said 142 calls were against Dan Rather's conduct during the segment and 19 calls supported Rather's actions.

Lake Mary Meetings Will Be Videotaped

They probably won't get as many laughs as "All" or sustain the high drama of "L.A. Law" but the Lake Mary city commissioners are preparing the lights and cameras for their own television show.

The commissioners have agreed to videotape the city's commission meetings for television broadcast.

"My makeup man can't get here that early," quipped

Commissioner George Durycia, while Mayor Dick Fess commented that such broadcasts would "cure your insomnia."

At no charge to the city, Storer Cable of Altamonte Springs has offered to televise the meetings on a tape-delayed basis, broadcasting the meetings during prime time no later than a week after the meetings, said Commissioner Randall Morris on Thursday.

Annexation Proposal Tabled By Sanford

By Nancy Simmons
Herald Staff Writer

A proposed annexation ordinance has been tabled by the Sanford City Commission to give City Attorney William C. Colbert and the city staff time to study objections raised to the annexation request by the Seminole County Commission.

Louise Groot, assistant county attorney, told city commissioners Monday night that the proposed annexation would create two enclaves.

The county objected to the annexation of property lying between State Road 46 and vacated Seacoast Line railroad, west of and abutting Brisson Avenue. Groot said the annexation would create two enclaves, one being the Rosalind Park area which would be made more difficult to access, the other, a smaller section of land in the south portion of the property, would be totally surrounded by city land if the annexation were to pass, Groot said.

Groot requested that all documents relevant to the annexation be disclosed, in case the

Town Crier's Days Are Not Gone

By Richard Whittaker
Herald Staff Writer

The days when a town crier would relate the information of the day to interested passers-by may not be as long gone as some have thought. At least once a week a Seminole County employee does much the same type service to the public as many criers once did.

Jane Jasewic has been a deputy clerk for the Seminole County Circuit Court for almost two-and-a-half years now. As part of her job she publicly reads notices of sales of foreclosed property every Tuesday and Thursday at 11 a.m.

Jasewic, who's originally from Sanford, still lives here with her daughter Jill. Graduating from Seminole High School in 1969, Jasewic, said she's enjoying working in the county court system. When a foreclosure on property owned by a Seminole County resident is ordered by the court it becomes available for public sale. Jasewic said she waits until ten days after the date of the court judgement, and then reads the notice of the sale. She said the property owner has ten days from the date of the judgement in which to come up with the money to keep the property.

"Most of the time I read the notices out in front of the courthouse, but if it's a rainy day I read them inside in the lobby," she said.

The types of property being sold can be almost anything, according to Jasewic. "It could be land or homes, or anything else that's being sold," she said. She added that she generally doesn't do sales for cars lost to foreclosure.

The information Jasewic relates to the interested buyers during the readings consists of the style and number of the case, which includes identifying the item for sale, and the names of the defendants and plaintiffs in each case.

Most of the persons at the public readings are usually representatives of the plaintiffs in the cases, who are trying to take control of the property again. Jasewic said there are times when a third party bidder will make an offer for the item being sold.

"If a third party bidder gets the property they have to immediately present $1,000 or five percent of the purchase price to the court in cash, money order

IN BRIEF

Checker Playing Pair Clash, Inmate Slashed In Fray

A Seminole County jail inmate who reportedly got into a fight with another inmate over a checkers match at about 5 a.m. Sunday was allegedly slashed by the other man.

Derrick Devon Benton, 25, of 215 Terry Lane, Sanford, was cut on his head, cheek, neck and forearm in the clash. A Seminole County sheriff's report said that it took about 80 stitches to close Benton's wounds. He was treated at Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford.

Sheriff's deputies reported that a disposable razor, like those issued to inmates and then confiscated by guards after use, is believed to have been used in the attack. Deputies reported the razor has not been found. The investigation continued. There was no report yet of charges having been filed against the suspect named in the case.

High Court Refuses Ruling On Book Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Monday refused to decide the constitutionality of a Virginia law that federal courts found would bar bookstores from displaying best sellers, health books and other material that might be harmful to children.

The court, which accepted the case for review and heard arguments last year, sent the case to the Virginia Supreme Court with instructions to decide two questions involving how the law would actually work.

While not deciding whether the law should be struck down, the court did continue a court order that prevents the 1985 statute from going into effect.

Justice William Brennan, writing for a unanimous court, said the state court should decide if books, such as best sellers, health books and others, would be considered harmful to children under the law and how a bookseller should keep the material from children.

After the state court decides the questions, the case could return to the Supreme Court.

"We have concluded that we should not attempt to decide the constitutional issues presented without first having the Virginia Supreme Court's interpretation of key provisions of the statute," Brennan wrote.

The Virginia case involves a 1985 amendment to a state statute that attempted to shield those under 18 from sexually explicit material. The original statute barred the sale to minors of such material, which included magazines and books that are not classified as obscene and available for adults.

However, the amendment took the law a step further and made it illegal to display the materials "in a manner whereby juveniles may examine and peruse" them and defined the material as anything that was "harmful to juveniles."

Violation of the law was a misdemeanor.

The American Booksellers Association, four other trade associations and two bookstores brought suit charging the law was unconstitutional. They said the law barred a bookstore from displaying any book or magazine that could be harmful to a minor of any age and thereby restricted adult access to the works.

The groups said the law was too broad and violated the First Amendment guarantee of freedom of the press.

In September 1985, a federal court found the statute unconstitutional and permanently barred the state from enforcing the amendment. The court said the law's definition of "harmful to juveniles" could cover as much as 25 percent of a bookstore's stock.

"The books that fall within the restrictions come from a wide variety of subject matters, such as romance, fiction, photography, best sellers, science fiction and health," the court said. "Most of these books come within the statute's fairly broad ambit on the basis of their content."

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals agreed in September 1986.

Arguing against review, the booksellers said "restrictions on display have a vastly broader impact on First Amendment rights than do restrictions on sales."

Alert Police Nab Suspect

Police were called to 2415 Sanford Ave. at about 1:30 a.m. Friday by a neighbor who said she heard someone trying to break out a back window of the house owned by A. Stanish, according to Sanford Police Captain Herb Shea.

Later police arrested the alleged burglar after stopping him on a traffic check.

Stanish was not home at the time of the break-in, but the neighbor told police that she looked out her window that she could see someone running back and forth between the front and back of the house, and that it looked like he was carrying a grocery bag.

When police arrived officers determined that the suspect had entered the residence through a window by the front door, and had left by a back door.

Shortly after the initial incident, an officer spotted a white 1966 Ford Galaxy traveling west on Celery Avenue, and recognized it to be one reported stolen, according to Shea. He stopped the vehicle and found that the driver, John Fitzpatrick Knight, 23, 808 Bay Ave., did not have a driver's license and didn't know where the car registration was. Knight told the investigating officer the car belonged to someone he worked for. An ID number on the inside of one of the doors matched the ID number of the car reported missing, Shea noted. After further discussion Knight admitted taking a television set, some change and keys from the Stanish residence.

He was subsequently arrested and jailed at the Seminole County Jail on charges of grand theft and burglary.

Other Court Actions

In other action, the court

• Ruled 5-3 that a defendant's right to have witnesses testify in his behalf was not violated when a judge refused to allow testimony from a defense witness whose identity was kept hidden from prosecutors.

• Ruled 5-3 that an employee of the Fish and Wildlife Service who was suspending for improperly using a government vehicle may not file a lawsuit to recover back pay.

• Refused to reinstate Paul N. Carlin as postmaster general, despite his claims he was wrongly removed from the job because he impeded a kickback scheme by two postal service officers.

Smile Seminolians: Cold Helps Citrus

By Fred H. Cooper
 Herald Staff Writer

What do you do on a day like this? Stay inside! They say a little freeze is good for the citrus - adds sweetness to oranges. That's nice, but it sure doesn't add sweetness to the citizens of Seminole. Even 'Have a nice day' has a hollow ring, or tingle.

For those of you who like this change of pace weather, you're gonna get some more. Tonight! And, tomorrow night. Then we'll start resuming a more civilized existence as a warming trend sets in on Thursday. However, that doesn't mean the glowing rays of the sun will come a galloping. Nay, it'll be gradual giving promise - moment by moment - of better things to come.

If you wish to be specific, low tonight will be in the high 20s and low tomorrow night will be about 30. Both are below freezing, if you haven't noticed.

Did read that the human body generates some kind of special resistance to colds in the morning hours but that the defenses are lowered in the afternoon. Therefore, most folks catch cold in the afternoon. The solution? Consider siestas in an appropriate, warm space. Back in the 'good old days' everything shut down on Wednesday afternoon (Thursday afternoon in some places) and folks went fishing, or sleetering, or whatnot. It's safe to assume that with the passing of that custom, there are more colds abounding.

Remember the fire ants discussed this fall and neglected for the past few months? Well they're still heading our way.

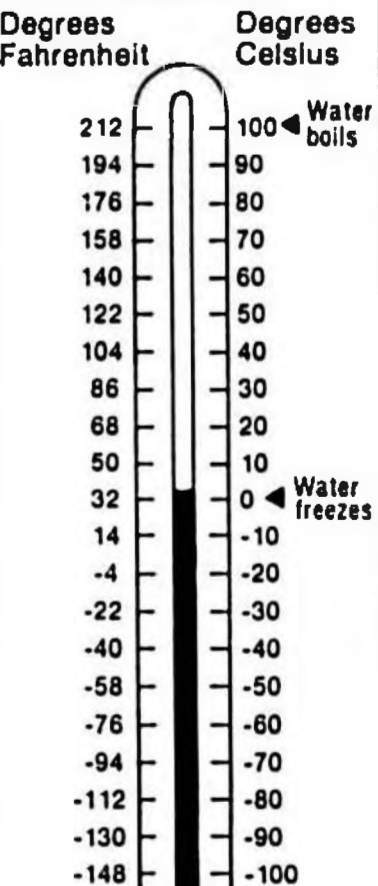

The African "killer" bees could reach the United States by late this year, but research may lessen the impact of the aggressive insect on the industry.

The realization by American beekeepers that they cannot handle African bees as they do European honey bees that are the backbone of the industry will be a shock, we're told.

Many people who raise bees as a hobby or on a small level will be forced out of the business. The African bees tend to infiltrate and take over native bee colonies.

No Shuttle Launch Date Set; Reports Indicate New Flaws

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After an all-day meeting, top space agency managers did not decide on a launch date for the first post-Challenger shuttle flight and agreed to review data further amid reports of more flaws in shuttle parts.

A report in the Washington Post today said NASA engineers have in the last few days found new flaws in the manufacturing of the shuttle's booster aft skirt segments and in its main engines.

NASA is assessing the impact of the latest problems on the launch date, David Winterhalter, NASA's director of systems engineering and analysis, told the Post Monday.

A NASA statement released late Monday said, "It is anticipated that a launch date decision will be made later this week."

Mecham Fate: Recall Or Quit

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Gov. Evan Mecham, now facing a recall election unless he resigns by Saturday, repeated his vow never to quit, and a House impeachment panel focused on $40,000 in inaugural ball proceeds that were loaned to his car dealership.

Secretary of State Rose Mofford announced Monday that she has verified that 301,032 of the names on recall petitions are those of registered voters, well more than the 213,746 required to force the new election.

Mofford, a Democrat who would become acting governor if Mecham resigns, said she would notify the Republican governor of the official results late today in private.

"It's been very difficult," Mofford said. "This is a sad time for Arizona, a sad time for the governor and a sad time for me personally."

Once Mecham is notified, he has until Saturday to decide whether to resign or face the voters again.

Mine Explosion Kills 21; Hope Fades For 21 Others

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Rescue teams threatened by cave-ins dug today toward 20 workers believed trapped in a coal mine turned into an underground inferno by an explosion that killed 21 other miners and injured 45.

But officials said they held out little hope for the survival of the trapped men, and dozens of grieving relatives kept a vigil outside the Four-and-a-Half mine, praying and waiting for word on their loved ones.

Firefighters battled the blaze that still raged in the northern Mexico mine a day after a buildup of gases apparently touched off the searing explosion. The state-owned mining company Sidermex said rescuers hoped to find the missing miners later today as they dug farther into the shaft, which is 100 yards deep and 2 1/2 miles long.

Rescuers freed 101 miners from the 30-year-old mine in the hours after the blast Monday. A spokesman said 45 were injured, many with serious burns.

Murder May Backfire On Dealers

MEDELLIN, Colombia (UPI) — The murder of Attorney General Carlos Hoyos Jimenez, just hours after suspected drug traffickers kidnaped him and killed two of his bodyguards, may backfire on the drug cartel that allegedly supplies 80 percent of the cocaine in the United States.

The handcuffed, bullet-riddled body of Hoyos, considered one of the toughest government officials in Colombia's war against the cocaine trade, was found Monday at a farmhouse outside Medellin.

Hoyos becomes the highest-ranking official to die at the hands of presumed drug traffickers since the April 30, 1984, assassination of Justice Minister Rodrigo Lara Bonilla.

The government responded to the assassination of Lara Bonilla, who was machine-gunned by two 18-year-old hired killers, with a decision to extradite Colombians to the United States to face trial for drug smuggling charges and may take a harder stance following Hoyos's killing.

New Lake Mary Public Safety Facility

Sanford Herald, Sanford, Fl. Tuesday, Jan. 26, 1988—3A

Architect: Complex Will Boost Image

By Brian Hodberg
Herald Staff Writer

A planned public works and public safety complex in Lake Mary will be used as a chance to develop an image for the city's government, the architect for the complex said Monday.

"We're going to be designing the city hall, too," said Edward Spelman, principal at Catalyst Incorporated Architecture. "We want to design both buildings to complement one another, to develop an image for Lake Mary that will be consistent in all its facilities."

Lake Mary commissioners Thursday approved a master site plan for the complex and authorized Catalyst Incorporated to prepare preliminary cost estimates.

The estimates are due Feb. 18, the date of the commission's next meeting.

"What we want to do with the property is showcase the site for people driving by," Spelman said of the complex, which will sit on a hill on the city's 10 acres, about one-fourth of a mile north of Lake Mary Boulevard on the east side of Rinehart Road.

Style of architecture and building materials will be standardized for the complex and city hall, he said.

The public works complex is to consist of a city garage, where mechanics will maintain city vehicles, and a public works office building.

The public safety complex is to include fire and police departments. An added fire and police training facility is up in the air, with land in the plan for the facility. But commissioners asked for the cost estimates excluding the training facility, indicating the facility will not be immediately funded.

Police Chief Charles Lauderdale said the joint training facility would allow the departments to cross-train their men and women to be "first responders." Whatever department arrived on the scene first, its members would be able to handle emergency medical services, fire combat and law enforcement.

Lauderdale said that in typical fender-bender auto accidents, a police car, then fire truck, then rescue vehicle, then ambulance arrive, some vehicles being unnecessary. Under the first responder concept, he said, whoever arrives at the scene first would be able to access the situation and stop bleeding, perform CPR, cut a battery from its power source, or whatever task is needed, cutting down on the number of units required at the scene.

A first responder, sometimes called a public safety officer, serves as the eyes and ears for both departments, Lauderdale said, providing the most cost-effective response.

Spelman thinks the idea of splitting the complex and city hall is a good one. "Rinehart Road will give the police and fire better access to the residential area," he said. City hall, which is to be built downtown, will be a city focal point, he said.

A large enough plot of land for both the complex and city hall was not available downtown, he said, necessitating the decision of separated facilities.

A water plant and storage tank on the Rinehart Road property will be "cosmetically treated" to fit it aesthetically with the public works and public safety complex, Spelman said.

He said his firm probably will develop a "shopping list" for the complex, giving a price for each facility.

Space on the site has been allocated for two more ground storage tanks, with about one acre remaining to be used for any future expansion, Spelman said.

He was directed to design the public works building and bring it back to the commission for a critique.

Spelman, whose company has designed Apopka's city hall as well, said he is surprised at the large number of citizens participating in city commission meetings.

Motel Meanderer Drops Matches, Is Arrested

A 33-year-old Orlando man who allegedly dropped lighted matches in motel rooms now has filled a room at the county jail after his arrest by Altamonte Springs Police.

Harry Mark Denning, 33, was at a room at the Sundance Inn, W. State Road 436, Altamonte Springs, but reportedly began roaming in and out of other rooms being cleaned by maids at approximately 1 p.m. Sunday.

The maids told police they ordered the man out and twice he allegedly put lighted matches to drapes in rooms in retaliation.

Police called to the scene reported going with the man to his room for his identification. They reported he was "uncooperative." A packet of marijuana was reportedly found in the man's wallet in his room.

Denning was arrested and charged with arson, burglary and possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana. He was being held in lieu of $4,500 bond.

In another matter, Altamonte Springs police, who were taking an apparently intoxicated man into custody for his own protection under the Myers Act, reported mixing that plan and arresting the man after he allegedly attacked a policeman.

Karl Blair Schmeck, 24, of Winter Park, was charged with battery on a policeman at the Altamonte Springs police station at about 4:15 a.m. Sunday.

Schmeck first attracted police attention when he entered the police station and allegedly tried to enter the chief's office and other rooms, which were locked.

He agreed to go sleep in his van, but when fire department paramedics later found him in a restricted area at the Altamonte Springs government complex police decided to take Schmeck into custody under the Myers Act. But he allegedly fought a policeman and was arrested. He has been released on $1,000 bond to appear in court Feb. 8.

Police were also called in during the weekend after a 5-year-old Altamonte Springs girl told her mother that several times between Jan. 4 and Jan. 19, she has been sexually assaulted by an older girl while in a restroom of Altamonte Elementary School, Altamonte Springs.

The mother told Seminole County sheriff's deputies she first reported the child's allegations to school officials, who referred her to the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS).

The mother said she reported the allegations to HRS Thursday and got no response from HRS workers. So, Sunday the mother reported the alleged assaults to sheriff's deputies, who are investigating the case.

Darden Granted Stay

STARKE (UPI) — The U.S. Supreme Court Monday granted a stay of execution for Willie Jasper Darden, whose impending execution has captured the attention of Amnesty International and human rights activists around the world.

Darden, who has served on Florida's death row longer than any other person except one, was scheduled to die Feb. 3 at the Florida State Prison in Starke.

The high court said its stay will remain in effect until it disposes of Darden's case. Darden is under an unprecedented sixth death warrant, which remains in effect until noon, Feb. 9.

Amnesty International has orchestrated a world-wide campaign to try to block Darden's execution. The human rights group has plans for demonstrations at U.S. embassies to demand clemency for the condemned man.

As the court was acting in Washington, rock singer Peter Gabriel and Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., joined the international campaign today.

Previous pleas for mercy by Soviet dissident and Nobel laureate Andrei Sakharov, the Rev. Jesse Jackson, actress Margot Kidder, the NAACP and the Southern Christian Leadership Council have been rejected by Gov. Bob Martinez.

But in a telephone conference call from London, Gabriel said he hoped to demonstrate international revulsion to the U.S. "death machine."

"I think the image of Florida will definitely be tarnished if this execution is allowed to go ahead," Gabriel said.

Conyers, chairman of a House criminal justice subcommittee, said Darden's case illustrates concerns by capital punishment opponents that the death penalty is arbitrary and unfairly discriminates against blacks and other minorities.

Darden, 54, has steadfastly maintained his innocence.

Consultant: Campaign Can Help Boost Parks

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

Consultant recommendations based on a survey of Seminole County Parks users include developing a promotional campaign to inform more people about the park system, and widening the range of facilities and programs available.

The recommendations come from the consulting company Glattling Lopez Kercher Anglin, Inc., based on a telephone survey conducted last fall, as well as a series of interviews of park users conducted at four county parks.

The consultants' report says county residents seem to be generally pleased with the county park system, but think each park should offer a wide range of recreational opportunities, which they would be willing to pay for. This feeling was expressed most by users of passive parks, such as Lake Mills and Sylvan Lake, where there are few recreational facilities.

Most park users visit parks for team sports and family recreational activities, the survey found, with the most popular activities being tennis, softball, racquetball, basketball, soccer, and use of playgrounds, picnic areas and nature trails.

The predominant age group using the parks is the under age 14 group and young adults ages 25 to 49. Few people over age 50 use the parks, and the consultants recommend development of programs to appeal to older people.

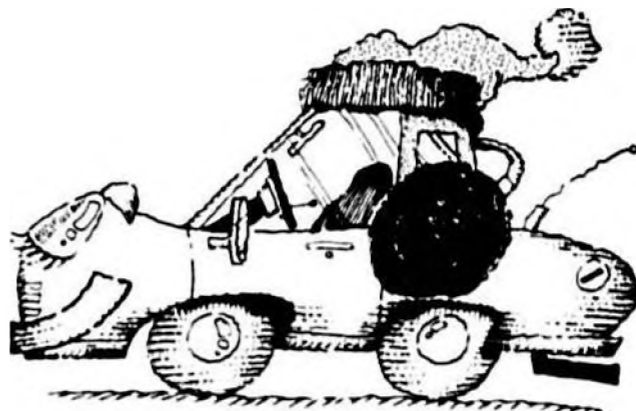

Another need, the consultants said, is more parking space because the survey reveals that the overwhelming majority of park users drive to the parks in their own vehicles, and a common complaint is that there are not enough parking areas, or existing parking areas need to be improved.

Since many respondents in the survey were not familiar with the county's park system, the consultants recommend a promotional/educational campaign to familiarize county residents with the park system and what it has to offer.

The report also recommends efforts to diversify recreational facilities as well as organized programs. This would involve the hiring of additional staff to conduct and supervise the programs.

Also recommended in extending the hours the parks are open and acquiring additional land to expand existing parks and add new ones.

Nuclear Missiles Are Proliferating

Since the signing of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty in 1968, the industrialized powers have slowed but not halted the spread of atomic weapons in the Third World.

India, Pakistan, Israel and South Africa are believed capable of producing nuclear bombs; they may be followed soon by other countries. The dangers inherent in this trend are now greatly magnified, moreover, with the swift development of ballistic missiles by some of these same junior members of the nuclear club.

The convergence of nuclear weapons production and missile technology in Third World nations promises a volatile future in which regional conflicts could escalate into nuclear warfare beyond the control of the superpowers.

For example, the Asian subcontinent could become a much more dangerous place if India succeeds in its program to manufacture a ballistic launcher capable of delivering a nuclear warhead to targets 2,500 miles away. Such a range would give India the capacity to strike at both its traditional enemies, China and Pakistan, which possess atomic capability of their own.

Israel, meanwhile, has test-fired its Jericho II missile, which has a range of 900 miles. The Israeli program has stirred alarm in Moscow because the weapon is capable of hitting the southern reaches of the Soviet Union.

Brazil also is engaged in a vigorous program of missile development, with plans to export the arms to a number of Third World customers. By the middle of the next decade, according to Pentagon estimates, Brazil will be exporting ballistic launchers with a range of 700 miles. It already sells shorter-range battlefield missiles to Iraq, Libya, and other countries.

In a bid to slow the proliferation of missile technology, the United States and six other advanced nations have agreed to restrict exports of guidance systems and rocket technology. The controls are important but come too late to avert an increase in the number of nations that are likely to have nuclear missiles by the turn of the century.

The specter of a world in which unstable or radical Third World regimes—such as that of Libya's Moammar Gadhafi—possess nuclear warheads and the ability to deliver them across continents is a compelling argument for development of strategic missile defenses.

In the 21st century, the Strategic Defense Initiative could provide the crucial margin needed to head off an attack against the United States or its allies from the world's growing number of nuclear triggers.

China Says No

The Chinese have said thanks, but no thanks, to Mikhail Gorbachev's invitation to an early summit. China's quick, almost contemptuous, dismissal of the Soviet offer undoubtedly ruffled a few feathers in the corridors of the Kremlin.

The ubiquitous Gorbachev proposed the Sino-Soviet summit the other day during an interview with a Beijing news magazine. He indicated that a summit would be a logical extension of the successful lowering of tension in the long-standing border dispute.

The interview in Liaowang, or Outlook, was the first time in more than 25 years that a Soviet leader's opinion had been disseminated among the Chinese people. It was in 1959 when Nikita Khrushchev went to China for talks with Mao Tse-Tung. The result was a chill in Sino-Soviet relations that snowballed into a diplomatic ice age.

As in the past, China cited three conditions before relations could return to normal, let alone join in a summit. They are withdrawal of Soviet forces from Afghanistan, an end of support for Vietnam's occupation of Cambodia, and a dramatic reduction of Soviet troops and armaments along the Sino-Soviet border.

White Celebrities, Beware February

I finally figured out why black physical and mental capabilities cause such controversy, and I think I've also figured out a way to avoid future media hustles.

The reason Jimmy "the Greek" Snyder and, before him, Al Campanis were catapulted into the eye of the repertorial storm is because each was a VQWC (Very Quotable White Celebrity) discussing a VUBS (Very Unfamiliar Black Subject). And Very Quotable White Celebrities tend to get into trouble when they get in over their ethnic heads.

For example, substitute Michael Jackson speculating about big thighs being responsible for black athletes' success, and nobody would have gotten excited. (Except, maybe Michael.)

Conversely, suppose Jimmy the Greek had chosen to wax lyrical about the Peloponnesian War unleashing the chain of events that led to black athletic superiority. The brothers in the ghetto would have freaked out. "You mean this dude is trying to run a game on us that Pericles did more than Nat Turner to help Michael Jordan dunk that ball? Far out, man, far out."

By the same token, before Al Campanis tried to swing at Ted Koppel's curve ball, he should have asked for "some comparative statistics on black managers in the other major sports." No, that wouldn't have answered the question, but Campanis would still have his job today.

Reporters love setting up VQWCs with VUBSs. I hereby offer a service for white celebrities. Here's how to avoid sticking your Gucci in your mouth when a television reporter runs up, shoves a microphone in your face and catches you with your mind in first gear before it can shift into third.

First of all, remember that racial controversies tend to erupt on anniversaries and holidays. Koppel embarrassed Campanis on the 40th Anniversary of Jackie Robinson's entry into major-league baseball. Snyder was sandbagged by a television reporter on the birthday of Martin Luther King Jr. So white celebrities, beware.

February is Black History month. You may be asked something like, "Since Jesse Jackson is running for president, what black man or woman in history comes closest to matching his achievement?" Be hip and reply: "Mary McLeod Bethune, W.E.B. DuBois, William H. Hastie and Adam Clayton Powell Jr." (It'll blow the reporter's mind.)

Next comes March, the anniversary month of the 1968 Kerner Commission Report on the 1967 "civil disorders." (The brothers called them "black rebellions," but if you follow their example, you'll be called a troublemaker.)

During March, stories ad nauseum will analyze race relations during the last 20 years, so get ready for the inquisitorial deluge. The topic that most excites reporters is people's reactions to the commission's conclusion, because no matter what they say, it's guaranteed to produce a headline.

"Our nation is moving toward two societies, one black, one white — separate and unequal." Why do you agree or disagree? They will ask.

Stone's advice (if you're a VQWC): Ask the reporter for a breakdown on the employment and promotional progress of blacks in his/her organization during the last 20 years. Then say as sweetly as you know how, "That indicates we've still got a long way to go, doesn't it?"

WILLIAM RUSHER

Schisms Divide Faithful

The decade of the 1970s witnessed ruptures in almost every Christian denomination, and for that matter within the recognized subdivisions of the Jewish faith too. Broadly speaking, the battle was between those who wanted to "update" their religion to make it more relevant to such modern concerns as sexism, poverty, etc., and those who believed profoundly that religion becomes "relevant" precisely to the extent that it seeks to transform mankind rather than society.

Altogether I wrote three columns on the dispute among Episcopals during eleven months of 1977.

The third reported that four bishops (Robert Morae among them) would be consecrated in Denver on Jan. 28, 1978, to launch "the Anglican Church in North America." This body conceived itself as simply the continuation of the Episcopal faith as known heretofore: without revisions in the 1928 Book of Common Prayer, without priestesses, and without the rest of the liberal baggage that was by then weighing down the ancestral denomination.

I wish, though, that there were better news about ACNA, on the occasion of its 10th anniversary. Clergy and parishioners who have undergone the wrenching experience of leaving their traditional home are rarely willing, it seems, to compromise on what they regard as essentials. The four bishops consecrated in Denver 10 years ago have separated, to go in very different directions.

Another beneficiary of ACNA's disintegration has been the American Episcopal Church, a group that broke away from the main body of Episcopalianism during the 1960s. A number of ACNA parishes have gone to it.

Meanwhile PECUSA — the Protestant Episcopal Church, U.S.A. — continues on the paths that provoked the schism in the first place. Priestesses have been ordained in the great majority of its parishes, and proposals to remove remaining shreds of "sexism" from its liturgy have evoked dry remarks about the need for a Society for the Preservation of the 1979 Prayer Book (that being the revision that earlier preservationists had resisted).

One must not lose perspective. The struggle within American Episcopalianism is small potatoes compared to the battles still raging within the far larger Baptist and Lutheran denominations.

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — History hasn't left us with the name of the first congressman to attach an obscure rider to an unrelated bill. No doubt his colleagues were piqued — first because he did it, and then because they didn't think of it themselves.

A legislative rider is like an ugly baby. It's such a shame until it's your own. And nobody knows riders better than Rep. Jim Howard.

The New Jersey Democrat was the first to trash other lawmakers for sneaking increased highway speeds into a spending bill before Christmas. But Howard was busy at the same time squiring around his own ugly baby—a rider that would benefit the billboard industry, one of his most generous contributors.

Howard pulled no punches when he criticized his colleagues over the rider permitting 65 mph speed limits on some state highways built to high-speed interstate standards. He is a strong supporter of the

Honoring Hopkins

AMES, Iowa (NEA) — He's not a candidate for the Republican or Democratic presidential nomination in Iowa's upcoming caucuses, but one veteran of government service is making an impressive political comeback.

He's Harry Hopkins, who was born in Sioux City, Iowa in 1890, educated at Grinnell College in Grinnell, Iowa, and spent more than a decade in Washington as one of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's most trusted advisers.

Although Hopkins died in 1946, the revival of interest in his career has been marked by the publication of a major new biography, production of an hour-long documentary film about his life, establishment of the Harry Hopkins Public Service Lecture Series at Grinnell and other events.

Those promoting the Hopkins revival note that his philosophy of government service contrasts sharply with the attitude of many contemporary federal officials who view their tenure in Washington as an opportunity for self-promotion and personal enrichment.

"Those of us who get a chance" to serve the country "should be well motivated when the time comes to serve it well," Hopkins once said in a Grinnell speech.

"He was a guy who put the interests of the country ahead of his own concerns," says George McJimsey, a history professor at Iowa State University in Ames whose definitive book, "Harry Hopkins: Ally of the Poor and Defender of Democracy," was recently published by Harvard University Press.

Among those present at a Capitol Hill party last year honoring Mc-Jimsey and, indirectly, Hopkins were Iowa's two senators, Republican Charles Grassley and Democrat Thomas Harkin, as well as dozens of other Washington leaders.

Sponsoring that party was the Harry Hopkins Public Service Institute, headed by Verne W. Newton (a Humboldt, Iowa, native who now lives in the Washington area) and dedicated to perpetuating the memory of Hopkins' "selfless public service."

The institute is producing the documentary film and sponsoring the lecture series. It also is organizing a campaign to promote the issuance of a commemorative stamp during the 1990 centennial of Hopkins' birth and plans to annually award the Harry Hopkins Public Service Medal to a dedicated public servant.

All of those honors are for a man of whom Roosevelt once said: "He asked only to serve." A social worker, Hopkins was recruited in 1933 during Roosevelt's famed "first 100 days," then headed the Works Progress Administration, a massive relief program to aid victims of the Great Depression.

By 1937, however, his health began to fail because of a never fully diagnosed but thoroughly debilitating chronic intestinal ailment that would leave his body frail and emaciated.

Hopkins' spirit, however, was unaffected. In 1940, he moved into the White House, set up an office in Abraham Lincoln's study and assumed the duties (although not the titles) of deputy president, chief of staff and national security adviser.

SCIENCE WORLD

Tension Headache Relief

By Rob Stein
UPI Science Writer

BOSTON (UPI) — For the millions of Americans suffering from tension headaches, backaches and insomnia, Glen Whitten has an unusual suggestion: "Take two lenses and call me in the morning."

Whitten has invented a pair of glasses he says can help people relax and rid themselves of tension that makes their temples throb, their backs ache and prevents them from sleeping. His claims have not been proven, however, in extensive scientific studies.

Dubbed DZIDRA glasses, the spectacles use pulsating liquid crystals like those used in digital watches to lull the wearer into a relaxed brain state, reducing tension and eliminating the pain that results.

"You start relaxing almost immediately," said Whitten, president of DZIDRA Technologies Inc., of Boston, which is marketing the glasses.

The Food and Drug Administration gave the company permission to begin selling the glasses last February. They are available only by prescription for $125 a pair.

The glasses look like regular sunglasses but have 1-inch-square liquid crystals affixed to the middle of the inside of each lens. The crystals are attached to a timer built into one ear piece and three 1.5-volt batteries in the other.

The wearer puts on the glasses, closes his eyes and looks in the direction of any type of light source. The battery sends an intermittent signal to the crystals, which causes them to rotate.

The optic nerve is stimulated by the shadows created by the movement, apparently slowing down the wearer's brain signals, Whitten said. That causes the blood pressure to drop and tension to ease, he said.

"The brain tends to harmonize with signals presented in this manner. As the signals slow down there are a number of physiological changes that occur," he said.

In addition to the estimated 20 million Americans who suffer from tension headaches, 67 million Americans with high blood pressure, 23 million Americans with chronic backaches and 30 million Americans with insomnia could be helped by wearing the glasses, Whitten claims.

But Jim Howard and his pro-billboard colleagues on the House Public Works Committee are about the only ones outside the sign industry who think that way. The Transportation Department recently told Howard that current law leaves the question of compensation up to the states.

In a letter to Howard, the new secretary of transportation, Jim Burnley, said that billboard owners are supposed to be compensated when the federal government tears down a sign in the name of the federal Highway Beautification Act. The law does not say anything about what happens when local governments reduce the size of signs based on local laws. Courts have repeatedly upheld Burnley's view.

This is not the first time Howard has pushed a law that benefits billboard barons while ignoring court decisions and advice from the Transportation Department.

After we exposed him in 1986,

Howard retracted a proposal that would have paid a North Dakota sign owner for billboards slated for the wrecking ball. The sign owner had waived his right to compensation in exchange for permission to put up the signs. A state court had ruled that the man had no right to compensation, and the U.S. Supreme Court had refused to hear the appeal, letting the ruling stand. That didn't stop Howard from trying to get the man his money through an act of Congress.

Why is Jim Howard so gung ho for the billboard industry? A look at Federal Election Commission records shows that Howard got about 8 percent of his campaign money — $49,225 — from the billboard industry in 1985 and 1986. Close to half of all the people on Howard's list of contributors during that time were connected to the billboard business, the records show.

Howard's staff told us the contributions have nothing to do with his support of the billboard industry.

Branch: From Sanford To Super Bowl

Family Heads Out West To Support Reggie In Big Game

By Chris Pister

Super Bowl

Playing in the Super Bowl is the dream of all football players from the moment they first slip on the shoulder pads. Sanford's Reggie Branch is fulfilling that dream in only his first full season as a professional player.

Branch, a 1980 Seminole High graduate, will be wearing No. 29 for the Washington Redskins Sunday when they go up against the Denver Broncos in Super Bowl XXII at Jack Murphy Stadium in San Diego. Kickoff is 6 p.m. in the West and 9 p.m. Eastern Standard Time.

Branch, who played his college ball at East Carolina University, will be sharing his dream with his family. His mother, Annie Mae Branch, along with two brothers and two sisters will all make the trip to San Diego for the Super Bowl festivities.

"We're flying out there Thursday and will stay until Tuesday," Mrs. Branch, a Sanford resident, said. "I've talked with Reggie quite a few times and he is definitely excited about playing in the Super Bowl."

Also making the flight to San Diego are Reggie's brothers, Curtis Morgan (37 years old) and Herbert Branch (29) and sisters Patricia Ewell (31) and Beverly Branch (27). All still live in the Central Florida area. Mrs. Branch's sister, Margaret Davis and cousin Annie Lee Henderson will also be part of the Sanford entourage going to the Super Bowl.

"So far, I've been to Tampa, Miami and Atlanta to see Reggie this year," Mrs. Branch said. "This is the farthest we've ever gone to see him play, but this is the Super Bowl."

Branch, a 5-11, 235-pound fullback, is one of the key members of the Redskins' special teams and also occasionally returns kickoffs. He also appears in the Washington backfield as a blocking back on short yardage and goal-line situations. Branch has also scored one rushing touchdown this season.

While Branch, 25-years-old, will fulfill his dream this Sunday, he certainly paid his dues to get there. Branch was drafted by the Redskins out of East Carolina but was cut his first year with the team. They called him back the next year, only to cut him again in preseason.

He was once again called back for the final game of the season a year ago and ended up playing in the playoffs. Branch and the Redskins fell one game shy of the Super Bowl a year ago when they lost in the NFC Championship game to the eventual champion New York Giants.

Branch worked hard during the offseason and went to training camp this year with only one thing on his mind, making the full-time roster of the Washington Redskins. He accomplished that goal and, except for the strike games, has played in every game of the season.

Branch is believed to be the first Seminole High graduate to ever play in a Super Bowl. It is not, however, the first time a Sanford-born player has made the big game. In fact, it is also not the first time a member of the Branch family has played in a Super Bowl.

Tony Collins, a running back for the New England Patriots, was born in Midway and lived about six years there. Collins is the brother of Annie Mae Branch and Reggie's uncle.

"Not a lot of people know he grew up out in Midway," Mrs. Branch said. "That's where the family is from. He moved up North when he was very young and stayed up there."

Collins also helped Branch get one of his big breaks in football. Branch went for one year to West Virginia University and then was going to go to New Mexico the following year. On his way home from New Mexico, Branch stopped to visit Collins who was then living in North Carolina. Collins took Branch out to the East Carolina practice field to work out. The East Carolina coach saw Branch working out, liked what he saw, and the following season Branch was at East Carolina where he went on to have a tremendous collegiate career.

Now that Branch has paid his dues and worked hard to make his pro career a success, Sanford should show its pride in Branch by keeping an eye out for No. 29 in Sunday's Super Bowl.

Media Blitz Hits Williams

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Washington Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs ordered a change in jersey numbers for his team's first on-site Super Bowl workout Monday and used extra men in offensive formations as a precaution against the possibility spies were watching practice.

Later in the day, the first black quarterback in the history of the Super Bowl was subjected to his initial media blitz of the week and told his questioners he was ready for them.

"I'm not going to avoid you," said Doug Williams, who will lead the Redskins against the Denver Broncos Sunday in Super Bowl XXII. "I'm going to give you an hour each day like I'm supposed to, and then the rest of the time will be devoted to the Washington Redskins."

Gibbs did not mention his concern about spies during an evening news conference, but he told an NFL pool reporter after his team's short workout Monday that he had taken some precautionary measures during the practice session.

"It was my idea to change the jersey numbers," Gibbs said. "We do that every now and then when we are practicing someplace other than home. We do that just from a security standpoint."

In addition to the number changes, Gibbs put 12 and 13 men in offensive formations. He made the alterations in his normal practice routine even though the opposition had yet to arrive in town.

"I may do it all week," he said. "We don't know. We haven't done it that often, but we do it from time to time, especially when a place is kind of open like it is here (at the University of San Diego practice field being used by the Redskins)."

"We use 12 and sometimes 13 guys on offense for the same reason that we change the numbers. We run our regular offense with another guy or two in there, just in case somebody is watching somewhere."

After the workout, NFL officials ordered Williams and a few of his teammates to make themselves available for a media appearance. The Redskins quarterback — as he realized he would be — became the immediate center of attention.

After having spent two years in the USFL and seven often controversial seasons in the NFL with first the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and now the Redskins, Williams has made history by becoming the first black quarterback to bring a team to the championship of pro football.

"People are just waiting for me to say the wrong thing," Williams said. "It's not that I haven't been a black quarterback all my life. But when I got to the NFL, I got a lot of backer."

Strickland Leads Duke Rally Over Stetson

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) — Kevin Strickland scored a game-high 22 points and No. 4 Duke withstood a late rally Monday night to post an 81-78 victory over Stetson.

John Smith made a fastbreak layup with 9:11 remaining, capping a 9-0 run that put the Blue Devils ahead 72-60, their biggest lead.

Stetson closed to 78-75 with 1:01 left on 2 foul shots by Terry Johnson. Three more foul shots by the Blue Devils put Duke ahead by 6 before Stetson's Bjorn Gehrke hit a 3-pointer at the buzzer to account for the final margin.

The teams exchanged the lead eight times in the first half before Duke took a 45-40 lead at halftime.

Stetson held its last lead at 54-52 with 14:59 remaining on Jimmy Kuhl's layup. Duke tied it on a layup by Phil Henderson and went ahead on a pair of Robert Brickey free throws with 14:26 to go.

Devils, 13-2. Johnson and Jimmy Kuhl had 16 apiece for Stetson, 8-7.

LAKE BRANTLEY BOARD

Pittsburgh forward Jerome Lane spent last year snatching basketballs off backboards. Monday night he used a basketball to break one.

Early in a game against Providence, Lane took a pass from Sean Miller on a fast break, left the floor near the foul line and dunked the ball with such force he shattered the plexiglass backboard.

"It was like a dream," said the 6-foot-6 junior, who led the nation in rebounding last year. "It seemed like when I hit the rim, I didn't give. That's just one of those fantasies to chalk up. I guess the next one is to get 30 rebounds in a game."

Said Pitt Coach Paul Evans: "It was unbelievable. It wasn't a little dunk or anything like that."

A sign on the scoreboard at Fitzgerald Fieldhouse read, "The Lane Falls Mainly on the Pane." The game was delayed 32 minutes until a new backboard could be put in place.

When play resumed, the 11th-ranked Panthers raced away from an 8-5 lead on the way to a 90-56 rout.

Lane finished with 17 points and 17 rebounds. Pitt received 17 points from Charles Smith, 15 from Bobby Martin, 14 from Jason Matthews and 13 from Demetreus Gore. The Panthers have won 13 straight at home.

Pitt started the second half with a 9-0 spurt to move in front 48-28. The Panthers put Providence away with a 10-0 run midway through the half to expand the lead to 73-44.

"Pittsburgh is a great team, better than I expected," Providence Coach Gordon Chiesa said. "I have never seen a team play better than they did in the second half. Their talent took over the game, it's that simple."

Providence received a team-high 14 points from Steve Wright.

In other games involving Top 20 teams, No. 4 Duke held off Stetson 81-78 and No. 18 Iowa thrashed Wisconsin 104-89.

At Daytona Beach, Kevin Strickland scored a game-high 22 points and Duke withstood a late rally. Stetson, which trailed by 12 with nine minutes left, closed to 78-75 with 1:01 left on 2 foul shots by Terry Johnson. Three free throws by the Blue Devils put them ahead by 6 before Stetson's Bjorn Gehrke hit a 3-pointer at the buzzer to account for the final margin.

At Madison, Wis., Roy Marble scored 21 points as Iowa raced to a 25-point first-half lead in routing Wisconsin. The Hawkeyes broke from a 4-4 tie to take a 19-6 lead. Iowa led 43-18 on a basket by Kent Hill with 1:42 remaining. Trent Jackson had 24 points for the Badgers, who suffered their fourth consecutive conference loss.

Soviets May Join Little League

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (UPI) — The head of the Little League predicted Monday the Soviet Union will start fielding Little League teams in 1989 and could be competing in the World Series within five years.

Little League President Creighton Hale, who returned home over the weekend after a four-day trip to Moscow, said he was impressed with the interest shown by Soviet sports officials.

He said he believed the Soviets would have a Little League program in place by next year.

"There is no question that they are serious about developing baseball," he said. "And Americans only have to think about basketball to know it takes the Soviets only a few years to become highly skilled in a sport once they start it."

International interest in Little League has been growing since it was announced baseball would become a medal sport with the 1992 Olympics in Barcelona, Spain.

"There's no one in the Soviet Union now who knows a thing about baseball, so they have a long way to go," said Hale, who went to Moscow at the invitation of Soviet Baseball-Softball Federation President Ramaz Goglidze.

"But I think it's possible in five years they could be in Williamsport playing in the Little League World Series as the European representative. It will be longer — 10 to 15 years — before they become skillful enough to be competitive."

Lake Brantley's Krista Kranze (12) slips a pass through the Evans press and to teammate Julie Billmyer (22). Kranze had one of her best outings Monday as the Lady Patriots defeated Evans, 63-58.

Six players scored eight or more points to offset Evans' three smoking guns as Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots upended the Lady Trojans, 63-58, Monday night in nonconference basketball action at Lake Brantley High.

The Lady Patriots evened their record at 6-6 going into tonight's Seminole Athletic Conference game at home against Seminole High. Lake Brantley is 4-3 in the SAC while Seminole comes in at 5-1. Evans dropped to 10-5.

"We were playing real well until about the middle of the third quarter," Lake Brantley coach Cindy Frank said. "That's when Evans made a run at it."

Lake Brantley led by as much as 23 points early in the second half and had a 48-34 lead after three quarters. Evans got within six in the late going but could never get closer than the final score.

"We've had much better team unity the past two games," Frank said. "We were just out of it in the Lake Mary game."

Junior guard Jennifer Tufford led Brantley with 14 points and junior forward Barb Billmyer tossed in a season-high 11 points. Junior point guard Tracy Brandenburg contributed 10 points, senior center Kim Gunderson and junior center Gretchen Mull added nine apiece and senior forward Julie Billmyer

Julie Billmyer and Tufford led the Lady Patriots underneath with nine rebounds while senior forward Susan Asplen added seven rebounds. Brantley played much of the third quarter without floor leader Brandenburg who went out with an injury. Sophomore Krista Kranze stepped in and did a good job in Brandenburg's absence.

"Krista (Kranze) played almost the entire game and did a good job keeping us in when Tracy (Brandenburg) was out," Frank said. "She finished with five assists and two steals and only turned the ball over a few times."

Tasha Stewart poured in a game-high 21 points for Evans while Tanya Boyd tossed in 17 and Denise Franklin hit 13.

Lake Brantley's junior varsity was also victorious Monday night as it raised its record to 7-2.

The Matriarch Of Sanford Soccer

By Chris Pieter
Herald Sports Editor

The sport of soccer has certainly not caught on like wildfire in the city of Sanford. Other area youth leagues and high schools have developed programs that rival the best in the state while Sanford has slowly, sometimes at a snail's pace, gone forward.

Still, soccer has been around 15 years in Sanford and nursing it from its infant stages to its current adolescence has been the matriarch of Sanford soccer — Suzy Reno.

Reno, currently the girls coach at Seminole High School, started the Sanford Soccer Club in 1973 along with current Lake Mary coach Larry McCorkle. McCorkle, then Seminole High boys coach, moved to Orlando Bishop Moore High two years later.

"We had one other person who started the league with us but he left to become principal of a school in Orange County," Reno said. "After two years, it all pretty much fell on my shoulders."

Without much help at first, Reno could have easily let the youth program fade away but she cared enough about the game of soccer and teaching the young people who wanted to play it that she stuck it out and the league is still going to date.

"When we started out, we only had three teams, all boys," Reno said. "Now, we usually have around 120 to 125 players in the league."

Now that the league has built up some solid numbers, Reno is hoping to get the girls program on an even level with the other area leagues. Currently, the only team for girls only is the 16 and under team.

"The Seminole Soccer Club is feeding the other schools and those girls have been playing since they were 10 years old," Reno said. "Not many girls start young in Sanford. That's why we at least need to have an all-girls 12 and under team. That's what I'm striving for for this season."

Getting the youth league on an equal level with neighboring organizations would help Seminole High build toward being more competitive in what is the hot bed of girls soccer in the state of Florida.

"When the college coaches look for players, they usually come to Central Florida," Reno said. "For us to be as good as the other teams we need to have a better feeder program. We need to have girls coming in to high school who have at least 3 or 4 years of experience in youth soccer."

"That would be such a great boost for our program," added Reno. "My dream is to have both a varsity and junior varsity team. We usually get 30 to 35 girls at the first meeting and then they find out the training program and it dwindles down to 18 or 20. Then, with the injuries we always seem to get, we're down to about 14 by districts."

Reno said some people feel that it doesn't take a great deal of athleticism to play soccer so some feel they may not have to do the work to be a good player.

"I feel like screaming when they say you don't have to be an athlete to play soccer," Reno said. "You have to have a great deal of stamina and skill to be good. It's an 80-minute game and the only time out you have is halftime."

Fan support is another area where Seminole High is behind the rest. Except for the parents, the Lady Seminoles don't get much support. Reno said that could change if soccer would be moved to the spring instead of being playing in the often-foul winter weather.

"We're working to have soccer played in spring," Reno said. "It would help tremendously. More girls would come out and also spectators would be more willing to come out."

Reno started the Seminole High girls program in 1982 but had been involved, in a non-official capacity, with the boys program prior to that. She attended most practices and kept stats for the team while her sons, Patrick and Phillip, played at SHS. Those were the glory days of Seminole boys soccer as the "Noles" won the conference and district in 1981 with Phillip Reno being an all-state selection.

Reno said she will continue to strive toward improving Sanford soccer until the day comes that it has reached the level of the best.

Lady Greyhounds Roll

Lyman's Lady Greyhounds roared to a 4-0 halftime lead and never looked back Monday night en route to a 7-1 Seminole Athletic Conference victory over Oviedo's Lady Lions at Oviedo High.

Lyman, which has won three of its last four, improved to 11-9 overall and ended its SAC slate with a 7-5 record. Oviedo dropped to 1-15 overall and 1-9 in the SAC.

"We worked the ball around well and dominated the game," Lyman coach Laura Rountree said. "It was one of our best passing games of the year."

Bonni Steeves opened the scoring for Lyman less the five minutes into the match when she scored off an assist from Randi Huddleston. With 14 minutes left in the half, Huddleston made it 2-0 with a goal off Tracy Sher's assist.

Julia Callarman then scored off Steeves' assist and, with less than five minutes remaining in the half, Pam Wise scored an unassisted goal for a 4-0 lead.

Huddleston's second goal gave the Lady Greyhounds a 5-0 lead. Callarman then added her second goal off Steeves' second assist and Sher closed out the Lyman scoring on a penalty kick.

Oviedo avoided the shutout late in the game when Jenny Bauer scored off a corner kick by Jennifer Whitaker.

Lyman took 38 shots on goal Monday compared to Oviedo's three. Oviedo goalkeeper Whitney Yankor came up with 17 saves while Lyman keeper Becky Carr made two. — Chris Pieter

Rams Can Inch Closer To SAC Crown

Lake Mary's Rams can inch closer to the Seminole Athletic Conference tonight, but they will have to get by a tough Lake Howell team that has been playing excellent soccer as of late. Kickoff is 7:30 at Lake Howell High.

In other SAC games tonight, Seminole High hosts Lake Brantley and DeLand is at Oviedo. In nonconference action, Space Coast power Satellite Beach invades Lyman High.

Lake Mary, 14-3-3 overall and ranked third in the state, stands at 7-0-1 in the SAC and leads Lyman by one game. Lake Howell, 7-4-8 overall, is 3-1-4 in the SAC

The Hawks, however, have already played spoilers by beating and tying Lyman and would like to do the same with Lake Mary. Lake Howell has not been beaten in its last seven games.

The Wrestling Nathans

Brothers Larry, Kevin Boost Seminole Matmen

By Mark Blythe
Herald Sports Writer

Larry and Kevin Nathan have been a part of Seminole High School wrestling for three straight years now and are starting to show that their experience and hard work has paid off.

Both are juniors and have wrestled all three seasons under coach Glenn Maiolini. Maiolini began his first year when the brothers were freshmen and has seen them throughout their career.

"Larry caught on real quick and won the conference last season," Maiolini said. "Kevin has had to work himself into a wrestler and has come a long way since he began."

Larry has led the Tribe all season both on and off the mat as he has an 11-1 record with his only loss coming in tournament action at Pinellas Park. Kevin is 7-4 and is beginning to put things together.

"They're both doing great right now," Maiolini said. "When next year comes, we'll expect them to dominate."

Maiolini is exceptionally pleased with the way the Nathan brothers have dedicated themselves to wrestling and keep a positive attitude at all times.

"I've never had any trouble with either of them," Maiolini said. "Neither one has missed a practice and they're a joy to coach."

Wrestling

Maiolini feels a big part of the Nathan's success and dedication is their mother Meshelle Nathan. Meshelle has been behind Larry and Kevin since their decision to take the mat for Seminole.

"She hasn't missed a match since they've been wrestling here," Maiolini said. "She encourages them 100 percent and it's nice to see her get involved with the program."

Maiolini is hoping Larry, who wrestles in the 130 pound weight class, can put things together this weekend and win another Seminole Athletic Conference title.

"He's been wrestling well all season though we've had our ups and downs," Maiolini said. "We'll hope he can get going this weekend and defend his title."

Kevin, who competes in the 140 pound division, will also be looked upon to score points in the conference meet. Kevin has some tough competition that Maiolini feels he's able to contend with.

"He's (Kevin) in a tough weight class but I'm sure he can hold his own," Maiolini said. "He's in great shape and knows what to do on the mat."

"They are a pair of the best kids I've ever been involved with," Maiolini said. "It's been a pleasure being their coach and watching them improve from the very beginning."

Maiolini will also look for the Nathan brothers to come through in the district meet as both have shots at going on to the region and perhaps the state. Seminole is wrestling in Class 3A this season and its biggest district competition will be Orlando Bishop Moore.

TOURNAMENT OF CHAMPIONS

The SAC along with the Orange Belt Conference will collaborate this weekend at Lake Mary High School to participate in the Tournament of Champions. Each conference will compete with its own then wrestle the division winners of the opposing conference to close out the meet.

The tournament will still be a conference meet as top four champions in each weight class and team champions will be determined. Instead of the conference title matches being the highlight, the conferences will combine with the first and second place finishers in each weight class of each conference going up against each other.

The combined conference meet will begin this Friday with first-round action starting at 6:30 p.m. at Lake Mary High School. On Saturday, the finals of each conference will be held beginning at 10 a.m. followed by wrestle backs and consolations in the Tournament of Champions. After a Special Olympics Ceremony at 7:45, the Tournament of Champions finals will begin at 8 p.m.

Kevin Nathan cools off between periods. Kevin and brother Larry are two of the leaders of a Seminole High team that has won all but one of its dual meets this season. Kevin has a 7-4 record this year and Larry is 11-1.

Alkire, Tabscott Lift Lions

Ryan Alkire and Chris Tabscott paved the way as Oviedo's freshman basketball team claimed a pair of victories. The freshman Lions upended Kissimmee Gateway's Panthers, 38-35, on Monday night and outgunned Orlando Bishop Moore's Hornets, 58-47, on Saturday. Both games were played at Oviedo High.

In Monday night's game, Alkire was the dominant force with 16 points, 10 rebounds, three assists and four steals. Tabscott pumped in 15 points, Todd Kanistrar added nine and Jeremy Stelhorn contributed seven points and 13 rebounds.

In Saturday's game, Alkire fired in 16 points once again, including a pair of three-point goals, while Tabscott hit 11 points and Bubba Fore had a big game inside with four points and 11 rebounds.

The Oviedo frosh return to action Thursday night at home against Kissimmee Osceola.

EUSTIS TOPS LYMAN

Kristie Cheatham poured in 24 points Monday night to lead the Eustis Lady Panthers to a 56-48 victory over Lyman's Lady Greyhounds. Lyman dropped to 4-13 for the season while Eustis improved to 8-11.

Eustis built up a 13-4 lead after one quarter and never lost the lead the rest of the way. Shari Siegrist pumped in 21 points to lead Lyman and Dana Garrett tossed in 14.

Market Moderate, Stocks Dip

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened lower today in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which rose 42.94 Monday, was down 7.79 to 1938.66 shortly after the market opened.

Declines led advances 470-258 among the 1,098 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 6.543.000 shares.

The market broke free from the grip of the bears Monday and sent prices sharply higher in heavy trading as takeover activity generated wide buying interest among recently dormant investors.

Gail Dudack, market analyst with S.G. Warburg in New York, said efforts by the NYSE and some member firms to limit the use of computer-driven program trading, "which has been clearly disturbing, had a calming and positive effect, and some of that delayed investment came into the market."

In addition, the flurry of takeover activity in recent days tends "to focus people on value," Dudack said.

Monthly Durable Goods Orders Rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New orders for manufactured durable goods jumped 6.7 percent from November to December, largely due to aircraft orders, the Commerce Department said Tuesday.

The December increase represented $7.4 billion to bring orders last month to a seasonally adjusted $118.7 billion. It was the fourth consecutive monthly gain in orders for big-ticket factory goods — everything from toasters to jetliners, designed to last at least three years.

The December increase was the largest since a 6.9 percent gain in September 1986, according to the department's Census Bureau. Excluding defense orders, orders for durable goods increased 6 percent in December.

Durable goods orders for 1987, not seasonally adjusted, totaled $1.3 trillion, 7.8 percent above 1986 when orders rose 0.5 percent and the largest gain since a 13 percent increase in 1984.

confrontation," Schweitzer said. Bush was clearly the favorite in the public's immediate perception of who came out on top Monday night, but that could change over time, according to Schweitzer.

When asked if he felt the clash between Bush and Rather would affect WCPX's local news ratings, Schweitzer said he didn't think so. "The public realizes we (WCPX) have little or no input into CBS news content," he said. He added that he doesn't believe people will hold their views of Rather's actions against the local station.

While Schweitzer believes the confrontation may have made Rather look bad in front of the public, he said he doesn't think the situation will force CBS to find somebody else for the anchor on the CBS Evening News. "I think Dan Rather will be more cautious in the future and more respectful," he said.

"I've never liked Dan Rather, and I told him that to his face," Schweitzer said. Rather's treatment of former president Richard Nixon during his last days in office was the reason Schweitzer gave for not liking the CBS anchor. "It's much the same reason that I don't like Sam Donaldson (ABC News Whitehouse correspondent). 'I don't like the way he treated (former president) Jimmy Carter,'" he said.

Bush agreed to be interviewed for Rather's piece in advance, agreed to appear on the broadcast on the condition his responses not be edited. Following a systematic review of what Rather called "inconsistencies in the record," Bush countered with his own attack.

"There's nothing new here. I thought this was a news program," the vice president said.

Grand Jury Returns Murder Indictment Against Maynard

A Seminole County grand jury Monday returned an indictment for first degree murder against the Orlando man accused of shooting his lawyer to death two weeks ago.

The 18-member grand jury gathered in the courtroom of Circuit Court Judge O.H. Eaton Jr. to present its indictment of Roger Edward Maynard, 72, of 1037 N. Bumby Ave. The indictment was handed in by Assistant State Attorney Ralph Eriksson at 1:30 p.m.

Maynard allegedly shot Orlando Attorney Murray Lee Gay

Jr. at the conclusion of a meeting in the office of Sanford Doctor Thomas Brodrick on Jan. 13. The office is located at The Physicians Plaza, 521 W. State Road 434.

Brodrick said the meeting was held to get his opinion on a lawsuit Maynard wanted to bring against another doctor for malpractice in the treatment of his wife, Josephine E. Maynard.

Gay was the sixth attorney to handle the case for Maynard. Gay's assistant, Joan Magnusson-Woods, was also at the consultation.

Storer's offer, only after Morris removed from his acceptance motion a provision for the city to finance broadcast-quality lighting. The lights would be the city's only expense in the matter, Morris said.

"On the first go around, they didn't want to authorize money for the lighting," Morris said. He said he is confident the bright lights will be purchased, even if that means raising money outside of the city budgeting process or getting the lights donated.

Morris and City Manager Bob Norris are to meet this week with Tony Pupo, operations manager for Storer Cable, to get a lighting expense estimate more specific than $800-$1,500. Norris said Storer Cable this week would test to see exactly what type of lighting would be needed for quality broadcasting.

"I look at this as an experiment in good government. In that we are trying to reach everybody who can't make it to our meetings," Morris said. "There are a number of citizens in this town who do not come to meetings because of their age or inability to get here. If 10 people watched those meetings, that would be 10 people more informed about our city."

Storer Cable's offer to televise and give broadcast time for the meetings stems from a franchise contract with Lake Mary for running cable lines.

The meetings could be during prime time and would be broadcast no later than a week after the meeting date, according to the contract. Once a new city hall is built, the contract provides for meetings to be broadcast live.

Due to cramped space, the three to five lights probably would be affixed to the city hall ceiling, Morris said.

Altamonte Springs is the only city in Seminole County and one of the few in Central Florida that televises its commission meetings, Morris said. "The amazing thing they'll tell you about Altamonte is how incredibly efficient their meetings got," Morris said. "Their meetings used to last much longer. It tends to be that when people are on camera, they are more concise. They choose their words before they speak."

Morris said he was not insinuating that the commission meetings were inefficiently long. He said that since commissioners determined in 1987 to avoid midnight meetings, commission meetings have been ending by about 11 p.m.

...Annex

annexation is eventually appealed by the county.

Groot also noted that the Rosalind Park area is a disadvantaged area in that the county cannot get to it except by city streets. Anthony Vanderworp, Seminole county planning director, also spoke to commissioners in agreement with Groot's assessment of Rosalind Park, noting that the area also lacks fire hydrants and sufficient water lines.

Vanderworp said that at a recent Rosalind Park community meeting, residents there voiced concern over the current water well systems many residents use. He said many expressed interest in annexation in order to get water. The county has no water line into the community now.

Groot said, however, that while "There tends to be a link between services and annexation, an area does not have to be annexed to get services. The link is not well founded."

Annexing the property around Rosalind Park could cut off possible future access routes to the area, by the county, according to Groot.

And while the issue of access was discussed, Groot also noted that access is not an issue in annexation, and that enclaves are the issue. He said that the annexation would not provide for a sensible, contiguous municipal boundary. (The county wants Sanford to annex properties nearest the core of the city, rather than bringing in small pieces of property that would create a finger effect, reaching out from the center of the city.)

Colbert said that in view of the county's objections, commissioners had three choices: to pass the ordinance as it now stands, then deal with the small enclave issue at the south of the property; to deny the motion for annexation; or to table the ordinance and readdress it. He explained that the latter choice would give him and other city staff members time to look at the issues raised by the county.

City Commissioner A.A. McClanahan moved to table the ordinance, as per Colbert's third option. Commissioner Whitley Eckstein seconded the motion. Commissioners then voted unanimously to table the ordinance.

Approved on second reading was Ordinance 1913, which annexes into the city, a portion of property west of and abutting Ridgewood Ave., between W. 25th St. and Airport Blvd. That property is owned by the County Board of Education and is adjacent to Seminole County High School. The board plans to use the property for expansion at the school.

Given approval on first reading were two ordinances to rezone property. The first was Ordinance 1922, to rezone a portion of property between E. 24th Place and E. 25th St., between Sanford Ave. and Grandview Ave., from restricted commercial to general commercial. David O. Lanier was the petitioner, represented by Kim Townsend of Engineering Services, Sanford. The owner may install a coin laundry on part of the property.

That ordinance was approved unanimously and will come up later for final approval at a second reading.

also approved unanimously on first reading was Ordinance 1923, to rezone a portion of property between 25th St. and 25th Place, between Magnolia Ave. and Palmetto Ave. from restricted commercial to general commercial. Selma Williams is the petitioner. That ordinance also must come up for final approval at second reading.

or cashiers check after the reading," Jasewic said. They then have until 2 p.m. that day to pay the remaining amount to the plaintiffs, who were outbid for the item.

Jasewic said the representative for the plaintiff is exempt from that rule. If the plaintiffs are the highest or only bidders on the property the court accepts credit, instead of the money on the item.

Jasewic, who tries to limit the number of public sales to 12 to 15 a week, said it took a few times to get used to doing them. "There's a lot involved in the sales and they're real intense," she said.

"The more you get into doing the sale the more you like it," Jasewic said. She added that it's important to keep control of the sales because some of the buyers will try to take over if she doesn't.

"I'm just a clerk going out there and trying to do my job," she said.

Longwood Meeting Scheduled

Longwood Mayor Dave Gunter has called a work session for tonight at 7:30 p.m. to discuss the proposed hiring of a consultant to establish goals and objectives for the city.

Gunter said, "We need to completely redo the job descriptions and chain of command. We need to be brought up to date instead of operating "hit and miss."

He said the city can't wait until a new city administrator is hired. "We need this thing done now through out the whole city," he said.

Japanese Work On Computer Compatibility

TOKYO (UPI) — Three major Japanese electronics companies say they are making significant steps forward in an effort to develop standardized computers and related chips for use in the 1990s.

"We are making steady progress in our joint undertaking and we hope to start commercial production of a series of standardized computers and peripheral devices by the middle of next year," said a spokesman for Fujitsu Ltd., Japan's top computer manufacturer.

The group consists of Fujitsu and two major electronic equipment makers, Hitachi Ltd. and Mitsubishi Electric Corp.

The three companies are among 95 Japanese manufacturers that support the TRON structure. TRON, which stands for real-time operating system nucleus concept, was proposed by Tokyo University Prof. Ken Sakamura to standardize computer systems to meet growing demands for high performance equipment with enhanced functions and capabilities.

"We decided to take on the development of 32-bit computers and related chips because we believe that 32-bit chips will take over from 16-bit chips commonly used at present and dominate the microprocessor area in the next decade," Fujitsu said.

The initial success of their joint efforts was made public recently when the three companies announced development of the high-performance 32-bit GMICRO/200, or global microprocessor and peripheral large-scale integration circuits.

The computer was developed by Hitachi and the related chips by Fujitsu.

The three companies now are working to complete GMICRO/100 and GMICRO/300 by early next year.

"Not only does the GMICRO/200 take pride of place as first in the series of GMICRO family processors to reach full development, but it also marks the first time a microprocessor has been developed that is fully compatible with TRON specifications," an announcement by the group said.

They said the Japanese education ministry has made it known it plans to use the TRON format software for educational purposes.

Operating systems or basic software for computers mainly have been developed in the United States, but they are said not to be suitable for processing the Japanese language.

Hitachi said the GMICRO/200 features the most up-to-date computer design and semiconductor technologies presently available, such as distributed memory storing, multi-sequence pipelining and horizontal microprogramming.

The large-scale integration circuits developed for the GMICRO/200 include a direct memory access controller, interrupt request controller and tag random access memory for high-speed data processing.

The companies said they plan to expand a family of GMICRO series and peripheral chips to meet demand for standardized systems.

Sample shipments of GMICRO/200 and related chips are scheduled to begin in the spring and autumn, respectively, the companies said.

Critics Want To Axe Forest Service Plan

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The U.S. Forest Service has completed 19 long-term plans for managing the nation's most productive forest lands into the 21st century, but almost no one is happy with the results.

Environmentalists complain the drafts of the plans do not do enough to protect the 25 million acres of forest in the Pacific Northwest, while the timber industry says the program would be "catastrophic," throwing lumberjacks out of work.

"It's hard to tell who has been more displeased," said Tom Nygren, deputy director of planning for the U.S. Forest Service's Region Six. Industry representatives and environmentalists "both seem to be pretty displeased. It's not an altogether unfamiliar place for us."

At stake is the fate of forests that produce almost half the timber cut on federal land. The area also contains terrific recreational opportunities and millions of acres of "old-growth" timber — trees that are often 400 years old. "The volume is here, the conflict with timber (companies) is here," said Andy Kerr, assistant director of conservation for the Oregon Natural Resources Council.

In the 1976 National Forest Management Act, Congress ordered the Forest Service to develop plans for managing all of the country's national forests for 10 to 15 years.

In early January, the federal agency released drafts of the last two plans for the Pacific Northwest region, which includes Oregon, Washington and part of northern California. The Forest Service hopes to complete the plans by the end of 1988.

The Forest Service said the plans will allow the cutting of 4.7 billion board feet of timber annually, the same as the average amount in the past five years.

"Some forests will have less timber cut while some will have more," said Nygren. "Our goal is to be responsive to the economic as well as environmental interests in the forest."

The Forest Service also said the plans would increase recreational use of the forests and allow more old-growth timber to be cut, particularly in areas where the trees are infected with the mountain pine beetle.

But environmentalists and the timber industry dispute the figures. Both sides say the new plans would reduce the amount of timber sold, although they disagree on the amount that would be cut.

Environmentalists claim the new plans represent "business as usual" for the Forest Service.

Dragon Kung Fu And Tai Chi Classes Offered For All Ages

Grandmaster Daniel K. Pai offers classes for men, women and children of all ages in the oriental arts of White Dragon Kung Fu and Tai Chi at his school in the Sanford Plaza at U.S. 17-92 and State Street in Sanford. Students learn awareness, control, self-discipline as well as self-defense.

A special is being offered for a four-month series of Tai Chi classes, which begin the end of January and continue for four months for only $99.

Weaponry classes are also offered teaching the use of classical Chinese weapons.

Dr. Pai is sponsoring the upcoming Kung Fu Magic Open to benefit the Missing Children's Center. The full day of Chinese arts competition and demonstrations will be held from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. until competition is completed on March 19 at the Hilton Towers, Altamonte Springs.

Raised in Hawaii, Dr. Pai has been teaching for more than 24 years. His school is affiliated with the International Chinese Kungshu Federation headquartered in Taipei, Taiwan, and is the U.S. headquarters. David Jacobs is manager and Denise Vigi is assistant instructor.

The U.S. Kungshu Federation Dragon Tai Chi at Sanford Plaza is geared to helping children protect themselves so they need not be afraid of recognizing violence and putting it in perspective. We are also setting up a program to help women to give them self-confidence and teach them to protect their body. The ingredients are: find a reputable instructor that can coach them to recognize violence and deal with it.

For older adults, Dragon Tai Chi at Sanford Plaza stresses the need for an art for exercise called Tai Chi, which deals with learning and practicing internal breathing with movement that is usually done at a slower pace compared to Kung Fu. These exercises are beneficial because of movements it has to activate all of the muscles and give them a self-healing energy. It is credited with some success in helping arthritis and stress.

Co-owner Karen Richards and Sunshine Laundry and Cleaners employees

Offers Same-Day Service At Wholesale Prices

Sunshine Laundry & Cleaners

Sunshine Laundry and Cleaners, Inc., at 418 S. Sanford Ave., Sanford, is a wholesale dry cleaner with wholesale prices that also gives its "off the street" customers the benefit of wholesale prices.

Sunshine offers same-day service on normal dry cleaning and charge $1.50 per garment cleaned, bagged and back to the customer. They charge 99 cents to launder a shirt. They launder shirts for 15 other dry cleaners in the area.

For a slightly higher price per garment, free pickup and delivery are available. All the customer has to do is to call 322-0522 to arrange for convenient pickup and delivery at residences and businesses.

Sunshine offers complete dry cleaning and laundry service. They offer all types of starch and have special equipment and chemicals to eliminate problem spots on any type of garment.

Some wholesale cleaners eliminate the quality factor, owner Al Richards said, but this is not true at Sunshine, which offers the best quality at wholesale prices. Most of their 10 employees are graduates of the Central Florida Fabric Care Institute, which is an intensive care cleaning and laundry processing school.

Richards said the primary reason Sunshine can afford to offer such low prices is that it is located in a low rent district of downtown Sanford unlike shopping centers with high rent.

Previously known as Steen's Dry Cleaners, the business has been in the same location for 10 years and was purchased eight months ago by Richards and his wife, Karen.

Sunshine Cleaners dry cleans wedding gowns and drapes. They offer alterations with next day service.

Sunshine is a member of the Neighborhood Cleaners Association, which provides garment analysis and on going schooling in the art of dry cleaning and Central Florida Fabric Care Association.

Sunshine Laundry and Cleaners is open Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Saturday, 8 a.m. to noon.

Superopticals Not Short-Sighted

By Heather Clancy
NEW YORK (UPI) — With more than 60 percent of the United States population in the market for glasses or contact lenses, the eyewear industry can hardly afford to be short-sighted.

But myopia has not been a problem for the convenience stores of eyecare.

Superopticals, which offer dozens of frame choices to time-pressed customers, account for about 25 percent of the $8 billion a year industry. And they're setting their sights on the rest.

Unlike conventional eyewear retailers, superopticals offer not only frame variety, but many also have laboratories that can produce a completed pair of glasses in less than an hour.

Groups Provide Aid For Alzheimer's

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 84 and live alone, since my husband has Alzheimer's. I've stopped going to parades, church and small meetings because I start feeling sick and have trouble breathing. I should get out, but find I stay home more and more. Is there a reason for my reaction to crowds?

DEAR READER: Although you may be suffering from panic attacks due to the stress you are living under, I think that you should be examined by a doctor to make sure that your symptoms do not have a physical basis. For example, mild heart failure may be causing you to have trouble breathing.

In any case, you could be helped in dealing with your husband by contacting a local support group for Alzheimer's patients. The Alzheimer's Disease Association (70 East Lake St., Suite 200, Chicago, IL 60601) can refer you to a group in your area.

To give you more general information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report on ALZHEIMER'S DISEASE. Others who want a copy of this Report should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've had two heart attacks and a transient ischemic attack. I feel pretty good for an old biddy, so I guess I can't gripe too much. Is there such a thing as stomach angina?

DEAR READER: The pain of angina can be referred to the upper abdomen. In other words, patients can mistake indigestion for heart pain. If you are having attacks of abdominal discomfort, report them to your doctor. He or she will test you to find out whether you are having referred pain or whether your symptoms are related to your digestive tract. A change or alteration of your medicines may be in order.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What can you tell me about epidermolysis bullosa? My son's wife's family has it. Their 6-year-old daughter suffers terrible bruises when she falls and a nephew looks retarded because of it. My daughter-in-law says she had it but outgrew it.

DEAR READER: Epidermolysis bullosa is a group of rare, hereditary skin diseases in which blisters form at the sites of injuries. The blisters usually heal with scarring. In severe cases, mucous membranes may be affected, resulting in strictures of the esophagus, among other complications. The disease also causes muscle weakness. Its cause is unknown.

Readers who need more specific information can contact the Dystrophic Epidermolysis Bullosa Research Association (Kings County Medical Center, 451 Clarkson Ave., Bldg. E, Brooklyn, NY 11203). Be sure to enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope. (C)1988, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
Pre-emptive bids are annoying, particularly when you have a strong hand. The approved method of showing a powerful two-suiter over a pre-empt is to cue-bid the opposing suit. This explains South's four-spade bid. North had been strapped over three spades, but his partner's strong bid galvanized him into what might have been unwise overbidding. He bid five spades to force his partner to pick a slam and then carried on to seven diamonds.

The play for the grand slam was good and was a shoo-in if the clubs split 3-2. Because Careful Charlie was the declarer, the odds got even better as he played it out. Charlie won dummy's ace of spades and trumped a spade. He played a diamond to the dummy and trumped another spade. He rashed the ace of hearts, played another trump to dummy and trumped dummy's last spade with his ace of diamonds. When he then played the last trump to dummy, East had to come down to five cards. If East threw a heart, his queen would fall under the king, making dummy's jack good. East had to hope that his partner had a club honor, so he threw a club. That made declarer's last little club a winner, and the grand slam was made.

Try playing the hand without trumping a spade at trick two. You'll be in the wrong hand when you play the last trump, and East will be able to safely jettison the queen of hearts.
