I call Bruce my combination angel-terror. Soon he will be four, and he is a fascinating mixture of mischief and goodness.

At bedtime, I always tiptoe into his room to be sure he's covered. Then it is that I am struck by the innocence of his face in sleep. Then it is that I realize how helpless is this small dynamo, who plunges with such boundless energy about our house and yard all day. Then it is that I am struck by the awesomeness of my responsibility.

I realize it is entirely up to me to see that Bruce learns right from wrong, to see that he grows into the sort of man who will be a credit to his family, his community, and his country. I must teach him to keep a steady heart and a level head, to resist the many temptations that will be strewn in his path, to hold honor and truth and integrity high.

When I think of my task, I send a small and special prayer to God to aid me. And I thank God for his Church on earth which, for years to come, will be helping me, again and again, in making my small mischief into a man.

Candidates Still Split Over Quemoy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House candidates resumed their hand-shaking speech-making campaign today, still sharply split on Quemoy-Matsu defense and embroiled in several new arguments after their third TV debate.

GOP presidential nominee Richard M. Nixon pleased with his showing on the television program, arranged a day-long motorcade through the Los Angeles area of his native California. He will deliver a major foreign policy speech before the World Press Forum tonight.

Nixon let it be known in advance of the speech that he intends to use President Eisenhower in his administration if elected.

He may elaborate on this in the address.

Democratic candidate John F. Kennedy, also happy about his TV appearance, embarked on a 10-stop whistle-stop tour through Michigan.

In his first stop at Ann Arbor, Kennedy charged in his prepared speech that Nixon had raised an "artificial . . . false issue" of government control of education in opposing federal aid to teachers.

Nixon, appearing from Los Angeles said Kennedy, speaking from New York City, exchanged the sharpest remarks of the TV series in their third encounter last night. They repeatedly accused each other of distortion, misinterpretation and erroneous statements.

The big clash, as expected was over the Nationalist-held islands of Quemoy and Matsu near the coast of China.

Kennedy reiterated his stand that the islands are indefensible against any Red Chinese attack. He quoted present and former administration officials — including Eisenhower and the late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles — to support his views.

Nixon retorted that Kennedy wanted to "surrender" Quemoy and Matsu, "that would lead, in my opinion, to war," he declared.

The debate brought the first touch of humor to the television encounters.

Asked whether the Democrats should apologize for some of former President Harry S. Truman's campaign remarks, Kennedy replied with a grin that perhaps Mrs. Truman could curb her husband's language.

Nixon, however, was serious. Noting that many children follow the campaign, he said he was "proud that President Eisenhower restored dignity and decency and, frankly, good language to the conduct of the presidency of the United States."

Truman, speaking in Raleigh, N. C., shrugged off Nixon's remarks. Truman told a fund-raising dinner, "he's not fit to be president, my friends, just not fit."

The Printed Word

Competition for shares of the advertising dollar gets tougher all the time. Radio and television have seen to that. Television and radio people have, on occasion, attempted to sell the idea that their media is the far more effective way of interesting the potential consumer than any other—including newspapers. So a survey made in Richmond, Va., is of unusual interest.

Editor's note: Reports: An independent research organization found that out of more than 41,000 telephone calls made to individuals only about one-fifth of them had the TV set or radio turned on. Of that number 81 percent was able to identify the program turned on but 71 percent could not name any sponsor or product or type of product being advertised on the program. And even if the respondent said "soap" instead of giving a brand name it was counted as sponsor identification, which seems to us like "leaning over backward to be fair."

The printed word is still the king yet!

Friendship Airport Vs. Commodore Hotel

By ROLAND ALEXANDER
IN NEW YORK WITH NIXON
Two slips of the tongue have lately revealed Richard Nixon — one for the better; one for the worse. In order to accentuate the positive and to show the Vice President to be improving with time, I prefer to reverse the chronological order of the two events.

At a 2,000-member breakfast at the Commodore Hotel recently, Nixon meant to make a gay remark about getting started so early in the day. He said that he'd opposed New Yorkers observed "bankers hours," an then he said "I see many bankers here!"

Well, a campaigner, especially a Republican, isn't supposed to let on that he has any political friends who are "bankers." The campaigner is supposedly trying to woo the great unwashed, and he's supposed to be suspicious of the money-changers and all the big financial "executives"—another word that popped out of the Vice President's preliminary remarks.

But having said "bankers" and "executives," Nixon went into an unprepared speech which was by far the best of the many I have heard him deliver. It was a concise, intelligent, communicative speech for the simple reason that Nixon was talking as an equal to co-equals. He was talking on the straight and level, instead of talking down, as he so often does.

The Vice President admitted that what he said was difficult to explain to "people in the mass." He was saying that the Democrats sell people on the idea that the Federal Government can and will take care of their wants. But, he added, the Republican problem is to sell people the much-harder-to-grasp idea that only the entire national economy—the productivity of 180,000,000 Americans—can provide everything we need from domestic welfare to military supremacy.

To this the Vice President added, paraphrasing the Kennedy-Stevenson line, that this truly is "a time for greatness"—but that so, Richard Nixon, could not honestly call himself great. All he and his running mate, Henry Cabot Lodge, hoped to do, was to present their credentials and programs to the American people—and leave it to the people.

Now, for contrast, there was Nixon's previous slip of the tongue. At Friendship Airport, Baltimore, with President Eisenhower, Ambassador Lodge, and a dozen Cabinet officers and Senators present, the Vice President began one of those silly, talking-down anecdotes which he apparently deems appropriate for the "masses." He told us that his daughters had a cat named Donna (the hurricane that name was still pouting outside) and that Donna had just delivered six kittens.

"Three of them," said the man aspiring to be the Free World's leading statesman, "are white. And three of them are striped."

The difference between Nixon at Friendship and Nixon at the Commodore is the difference between talking down and talking straight and level. Before the crowd at Friendship, Nixon was the humble, unpleasant "Uriah Heep" of a politician, timid about giving offense but avid for praise and aversion for power and votes. Before the crowd of Republican "bankers and executives" at the Commodore, the Vice President was the easy-mannered, tough-minded, truly modest and wholly dedicated Count de Lion whom his friends and admirers know him to be.

In leaving the Commodore, I ran into two such friends of his. To one of them, who is a television executive, I put the hackneyed question about what was wrong with Nixon in the September 26th debate. The answer was revealing; for the executive said that the strategy was for Nixon's make-up and mannerism to project the image of the "common man"—humble, hesitant, the opposite of Kennedy's cocksureness. Well, this again was the Nixon of Friendship Airport—steeping, unsuccessfully, to conquer.

To the other Nixon friend, I expressed the hope that the Vice President would keep on being the Nixon of the Commodore Hotel, where he did both himself and his audience so proud. It is not too much to say that the struggle of these two roles to possess the personality of Richard Nixon is on a par with all the other great moral and intellectual battles of our election year.

For if the people can understand the big domestic and foreign questions, the American Republic can be saved by saving itself. But if a man like Nixon is going to tell kittenish jokes and treat the people like nincompoops and adolescents, we'll never have the chance to save ourselves.

WASHINGTON by Ed Koterba

IN THE SOUTH — We're at 8,000 feet soaring over the red-silt rolling hills of South Carolina. Yet, there's the strange feeling I'm caught in a girl's dormitory.

The sweet, heady odor of all those things that go into a lady's makeup kit—and on her face and hands—permeates the cabin.

I notice a pair of wet white gloves daintily rechristened to the lapel of my raincoat hanging at the rear of the plane. Other things, some less mentionable, are draped around the windows. I just kicked over a pair of high-heeled pumps, obviously detached from the pair of tired feet.

This, I say with mixed emotions, is what it's like to find one's self locked in a barnstorming airplane with five lively ladies.

It's all in the line of duty, I know—and, to be sure, I've always believed in making sacrifices—but I cannot remember a more unusual reporting assignment for a male.

The troupe—Ladies for Kennedy—Johnson—are on this safari of the South for a serious purpose: to drum up throngs of boosters for the Lyndon Johnson victory train to follow.

It's a tough, grueling schedule for the ladies, all wives of business and professional men from the South. And I would say, from the standpoint of a somewhat self-conscious observer, they don't miss a trick.

Any requests that fall beyond my role as traveling newspaperman are placed before Harold Teague, who with his co-pilot is safely ensconced behind the closed doors in the cockpit.

Their latest request: "Please install a pencil sharpener in the cabin of the plane." He did, and I complimented the girls on their business-like efficiency.

"Oh," one of them said offhandedly, "that's for our eyebrow pencils."

Pilot Teague, an amiable Texan who normally operates as Sen. Lyndon Johnson's personal flier, acceded to another rather unusual request. So now, as the two-engine Lockheed Lodestar approaches its destination, he intones soberly over the inter-com: "May I have your attention, please? We have five minutes before landing. . . . Powder your noses."

The girls have me seated in a lounge chair at the rear—facing the back. I've been curious to see what goes on behind my back in those five-minute nose-powdering interludes. But that is when, according to prearrangements, my cotton espades go into place—and the seat belt is fastened.

The girls will be hedge-hopping like this for two weeks—all the way to New Orleans. It's a killing pace.

To allow them to catch their breaths, their boss has ordered a two-day holiday at the Hotel Pontchartrain in Miami.

The first lady of my house, who gave me special dispensation to make this trip, suggested I take my two-day holiday back home painting our back porch.

The 3,000 blind children in the United States today, victims of retrolental fibroplasia, will cost an estimated $100,000 each for education, training and support from birth to death.

Case F-48: Walter R., aged 47, is a successful business executive. "Walter needs help badly," his worried wife began, "for he sits around and broods."

"He also breaks down and sheds tears on very little provocation. Without any special warning, he may thus be listening to the radio or reading a book when suddenly he will begin to cry. He says he doesn't know why."

"So I'm not able to make the decisions (a male trait) in competitive business."

In a recent case I mentioned that a successful leader, salesman, or other executive, must usually be sexually assured. Eumelia and impotent males seldom can be good salesmen, for a leader must dominate the audience or customer, and sexual vigor is the usual basis for dominance.

Many wives have even saved their husbands from suicide by thus banishing this false notion of middle aged husbands that they are "no good and permanent" on the shelf.

And his feeling of inability to handle the executive decisions at the office, plus his church obligations, is a form of "transference."

When a man begins to think he is falling in his erotic functions, he often transfers this inferiority complex to his office job.

"I'm a failure as a husband," is the usual secret dread of millions of business executives.

Can't you just let me off with a warning? I haven't a decent thing to wear to court!"

Private Treatment Urged For Goldfine

BOSTON (UPI)—Attorneys for Bernard Goldfine plan to urge administration officials in Washington today to allow the wealthy industrialist psychiatric treatment in a private hospital rather than a federal institution.

Federal Judge George C. Sweeney Wednesday ruled the textile tycoon "mentally incompetent" to stand trial on charges of evading $781,000 in personal and corporate income taxes.

Dr. Norris B. Flanagan described Goldfine's mental depression as manic depressive psychosis, adding that "suicidal thoughts are very prominent in a manic depressive and he has an abundance of them."

potent men become the critics while the sexually dominant males actually do most of the production of new merchandise, art, music, literature and even sterling sermons of the Billy Graham sort.

You wives can thus accomplish more in a week with men like Walter than most outside counselors can do in 6 months, IF. And that big "IF" means, IF you will restore your husband's sexual confidence.

Impotence is usually a psychological condition. It is a defeatism complex. And it can hamper young husbands as well as those past 45.

But a wife who throws off her usual feminine passivity and then sets out deliberately to rejuvenate her husband, can quickly change a defeatism complex into a winning morale.

Many wives have even saved their husbands from suicide by thus banishing this false notion of middle aged husbands that they are "no good and permanent" on the shelf.

Mr. Billogg

A loyal husband is one who has had a rough day at office and comes home fagged out and realizing he is burning the candle at both ends.

And concludes that if he doesn't take better care of himself he will crack up and what he needs most of all is to relax.

And as soon as he is in the house gets out of his clothes and showers down and changes into slacks and a sport shirt and puts his feet into a pair of comfortable loafers.

And goes down into the living room and sinks into an easy chair and picks up the evening newspaper and runs over the headlines as his wife prepares dinner.

And looks at the television schedule to see what is offered and finds on the program one of his favorite westerns, followed by one of his favorite quiz shows, and then by one of his favorite musical shows.

And smells dinner cooking and considers the smell appealing, and figures that as soon as he has finished dinner he will settle back and spend the rest of the evening before the screen.

And is summoned to dinner and enjoys it heartily, since it more than meets his expectations.

And loosens his belt and returns to his chair, and lights his pipe and settles down, but not before turning on TV.

And reflects on what a lucky man he is to have such a quiet, restful home to come back to and such a fine wife to care for his comfort, and whose attention he cannot repay.

And who, when his wife in an apologetic voice, asks, "What would you say to paying a call on dear old Miss Jones?" does not wince but replies, "Why not? It's a splendid idea. I'm so glad you thought of it."

HAPPINESS THROUGH HEALTH BY DR. F. LEO KERWIN

Common Sense:

We learn in grade school physiology that the body is made up of a bony frame work enclosing organs, and controlled by the nervous system. Particularly, many forget this fundamental fact, and as time goes on, and as the nerve supply for normal function. This example is true of every organ that we have in the body. It should be remembered that when any organ fails to receive its normal nerve supply from the brain through the nervous system, it will cease to function normally. This then, is the basis for "sickness or disease."

Correct the cause through Chiropractic adjustments and health is the natural result.

Seminoles Host Crabs Tonight

The Seminole High gridlers with some "new" defense maneuvers up their sleeves, host powerful Seabreeze at Memorial Stadium tonight.

Game time is set for 8 p. m.

Both teams will be going into the game with identical records of two wins against six losses.

Coach Jim Pigott is planning that his charges plan some new defensive steps to stop the hard charging Crabs.

"We've got a few tricks up our sleeves," Pigott said. He added that his charges are in "excellent" physical shape for the game and expects the tilt to be a high scoring affair.

Pigott is making a few changes in his starting offensive lineup especially in the backfield with John Mann getting the nod at left half over Bubba Davis.

Mann, a senior, scored two touchdowns against Florida Military School in the romp last week, although one was called back because of a penalty.

However, Pigott said that Davis will also see plenty of action.

The rest of the backfield shapes up this way: Mike Roberts at the signal calling post, Phagan at fullback and Alex McKibbin at right half.

On the line, Doug Tamny and Don Harvey at the ends; Rusty Simas and James Markham at tackles; Russ Pearson at guard and John Wheelchel at center.

Pittsburg Goes Wild As Zany Crowds Celebrate

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The horns blew at midnight in Pittsburgh — and blew, and blew and blew.

A zany crowd which police called the greatest assembled here since V-J Day jammed the Steel City until the wee hours of the morning and celebrated the Pittsburgh Pirates' first world championship in 35 years.

The demonstrations were set off at 3:36 p. m. Thursday when Pirate second baseman Bill Mazeroski leaped on a pitch by New York Yankee righthander Ralph Terry and sent it soaring over the left-centerfield wall for the game-winning run.

Within seconds, office workers in the downtown skyscraper office buildings gave street cleaners the biggest headaches they've had in years. Tons of confetti and assorted types of paper spewed by the bushes from open windows. The streets below were ankle deep in debris.

Police at one time feared a complete breakdown of law and order. Safety Director Louis Rosenberg, in an unprecedented move, appealed over radio and television for suburban residents to stay out of the city and for the crowds downtown to disperse and so home.

The plea went unheeded, but happily police reported no major incidents.

The wildest celebration in this baseball-crazy town's history even saw the mayor almost land in jail.

Two of Pittsburgh's finest put the arm on Mayor Joseph M. Barr as he desperately made his way to the Buc clubhouse after the game. "Where do you think you're going?" they barked.

"To the clubhouse to congratulate my boys," Barr shot back.

"After all, I'm the mayor of the city." The red-faced gendarmes said nothing more.

Before the sun went down, the town was jumping. Thousands of cars, many loaded with up to 20 patrons sitting on roofs, hoods and fenders, rumbled into town. Fifth Avenue, the city's main thoroughfare, was closed to all traffic.

The crowd trundled through the city's newest and most fashionable hotel — the Conrad Hilton. A makeshift brass band led a group of teen-aged girls singing "Beat 'Em, Bucs."

One of the happiest persons in the city was Harold Baird, who scooped up home plate at Forbes Field during the post-game confusion. He was escorted from the ball park by police, but was allowed to retain possession of the World Series souvenir.

All available police were on duty. They were harried. But it was almost old hat to them. On Sept. 25 they were out en masse for a crowd of up to 500,000 who cheered the Bucs after their clinching of the National League pennant.

But there was little smiling today among the city's sanitation crews. Theirs was the seemingly impossible task of cleaning up broken beer bottles, cans, and mountains of paper.

Capri Bowlers Spark Loop Play

The Capri team sparked scoring Wednesday in the Hi-Nooners league with a 1699 actual series and a 591 actual game, including a 188 by Marty Kinnard, but were pitted against the A's Barbershop team led by Marge Woods' scorching 223 and 205 actual games that held them to a two point win.

Stenstrom Realty behind Bettye Smith displayed good teamwork to make a clean sweep for four points from the Big Dip team whose Marj Kipp had a good day.

Monroe Harbor continued to climb with Dawn's Beauty Shop as their latest victim. Ollie Yelinek's 195 paced Shoemaker Construction to a 689 high handicap game in a clash with a hard-hitting C. P. O. Wives, team whose Gerry White made an odd 5-6-7-10 pickup to help. North Orlando Homes' scoring was lead by Helen Kaelin and steamrolled the Smith's Amoco team for four points to hold on to the first place position.

Top Ranking Mississippi Takes On 'Rugged' Tulane

United Press International Mississippi, determined to maintain its newly-won ranking as the top team in the nation, takes on a rugged Tulane team Saturday when eight of the first 10 rated college football squads engage in conference play.

The Rebels, replacing Syracuse as the No. 1 team in voting by the United Press International board of coaches this week, should encounter little trouble from Tulane — on paper.

The Green Wave, however, has allowed only two touchdowns in three games (1-1) and will be making a heavy effort to halt Mississippi's bid for its first Southeastern Conference title since 1955.

In Big 10 action, Ohio State and Iowa, the No. 2 and 3 teams, and eighth-ranked Minnesota are in for rough scraps.

Ohio State, with hard-running fullback Bob Ferguson boistered by a thigh bruise, is a one-touchdown favorite over Purdue. Iowa reportedly worked on some new formations during the week to prevent Wisconsin from continuing its surprising rampage. The Hawkeyes are 12 point favorites to win their fourth straight and retain their Big 10 lead.

Minnesota is a touchdown choice over Illinois, but the Illini are back to full strength after last week's injuries and may upend the Gophers.

Church Bowling Loop Organized

A new bowling league has entered action at the Jet Lanes Bowling Alley.

The new league is the Church League. An organizational meeting was held at the alley Monday night with the following churches represented: First Christian, Congregational Christian, First Baptist of Oviedo. Those in the league but not present were the Pinecrest Baptist, Casselberry Methodist and the Jewhh Synagogue.

It was decided that the league would function as a mixed league, be a handicapped league and roll on either Monday at 6:45 p. m. or Thursday at 6:45 or 9 p. m.

Any other churches wishing to join the league should have a member present at the next meeting on Thursday at 7 p. m. at the Jet Lanes. There will be an election of officers at that time.

Lyman Meets Crescent City At Home Tonight

The Lyman Greyhounds shoot for their third victory of the grid season meeting a Crescent City team that has been "unbeaten" in their last 19 games.

Game time is set for 8 p. m.

Proctor plans to go with the same lineup against the Rebels that proved so strong against Inverness last week in the 21-6 victory.

Proctor plans to start Ron Higgins and Jim Goldman at the ends; Buddy Howton and John Simmel at tackles; Clarence Hood and Ricky McCanna at guards and Griffith Landress at center.

In the backfield, Mike Brown will be at quarterback with Carl Prasley and Jim Williams at the halves and Paul Blackford at fullback.

Bad Bounce Ball, Homer Won It For Bucs

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — It didn't come easy, but the Pittsburgh Pirates did it.

They won the World Series, ending a 35-year drought, thanks to a ninth-inning home run by Bill Mazeroski and an eighth-inning bad bounce ball which kept them in the running.

So they came back to tilt the Yankees — New York Yankees — and perhaps end on a sour note the reign of the most successful manager in baseball history — Casey Stengel.

Stengel wasn't saying so, but later this month he is expected to announce his retirement. In 12 years as manager of the Yankees he won 10 pennants and seven World Series.

"I came close to making it eight," he said after Thursday's 10-9 Pirate victory. "But I guess it wasn't in the books. I'm not saying that I'm finished. I'll let that word out later."

Yet, it is no secret that at 70, with more money in the bank than he can possibly use, that his wife, Edna, is urging him to throw in the ball for the last time and call it quits.

"I wouldn't know about that," said old Case. "But I sure wish

I could have thrown that second pitch to Mazeroski in the ninth yesterday. I would have kept it low — not high."

Ralph Terry, the last of five Yankee pitchers, threw the ball which Mazeroski drove high over the left-centerfield wall of Forbes Field.

In the end it was the old Yankee trade mark that won the game. The Yankees had homered the Pirates, 10-4, but that fourth one for the Pirates did the trick.

It was, said the 24-year-old Mazeroski, the Pirate second baseman, "a high fast ball."

It also was his second home run of the Series, the first being in the first game and providing the two-run margin for Pittsburgh's 6-4 triumph that day.

"Typical of the way we've won all year, winning them in the late innings," said happy Pirate manager Danny Murtaugh. "I never once counted this club out for it comes battling back."

That victory came — not only thanks to Mazeroski — but, thanks, too, to a bad bounce ground ball.

The Yankees were still in firm 7-4 command when pinchhitter Gino Cimoli opened the eighth with a single and Virdon Elppel a double play grounder at Kubek. But the ball caromed off the hard Pittsburgh infield and knocked Kubek off his feet when it hit him in the neck. Instead of two out and none on, the Pirates had two on and none out.

Dick Groat's single brought in one run and kayped Shantz in favor of Jim Coates. A sacrifice moved the runners along and after Rocky Nelson's shallow fly kept them anchored to their bases, Roberto Clemente singled wide of first to bring in a second run and bring up Hal Smith.

The old part abridged with the roar of the fans when Smith delivered his three-run homer to put the Pirates ahead 9-7, although the fingernail biting wasn't over as the Yankees stormed back to tie the score in the top of the ninth.

But then, of course, came Mazeroski and there was no further chance for the Yankees when he connected for that game-winning shot.

Butts Increase Kegler Lead

Outcome of the first position round competition of the Mr. and Mrs. League showed Don and Doris Butth increasing their won-lost record to 12½-3½ by downing Ordens 3-1.

Elaine and Roy Davies moved into second spot, one-half game out of first, by taking 3 points from Forsters.

In third spot are DePalmas' all tied 11-6 with Simas' and Long's.

The first 600 series in the league was posted by Nick DeFazio with a fine 237-614. John Spolaki picked up the 6-8 split for a 256-590, also pushing the 600 mark.

Other pick-ups of note were Mary Garner's 5-7 shot and Ralph Simas' and Al DePalma's 3-10.

Dove Season Opens Saturday

The first half of the dove hunting season opens at noon Saturday, with shooting allowed until sunset. This portion of the split season will run until Nov. 6.

Hunters are reminded by law enforcement officers and game commission officers to get their hunting licenses before they begin hunting. The licenses can be purchased at the county judge's office.

Dove hunters will be allowed a daily bag limit of 12 and a total possession limit of 24.

Furgol Ties For Golf Lead

COSTA MESA, Calif. (UPI) — Marty Furgol, a lean veteran of the professional golf wars who had been out of action for a year with a bad back, and two comparative youngsters, Tommy Newport and Jim Stinebaugh, were tied today for the lead going into the second round of the Orange County Open—all with four under par 67s.

Furgol's gold career was interrupted last year when it was discovered he had a slipped disc in his back. In March he had what is called a "spinal fusion" operation.

Bill Casper Jr., Apple Valley, Calif., who has won the past two tournaments on the pro circuit at Portland, Ore., and Mississipp, Calif., carded a 70.

Lake Monroe Jottings . . .

By MRS. H. L. JOHNSON
WELL! We did have some sunshiny days. The clouds are appearing again. . . . Helen Price is so sorry I did not see the football game last week. I will be sure and watch for you the next time. By the way how many fish did you catch the other day when you went with your Dad, Walter, who is taking a vacation right now? I hear that YOU really did catch some. . . . Have you noticed the nice palm trees that are growing at the Sikes nursery? They sure are nice ones. I saw him out cleaning around them and pruning off the dead leaves. . . . Talked to Mrs. Carroll across the ditch the other day. She and her husband are from Binghamton, N. Y. They have sold their property up there and built a new home in the Peterson subdivision. She said she sure missed her grandchildren since they returned home after being with them for the summer months.
She is a nice person with whom to talk. . . . Ruthie Swagerty going to a shower for a new bride on W.
First St., Mrs. Luther Muse. . . .
Don't forget the Lake Monroe PTO covered dish supper tomorrow (14th) night at the school. Be sure and bring your own table service. An enjoyable evening is in store for everyone attending. . . .
Sorry to hear Emma Rabun has been ill. Talked to her daughter, Lanora Andrews, and she said her mother was feeling much better.
. . . Donald Canup on vacation working with his orchids. He and his parents are raising them and Donald says they really are pretty.
An orchid is pretty to me, anytime. He has two other hobbies. . . .
playing his Lowery Lincoln Organ and going to ceramic class. . . .
Mildred Standifer making a ceramic bride and groom dish, but I never did find out who it is for.
Who, Mildred? . . . Claude Hawkins on his day off from the railroad shops doing some welding on some iron work for steps which Jim Corbett will take to Punta Gorda.
Jim has just purchased a motel there on the Peace River. . . . If you heard a lot of dogs barking (14, to be exact) it's the fault of Leon Keel, C. H. Knight and that Junior High Principal, Hugh Carlton because they went to Rome, Ga. last weekend and brought them back to train for hunting. Bet Sammie, Margaret and Rose Marie felt like putting the men out in the pen with the dogs. The men are planning big hunting trips for this winter. . . .
Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Almond motored to Lee for the weekend to see their son and family. I know they enjoyed the trip because they have a new car. . . .

Business Briefs

Dodge dealers sold more than three times as many cars in the last 10 days of September as they did in the same period last year, M. C. Patterson, Dodge general manager, announced today. Patterson said 9,519 cars were retailed in Sept. 21 to 30, compared with 3,127 in the same period a year ago.
"The 1960 period includes two days of 1961 model selling and is indicative of the very favorable reception which the public is giving our new models," he said.
"A still stronger contrast is found by examining the 1959 and 1960 selling periods which include the new model introduction days. Last year we introduced our new cars on Oct. 9 and in Oct. 1-10 period we sold only 3,318 cars. This year we introduced on Sept. 29, and in the Sept. 21-30 period, our dealers retailed 9,519 cars."
Sales of new model 1961 Plymouth cars in their introductory period are off to their fastest start in many years, according to Sanders H. Ray, Atlanta regional manager of the Plymouth-DeSoto-Vaux division of Chrysler Corporation.
Plymouth dealer in the Atlanta region delivered 82 per cent more new cars during the 10-day period which included the new 1961 model introduction than during the preceding 10 days. The increase is all the more remarkable considering that only two days of the 1961 model year are reflected in the 10-day period covered the new car introduction on Sept. 29.
The Atlanta region includes all dealers in Georgia, Florida and Alabama.

Science Students Find Errors In Treatise On Metric System

By DICK WEST. WASHINGTON (UPI) — I am dedicating this to Adelaide, Barbara, Ramona, Marie, James, David, Robert Larry and Donna. Also to Susan Marianne, Jimmy, Stanley, Mary Lou, Theodora, and Gloria.

But don't be alarmed folks. This is not Jockey Jack's keen sock hop platter program. This is just my way of paying my respects to a group of students who attend school at Delanson, N.Y.

In the interests of scientific accuracy, Adelaide, Barbara, Ramona, etc., have taken the trouble to send me a letter challenging some of the computations I made in a treatise I recently wrote on the metric system.

The metric system I might point out, is a little out of my usual line of work. A lot of Elvis Presley records have spun over the turntable since I studied it in school. Also a lot of Rudy Valley records.

Consequently, when I started to name my computations, I had to look up "centimeter" in the dictionary to see how long it was. I found that a centimeter is approximately two-fifths of an inch.

After receiving their letter, I went back to the dictionary and looked up "inch." It was defined as being 2.54 centimeters, just like the letter said. They caught me red-handed and I might as well confess.

I just wonder, however, whether it was necessary for the whole blessed class to sign the letter. Isn't that rubbing it in a bit?

The South turns out three-fourths of the textiles in the United States.

Southside Shuddering

By SUSIE SPOOK. It was just an ordinary morning, as Susie Spook went about her household chores, tidying up her cobwebs, and every hour on the hour getting one of her little cats off to school.

Suddenly a bell denoted a message coming through. This one from Leader Spook Jerry Kirk, telling of a recent spasm. Susie was directed to lay aside her broom stick in a safe place, ready for the annual ride coming up soon.

Instead she was told to get with the smoke writing, and in eerie tones, shrieks or howls to let all the witches, goblins, gremlins et al be reminded of the spook season at Southside School come this Oct. 31.

Just a reminder is all that is needed to rouse even the most invisible spook, for this season is steeped in tradition, so great that even the Supreme Court wouldn't dare interfere, and everybody with a body will be there.

Leader Jerry reported that all the spooks at the scene flapped their sheets enthusiastically rallying to the cause of all the spooklets at Southside. Plans call for a fish pond, boat on the pond, homemade sandy, pair tree, country store, rides, homemade cake served plain or with wicks, brew, hot dogs, hamburgers and cold drinks, (the latter will take place of the supper).

Who-ee-oo and a haunted house with witches circulating about, Jack-O-Lantern booth, dart board, hat throw and silly clown selling balloons and monkeys on sticks. (Oh, and all spooks are reminded to quit dusting those white elephants haunts, and send them to the carnival to be auctioned off by some creep.

Keeping leader Jerry on the straight and narrow graveyard path are Ghosts Buddy Rawls and Don Bates and the spookiest spook of them all, Velma Mitchell.

More later when the smoke clears. Who-ee-oo-oo!

The girls who cheer the players on to touchdowns have a very busy schedule. The group has been practicing since the end of summer, long before school started. At the end of spring last year, they attended the Cheerleading Clinic in Tallahassee to learn new cheers and methods. Practice is every morning and the girls lead all the pep rallies held before each game.

Baptist Church To Hold Barbecue Supper

The Elder Springs Baptist Church is planning a barbecue supper today at 7 p.m. The purpose for this supper is to strengthen the fellowship bonds of the church family and to extend the warmest kind of invitation to our many friends and neighbors of the church.

With the Brotherhood and the Womens Missionary Union cooperating to make the barbecue a success, the church is expecting many guests to be present from nearby Sunland Estates as well as from the surrounding community.

The evening events will include an old fashion hymn sing, special music, good food, and wonderful fellowship, with the emphasis on the fellowship. The church family agrees that occasions such as this, which provide opportunity for making new friends, renewing old acquaintances, and extending the warmth of church fellowship to the community, is a part of our Christian witness.

More room, more comfort inside! Headroom, legroom and footroom have been increased. Seats are higher, yet there's more clearance under the steering wheel. Doors are wider, swing open farther with no jutting barriers to bump as you get in and out.

Powered by the new, fuel-saving Trophy V-8 Engine! New fuel induction system gives this new free-breathing engine more air, makes gas go further. Eleven versions to select from. Horsepowers range from 215 to 348. For best economy you can specify the dollar-saving Trophy Economy V-8. Its lower compression ratio lets you use regular gas.
