A STATEMENT TO THE PEOPLE OF SANFORD FROM FLORIDA FASHIONS

Mail Order Division Removed To Orlando

Florida Fashions has found it necessary to move its Mail Order Division to Orlando. A building is now under construction for the company on-the Cheney Highway, It will be completed in time for Florida Fashions to vacate its present Air Base quarters as requested by the City for the reactivated Naval Air Station.

This move was necessary for two reasons.

The immediate reason was the need to find quick replacement for the 78,000 square feet of space occupied at the Air Base, and required on short notice for the Navy.

The second reason was more basic and existed even before the present national emergency. It was simply that the rapid growth of the mail order operation and the quickly developing manufacturing division together required more qualified young women employees than Sanford seemed able to provide.

On January 1st, 1947, Florida Fashions had five persons on its payrolls. By June, 1948, this had grown to 178; by June, 1949, it was 298; and by June, 1950, it was 446. A very large proportion of the employable young women of Sanford were working for Florida Fashions, and when more help was needed for seasonal peak periods it could not be obtained. Employees loyally worked long hours of overtime and on night shifts. This was often a hardship for them and the additional cost was unprofitable to the company.

Larger Community Necessary For Continued Expansion

By the summer of 1950 it was clear that Florida Fashions was growing faster than Sanford's ability to supply qualified young women workers. To insure the future growth of the company, a move had to be made to a community with a larger population on which to draw for an adequate number of suitable workers.

A survey was made of the principal cities of the State, most of which neight to interest the company in locating in their communities. It was finally decided that Oriando would be the natural choice because of its nearness to Sanford and the probability that most of the present employees would be able to continue working in the new location without undue hardship. Also, a survey which was made showed a large number of trained female workers available in the age groups most needed.

Orlando, through its Industrial Board, helped secure a suitable twelve-acre site and gave valuable assistance in making arrangements for flancing and designing a building. Plans were drawn, and steel was purchased for a 54,000 square foot structure as the first unit of a contemplated 100,000 square foot Mail Order Building.

Sanford Officials Advised

When the decision to proceed with these plans was made, a meeting was called in July with key officials of the City and the Chamber of Comperes in Sanford, and they were told in confidence of the decision to move and the reasons which made it necessary.

Hear proposition were made by these officials for solving the em-tracting new wage earners into Sanford. The key fact remained, however, that Florida Fashions employed mostly women and that a family did not ordinarily move into a community in order to secure work for the wife or daughter. Unless there were work opportunities for the man of the family as the principal wage earner—and these did not seem to exist—all such efforts to enlarge the working force of women could not help very much.

Moving Plans Held Up

The plans for building were not pushed any further, however, during the early Fall since the business outlook seemed so uncertain with the rapidly changing situation in Korea. It didn't seem wise to make so important a move at such a time.

During this period, however, the employment problem remained, and we again brought it to the attention of the proper authorities.

Jooking Ahead To Base Reactivation

When the war picture made it certain that we were facing largescale mobilization, we realized that the Air Base might be reactivated and we phould make plans accordingly.

We still felt that the comtemplated move to Orlando should be postpened; if at all possible, and that we should make every effort to remain in Senford for the present.

Accordingly, a survey was begun of all available vacant property in Sanford suitable for our purposes, and some of these quarters were leased on a stand-by basis. A total of 26,000 square feet was acquired under lease and option. Even buildings much too small for economical operation were considered, many of which would have required expensive alterations. Finally, about a week ago, the hope of acquiring sufficient space in Sanford was abandoned as being much two contly, as well as resulting in a very inefficient operation, even if all the space sectionary could be found.

There seemed no other course but to proceed with our original plans for the building in Oriando. Since construction had been frozen, it was necessary to get approval in Washington on the basis of an emergency, which approval was secured. The Navy wanted the Air Base quickly and we proceeded at once with day and slight shifts to build the 54,000 square foot Oriando unit and have it ready so that we would not hold up their schedule. Additional storage against thut will be needed is also below according.

Sanford Offered Cooperation

Officials of the City of Sanford, interested organizations, and members of the business community and at various that offered their help to Florida Funkions. There were appositions saide field before and after the state of emergency was declared for creeking a beliefag for our use. Although all of these offers were made in good faith, there was no practical way of evercoming the logal, financial, and constitutions problems in time to meet the emergency need.

Also, the back problem of a cofficient single of changey belowed

Employees Will Receive Transportation Aid

Since the days of early 1950 when lack of help pointed to the need for moving to a larger community we have been concerned about the welfare of the employees who have contributed so much to our rapid growth. The choice of nearby Orlando was made primarily with this in mind. In order to cause the least possible hardship to our Sanford employees, travel assistance will be given by furnishing free bus transportation. The company will also work out a car pool plan, defraying the expense of those who will travel in this manner. Every possible consideration will be given to the time and travel convenience of our co-workers.

Sanford And Florida Fashions

Our concern has been and remains also for the welfare of Santord, the community with which we have grown. We wish to commend the efforts of the City Commissioners and the other public spirited citizens who have continually offered their assistance and have done all in their power to help us.

Florida Fashions has not left Sanford. Hundreds of Sanford people will continue their employment with Florida Fashions, working in their neighboring community.

Florida Fushions Manufacturing Company remains in Sanford with its $250,000 per year payroll, a payroll which did not exist four years ago. Now, in its own right, one of Sanford's principal businesses, it employs 130 persons, and is developing rapidly.

Today, although producing over 400,000 dresses a year, it still supplies only 25% of Florida Fashions' needs, and there is great opportunity for its continued growth. We are now seeking suitable and larger quarters in Sanford for this important industry.

Sanford's Economic Future

We believe Sanford is going to continue growing—commercially, industrially, and in every other way. We believe the reactivated Naval Air Station will aid that growth.

We hope to continue filling an important place in the life of this community. We sincerely pledge to the administration and to the people in Sanford the best we can possibly contribute toward Sanford's welfare.

Stopgap Program

Statements of officials have indicated some awareness in Washington of the fact that ceilings on prices and wages are only a stopgap in the effort to control inflation. They are stopgap measures whether or not the government intends that they be.

The freeze contained patent inequities. The most glarng is that it penalizes business people who have complied with the earlier administration appeal not to raise prices, while favoring those who raised prices anyway, and pen-alizes those workers who refrained from forcing quick pay increases, while favoring those who did so.

The inequities will have to be adjusted. But the process will never be finished because one adjustment will create the need for another. The ceilings which are even-tually worked out may retard inflation for a time, but will not stop it permanently.

Success in combating inflation depends on the working out of more permanent measures during the respite won with price and wage ceilings. Putting the government on a sound financial basis and reducing the over-all cost of government so that the level of taxation can be made to cover expenses are high on the list of measures required management leaders. for a permanent buttress against inflation. Until the supply of goods and services can be brought into balance with market demand, that demand has to be held in check with limitations on credit and the volume of money.

The task of holding back inflation remains for the Administration, for the Congress and for the people. The nation's economic problems have not been solved by the issuance of a freeze order on prices and wages.

Psychological Weapon

Readers of history and fiction of the War Between the States have noted, in battle accounts, the psychological effectiveness of the "rebel yell." Unexpected attacks prefaced by this wild scream struck terror into the hearts of the Northern forces.

Observers in Korea report that the Red forces are fully cognizant of the value of sound as a weapon. Drums throb rhythmically in the night; the whoop of a shepherd's horn on a peaceful moonlit night and bugles blown from several direction at once have been used against United Nations forces with the idea of causing disorganization and flight.

The value of such psychological weapons lies in their freshness. Repetition dulls their effect and finally nullifles it. Then too, soldiers thus attacked are likely to react with increased intensity when face to face with the enemy.

Fact And Fancy

"Nothing is so firmly believed as what we least know" observed Michel de Montaigne. Written in the sixteenth century, it is a peculiarly apt remark for the present time.

A time of crisis and uncertainty invariably produces a flood of rumor, some half-truth and some pure fabrication. Some rumors can be seen to be foolish and so we laugh at them and forget them. But others fit nicely into our worst fears or our fondest hopes. These we are prone to clothe immediately with the certainty of fact. A rumor is accepted not because we know it is accurate but because we don't

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1—(P)— The song is the same—control wages—even though the words are a little different. In World War II the War Labor Board (WLB) was the agency for controlling wages. It died when

THE NATION TODAY

By JAMES MARLOW

Now a few years later there's new wage-control agency, the ne-man wage stabilization board

(WSB).
At least six of the nine worked know the problems and how they had to try to solve them before. When sweet reason falls in a labor dispute, the workers may strike or the employer may lock them out. Right after Pearl Harbor President Roosevelt called a White House conference of labor and

With the exception of John L. Lewis and his mine workers, they pledged no strikes and no lockouts for the duration. They couldn't promise complete lack of disputes.

How then could their disputes be settled? Mr. Roosevelt created the WLB to handle them, It had public, labor and management representatives. Since big labor disputes are over wages, and the government was trying to keep prices and wages in line, WLB had to control wages. Hundreds of thousands of quer ies, disputs and complaints had to be handled during the war: Workers wanted more pay and employers agreed to give it. Okay with WLB? Or employers refused to give it? What them? The one WLB couldn't handle all that. It set up smaller WLB's around the country, called regional boards, to solve as many local complaints as possible.

When a local board failed, WLB had to sten in. Now the present WSB will have to set up a squad of junior WSB's around the countries.

WSB's problem is a little different from WLB's. We're not at war now. President Truman hasn't called a White House conference of labor and management leaders to get a no-strike-no-lockout pledge. ione has been given. If this defense program goes indefinitely, without war, there'll be endless disputes, perhaps strikes, particularly if price controls sag and living costs keep hopping up. The very core of WSB's lob in controlling wages is to control them as fairly and smoothly as it can, to keep down disputes, while at the same time trying to keep wages in line with controlled prices.

One thing which the old WLB did was to set up a general formula intended to be generally fair in controlling wages. The WSB is trying to work out a formula of WLB came up with the "little ateel" formula, but not auddenly or easily. It reached it after months of pecking away at the The formula was reached July, 1942, as a decision on the wage demands by workers in the smaller steel companies. Between that time and Jan. 1 1941 living costs had risen 15 percent so, roughly, WLB said: Any workers who hadn't received a 15 per cent increase in wages since Jan. 1, 1941 were entitled to that much. The formula held up pretty well.

The nine members of the pre-sent WSB are wrestling with the problem of a formula which will fit present conditions. It's of the utmost importance that the formula, whatever it turns out to be, is fairly satisfactory to all nine members. You can see why: three of the nine represent the public, three are from labor, three from management.

If the labor (or management) representatives got enraged at what the other six did and walked off the board, it probably would
