Its countywide tax increment in a delegation of authority for the city-proposed CRA/TIF. The county's potential agreement to include its own ad valorem tax increment in a CRA would set new intergovernmental and fiscal paths for Seminole County, a staff work session memorandum states.

if the commissioners agree to help fund the projects, a board consensus is needed on six related topics including the size of the county tax increment, its term, structure of the advisory board and whether unincorporated properties within the study area would be allowed to be automatically added to the CRA if a voluntary annexation occurs. Other special conditions and advertising requirements will also be discussed. Bee County, Page 5A

'Night Out' rescheduled for tonight

By VICKI DeSORMIER Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD - It was a wash last time, so organizers are going to try it again.

The last time Seminole County land the rest of Central Florida) tried to celebrate "National Night Out,"

Hurricane Erin put a damper on the activities.

It was left to the individual communities to reschedule their celebrations on an evening when the weather might be more conducive to outdoor activities.

Sheriff Don Eslinger has announced that those in this county who want to participate should do so tonight.

The Sanford Police Department is not sponsoring any official activities within the city, but they are en-couraging people to take part if they want.

The Night Out is a chance for neighbors to come out of their homes, lock their doors and take a stand against crime. Residents are encouraged to turn on their porch lights and get to know the people who live around them so they can have a better handle on who should and who should not be in their neighborhoods.

Mysterious lumes Monday forced the closure of the Albertson's store at Tuskawilla and Red Bug Road. The store was evacuated for about two hours while firefighters tried to locate the source of the fumes that caused throat and eye irritations and breathing difficulties. They believe the problem may have been caused by a pocket of Freon caught in the air conditioning system. Shutting down the system and restarting it seems to have corrected the problem. The store is open as usual today.

Survey: Longwood pay scale lagging

By SANDRA ELLIOTT Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD - The survey is out and the data confirms what some city officials have suspected. City employees' starting salaries are below the survey average in similar-sized cities, placing Longwood in the position of training employees who leave to work in other communities for higher salaries.

However, the $100,000-$300,000 price tag to correct the situation is much more than the city can afford. City commissioners called for additional work on the study during a Monday night work session.

Dog-eating gator collared electronically

PENSACOLA - Hunting dogs have been disappearing in the Blackwater River State Forest for 20 years. Their owners thought people were stealing them.

The thief, it turns out, was a 500-pound gator, which had turned a game trail into his private diner, grabbing dogs as they ran across Coldwater Creek in pursuit of foxes or deer.

Their barking apparently was his dinner bell. At least six hunting dogs met their fate in the gator's jaws.

Rufus Godwin had set Flojo, a $5,000 Walker fox-hunting hound, loose in the forest about 45 miles northeast of Pensacola a few weeks ago. The last he heard of her was her bark as she chased an animal, probably a deer.

Four days later, he was using the tracking device for her electronic collar to search for her when he caught a faint signal. The beeps were coming very weak until he pointed his receiver at a deep hole in a Florida Panhandle swamp.

"All of a sudden the boxes went to beeping out of sight." Rufus Godwin recalled Monday in a telephone interview from his Chumuckla home. "So we knew then we were dealing with a gator.'

State-contracted gator hunters captured the reptile a couple days later.

Four men harpooned the beast, taped its mouth shut and wrestled it until they had the animal hogtied. During the struggle the gator spit up Flojo's $125 tracking collar. Later, after the animal was killed, the gator hunters slit open the belly.

1927 doll renews relations

ORLANDO - This city and a Japanese town have renewed a relationship that began 68 years ago through a doll sent by a local girl az part of a U.S. effort to promote peace between the two countries.

On Monday, a Japanese delegation headed by a Buddhist priest returned the doll to Orlando during a city hall ceremony that initiated another doll exchange - to promote peace.

The blue-eyed doll, named Anama Julie and wearing a yellow gingham dress and bonnet, survived World War II bombings in the town of Nio. 345 miles southwest of Tokyo on the Inland Sca.

The toy was one of thousands sent as part of an idealistic program promoted by the New York-based Committee on World Friendship Among Children. Most were destroyed during the war, either by intent or by the bombings.

The Orlando doll was found in 1977, tucked in the closet of Kisshoin Temple in Nio. by head priest Chigen Gyoten. The priest led the small group bringing it back to Orlando, in part to establish relations between the cities.

"This will be the new friendship and a wish for peace on into the 21st and 22nd centuries," said Shoko Tsujimura, who came from Urayasu. Orlando's sister city in Japan. She helped organize Monday's exchange and ceremony.

The delegation included Nio Mayor Miroshi Yamali, two students of Nio Junior High School, Mayuko Yoshida and Yoshiko Tai. and teacher Sumiko Maruoka.

Japanese officials believe only 280 of the original 12,739 dolls received by Japanese children survived. They were sent by American churches, schools, Boy and Girl Scouts and individual children. Many were put on display.

TAMPA - Unlike other motorists, riders of motorcycles are not required to buy any insurance — until after they have an accident.

Jeanette Zesch and her daughter learned that lesson the hard way.

Their insurance company is out $2,500 for repairs after a June crash caused by an un-insured motorcyclist. The biker tried to improperly pass her daughter, Gwyn. on U.S. 41.

"This is not right that people driving motorcycles have the privilege of not having insurance," said Zesch, of Avon Park.

Motorcyclists are forced to buy personal injury and property damage liability insurance with $20,000 and $10,000 limits but only after they have one accident. They also are required to pay for the other person's damages and medical bills. Of the 174.265 motorcycles registered in Florida last year. 4.919 were involved in a crash. according to the state Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles. The crashes were fatal for 152 of the motorcyclists. Nearly all of the motorcyclists - 4.399 - were injured, but only 1,005 of them

The last time the issue of mandatory insurance surfaced in the Legislature was 1989 and there is virtually no one who will fight to include motorcyclists in the no-fault law. said Fred Varn, who worked on the state House Insurance Committee for five years before recently joining the Department of Insurance. Insurance opponents say motorcyclists don't need coverage because most of their tangles with cars are the car's fault. Besides, the motorcyclist is the one at greatest risk for injury and property damage, said Beverly Hempstead of Barney's Motorcycle and Marine in Tampa. In addition, banks and finance companies require insurance when they approve loans for motorcycles to protect their investment, Hempstead said.

Carl Giguere, a Tampa police officer and motorcycle rider, believes bikers should get coverage because he has seen the damage motorcycles can do.

"A motorcycle can cause as much damage as a car." said Giguere, who tours around on his Honda Goldwing when not riding his department motorcycle. "There's not a whole lot of difference between some of these large motorcycles and small compact cars.' Giguere maintains compre-hensive, medical and liability coverage for his touring bike for about $200 a year, he said. Insurance on sport blkes that can reach speeds faster than 150 mph costs much more - up to four times as much. And that figure could double if the rider is younger than 25.

Twenty-nine states have compulsory insurance laws that include motorcycles. Zesch and Giguere believe Florida should join their ranks. If the state doesn't act, the costs of these accidents will continue to be spread among covered motorists, Giguere said.

"It's wonderful to have the board's unanimous approval," Karl said after the vote by trustees at their monthly meeting. The plan is expected to start Oct. 1.

in a 40-bed wing around the corner from the hospital's fourth-floor maternity unit, rooms will be reserved for mothers to get less intensive care as they prepare to take bables home. Education on feeding and other topics will be offered.

The setup will cost the hospital less than time spent in a maternity bed while using empty space it already pays to heat. cool, power and clean.

Most maternity care costs are incurred during delivery. So while average costs of other patients can be much higher. additional days of maternity care after vaginal delivery without complications cost only $225 each. according to chief financial officer Kathryn Gillette.

Tampa General estimates it will have 2,200 such deliveries this year. If each of these women got two free days, it would cost the hospital $990,000. Gillette said.

Karl has fielded questions for a month about whether his plan is a wise marketing ploy for a hospital still facing a deficit of more than $4 million for overall operations in the budget year ending Sept. 30.

TALLAHASSEE - A lawsuit over the level of school funding in Florida should proceed because education is a fundamental right and it's violated when budgets are inadequate year after year. school districts say. The suit should not go forward because the courts have no business second-guessing the fiscal decisions made by lawmakers in a government founded on the principle of separation of powers, the Legislature and Gov. Lawton Chiles argue.

Lawyers for the two sides expounded on those points in oral arguments Monday before the state Supreme Court, which must decide the fate of the lawsult.

Forty-four of Florida's 67 school districts sued Chiles and the Legislature in April 1994. Seven months ago, a Tallahassee trial judge dismissed the lawsuit, filed by the 44 districts and several students and parents acting as the Coalition for Adequacy and Fairness in School Funding.

The group wants the state's high court to overturn that ruling.

At the heart of the case is Article 9, section 1 of the state constitution. It requires that "adequate provision shall be made by law for a uniform system of free public schools.

"The central question that this court should decide is whether the constitution of Florida confers on Florida's school children a judicially enforceable right to an adequate education opportunity." Terrell Sessums. a coalition attorney, told the court.

If the answer is yes, the justices must send the lawsuit back to the trial court to be heard, he said.

Bob Shevin, representing the Legislature and governor, urged the justices to uphold the decision dismissing the lawsuit. The doctrine of separation of powers protects lawmakers from being second-guessed by judges about budget decisions, Shevin said.

"If people want more money spent on education and less on criminal justice or less on health and human services, they've got to elect legislators who will do that," Shevin said. "The relief is at the ballot box, not in the courts."

Shevin, a Miami attorney, is a former attorney general. Sessums, a Tampa attorney, was a former House speaker and member of the Board of Regents.

Chief Justice Grimes asked Sessums what he imagined would happen if the courts found that lawmakers were shortchanging education by failing to increase school funding.

Harassing phone calls continue

By NICK PFEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - The Seminole County sheriff's department continues to receive word of harassing telephone calls made mostly to women in the Central Florida area. The most recent tabulation, this past Friday, revealed at least 107 complaints have been made thus far. While additional calls have reportedly been received from various victims during the weekend, no additional numbers have been indicated. The sheriff's Major Crimes Section is concentrating on the investigation of the case and contacting many of the victims in an effort to gather as much information as possible. According to sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, in each instance, the victims have received a collect phone call that began with a recorded message that the call was from a correctional facility. If the victims agreed to accept charges for the calls, a man's voice came on the line.

McDonough said the caller has threatened some of the female victims with physical violence. On others he has attempted to solicit sex.

In one phone call to a woman in Wekiva Cove. McDenough said the caller told the woman her husband was injured and in jail, which was not the case.

In another call, to a person in Shadow Bay, the caller reportedly said, "If you value your life, don't hang up."

Sheriff's investigators have determined the calls had been made from either a pay phone or a cellular phone.

Phone calls to the sheriff's office in the past few days have indicated that similar anonymous phone calls have been made to persons all over Seminole County, as well as in Orange, Lake and Volusia countics.

Investigators are asking anyone who receives such calls to hang up immediately.

Others who may have received and accepted such calls are pasked to contact the sheriff's office at 330-6600.

Job fair a SUCCESS

People who organized and participated in the Job Fair at the Sanford Civic Center this past Friday and Saturday deserve pats on their backs. Everyone connected with it, on both sides of the job-application tables. deserve to be congratulated.

Several thousand people were in attendance to seek employment at the various businesses at Seminole Towne Center, Many dozen mall shops, restaurants and other establishments were represented.

In most cases, persons were not hired on the spot. Their applications were considered however, and the persons to be hired or interviewed further will be notified.

City officials as well as mall executives have expressed their appreciation for the way the fair was conducted. Job applicants were said to have been polite, well dressed, and orderly. No doubt many persons involved in the hiring process were new to the area. We believe the demeanor of people gave them an excellent opinion of Sanford and Central Florida.

Naturally, not everyone attending the job fair was a Sanford resident. People probably came many miles in order to seek employment. The effort however, was to provide jobs for as many local people as possible, and judging from the attendance, this will be accompliahed.

There is no doubt the Seminole Towne Center is going to be the biggest economic boom the city of Sanford has ever seen. It should also bring benefits to the city of Lake Mary, immediately south of the mail area.

Economic improvements have now started. More of our people will soon be employed. Shoppers will be heading to Sanford. More new businesses will be locating between the downtown'area and the mail.

We believe the success of the job fair should be noted as one excellent step on the stairway

ABA deploys its own speech police

Colleges and universities must now proceed at their peril if they enact codes punishing speech that might demcan other students' race, sex, religion or sexual orientation, among other categories. Courts, declaring these attempts to enforce civility overly vague, have ruled them invalid.

Nonetheless, the 117-year-old American Bar Association -- with a membership of 370,000 attorneys -- has decided to monitor the language of its ranks. Despite the ABA's record of advocacy of free speech, its House of Delegates has recently revived "political correctness" by passing a resolution enthusiastically offered by its Young Lawyers Division, one of the largest in the ABA.

The resolution condemns blas -- in words or conduct -- by lawyers in the course of their professional activities on the basis of "race, sex, religion, national origin, disability, age, sexual orientation or socio-economic status.

The only exception to the use of offensive words is when they "are otherwise permissible as legitimate advocacy on behalf of a client or cause." ["Legitimate advocacy" is intriguingly undefined as is the more problematic "illegitimate advocacy.")

As the ever vigilant Young Lawyers Division

points out in an accompanying report, lawyers words under this resolution must "Be regulated both inside and outside the courtroom... inevery circumstance where a lawyer is present by reason either in whole or in part" because of his or her status as a lawyer. (How can one be sure which part is the lawyer?)

One huge problem with this reckless resolution -- which demeans the ABA The American and therefore its members - is that it does not provide any clear definition of when a lawyer can be charged with violating its overly broad language.

I asked a number of the speech code's proponents if there will be a list of impermissible words and phrases that an ABA member may consult before he or she speaks "inside and outside the courtroom."

I was told there is no such list or any set of specific guidelines. Yet, as any law student knows, you can't be convicted of breaking a law that is too vague to be understood.

Furthermore, since this ABA resolution is not limited to exchanges in courtrooms, it is a policy without boundaries. Ronald Rotunda -- a law professor at the University of Illinois, active on ABA committees, and a guardian of the First Amendment in all seasons - provided this hypothetical in the Wall Street Journal:

"If two lawyers are discussing tax policy, and one says, 'We should reform welfare because some of its recipients are lazy,' he has violated the ABA policy because he has manifested 'by words' an indication of bias based on socioeconomic status."

I put this hypothetical to George Kuhiman, chief ethics counsel of the ABA. He agreed that Professor Rotunda was correct. The use of the word 'lazy' in that context would be speech unbecoming an ABA member.

Kuhlman added, however, that this speech code is not part of the ABA's Model Rules of Professional Conduct.

Saddam and Uday: Like father like son

WASHINGTON -- The recent defections of two of Saddam Hussein's daughters and their high-ranking husbands have left Saddam's favorite murderer -- his eldest son, Uday -- in the unquestioned No. 2 position. It is an ironic turn of events, considering that only six years ago Uday was imprisoned and threatened with execution by his father. Uday botched his own suicide attempt in prison, but later redeemed himself to his ruthless father.

In 1989, we first reported on the rift between Uday and his father, which was the result of a secret second marriage by Saddam. Intelligence sources have provided a full picture to our associate Dale Van Atta of the son and Saddam's heir apparent.

LETTER

Support downtown

Dana Johnston's letter to the editor and published in the Sanford Herald on Aug. 8, 1995 is right to the point about supporting the downtown merchants. We are the only city in Seminole County that has a recognizable main street so to speak. What a shame to let this grand ole downtown go to the wayside because of a new mail. Certainly the mail will have many wonderful merchants trying to make a living just like our downtown merchants, and I'm sure that they will be there to help support our many activities held downtown, but we must always remember those who helped to hold this town together over the years. I know that we'll all be there looking over this new addition to our town when it opens and I'm sure that we will all buy from our new neighbors. The main thing is to welcome them to Sanford and make them feel like they are our friends and neighbors, but that doesn't stop us from still shopping our downlown. Yes, we may lose some of our downtown merchants because of duplication of certain services, but the trend toward antiques will keep Sanford the best town that there is. Folks, shop our downtown merchants whenever you can. The mail can't offer the same hometown atmosphere that our downtown merchants can. Don Knight at Knight's Shoe Store is an example of an ole town southern gentleman and one that can never be duplicated. Don is just one of the many fine people offering services downtown Sanford. So as Dona Johnston so nicely said, support the downtown merchants when you can and the many "fix-up" projects that are on various calendars will make us even more proud of our town.

Please find Packwood a new job

BOSTON - Won't somebody please offer Bob Packwood a nice cottage by the sea for a couple of weeks? After all, he can't go home for the summer break. Oregon may be a nice place to represent but it's not a place he can peacefully visit.

As it is, the President's in Wyoming, the Congress is scattered to the 50 states, and Packwood's spending his days as a house guest of media folk like Larry King, Jane Pauley and Forrest Sawyer. Instead of acquiring a tan or even a sweaty blush of embarrassment, he's wearing pancake makeup, an aggressive manner and talking about 'fighting fire with fire."

Back in May, the Senate Ethics Committee found "substantial credible evidence" of Packwood's sexual misconduct with 17 women in 18 instances. On August 4, the Senate decided by a mere four votes including Packwood's - not to hold public hearings.

Since then, there have been two more complaints, including one by a woman who was a 17-year-old intern. Now he's taken his show on the road before the Ethics Committee determines his fate or the Senate changes its mind about public hearings.

The Packwood performance is almost as darkly riveting today as it was in 1990 when he was naively cast by the organizer of a Senate sexual assault workshop to play the part of an assailant. On television, the Finance Committee chairman responds to charges of being a serial soul-kisser with a sort of stole shamelessness.

The days when he put MASADA on his license plate signifying the biblical suicide are over. Now he's fighting for his political life. And his arsenal of defense weapons is both varied and impressive.

In 1992, Packwood denied the charges long enough and attacked his accusers hard enough to keep the story out of print before Election Day. When it finally hit the press, he tried a full Mea Culpa: "What I did was not just stupid or boorish. My actions were just plain wrong. ... I didn't get it. Now I do."

When this confession didn't win him absolution, it was followed in rapid and random order by the Demon Rum excuse, the Changing Mores explanation, the Awkward Sexual Blunderer self-analysis, and the Statute of Limitations plea. Now the man who voted against confirming Clarence Thomas is using all these weapons simultaneously as he summer-surfs the airwayes.

He's [1] attacking his accusers again while (2) apologizing if he did the things they said he did though (3) he doesn't remember if he did them because of (4) those alcoholic blackouts while saying (5) the sins weren't so bad anyway! His appearances are ruining more vacations than Hurricane Felix.

I have never been as comfortable condemning Packwood as the odd coalition of left and right, feminists and moralists, Barbara Boxer and Pat Buchanan. From the beginning I saw this as a sorry case study: When Good Guys Do Bad Things. How do you figure out a man who makes genuine advances for women and unwelcome advances on women?

This representative of a nearly extinct species - a moderate Republican Senator - is hardly the only politician to have some fundamental disconnect between his private and public life. We are. appropriately, less tolerant of that split personality today. But I don't think we have yet figured out how to calibrate the Importance of private and public behavior in assessing a person's character.

We have yet to distinguish "sexual miscon duct" from "sexual harassment" from "sexual assault." Nor have we figured the proper punishment to fit the crime. We're still working on it.

The Packwood

almost as darkly riveting today as it was in 1990.

But just this summer, we've seen Del Labs ante up $1.2 million to settle an EEOC complaint that their chief executive sexually harassed his employees. We've seen the Governor of Washington, Mike Lowry, agree to pay 897.500 to settle a sexual harassment suit. We've watched Illinois' Rep. Mel Reynolds squirm while he talks about only-phone sex with a minor.

An ad put together by some women's groups asked: "If your boss stuck his tongue in your mouth, would he keep his job?" Maybe, maybe not. But the point is that the Senate should be playing by at least, and preferably more than, the same rules. Instead, as Barbara Boxer adds. "this guy got a promotion."

If the Senator can spend this summer vacation chewing the public ear, his colleagues should come back and vote for Boxer's renewed plea for public hearings.

Oh, you want to be spared those hearings? Me too. If you can't find Packwood that little cottage by the sea, couldn't somebody find him a new job?

By the mid-1980s. according to our fit is an ironic sources. Saddam, in a private family gathering. "blessed" Uday as the "crown prince" of Iraq. Further evidence of this was the secret "hiring" of one. and possibly more, dop pelgangers -- Uday look-alikes who would pose as him in dangerous settings. One double who defected back in 1992. Latif Yahia, turned Uday down on the "offer" in 1987, then was imprisoned and tortured into accepting.

Cosmetic surgery gave him the appropriate dimples; his front teeth were pulled out to give him a set like Uday; he was given special shoes to make him 6-foot-2 like Uday; and he went through six months of training mimicking Uday's gestures and voice. The price of traveling as Uday - living in luxury palaces and traveling in royal entourages -- was the stress of experiencing at least a half-dozen assassination attempts.

In 1988, when the long war with Iran was over, Saddam stole another man's wife in a secret second marriage. Uday viewed the marriage as an insult to his mother. Sajida. and waited until he could exact revenge on the aide de camp of Saddam's who had made the marriage arrangements. He saw an opportunity at a celebration weeks after the marriage and beat the young captain to death in front of others.

Saddam, who loved the aide, threw Uday in prison and convicted him of murder. Uday tried suicide and failed. Saddam ordered an execution, but relented and "disciplined" Uday by sending the man and his mother to Geneva in splendid "exile."

At this point, the long-time defense minister of Iraq. Adnan Khairallah. made his objections to Saddam about the treatment of his sister, Saddam's wife Sajidah. Khairallah, popular enough to be often considered as Saddam's successor, disappeared from public view and, in spring 1989, died in a mysterious helicopter crash Saddam is believed to have ordered.

Uday was back in Saddam's good graces in time for the August 1990 invasion of Kuwait. Saddam secretly sent Uday out of the country during Desert Storm - and ordered the Uday doubles to go to the front to show Iraqia that his own son was risking his life against the U.S.-led fighting forces.

Since the war. Saddam has allowed Uday to amass his own personal fortune, become editor-in-chief of the daily newspaper, Babel, and head Saddam's personal security forces.

Uday has been eliminating his rivals with a ruthlessness his father clearly admires. The starkest example of this came recently when Uday shot Saddam's half-brother Watban Ibrahim Takriti. Watban, who has reportedly since died of his wounds, was one of Saddam's closest henchmen and relatives -but Uday was not thrown into jail this time.

Sanford police Chief Ralph Russell gave a written and videotaped report on the first two weeks of the QUAD Squad's operation Monday afternoon, during the Sanford City Commission work session.

"They are taping some of the arrests they make." Russell explained, "and we've had it out together for use as a training video as well as for informational purposes." Russell said Sanford Middle School assisted the police in handling the editing of the video tape.

Included in Russell's arrest statistics, and excluding arrests made over this past weekend, the QUAD squad accounted for 19 arrests for possession of various types of drugs, four for Although Russell reported that QUAD Squad activities were hood. underway in a number of neighborhoods, including Geneva Gardens, he explained that most of what was on the video took place in the Lincoln Court area.

While the video tape depicted various QUAD squad arrests. members of the commission focused attention on the conditions of the areas in which the arrests were made.

"The city lags behind the market in all occupational groups - i.e. clerical, labor and trades, public safety, professional, technical and managerial." the survey showed according to MAI vice-president John T. Maxwell. "In the clerical series, for example, the city is approximately 13 percent below the survey average at entry level. The entry level salary for a police officer is approximately 20 percent below the survey average. A firefighter's starting pay is approximately 14 percent below the survey average."

The suvey further finds, "The city's position in the labor market is hindering its ability to attract and retain qualified employees. Present salaries place the city in the position of training employees for work in other communities. This situation is expensive and inefficient.

Pesticides in produce

WASHINGTON - Seven out of 10 produce samples tested by the Agriculture Department in 1993 had traces of pesticides. but the government says the amounts are too small to cause worry.

For apples the amount was even higher - 97 percent had pesticide residu

The department gathers the data so regulators can figure out what really turns up in food and limit pesticide use accordingly. The figures will become more important as the government looks for a way to set levels that consider the cating habits and growing bodies of infants and children.

The report noted that the residues in a dozen popular fresh fruits and vegetables were far below the legal limits set by the Environmental Protection Agency. It also noted that illegal residues were found in only 1.5 percent of the 7.328 samples. Fifty-eight different pesticides were detected.

Bank customers and mergers

NEW YORK - The $10 billion merger deal to create the nation's biggest bank - the new Chase Manhattan Corp. - will put more money in customers' pockets, bankers and analysts say.

But consumer advocates warn that the merger mania sweeping the industry has already lessened competition and increased bank fees.

"There's no evidence that mergers like this one have benefited consumers in any way," said Stephen Brobeck, executive director of the Washington-based Consumers Federation of America.

Chase agreed Monday to merge with Chemical Banking Corp. to form a bank that will have 25 million customers nationwide and rank third in mortgage lending and fourth in credit cards. Its $297 billion in assets will surpass Citicorp, now the largest banking firm with $257 billion in assets.

Bosnian Serbs fired deadly shell

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina - Bosnian Serbs fired the mortar shell that killed at least 35 people and maimed 80 others in an open-air Sarajevo market, the United Nations said today.

The shelling Monday was the worst attack on Sarajevo's civilians in the 40-month-old Bosnian war since Feb. 5, 1994. when another mortar shell struck the same marketplace and killed 68 people.

U.N. spokesman Alexander Ivanko said U.N. investigators "concluded, beyond any reasonable doubt, that the attack came from Bosnian Serb positions."

Because the U.N. findings implicate the Serbs, the United Nations, which has pledged to protect Sarajevo and other remaining U.N. "safe zones," is under intense pressure to ask NATO for punitive airstrikes.

"All options are now being considered," said lvanko.

That, however, would abort any chance of success for the latest peace initiative, set to resume this afternoon in Paris. Initial meetings were held Monday night.

Deadbeat parent law: Save, toughen

By MICHAEL J. BNIFFEN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - The Clinton administration is defending the federal "deadbeat parent" law from a constitutional challenge and trying to get Congress to toughen its provisions.

Declaring that "parental responsibility does not end at the state line." President Clinton sent the Justice Department to more than 75 cases and is court Monday in Phoenix to try to save the Child Support Recovcry Act of 1992. The law makes it a federal crime for a parent to rithhold support from a child living in another state.

The act was declared unconstitutional July 26 by U.S.

District Judge Paul G. Rosenblatt in Phoenix. So far, his ruling applies only in Arizona: the act remains in effect elsewhere.

It was used by FBI agents earlier this month in Vermont to arrest the nation's worst deadbeat dad. Jeffrey Nichols, who owes 8582,000 in overdue child support payments.

The government has filed investigating another 500. About 20 people have been convicted. The law provides up to six months in prison for the first offense and up to two years for each subsequent conviction.

"I respectfully disagree with this decision," Clinton said in a statement from Jackson, Wyo., where he is vacationing. The act "gives us the power to punish deadbeat parents who cross state lines to avoid paying child support. ... The states cannot bring these criminals to justice especially the 'hard core' group of parents who flagrantly move from state to state to evade their obligations."

Clinton also has proposed strengthening the federal law by requiring states to deny drivers' and professional licenses to deadbeat parents. That legislation passed the House in March: the Senate has yet to vote on it. but Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., included a similar affect interstate commerce.

in Phoenix on Monday, U.S. Attorney Janet Napolitano asked Rosenblatt to reverse or modify his decision. The judge was away and did not respond. If Rosenblatt won't budge. Napolitano will appeal his ruling to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Rosenblatt's ruling came in two cases. United States v. Mussari and United States v. Schroeder. He based his decision on the Supreme Court's recent ruling that the Gun-Free School Zone Act is unconstitutional because it did not substantially

meignitenea security reauces capital's openness, danger

By WALTER R. MEARE An AP News Analysis

WASHINGTON - It's been a secure summer in the capital.

No intruder has scaled the White House fence in months. That light airplane crash on the South Lawn was nearly a year ago. Out the front door. Pennsylvania Avenue is a paved park; no traffic allowed in more than three months.

No hassles at the Capitol itself, either, where streets and driveways close by Senate and House office buildings also have been closed. The plaza closest to the building was put off limits to all but official traffic long ago.

There is a price for security against the kinds of risks that explode periodically in Washington. It all has been heightened since the deadly bombing of the federal building in Oklahoma City on April 19, but pressure for tightened security is not new business.

It has been generally accepted, although the city did balk when five federal agencies and courts wanted parking bans near their buildings.

But a Republican senator thinks they've gone too far at the Capitol.

"With every new fence we put up and every armed officer we station in front of it, we jeopardize a little bit more of the freedom symbolized by this great building." Sen. Rod Grams of Minnesota said in a Senate speech prior to the summer recess of Congress.

The shutdown of Pennsylvania Avenue for two long blocks in front of the White House was ordered by President Clinton on May 20; it had been under study, and urged by the Secret Service, for months. Clinton said he acted reluctantly, but that it would have been irresponsible to ignore security advice.

He said that for most Americans, the decision wouldn't change very much except the traffic patterns in Washington. The city has adapted: rush hour traffic may have slowed on adjacent streets, but the massive tle-ups that had been forecast didn't happen.

But security does change things. There is a tradeoff between openness and the controls that have been implemented gradually, most visibly over the past two decades. The bomb that exploded in a Capitol men's room early on March 1, 1971, wasn't the first - one was, for example, planted by a German sympathizer be re World War I. But it marked the beginning of intensified security in that building, once freely accessible to anyone, with hardly a glance from a Capitol cop.

It led to reinforcement of the Capitol police force and, three years later, to the installation of electronic security equipment and X-ray gates like those used at airports.

Even so, a terrorist bomb blew a hole in a wall outside the Senate chamber on Nov. 7, 1983, doing $1 million in damage.

No one was hurt in either episode.

Grams said his staff surveyed Capitol security carly in August, trying to see it as do the 15 million tourists who come there annually.

He said they found 27 police on patrol of the grounds, 33 retractable traffic barriers, 28 concrete barricades, racks, ropes and yellow tape limiting access between sections of the Capitol grounds.

They counted nine plainclothes and 58 unformed police guarding entrances to the House and Senate floors and galleries. Grams said.

He said those and other security measures tightened since Oklahoma City amount to a barricade of Capitol Hill. "I am afraid that we are perhaps using the horror of the Oklahoma City bombing as an excuse to further restrict the access of average Americans to their government," Grams said. "and if we are, well, that is wrong."

second place finish in the Southeast Region. But except for a 3-2, 8-inning loss to Latino Americana from Miami in the State semifinals. the Longwood nine was almost untouchable, rolling up a 17-1 record, including winning their tournament titles (district, area. state, region, world series). In Patrick Ratter, det Richey Reneberg. 74 their last 12 games Longwood outscored its opponents 108-26 and in the nine wins outbill its focs 106-35.

The star in the championship game was again Kevin Graves. who came on in relief to get his third win of the World Series. For the first time in the tournament Graves was not perfect, allowing five hits, one walk and one run over the final 335-innings in relief of starter J.T. Williamson. He was still last nine games in a row. All told the team won five bly won this game as he ripped a two-run double to break a 3-3 tie in the fifth inning that put Longwood ahead to stay. For his efforts, Graves, who gave up two carned runs in 45 innings of All-Star pitching, an earned run average of 0.31, was named the Most Outstanding Player of the World Series. Longwood had taken a 3-0 lead in the top of the first inning on a two-run double by catcher Chris Westervelt, who also threw out two base stealers, and an RBI single by Jose Rosado. But Trumbell came back with two runs in the bottom of the first inning on the strength of three Longwood errors. "I don't know what our problem was," said Westervelt, "I was going crazy. We hadn't made that many errors in the tournament. In fact, we hadn't made many more than that effective enough to work out of since all-star play started."

Volunteer of the Week

Couple find HELP for unemployed

By SUSAN WENNER Heraid Staff Writer

WINTER SPRINGS - Madge Wilson and her husband of 23 years. Dick, began Christian HELP (help, encourage,love and prayer) three years ago after selling a successful retail business in 1990. The couple work hand in hand and much of the time spend in volunteering for the organization.

The volunteers and staff work with the unemployed. Their desire is to assist them spiritually as well as with their work situation.

They have been in the Winter Springs area for 15 years. The family are members of Northland Community Church but are laboring with the University Christian Fellowship Church in "helping them plant a church," as Wilson put it. Once a month the couple hold an unemployment networking group to further assist the unemployed. Wilson said, "When we gave up the store we felt God was leading us toward something. We thought it was Northland. Then a pastor from another church thought we should work with the unemployed to keep people from becoming homeless and help them find work." She continued," We presently rent a building on Concord Street in Casselberry. We had a desk and refrigerator donated.

DEAR ABBY: You suggested that "older people" should mark the backs of family pictures while they can still remember who's who, and where the peltures were taken and the approximate dates. But why only "older people"? That's something everybody should do as soon as a snapshot or picture is developed.

For years I was too busy (or lazy) to do it, and now that I'm retired and have plenty of time, I can't remember who half the people are!

My parents can't help me because my father has been dead for 25 years, and my mother is in a rest home unable to remember much of anything. So here I sit with a big box of family pictures, beating my love it. Trust me. DEAR ABBY: Our very pretty and bright 18-year-old daughter brains out trying to recall (I'll call her Nancy) graduated names, dates and places, What a from high school last May. She decided to stay home and work for a year before going to college. Nancy met a 29-year-old professional man about six months ago and they started dating. [['ll call him Paul.) They never actually went steady, but Paul gave her a big rush.

> Well, for Christmas, Paul surprised Nancy with a beautiful one-carat diamond ring. It came as a big shock to Nancy because she wasn't considering marriage with Paul. In fact, she told meshe hated to kiss him becuase he had a bad case of halitosis!

When Nancy saw the ring, she told Paul she didn't think she should accept it, but he started to cry, so she kept it because she didn't want to hurt his feelings.

Nancy is very tenderhearted and Paul is very persuasive, so do you think it would be all right if Nancy's father rturned the ring in the yellow pages under to Paul?

POST-CHRISTMAS DILEMMA should return the ring herself, an arborist. Local county forestand if he cries, he cries.

It's high time Paul learned that provide advice on how to find an he can't buy whatever he wants with tears and diamonds. And Nancy needs to learn that people who "give in" in order to avoid hurting someone cise's feelings usually end up hurting themselves. (P.S. About Paul's halitosts: Someone should tell

> Proper maintenance plays a vital role in protecting Florida's "urban forest" by improving the tree's health, reducing the homeowner's liability, and enhancing the value and overall aesthetics of the property.

> Correctly pruning a tree is a complex process requiring training and experience. Many homeowners are able to correctly trim low-hanging branches or palm fronds with hand tools. Most pruning, however, should be done by a professional arborist.

> Planting, pruning, and sometimes removing trees are common services provided by arborists. They may also appraise trees that have died or been damaged. There are serveral things to consider when selecting a professional arborist. The arborist selected for tree pruning should:

Be able to show an occupational license and operate a bona fide business in the community. · Be fully insured for property damage, personal liability and workers' compensation, and have documents to prove it.

• Have modern, wellmaintained tools and safety equipment.

Belong to professional assoclations, such as the International Society of Arboriculture, the national Arborist Association, the Florida Arborist Association or the American Association of Consulting Arborists.

Arborists are commonly listed "trees," "tree service," or "tree care service." Personal referrals DEAR DILEMMA: No! Nancy are also valuable when selecting ers or urban foresters can also arborist.

> The Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services recommends these tips when considering an arborist's services:

FERRER

 Get free estimates from more than one arborist. Don't base your decision solely on price. Ask for references, including local addresses where their work can be seen.

No work should be done without a contract. Be sure it explains exactly what work will be done and includes the total dollar amount and completion date.

• Payment should always be made upon completion of the job never in advance.

Professional arborists don't "top" trees, using pruning paint, make "flush cuts," or use climbing spikes on live trees. Removal of a living tree should be a last resort.

Arborists understand the relationship between pruning and growth. Properly pruned trees usually don't undergo a drastic change in appearance - yet they are safer, healthter and more beautiful additions to the landscape.

Nerve disorder is linked to injury

DEAR GOTT: My wife has been diagnosed as having reflex sympathetic dystrophy. Can you provide some information on the best treatment for this condition? Can this nerve disorder spread and what is the prognosis?

DEAR READER: Reflex sympathetic dystrophy is an uncommon and poorly understood phenomenon: After an injury to bone or soft tissue, patients develop pain, shrivelling of the skin and abnormalities of circulation in the skin over the injury. Joint contractions may occur. The cause is unknown. although the condition is thought to be caused by traumato special nerves (the sympathetic system) in and around the skin.

The affliction is not progressive, nor does it spread. The most important therapy is a nerve block of the affected nerves, either with anesthetic injections or by oral drugs, such as prazosin. This treatment is usually combined with physical therapy, an essential adjunct to prevent muscle and joint deterioration.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have an embarrassing underarm weiness that is extreme. I've tried every product on the market to no avail. My dermatologist gave mea prescription for Drysol. Unfortunately, this only worked for a month. Can you suggest something and also tell me why I have this problem? Could my hormones be a factor? DEARREADER:

Hyperhidrosis (excessive sweating) can be difficult to treat because the cause is unknown. Generalized hyperhidrosis can result from hyperthyroldism. hidden infection and other factors. But localized reactions. such as the palms and underarms, are not caused by any known disease.

Sometimes, isolated skin reactions, such as allergic rashes or fungus infections, can lead to excessive perspiration in a part

The most successful therapy for localized hyperhidrosis is a 20 percent solution of aluminum chloride in ethyl alcohol applied to the dry underarms at night and covered with a film of plastic wrap. In the morning, the film is removed and the aluminum deposits are washed off. Two applications usually protect the area for about a week.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY August 30, 1995

Over the past two years. you've made valuable friends who are more concerned about your well-being than you may realize. The months ahead could reveal how much they care.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It will be difficult to achieve your objectives and aims today if they are not clearly defined. Once you establish a goal, be consistent and see it through to its finish. Virgo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper. P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Conditions over which you have no control might impel you to alter your plans today. If you're flexible, the adjustments you make could work out fairly well. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you are careless or indifferent today, you might unwittingly anatch defeat from the jawa of victory. Work for your best Interests, not against them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Where your career is concerned, deal with competitors carefully. If you're unfair with them today, they'll try to balance the account later.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You are more likely to help associates today if you feel it's of your own volition. Conversely. when demands are made of you. you may resist.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Usually you enjoy social experiences, but today you may attend a gathering where someone you dislike is present, so you may want to treat everyone coolly.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You will be capable of substantial achievements today, but there is a possibility that you might be plagued with selfdoubts and quit when the going gets tough.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You might hold strong opinions today and this is well and good if you behave constructively. Do not impose your views, however, on those who are unreceptive.

TAURUB (April 20 May 20) If you're required to help a friend today, do so with your pal's resources. Avoid situations where you have to pay the freight.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Try not to anticipate the probable actions of others from a negative perspective today. This could create complications and doubts where none need exist.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Spend some time today doing things you find personally gratifying, but don't neglect your responsibilities to others.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Grasp the reins today if you get in a situation that you can handle better than a friend. However, it might make things worse if you don't do it properly. Copyright1991 by NEA Inc.
