Commissioners okay library rate hikes

SANFORD — In an effort to meet the rising cost of county library services, Seminole county commissioners approved several rate increases for out-of-county users and for lost books.

Beginning July 1, the fee for a library card to a non-county user was increased from $15 to $30. The cards are still free for Seminole County residents, school children and county government employees.

The cost for a replacement library card, although proposed for an increase from 50 cents to $2, will remain at 50 cents to encourage continued library usage.

The assessed fee for a lost non-county user's book was increased from $2 to $4 and the cost for a lost children's book was increased from $4 to $10.

Fireworks display scheduled tonight

SANFORD — The Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce and the city have scheduled a fireworks display for 9 p.m. tonight at Fort Mellon Park located at the corner of First Street and Seminole Boulevard.

The park, which is located at Fort Mellon Park, will be open from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. and will feature water skiing, square dancing and a variety of other activities.

Sanford's own Beverly family will provide an easy listening musical concert at the park beginning at 7 p.m. featuring patriotic music.

The Old Hickory Stompers from Geneva, a country clogging dance troupe, will perform during the Fort Mellon Park ceremonies.

Child's body found in city

Police investigating 11-year-old's death

By Wayne Mize
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The battered body of an 11-year-old girl was found by a man while walking his dog early Sunday evening on Jerry Avenue near Fifth Street.

Brian Finerty, 32, 409 Brown Ave., told police he was walking his dog at approximately 6:30 p.m. when he turned around and saw a body partially hidden in bushes a few feet from Jerry Avenue.

According to police, the victim has been positively identified as Cornelia Anonymous. Law enforcement officials used an identification card provided by the mother in helping to determine the victim's identity.

The mother reported her child missing to police on Sunday, 24 hours after she had last seen her. The mother last saw the child on Saturday at 4:30 p.m. when the child left her home at William Clarke Court on foot to visit her grandmother, according to police reports.

According to police, the exact time and cause of death has not been determined. An autopsy is scheduled by the medical examiner's office.

Without being too graphic, she had lacerations to the neck and blunt traumas to the chest, said Police Chief Steven Harrett.

Again without being too graphic, through our experience in these matters, she had been there at least 24 hours.

Harrett said Jerry Avenue is in a remote area of the city seldom traveled, lying due west of the Amtrak Auto Train station.

Originally, the Seminole County Sheriff's Office responded to the scene, but determined that the scene was within the city limits. The investigation was turned over to Sanford police at approximately 10 p.m.

Finerty, employed at Walt Disney World, said he usually walks his dog on Jerry Avenue by the railroad tracks on the north then towards State Highway 16 and back.

When I was first notified, I walked down the street, which is overgrown with a lot of trash, said Finerty.

When I first saw her, she started screaming. I thought maybe it was sleeping, as you can usually find in the bushes. I started out to investigate. I saw that she was quite dead. It was covered with flies.

I probably could have walked by it without seeing it. I was very close. I saw the body in the bushes.

Finerty said he then went home. I saw some neighbors at the yard and told them what I saw, said Finerty. I then called police. I was not shaken up.

Harrett said that, incidentally, he had no suspects in connection with the incident. As of Monday morning, Harrett said he had been to the scene three times.

When you get a child involved, it is not a pretty sight, said Harrett. A child is a vulnerable creature. This girl was every inch a child. She was every inch a child.

Police will continue to investigate with the hope of identifying the girl until we get an autopsy report.

LT. Bill Hasson of the Sanford Police Department searches the scene for clues.

Body found near Geneva

GENEVA — A car was found by a passerby at about 8:30 this morning in some brush near State Road 16 about a half mile west of State Road 426 and a body was found at the scene by authorities, who were not releasing a description of the victim at press time.

A Seminole County sheriff's spokesman said Thursday

Highway Patrol investigators said the incident appeared to be a murder, but a FBI spokesman refused to comment on the report.

A county police spokesman said the body was found in a wooded area near the intersection of State Road 16 and State Road 426. The body was found in a wooded area near the intersection of State Road 16 and State Road 426.

Longwood boating ordinance gets first reading Tuesday

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — A proposed ordinance regulating boating on some city lakes is scheduled for first reading at the city commission meeting.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday instead of tonight because of the Fourth of July holiday.

The ordinance, which consolidates and amends previous regulations, bans motorized watercraft with eight or more horsepower including jet-powered craft, outboards, and bow-craft from lakes designated for limited recreational use.

These lakes include Island Lake, Lake Searcy, West Lake, East Lake, and Lake Winsor. Rowboats, sailboats, canoes, rafts, paddleboats and motors under 8-horsepower are permitted.

Designated for unlimited recreational use are Lake Wildmere, Fairy Lake, Rock Lake, and Lake Ruth.

See LONGWOOD, page 10A

Here are the lakes that could be affected by the proposed boating ordinance, which restricts water vessels according to motor size and decibel output of engines.

Code board delays action on dump site

By Wayne Mize
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The cleanup of an illegal dump on vacant property at the south end of First Oak Boulevard was further delayed when the city code Enforcement Board (CEB) tabled the matter for a future meeting.

In an April 26 telephone interview with the Herald, Gerald Fruston, president of Residential Communities of America, which owns the property, said he hoped to combine the cleanup of the site with road construction to begin within 90 days of that time.

On May 16, the CEB received a notice of a violation concerning the accumulation of junk, trash, debris and rubbish on the property. When the property still had not been cleaned up by May 26, a notice of violation was sent to Residential Communities of America.

Fruston told the CEB he was aware of the problem and would clean up the site immediately if directed to do so. Fruston also told the CEB that due to the roadway being cut to access Callon Homes in Hidden Lakes, people were using the property as a dumping ground.

To add the CEB is planning to erect a fence, but it was not possible at the time, and he

Shuttle Discovery rolls out to launch pad

By WILLIAM HARWOOD
UPI Science Writer

ALLANVILLE, Fla. — By dawn's early light, the rebuilt shuttle Discovery was rolled to its launch pad early today in a star-studded line of July trip setting the stage for launch in two months of the first post-Columbia flight.

It's the mark of a great nation, that it can rise again from adversity, said astronaut David Hilmers, one of five veteran shuttle fliers, who will take off aboard Discovery in September. And with Discovery, rise again we shall.

What more fitting present could we make to our country than this on the day of its birth? Hilmers said during a nighttime roll-out ceremony. America, the dream is still alive.

As dawn broke over the Kennedy Space Center, Discovery, mounted on a mobile launch platform, perched atop a squid-crawler transporter, had reached the base of launch pad 39B after a 4.2-mile trip from the Vehicle Assembly Building that began at 12:30 a.m.

Six hours later, shortly after 7 a.m., the shuttle had reached the top of the pad where workers stood by to make electrical and mechanical connections between pad facilities and the shuttle's mobile launch stand.

Cherished by some 2,000 spaceport workers, the early morning start of Discovery's long-awaited departure for the launch pad was a welcome morale booster.

It kind of brings tears to your eyes after so long a time of struggling and looking at ourselves inwardly and outwardly, and here it is, it's finally a reality, Hilmers said. It's great.

The start of the shuttle's glacial 1 1/2-mile crawl to the pad prompted cheers and applause from technicians and engineers gathered outside the assembly building. The ceremony marking the first launch roll-out since Challenger made the same trip on Dec. 22, 1986, just one month before its final launch on Jan. 28, 1988. Since then, the shuttle program has been grounded.

I've never waved my flag as hard as I have this morning, said shuttle technician Roger Taylor.

Said another engineer, "Good that's beautiful. We're ready folks."

Lit up by high power search spotlights, the shuttle served as a backdrop for the ceremony, which had all the trappings of a July Fourth spectacular with speeches and patriotic chanting.

But there were no fireworks. That spectacle must await Discovery's launching on the 26th shuttle flight in the first week of

Virginia man arrested after girl attacked

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A Virginia man was arrested early Sunday after he reportedly attempted to kidnap a woman. Leroy Waldo, 38, of Virginia Beach, Va., was charged with kidnapping and battery. He was taken to the Seminole County Jail, where bond was set at $10,000. The victim told police she was sitting on her car with a friend about 2:30 a.m. in the parking lot of her LaPlaza apartment when a man approached them. Gesturing with his hand under his t-shirt, Waldo reportedly told the victim "Come with me" and when the victim refused, Waldo reportedly said he had a gun. The victim said Waldo then grabbed her blouse and dragged her nearby as her friend ran to the apartment to call police. During a struggle with Waldo, the girl said he struck her on the forehead with his fist, leaving a large lump. Waldo then ran off and the dazed victim joined her friend in the apartment. When a policeman arrived, two other police already had Waldo in their custody at the Days Inn on South Wymore Road. Both girls identified Waldo as the attacker. A police spokesman said no gun was found on Waldo. He said neither girl knew Waldo.

Perfect day for 4th so let's celebrate

By Fred H. Cooper Herald Staff Writer
 The spokesman for the National Weather Service for the area encompassing Seminole County describes the weather "Perfect July the Fourth weather." And so it is. Oh sure, there's always the possibility of late afternoon showers but the probability today is only 30 percent. Temperatures will push the 90s but probably won't get there. The breezes are nice and the humidity is reasonable. So get patriotic and pig out on barbecue. Don't head for the beach to surf, however. Soaking up rays is okay, and perhaps beach volleyball. But the surf is rough, very rough, and the current is very strong. This combination can produce runoffs and riptides. Beware.

The sunny skies were enjoying today are shared by most folks in the nation. Very few places are having any rain at all, and cloudy skies are few — party, yes, but not plumb.

You'll get a laugh over the highest high and lowest low today when considered with the news about the planned junket by our lawmakers to Las Vegas for a convention. Highest high yesterday was at Laughlin, Nevada with a reading of 113 degrees. That's kinda a neighbor to Las Vegas. The convention agenda for the legislators includes optional side trips to various places of interest, including Lake Tahoe. Next to that famous lake with its casinos is Truckee, site of the nation's lowest low yesterday — 38 degrees. This bit of lore should give pause to the Tallahassee politicians. Another barge has gone aground in the Mississippi. This one at Memphis. There has been some rain lately but the river level is still too low for normal traffic. Somethings gotta be done. There are other affects. The drought canceled July Fourth fireworks in hundreds of towns across the nation and some spigots along the New Jersey shore ran dry because of the combined effects of the dry spell and the influx of holiday visitors. Scattered showers in the Gulf Coast states and thunderstorms in Montana were reported late Sunday and early today, but for most of the nation Independence Day weather was dry and warm, the National Weather Service said.

The scattering of showers did little to alleviate the drought withering most of the Farm Belt, and the threat of fires prompted officials across the nation to scrub hundreds of Independence Day fireworks displays this weekend. Brush and forest fires were burning out of control today in Arizona and California, where more than 7,000 acres were blackened during the weekend, and officials said fireworks were the apparent cause of at least one blaze. Near El Portal in northern California, a forest fire apparently caused by fireworks burned through 872 acres Sunday on the north side of Merced River Canyon in the Stanislaus National Forest, a U.S. Forest Service spokesman said. Northeast of Phoenix, a lightning-sparked brushfire burned more than 5,700 acres in the Tonto National Forest and was still burning out of control Sunday night. In New Jersey, spigots ran dry in 2,000 homes Sunday because of a shortage caused by the dry spell combined with a holiday weekend gush of visitors. The water was back on today but restrictions on water use were imposed and could last through the summer.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Soviets citizens stunned by display of party divisions

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviets stunned by the public airing of differences among Communist Party leaders lined up Sunday at newspaper kiosks and stood three-deep at billboards displaying front pages in an effort to soak up every word uttered in anger at the just-completed party conference.

Newspaper vendors did a brisk business, selling copies of official newspapers to Muscovites eager to read texts of the rancorous speeches that had been broadcast only in excerpted clips on state-run television.

The four-day conference, convened by Mikhail Gorbachev to consider major changes in the political system, ended late Friday after a majority of its 5,000 delegates approved the Soviet leader's reform programs of "glasnost," or openness, and "perestroika," or economic restructuring.

Among the exchanges that the Soviet public found most electrifying were the assault by conservative Yegor Ligachev on deposed Moscow party chief Boris Yeltsin, one delegate's demand for President Andrei Gromyko's resignation, and a posthumous attack on the late leader Konstantin Chernenko.

Tutu offers to mediate conflict

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Archbishop Desmond Tutu Sunday deplored a car-bomb attack that killed two people and injured 30 others outside a rugby stadium and offered to mediate between the white-led government and the outlawed African National Congress.

The Anglican archbishop made the offer less than 24 hours after an explosives-laden BMW blew up near a stadium as predominantly white spectators were leaving a rugby match.

Two people, both whites, were killed in the blast and five of 30 people injured remained in serious condition at Johannesburg Hospital.

In a statement from Cape Town, Tutu said a recent spate of bomb attacks has stricken South Africa and he offered to "whistle-blow" to bring the government, the ANC and the banned Pan-African Congress together to negotiate a power-sharing formula.

The BMW burst into flames in a massive explosion heard for miles. The force of the blast hurled debris hundreds of feet, overturned nearby vehicles and damaged buildings.

Arabs protest Israeli project

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Hundreds of Arabs rioted in the walled Old City, forcing Israeli authorities to temporarily suspend an archaeological dig near the Temple Mount, one of Islam's holiest shrines.

Moslems say they fear the Israelis were trying to dig a passageway to allow Orthodox Jews underneath the Temple Mount, where the Dome of the Rock and Al-Aqsa mosque stand.

But government officials said Sunday's dig to uncover a staircase leading to an ancient water tunnel was needed to complete archaeological work begun in the 19th century and would not interfere with the Moslem holy places.

Day of mourning declared for 290 killed in jet

Iran warns of retaliation against U.S.

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — Iran, warning of possible retaliation, declared a day of mourning today for 290 people killed in an Iran Air passenger jet shot down by a U.S. warship that mistook it for an Iranian fighter during a clash in the Strait of Hormuz.

Nearly 12 hours after the incident Sunday, the Pentagon announced the French-built Airbus A-300 was flying outside its "prescribed air corridor" when it was mistaken for a U.S.-built Iranian F-14 fighter by the cruiser USS Vincennes, which had been engaged in a clash with Iranian gunboats. The Vincennes, equipped with the sophisticated Aegis radar system, fired two Standard missiles at the jet.

It was the worst incident of its kind in aviation history and drew threats of retaliation from Iranian officials, who described the shooting as "barbaric."

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said all passengers and crew on Iran Air Flight 655 "were believed to be martyred" and Iranian Prime Minister Hussein Musavi declared today a nationwide day of mourning.

IRNA said today 150 bodies had been recovered from the waters where the airliner went down. The plane carried 290 people, including 274 passengers — 156 men, 52 women, 57 children between ages 2 and 12, and nine infants — and 16 crew members.

IRNA said the bodies of 38 foreigners were among those recovered from the 14 from the United Arab Emirates, eight Indians, eight Pakistanis, six Yugoslavs and one Italian. An Italian warship was aiding in the search for bodies and debris, the agency said. It said more non-Iranians were on the plane, but their bodies had not yet been recovered.

Two "Moslem combatants" — apparently Iranians from the one of the three gunboats hit by the U.S. warships in Sunday's clash — were rescued unharmed late Sunday, IRNA said.

The Pentagon said the Airbus ignored warnings over both military and civilian frequencies and that at least one of the missiles hit the jet at a distance of 6 miles from the ship, Iran said the jet was struck by two missiles.

Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati denounced the American naval presence in the strategic waterway and warned: "The U.S. is responsible for consequences of its barbaric massacre of innocent passengers," IRNA said.

He called for the United Nations to condemn the U.S. attack and to conduct an inquiry into the incident.

Site of Gulf action

Mahammad Jafar Mahallati, Iran's ambassador to United Nations, said the "incident definitely was premeditated" and warned that the United States should be on guard for retaliation.

President Reagan offered his condolences to the victims' families, but defended the incident as "a proper defensive action."

"This is a terrible human tragedy," Reagan said in a statement.

The airliner exploded 7,500 feet over the Strait of Hormuz at 2:52 a.m. EDT, seven minutes after takeoff from the Iranian city of Bandar Abbas, IRNA said. The jet was headed for Dubai in the United Arab Emirates across the strategic waterway on the western rim of the gulf.

The flight took it over the strait Sunday during the most extensive combat between U.S. and Iranian forces since April.

The Pentagon said U.S. warships sank two Iranian gunboats and damaged a third after an American helicopter was fired on. The combat erupted 42 minutes before the Iranian airliner went down, according to the Pentagon's account.

The decision to fire the missiles at the airliner on the assumption by the commander of the Vincennes that the plane was showing hostile intent underscored the dangers of the hair-trigger alert of U.S. naval forces in the gulf.

The Vincennes, a Ticonderoga class guided-missile cruiser believed to be the most advanced naval combat system afloat, arrived in the gulf on May 28 from its home port of San Diego.

The Navy adopted the tightrope alert posture after an Iraqi F-1 Mirage fired two missiles at the frigate Stark May 17, 1987, killing 37 sailors and wounding 21 others.

The downing of the Iran Air jet recalled the shooting down of Korean Air Lines Flight 007 by the Soviet Union over Sakhalin Island Sept. 1, 1983, killing 269 people, on a flight from New York to Seoul. The incident was condemned vehemently by President Reagan and members of his administration.

"It is our judgment, based on the information currently available, that local commanders had sufficient reason to believe their units were in jeopardy and they fired in self-defense," Adm. William Crowe, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told a Pentagon news conference in Washington.

"The suspect aircraft was outside the prescribed commercial air corridor," Crowe said. "More importantly, the aircraft headed directly for Vincennes on a constant bearing at high speed."

Iran denied the charge, with IRNA saying "Flight 655, which was shot down today morning by two missiles fired by the U.S. fleet, was flying exactly through the international air traffic corridor at the time of the attack."

IRNA quoted an official at the Bandar Abbas Airport as saying "at the time of the unmanly U.S. attack, no military aircraft was flying over the region."

Until Sunday, the KAL disaster was the deadliest downing of a civilian aircraft in a hostile military action.

U.S. responsibility for the destruction of the Airbus was certain to bring renewed questioning of U.S. policy in the gulf by Congress and critics of the American presence.

The gulf has been in turmoil since war erupted between Iran and Iraq in September 1980. The conflict spilled over into the waters of the gulf in 1984 with attacks on tanker traffic. The U.S. Navy built up its presence in the region a year ago to protect neutral tankers.

IRNA quoted an Iranian military official as saying the Airbus exploded "minutes after" Iranian patrol boats shot down a U.S. helicopter, when the jetliner "was observed over the scene of the clashes."

The Pentagon gave no indication that one of its helicopters was lost.

Iranian leader expected to ride anti-Americanism wave

By Lee Stobas
MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — The downing of an Iranian airliner by a U.S. warship came as Iran's leaders were inching toward better relations

States to prove his revolutionary credentials at a time of serious fighting among the ruling clergy and economic hardship caused by the nearly 8-year-old Persian Gulf war.

Rafsanjani's task has been made more difficult by a string of defeats Iraq has recently inflicted on Iran in the war.

Rafsanjani will most likely use the U.S. downing of the civilian airliner and Iranian clashes with U.S. forces in the gulf to bolster his position as the keeper of the faith by taking advantage of the renewed anti-Americanism that is bound to sweep Iran, a Western diplomat said.

"Rafsanjani thrives on confrontation with the Great Satan," the diplomat said using the phrase coined by Khomeini to describe the United States.

"The Iranians will play up the battles with the Americans as much as possible because this is a vote-winning exercise," the diplomat said.

"But the tragic crash of the passenger liner has given Rafsanjani a surprise propaganda gift."

with some Western nations amid persistent reports that Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini is dying.

But Sunday's tragic shooting down of Iran Air Flight 655 with 290 people aboard is bound to spark a new wave of virulent anti-Americanism and provide more grist for the propaganda mill of Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani, the power behind Khomeini.

Rafsanjani, the speaker of the Iranian parliament and the ayatollah's newly appointed military chief, has moved to the fore recently amid mounting reports that his main backer, Khomeini, 88, is dying of cancer.

Western diplomats believe Rafsanjani, although moving gingerly toward mending relations with other Western countries, needs "limited confrontation" with the United

4 killed, 25 wounded in Palestinian clash

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — At least four people were killed and 25 wounded today as rival wings of the Palestinian mainstream Fatah group fiercely fought for the control of an embattled south Beirut refugee camp, police and Palestinian sources said.

The fighting erupted at sunrise and continued for hours, pitting Fatah guerrillas of Palestine Liberation Organization Chairman Yasser Arafat against fighters of the Syrian-backed breakaway Fatah-Uprising group led by Said Mousa.

The Bourj Barajneh refugee camp was ravaged by machine-gun fire, rocket-propelled grenades and artillery exchanges.

A spokesman for the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine said the violence started when Mousa's rebels launched an offensive in an attempt to capture the shantytown, the largest of three Beirut refugee camps.

Bourj Barajneh, controlled by Arafat's followers, was pounded by heavy artillery from the rebel's positions around the camp, the spokesman said.

Quoting initial casualty reports from the camp, the spokesman said at least four people were killed and 25 wounded in the fighting, including 20 children and women.

"Most of the casualties were inflicted when an artillery shell smashed into a shelter where a number of women and children were hiding," the spokesman said.

More than 100 people have been killed and 300 wounded in the past two months in the inter-Palestinian feud for the control of Beirut's refugee camps.

The sound of rockets and mortars echoed throughout Beirut, and ambulances were blocked from evacuating the casualties by the intensity of the fighting.

Bourj Barajneh, which usually houses 12,000 refugees, is the last stronghold of the PLO leader's followers in Beirut. On June 27 Mousa's Fatah-Uprising guerrillas overran positions held by Fatah fighters in the nearby Shatila camp.

Arafat's guerrillas evacuated Shatila at the end of a 17-day battle that killed 60 persons. About 80 fighters and their families were driven to refugee camps in southern Lebanon.

A Palestinian source said following the fall of Shatila, the Syrian-backed faction had asked Arafat's people to leave Bourj Barajneh peacefully but they refused.

He said there are around 2,000 Fatah guerrillas in the camp. Several dissident officials called on Fatah's fighters in Bourj Barajneh to withdraw from the camp "before they are driven out by force," the source said.

The clashes today apparently followed failure of political contacts and Arab mediation to find a peaceful solution to the conflict at Bourj Barajneh, he said.

Today is special for many reasons

Today is a very special day for all Americans. Just a few years ago old-fashioned patriotism seemed to be an emotion of the past. The divisive years of the Vietnam War caused many to shun traditional elements of Americanism and, in too many instances, even turn their backs on what many consider the foundation of our way of life.

Fortunately patriotism has made a comeback. Flag waving is welcomed again and days such as Independence Day are celebrated by many in a very traditional manner. Bostonians will probably hear the Pops play the Overture 1812 with canons along the Charles, bandstands throughout Middle America will fill with citizen bands playing Yankee Doodle Dandy and fireworks will explode along with traditional watermelon feasts and barbecues throughout the South.

But the 4th of July should also be a time for reflection. The action taken by our forefathers in 1776 has required defense for more than two centuries. Men and women through those years have given their lives as sacrifice for the never-ending need to defeat tyrants who would suppress us or invade us who would enslave us.

The martyrs for our Republic made the supreme sacrifice, but countless others have responded to the nation's call in its hour of need, becoming citizen-soldiers in the tradition of the Minutemen of colonial times.

Because of the sacrifices of so many, we are able to celebrate our freedom still. Yet the responsibility continues that we preserve our freedoms for generations yet unborn. "Eternal vigilance is the price of freedom," is a truism which persists. Our nation has enemies in this world who seek to undermine our way of life, sap our strength and control our destiny.

On this very special day of Independence Day, let us all reaffirm our nation's mission while celebrating the holiday in our manner of choice.

Tragedy in gulf

The United States commitment to protect shipping in the Persian Gulf sent shock waves through Florida from the outset. The large number of U.S. Navy retirees in Seminole County and the Naval Training Center in Orange County, with many stationed there living in Seminole, produces a constant interest in affairs in that mid-east area. The tragedy of the downing of an Iranian passenger jet with 290 aboard will affect all in varying degrees.

The commander of the U.S.S. Stark heeded due to reportedly malfunctioning equipment in the face of a missile attack and 39 sailors paid with their lives. The commander of the U.S.S. Vincennes did not hesitate and 290 people paid with their lives. Decision-making time in these instances is calculated in seconds.

This incident is the most recent, but not the last of tragic events in which lives are lost in pursuit of the illusive goal of freedom for people in an area of the world whose history is replete with periods of subjugation and warfare.

Politicians will use the tragedy for a series of self-serving words and handwringing. Apologies and words of sympathy will be extended by our nation. But the price of freedom is high and the chances of any resolution of the strife in the gulf anytime soon is remote.

AIDS adds powerful piece to moral equation

BOSTON — There is a moment in any heated debate about AIDS when someone inevitably says, with deep conviction, "We can't afford any longer to be moralists." The overriding terror of this epidemic, they will suggest, wipes the slate clean of moral issues. We must all become pragmatists.

It isn't quite true, of course. AIDS doesn't eliminate moral questions. Rather it adds a new and powerful piece to the moral equation. Even the people who insist on pragmatism actually make their pitch on moral grounds: "How will we explain our actions and inactions if the death mount?"

One by one, AIDS is uprooting some of the most fixed moral positions. In Washington this week, President Reagan took the first few steps in an unexpected direction—toward the AIDS Commission's support of anti-discrimination laws for the disabled. In Minnesota, Catholic bishops reaffirmed the promise not to oppose programs that give out condom information for AIDS prevention.

And in a dozen or more cities from New York to San Francisco, people deeply concerned about drugs are nevertheless wrestling with the question of whether to give clean needles to addicts. Which is worse: to take part in the drug culture or to withhold some tool, any tool, that just might slow the spread of AIDS?

In some ways, this last dilemma is most unsettling and uncertain. In Portland, a needle-exchange trial program is about to begin. In Boston, such a program was just rejected by the state legislature. In New York, San Francisco, New Haven, the issue is in various stages of consideration.

The arguments for needle-swapping programs are compelling. AIDS is spreading faster among IV drug users sharing needles. These drug users are a direct route into the "general" community, through the partners they have sex with, and the children they conceive. The mayor of Boston, Ray Flynn, arguing for the needle-swap program, rested his case on the fact that 18 out of every 1,000 babies born in Boston inherit the virus.

The arguments against dispensing needles are compelling as well. Drugs, after all, are destructive. The messages exchanged with needles would be, at best, mixed. One arm of government abhors drugs, while another distributes their sterile paraphernalia. There may even be a more subtle message delivered with the syringe: You may destroy yourself, destroy your community, as long as you don't infect "us."

It's hard enough for moralists. But not even a pragmatist's yardstick can measure this issue precisely. The programs already in effect in other countries, other cultures, don't give clear direction signals.

The initial evidence from Europe is that needle-exchange programs don't increase drug use. People don't start shooting up because they get a free needle. In some places, these needle exchanges even draw addicts into treatment.

Yet the same evidence disputes how effective these programs are in controlling AIDS infection. In one London study, only 27 percent of the addicts stopped sharing equipment, while 10 percent actually started. In Amsterdam, after three years of exchanges, addicts do share less. But they are getting infected with AIDS at the same rate.

ROBERT WALTERS

Ethical lapses must end

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Beset by allegations of ethical lapses, Rep. James C. Wright Jr., D-Texas, has a unique opportunity to partially rehabilitate his reputation while simultaneously enhancing standards of conduct in the House.

Wright could exercise his power as speaker in a cautious fashion by convincing his colleagues to end the widespread abuses in their collection of honoraria from special interest groups.

Any reasonable initiative Wright advances has a better-than-average chance of being adopted by the House because, as speaker, he is the chamber's leader.

The 17-term Capitol Hill veteran currently is the subject of an official investigation into charges that he used his position as a senior member of the House to enrich himself as well as various friends and business partners in Texas.

The honoraria, which supplement the legislators' $89,500 annual salaries, are limited in both the House and Senate to $2,000 on any single occasion. Both chambers also place caps on the total any member can accumulate in a year.

In the House, that ceiling is 30 percent of the base salary, or $26,850. In the Senate, the maximum is 40 percent of the salary or $35,800.

Notwithstanding those limitations, vast amounts of money change hands in honorarium transactions. Common Cause reports that last year representatives collected $6.5 million and kept $5 million, while senators received $3 million and retained $2.2 million.

"Honorariums are now a multi-million-dollar business on Capitol Hill, a business which allows special interest groups to put money directly into the pockets of members of Congress," says Common Cause President Fred Wertheimer.

In earlier years, lawmakers were required to perform at least a modest amount of work to justify receipt of an honorarium — typically to write and deliver a speech.

Then, the solons were relieved of the writing task by some cynical interest groups. They could earn $2,000 by merely reading a few pages of text prepared by the sponsoring organization at an intimate lunch.

In recent years, honoraria have been awarded to members of Congress who engaged in such thoroughly passive tasks as making plant tours and attending breakfast and luncheon briefings.

Consultants know procurement ropes

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta
WASHINGTON — No sooner had the Pentagon procurement scandal hit the headlines than the politicians in charge began issuing disclaimers. Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci spread the word that he had not been told about the FBI investigation until hours before the lid blew off. And the White House press office assured reporters that President Reagan, as usual, had been kept in the dark.

The claim of ignorance is the standard stratagem of most high officials when a scandal breaks. Whatever the alleged crime, if it was committed at all, expendable subordinates did it while their unknowing superiors were attending to more important responsibilities.

Yet the highest officials certainly should have known about the illicit leaks to defense contractors. Pentagon sources say ex-Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger was alerted that classified contract information was leaking out of the Navy secre-

This is a column about ethnicity. True to my own ethnic heritage I offer hoary advice: Keep your eye on the bagel, not on the hole.

There has been much attention paid to the ethnic/racial importance of Jesse Jackson's candidacy. He is the first black to be a serious presidential player in 100 years, like the substance of Jackson's politics, but no one can take anything away from his dynamic candidacy, and its symbolic and positive contribution to American democracy.

The attention paid to Jackson's achievement, however, has tended to downplay something else that is at work, and quite remarkable.

Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts will be the Democratic nominee for president this year. Right now he is solidly ahead of George Bush in the polls. His parents were Greek immigrants. If elected president, he'll be the first "ethnic American" to live in the White House, at least by my definition.

I offer my own definition because experts have not been able to agree on one. In fact, the "Harvard Encyclopedia of American Ethnic Groups" offers 14 different criteria that may define ethnicity, including "geographical origin," "language or dialect," "food preferences" and "shared traditions, values and symbols."

Of course, one can make the case that all Americans except native American Indians are ethnic. But that makes "ethnic" a near-meaningless word. It's not in the everyday political argot. It has real meaning.

So look at it my way: The early settlers in America were people from northwestern Europe — England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland, Holland, Germany. I declare all the rest as "ethnics," including blacks, who also came here early, but typically in slavery, and many of whom fill in the ethnic blank on census forms as "Afro-American." By such a reasonable definition, John Kennedy, of Irish descent, would not qualify as ethnic. In any event, both of his parents and all four of his grandparents were born in America.

Michael Dukakis is a genuine ethnic.

Just a year or so ago it was said that many voters, particularly in the South, wouldn't vote for a man named "Dukakis." Well, well, Tody Dukakis is leading Bush in the polls in some Southern states.

Newman's big moment

By Arnold Sawinich
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bud Newman, an esteemed colleague, was a happy man last week. After months of isolation and scorn, like the Ugly Duckling discovering he was a swan, Bud met one of his own.

Bud is UPI's 1988 delegate counter. Since last winter, he has spent all of his days and many nights poring over primary and caucus returns, translating the numbers into delegates for the Democrats and Republicans seeking the presidential nominations.

When he wasn't reading numbers, Bud was making hundreds of phone calls to politicians seeking snippets of information about who was going to vote for whom at the national conventions.

By the time it was finally declared that George Bush and Michael Dukakis had the votes to win the Republican and Democratic nominations, Bud was bleary of eye, hoarse of voice, puffy of ear and sore of finger.

His work was appreciated, but no one really wanted to talk shop with Bud — to discuss the intricate web of rules and laws that govern delegate selection.

As one who counted delegates before him, I can testify it is a dreary life, enlivened only by such parochial excitements as discovery of an uncommitted delegate who tells you first that he has decided on a candidate, feary reaching the North Pole or Edison finding the right filament for the light bulb knew no greater exultation.

So Bud was elated when he finally met his Associated Press opposite number and spent an hour trading war stories. It must have been like the reunion of the American and Russian GIs who had joined hands at the Oder River in World War II.

But Bud and his new friend may have become carried away. They agreed to try to hold a delegate counter's dinner at the Democratic convention later this month in Atlanta, inviting the half dozen or so other men and women who pursued the same specialty for news organizations.

The ways of Washington are such that a simple agreement to "stay in touch" after the election year could lead to the institutionalization of delegate counting.

That would require a mailing list, which would require employment of a secretary, who shortly would become an executive director, who would need an office in which to produce a newsletter and to plan an annual convention. At the convention, someone would suggest the organization have a name — perhaps the National Association of Professional Delegate Counters — bylaws and dues.

Before long, the association would start talking about establishing professional standards for delegate counters, perhaps even a licensing requirement.

Someone would want to enlist delegate counters for state political conventions as associate members and someone else would call for establishment of a National Center for the Study of Delegate Counting, complete with a platoon of interns and fellows.

Finally, someone would say what the delegate counters need to house all this activity is their own building in Washington, with space for a National Delegate Counters Club where lunch and a cool drink would be available.

Thus my advice to Bud and his new friend is, "Have your little meeting, tip a few jars, tell a few lies and say goodbye. All other roads lead to big bar bills and heavy mortgages."

his way around the Pentagon maze can be subject to the most enticing temptations. Let's profile a typical, composite procurement officer.

Under the generous military retirement system, he is eligible to retire early, with a fat government pension. He can gild his monthly retirement check by going into business as a defense consultant. Both before and after retirement, golden carrots are dangled in front of him.

While he is still working for the taxpayers in military procurement, he has incentives to be helpful to the contractors, whom he will later solicit as clients. When he leaves the Pentagon, he is tempted to take with him information that will tantalize potential clients.

He will also try to leave behind a network of buddies who will continue to furnish him with inside information. Naturally, he is eager to reward the buddies who are doing favors for him. It may start off innocently enough, as an exchange of acceptable favors. But the competition for fat defense contracts is so intense that he starts giving expensive gifts in exchange for information.

Our sources say that the Pentagon has referred hundreds of cases to the Justice Department for possible criminal prosecution during the past four years. At least two dozen of them involved bribery.

Footnote: Many Pentagon officials set up shop as "specialists" after they retire and continue to work for the Pentagon — except they collect fatter salaries. They are awarded consulting contracts to do the work that the Pentagon's own employees could, and should, be doing. More than half of all Defense Department consulting contracts, our sources say, go to companies that employ or were formed by former military officials. And more than half of all contracts are renewed repeatedly — a circumstance referred to by insiders as the from-here-to-eternity gravy train.

Santana stops Curry in Jr. middle bout

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — North American Boxing Federation welterweight champion Luis Santana of Hawthorne, Calif., stopped Graylin Curry of Fort Worth, Texas, Saturday night in a scheduled 10-round junior middleweight bout.

An exhausted and cut Curry, appearing in only his second fight in five years, told referee Richard Steele he was quitting while sitting on a stool in his corner before the start of the fifth round.

Santana led by two points on two of the judges scorecards and by one point on the other judge's card through four rounds.

There were no knockdowns in the one-sided bout between the 151-pound boxers but Santana, 34-8-1 with 29 knockouts, cut Curry over the left eye in the second round. Curry, jarred by body shots, was visibly tired and slowed by the third round.

Curry, the brother of former world champion Donald and Bruce Curry, fell to 11-4 with seven knockouts.

Prost takes French, now has 32 prix wins

PARIS (UPI) — Alain Prost defeated McLaren teammate Ayrton Senna by 32 seconds after a race-long battle for the lead to capture the French Grand Prix Sunday and increase to 32 the Frenchman's record total of Formula One victories.

Prost, who scored his first Formula One victory at the French Grand Prix of 1981, won for the fourth time this season. Senna, of Brazil, had captured the other three races of 1988. A one-two finish Sunday by the McLarens was the fifth in the seven events this year.

U.S. tops Japan, wins best of five series

TOKYO (UPI) — Bret Barberie smashed a three-run homer and Ty Griffin went 4 for 4 with a solo homer and two doubles, powering the United States to a 6-4 victory over Japan.

Japan had already won the title of the U.S.-Japan Collegiate Baseball Championships with three victories in the best-of-five series.

Michigan left-hander Jim Abbott relieved starter Ken McDonald of Louisiana State in the fifth inning and earned the victory with hitless relief. Abbott was named the series' outstanding pitcher. Japanese pitcher Minoru Kasai of Hosei University was selected most valuable player.

Barberie, a USC second baseman, capped a four-run first inning with his homer. Georgia Tech's Griffin drove in two runs.

Graf takes Wimbledon, 1 more for slam

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — A joyous loft of her winning racket into the Center Court stands signalled Steffi Graf's successful completion of three of the four steps on the road to a 1988 Grand Slam.

Only moments after the 19-year-old world No. 1 completed her 5-7, 6-2, 6-1 Wimbledon demolition of Martina Navratilova, the racket that powered the West German to victory Saturday ended up as someone's priceless souvenir.

"I thought about throwing it after I won on first match point," Graf said after the one-sided victory which virtually completes the transfer of power to her from Navratilova in the women's game. "But I waited, then did it before I left the court."

Graf lacks only a victory at the U.S. Open in September to become the first woman in 18 years — and third in history — to complete the Slam — victories in the same calendar year at the Australian, French and U.S. Opens, plus Wimbledon. Navratilova pulled off a modified, non-calendar version of the feat in 1983-84 and earned a $1 million bonus from the International Tennis Federation.

Australian Margaret Court won the last true women's Grand Slam in 1970.

"Everybody's talking about the Slam," Graf said. "But I won't change anything I've been doing. I will concentrate on each individual tournament. I won't worry about the record when I play in Flushing Meadow (U.S. Open)."

As the enormity of her Wimbledon triumph began to sink in, Graf compared winning to a dream.

"It was just like I thought it would be — no, it was better," she said. "I remember the match point and taking the trophy and holding it up for the people. I'm very happy. I can tell you."

Navratilova missed her golden chance and a place in history. She had been aiming for a record of nine Wimbledon singles victories. The Czechoslovakian-born American shares the mark of eight with 1920s player Helen Wills Moody.

But the disappointed defending champion was gracious in defeat.

"Steffi's better than a year ago, she's improved her backhand return and looked for opportunities to come in," Navratilova said. "Steffi's No. 1."

While realizing that her lucrative run at the summit of the game is likely nearing an end, Navratilova said she won't give up the fight.

"In New York, my motivation will be to win the Open, not to stop Steffi from taking the Slam," she said. "Should she win it, I'll be the first to say 'great job'."

As she soaked up the victory, Graf had a thought for Navratilova.

"Losing is a sad thing for her. She certainly felt she could win it," Graf said. "This is her special tournament, she's won it so many times."

RAIN STOPS MENS PLAY

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Three-time champion Boris Becker and first-time finalist Stefan Edberg return to Wimbledon's center court today, to finish off what rain interrupted.

A day of pelting rain and cool wind kept the two men's singles finalists off the court most of Sunday, and they squeezed in just five games before rain again forced them off.

Despite the rain, 21,559 people attended Wimbledon Sunday.

After patiently waiting through a couple of false starts, when the court covers were removed and then replaced, the 14,000-strong center court crowd was treated to a brilliant display by Edberg, who attacked from the first rally.

He ran out a 3-0 lead before Becker held his own service for 3-1 and broke back to love in the fifth game to go off the court with only a 3-2 disadvantage.

Becker and Edberg will be the first men's finalists to play in the third week of the tournament since 1922, when The All England Championships moved to its present site. Ominously, it took until Wednesday to complete the final that year.

The last major Wimbledon final contested on a Monday was the 1963 women's singles final between Australian Margaret Court and American Billie Jean King.

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) — Parry Mote finished 36th in the Firecracker, four laps down, in her first Winston Cup race at Daytona International Speedway. She completed last year in a Winston Cup race at Watkins Glen, N.Y.

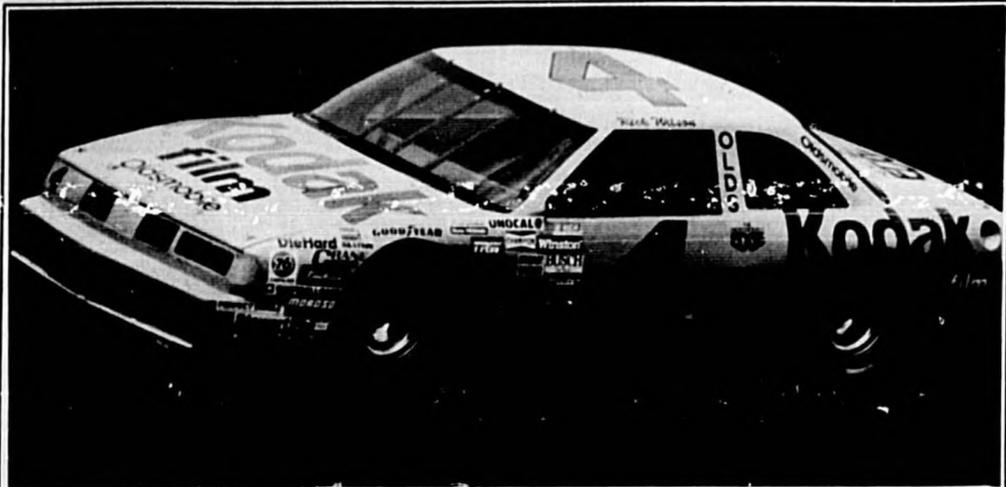

Though her Buick was not competitive, she avoided trouble and was running at the finish.

"I sure feels good to finish a Winston Cup race at Daytona," Mote said. "I had a good time, missed all the accidents, and hardly had any marks on the car."

Rusty Wallace finished 17th in the Firecracker 400 Saturday to claim the $100,000 bonus given to the leader in the Winston Cup point standings at the halfway point of the season.

Wallace, 31, has 2,272 points after 11 of the 79 races, and leads Dale Earnhardt by 87 points. Earnhardt, winner of the last two driving championships, won a $100,000 bonus. In all, $100,000 was divided among the top 18 drivers.

Wallace also collected $100 from Earnhardt. The two had bet on who would lead the point standings after the Firecracker. Bill Elliott is third, 97 points behind Wallace, followed by Terry Labonte, Ken Schrader, Phil Parsons, C. W. Smiley, Darrell Waltrip, Sterling Martin and Bobby Hill.

Rick Wilson drove to a near victory in Saturday's Firecracker 400, but lost to Bill Elliott by a scant 18 inches.

Elliott nips Wilson on last lap

'Awesome Bill' wins Firecracker despite starting 38th

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) — All Bill Elliott needed to overcome the restrictor plate blues was a push from competitor Rick Wilson.

Elliott, whose 1987 lap of 210.364 mph is a qualifying record at Daytona International Speedway, had been no factor at the track in 1988 because of the new restrictor plate rule instituted by NASCAR. The rule mandated a restrictor plate be placed over the carburetor opening, reducing the power of the engines.

Elliott had been unable to figure out how to overcome the plate in his Ford Thunderbird until Saturday's Firecracker 400. In that race, despite starting 38th in a 42-car field with a qualifying speed nearly 10 mph slower than polewinner Darrell Waltrip, Elliott slowly worked his way to the front and took the lead with 23 laps remaining.

He then held off Wilson in a thrilling last-lap battle to win the first Firecracker of his career, and put his third 1988 victory, most of any stock-car driver. Wilson finished second in an

FIRECRACKER 400

Oldsmobile, followed by Phil Parsons, Dale Earnhardt, and Waltrip. Elliott's 38th starting position is the farthest back for any Firecracker winner.

"Me and the No. 4 car (Wilson) worked well together," Elliott, 32, said. "We had turned in some good times in (Friday's) practice and any time he was behind me, we ran well together. If I got around somebody and he didn't, I'd wait until he got around, and then we stayed together."

That explains why, for a 15-lap period in the middle of the race, Wilson, then the leader, was content to follow Elliott instead of moving around him and placing him a lap down.

"Rick and I ran 15 laps or so when he was right on my bumper and leading the race," Elliott said. "He was close to lapping me, but we ran so good together; we were picking off cars just as quick as we could catch them."

Neither driver could explain what made the two cars so compatible. The trailing car uses the lead car to cut wind resistance, while the trailing car reduces the amount of wind flow pushing down on the lead car's rear end. But the combination of the Elliott and Wilson cars proved unbeatable.

"He'd have never made it to second without me, and I never would have made it to the lead by no means without him," Elliott said.

After the race, Elliott called his win a "miracle." But after taking the lead, his experience played a large role in edging Wilson, a non-winner on the Winston Cup circuit.

LPGA: Little edges Davies on final hole

COQUITLAM, British Columbia (UPI) — Sally Little rolled in a pressure-filled 20-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole Sunday to edge Britain's Laura Davies by one stroke to claim the $500,000 du Maurier Classic golf tournament.

"I feel that I've had an incredible six years of hardship," said Little after the tournament, considered one of golf's four majors.

"When that putt went in, the six years of frustration left me. I really didn't know where I was. I had no control I was so excited. I feel like I've started my career over again."

Little, the LPGA's 15th leading career money winner with 35 titles, had not won since July 18, 1982 when she captured the $30,000 first prize in the Mayflower Classic and finished third overall on the tour.

The next year, the South African native's career was bunkered by abdominal and arthroscopic knee surgery and she was able to compete in only nine tour events, finishing 139th on the money winning list. From there, she slowly regained her form.

"The putter had let me down for four or five years but my 65 on Friday was the round that set me up and made me believe that I could do it," Little said.

It was the putter that won it for her on 17 and 18.

"That pressure six footer for par on 17 finally settled me down," Little said. "It went in dead solid and I went to 18 with all the confidence in the world."

"When Laura (Davies) chipped to two feet on 18 from the bunker I said to myself 'If you ever want to win, it's now.' I didn't want to go into a playoff with Laura. I knew that."

In the final round Little dropped three birdies and had bogeys on the 14th and 16th holes for her 71 while Davies combined three birdies and a bogey in her final round 70 to take home the $46,250 second-place purse.

Although Little led the du Maurier since Friday's second-

1 for 1, Benepe wins Western

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Jim Benepe World Golf Tour has come to the United States, possibly for good.

Benepe, a 24-year-old from Sheridan, Wyo., played in his first American PGA tour event this weekend and won it, beating Peter Jacobsen by one stroke to take the 85th Western Open title. Benepe entered the tournament thanks to a sponsor's exemption he received because he was a recent graduate of nearby Northwestern University.

"I want to thank the WGA (Western Golf Association) for inviting me," Benepe said after accepting his $162,000 check. "I'm overwhelmed. It's just starting to sink in. I was planning to play in Europe later this year so I had nothing to lose."

Benepe planned to move to Europe this summer, after playing on the Asian tour in early 1987, the Canadian tour last summer, the Australian tour last winter, and the New Zealand tour early this winter.

He won the British Columbia Open in August of 1987 and then took home $100,000 in the Victorian Open earlier this year. His plan to play in Europe has been changed now that he has an exemption in all four events.

GOLF

which he received by winning the Western.

"I'm looking forward to playing the tour the rest of the year," he said. "I was planning on going to tour school and now I don't have to do that. I'm going to have to make some decisions."

Tour officials were unable to determine immediately whether any golfer had ever won his first PGA tour event. Ben Crenshaw won his first tournament as a professional but had played in other events as an amateur.

Scott Verplank won the 1985 Western Open to become the first amateur in 31 years to win a PGA event.

Benepe shot a 5-under-par 139 through the first two days and had a 69 Saturday to move to within four strokes of Jacobsen going into the final round.

On Sunday, a quick look at the scoreboard halfway through the final round showed Benepe, Dan Foran and Jacobsen in a battle for the lead. Foran and Jacobsen in a battle for the lead. Foran and Jacobsen in a battle for the lead.

He won the British Columbia Open in August of 1987 and then took home $100,000 in the Victorian Open earlier this year. His plan to play in Europe has been changed now that he has an exemption in all four events.

"I sat here yesterday (Saturday) and told you I misclubbed and I will tell you the same thing today," Jacobsen said. "I felt a 6-iron was the right club. It carried over everything and when you do that it's an automatic 6 (bogey)."

Kookaburra wins 12-meter title

LULEA, Sweden (UPI) — When the America's Cup ended off the coast of Australia in 1987, 12-meter yacht racing rode a wave of popularity that in just a year and a half, seems to have crested — and perhaps crashed.

That is the consensus among the yachting officials and participants who gathered for the 1984 world 12-meter sailing championships, won by Australia's Kookaburra III.

Of course, the fuzzy future of 12-meter yacht racing is a direct result of the unenforced legal twists and turns of the America's Cup. When New Zealand's yachting mogul Michael Fay won the right to challenge the America's Cup in the America's Cup, he can use the money it would take to host this event to build whatever boat that will be in it.

In terms of the 137-year-old America's Cup, 12-meter boats have a short history. Not until 1958 were they adopted for the race. Some say the 12-meter boat is outdated and the current crossroads is a good time to turn to a more modern boat.

A key spokesman in that crowd is Australian boat designer and sailor, Iain Murray. "People think that the 12-meter is the premier design combining all the advancements of technology," said Murray, who designed Australia's America's Cup defender in 1987 and this year's world champion, "But it isn't. It is actually very inefficient, especially the design and mast."

Murray has proposed to the international 12-meter Association the adoption of a new boat he has called a 28-meter as an alternative to the 12-meter. The proposal is being studied by the association's technical committee.

"It is basically bigger, faster and more difficult to sail," Murray said. "I tried to achieve a boat that has the best in sail, keel, materials design and mast."

Murray said his 28-meter model would be just as exciting in a match race as a 12-meter, which is so big and slow it makes for good spectator sport since no boat can get too much further ahead of the other.

One thing is certain, no matter what happens with the 12-meter, few people want to see it surpassed by the 90-foot monohull boat Fay has introduced.

"That certainly isn't the answer," Murray said.

Olympic doctor used banned drugs

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A doctor who monitors drug testing of athletes for the U.S. Olympic Committee once was disciplined by a medical licensing board for using and selling drugs banned in the Olympics.

The Pittsburgh Press reported Sunday.

Dr. William Taylor, 35, of Gulf Breeze, is described as an expert on anabolic steroids and growth hormones. The Press reported, Taylor is a volunteer Olympics crew chief, and has supervised the collection and shipment of urine samples that are tested for banned drugs, the paper said.

Taylor also has testified as an expert witness and lectured nationally on steroid abuse, the Press said.

Dr. Robert Voy, director of sports medicine and science for the USOC, said he had known

OLYMPICS

Florida officials had disciplined Taylor when Voy asked Taylor to be an Olympic crew chief in 1986, the paper said.

Taylor, a pioneer in alerting doctors to the dangers of steroids and said the doctor is reformed.

"As long as he is willing to speak out against drugs to the youth of America and particularly to the athletes, there is no reason in my mind that he shouldn't be part of the program here," Voy said.

"As long as he is not using drugs and is still a proponent of the anti-doping position, he is perfectly capable of drug testing and probably better qualified for what we want to accomplish, and that is the educational aspect,"

Graham triumphs at Gold Rush

RANCHO MURIETA, Calif. (UPI) — Lou Graham overcame strong winds Sunday to shoot a 4-under-par 68 and move into a two-stroke lead after 36 holes of the $350,000 Senior Gold Rush.

Graham, a rookie on the PGA Senior tour, totaled 8-under-par 136, two strokes better than Bob Charles and three strokes better than Miller Barber. Gary Player and Dave Hill.

"The winds were blowing hard and the greens were playing hard," said Graham, who turned 50 in January. "I wasn't swinging at the ball well. I was guessing a lot out there. It was not a scientific game today."

Graham, winner of the 1975 U.S. Open, held a three-stroke lead over Barber after 18 holes of the second round. Graham hit out bounds by one foot on the par-4 17th and settled for a double-bogey. Barber, playing in the same threesome, suffered a similar fate and also tallied a double bogey.

"I was very uncertain on the 17th hole," said Graham, who underwent shoulder surgery last October. "I hit a very poor shot."

Charles parred the final four holes en route to his second straight 69.

First-round leader Peter Thomson fashioned a five-bogey round into a 2-over-par 74 and Sunday, playing in the same foursome as the winner, Davies surged on the back nine scoring birdies on 10 and 11 to move within one stroke but a bogey on 12 moved her to two back.

OLYMPICS

Little then lost strokes to par on 14 and 16 to drop back into a tie with Davies. It was a two-woman race on the final two holes when Little's putter came to life and she knocked home the $75,000 winner.

The prize money upped her season's total to $105,115 and gives her an exemption for the U.S. Women's Open in two weeks time.

"I love majors so I'm really looking forward to the US Open."

Sherril Turner, who was tied with Davies in second place after Saturday, shot a final round 72 to finish with a 282 total and for third and $33,750.

It was a tough weekend of golf for Nancy Lopez, the tour's leading money winner. She shot a final round 76 Sunday to finish tied for 45th at 298, her worst four-round total this year.

Canseco, McGwire lift A's over Jays

United Press International
Three home runs in 16 games would be a good pace for most major-league sluggers. Jose Canseco of Oakland Sunday compiled a long-ball hat trick in only 16 innings.

Canseco hit three home runs and Mark McGwire launched a homer in the 16th inning to lift the Athletics to a 9-8 victory over Toronto in the longest American League game this season.

The contest was the longest ever (by innings) at Toronto's Exhibition Stadium, and lasted just over five hours. The A's have played at least 13 innings six times this season, have won four straight, swept the three-game series and are 8-0 against Toronto this year.

"It seemed like a four-game series," Oakland Manager Tony La Russa said. "I'm pleased with the sweep, but it's not going to happen too often against this club."

Canseco, who leads the majors with 23 homers, cracked a two-run homer in the first, a leadoff blast in the sixth and a two-run shot in the 12th for his first career three-homer game.

"Two of the shots were high and inside pitches," Canseco said. "I've got a quick bat for a big man and I was able to list them out. I don't know if those balls are out in another park."

Canseco, who had a career-high six RBIs, accomplished the second three-homer game in the majors this season. Toronto's George Bell hit three homers on opening day. The last Oakland player to hit three homers in a game was McGwire on June 27, 1987 at Cleveland.

McGwire lashed a 1-2 pitch from John Cerutti 4-5, with one out in the 16th for his 14th homer of the season.

Todd Burns, who worked out of a bases-loaded, one-out jam in the 15th, pitched 4 2-3 innings to win his first career decision.

Tom Henke hit Don Baylor with a pitch to lead off the 12th. Baylor increased his career major-league record for being hit by a pitch to 260. Piteer Gene Nelson pinch ran and stole second before Canseco homered.

Nelson's steal, according to the Elias Sports Bureau, is the first by an AL pitcher since the inception of the designated hitter in 1973.

Angels 10, Tigers 4

At Detroit, Chili Davis hit a three-run homer in the third and added an RBI double in the fourth to spark California. Winner Kirk McCaskill, 5-5, allowed eight hits and only two unearned runs over 7 1-3 innings. Bob Boone's third home run of the year broke a 1-1 second-inning tie against Jack Morris, 7-9.

Mariners 7, Indians 6

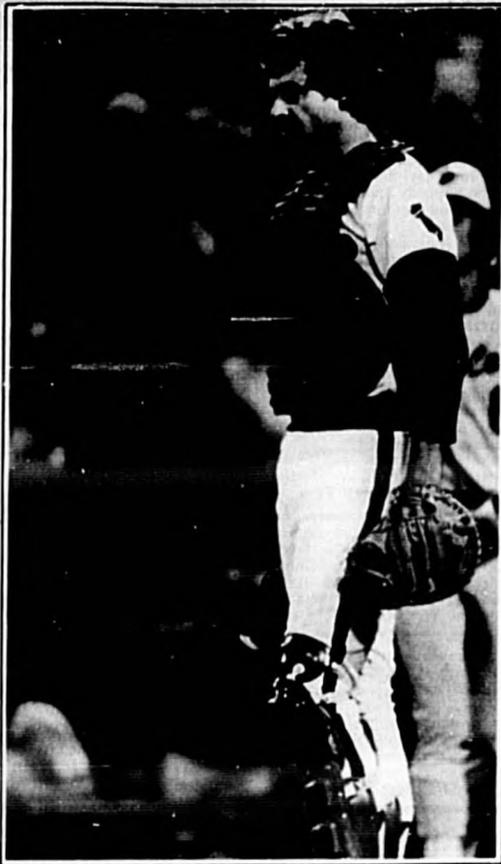

At Cleveland, rookie Mario Diaz drove in three runs to lead Seattle. Diaz, recalled from AAA Calgary Friday, went 7 for 11 with six RBIs in the three-game series. Scott Bankhead, 3-3, gave up four runs in six innings. Mike Schooler worked 1 2-3 innings for his third save. Jon Perlman, 0-2, was the loser.

Brewers 4, Twins 3

At Milwaukee, Jeff Reardon walked Dale Sveum with the bases loaded in the eighth to force in the winning run. The Brewers trailed 3-2 but rallied off Keith Atherton, 5-3, and Reardon on an RBI double by Isaryl Hamilton. Bill Wegman, 7-6, was the winner and Dan Plesac earned his 17th save.

Royals 3, Red Sox 2

At Kansas City, Mo., Willie Wilson singled in Bill Pecota with two out in the eighth, lifting the Royals. Kansas City has won four straight and Steve Farr saved each one for a total of eight this season. Jeff Montgomery, 2-1, won in relief.

Bob Boone, California's catcher, clubbed a home run Sunday to help lead the Angels to a 10-7 victory over the Tigers.

The loss went to Lee Smith, 2-3

Rangers 13, Orioles 1

At Arlington, Texas, Bob Brower clubbed a grand slam and contributed six RBIs and Jose Guzman yielded five hits over eight innings to carry the Rangers. Guzman, 8-6, walked two and struck out four. Baltimore starter Jeff Ballard, 4-5, lasted just 1 1-3 innings, permitting six hits and five runs.

White Sox 4, Yankees 3

At Chicago, Dan Pasqua hit a two-run homer with one out in the 10th to rally the White Sox. Pasqua's ninth homer came off Cecilio Guante, 4-5. Jeff Bittiger, 1-2, won in relief. Dave Winfield delivered a game-tying single in the eighth and a go-ahead single in the 10th for the Yankees.

Brunansky rallies Cards over Padres

United Press International
Tom Brunansky had belted four home runs against the San Diego Padres this season. The St. Louis slugger added another Sunday.

Brunansky smashed his 11th home run with two outs in the ninth inning to rally the Cardinals to a 5-4 victory over the Padres.

"It was a fastball, everything today was a fastball," Brunansky said. "They had been getting me out with it the whole series. I was getting some good pitches to hit but I was coming up short."

Brunansky had been pounding curveballs from Padres pitchers out of the ballpark this season so the San Diego staff tried a new strategy.

"I was trying to jam him, trying to make him pop up or just throw one by him," said losing pitcher Lance McCullers, 1-5, who threw a 1-2 fastball. "Every other home run he's hit (against us) was on a breaking ball."

With one out in the ninth, Ozzie Smith singled off McCullers. Willie McGee struck out before Brunansky drove his homer into the left field seats.

Brunansky spoiled Garry Templeton's bid to beat his former team for the second straight game. Templeton, whose late-inning homer Saturday night helped the Padres down the Cardinals, hit a two-out, two-run homer in the eighth inning to give the Padres a 4-3 lead.

Todd Worrell, 4-4, earned the victory despite yielding Templeton's homer.

"As frustrating as my performance was, the bottom line is we need to win ballgames," Worrell said. "Usually when we end up making a bad pitch like I did, we wind up losing. But the way we came back was a confidence booster."

"Both clubs battled back in the last two innings," said San Diego Manager Jack McKeon, "but they won out in the battle of home runs. He (McCullers) was trying to get the ball in but didn't get in in far enough."

The Cardinals grabbed a 2-0 lead in the first against Ed Whitson on an RBI double by McGee and a run-scoring single by Terry Pendleton.

The Padres scored in the second on Randy Ready's RBI single. The Cardinals made it 3-1 in the third on Curt Ford's RBI single. San Diego closed to 3-2 in the fourth on Ready's sacrifice fly. Elsewhere, Cincinnati nipped Philadelphia 3-2. New York blanked Houston 5-0. Montreal bombed Atlanta 9-2. San Francisco shut out Pittsburgh 4-0 and Chicago edged Los Angeles 2-1.

In the American League, it was Seattle 7, Cleveland 6; California 10, Detroit 4; Chicago 4, New York 3 in 10 innings; Milwaukee 4, Minnesota 3; Kansas City 3, Boston 2; Texas 13, Baltimore 1 and Oakland 9, Toronto 8 in 16 innings.

Reds 3, Phillies 2

At Philadelphia, Eric Davis doubled in the tie-breaking run and Danny Jackson pitched a three-hitter. Jackson, 9-4, who has three complete-game triumphs against the Phillies this season, struck out seven and walked two in his seventh complete game of the season. Kevin Gross fell to 8-4.

Mets 5, Astros 0

At New York, Sid Fernandez fired a two-hitter, singled home a run and scored another to lift the first-place Mets. Fernandez, 5-6, did not allow a hit after the third inning and struck out 12. Fernandez helped himself by singling home Mackey Sasser in the sixth inning off starter Nolan Ryan, 5-7.

Expos 9, Braves 2

At Montreal, Mike Fitzgerald, who returned from the minor leagues two days ago, highlighted a six-run third inning with a three-run double. Montreal starter John Dapson, 2-5, surrendered 15 hits, walked one and struck out three. German Jimenez, 0-2, was the loser.

Giants 4, Pirates 0

At San Francisco, Kelly Downs fired a three-hitter and Kevin Mitchell drove in three runs to help blank Pittsburgh. Downs, 7-7, walked two and struck out four in his fourth complete game and third shutout of the season. Pirates starter Mike Dunne dropped to 5-7.

Cubs 2, Dodgers 1

At Los Angeles, Rick Sutcliffe allowed six hits and struck out nine over 7 1-3 innings and rookie Mark Grace lifted a tie-breaking sacrifice fly to pace Chicago. Sutcliffe, 7-5, boosted his career mark at Dodger Stadium to 19-7 and Les Lancaster earned his fourth save. Shawn Hillegas, 2-1, was the loser.

Niekros' father dies at 75

WHEELING, W.Va. (UPI) — Philip Niekro, who taught his sons a deceptive knuckleball that made them the winningest brother combination in major-league baseball history, died Saturday in Wheeling Hospital.

Niekro, who lived in nearby Lansing, Ohio, was 75. His health had been failing in recent years.

In his working years, Niekro would come home from a coal mine each day and play catch with sons Phil and Joe in the backyard of their Lansing home, refining the tricky knuckleball that prolonged his sons' careers. Together, their victories totaled 539.

Phil Niekro was 48 when he retired last year, finishing his career after putting in one performance with the Atlanta Braves. He also pitched some of the 1987 season for Cleveland and Toronto. Joe retired this season, at age 43, when the Minnesota Twins released him.

The brothers credited their success to their father's baseball knowledge and encouragement. The senior Niekro was a pitcher on the sandlots of the Ohio Valley in his youth.

Mass will be celebrated Tuesday, with burial at St. Anthony Cemetery in Blaine.

Trade rumor: Esasky has mixed emotions

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Cincinnati Reds first baseman Nick Esasky has heard all the trade rumors in which his name has figured, including a recent one that had him heading to the Phillies for pitcher Don Carman.

While that deal is apparently dead, Esasky has mixed emotions about remaining with the Reds.

"As long as other teams are interested in you, that's good," Esasky said. "When other teams stop wanting you, then you're in trouble."

"I like Cincinnati and I like the area but I want to play every day. I think I help the team more if I play every day because I'm more consistent. My timing's off and I don't feel able to get in a groove as a platoon player."

Despite his preference, however, Esasky remains a platoon player.

"I've told them how I feel," he said. "I can't do more than that."

Spartanburg Phillies (AA) center fielder Jim Vatcher had two hits in a 3-0 loss to Fayetteville on Saturday, giving him 100 hits for the season. That's the most of any player in the Phillies' system.

The Phillies also announced that right-handed pitcher Tim Mauer, the team's third-round draft pick out of Texas Christian, will join Spartanburg. Mauer was recently cut from the U.S. Olympic team.

Mike Schmidt will be lost to the

SCOUTING REPORT

Philadelphia Phillies for the next several days because of a hemorrhoid operation.

Schmidt, who was a late scratch from Saturday's lineup with what was originally announced as a hamstring pull, was to have an external hemorrhoid removed on an out-patient basis later Sunday.

The Phillies said Schmidt hopes to rejoin the team in Cincinnati, meaning he will miss at least the next three games when the Phillies play the Braves in Atlanta.

The Phillies have hired Larry Hise as a hitting instructor for their Martinsville, Va., farm team in the Class A Appalachian League.

Hise, 42, spent 14 years in the majors with the Phillies, Minnesota Twins and Milwaukee Brewers but has been out of baseball for the last few years.

Hise previously served as a hitting instructor in the Brewers' system.

Philadelphia pitcher David Palmer was "very, very sore" Sunday because of tendinitis in his right wrist. Manager Lee Elia said of his right-hander who started at the plate and on the mound one day earlier.

Despite the injury, which he suffered when he tripped over the third-base bag on June 21, Palmer did not give up a hit through the first five innings of Saturday's 5-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

When he surrendered a leadoff single in the sixth, however, Palmer was removed from the game and taken to a local hospital for X-rays, which were negative.

"I'll just keep getting hot and cold treatment and hopefully it will go away and I'll be able to pitch in less pain than I had (Saturday)," Palmer said.

Elia said it was too soon to tell if Palmer would miss his next scheduled start, Thursday in Cincinnati.

"We'll have to wait a day or two before we make a decision on that," he said.

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Rookie Seattle shortstop Mario Diaz continues to hit major-league pitching — when he gets the chance.

Diaz was 7 for 23 last year and 2 for 4 this season before being demoted. The 26-year-old was recalled Friday to fill in for the injured Rey Quinones and went 5 for 8 in his first two games, giving him a career .400 average.

"I'm pretty happy about my stats right now," Diaz said Sunday before his third straight start. "I just hope it continues. I just have to keep my concentration."

TORONTO (UPI) — The best in the AL West is beating up on the East this season.

through turn four, and moved ahead of him coming out of the turn. But Elliott was able to regain the lead, and the two battled door-to-door across the finish line. The margin of victory was 18 inches.

Elliott averaged 163.302 mph, and earned $43,500.

"The only thing that saved me was that I thought he made his move just a little early," Elliott said. "I couldn't tell what was going on. He didn't clear me when he went by me, he got about to my left front wheel with his rear bumper. When you get to that point, if he doesn't clear you, you can draft back by him."

Despite his success, Elliott remains in favor of eliminating the restrictor plates, used only at the circuit's two fastest tracks, Daytona and Alabama International Motor Speedway.

"I still don't like them," Elliott said. "It's hard to pass the slowest car out there on the race track."

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) — Hoosier won Saturday's skirmish against Goodyear in the NASCAR tire war. Winner Bill Elliott used Hoosiers for all but the first two laps and, although only 13 drivers started the race on Hoosiers, 20 were using them at the finish.

"We switched to Hoosiers on the first pit stop and essentially ran the whole race on Hoosiers," said Ernie Elliott, Bill's crew chief. "Tires made a big difference."

Dale Earnhardt was upset Darrell Waltrip would not move with him when he tried to pass Bill Elliott and Rick Wilson late in the race.

IN BRIEF

Lake Mary student wins national business award

Lake Mary High School's Kevin Brashear received second place honors in a national competition held last week in Cincinnati. The annual program was sponsored by Future Business Leaders of America-Phi Beta Lambda, Inc. Brashear's award was for computer concepts.

Nearly 6,000 attended the four-day national conference. Besides the "hands-on" competition, students attended business and leadership training workshops, personal development programs and the election of national officers.

Brashear will attend the University of Florida in the fall and major in computer engineering.

UCF conducts AIDS education

Twenty local college students will be trained to conduct AIDS education programs this fall in Orange County schools by virtue of a $10,000 state grant to the University of Central Florida.

The program will be under the direction of Sharon Douglass, interim chairman of cardiopulmonary sciences in the College of Health. Douglass has conducted numerous programs on AIDS for area civic and law enforcement groups.

"The reason for student involvement is that students are less inhibited talking with others close to their own age," said Douglass.

Ten students will be selected from UCF and five from Valencia Community College to conduct the course. Douglass said she will recruit students through student newspapers. Once chosen, the students will attend a two-day workshop to prepare.

According to Douglass, the biggest misconception young people have is that they are "invisible" and this (AIDS) will happen to someone else.

UCF students win scholarships

Two University of Central Florida students, Scott Garrison and Paula Rodriguez, received $1,000 Arnold Palmer scholarships. The scholarships are made possible through the Florida Public Relations Association's Orlando area chapter.

To raise funds, the association holds an annual roast and toast and selects a local personality for "honor." This year's roastee is Buell G. Duncan Jr., chairman, chief executive officer and president of Sun Bank, N.A.

NASA searches for bad program

NEW YORK (UPI) — NASA officials have called on the FBI to investigate a rogue computer program that has destroyed information stored on its personal computers and those of several other government agencies. The New York Times reported today.

The program was designed to sabotage computer programs at Electronic Data Systems of Dallas, the Times said. It did little damage to the Texas company but wreaked havoc on thousands of personal computers nationwide, company spokesman Bill Wright told the newspaper.

Although damage to government data was limited, NASA officials have asked the FBI to enter the case since files were destroyed, projects delayed and hundreds of hours spent tracking the electronic culprit at NASA and at the Environmental Protection Agency, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and the United States Sentencing Commission.

It was not known how the program, which damaged files during a five-month period beginning in January, spread from the Texas company to networks of personal computers and whether it was deliberately introduced at government agencies or brought in accidentally, the Times said.

The computer program is one of at least 40, termed "viruses," now identified in the United States, computer experts said. Viruses are designed to conceal their presence on a disk and to replicate themselves repeatedly onto other disks and into the memory banks of computers. The program currently being investigated is called the scores virus, the newspaper said.

Some government officials say viruses are spread through informal networks of government computer users who exchange publicly available software.

Viruses often lie dormant and then explode on a certain day or on contact with a specific computer program. They can erase entire disks, such as happened with a one word virus that flashed the word "Gotcha!"

At facilities of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in Washington, Maryland and Florida, close to 100 Apple Macintosh computers were infected with the scores virus, NASA officials said.

The spread of the scores virus was exacerbated when private contractors in Washington and North Carolina inadvertently sold dozens of computers carrying the virus to government agencies. The virus spread for as long as two months and infected networks of personal computers before it was discovered.

Because of the scores virus, private computer consultants are warning that government computer networks, including those with national security functions, are vulnerable to attack.

"I would hate to be an astronaut and have that virus expose itself two years down the line," a computer systems analyst with the General Services Administration told the Times.

The CEB then decided to table the case for 90 days and make a decision then.

Currently, a dirt road begins where Live Oak Boulevard ends. The dump site is approximately 100 yards from the end of Live Oak Boulevard.

Gary Winn, Sanford building official and supervisor for the CEB's two inspectors said, "The sad thing is that we have to get an owner to clean it up when residents are the ones who are doing the dumping."

According to Winn, upon original notification from the CEB inspector, a land owner has 10 days to clean up the dump site. If the site is not cleaned up upon re-notification, the owner is given a notice of violation and given another 10 days.

If no action has been taken at the end of the second 10-day period, the violation goes to the CEB, which has the authority to fine land owners $250 per day.

September.

"This is what I call a happy Fourth of July," said astronaut Robert Crippen, a top NASA manager charged with making the final launch decision. "This is a proud day. It's a proud day for the Kennedy Space Center ... it's a proud day for (NASA) and it's a proud day for the United States of America."

Forrest McCartney, director of the Kennedy Space Center, hailed Discovery's nighttime roll out as a major milestone in America's return to manned space flight.

"It's been a long two-and-a-half years since the Challenger (accident) and I'm very pleased with the progress we're making," he said. "I'd like to emphasize to you it has been a team effort. This is what it's all about, getting ready to go to the pad and getting ready to fly."

McCartney, who made the remarks on a podium draped with red, white and blue bunting, presented a book containing more than 15,000 signatures from space center workers to filmers. The book will be carried into orbit aboard Discovery.

At the end of the ceremony, a recording of the Star Spangled Banner was played over loud speakers as Discovery continued its crawl to the launch pad.

Discovery originally was scheduled for roll out late last week, but a series of minor snags delayed the move.

The ordinance prohibits any motorized craft which produces a sound level of 90 decibels at 50 feet within a residential zone.

The penalties for violating the requirements would be up to a $500 fine, 60 days in jail or both. Law enforcement agencies would be exempt from the regulations.

The city commission will also review a site plan for Kinder-Care Learning Centers Inc. to be built on the east side of Rangeline Road approximately 1,100 feet north of State Road 434. The commission approved a conditional use request on April 4 to locate the childcare center on the commercially zoned site.

Kinder-Care Learning Centers, Inc., Tampa, is under contract to purchase the property from Joe L. Schrimsher of Orlando upon site plan approval. The Land Planning Agency voted at its June 8 meeting to recommend approval of the request subject to compliance with staff comments.

Public hearings are scheduled prior to final action on five ordinances that would do the following:

- Allow the city clerk to function in interim capacity as city administrator during his temporary absence or disability.
- Call for the police department to accept fines for parking violations and issue receipts, maintain records and deposit money collected in the city's general fund account.
- Authorize the city attorney to prepare or review and approve any city-related documents or instruments affecting real property to be recorded in public records.
- Give the purchasing director, as designee of the city administrator, the authority to award bids and sign purchase orders up to $2,500; dispose of surplus property, amend contracts not exceeding $2,500; give the city administrator the authority to purchase supplies and services up to $5,000 and approve amendments to contracts up to $5,000.
- Adopt and approve a Cross Connection Program to protect the health of water consumers by installation of devices and procedures to prevent contamination of potable water through backflow of wastewater into the system.

The request for transfer of a site plan and conditional use permit issued two years ago to Commerce Utilities for a sewage treatment facility at Florida Central Commerce Park to Southern States Utilities, Inc. will be back on the agenda. It was postponed from the June 20 meeting due to the illness of the attorney for Southern States.

Other business will include appointment of a member to the Parks and Recreation Advisory Committee and a request by Seminole County for a sidewalk easement in front of the Shadow Hill subdivision on E. E. Williamson Road.

Man invites beautiful woman to invite him out for a date

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Indiana Mother," whose beautiful, intelligent, 20-year-old daughter doesn't get asked out. She hit the nail on the head when she suggested that men are intimidated by beautiful women.

Yes, we are! Most of the beautiful women I see give the impression that your average male isn't good enough for them. Also, most guys take it for granted that beautiful women already have boyfriends.

You are right, Abby. "Indiana's" daughter should take the initiative if she's interested in a particular guy and ask him out. I would be tickled pink if a woman asked me out.

These are the '80s—a woman can take the initiative without being labeled a tramp.

YOUR AVERAGE GUY

DEAR AVERAGE: It's true, most men assume that a beautiful woman already has a boyfriend. But you are wrong when you say that most beautiful women give the impression that "your average male" is not good enough for them. The truth is that most men on meeting a beautiful woman feel that they aren't good enough. It's their own lack of confidence that keeps them from asking her out.

I see nothing wrong with a woman inviting a man out—and picking up the tab if she can afford it. But many readers, both male and female, still maintain that a lady never takes the initiative. I disagree. Readers?

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I hope you can help me with. About two years ago, I quit work to stay at home with my children. Meanwhile, three good friends of mine asked me to baby-sit for their children, which I am doing now. I really enjoy it.

From the start, I asked them to pay me hourly ($1). All of the parents bring their children at least a half-hour to an hour early, and then pick them up a half-hour to an hour after they get off. So why do they only pay me for the eight hours, not the nine or 10 hours that their children are at my house?

I know I should have said something to them sooner, but since they were good friends I didn't. Is it too late now?

TAKEN ADVANTAGE OF

DEAR TAKEN: No, it's not too late, and if you are looking for someone to motivate you, I accept. Ask and ye shall receive! And by the way, a dollar an hour is a slave wage for baby-sitting.

DEAR ABBY: Being an animal lover, you will probably get a big kick out of this.

Question: Which four animals do many women prefer?

Answer: A jaguar in the garage, a mink in the closet, a tiger in bed, a jackass to pay all the bills.

MILTON HOUSEMAN
BEVERLY HILLS

DEAR ABBY: All those letters in your column lately about people who resent being told by total strangers to smile rang a bell with me.

I, too, have been told to smile when I was quite content with my natural expression. In addition to being ordered to smile on command, I have been criticized for not talking enough to please certain people.

I am quite capable of talking when I have something of importance to say, so I hope you print this, Abby, for those clods who say, "My, but you're quiet!"

ONE OF THE QUIET ONES

DEAR ONE: Quiet people are frequently shy, so drawing attention to them because they are "quiet" only amplifies their embarrassment. One wouldn't presume to ask a non-stop talker why he talks so much, so why ask a quiet person why he's so quiet?

Surprise, surprise

Pauline Echols Bradley of Sanford (center) gapes with surprise on her birthday as her daughter, Mrs. William Richeson of Atlanta (left) and Cheryl Hason of Hollywood, Fla., lead family and friends in a rousing chorus of "Happy Birthday." Bradley was expecting four or five people for an intimate celebration of her 80th birthday Wednesday at the Holiday Inn in Sanford. Instead, some 30 people converged on the party. Bradley's son, Frank of New York, and daughter, Mrs. Richeson, threw the party.

The son of Gloria Morris of Brooklyn, N.Y., Morris is a 1978 graduate of Lafayette High School in Lafayette, N.Y. All were homeported in Charleston, S.C.

See if you can top this bad vacation

I remember my folks taking me to St. Louis, Mo., when I was a child. It was the worst week of rain the city had seen in a long spell. The riverboats were out of commission due to a swollen Mississippi River and the Cardinals were rained out. Car plans were ruined.

The horrific climax of the whole excursion was when Grandma, who was driving, was trying to return us to our hotel. During that rainy night, we kept missing the freeway turn again and again and again, as if we were in some scene from The Twilight Zone.

We at the Sanford Herald know that for most of us, who have gone on more vacations than our memories or bank accounts care to recall, at least one stands out as being exceptionally rotten or dreamy. In celebration of summer, the favorite time for getaways, we invite our readers to tell us about "My

Believe-It-Or-Not Vacation."

In entering our contest, follow these instructions: Type or print clearly your name, street address, city and daytime phone number at the top of your entry. Then write your vacation experience, good or bad, without embellishing the truth.

There is no length limit, but the Herald reserves the right to edit as necessary. Mail to Vacation, c/o The People Editor, P.O. Box 1657, Sanford, Fla. 32771. Deadline for entries is noon on Monday, Aug. 1.

The top winners in the categories of best and worst vacations featured in the Aug. 14 edition of the Herald. Photographs should not be mailed, but winners will be asked permission to reprint any available photos from their vacation.

Inflammation and breast surgery

DEAR DR. GOTT: Four years ago I had a non-malignant lump removed from my breast. It healed properly, but for the past year I've had pain and fullness. The doctor says that my mammograms are OK, but that I have mastitis. He says he will check it again in three months, but it is quite painful. What is the modern treatment for mastitis?

DEAR READER: Our joints are inflamed by supporting tissue, primarily tendons and ligaments. In some people — either because of injury or genetic inheritance — some joints may be lax. This can cause cracking with movement because the bones of the joints tend to move excessively. As we get older, supporting structures tend to weaken; hence, joint cracking is a normal part of the aging process.

DEAR READER: Mastitis means breast inflammation. Following surgery, mastitis usually indicates infection that could be treated with antibiotics, surgical drainage or both. A common non-surgical breast inflammation, called fibrocystic disease, may have mastitis at all; it is periodic lumpy swelling of breast tissue that can be ignored or treated with pills containing female hormones.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report, "Breast Cancer and Diagnosis." Other women who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44144-3669. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have developed what my doctor refers to as a varicose vein in my penis because of my vasectomy. It is uncomfortable all the time, and worse after intercourse. I'm considering having my vasectomy reversed because I've remarried. Will this correct my problem?

DEAR READER: The development of a swollen vein in the penis would be an extremely rare consequence of vasectomy, because the operation does not ordinarily affect the veins of the reproductive tract. Therefore, I suggest that you seek a consultation with a urologist, who could advise you whether the vein should be removed, thereby returning you to a more normal state.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I really feel silly asking you this. My nose crack when I walk, bend or exercise or whatever. My friends tease me about getting old, but I'm only 31. What could be

WIN AT BRIDGE
By James Jacoby
North-South had a nice scientific auction to reach a fair six-spade contract. Unfortunately declarer's play of the hand did not match his bidding science.

When responder showed two suits and then removed three trumps to four spades, he clearly invited South to go to slam. South had enough sound values to accept, so he asked for aces and bid six. When dummy came down, declarer realized that the success of the contract rested simply on being able to bring in the spade suit with only one loser. It seemed that East would need to hold the jack of spades for the slam to succeed, so declarer won the opening lead with dummy's jack and led

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Pentagon scandal clouds state's arms manufacturing industry

ORLANDO (UPI) — The Pentagon weapons buying scandal has thrown a large shadow over Florida's arms manufacturing industry, the nation's fourth largest with $1.4 billion in federal weapons contracts last year. The state has captured a growing slice of the military manufacturing budget during the past decade, moving up from eighth place only four years ago, last year. Florida trailed only California, with $48.6 billion in Pentagon weapons contracts, Virginia, with $16.5 billion and Texas, with $15.3 billion.

The Justice Department investigation of Pentagon contracts added new uncertainty for states where defense companies have prospered during the Reagan administration. A $2 trillion defense buildup.

Congress said last week that some defense contracts may have to be canceled and rebid if they are found to have been tainted by bribes used to obtain inside information.

FORT MYERS (UPI) — A musician who agreed to help Fort Myers develop a shopping center in a black ghetto was the leader of a drug ring that supplied cocaine and heroin throughout the Southwest and other parts of the country.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressional study examining ways of increasing NATO conventional forces and signing the INF treaty has a budget option ranging from $1.5 billion to $500 million.

Solons: Reno trip not junket

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Florida Legislature plans to spend about $100,000 to send a large delegation to a national conference of lawmakers late this month in Reno, Nev. It was reported Sunday.

The Tallahassee Democrat reported that 52 legislators and 24 legislative staff members had signed up for the July 24-29 convention. That was nearly three times the number that attended the National Conference of State Legislatures when it met last year in Indianapolis.

A few of the legislators scheduled to attend the Reno conference are not running for reelection: Reps. Curtis Meffert, D-Ocala, and Beverly Burned, D-Lakeland, told the Capital newspaper they wanted to see what they've learned with lawmakers from other states — even though they won't be back in the Florida House this time.
