Dale pushes for Sanford site of Interstate-4 'Gateway'

By Nick Pfelfauf HERALD STAFF WRITER

SANFORD Over the past several months, establishment of an Interstate 4 "Gateway" has been the subject of many meetings. While some have been at the city level, most of them have been concentrated at the Metroplan Orlando

The aim is to have a specific location designated as the 1-4 Gateway, where possibly special landscaping will be installed along the right of way area and signage installed to welcome motorists approaching Central Florida from the north and east on 1-4.

The city of Orlando has said on a number of occasions that they should be considered the core of Central Florida, and have the gateway designated near the approaches to that city.

Sanford however, believes that with the contimious developments adjacent to the interstate south from the Sanford area, that it should be declared as the official gateway

Early last month. Mayor Larry Dale, acting on behalf of the city commission, submitted a letter to the Metroplan Orlando Executive Director Harold W. Barley outlining Sanford concerns. Dale is a member of the board.

LAKE MARY - As demand for quality office space intensifies along take Mary's burgeoning Interstate 4 corridor, developers remain bullish about the community.

"That intersection of Lake Mary Boulevard and 1-4 is one of the hottest office markets in the country and probably the hottest in Florida," said Sandy Acton, developer of Lake Mary's Primera for the North Carolina Department of Insurance, who acquired the property as part of a liquidation of assigned holdings, "Everyone that has built there has enhanced the value of the park.

All but 3.5 acres of the 188-acre Primera development have been sold. The project has been under development for about five years.

Once we started selling, we sole out at a very brisk pace," Acton said.

Crescent Resources, Inc. is building an office complex on its 87 acres. Two hotels, a bank and two restaurants have also located at Primera. Acton expects the last parcel will become a restaurant. Fountains, lighting and a road, with a Rinehart Road entryway, have been completed.

'We believe this (access) will dramatically improve traffle flow in and around the Interstate 4-Lake Mary Interchange," said Whit Duncan. Crescent Resources' marketing director.

It is not known at the present time how the checks were falsified although Lewis said it would be relatively simple, by utilizing the check writing software available through computer stores.

Deland police have thus far made two arrests in connection with the had checks. They were identified as Cashunda Bacon, 25, of Orlando, and Sadanna Blackmon, 18, of 1605 Cedar Creek Circle, Sanford. They were each charged with forgery. In addition, Blackmon was charged with resisting arrest without violence. The two were arrested in DeLand when they attempted to cash one of the fake checks.

Even with rain, 68 fires burn

By Nick Pfeifauf HERALD STAFF WRITER

CENTRAL FLORIDA - Even though rainfall appears to have quenched many of the fires that have been devastating Central Florida for the past few weeks, the latest statistical report indicates that 68 more fires were started in the 24-hour period ending at midnight Monday.

The report is a joint effort on behalf of the Florida Division of Emergency Management, Federal Emergency Manage-ment Agency, Florida and United States Divisions of Forestry.

The report shows 2,126 fires since June 1, in a total of 67 counties. A total of 484,623 acres have been destroyed.

Under emergency response, the report estimates between 6,000 and 7,000 firefighters have been working, with many coming from at least 40 states. Of the 104 injuries reported thus far, 65, or 62.5 percent were fire fighters.

Regarding the physical destruction, 301 homes were damaged or destroyed since June 1, plus 29 businesses. The loss is estimated at $276 million, with an additional cost of $104 million for response personnel, equipment, and other fire suppression needs.

State meteorologist Andy Devanas warned that without a tropical system, it will take weeks for the drought conditions in the state to ease. If we have to rely on the thunderstorms as the only way, this will take time," he said.

"And because the thunderstorms bring lighting strikes, we're taking two steps forward and one step back."

Fire officials said that in the Orlando Complex alone (which includes Seminole County), they recorded 15,000 lightning strikes in a 48-hour period causing 50 new fires to start. Most of them were quickly contained due to the number of fire fighters still in the area.

Loves Wrinkle Cream Hates Those Age Spots

DEAR PATTY: I love you!... Remember when you wrote about that pharmacist's wrinkle cream...and told me to buy a jar? their neighbors."

Other cities in Seminole County and cities throughout the state are using CERTs, Haun said. The LMFD staff is reviewing the successes and failures of CERTs in other cities and Haun adds that "there is no set number of programs we want for Lake Mary and many (communities) in Lake Mary say they want to do it

Each community will decide the hierarchy of their CERTs program while the LMFD will provide the training for each CERTs team, Haun said.

The fire departments will go out and do a class for a homeowners group, identify the hazards in the community and teach them what, they need: it's about educating and or ganizing." Haun said.

"A lot of libe hierarchyl de pends on how each CERTs forms. For example, you have a homeowners group that wants at team. We would tell them how to organize it, but they would decide who is in charge. But if we just go in a neighborhood with no homeowners organization, then we go in and help them get the (CERTs) organization."

The program is still in the planning stages and more evaluation of similar programs is needed before the CERTs program is enacted in Lake Mary, Haun said. With its similarities to other community self-policing programs, Haun said CERTs would help the LMFD in times of crisis.

"It's similar to the neighborhood watch program," Haun said. Police can't be everywhere and that's how [neighborhood watch] works. When people need help, it's the same thing [with CERTs].

"If you have 300-plus service calls after a hurricane, you need somebody to help out the people and start getting things moving."

The Declaration of Independence set tone for government documents of the future

Let's start today's column by going back in time 222 years, and imagining what it would be like to be an average citizen in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Contrary to what goes on these days with extensive newspaper and other media coverage of an event, very few citizens knew what was going on in 1776. [The musical hadn't come out yet). There it was...the Declaration of Independence. The Continental Congress had approved one of the most important documents ever a few days earlier. declaring freedom from British rule for the people in this new world. Yet no one knew what the document said.

On this day, July 8, in 1776, Army Col. John Nixon stood among a gathering throng in Philadelphia's Independence Square (they didn't call it that in 1776) and publicly read the entire document. Without press coverage, we don't know how the people reacted to the reading, and didn't have "man on the street" interviews to find out if they even understood the wording or intent.

Just imagine yourself standing in the square hearing Col. Nixon's voice as he read, "But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism..". How many of the people knew what he was saying. much less what was going on? To be possibly sarcastic, we might even say that the Declaration of Independence not only gave us our freedom, but stood as an example of how to put complicated wording into a government document. (try understanding some of our city and county ordinances these days). Oh well.....

The referee gave them the game!!

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS _ Coaches use sta-tistics as a metric of individual and team performance.

Certain aspects of every game's team and individual skills can be recorded and used as an indicator of strength and weaknesses.

An alert coach can use these statistics to design drills to improve weaknesses in individual and team skills. A good coach works diligently to improve these metrics.

Fans and spectators aren't so quantitative in their views of a game. The subtleties of individual and team performance are often lost in the hope that their team will win the game, or their favorite player does well in front of the crowd, or that their team performs well against a tough adversary.

Enter the referee.

He is the wild card.

though it were the Santa Fe Express blowing its horn right behind you. In a close game, the whistle school in ears of the losing team, coach and fane after the game is over.

"The ref gave them the game."

I hold no hope of ever-discusding fans of this misguided view. But so a coach, I'd like to point out a few statistics regarding the reality of a referee's ability to "hand the game" to the other team.

I do this not in defense of the referee. I'm a coach! — It's not in my nature to defend sportsmanlike manner, and working toward continuous self-improvement.

Here are a few game statistics. Since I coach lacrosse, I'll use lacrosse statistics. As football, basketball, volleyball, et al coaches, you can substitute your own metrics for your sport and resolve the same conclusion. In all sports there are some statistics that are recorded and some that aren't.

In lacrosse, we record goals, assists, saves, shots, successful face-offs, successful attempts to clear the ball from defense to offense, successful attempts to prevent the other team from clearing the ball, penalty time, and penalty killing success.

These all go in the game records. Here are some that don't. Lacrosse is like basketball in game strategy and plays, so if you are unfamiliar to the sport, just picture basketball.

If you let your kids walk away with this impression, regardless of the quality of difficiating, you are falling them as a coach: Why? Because you accepted your performance as OK.

Look at your own statistics.

Thirty-four shots, 12 goals; a shooting success of .553. Not had considering there is a goalie, But of the 34 shots, 10 missed the goal frame. If you could have improved your shooting accuracy and put all 10 on frame, your shooting percentage of .353 would have yielded 3.5 more goals. You win!

Or, if you could improve your team's shooting percentage to .400, you win!

Or, if you could have gotten off more chost has making a better man. a better

Or, if you could have gotten off more shots by making a better pass, a better catch, seeing the open man, getting the four more times during the course of the entire game, you wind

Or, if you could have talled one more penalty, you wind

Or if you could have come up with four more ground bells to give you four more offeneive possessions for two more shots, you win!

Well, what do you know? You had the game in YOUR control. YOU gave the game to the other team.

As coaches, we need quality referee.

And this is not written to converte poor efficieting. But; allowing yourself, your spectators, your late to be be because to be. When one of your players makes a bad play, you don't get in their face and run their self-seleces into the ground. I hope you don't. You coach them.

Referees are going to make some bad calls, just as you will, in the course of a game, make a bad coaching decision, and your players will make some bone-bad mistakes.

But even if the rule are wrong 70-percent of the time, you still get an advantage 30-percent of the time. What did you do with your advantage? How well did you coach your kids to perform

That was the difference?

I don't think so.

And teach your kids and the parents of your kids the same thing.

Build meal around steak as the star Steak is the one food item that distinguishes Americans from most other accieties. We love steak period, Amen. The west was built on it and the east invested in it. Beef is big business in the USA.

This week's "tip of the week" is about beef. There are at least 30 names of cuts of meat that are basically the same

There are five rules to go by

when you deal with steak:

1. Prime beef is best. Choice is next. Never buy less than choice quality USDA beef. The cost savings is not worth the quality you sacrifice.

2. Never buy a teak that is

2. Never buy a teak that is less then one inch thick. Any less then one inch thick. Any steak cut thinner ends up dry and tough including filet mignon. Thickness is the key to a great steak, not length and width.

3. Know or learn what cuts of meat you want. Do not go by name or pretty packaging. Different dishes require different cuts (you can't make a good Chateaubriand out of rump

4. Make the butcher at your 4. Make the butcher at your favorite store your best friend. All kidding aside, get to know him or her. Tell them what you plan on cooking and ask their advice. Don't ring the service bell when the store is busy. You are the one who is asking for advice so so in the store You are the one who is asking for advice so go to the store during the slow times and talk to the butcher. You'll eat better for your trouble and the store will get a better informed customer. When your family and friends brag about your meal it makes you feel good and the store gets new customers. Everyone wins, even the kids. They get a great meal for your effort.

5. Never over-cost beef. The rarer it is, the more tender and juicy it is. Well done turns a steak into a dry leathery taster is meal. A good guide is internal temperature 130 degrees to 135 degrees rare, 140 degrees to 145 degrees medium, 150 degrees and above well done and ruined.

GOTTA SAVE

Saying no to secondhand smoke

DEAR DR. GOTT: My wife is a three-pack-a-day smoker. For more than 25 years, I have been the unwill-ing "beneficiary" of her 60 daily ciga-rettes. I don't like her secondhand smoke. What can I do about it?

DEAR READER: I hesitate to jump into a serious family squabble that, it seems to me, ought to have been resolved years ago.

What do you think you ought to do? C'mon, be reasonable. Your options range from divorce to acceptance. Whatever my position, I'll lose. But I'm willing to take a stab at a compromise.

willing to take a stab at a compromise.

Your wife has an addiction to nicotine, so she must be treated as any other addict is. You need to assert your position, if you haven't done so already, in no uncertain terms. Decide what your limits are and spell them out. Are you willing to inhale second-hand smoke in the bedroom? While watching television? In the car? If not, set some limits. But be prepared to back them up.

For example, if your wife cares.

For example, if your wife cares more about your health than her own, ahe may agree to smoke outdoors — or in some part of the house reserved for this marries. If no what according Similarly, she might agree to smoke no more than one cigarette an hour. Such rationing would automatically reduce her consumption to 16 cigarettes a day, assuming she alceps eight hours a night. This is a reasonable restriction. But again, what will you do if she ignores it?

Finally, entist your family physician's help. With the use of nicotine patches, nasel spray or chewing gum, your wife may be able to exert some control over her problem. But she has

DEAR READER: Seemingly so.
According to a study performed at the Smell and Taste Treatment and Research Foundation in Chicago, the odors emitted from Good 'n' Plenty candy, cucumber, pumpkin pie, baby powder, and levender cause a greater increase in vaginal blood flow then do perfumes and colognes, which may actually reduce signs of arcusal.
