THE DALLABRIDA FAMILY AFTER IT WAS ALL OVER

The Question Lingers: Was This Trial Necessary?

By DENNIS FEOLA
 Herald Staff Writer

Should Albert Dallabrida Sr., have ever gone to trial for manslaughter?

Before, during and after the two-and-a-half day trial the question was much discussed at drugstore counters, in offices and in the homes of many Seminole County residents who have followed the story since Oct. 28, 1977.

At 4:45 that night, Dallabrida, 53, driving a van with eight passengers inside attempted to Restaurant. The van was hit broadside by a nine-ton truck. Almost instantly, 18-year-old Bobby Dallabrida died.

The next day 16-year-old Robin Dallabrida died. On the morning of the fourth day following the accident 16-year-old Richard Dallabrida died. That night, Betty Dallabrida, 51, also succumbed to injuries.

Dallabrida's seven-year-old grandson, Todd Miller, and 20-year-old Albert Dallabrida Jr., required surgery.

Dallabrida himself, along with sons Max, 12, and Frank, 18, were released from hospital care within days of the accident, Dallabrida insisting he be released from Seminole Memorial Hospital the night of the accident to check on family members who had been taken to an Orlando Hospital.

Almost instantly the community's compassion for the "Dallabrida Clan," as their mailbox read became evident, with a fund being established to help pay for hospital and burial costs.

Six days after the accident, however, Dallabrida was cited by Sanford police for making an illegal left turn on April 7, 1978. Dallabrida was officially charged with four counts of manslaughter by driving while intoxicated. The charges carried a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison. Dallabrida, a rural Sanford resident for three years, was legally intoxicated at the time of the accident, police said. In this particular case I

YOUNG POETS AT WORK AT SABAL POINT ELEMENTARY SCHOOL.

These Kids Are Handing Their Teacher A Line...

The 10-year old student bounced up to the front of class. Then with a smile stretched across her face she read her assignment for the day.

For today's lesson the children had to look at drawings that had been discovered in an old pyramid. Each student told in his or her own way what was seen in the drawing. But they did not give their typical oral presentation, but instead read original works of poetry.

"Oh they were a little shy in the beginning, but on the first day of class, I had lesson plans which got them relaxed and they seem to have become very accustomed to it," said their poet-instructor Robert Wisloff.

The students at Sabal Point Elementary were bursting with enthusiasm to get the chance to read their poems. "I was a little nervous at first, but now I kinda like it. Sometimes the stuff is good and sometimes it's corny—but it's fun," said Mike Brunumet.

"Oh, I think it's really fun," said a shy Jeff Hammering, "but it gives us a chance to write whatever we want."

As they return to their seats, the students do admit that one aspect they dislike the most is that dreadful chore of rhyming.

"Oh, I'd rather write poems than anything else, but I could do without rhyming," said 10-year old Chad Carledge.

Hammering agreed, adding: "Sometimes it gets a little weird because sometimes you can get three lines to rhyme, but it's kind of hard to get that fourth line to rhyme."

Wisloff understands their dislike for rhyming. "We try to stay away from rhyming because it sometimes hard for them to identify with it, but I do throw it in every once in awhile for practice," he said.

The fifth graders dislike for rhyming is offset by the benefits they think they are deriving. And, depending upon whom you ask, these benefits range from a career in poetry to becoming rich off writing.

"I think it helps me write and helps to have a better imagination," said Robby Cardullo.

Susan Johnson at 10 years of age believes while her writing has improved, "I also think it will help me make money when I'm big," she exclaims.

One of the class leaders, 13-year old Walter Brownfield is setting his sights on future years in the Seminole County

...And He's Not At All A-Verse To Taking It

"A thought is like the ocean pounding against the beach."

"Once we get the student to be precise and when they recognize what precision can do for their work, we get expressions like this," says Seminole County's full-time resident poet Robert Wisloff.

As the first year of what appears to be a highly successful program ends, the work of the student authors is being published in a paperback edition entitled, "Calico Trout."

Although the Poets-in-the-School program has been in the state since 1969, this school year was the first that Seminole County has had resident poets involved in 14 schools. It is a matched-fund program with funding originating with the National Endowment of the Arts.

Wisloff, one of five poets in the program, spends 16 weeks at seven schools — Eastbrook, Sterling Park, Idylwild, Bear Lake, Woodlands, Longwood and Sabal Point. Each class receives eight weeks of instruction.

Others are Jane Prescott Edman, the other full-time poet; and part timers Elizabeth Phillips Manix, David Powner and Dr. William E. Taylor.

"I stay the whole day and give individualized instruction. If I find an exceptional or interested student, I'll

Body Found In Oviedo

Orlandoan Charged In Teen's Slaying

A murder warrant has been issued for an Orlando man being held in an Atlanta, Ga., jail in connection with the death of Clara Laine Clayton, 16, College Park, whose body was discovered near Oviedo last week.

Richard Allan Oliver, 23, is being held in the Atlanta jail charged with the sexual assault and murder of an Atlanta woman, Seminole County Sheriff's spokesman John Spolaki said Saturday.

Oliver will probably be extradited to Florida to stand trial for the murder of the Clayton girl before going on trial in Georgia for the murder there of Patricia Davenport, he said. A team of six detectives has been working on the Clayton murder since her body was first discovered near Oviedo last week.

The teen-ager, who had been beaten before her death, according to officials, was found last Saturday by a local resident who was attending to business in the area.

Dressed in blue corduroy jeans and a multi-colored tank top, the body was discovered about 9:00 a.m. in a field about 50 feet west of Longwood Road and 100 feet south of State Road 413 east of Oviedo.

Seminole County Medical Examiner Dr. G.V. Garay said the girl had been dead about 10 hours before she was found.

Although she had been beaten about the face, the cause of death was brain damage which may have occurred when she hit her head on a hard surface.

Miss Clayton is the daughter of Betty Garvey of 3406 Fairway Lane in College Park, Orlando.

WORLD IN BRIEF

5 Women Free Comrade From West Berlin Jail

BERLIN (UPI) — Five women terrorists broke into an "escape-proof" prison today and freed a male comrade on trial for kidnapping Christian Democratic leader Peter Lorenz and killing a judge, West Berlin police said. The women shot a guard in the leg inside the prison, but were able to walk with their male colleague out of the prison's main entrance — past the guards — without attracting attention, police said.

Jane Fonda: Remember Viet

CANNES, France (UPI) — Actress Jane Fonda says that unless Americans keep remembering the Vietnam War, there will be "other Vietnams." Ms. Fonda, who stars in the anti-war film "Coming Home," shown at the Cannes Film Festival, told a news conference Friday the film's importance was "so that we don't forget the Vietnam War, because we have never understood it."

CIA: Cubans Trained Rebels

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The CIA, backing President Carter's claim of Cuban involvement in Zaire, says it has solid evidence Angolan-based Cubans trained Katangese rebels shortly before the rebels' recent raid into Zaire.

Terrorists Ignite Bombs

ROME (UPI) — Terrorists set off a series of time bombs in Rome and burned vehicles in the capital and the northern city of Milan early today, police said, in the latest wave of Italian political violence. Damage in the attacks was light and no injuries were reported. A group calling itself "The Armed Proletarian Formations" claimed responsibility for some of the Rome attacks.

Balaguer Loses In Dominica

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (UPI) — Leftist cattle rancher Antonio Guzman has been declared the winner in a disputed presidential election that toppled the 12-year rule of conservative Joaquin Balaguer. Guzman, 67, the leader since the start of vote counting May 16, rolled over Balaguer by a margin of 160,000 votes, but was nearly ousted by an apparent attempted military coup the following day.

Rhodesia's Smith Steps Down

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith has decided to step down after 13 years as head of the breakaway British colony to help pave the way for a peaceful transition to black majority rule. Smith, 59, defied international trade sanctions and an intensifying guerrilla war to maintain white rule after his unilateral declaration of independence from Britain in November 1965.

Kolwezi Miners Back To Work

KOLWEZI, Zaire (UPI) — Sirens wailed over Kolwezi calling workers back to the mines today to restart operations for the first time since rebels invaded the town two weeks ago. Belgian doctors said they have identified the bodies of 32 whites, including one American, killed during the nine-day takeover of Kolwezi by Angolan-based rebels. Officials said 41 white corpses remained unidentified and 299 Europeans had not been accounted for.

Indigent Birth Records Deal In Works

By MAX KRIEGLER
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County Health Center will comply with a Seminole Memorial Hospital request to receive records of indigents as soon as they apply to the center's prenatal clinic. Hospital Administrator Charles Bentley, in a letter mailed Friday, asked Troy Blue Cross and Blue Shield, "There are going to be cases where people are legitimately indigent and we say, okay, we have no problem with that. We are not trying to shirk our responsibility," said Perez. Perez contended a "large number" of the patients claiming to be indigent at the health clinic were lying. "I think a large percentage of the people who go there do not need the care they are getting and if that is true, that is a fraud," said Perez. Perez was critical of the clinic's administration. "I think the county commission is extremely lacking in its responsibility to find a solution. It's the administration of the health department that's the problem. Not the medical staff. That part is wonderful," said Perez. In its emergency meeting Friday, the hospital board also voted to continue payments to obstetricians and pediatricians for indigent birth care deliveries for 30 days past the June 1 deadline.

U.S. Drops Gun Control Proposals Rapped By Many

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Treasury Department Friday dropped stiff new gun control proposals under pressure from thousands who believed the government was trying to make them register their guns. President Carter had proposed stiff new regulations designed to make it easier for the government to track guns used in a crime. Proposed March 16, they would require any gun made or imported in the United States to have a unique serial number, require all gun thefts be reported. The problem comes over the demand that increased reports required from gun manufacturers, importers and dealers.

work after class with them," says Wishoff. Poetry today, he feels, is often trite, vague—as an art form is dying. His challenge is to remove the cloak of self-consciousness and to help the students become more aware of themselves, to express more clearly and powerfully their feelings.
"My program is designed to be a little crazy," he says, with a twinkle in his eye. Getting the students enthused about writing, getting them precise and turned on to detail is part of his mission. Technical language, critiques, and even rhymes are aside while the sense of creativity is reawakened.
Then when they learn to express themselves more freely, they'll become more concerned about perfection, he promises.
"We must get back to the music of our language—the fantasies. If we can write them down and appreciate them, we find real joy in writing. Children are too influenced by mass media," he says.
"With a little push kids can come up with a unique perspective," believes Wishoff. By sixth grade, it's too late. "They're too technically oriented, too caught up in asking questions, too skeptical," he says.
"I wouldn't mind operating the program in the summer but would need some funds," he said. He added that he would gladly donate two days a week if the school system could possibly donate a van that Wishoff could take to recreational areas, beaches or shopping malls and offer short poetry language lessons to interested students. — JOAN MADISON

School system.
"I think it's good to know now because when we get to middle school, we will know all the things already and it will help us to get good grades," he said.
All the children in the class agree that what they have learned stays with them when the school days end.
"When I'm at the beach, I find myself trying to make poems while looking at the beach or the clouds," Loretta Frenis explains. Brad Dunn, 11, finds that he gets ideas while watching television.
"I see some ideas on television and I can't wait to come to school so I can write them down as part of an assignment," he said.
In addition to the classroom lessons, Wishoff also gives individual lessons to students who display exceptional ability.
Two students who get this attention are Kara Provost and Christine Porter.
"I really didn't like to write that much before I came here but now I find it fun," says Kara, a 10-year-old, blonde-haired Christiane.
To Kara, poetry writing has served as an outlet for an otherwise shy girl. "I find that I express myself much better when I write rather than orally."
Apparently Kara's writings have shown enough quality that Wishoff has decided to enter her in the poetry contest sponsored in June by the Florida Council of Teachers of English.
And, although Kara will be competing against many older students, Wishoff is not concerned that a rejection will affect her or any of his students.
"I don't treat them like children, but as individuals. Entering them in contests gives them pride in their poem and they have shown me that if they do get rejected they will just come back with an even better piece of work," Wishoff said. — LEONARD KRANSDORF

Was Dallabrida Trial Necessary?

think someone could have shown a little more compassion," Ronald Brooks, the Orlando attorney who defended Dallabrida said. "Those people who made the decision to bring him to trial may have overlooked some very critical prosecuting responsibilities," he said.
"I feel one of those things is the value to society of bringing the case to court," Brooks said. "This is a glaring example of tunnel-vision."
"They got the 21 blood alcohol count and didn't go any further. A little more thought could have prevented this from happening at all," he said.
The man who prosecuted the case for the state, Assistant State Attorney Ralph Erikson, believes his office had a responsibility to prosecute the case solely on the basis of the evidence, with no emotional factors considered.
"If there were compassion built into the system, we would be a nation of men instead of law," he said.
"You're saying the prosecutor is supposed to be judge and jury. It is for the prosecutor to present the evidence to the judge, he is the conscience of the community," Erikson said.
"The prosecutor speaks for the community in the place of the person who was wronged. Don't those dead people have any rights?"
Erikson is supported in his view by two policemen who headed the investigation for

Larynx Work

By UF Profs
GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Voice specialists at the University of Florida are adding new refinements to the battery-powered artificial larynx, a device enabling people without vocal cords to "speak" intelligibly. While the sound of the artificial larynx is intelligible, it is a computerized, mechanical sound subject to distortions and the UF scientists are trying to improve the quality of the electrical signal and pitch control.

Bullets Break Tradition, Hope To Upset SuperSonics

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — Now, when somebody wants to discuss the Washington Bullets' terrible record in NBA championship series, Coach Dick Motta can confidently send them to a library.

playoffs," said Motta Thursday night after the Bullets won their first championship series game in the history of the franchise, 106-94, over the Seattle SuperSonics.

"Now they'll have to think up something new," continued Motta. "It's unfair to me and all the young players to have to live with the past."

The Bullets, then in Baltimore, dropped four straight to Milwaukee in the 1971 finals. Their second season in Washington, 1975, they made the finals again, but lost four straight to Golden State.

Seattle's 106-102 win Sunday made it nine losses in a row. However, only one of the Bullets playing in the present series, center Wes Unseld, was around in 1971. Only two, Unseld and forward Elvin Hayes, played in 1975.

"In 1975, it was the first championship series for me," said Hayes. "I was awed, and when we lost, I felt I don't get it all back myself. I don't feel that way now."

The Sonics, on the other hand, are confident they can get it all back because they still own the home court advantage.

Sonics Coach Len Wilkens didn't think his club's defensive intensity in Game 3 matched that of Game 1. "I think it will be much better next game," he said.

Game No. 3 is Sunday afternoon before a national TV audience.

Sports Parade

By MILTON RICHMAN

Rose: I'm Not 110 Per Cent

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nobody hustles more than Pete Rose. He has heard it said he puts out maximum effort every minute he's on the field. But that's not altogether true, he says. "I wish I could say I bear down 110 percent every time I come to bat, but sometimes I just don't. The way I play, the older I get, the harder it gets. But I don't feel as if I'm getting old. I've missed only three games since 1971. You think I don't get headaches like everyone else? I stay up with ice packs all night a lot of times...."

The Philadelphia Flyers are looking around for a new coach now that Fred Shero has convinced them he's not coming back. Keep the name Bobby Clarke in mind. Clarke, 29, isn't ready to retire as a player yet and the NHL has a rule against playing coaches anyway, but it was Clarke, along with Shero, who helped mold the Flyers into Stanley Cup champions and he's a prime favorite of owner Ed Snider, who gave him a lifetime contract. One of these days Bobby Clarke will be the Flyers' coach....

Carl Yastrzemski laughs when people talk to him about the pressure connected with playing for a team like the Red Sox, who generally are in contention year after year. "When you're playing with a winning team, that's not pressure, that's fun," he says. "When you're playing for a losing team, that's when you feel the pressure...."

Starting his first season with the Detroit Lions as their third coach in two years and fifth in five years, Monte Clark is completely realistic about the reaction he can expect from his players. "They've been through quite a few changes," he says. "I've said to them I can understand their reluctance to accept yet another change.... I don't expect an overnight change in the team's performance level. I do, however, expect a big change in the players' work habits."

There's a 1978 new tennis tournament called The Invitational scheduled for Fort Hills, July 10-16, and one of the first things its officials did was to put out a call for surely needed ball boys and ball girls. They were immediately bombarded with letters from youthful applicants inquiring what the salary was. The job is an honorary one, with no pay....

If the Phillies don't lead both leagues in players who carry around those portable cassette recorders, they're certainly right up there. More than a half dozen of them lug the recorders around the circuit. Tim McCarver, one of those who doesn't, can't see anything wrong with the growing trend. "Anything that temporarily diverts your attention away from the serious business we're in is healthy," he says....

The minor leagues are flourishing, not dying, according to Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. He points out there are 163 farm teams operating at the moment, highest total number in 10 years....

Prates are searching for added pitching help. Look for them to give up John Miller, possibly to some other club, in an attempt to get it. Spunking of the Pirates, they're highly pleased with the progress of Yogi Berra's son, Dale, playing for their Columbus affiliate. Young Berra probably will be Pittsburgh's regular shortstop next year....

MIAMI (UPI) — Joe Robbie, for a new stadium rather than the Miami Dolphins' manager, general partner, didn't think he was getting enough of his ideas on stadiums across to the public. So Friday, he decided to try again by calling a news conference under a shade tree on his front lawn.

Among the points Robbie wanted to make clear is that he thinks an indoor arena is the community's top priority and a dual purpose football-baseball stadium is not repugnant to him.

Robbie also said he went along with a proposal last Monday to study building a new stadium next to the existing 61-year-old Orange Bowl only "reluctantly."

19 Nabbed In Magic Marker Stock Manipulation Scheme

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Nineteen men from eight states have been sentenced by a federal judge for their role in a multimillion-dollar scheme to manipulate the common stock of Magic Marker Co.

Two of the defendants sentenced Friday by U.S. District Judge Clarence C. Newcomer were given prison terms of one year. They were Jack Sibiliger of Shawnee Mission, Kan., and Yiddy Bloom of Miami Beach, Fla. Sibiliger also received three years probation while Bloom was fined $10,000 and ordered to contribute $15,000 to charity.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Joel M. Friedman said Sibiliger, a stock promoter, operated the stock manipulation scheme from his apartment in Miami Beach while Bloom, a millionaire hotel owner, contributed financial backing.

Friedman said the scheme, which took place between November 1971 and November 1972, resulted in the loss of millions of dollars by investors who purchased the stock at artificially inflated prices. During the period, the price of Magic Marker common stock rose from $6 per share to more than $30 per share, he said.

Winn-Dixie Sales Hiked

Winn-Dixie Stores Inc. reported sales of $347.1 million during the four weeks ended May 3, compared with $325.9 million for the same period in 1977 — an increase of 6.5 percent, according to R.J. Head, treasurer.

Lyman Job Entry Program: To Learn Is To Earn

A job entry program at Lyman High School, called "Technically Oriented Industrial Materials and Processes," has assisted many students in working part-time while still attending school. With the motto "To learn is to earn," one young man, Jack Lenzen, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Lenzen, Caseberry, has found this program can pay off. Jack is a machinist at Precision Machine Co., of Longwood. For the past year, Jack has been a member of the Lyman metal shop. With the assistance of Art Haight, the school placement officer, and John Pelish, Jack's metal shop instructor, Jack has found that skills learned in school can be a useful tool in the world of work.

Earlier in the year, Jack entered the Senior Job Entry Program, allowing him to attend school part of the day and work the other portion. Bob McMahon, owner of Precision Machine, has assured Jack of a full-time job after graduation. Jack will continue studying through correspondence courses in the machine trade. "The Vocational Program at Lyman can provide students with marketable skills in the areas of metalworking, carpentry, auto mechanics, air-conditioning, drafting, electronics and small engine repairs," said Pelish. "Many employment opportunities have been available for interested students in these programs."

Broker Can't Add Home Value

Can a broker get us enough money for it as that we can afford to list it? A broker does not add value to the property any more than an FHA loan or a VA loan adds value. Like an FHA or VA loan, the broker will cut the seller some money. But in both cases, the sale price is determined by the market. Whether you sell your property yourself or through a broker who charges a fixed dollar fee or through a broker who charges a per cent of the sale price as a commission, the market value is the same. It is not determined by what the seller "has to get" or what the buyer can "afford to pay," but by what they come to terms on as a sale price.

Which Is Stranger, Truth Or Fiction?

By JOAN MADISON Herald Correspondent

Truth stranger than fiction? Local science-fiction writer Andre Norton apparently thinks so.

"I never use anything in my books that I haven't seen demonstrated," says the renowned author of 92 published books, as she talks about ESP (extrasensory perception), tarot, and psychometry (divining facts concerning an object or person by contact with or proximity to the object).

She's been writing since her high school days in Cleveland, Ohio, where as a student, she read the works of Jules Verne and H.G. Wells. Now, residing in Mantland (soon to be Winter Park), she whips out a science-fiction book in just two months.

Jules Verne, she says, was a "gadget" man — he was interested in inventions and practically all the inventions he foresaw came about. More like Wells, her writings deal with the effect of technology upon people — what they do when they're caught in a situation in the future.

"I was influenced by A.A. Merritt," she adds.

Why the resurgence of interest in science fiction, the only form of fiction that has a great following of readers who are very, very close to it, according to Miss Norton.

Science fiction, she explains, peaked with Verne and went down until H.G. Wells in the early 1900's ran a story in his magazine about the future, using what he knew about radio.

"It was the first piece of fiction published outside of Verne and Wells, and it took over by storm."

"A slight peak in the 30s was followed by the 50s peak that came with Sputnik and the interest in space travel. The peak in fantasy came with the publication of Tolkien's 'works,'" she adds.

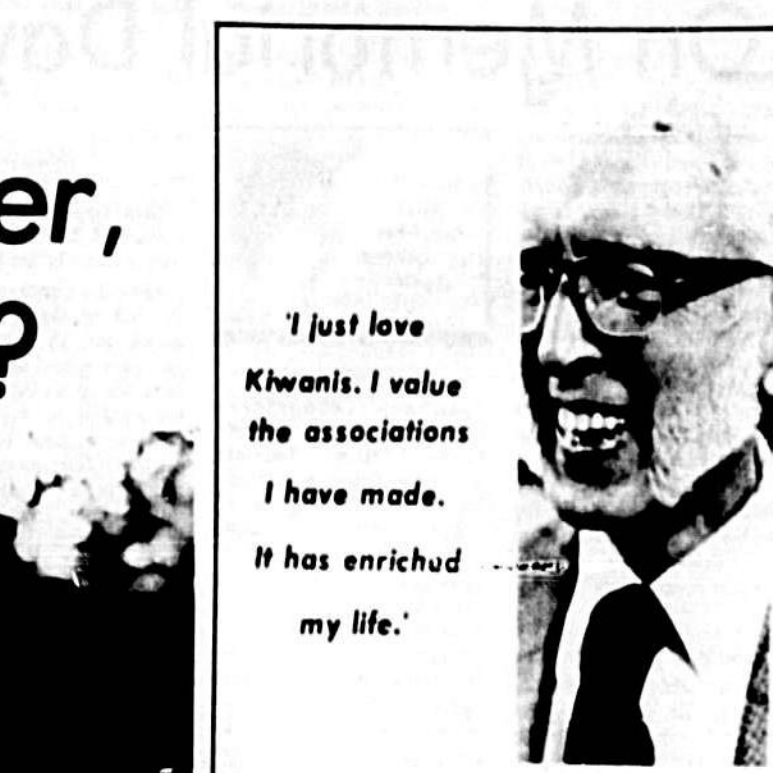

"And now we're having another peak on account of 'Star Wars.' It has gotten a lot of people who had never read science fiction to do so, she says, happily. Also, "Star Trek," she remembers to add.

Not being able to travel because of her health, Miss Norton, an avid reader, with vast knowledge of archeological finds, says "You have to comb — that's how you get a lot of ideas for stories."

And with contentation she refers to the many articles that "have been swept under the rug by archeologists because they don't fit in with our conventional idea of what reality happened."

Now these are being brought out.

RALPH A. SMITH

Ralph Smith: A Kiwanian With Pride

Ralph Austin Smith has been appointed secretary of the Kiwanis Club of Sanford, effective Oct. 1. Smith will continue to edit the weekly club "Bulletin."

A Kiwanis Club member for 14 years, Smith holds a record of 33 years past attendance, the highest in the club. He is a past president of the Sanford club, a past lieutenant governor for the state organization, a past district chairman of the Key Club committee, a district chairman for the UPC committee and has served on several Kiwanis international committees.

As editor of the Bulletin, he captured the Lloyd Gahr Cup on award for clubs having a membership of 60 to 80 members five out of six years.

Growth of the club placed it in another category, included the Miami Club, the largest of its kind in Kiwanis. But the competition was not too strong for Smith. The team that cup five times (a fact few know).

For this effort, the cup was awarded to him personally, and a new cup rated.

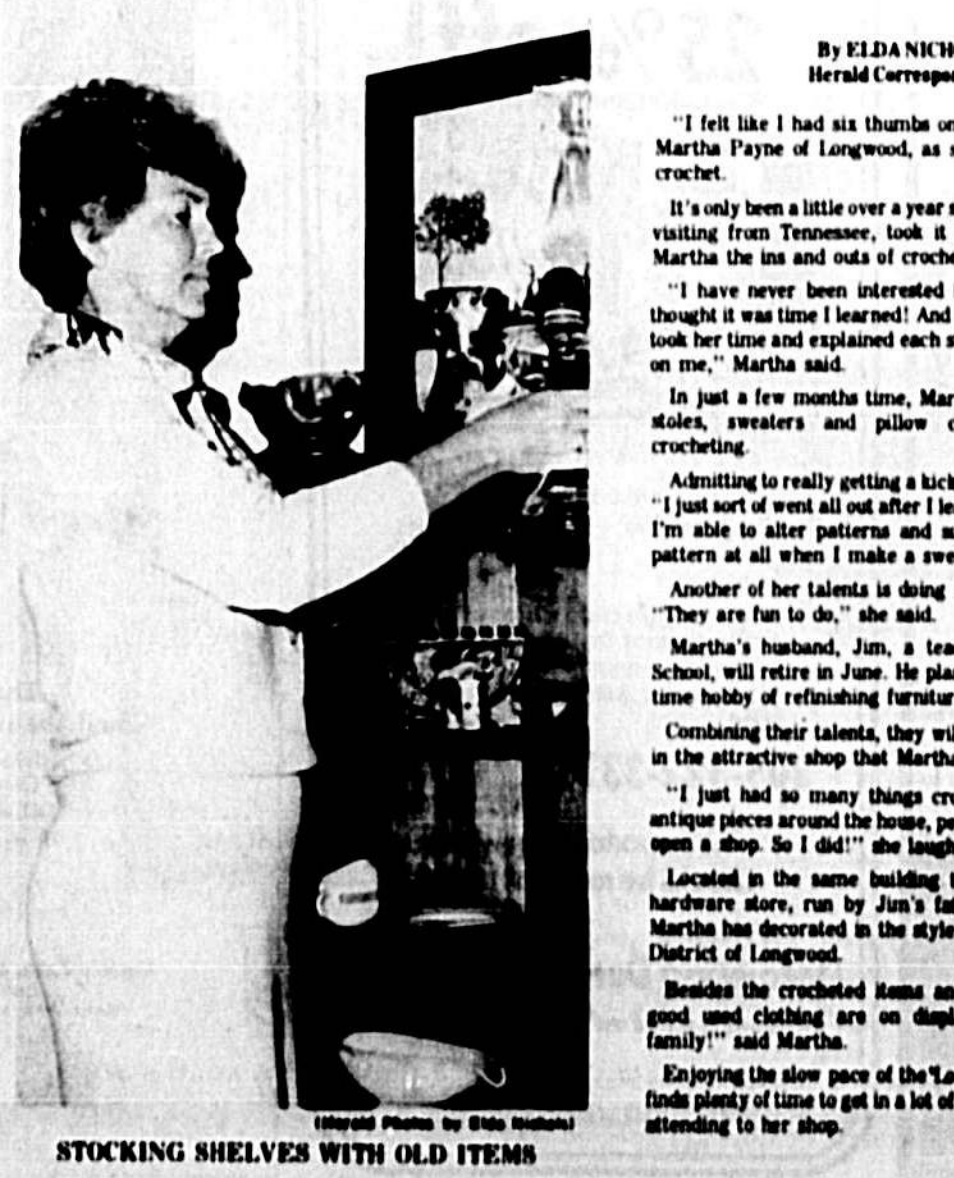

Smith, his wife, Charlotte, and their two sons and their wives are all graduates of the University of Alabama. A grandson wrote the $63,000 check to start the bank operation.

Smith has many outstanding accomplishments to his credit which extend to the national scene. But his first love is Kiwanis.

He sponsors the Sanford Kiwanis Club for helping underprivileged children and participation in civic activities.

"I just love Kiwanis," he said. "It has meant a great deal to me. I value the associations I have made. It has enriched my life."

Does She Dare Ask Return Of Silver?

DEAR ABBY: I am new in this community and have made many lovely new friends. I met a lady at church and invited her to my house for coffee and cake. It was then that I discovered that she is either a thief or a kleptomaniac, for when I went into the kitchen for a moment, and suddenly returned, I saw her open her large purse and drop my silver spoon and fork into it.

You can't imagine how shocked I was! Now I do not want to make a big issue of it by preferring charges against her, but I do want my silverware back as those pieces are sterling silver and are part of my set. Do I dare ask her to return them? And if so, how? I have told no one and do not intend to.

What should I do? Now I suspect that my daughter must be responding to these letters in equally filthy language, and since this girl is my daughter's best friend, I must assume that my daughter's tastes run toward dirty movies.

Don't these kids know that filling their minds and mouths with garbage will do them no good!

Should I write to this girl's mother and tell her to talk with her daughter? Should I talk with my daughter and tell her what I've learned? Or are we too late to shape our children's morals once they've reached their teens?

CONCERNED MOTHER

DEAR CONCERNED: If you have done your best to shape your daughter's morals, you need not consider yourself a "failure." Some teenagers feel "big" and grown-up using gutter language, exaggerating and even lying a little for effect, but that doesn't mean they are "so good" if they have been properly brought up (and even the best-reared children sometimes go through this stage), they will outgrow it.

At the appropriate time, subtly warn your daughter that muckling around in the lower registers of speech and entertainment can be habit forming. In the meantime, keep the avenues of communication open between you and your daughter, and don't shake her confidence in you by letting her know that you were snooping. You were, you know.

NEW IN TOWN

DEAR NEW: You are considerate, compassionate and nice. Television the lady and tell her you saw her take your silverware and would appreciate her returning it. Then tell her that you know there are people who have a compulsion to take things, which is an illness, so you "understand," will tell no one, and hope that she will seek professional help.

DEAR ABBY: I am so upset I hardly know how to start this letter. While straightening up my teen-age daughter's room, I came across a letter from a friend of hers in another state. I read it, partly out of curiosity, and partly to determine if it was something that could be discarded.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new book: "How To Be Popular; You'll Never Be Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a log, self-addressed, stamped (34 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Laaky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Donald Jacoby

break 4-3 and South has to find a way to get in three leads of hearts without getting rid of dummy's king of clubs.
Here is how he does it. At trick two he leads a heart to dummy. Then he plays a low heart and discards his losing diamond. East wins and leads a diamond (best). South wins in his own hand, enters dummy with the jack of trumps, ruffs a heart and runs off his trump.

More women have been reading science fiction the past ten years, she reveals. The trend has been away from "gadget" type of science fiction which has never been of great interest to women" to the sort of psychological science fiction — getting into the personal.

The only material required is a piece of plywood and a clock face.

My mother-in-law gave me a tip for baking fruitcakes and breads so they don't dry out while baking.
Bake them at 200 degrees with a pan of water in the bottom of the oven.

Jerrilyn Harris

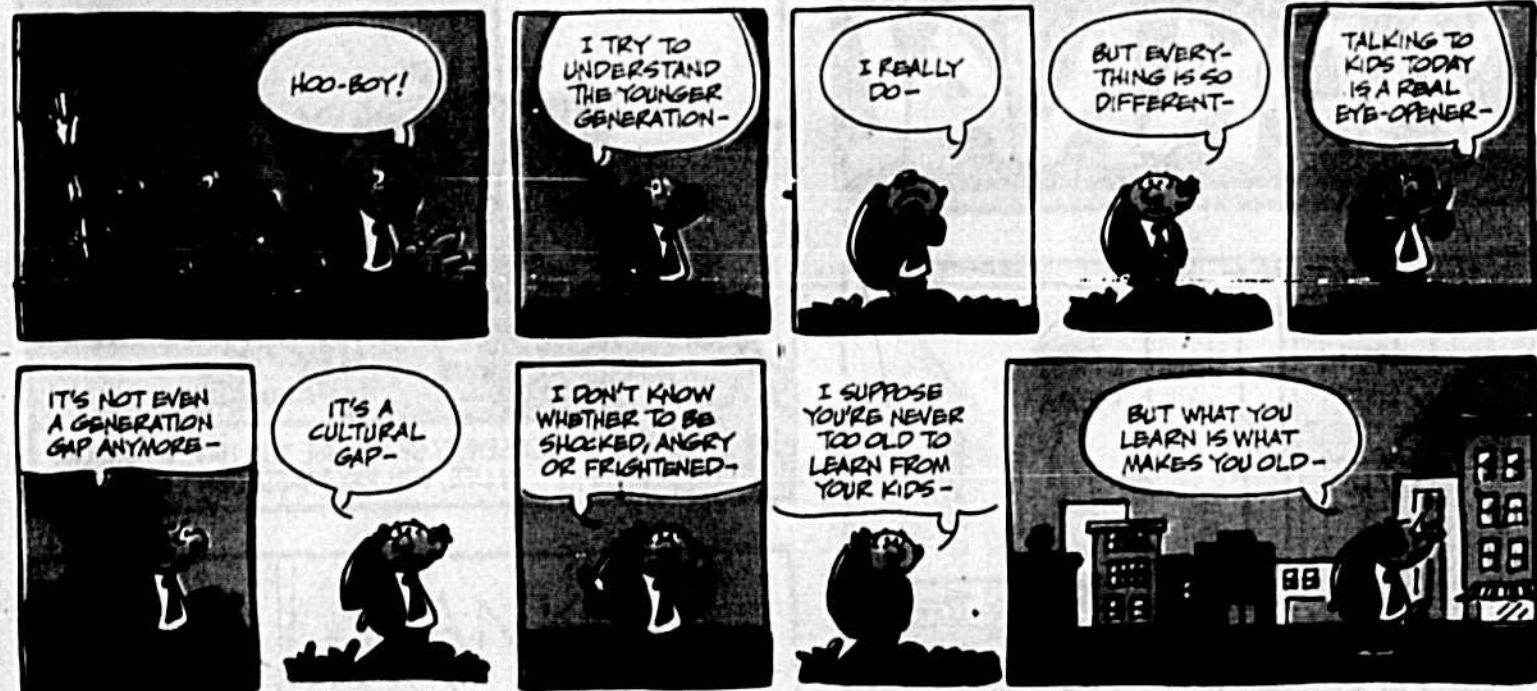

DEAR HELOISE:
Recently, when my husband needed work shirts we found a real bargain on permanent-press, long-sleeved dress shirts. The hitch was they had a single pocket and my husband needed two pockets.
I removed all the pockets and cut some of them lengthwise, leaving a point. Some of the pockets I cut across the material to a point.
Another way is to cut a piece of material from the shirttail to make an extra pocket and replace that bit of material with any kind of material.
After all, it won't show when the shirttail is tucked in the trousers...
Melodee

I then used white polyester to make two new pockets for each shirt and trimmed each pocket with a piece of the original pocket.
Result—a good supply of attractive permanent-press work shirts for under $4 each and a happy, well-dressed husband.

Sanford Couple Loses Son In Flooding

What Happened

The two-year-old son of a Sanford couple was one of at least six persons killed this weekend in flash flooding caused by heavy rain in Oklahoma and Texas which left thousands more stranded.

The boy, Robert Harden, son of Garvin and Peggy Harden was swept downstream after he and five others abandoned the car they were riding when it began to float from a flooded bridge they were crossing in Comanche County, Oklahoma. The boy's father is stationed at Ft. Sill Army base near Elgin, Okla.

The Hardens, their son, Robert, and a daughter, Angie, 5, as well as two family friends were in the car when the accident occurred about 9 p.m. Saturday.

As the car began to float away from the bridge, all six managed to get out, but the two family friends and the Harden boy floated downstream, according to Mrs. Harden.

She said she and her husband and daughter, however, became lodged in the water between the car and a tree. She said she pushed her daughter up the tree to safety and she and her husband clung to the branches until they were rescued.

The Hardens' friends were later rescued downstream, but the Harden boy had drowned before rescuers could get to him.

'We tried to save our kids by pushing them out the window to our friends.'

ROBERT HARDEN

By LEONARD KRANSDORF
Herald Staff Writer

"We were trapped and we couldn't go anywhere and couldn't do anything," said Peggy Harden in a steady voice as she tried to hold back her tears.

For Peggy, her husband Garvin, Memorial Day 1978 will be a time to remember—or forget—the day they lost their two-year-old child Robert in a flash flood in Oklahoma. Another child, Angie, escaped injury in the flooding.

For the Harden family the evening began on a pleasant note as, accompanied by friends, they were on their way to visit other friends. The six left in the same car.

But the happiness didn't last long as "before we knew what happened we were surrounded by water," recalled Mrs. Harden as she spoke today by telephone from a friend's home in Elgin, Okla.

The Hardens suffered minor injuries in the accident and are expected to return to Sanford this afternoon.

For the couple who were born and raised in Sanford it was not easy to recall the event that started shortly before 9 p.m. Saturday.

As their car began to cross a flooded bridge, it began floating away from the bridge and downstream.

"Things were just happening so fast and the water was moving so fast it was a very difficult time," said Mrs. Harden. She recalled that as soon as it became evident that they couldn't go any further, "we tried to save our kids by pushing them out the window to our friends."

However, while they were able to get Angie to safety, the powerful force of the water moved Robert and the friends downstream. The friends somehow managed to survive.

Soon after Angie was pushed up a nearby tree to safety the car was pushed up against the tree and the Hardens were trapped between the car and the tree.

"We were almost completely underwater, and Garvin was jumping up and down on my leg which was trapped under the car. Once he finally got me out, I managed to get his arm loose," she said.

The Harden boy clung to the tree for five hours before they were rescued.

"The couple finally made it to the hospital at four in the morning. We were lucky and grateful that we were rescued," she said.

They Don't Make Such Days...

By RICHARD L. GORDON
Herald Services

We stood in ragged formation in front of the school at the top of Main Street hill, fiddling our horns, scuffling with one another, hot and impatient in the glaring Midwest sun.

This was the first time I had played in the school band on Decoration Day. (That's what we always called it — not Memorial Day.)

It was Saturday, May 31, 1932.

Professor Lanou soon arrived on the scene, in shirt-sleeves but wearing the gilt-trimmed uniform cap he had worn when he was director of a circus band. He was a white-haired, black-browed, stumpy man, decisive and abrupt.

"Fall in!" he shouted. "Let's go!"

The drums set the tempo and we stepped off smartly. Professor Lanou had no college degree —

Civil War.

Next in the line of march were the Boy Scouts, staggering under the burden of heavy flags. Behind them were the men of the American Legion, many in World War I uniforms.

Benefit Cut Deadlock At Capitol

The state House and Senate deadlocked today over a proposed cut in retirement benefits for firefighters and law enforcement personnel.

Seminole County emergency services personnel have marshaled forces in opposition to the benefit cuts.

Seminole County Sheriff John Polk had mounted a petition drive with the aid of Seminole County fire and law enforcement departments to support a house bill that would leave the benefits at the present level.

The house proposal would also require fire fighters and law enforcement officers to pay 4.25 percent of their annual salary toward their retirement.

The Senate has approved a bill cutting benefits to emergency service personnel by one-third in an effort to reduce a $3.3 billion deficit in the state's retirement benefit fund.

Senate President Law Brantley asked House Speaker Don Tucker to join him in appointing a conference committee to resolve the controversy.

Entering the final week of the 1978 session, lawmakers are working to resolve a host of issues, including the budget, the old Capitol and insurance.

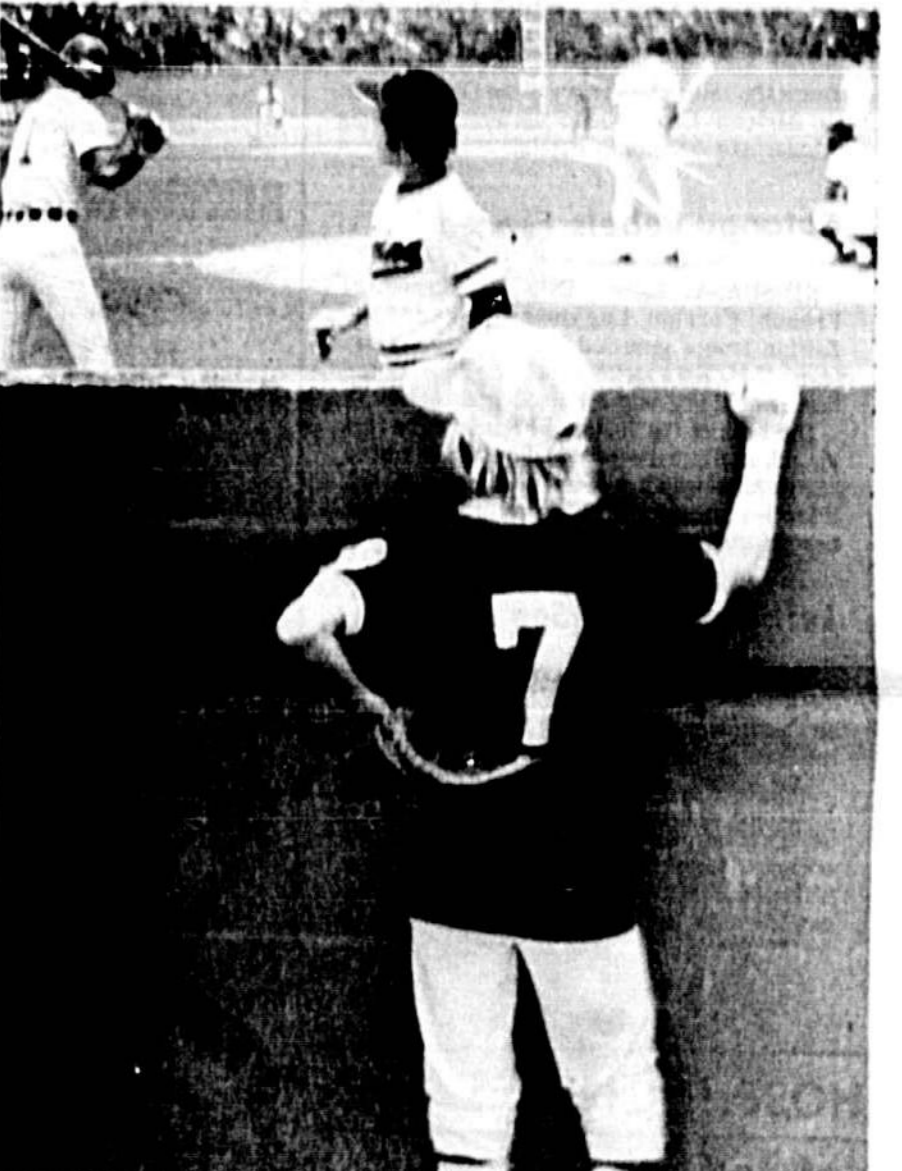

House-Senate conferences met today to work out the few remaining details on a $6.14 billion budget, so it can be sent to the floor of each chamber on Wednesday.

"We'll finish on Friday," predicted Brantley, assuring colleagues "we'll get out before midnight."

The $6.14 billion state budget ranks as the biggest single issue remaining.

A 16-member conference committee met this morning to finalize it for action on the House and Senate floors Wednesday.

A scaled-down package of tax breaks, designed to attract industry and business to Florida, must be voted out by the House and sent to the Senate.

SMALL FRY, BIG TIME

Brian Erwin, a 13-year-old small fry from the Deltona Senior Little League, finds a perfect spot to watch Sunday's Southern League baseball game at Sanford Memorial Stadium, where the Knoxville Sox defeated the Orlando Twins by a 3-1 score. About 10 fans attended the game, co-sponsored by the Deltona Little League.

Crowing Casselberry Rooster Frizzles Nerves, Sparks Feud

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

"I don't want to annoy anyone, but I want freedom to have on my own property what I want. Why should a chicken's crowing, a natural sound, 'His fowl mouth got him into trouble'?"

bother anyone? Actually he doesn't make any more noise than wild birds.

Although these are the personal feelings of Dennis Lewis of 560 Queens Mirror Circle, Casselberry, the crowing of his frizzled rooster did annoy two of his neighbors, who complained to the city council. Result: the eight-inch tall funny-looking frizzled rooster with curly feathers and a bright red bald head is being returned to the farm near Orlando from which he was purchased for $15 little more than two months ago.

"The problem... is too many newcomers' service in Angier, Pa., does a little building contracting and painting on the side.

A few years ago after completing a painting job the woman he was working for was kind enough to give him a fluffy white male cat called Fluffy. Shortly afterwards somebody else gave him another short-haired white cat called Six, even though it's a male.

Soon a female cat moved in and the cat population has since expanded to 10, six green cats and four kittens. Lewis, called Fluffy by his wife, and Grampa by the neighborhood children, has posted a sign in his front yard seeking homes for seven of the cats.

His menagerie contains more than the frizzled rooster and its mate and the cats, but the two neighbors have not complained about the other creatures.
