Premier Leaves Belgrade For Germany At Invitation Of Reich Government

Civilians Moved From Oil Fields

Nearly 800,000 German Soldiers Reported In Balkans

Yugoslavia's Premier Dragisa Vackovic left Belgrade for Germany today at the invitation of the Nazi government amid circumstances suggesting that Hitler may be planning pressure on the Balkan country for the passage of German troops.

Some quarters considered it possible that Hitler, perhaps uneasy over Russia's traditional "Slavic brother" protection of Bulgaria, would seek to send Nazi troops through Yugoslavia into Greece as an alternate route instead of through Bulgaria.

German planes were reported to have been seen in the Balkans and it was reported that German troops were being moved from the Balkans to the East. It was also reported that German troops were being moved from the Balkans to the East.

The new chief in general is reported to be a former member of the German government and is reported to be a former member of the German government.

New Airports Under Way To Defend Canada

Joint Defenses Commission Establishing System Urged; Cost Is $9,000,000

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, today approved, 15 to 6, the Administration's British bill in substantially the same form as voted by the House. It now goes to the Senate floor for debate, which will start Monday and which the committee hopes to restrict to two weeks.

The committee acted after rejecting a proposal by Senator Johnson (R-Cal.) and Ellender (D-La.) to restrict the President's authority to send American armed forces out of the Western Hemisphere.

OTTAWA, Feb. 12 (AP)—Air Minister C. G. Power announced today that a system of airports through Alberta and British Columbia leading to Alaska is being established by the Canadian government at a cost of about $9,000,000 as a defense measure.

Legion Registers War Veterans For Volunteer Service

Questionnaires Were Authorized By Convention In Boston

World War veterans in this section are being mailed a national defense questionnaire by the Campbell-Lossing Post of the American Legion in order to have a group available for "voluntary emergency service." Joel S. Field, commander of the post, said today.

Registration of veterans, Mr. Field pointed out, does not increase an individual's obligation beyond that of any citizen of the United States.

The securing of the information in the questionnaire was authorized by the 1940 National Convention of the Legion last November, which recommended that "all posts of the American Legion should engage in the registration of all World War veterans within the post's territorial limitations, and the keeping of a card index showing the names, addresses, and qualifications of such registered World War veterans for use in cases of possible emergency."

Sanford's veterans are asked to fill out the questionnaires as soon as possible and leave them at the American Hardware Store or bring them to the next meeting of the post Monday night, 7:00 o'clock. Tickets will be on sale until Monday at 10:00 a. m. at Perry Street Food Store, or at the corner of First and Second streets, or George Cook.

Citizen Protests Removal Of Clock And Light Tower

Corner Is Described As Only Safe One In Downtown Area

Another objection to the proposal made by the City Commission at its meeting Monday night to remove the clock and traffic light tower at Park Avenue and First Street came today from Mrs. W. I. Hughey, who points out that "for some time I have felt that corner was the only safe corner for cars or pedestrians."

Mrs. Hughey expressed her opinions in a letter to The Sanford Herald, which is as follows: "As a taxpayer, I have been very much interested in the discussion of removing the clock and tower. For some time I have felt that corner was the only safe corner for cars or pedestrians, and I often walk several blocks to cross there."

"It hasn't been but about a week ago I was nearly knocked down on the corner of Park Avenue and First Street, with no warning whatsoever. The clock is very convenient when shopping to be able to tell the time. It seems to me that the tower is much better than an overhead light, and does give some dignity to First Street."

The commission decides to remove the clock and light tower in an effort to relieve congestion at the corner, where an estimated 3,000 cars pass daily throughout the year.

Since it was erected 10 years ago, the tower has become a landmark in the downtown section, and the proposal to remove it and erect an overhead traffic light has resulted in a lively controversy.

Joel Field yesterday in a letter to The Herald pointed out six reasons why the tower should be left standing, and expressed the belief that if a straw vote were taken citizens would vote four to one in favor of leaving the clock and light as they now are.

Danger signals rocketed over the Far East area as the United States "urgently" advised American citizens in China, India, China and the Japanese Empire to return to the United States in the interests of "national security."

Rome announced that Mussolini and Spanish Generalissimo Francisco Franco had reached "complete agreement" on the roles of Italy and Spain in the war in European reorganization and on Mediterranean-African problems.

The Farmers' Friend

Florida farmers have a real friend in Tallahassee now that Spessard Holland has taken over the gubernatorial office. "January seventh was a day that we predict Florida farmers and growers will have many reasons to remember," says the Florida Grower, a magazine devoted exclusively to the interests of Florida farmers, in commenting on the inauguration of Gov. Holland.

"Our new chief executive is familiar with needs of the agricultural industry," the Florida Grower continues. "He sees farming as vital and places agriculture second only to education in importance to the welfare of Florida." Naturally farm producers of the state are at this time interested in qualifications that prepare Governor Holland to stand ready at all times to give a helping hand to their industry.

"During his years as state senator, Governor Holland greatly aided rural Florida. His efforts introduced and sponsored the land conservancy district act. He stood firmly behind legislation for rural electrification and for laws affecting the citrus, cattle, and numerous other state agricultural enterprises.

"As champion of the Florida Citrus Growers' association, the governor introduced the citrus industry's legislative program in 1939. Beneficial legislation he sponsored includes the 'frozen fruit' law, which not only increased consumer confidence in Florida fruit but also has created better markets.

"Florida's cattle industry was aided by the new governor following Georgia quarantine of our stock because of the tick epidemic. Governor Holland was one of a group who went to Georgia, at his own expense, and conferred with the governor and commissioner of agriculture for that state. Result—the quarantine was lifted.

"His was the first measure introduced into legislature making possible the farmers' frost and freeze forecast service. His proposals were adopted in a law requiring fertilizer manufacturers to designate secondary ingredients, for protection of farmers.

"What we farmers and growers can expect in our new chief at Tallahassee is summarized in three statements vividly remembered from Governor Holland's campaign addresses: "When the small agricultural producer is prosperous, the state is prosperous. My interest shall remain with the small producer and the small cattleman. I'll go the limit for agriculture in all its phases." It looks like happy times indeed for Florida farmers!"

An Old English Family

An interesting comment on the Beardall family, formerly of Sanford, now of Orlando, comes by way of W. R. O'Neal's column, "The Observer" in the Orlando Reporter-Star which should be of special interest to old-timers in this section, many of whom knew the family intimately. One of them, William Beardall, is now mayor of Orlando. Mr. O'Neal's comment is as follows:

"In 1883, a young Englishman, a civil engineer, who had been the representative of the English Geographical Society in Africa, came to Florida to represent the Florida Land and Colonization Company, an English corporation. He met his wife-to-be in New York; married, and settled in Melonville (now Sanford).

To them were born three sons, Harold M.; John R. and William. Moving from Sanford to Orlando in 1900 the three boys became a factor in the young life of Orlando.

Harold attended Porter Military Academy; graduated from the University of Louisiana as a physician; practiced his profession in New York, spent a year as army surgeon at Fort Leavenworth; enrolled in service in World's War; chief of medical service in base hospital, Brest, France, with title of major; and now serving Orlando as a commissioner of the Utilities.

John R. (Jack to his friends), graduated from the Naval Academy, Annapolis. He rapidly moved up the ladder; was naval attaché in London; stationed in Washington with Chief of Staff, and is now captain of one of the navy's large cruisers. William (Billy to his friends), graduate of the University of Virginia; good citizen; lawyer; captain in the World's War; and now Mayor of Orlando.

These three Englishmen by inheritance, the Beardalls, have given their all to the building of America. Today, John H. Beardall, Jr., son of Jack, is graduating from Annapolis, following in the footsteps of his father.

"A family of service to their adopted country! What a privilege it has been to Mother Beardall to see, and know of the splendid service her three sons have been able to give to make America great for democracy.

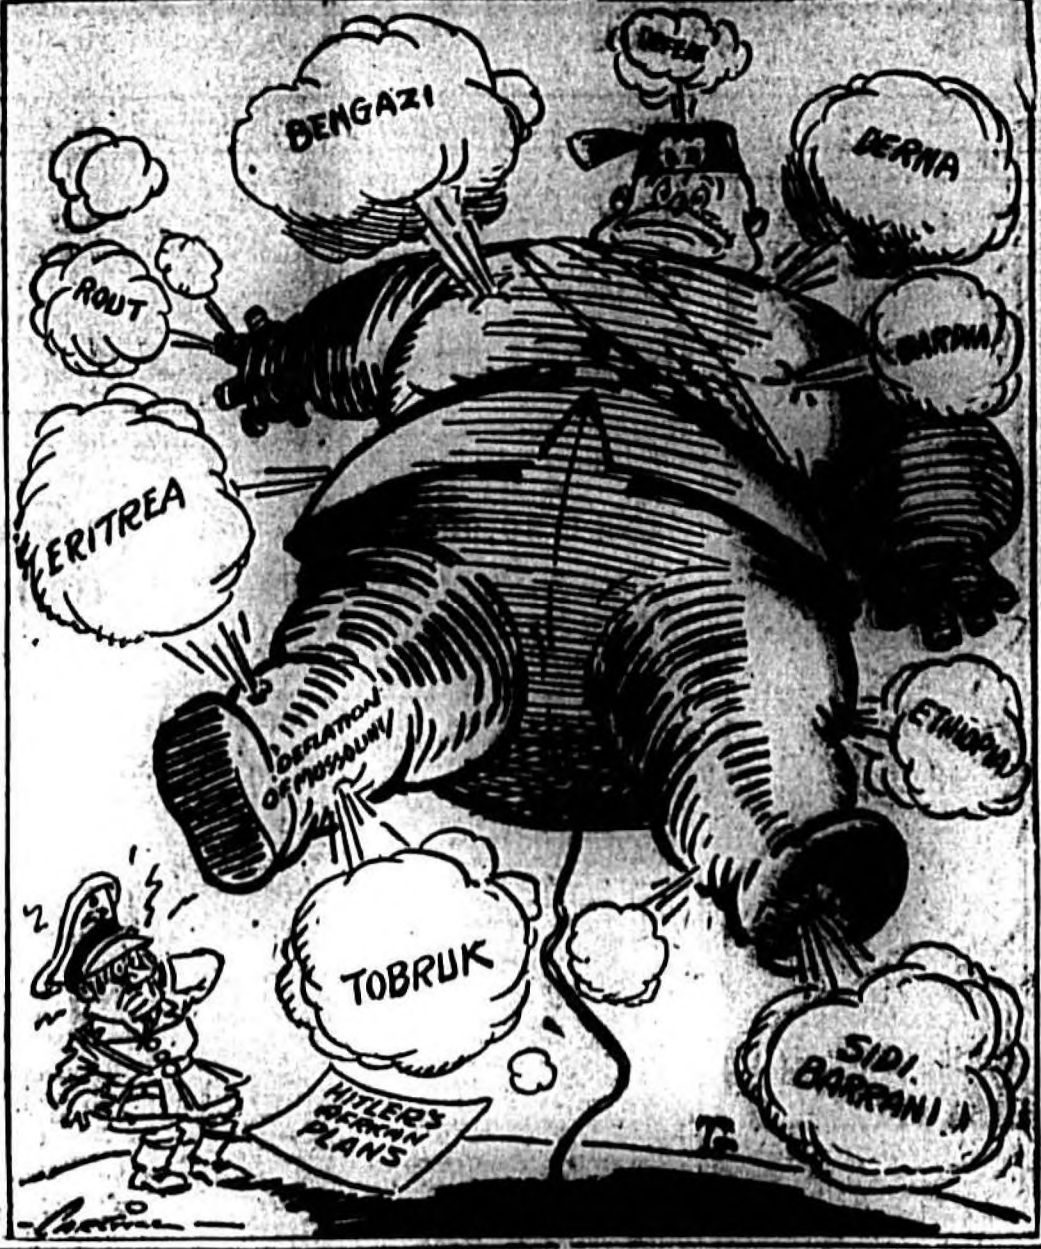

"May I express the appreciation of our people for that great service!"

END OF ANOTHER TRIAL BALLOON

Shortage Of Skilled Workers
 Washington Star

In pointing out in his recent address before the Emergency Committee of the Pittsburgh District, that rearmament faces a serious bottleneck in the shortage of skilled defense workers, Brigadier General H. K. Rutherford, director of the planning branch in the office of the Assistant Secretary of War, has sounded a timely warning. Though the production program for which contracts have been let is just starting, shortages of workers in some of the skilled categories already exist. To meet the urgent need of Great Britain for war for American industry to enlarge its production, thus creating a demand for thousands of new workers.

To prepare for this demand, General Rutherford urged industry to take immediate steps to train workers for defense jobs. Though it requires several years or more to school workers in some of the specialized defense skills, through vocational and on-the-job training, it will nevertheless be possible, in a comparatively short time, to increase the number of skilled and semi-skilled workers available to American industry.

The Defense Commission and other Federal agencies already have training programs in operation. These need to be supplemented, however, by training systems established by industry. In training as many defense workers as possible, thus preventing a delay in production arising from a shortage of workers, American industrialists can render a vitally important service to the country.

The Government ship construction program alone will require the employment of 250,000 more persons, most of them skilled or semi-skilled workers, between now and June, 1942, the Bureau of Labor Statistics recently estimated. These figures do not include the additional employees needed in the construction of ships for Great Britain and private enterprise. Surveys made by the bureau's experts show that other defense industries will also require, during the next few months, hundreds of thousands of workers.

According to census records, nearly 45 percent of all negro births are supervised by midwives. Less than 25 percent occur in hospitals. Among the white births only 24 percent are attended by midwives and 55 percent occur in hospitals.

Backlog Of Steel Is Called Serious

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The backlog situation in the steel industry is so serious that it "can scarcely be imagined except by some form of government intervention," the publication Iron Age asserted Wednesday.

"Passage of the lease-lend bill," it said, "will be followed by the placing of a considerable number of British-aid contracts, for which steel requirements are estimated at 2,000,000 to 4,000,000 tons."

Monument Considered On Anastasia Island

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The National Park Service disclosed Wednesday a national monument might be established embracing about 80 percent of Anastasia Island off St. Augustine.

Conrad L. Wirth, supervisor of recreation and land planning, said Secretary Ickes told a local committee in a letter that if the lands were made available without cost to the government, he would recommend that President Roosevelt establish the monument by executive order.

Books And Authors

The National Book Awards for 1940 were presented Tuesday afternoon at the Book and Author Luncheon held at the Hotel New York. These awards, presented annually by the American Booksellers Association, are given to the books chosen by the booksellers throughout America as (1) their favorite novel of the year, (2) their non-fiction, and (3) their "Discovery," that book most deserving of good sales which did not click, due either to poor advertising, conflict with bigger books, or for any other reason.

This year the booksellers chose as their favorite novel for 1940 Richard Jewell's "How Green Was My Valley," a book which dominated the best seller list for some months after its publication. The award for the favorite non-fiction of 1940 went to Hans Sniess' "As I Remember Him," an autobiography covering a portion of his colorful life. Mr. Sniess died recently and the award will be presented to a representative of the publishing firm. The bookseller's "Discovery" for 1940 was "Who Walk Alone" by Percy Burgess. This is a gripping, non-fiction tale of a young soldier who, several years after serving with the Army in the Philippines finds that he had contracted leprosy. After all attempts to cure him have proved futile, he is sent to the leper colony in the Philippines where he finds a new life and happiness working among his fellow unfortunates.

Last year's awards went to "The Grapes of Wrath" as the favorite novel, to "Wind, Sand and Stars" the favorite non-fiction and to "Axtaral" by Elgin Greecelac as the "Discovery." In addition to these, an award was presented to Dr. Frank's "Johnny Got His Gun" as the most original novel of 1939 and new original it was.

Guest speakers at Tuesday's luncheon included John Kierman, President Paul Sargent, John E. King and Richardson Wright. It frequently happens that a good book fails for one reason or another to receive the recognition that it deserves. It may be that its publication coincides with that of a best-seller that all readers feel that they must read, or it may be that it is published before its time, or there may be other reasons. In any case such a book is in danger of being largely forgotten. The Readers Club, 41 East Fifty-seventh Street, New York City, plans to remedy this situation by including new editions of books which the public has overlooked. The first of these books is to be published on March 15. The tentative schedule for the first year "book club" is as follows: March, "William" by E. H. Young, with a foreword by Carl Van Doren; April, "The Far Away Bride," by Stella Benson, with a foreword by Clifton Fadiman; May, "Hindoo Holidays" by J. R. Ackerly, with a foreword by Alexander Woolcott;

Getting ready for love's day of days, St. Valentine's Day, modern girls are prepared to exhibit their hearts, but apparently anywhere except on their cheeks. Betty Lou Gerson (left), radio actress, designed this gown with the cupid motif on the back to wear at a St. Valentine's party. Rita Hayworth (right), screen player, wears her heart on her head.

June, "The History of Polly" by H. G. Wells, with a foreword by Sinclair Lewis. The club is directed by George Mack and the authors supplying the material to the club are books and the committee which select the titles to be published.

An authorized biography of John Barrymore - "The Legend and the Man," by Alan Watts, with a foreword by J. Brooks Atkinson, is to be brought out in March by Julian Messner. The author is a former actress whose husband was general manager for Barrymore's "My Children" and whose daughter appeared as one of the children in that play. Barrymore's only request when he authorized the publication was "The club also don't what's in the published version as long as it has been granted."

from the University of Wisconsin in 1918, having majored in English. In 1919 she was married to Charles A. Rawlings, a writer. Her first visit to Florida came almost by chance. In 1926 she went to see her husband's brothers in North Florida and liked the look of the country. In 1928, the Rawlings moved down.

Alma Deer Miller's tribute to England, "The White Cliffs," is a poem which has struck the fancy of the American people. Ever since publication it has held a steady higher on the nation's best-seller lists. Today these stirring lines from "The White Cliffs" are being and reaching all over America: I have seen much to hate here, but in a world where England is faint and dead, I do not wish to live.

THE VANISHING VIRGINIAN, by Rebecca Vanecey Williams. Robert Vanecey, "Captain Bob" Vanecey of Lynchburg and the Virginian pulp, was Commonwealth's Attorney of Lynchburg for the thirty-four years that ended with 1920. As a prosecutor he was given to provoking dignified members of the bench with extravagantly fanciful oratory, incurring fines for contempt, and retorting that the court was guilty of contempt of justice. As a citizen, husband, and father-in-law he was an exponent of irascible temper, untrammelled speech, and irresistible charm. (He once roared over the telephone at the manager of an express company that held up a

The daughter who wrote this book suppressed it for several years because of its resemblance to "Life With Father" which came out before she got it finished. The writing is not Clarence Day's - whose would be? - but the character is as real, as preposterous, and at times as funny as any half-way responsive reader can bear.

Two of the matches in yesterday's round went extra holes and three others were decided on the eighteenth green. Jack Ryerson, Cooperstown, N. Y., stole the show with a 2-and-1 win over Strafaci. Trailing two down after playing the first four holes, Ryerson began firing birdies in startling fashion to card a three-under par 34 on the front nine in the face of a stiff cross wind from the sea. His hot pace gave him a two-up lead at the turn and he held the match during an exciting back stretch drive.

ORLANDO, Feb. 13.—(Special) Exposition Park in Orlando has become a busy, bustling place in the last few days, as preparations are being made for the opening of the 32nd Annual Central Florida Exposition on Monday, Feb. 18.

The big Orlando fair will be in progress six days and six nights, closing on Saturday night, Feb. 23.

The officials described Orlando as the "Central Florida" filled up with winter visitors, prosperous people, as well as with many thousands of U. S. Army officers and men, and anticipated that the crowds would be even larger than the expected.

Missing $675,000 Located In Miami

MIAMI BEACH, Feb. 13.—(AP) The $675,000 "treasure hunt" at the palatial Star Island home of Roe Wells, New York doughnut millionaire, came to an end last night.

While it lasted, the hunt was more fun than an Easter egg party, but was headed by Chief of Detectives Cagener, an assistant, two Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, Mr. and Mrs. Roe Wells, one of their trusted servants, Mr. Wells had previously reported that $475,000 in cash and $200,000 in jewels were missing Tuesday.

They found $100,000—25 of them—hidden in a leather bag and $300,000 worth of jewels hidden in two pits in Mrs. Wells' sewing room. In addition to the $100,000 bills, there was one $500, one $50, one $20 and one $5.

Vast New Market For Citrus Seen

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(Special)—A vast new market for Florida citrus fruits in four states—an area containing more than 20,000,000 people—may be opened in time for the 1941-42 marketing season, if Congress enacts legislation giving the Interstate Commerce Commission jurisdiction over minimum truck weights and sizes.

The new market which would be opened include Kentucky, Illinois, Ohio and Indiana. This area, for all practical purposes, is now barred from truck shipments from Florida because of Kentucky's 18,000-pound maximum limit on trucks passing through that state.

The Census Bureau has recorded 600,176 cases of twin births in 23 years. According to census figures, the odds are 38 to one in favor of a single birth as opposed to twins.

Army men examine the wreckage of the speedy pursuit ship, a Curtiss P-40, in which First Lieut. Jake H. Eakin, 25, lost his life. The ship was in a formation of the P-40's, out of Mitchell Field, when it collided in mid air over Farmingdale, L. I., with a plane in the formation. Part of the other plane landed and is to be seen.
