

Anonymous Sniper Continues Attacks In Frightened City

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 20.—(AP)—A man walking with friends on a south Philadelphia street early today was mysteriously wounded by a bullet his companions said they did not hear fired.

Richard C. Lavery, 54, was admitted to St. Agnes Hospital in critical condition. He was the eighth target of an unexplained shooting spree in recent weeks. Detective Sgt. Harry McCann said he had been unable to discover any link between the wounding of Lavery and the slaying of Mrs. Claire Cohen in her West Oak Lane home last Saturday night. The two shootings took place in opposite ends of the city, more

In the House, immediate consideration of this legislation was blocked by an objection from Rep. Hallock (R-Ind.).

Chairman McClellan (D-Ad) of the Senate committee told a reporter the group will call in Charles E. Wilson, director of the new office of Defense Mobilization, to justify the reorganization proposal before deciding its fate.

House Democratic leader, McClellan suggested a general manufacturers' excise tax as a means of gathering additional billions to put the defense effort on a pay-as-you-go basis.

This was his answer to newsmen's questions on how Congress can raise the $16,000,000,000 needed to balance out the defense budget.

Manufacturers excise taxes already are in effect on some products, including refrigerators, ra-than five miles apart. Police have said they believe Mrs. Cohen was killed and several other persons wounded in recent weeks by a man whose identity is being withheld out of respect for the family.

Lavery was shot in the back, the slug passing through his chest and entering near his heart. Police who recovered the bullet said it appeared to be of .32 caliber and could have been fired either from a pistol or rifle.

Lavery and two companions, James J. Durning and Roger Regan, had just left the headquarters of the Durning String Band, one of the musical organizations which performs each year in Philadelphia's famed New Year's Day Mummers parade. Durning is president of the band association.

The three men were walking toward Durning's car shortly after 1 A.M. when Lavery collapsed, mumbling "I'm shot." Durning and Regan told McCann they did not see who fired the shot, nor from what direction. They said they recalled hearing only a "bang" before Lavery stumbled and fell.

Police quickly threw a cordon around the area and made an intensive search, but said later they had found no trace of the gunman. The new shooting intensified the widespread police search for the sniper. The police said their best lead so far has come provided by two teen-age boys who reported Monday night that a prowler, surmising what might have been a rifle, frightened them while they were hunting for objects on the porch of their home. The boys told police the man wore an unusually long black coat and black derby, was of medium size and drove away in a dark coupe.

dies, television sets, tobacco and whiskey. They are paid by the manufacturer and usually added to the price of the product.

"During this state emergency, with the national debt already where it is," McCormack said, "it is vital that we meet the expenses of the emergency as they arise."

President Truman signed legislation extending rent controls to Mar. 31, 1951. The 90-day extension was voted by Congress at Mr. Truman's request. The idea is to give the incoming Congress time to review the national housing picture in the light of changed conditions created by the defense emergency.

Without the interim extension, rent controls would have expired Dec. 31 except in those communities acting to retain them until June 30.

Meanwhile Union labor has demanded that any government wage controls plan allow for pay increases to match rises in the cost of living.

A united labor policy committee, headed by AFL President William Green and CIO President Philip Murray, took this request to President Truman even as the Economic Stabilization Agency worked on a wage formula to go along with the voluntary price control system announced last night.

Members of the group said they also asked new legislation to permit greater controls over food prices and rents.

They gave reporters a statement which made these main points as to wages:

1. Any wage stabilization policy must permit adjustment of wage rates to make up for increases in the cost of living and "must recognize existing collective bargaining agreements which themselves assure stability."

2. That would protect the cost-of-living adjustment feature in contracts covering 85 industries, including the huge automobile industry.

3. Overtime payments for premium work now protected by collective bargaining agreements or existing law, that in work over 40 hours a week in the case of law, "must continue to be held inviolate."

President Truman also decided today to make another show of his confidence in Secretary of State Acheson by arranging to meet him late tonight at the airport upon his return from Brussels.

Mr. Gladstone Meredith, R. No. 107 2nd Valley Station, Ky., who works with Kierphage Florists in Louisville, says that while he's not an expert on flowers and plants, he does know that when the proper soil, sunshine and minerals they really do blossom out, and that folks are the same way—if one doesn't get the proper Vitamin A and Minerals needed, one feels miserable a lot of the time.

Here is Mr. Meredith's own statement on how HADACOL helped him:

"Before I started taking HADACOL I didn't have a bit of appetite—seems like food didn't appeal to me a bit. Couldn't sleep either—sometimes I'd lay awake for hours before I'd get some rest. I was just as jumpy as I could be. I was really in sorry shape. Then I heard how other folks with the same trouble I had were being helped by HADACOL. I can say that after the first few bottles I could tell a definite improvement. Now I feel first rate—have a wonderful appetite—get plenty of sleep and am not the least bit nervous. I think HADACOL is wonderful—I would never do without it myself."

There Are Thousands of folks all over the country whose systems were deficient in Vitamin B1, B2, Iron, and Nicotinamide. HADACOL can help you, too, if you will just give HADACOL a chance—if you suffer from stomach distress, certain nervous disturbances, insomnia when due to upset stomach, varicose veins and pains, or a general run-down condition when they are due to such deficiencies, let HADACOL help you as it has helped others all over the country.

Give remarkable HADACOL a chance. Remember, you have nothing to lose. HADACOL will make you feel better after the first few bottles you take, or your money will be refunded. Only $1.25 for Trial Size; Large Family or Hospital Size, $3.50. If your drug store does not have HADACOL, order direct from The LeBlanc Corporation, Lafayette, Louisiana.

Miss Betty Jo Brock Is Guest At Luncheon

Mrs. Julius Dinsfelder and Miss Margaret Dinsfelder entertained with a luncheon for Miss Betty Jo Brock, popular bride-elect, on Wednesday, at the Anchor's private dining room.

The guests were seated at one large table, which was decorated with two silver hairloom candelabra, centered with a candle "wedding cake." Garlands of magnolia leaves and white stars and chrysanthemums carried out the bridal motif. Interlocked "silver wedding rings" lay before each place setting. The mantel held a small white Christmas tree and tall white holiday candles, festooned by white bells and tulle bows. Rare cards carried an allusion of the guests' names.

After the luncheon, the honoree received a serving piece in her silver pattern and a crystal platter from the hostesses. Miss Catherine Clark was presented with two crystal vases.

Those invited to be with Miss Brock were: Mrs. Nancy Brock, Mrs. Ralph Loring, Mrs. Herbert Moreland, Mrs. George Andrew Speer and Mrs. E. C. Terwilliger, Jr., Mrs. Dion Baker, Miss Lily Boyle, Miss Catherine Clark, Miss Daphne Connolly, Miss Elsie Hutchison, Miss Tol Livingston, Miss Jean Sayer, Miss Nancy Williams.

Miss Mary Touchton Honored With Shower

Miss Bobbye Morton entertained Friday evening honoring Miss Mary Touchton, bride-elect, with a kitchen shower.

The party rooms were decorated with Christmas berries, silver bells, and an attractive Christmas scene featuring Santa Claus, his reindeer, and a miniature bride and groom. A lighted Christmas tree completed the holiday motif. Party prizes were awarded Mrs. A. B. Lacey, Mrs. George Wells, and Miss Betty Cullum, and the many lovely shower gifts were presented to Miss Touchton in a large white fish pan tied with a bright red ribbon.

Refreshments consisting of open-face sandwiches, potato chips, decorated cakes, mints, and hot chocolate were served to the following: Mrs. George Wells, Mrs. E. A. Monforton, Mrs. Loretta, Mrs. Fay Lee, Mrs. Charles Scudder, Mrs. Dewey Matthews, Mrs. H. O. Touchton, Mrs. Arthur Beckwith, Jr., Mrs. Less Watson, Mrs. Al Douney, Miss Nancy Williams, and Miss Betty Cullum. Miss Morton was assisted in serving by her mother, Mrs. R. L. Morton and Miss Cullum.

Birthday Party Given For Suzanne Faile

A birthday party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Faile Monday afternoon for their little daughter, Suzanne.

The rooms were attractively decorated with Brazilian pepper and a lovely Christmas tree. Refreshments were served to the young guests from a table centered with a gum-drop tree, and each child received a hat, a balloon, a small toy, and a Christmas stocking as favors.

Mrs. Yvette Oldaker, Mrs. Neazie Cameron, and Mrs. Dorothy Carroll assisted Mrs. Faile with the party.

Those enjoying the party with Suzanne were Shannon Gans, Cass Lou Pinkston, Linda Lonsberg, Darle Lyn Adams, Susan Cornell, Cathy Gebr, Linda and Sally Spencer, Linda and Billy Ball, Bonnie Hall, Carl Lee, Skipper Fandom, Vicky and Marilyn White, Patsy Kaler, and Bill Williams.

Bag Of Toys Brought To Deserted Children

Four children whose mother had deserted them, whose father is ill and who wondered if Santa Claus would remember them for Christmas got a joyous surprise Tuesday night when the lawshaker, agent from the North Pole brought a big bag of toys and clothing just for them.

It happened at the Christmas party of the Bell Telephone Co. Woman's Club at the Sanford Telephone Exchange, and there was hardly a dry eye among the more than 50 operators and employees of the company and their families as they viewed the delight of the children, the oldest six years old, when Santa piled gifts on the kiddies' laps.

The children were guests of the telephone employees who had been informed about them by the County Welfare Board. Refreshments were served.

Mrs. Thomas A. Cobb is president of the Club, and was assisted in the program by a committee that included Mrs. Marion Conway, Mrs. E. A. Martin, Mrs. H. E. Patton and Miss Arlene Davis.

of the Sunday School will participate in the pageant. Robert Baker, a member of the Young Adult Class of the Sunday School, is the director. Mrs. George Touhy, organist and choir director for the First Presbyterian Church, will have charge of the music used during the service. The public is cordially invited to attend the special service.

Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Lally have gone to Las Vegas, Nev. to spend the holidays.

Friends of Mrs. A. F. Kemp will be sorry to learn of the death of her brother, which occurred suddenly on Dec. 19 in Tampa.

Miss Gratta Green and her guest, Mrs. Bertha Field of brother, Eugene have as their guest, Mrs. Bertha Field of Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Anderson attended the Christmas Tree Sunday afternoon, given yearly by Mrs. A. R. Bogue of Orlando to some 100 under privileged children.

Mrs. G. E. Sjoblom has as her guest, her granddaughter, Jean Mullins, during the school holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Sjoblom have as their guests their daughter, Miss Mary Sjoblom, of Baltimore.

After spending the summer and fall in Cleveland, the Misses Edith and Clara Speers have arrived in Lake Mary for the winter.

The Westminster Fellowship group of the Community Church sponsored a covered dish supper Friday night. Following the meal, they entertained with a skit called "School Days in Tater Hollow."

Actors, from their group were Yvonne Eubanks, Pat Rattigan, Rochelle Eubanks, Pat Keough, Donald Westmoreland, George R. Patterson, Jr., Walter Weiderhold and Phillip Toney.

A fishing party, going to Titusville, Saturday consisted of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Hyden, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Hunkins and Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Russell.

Robert Lippincott, Scout executive, met with the members of the Lake Mary Scout Committee Friday night. He went over the accomplishments of the past year and outlined objectives for 1951.

With him were Mrs. Lippincott and their small daughter. Attending the meeting were Wm. H. Pugh, chairman, C. W. Weiderhold, H. E. True, P. D. Anderson, M. C. Smith.

scarcely write their own names and don't know T. S. Eliot from Yogi Berra.

Richard Carlson says there may have been semi-literate actors years ago, but they are outmoded today.

"The current crop of movie actors is a pretty hep bunch," said Carlson. "A good number of them have gone to college and are well-informed generally. Guys like John Lund, Bill Lundigan, William Holden, MacDonald Carey and Ronald Reagan, to name a few."

Also, the acting fraternity boasts three Phi Beta Kappans—Franchot Tone, John Howard and Richard Carlson.

Carlson denied that he and the other two key-holders get together to hold meetings and sing old Greek songs. Indeed, he has little time for such things since his African jaunt. The Congo brought a burst of activity to his double career as writer and actor.

Last year Carlson was not exactly flourishing. One of those capable but unappreciated actors who are not always rewarded by Hollywood, he had played a year of "Mister Robert" in Chicago.

Back in Hollywood, he was faced with a dilemma. He could have a meaty role in the movie version of an artistic play. Or he could have a mediocre part in an epic for which he would have to spend a half year or more in Africa.

Carlson chose the epic. "I figured it is better to have even a mediocre role in a hit than a good role in a picture that wouldn't make any money," he explained.

Well, the African epic is a bit and things have been happening to Carlson ever since. Producers have been after his services and he is in the happy position of being able to turn down pictures.

But the big news of the Carlson career is his writing. When he returned from the Congo, he penned his experiences and sold them for a serial in Collier's. Mind you, this was without the aid of a ghost writer. The articles were reprinted in Reader's Digest and a publisher even sought book rights.

Not only that, Columbia hired Carlson to write the story for a jungle picture. And next year he will return to Africa with his family and write and produce a series of films for television.

I asked him the mussy old question about whether he preferred to write or act.

"That's like saying who do I like best—my wife or my two sons," he joked. But he added: "writing gives the most satisfaction because you have more control over it; in acting you are the pawn of so many other elements. Writing is also harder work."

Capsule Review: "Halls of Montezuma" is a fine tribute to the U. S. Marine Corps. Like many other war films, it is the story of a small fighting unit in action. But unlike most of the others, the characters are sharply defined and well-acted. The only drawbacks are an occasional overflow of sentiment and too great length. Richard Widmark gets far away from his slicker killer roles and gives a sincere view of the school-teacher-Marine. The rest of the cast is excellent. Especially Walter (Jack Palance), one of the finds of the year.

GM's Battle On Price Freeze May Be Curtain-Raiser To Other Squabbles

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP)—General Motors' fight against a price rollback for cars is probably just a curtain-raiser. Other squabbles seem sure to succeed each other endlessly as the government tries out voluntary controls first, and then piecemeal mandatory controls of prices and wages, industry by industry.

All oil refiners may be next, the government warns today as it bears down on west coast producers.

But General Motors' stand—if it couldn't sell its cars at prices it calls reasonable, it wouldn't sell them at all—makes a thriller out of the curtain-raiser. This is especially so since GM is standing alone in this, although the rest of the auto industry has no love for the price rollback either.

The giant motor company apparently is so confident of its sales position in the highly competitive auto market, that it doesn't mind getting out for a time while the Economic Stabilization Agency reviews the company's argument that rising material and labor costs justify the price hike it made on 1951 models.

Also GM apparently is so confident of the continuing demand for cars that it believes it can sell, later on, as many units as it can find the raw materials to make. Scattered reports from around the country that used car prices have risen this week would seem to bear this out. And GM doubtless expects that should it hold its price down, the gray market would return, with the new cars it sells at list prices quickly moving into a premium "new-used" market.

The auto company also is apparently confident of the support of its workers in its stand that higher prices are justified although in the past auto labor

U. S. Army First Cavalry Division, 443.

Other U. N. forces, 1,011.

The heavy First Marine Division and Army Seventh Division losses were suffered during the bloody battles around the Changjin Reservoir in Northeast Korea and their fighting retreat to Koto and the Hungnam beach-head.

Headquarters said "unofficial, persistent and speculative casualty reports from the Korean theater continue the artificial nature of 'blatant' that has been given to U. N. military operations."

It said the losses were not out of line in comparison with those suffered in similar pullback operations in 1950.

"Experience tables" normally consider about one percent of overall troops strength a day as a "common yardstick," the summary said. "The casualties of every category on all fronts in Korea are well within this bracket."

It said total losses in the Korean war "have" been "battered" and "proximated" the battle losses in certain comparable operations of World War II."

Headquarters said the Allied withdrawal after a battle of Sinsanju in northwest Korea "was not dictated by battle losses or the acceptance of defeat."

The pullback was made, the summary continued, because of "the obvious discrepancy between the Chinese Communists and the U. N. potential." It said 12 Allied Divisions were confronted by 27 Chinese Divisions, "only 25 percent of China's organized military manpower."

Headquarters said between 15 and 25 additional Chinese divisions were "brought in" along the Yalu and within Manchuria."

The withdrawal from Sinsanju through the Red Korean capital of Pyongyang to the present Eighty Army line near the 38th Parallel was made at a time when MacArthur said China was committing 1,000,000 men to Korea.

The summary said of the withdrawal: "Under such conditions, the assumption of the defensive in a position of readiness and a tightening of frontages is an almost commonplace military maneuver."

tion. "We have little need for large armies unless we are going to Europe or China," he said. Land war with the Communist masses in Asia or Western Europe "would be the graveyard of millions of American boys and would end in the exhaustion of this Gibraltar of western civilization."

Mr. Hoover said Western European nations should arm themselves with combat divisions of "huge numbers" before the United States lands "another man or another dollar on their shores."

His demand for a new foreign policy came one day after President Truman named General Dwight D. Eisenhower as supreme commander of Western European forces and said additional U. S. troops would be sent there as soon as possible.

Mr. Hoover said his suggested foreign policy would make it possible for this country to carry on indefinitely, even if the Communists attacked its defense rim. Meanwhile, he added, Americans could hope that other non-Communist peoples would rise in their own defense, and that Communism would break down of its own weaknesses.

Adding to his prepared text, Mr. Hoover said "I devoutly hope a maximum cooperation can be established between the British Commonwealth and ourselves."

He urged that the United States free Japan and help her rearm; stiffen the defenses of Formosa and the Philippines; reduce non-military expenses, balance the budget and roll back inflation; aid other nations that show "spirit and strength" in defending themselves against Communism; and engage in no appeasement anywhere—"no more Tehrans and Yalta's."

Mr. Hoover proposed that the United Nations take these actions against Communist China, declare it an aggressor, refuse it membership, demand that U. N. members cease supplying it with military useful goods; and adopt a resolu-

JINGLE BELL FOUR
WITH a smile Mrs. Santa Claus turned to the ill-tempered helper and said: "Dando, bring the sleigh around to the door in less than 10 minutes. I am going to run the Christmas business this year. Do you know the children that live in the poor section of the town?"

"Yes, ma'am," he replied in a loud voice. "And the children in the orphanage?"

"Certainly, ma'am. Every one of them." He put his hand on his heart and bowed very low.

"And, Dando, if you know of any crippled or blind, or sick children in your neighborhood"—Dando lived in the Working Men's Lane—"we'll drop big bundles of nice things there."

At this announcement Dando stood on one leg, then on the other, and finally being unable to hold back his delight any longer, he reared the door and turned a double somersault in the hall.

For didn't Dando have a little daughter—who was so anxious for a music box? And didn't he know of a beautiful one that played five lovely tunes, packed in Santa's sleigh? He was sure the grand old lady would give it to her.

As this was a new business for Mrs. Santa Claus, of course she didn't have anything suitable to wear.

"I'll dress up in Santa Claus' clothes," she said to herself. So she put on his red and white coat and his big red cap trimmed with soft white fur.

The coat was so large it wrapped twice around her, and the fur cap kept slipping down over her nose. "Santa Claus can't help that. You know he has nothing of his own to give. Other people provide the things, and all he has to do is to obey orders and go where he is sent. "Dando," she whispered confidentially, "I believe he will really be glad about it. He has been terribly worried lately because it has seemed to him that Christmas wasn't exactly what it ought to be. "The rich children have all the good things and the nicest of presents and so many poor children never have anything at all. "Santa Claus can't help that. You know he has nothing of his own to give. Other people provide the things, and all he has to do is to obey orders and go where he is sent. "I am so glad that I don't know where one of those gifts belong, but they certainly won't be thrown away. Oh, Dando! The poor children shall have a beautiful Christmas this year!" "Then over the hills and through the valleys and into the cities and towns and villages, dashed the sleigh with its load of glittering treasures, and dear Lady Santa Claus was as happy as a child. And Prancer and Dancer, and Dunder and Blitzen, and Marly and Persin and Yak-Yak and Dando were excited with joy, but Santa lay in his night cap and dressing gown, fast asleep. (To Be Continued)

Youth Is Wounded As Insane Sniper Eludes Police Net

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Two more Philadelphians have been killed by mystery bullets but police say they are not sure either ambush can be imputed to the sniper sought for seven previous shootings.

Sixteen-year-old George Haller, Jr., was killed by an unknown assailant last night while he was walking on a street in the Juniata Park section, some 10 or 15 miles from where Mrs. Claire Cohen, a young housewife, was slain Saturday night.

Earlier yesterday a 64-year-old man was shot in south Philadelphia by another bullet fired out of the dark by an unseen marksman. The victim of this pre-dawn shooting was Richard C. Lavery, Republican Division Committeeman and job printer. Police are inclined to discount this shooting as being the work of the "mad sniper," who was struck down Mrs. Cohen in Oak Lane.

Detectives William Schrader and Harry Fox said Haller might have been shot either by the elusive sniper or by someone aiming at rats at the Yellowjacket Speedway, two blocks from where the shooting occurred. The speedway, used for midget auto racing, is closed for the winter.

Authorities ordered an alert in the northern part of the city, mobilizing 300 policemen for an exhaustive search. Similarly, large details of police combed south Philadelphia.

Haller, a pupil at Benjamin Franklin High School, was hit in the shoulder by a bullet from a .22 caliber rifle, akin to the gun used against Mrs. Cohen. He was not injured seriously.

Lavery was hit by a .32 caliber bullet fired into his back. His condition is critical. He was struck near the doorway of a club where he had just attended a meeting.

Detective Lieut. Charles Brown said he was investigating the possibility Lavery was not the intended target. He said the gunman might have aimed at James J. Durning, prominent among the city's New Year's paraders, the Mummers, who were walking alongside Lavery. Durning has figured in Mummers disputes for many years, and Brown said he had heard reports the shooting grew out of a "feud" among the Mummers.

Santa Claus might not visit Tommy this year.

"The only thing he's asked for is a train," said Ebert, hopelessly. "I don't know how I'm going to get it for him."

That story touched off a nationwide response. "I know how you feel," wrote Lillian Ackert, Riviera Beach, Fla., "the same thing happened to my two brothers." She enclosed a gift.

A letter from Newport News, Va., enclosed a check for $25. A note said: "From some sailors who read about you in the newspapers."

In an envelope postmarked Washington, D. C., with an "Interstate Commerce Commission" return address, scratched out, came a $5 bill and the greeting: "Merry Christmas from someone else who likes trains."

Tommy's father is wheeled into the boy's room every day to talk to him. He tells Tommy the snow is so deep the rest of the family can't come to the hospital to see him.

"I want our family preacher to tell Tommy about what happened," says the father, who was a truck driver, but whose job may be gone because of his badly burned hands.

Tommy's hands are badly burned, too. He was operated on yesterday. He held out his bandaged hands and said: "They took skin off my leg and put it on my hands. Look at my hands. They're all bobbed up—you know, just like Joe Louis' are when he has his boxing gloves on."

Now that Tommy has his train, the money that is rolling in will go for his living expense after he gets out of the hospital and, if there's enough of it, for his education. A trust bank account has been opened for him. But Tommy isn't thinking about the money. He has something else on his mind.

"You know," he said, "my friends have been wonderful to me. There's only one thing I want now. I heard on the radio how Margaret Truman and her dad are pals—just like my dad and me. I'd like to have their picture."

When a recipe calls for toasted blanched almonds, the nuts should have their skins removed first, then be browned lightly in the oven.

It's important not to overbeat, as well as not to underbeat the eggs, in making sponge cake. Overbeaten eggs are said to account for the humps or cracks sometimes seen on sponge cake.

have a New Year's day session indicated the present "Lame Duck" Congress likely would not adjourn until a few hours before the new Congress, elected in November, is ready to take over on Jan. 3.

The emergency powers measure had been scheduled for action today. It would allow Mr. Truman to reshuffle government agencies and modify defense contracts in the interest of speedy production.

But the Senate, working at top speed, voted $20,000,000,000 for defense spending and gave approval for $1,600,000,000 of special defense construction much of it top secret.

Both measures were passed by voice votes. The $1,600,000,000 authorization measure goes on to President Truman. The House passed it yesterday.

The big appropriation bill, a catch-all for funds asked by President Truman since Communist Chinese forces poured into Korea, goes back to the House.

As the bill cleared the Senate it carried some $2,000,000,000 more than voted by the House. These differences are expected to be adjusted quickly.

Senator Russell (D-Ga.), acting chairman of the Armed Services Committee, asked the Senate to put through the authorization bill first.

The spending bill, Russell explained, contains the money for more than 90 per cent of the projects in the authorization bill. In a burst of speed, his Committee had approved the authorization bill in a brief session this morning.

Today the Commission was informed by the AGL that the railroad would move the depot for $950 and relieve the County of any responsibility in the matter. The Commission agreed to make the payment.

W. L. Sieg of Geneva was welcomed as a temporary member of the Commission pending the outcome of the State Supreme Court ruling on the case of W. G. Kilbre, who had requested Governor Warren that he be suspended as a commissioner during the period. Mr. Sieg's bond was approved.

"It has been a pleasure to work with you men," Mr. Kilbre stated in a letter to the Commission, "and to serve the public. I believe that justice will prevail in the end and that I may again in the near future sit with you."

ers and newspapers have served notice they will have none of it unless:

1. Their nation is accepted as an equal partner by its one-time conquerors.

2. German troop units are not significantly restricted in size or composition of command staffs unless such restrictions apply to all member nations.

3. West Germany's status as an occupied enemy nation is scrapped and the Republic given full political independence.

Entrusted with the job of arguing the Bonn government into joining up are the High Commissioners of the occupying powers, John J. McCloy of the United States, Sir Ivone Kirkpatrick of Britain and Andre Francois-Poncet of France.

They were authorized by the Big Three Western foreign ministers to "explore the problem" of German defense contribution "as well as any changes in the present occupation arrangements which might logically attend" it.

"We will sum up the result of these exchanges and submit them, in due course, to our governments," the French High Commissioner explained.

France, a key member of the continental Atlantic Pact, is still almost as fearful of a revival of German militarism as she is of the Soviet Union. The French especially want to avoid formation of a new German general staff and the use of German units exceeding brigade strength of 6,000 to 8,000 men.

is expected to be one allowing German combat teams of 5,000 to 6,000 men each while prohibiting a German general staff or war ministry. This, the Germans have objected, would deny them from complete equality.

A big question attending the negotiations is one over which the conferees have no control—the Russian reaction.

The Soviet Union last October warned she would not tolerate a revival of German militarism. On the eve of the 12 Atlantic Pact nations' recent meeting in Belgium, she dispatched notes last week in his night cap and dressing gown, fast asleep.

Their policies on German rearmament violated their treaties with the U.S.S.R.

The United States, Britain and France have agreed to meet with Russia for talks on Germany and other international problems. Their notes are expected to be delivered to the Kremlin tomorrow.

Apart from any settlements such a conference may produce, Western opinion is divided on just what steps the Soviet Union may take as German rearmament becomes an actuality.

Americans, who believe that inclusion of the Germans in the European defense framework will strengthen peace, nonetheless think the Soviets may react with moves intensifying the cold war.

Their goal include the tearing up of the Soviet treaties with Britain and France, setting off another blockade of West Berlin, and encouraging Communist parties in the west to step up their programs of internal unrest.

ides against the Hungnam troops. The report, he said, was wholly unconfirmed and doubted at headquarters because the Chinese Communists had had no training in gas warfare and did not have gas masks.

British fliers from the carrier Hermes operating off the west coast reported a scarcity of targets along the main road and rail system connecting the North Korean capital of Pyongyang, Sariwon and Kamehon. They said there was an indication of night traffic along the snow-covered roads but no traffic was observed during the day.

The British rocketed nine bridges they damaged three, including one of two pontoon bridges at Hanpo. Successful attacks also were made on two locomotives north of Hwangju.

MacArthur said Communist losses of 10 to one had noticeably slowed down the enemy operations.

MacArthur said the Allied withdrawal from the northwest front after the Sinsanju battle "was not dictated by battle losses or the acceptance of defeat."

He said the Allied forces, four corps of 12 divisions, were outnumbered by nine Chinese Red force units massed north of the Yalu River in Manchuria, he said.

"Under such conditions," MacArthur added, "the assumption of readiness and a tightening of frontages is an almost commonplace military maneuver."

On the occasion, Mrs. Lee Hunter acted as Mistress of ceremonies, games were played and Christmas carols were sung. Refreshments were served.

Ambushed American Patrol Saved By Jets In Movie Comedy Retreat

By WILLIAM J. WAUGH (FOR HAL ROYALE)

WITH U. S. SEVENTH REGIMENT, Korea—(AP)—It was late in November. The Allies still were on the offensive in northwest Korea. A small reconnaissance patrol, 20 men in seven jeeps, drove cautiously toward the small village.

The patrol, under Lt. Richard Talbert of Saranac Lake, N. Y., had seen no enemy during the scouting that took them through the city of Ipsok and a mile beyond.

In the small village beyond Ipsok, Talbert halted the patrol and got out of the lead jeep to question civilians. And it was then that hundreds of Chinese, entrenched on nearby hills opened up.

The first flare of gunfire destroyed Talbert's jeep. The jets directed a hail of mortar fire, machinegun and small arms bullets at the patrol, but the Americans held them off for 30 minutes.

Talbert's men got six jeeps out of the line of fire and started back down the road.

"We could never have done that except for two of our machine-guns," Talbert recalled. "One was Sgt. Taken Ono of Honolulu. The other was a sergeant who was wounded and taken prisoner. I've recommended both for Silver Stars."

The sergeant's name was withheld.

During the first part of the patrol's retreat, the road ran parallel to Red positions in the flanking hills. Talbert, a radio operator, an interpreter and an engineer from an Army engineering company remained in the village.

A shell hit the gasoline tank of the rear jeep and two men abandoned it. Then the Chinese swarmed down the hillside. One of the two—a corporal—turned around and saw that his company was surrendering to two Chinese.

The corporal shot one of the Chinese through the head with a pistol. The other Chinese was so excited that the other American grabbed up his gun and shot him.

Intense gunfire forced two men in another of the six jeeps to dive into a ditch. Both were taken prisoner.

Back in the village, Talbert and his three companions decided to make a run for it. They started across a broad flat field in back of the village.

"It was like a comedy in the movies," Talbert said. "The chinks were coming off that hill and the four of us were running like mad, shedding our outer clothes as we ran."

The enemy soldiers stopped to look at Talbert's wrecked jeep. That enabled the four Americans to increase their lead from 100 yards to about 150.

"I wasn't worrying about being hit by gunfire but being worried they'd run us in the ground," Talbert said. "We were nearly exhausted and all of us were puffing like mad."

Talbert said "we'd run about a half mile when out of the sky came four Shooting Stars (F-80 jets) with rockets firing at the Chinks chasing us across the field.

"I didn't even look back. I just kept running but, man, was I happy."

The four ran on for about a quarter of a mile and then from sheer exhaustion had to stop. Talbert looked back and the Chinese soldiers were moving back to the hill from where they had jumped the patrol.

"It was a miracle we escaped. They shot everything at us but the kitchen sink."

The patrol, airmen estimated, had been jumped by 100 Chinese. American losses were two wounded, two men taken prisoner and two jeeps destroyed.

Talbert and the three men with him walked five miles across

Soldiers Of Many Nations Meet In Korean War Town

By WILLIAM BARNARD
A KOREAN TOWN ON THE ROAD TO THE FRONT, Dec. 21 (AP)—This is an international town where fighting men of many nations live in harmony.

It is a center of United Nations forces. Walk down a winding, tree-lined street and you're likely to find two or three nationalities to the block. The French are here, the Dutch, the British. Here are Spaniards. Greeks skilled in guerrilla warfare, Americans, and quite a few Turks.

Capt. Cornelius Marion of the Netherlands forces, a 295-pounder, 6-foot-2-inch tall, a blue-eyed man of 37, said:

"These men of the Netherlands unit are all volunteers and they are tough. Some are here for adventure, others are men who say 'What is Holland? I want to see the world. But most are here because they are bitterly against Communism."

"I have three children and another is on the way. I remember 1935 and Hitler and how we waited until he came. I do not intend to wait for Joseph Stalin. It is better to die on the field than in the doorway of your home."

His wife and children are home at Buspeelaan, the Netherlands.

Capt. Alfred Van Meurs, a physician with the Netherlands forces and formerly of Jakarta (Batavia), Java, said: "It is splendid how well men of so many varied nationalities get along on this crowded place."

"Our men play soccer with the British, the American dentist pulls teeth and the British dentist fills them, and our men are delighted with American rationing."

"Our own soldiers don't eat half as well at home. The amount of meat and canned fruit is amazing. These C rations would be a luxury in Holland."

Visit the French contingent and you find plenty of hospitality from Lt. Col. Ralph Moular, commanding.

He apologizes that he has no special food to offer his guests but C rations served with ceremony. He personally ladles chicken soup into tin plates for officers and guests, he often peers around the stuffering lamp, urging further helping of luncheon meat and coffee and corned beef. His officers call him general, for the 58-year-old Moular is a Lieutenant General of the French army who took a temporary demotion to serve in Korea. "Why did I volunteer?" he asks.

The United Nations is the hope of all humanity. When I die my son will be able to say his father was a member of the first United Nations army."

Astrologer Telene Paul Insists Stars Are Infallible Guide To Fitting Gifts

By SAUL PITT
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK—Having trouble choosing Christmas gifts? Well, consult the stars. They'll tell you everything but how to pay for them.

Says Telene Paul, astrologer: "If everyone listed their Christmas shopping selections on the birthdays of the people they're shopping for, there would be less returns to the stores after the holidays. After all, everyone's personal likes and dislikes are acquired at birth, according to the planetary position at the time."

So, Mrs. Paul has drawn up a handy shopping guide based on the Zodiac. This is what you should buy for people born in the following periods and under the following signs:

CAPRICORN, Dec. 22 to Jan. 20—Both men and women under this sign prefer practical things. Like anything made of leather, belts, shoes, house-slippers, wallets, gloves, luggage, tool leather, and other necessities, also objects made of stone or marble or ivory. Lucky colors: oxford grey, bottle green, and black. Lucky gem: onyx. (Worn from noon to midnight.)

AQUARIUS, Jan. 21 to Feb. 19—For both sexes: an airplane, auto, radio, television set, electric train, antique furniture or jewelry or modern painting, anything powered by electricity such as an electric massage machine or electric tool kit. Lucky colors: plaid, modern prints, mixed colors. Lucky gems: sapphire, opal.

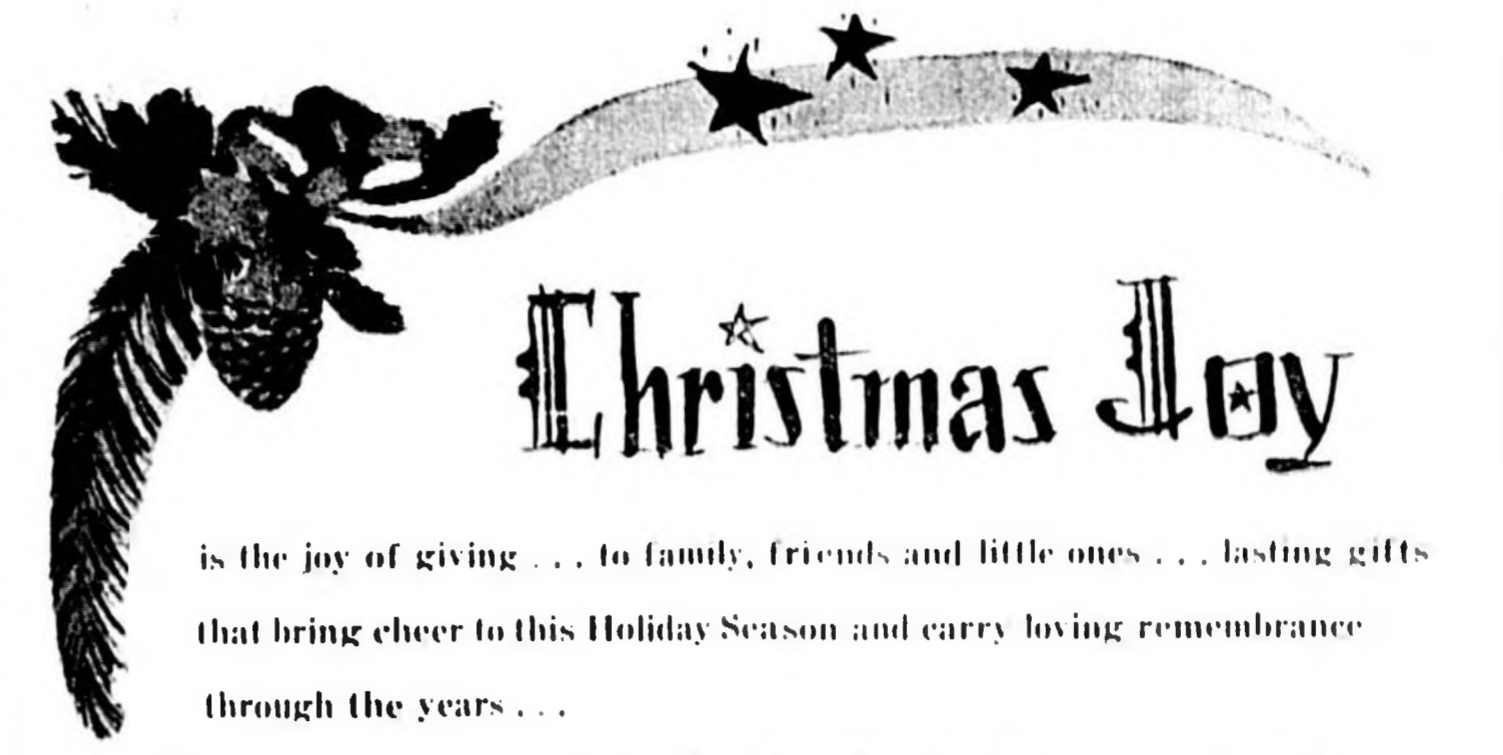

PISCES, Feb. 20 to March 20—For men: liquor, fishing tackle, fish (fried or smoked). For both sexes: boat, raincoat, elaborate storm boots, bedroom slippers, aquarium full of exotic fish, bathing suit, season opera ticket. Lucky colors: from palest mauve to orchid and purple. Lucky gem: moon stone, chrysolite.

ARIES, March 21 to April 20—For women or girls—bath, hair ornaments, bright red jewelry, cases in bright red. For men or boys: boxing gloves, war game, personalized match sets or vanity pen knives, hunting equipment, tool chest, brush and comb sets, canoes, smoking and shaving equipment. Lucky color: red. Lucky gem: Amethyst and diamond.

Taurus, April 21 to May 21—For men: neckties, scarfs, leather things, cane. For women: neck lace, jewelry of all kinds, traveling bag, camera, eke, candy set, fume, exotic food. ("Taurus loves rich food.") Lucky color, blue. For women: Lucky gem: moss agate and emerald.

GEMINI, May 22 to June 21—For men: Cuff links, pen and pencil sets, typewriter, literary equipment, sculptor sets, gloves. For women: literary album mentioned as well as books, magazine subscriptions, sewing kit, also a trip. ("Gemini loves to travel.") Lucky color: clear yellow and green. Lucky gem: pearl, beryl, acuminarine.

CANCER, June 22 to July 22—Men and women under this sign

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

Mother Cabrini

NEW YORK—The New York song plugger, a pliable and opportunistic soul, is presently off on a new kick. He is to be regarded dubiously. The plugger has a number of chores and one of them includes keeping his favorite songwriters informed on the trends in popular music.

"Listen, Max," he will say to them, "they are hot for novelty tunes. Write me something like The Thing, only better, and I'll get everybody from Monty up to play it." At the door of the plugger, you may lay the blame for cycles. At the moment, it would seem that the plugger is breathless over religious songs. The thought of some Tin Pan Alley thug writing a devout pseudo-hymn and then having it played by 16 musicians in dance tempo, whilst the butter-and-egg salesmen topple and lurch against their chorus-girl partners, is especially revolting. But such days appear on the horizon.

Two current songs have set the boys into their frantic motion. One is Our Lady of Fatima, written by a Cincinnati housewife named Gladys Gollahan, and the other is Saint Frances Cabrini, named after the American woman who was canonized by the Roman Catholic church and whose shrine is situated in the Manhattan block in which I live.

Behind each is a story. The Fatima song, which has an edge in popularity at the moment—Kitty Kallen and Richard Hayes recorded it and it sold 750,000 records in the first three weeks after release—was written by Mrs. Gollahan some months ago.

The story has it that she was fretting over the dark state of the world and she scribbled down a prayer for peace based on the legend of the Vision of Fatima.

AS THAT STORY GOES, three Portuguese shepherd children were tending flocks on May 13, 1817, near Fatima, when after a violent wind and a flash in the sky, a vision of Our Lady of Fatima appeared. The children declared she told them to pray the Rosary every day until peace came.

She is said to have made six appearances and, on the last, prophesied that two of the children would die from their efforts in praying for peace, that there would be a revolution in Russia and that unless Russia came to God, Marxism would threaten the freedom of the world.

It all came true; even two of the children died after fasting and catching the flu. The survivor is a lay sister, Maria Das Doreas, now in the Institute of Saint Dorothy in Portugal.

Their story has become famous, so famous that a Cincinnati woman sat down and wrote a song about it and a record company sold 750,000 copies of it. Whether this is the intent of the legend is something else again.

Behind Saint Frances Cabrini lies the faith of a one-time Hartford, Conn., restaurant counterman named Russ Vincent. As recently as three months ago, Russ was behind the counter, singing while he worked. Nicholas Carrano, president of a record company, stopped in for a snack and heard Russ singing.

"For years, I've prayed," the 29-year-old restaurateur told Carrano, "that I'll get a chance to sing professionally. I still have faith that it will happen."

Well, the climax of that story is almost obvious, if you know your movie plots. Carrano invited Vincent to audition in New York, liked him and signed him.

Russ said that since he was a Roman Catholic, he wanted to do a song of faith as his first recording—so he sang Saint Frances Cabrini.

THE CABRINI RECORD WAS RELEASED in November—and, like the Fatima song, became an instant hit. More than 150,000 records of it have been sold already and Carrano has set aside a portion of the profits to help Mother Cabrini institutions.

Night club and theater offers began to pour in on young Vincent and to date he's turned them down, while taking dancing lessons and studying dramatics and music. "I don't want to be a one-record success," Vincent says. "I want to become a star and stay up there. With the help of the good Lord, I shall."

Meanwhile, according to dispatches from the song pluggers' front, at least six other religious songs are due for release by the big record companies within a few weeks.

One greets this news with mingled emotions—a phrase, incidentally, that someone described the other day as the feeling you have when you see your mother-in-law drive your new limousine over a cliff.

Religious songs for themselves are fine and idealistic. Religious songs to get some man and weary a nor a 12-week engagement on the night club circuit are something else again.

Big Four May Hold Meeting In February

Western Powers Demand That Agenda Include All Areas Of Disagreement

PARIS, Dec. 22 (AP)—The Western powers agreed today to a Big Four meeting proposed by Russia, if the Kremlin will agree to broaden the agenda to include outstanding world problems in addition to Germany. Foreign Office sources said notes delivered in Moscow tonight suggested that the four powers' U. N. delegates work out the agenda, time and place for the meeting. There have been reports that the four foreign ministers would be invited to meet in February in New York City. This was neither confirmed nor denied in French official circles tonight.

Santa Is 'Bad News' To This Boy
SANTA CLAUS MAY BE THE CRAZIEST person in the world to most youngsters, but this boy in Naples, Italy, wants part of him and tells it in loud and plaintive notes. Shenandoah, whose crew gave the Christmas party for the otherwise grateful kids of Naples. (International Soundphotos)

Excess Profits Levy Approved In Conference

President's Request For Emergency Reorganization Powers Sidetracked

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22 (AP)—A House-Senate conference committee today approved unanimously a $3,300,000,000 boost in corporation taxes, including a 77 per cent levy on excess profits. The legislation would increase America's tax load to the highest level in history—$45,000,000,000 a year. The previous record of federal tax collection was set in wartime 1945 when the government took in $45,900,000,000.

Chinese Assault On Beachhead Beaten Back By Infantry In Sharp Battle

TOKYO, Dec. 22 (AP)—Red troops were reported south of Korea's 38th Parallel tonight and preparing a new offensive as the Chinese Communist regime rejected—except on its own tough terms—the latest United Nations effort to arrange a cease-fire. The Peiping radio broadcast a statement by Red Premier Chou En-lai that retirement of all foreign troops from Korea, American withdrawal from Formosa, and Chinese Red admission to the U. N. were the only conditions on which he would talk of a cease-fire.
