Forest City Family Dies In Crash

By DAVID M. RAZLER
Herald Staff Writer

A retired newspaper publisher living in Forest City and four members of his family were killed Thursday night when their twin-engine plane crashed into a Tennessee mountain ridge during a thunderstorm.

Clare Hewens, 52, his wife, Nancy, 47, and one son, David, 18, of 135 Laurel Oaks Drive, Forest City, died at 5:51 p.m. when the plane they were flying in crashed in a rugged area of Blount, Tenn.

Also killed were Hewens' brother John Hewens, 54, the plane's pilot, and his wife, Gail, of St. Petersburg.

Dr. Robert Lash, Federal Aviation Administration medical advisor, said the bodies were widely scattered as the plane exploded and burst on impact.

The Atlas aircraft was en route to Troy Oakland Airport near Detroit, Civil Air Patrol spokesman Frank Thornburg said. It took off from St. Pete-Clearwater Airport in Florida.

"He encountered severe turbulence and crashed five miles east of McChesney-Tyson Airport," Thornburg said.

FAA supervisor Bill Shepherd said flight controllers at the Knoxville airport were in contact with the plane "15 to 20 minutes" before it crashed.

"He (Hewens) had been made aware of the fact that severe weather was there prior to his getting in the position he was in," Shepherd said.

"There was a thunderstorm in the area," he said. "It was readily visible and we issued that information to the pilot."

National Weather Service officials said there were winds of 35 mph in the area.

The FAA spokesman said flight controllers first made contact with the plane when it was about 60 miles south of the airport. He said the pilot did not express any desire to land at the airport. He apparently just wanted guidance through the rough weather. The plane plummeted into a wooded ridge.

"The plane hit at about an 85 degree angle at extreme velocity," said Lash.

Officials at the scene said a large area around the crash site was burned. Personal articles, including golf clubs, balls and magazines were scattered about.

Clare and John Hewens retired to Florida from Bad Axe, Mich., in 1976 after selling the newspaper they published, the Huron Daily Tribune. They had taken over the paper from their father.

While John ran the advertising department, Clare controlled the editorial end of the paper, said Al Adler of Bad Axe, a former Tribune reporter.

"John was an avid flyer," he said, adding the two brothers both played at least one round of golf a week.

Congressman Denies Bribe Middle Man Admits Kelly Abscam Plot

WASHINGTON — In the first significant guilty plea in the Abscam scandal, a 67-year-old New York businessman has turned government witness in the potential bribery case against Rep. Richard Kelly, R-New York.

William Rosenberg of Lynbrook, N.Y., pleaded guilty to a single conspiracy count Thursday in federal court charging he and two other so-called "middle men" plotted with Kelly to trade the congressman's influence for bribes.

Kelly had admitted accepting $25,000 from FBI undercover agents at a Washington townhouse on Jan. 8 and stuffing the money in his suit pockets. He said he did so as part of his own investigation of the agents, whom he thought to be "shady" characters.

The episode was video-taped by a hidden FBI camera. Following Rosenberg's plea Thursday, Kelly's office issued a statement saying the Florida House member "was not involved in any conspiracy with William Rosenberg or anyone else to commit bribery or to defraud the government."

The Jamesons have given the only public substantiation of Kelly's story.

Rosenberg, a securities dealer, spent four months in jail in 1976 for selling stock for a land development firm for inflated prices.

Meanwhile, in another recent development in the Kelly case, Orlando attorney Jamie Jameson, husband of psychic Robyn Jameson, is being sued for alleged fraud by Andrew Hvobek, 90, of Mt. Dora.

Hvobek claims in the suit filed in Lake County that Jameson was to use $20,000 of Hvobek's money to form "The Jameson Foundation" for charitable and humanitarian purposes. Hvobek claims that Jameson instead diverted the money to his own use.

Jameson has denied the allegations, saying the lawsuit is an attempt to discredit himself and his wife, because of their involvement with Kelly.

Jameson and his wife testified before a federal grand jury that Kelly told them a month before taking the money that he was personally investigating suspicious persons.

The Jamesons have given the only public substantiation of Kelly's story.

McClanahan Appeal Monday

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

A.A. "Mac" McClanahan will appeal his firing as personnel director of the Seminole County Mental Health Center Inc. before a grievance committee Monday at 7 p.m.

The hearing is to be held at the center's offices at 377 Whoooping Loop, Crane's Roost, Altamonte Springs, according to Bob Hazen, first vice president of the center's board of directors.

The composition of the committee is set by the organization's bylaws. Hazen said those who will serve include: himself (in place of June Gordon, president, who is out of state on vacation); the treasurer, Jerry LeBoy; Mrs. Thelma Mike, appointed to the position which normally would have been held by the personnel director; Bill Ferrander, member of the finance committee, and a staff person who is to be elected by the employees Monday morning.

McClanahan, who was personnel director of the center since he was fired by the center's new director, Dr. George Lindenfeld last Thursday, Dr. Lindenfeld, who had been on the job 2 1/2 days at the time, said McClanahan was fired for alleged unprofessional conduct.

In a letter to McClanahan Dr. Lindenfeld cited McClanahan's tape recording, without the director's prior approval, of a staff meeting as the reason for the dismissal.

Hazen said the grievance committee hearing could be attended by the press and the public only if McClanahan had no objection.

"I have no objections to the press or the public being present," McClanahan said today. McClanahan said he has requested permission to have legal counsel present, adding that his legal counsel will be his son, A.A. McClanahan Jr.

He said he has also asked the mental health board of directors to provide him with information including copies of minutes of meetings and to provide him with nine witnesses including members of staff and members of the board of directors.

"I intend to have a court reporter present," McClanahan said.

According to the center's rules, if McClanahan's appeal is not upheld he has recourse to the courts. Dr. Lindenfeld will have no recourse.

Progress Made On Housing Deal

By DIANE PETERIK
Herald Staff Writer

Some of Seminole County's concerns over a cooperation agreement it would be required to sign to get a 74-unit federally funded public housing project going in the county were alleviated Thursday, according to County Attorney Nikki Clayton.

Following two hours of discussion with attorneys for the Seminole Housing Authority and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), Clayton said portions of the HUD agreement that bothered some commissioners were "clarified."

For instance, Clayton said she was told that all the county's subdivision and planning review regulations apply to federal housing projects.

The stipulation in the agreement that the county eliminate, by condemnation, demolition or other means, unsafe or unsanitary housing in equal number to those in the new housing project is no longer required by law, she said.

"HUD is just using a form that's 40 to 50 years old," she said.

There is still concern, she said, that the agreement asks the county to promise to grant zoning and building code waivers for the proposed housing project.

"This may be unenforceable and illegal," she said. "A governmental body cannot contract away its discretionary governmental functions."

The County Commission is expected to take the matter again Tuesday.

Tom Wilson, Director of the Seminole Housing Authority, said the county's signature on the cooperation agreement is necessary before HUD will consider his bid for funds to build the 74 units which have been allocated to the Orange, Ocoola, Seminole areas.

He said if the agreement is signed he does not fear the Orange or Ocoola counties would be successful in vying for the same allocation because Seminole County "has a greater need than any other county I know of."

"We have 3,000 families on a waiting list," he said.

NAACP Members Prepare For Visit By President

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — President Carter's stop in Miami late today will last only an hour and 15 minutes, and many blacks hope that will be enough time to show him they need more help than he has offered.

But Julian Bond, who is a Georgia state senator, said all the president has to do at the NAACP national convention is smile, sing a hymn or two and "kiss a few black women" and everything will be okay.

Carter arrives at Miami International Airport at 7:45 p.m. and will be whisked to the Miami Beach Convention Center for his speech to the 71st annual convention of the huge civil rights organization.

He will be rushed back to the airport again in time to leave at 9 p.m. for Plains, Ga.

The Congress of Racial Equality is planning a demonstration outside the convention hall, and several local groups plan other protests.

First Flags

Young patriot Kristie Lee, 3, waves her first very own American flag as part of a Fourth of July celebration at "It's a Child's World" day care center in Sanford. About 75 American flags were given to the children at the center by the Ladies Auxiliary of the B. Duke Woody Fleet Reserve Association unit. Marge Miller, unit president, and Pat Loll, unit member, presented the flags to the children.

Doctors Foresee Slow Recovery For Shah
CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Doctors recovering normally but doctors have predicted a slow recovery for the ailing former shah of Iran from his recent surgery, a spokesman for the deposed monarch said today.

The shah's condition is stable and he is recovering normally but doctors have predicted a slow recovery, said Robert Armao, a spokesman for the shah.

Armao said the infection has not caused any deterioration in the shah's chronic lymph cancer.

Unfinished Business

It was 204 years ago that liberty was first proclaimed "throughout all the land and unto all the inhabitants thereof."

The proclaiming of a free and independent United States was one thing; the attaining of it quite another matter.

Less than two months after the signing of the Declaration of Independence in Philadelphia, the War of Independence began in earnest.

The largest overseas invasion force Great Britain had ever mounted struck at George Washington's army on Long Island in the first large-scale, set-piece confrontation of the war.

That battle and the subsequent British invasion of Manhattan Island were two American disasters. For Washington and his perpetually undermanned, undertrained, under-equipped and underfed army, there began five long years of retreat and hit-and-run strategy that ultimately brought victory.

The last set-piece confrontation of the war at Yorktown in October 1781 was a British disaster. Independence was won.

It was to be another eight years, however, before the form of the newly independent United States was established with the adoption of the Constitution and the election of the first president and first Congress. Now at last Americans could say the Revolution was complete.

But it was just not political independence that had been proclaimed in 1776, it was liberty. Just as independence from Britain was unfinished business on July 4, 1776, this matter of liberty is unfinished business on July 4, 1980.

Life, liberty and pursuit of happiness — these are heady ideas. Such things are not guaranteed by the winning of a war or the writing of a constitution. They are not realized once and for all time. Each generation has its own definition of what they mean, and each generation must do its own winning of them anew.

That is why July 4th is so much more than the official birthday of the United States of America. The Declaration of Independence is more than just a national birth certificate. It is a promise the original patriots made to themselves and their posterity.

That promise comes up for reassessment and renewal today, as it has on every July 4th for the past 204 years, and as it will on every July 4th to come.

The Florida Department of Transportation (DOT) warns merchants and political campaigners the placement of signs and sale of merchandise on state right of way is illegal and hazardous to motorists' safety.

Otherwise, state maintenance forces are authorized to remove and dispose of all signs and structures violating state law. Offenders will be prosecuted.

Outdoor advertising signs on private property must be at least 15 feet from state right of way and erected with permission of the property owner, according to law.

Persons or businesses wishing to place advertising or sales outlets near state-maintained right of way should contact the Florida Department of Transportation Administrator of Outdoor Advertising in their appropriate area.

Businesses and vendors who may have erected signs or stands on state right of way are urged to remove them by July 4, 1980, to avoid being fined or having them removed.

Suppose there was a message from space that nobody on Earth bothered to answer? Something like that is a distinct possibility, although it involves not communication from little green aliens or Orion war but man's own automated emissary — neighboring Mars, Viking 1.

There is no problem with the operation of the spacecraft. Viking has been radiating back information from the Martian surface for four years and, by the best current estimates, could continue to do so for another decade.

There is, however, with the receipt of the information streaming back. Most of it is being stored raw, unedited and unanalyzed for what it may reveal about one of the closest worlds to our own.

It is not due to lack of interest but of funds. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration, which spent a billion public dollars getting Viking to Mars, doesn't have enough left in the teapot to process the craft's reports. So most of them are going straight into storage in the computer banks.

The content for the county commission seat currently held by Dick Williams will expand into a six-man race next week when Tom Douglas, 31, of the Forest City area announces his candidacy.

Douglas, who calls himself a "dark horse Republican," and his wife, Ann, have one daughter, Dawn, 9 years old. He is a plumber and owns his own business.

Douglas plans to use an interesting gimmick in his campaign. He plans to urge all those he meets while campaigning to build a bird house in their back yards for Purple Martins.

Earlier in the week, School Board member Robert G. "Bud" Feather announced his candidacy for the Williams' seat as a Republican.

The only announced Democratic candidate is Altamonte Springs Mayor Norman Floyd. Tom Pratt, Longwood businessman, and Gerald Korman, Longwood attorney, have indicated to friends they will also be Democratic candidates.

Borg Awaits Connors-McEnroe Battle

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — In a repeat of the 1976 final, American Chris Evert Lloyd and Australian Evonne Goolagong Cawley dispute the women's title today in the $68,000 Wimbledon Tennis Championship.

Evert, runner-up to Navratilova in the last two finals, gained revenge Thursday when she edged the Dallas-based Czech 46, 6-4, 6-2 in a see-saw center-court battle to earn a meeting with Goolagong, the 1971 champion who qualified a day earlier.

The third-seeded American said she benefited from the publicity centered on covarities Navratilova and Tracy Austin.

Jimmy Connors and John McEnroe will take center court first today to decide who will meet four-time champion Bjorn Borg in Saturday's men's final.

Third-seeded Connors, champion in 1974 and a three-time runner-up, reached the semifinals Thursday by edging last year's losing finalist Roscoe Tanner 1-6, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2 in an all-American duel between two left-handers.

Tanner, the fifth-seed from Lookout Mountain, Tenn., hammered home 19 aces, but could not match the greater depth of the 27-year-old Belleville, Ill., player in their absorbing 2-hour, 37-minute marathon.

Like Goolagong, McEnroe enjoyed a rest day Thursday, but Connors said he is not bothered.

My job is to be in good shape," Connors said. "I'm probably the best shape I've been in years. I am fit to play five sets today, five sets tomorrow and five sets Saturday."

Garland 3-Hits Yankees 7-0

Wayne Garland described it as expertly as he had pitched it. "It's not every day you pitch in front of 20,000 people and shut out the Yankees in the Cleveland Stadium," he said.

Garland, showing he has recovered from a massive calf injury, registered his first complete game of the season.

It was the largest crowd in the major leagues since 1953. Garland, 34, struck out five and walked three. He allowed a single by Reggie Jackson in the fourth and a single by Joe Lefebvre in the ninth.

Joe Charbonson's RBI single ignited a three-run inning in the third and his two-run single capped a three-run grand slam in the fourth. He drove in his final run with an RBI grand slam in the eighth.

In other games, Boston downed Baltimore 3-2. Seattle beat Kansas City 13-2. Minnesota trounced Texas 10-0. Detroit defeated Toronto 8-3. Milwaukee trounced Chicago 7-2. Oakland overcame Milwaukee 7-5.

In National League games, St. Louis, St. Paul and San Diego won in 10 innings. San Francisco 4, Cincinnati 3, Pittsburgh 4, Chicago 3, Philadelphia won in 10. St. Louis 3, St. Paul 2, Atlanta 3, and New York 7, Montreal 2.

Steve Stapleton, Carlton Fisk and Tony Perez straddled 350 singles in a three-run fifth. Win Remmerswaal, 34, struck out six after replacing injured starter Chuck Stowers in the first.

Tom Berman picked up his 54th save. Scott McGee, 34, took the loss.

Markus 11, Royals 2. Larry Cox, who entered the game hitting .178, singled and homered, drove in two runs and scored three. Mike Star pitcher Larry Carter, 34, was the victor. Jim Houston caused his record to 4-7 and Shane Bieber earned his sixth save.

Nip Nationals 8-7

Sanford Americans Clinch Tournament

The Sanford American League all-stars nipped the Sanford National League all-stars 8-7 Thursday night in the Sanford Florida Little League sub-district tournament title and earn a trip to the District IV tournament.

The Americans play the winner of the Lake County sub-district tournament in a 1.5 p.m. Wednesday in Clermont.

The Sanford Americans scored most of their runs in the first two innings, but it was an unearned run in the bottom of the fifth that proved to be the winning tally.

The Americans scored three runs in the bottom of the first and never trailed. The first inning rally started with two outs after the first two batters went down.

Brian Sheffield started the scoring spree with an infield single and Brian Ashcraft followed with a single up the middle.

Scott Carter and Terry Miller slipped back-to-back RBI singles and the final run scored when Timmy McKinney was safe on an error.

The Americans increased the lead to 7-0 with four runs in the bottom of the second. Eddie Korzan led off with a single, but was forced at second when Horace Knight reached base on a fielder's choice.

Mike Edwards followed with a single and Knight scored on an outfield error. Reginald Hayes walked and Edward scored on a wild pitch before Brian Sheffield belted a two-run homer.

The Sanford Nationals finally got on the scoreboard in the top of the third. Kirk Blocker opened the inning with an infield single and went to second on a wild pitch.

What, Hello Mars?

Suppose there was a message from space that nobody on Earth bothered to answer? Something like that is a distinct possibility, although it involves not communication from little green aliens or Orion war but man's own automated emissary — neighboring Mars, Viking 1.

There is no problem with the operation of the spacecraft. Viking has been radiating back information from the Martian surface for four years and, by the best current estimates, could continue to do so for another decade.

There is, however, with the receipt of the information streaming back. Most of it is being stored raw, unedited and unanalyzed for what it may reveal about one of the closest worlds to our own.

It is not due to lack of interest but of funds. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration, which spent a billion public dollars getting Viking to Mars, doesn't have enough left in the teapot to process the craft's reports.

Paying For Mount St. Helens

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Long after the volcanic ash from the Mount St. Helens eruptions is cleaned up, fallout will likely remain in the form of hundreds of millions of dollars in insurance claims.

State and federal officials are just starting to assess the extent of the damage and insurance companies are just starting to process what is sure to become a flood of claims.

They Don't Mix

President Carter has been firm in his resistance to any tax-cut proposals, clinging to his conviction that a balanced budget is the key to ending inflation.

But the president presumably will be responsive to Democratic leaders and White House advisers who are of a different mind.

The jobs rate has jumped from 6.2 percent to 7.8 percent and an 8.5 percent rate has been predicted by Labor Secretary Ray Marshall by early next year.

Alfred Kahn, the president's chief inflation fighter, has conceded that a tax cut is "inevitable."

A similar message has come from former Treasury Secretaries Michael Blumenthal, a Democrat, and William Simon, a Republican.

We Don't Get No Respect, Still...

WASHINGTON — We have been robbed by one news shock after another until our confidence in America has been shaken. A rabid cynicism has held 83 of our countrymen in humiliating bondage.

The Russians have defied us in Cuba and Afghanistan. Their puppet, Fidel Castro, has sent expeditionary forces to install hostile governments in Angola, Ethiopia and South Yemen, threatening our oil routes.

Today, the United States still possesses the world's greatest resources and wealth. Our industrial and agricultural production surpasses that of all other nations; our technology is the most advanced.

Firecracker 400 Gets Underway

DARTON BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Polestar Cale Yarbrough figures he might be able to grab the lead early and hang on for the win today in the Firecracker 400.

Yarbrough led qualifiers for the 30-a.c.m. race with a time of 1:56.07 miles per hour. David Pearson was next at 1:56.32 mph.

Yarbrough was cautious about predicting victory, but said his Junior Johnson/Chalmers is running well and figures good luck he can grab the lead at the start and hang on.

cooking. Others feel the word came from the French settlers in early Florida who roasted the native goats whole, "de barbe en queue" — from beard to tail.

In preparing a bed of charcoal briquets for your barbecue, make sure you have enough to last out the cooking operation. A circle of heavy aluminum foil placed on the bottom of the brazier will facilitate clean-ups and also act as a heat reflector.

The charcoal can best be ignited by placing them in a mound and pouring on a small amount of commercial lighter fluid. For best results keep charcoal away from humidity before using since it absorbs moisture readily and makes lighting difficult. A few briquets can be kept soaking in a tightly lidded container of lighter fluid. Several of these saturated blocks will greatly help if added to the other charcoal prior to lighting.

A safe and convenient solid starter is now available. Several of the white briquets placed among the charcoal will burn long enough to start most fires. They also are handy for campfires and for starting fires in the fireplace.

Once the charcoal is covered with a fine white ash, you are ready to begin cooking. Spread the coals around the brazier for even cooking. In most cases the coals should be close together when cooking beef, but for chicken, leave an inch or two of space between the glowing briquets.

Judging the heat is simply a matter of manual training. Hold your hand over the grill at the same distance the food will be while cooking and count "one Mississippi, two Mississippi, three Mississippi." If you can say only "one Mississippi" before snatching your hand away, the coals are delivering high heat. If you can get to "two Mississippi," you have medium heat and low heat, if you can get to three.

The height of most grills can be adjusted. Steaks, well marbled but without a collar of fat, should be brought close to the coals and seared in high heat to seal in the juices. After searing raise the grill to about three inches and continue cooking until it reaches the desired degree of doneness.

In grilling chicken, split the bird in half and grease both sides with cooking oil. Place the halves on the grill cavity side down. The bony structure of the bird will conduct heat to the meat and provide insulation as well. Finish cooking on the meaty side, but keep the heat low to prevent the skin from sticking.

Of course, the liberal application of your favorite barbecue sauce can add spice and zest to steak, fowl or ribs that early man never dreamed possible.

Town Buying Doctor

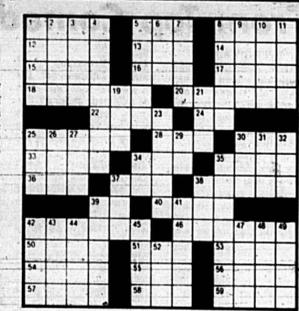

For 17 years, the town of Fort Cobb, Okla., has been without a doctor. Its citizens finally became so tired of the situation that they recently voted a tax on themselves to finance the medical education of Bruce Mackley, who's promised to set up practice in his hometown. By a vote of 134 to 38, residents of Fort Cobb (population 723) approved a one-year, 1-cent increase in the sales tax to put Mackley through his second year at the University of Oklahoma College of Medicine in Oklahoma City.

Floyd Ratliff, president of the local Chamber of Commerce, told The New York Times that he had canvassed the town to determine whether the $15,000 needed for the "doctor's fund" should be raised by a fund drive or a tax. Fort Cobb's citizens, who have to drive 10 to 35 miles for medical assistance, opted to add a penny to the existing 4-cent sales tax.

"And when they vote by an 80 percent margin for a tax increase, they really want a doctor here," said Ratliff. Mackley has signed a contract to practice in Fort Cobb for at least three years.

Voting yes for the tax was a pretty smart move, says Ratliff, because "Bruce Mackley's wife wants to be a doctor, too, so we'd be getting two doctors for the price of one."

Fiery Fourth Of July

FIREWORKS, FIRES GLOW

Civil Board Seeks Cover

By DONNA ESTES
 Herald Staff Writer

Sanford city officials are looking into the possibility of expanding the duties of the civil service board to give board members legal protection in the event they are sued.

The action comes in the wake of a recent Florida Supreme Court decision that civil service board members can be sued.

Civil service boards were created by the legislature in the 1960s and given the responsibility to recruit, test and certify new employees and to act as an appeal board for employees that have been disciplined by cities.

The boards serve without pay and are entirely independent of city government. And therein lies the problem.

As an independent entity, the board is not entitled to legal protection under the city's insurance.

When the court ruled in a little publicized case in Jacksonville — Thurston vs. Dekle — that civil service boards could be sued, local board members began to wonder how much they should be expected to risk to serve their community.

They now find themselves personally liable for official actions.

The local board is composed of Merle W. Warner, chairman, who has served since 1965, Dr. Lois Perez, attorney Robert Morris, Dr. John Darby and Donald R. Jones. Darby and Jones were appointed by the city commission. Perez and Morris were elected by the employees and Warner was appointed by the other four members. Members' terms, except for Warner are for one year.

Morris, in conferences with City Attorney Vernon Hines, has come up with the idea of expanding the duties of the civil service board to give it city protection.

The idea is to expand the board's duties to create a personnel board-civil service board. The duties would be expanded to include work on position classification, pay plans, administrative rules, policies and regulations governing leaves of absence, sick leaves and pay raises, in addition to what the board is now doing.

These duties are now handled through the city manager's office by staff personnel. The personnel board-civil service board would serve in an advisory position in the personnel matters, while retaining its authority as a civil service board.

The only appeal from civil service board decisions is the court.

City Manager Warren Knowles said today the issue is entirely a civil service board matter and that he will support the board in whatever it wishes to do.

The first step in looking into the possibility of expanding the functions of the board, according to Warner, is to mail a letter to city employees to inform them of exactly what is taking place. The same letter will also be mailed to the individual city commissioners. The commissioners would make the ultimate decision on whether the board's duties are expanded.

The issue is to be discussed by board members at the next meeting, scheduled for 8 p.m., July 13. Warner said the letter is for the purpose of soliciting feedback from employees. The meeting will be held at city hall in the city manager's conference room.

In a related matter, Frank Plapp, civil service board examiner for the past seven years, has retired. The city's equal employment opportunity officer, Francis Wynalda, is temporarily handling the work of the examiner.

At the July meeting a replacement for Plapp will be considered.

Knowles said he will be recommending to the board that a clerk-typist Bill Hill be hired as a major qualification for the post is that the person filling the position have a pleasant disposition.

But Her Mother Was Actress

Cathy Crosby No Relation Of Bing's

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me who Cathy Crosby, on "That's Incredible," is? I say she is not Bing's wife, and my husband says she is. Or is she the wife of one of Bing's sons? Bing's daughter, Mary, is on "Dallas," right? Mrs. George Tazelaar, Kalamazoo, Mich.

Cathy is not related to the Bing Crosby clan, either by blood or marriage. She is from an entirely different bunch of Crosbys. Her mother was an actress, Linda Hayes, by the way. And, yes, Mary Crosby of "Dallas" is Bing's daughter.

DEAR DICK: A friend told me that before the current series of James Bond films there was a version of "Casino Royale" made by Columbia in the 1950s, called "The Hot To Handle." Is this true, and, if so, who played James Bond? Mike Kelly, Whinn Lake, Ind.

No, your version isn't true. There have been two movies called "Hot To Handle," but neither involved Bond — in 1958, Clark Gable was in a movie by that name, playing a nervous cameraman, and, in 1960, there was an English gangster film by that name. In 1964, on a TV show called "Climax," there was a version of "Ian Fleming's 'Casino Royale,'" with Barry Nelson as Bond.

DEAR DICK: Please help me test my memory. I recall a movie serial in the '20s called "Tallpa Tommy."

Ask Dick Kleiner

By DICK KLEINER

Naturally, the hero had an always-green comical sidekick. His name was Shooter, I'm letting that Neek Beary of "The Rockford Files" played the role of Shooter.

You win. Beary was Shooter in "Tallpa Tommy."

DEAR DICK: Could you tell me what happened to Daniel (I don't know her last name)? I haven't seen her on any of the programs for a long time. I first saw her on Robert Schuller's services, and then on a program with Max Baucus. She wrote songs and played religious music. I think I heard somebody say it was and what happened to Daniel, but what happened? Doreatha

Cayson, Fort St. Luke, Fla.

As far as I can find out, nothing particularly and happened to her. Her name is Doreatha Hall, and she is alive and well, and mostly travels around, singing gospel songs.

DEAR DICK: Can you find out the names of the movies made by the late great Lauritz Melchior? One of them was "Two Sisters From Boston." I understand he was quite successful in movies after retiring from opera. Wilson W. White, Santa Cruz, Calif.

The Wagnerian tenor made only a few films — "Thrill Of A Romance," "Luxury Liner" and "The Stars are Singing."

DEAR DICK: Who was the cook on the TV program years ago with Clint Eastwood called "Rawhide"? I have a small wager with my husband and friends. They say it was Gabby Hayes. I say no. Mrs. R.B., Wabonga, Wash.

You win. It was Paul Bringer.

DEAR DICK: We need to know the movie release dates of two Clint Eastwood movies, "The Good, the Bad and the Ugly" and "The Outlaw Josey Wales." This question has revolved into name calling and wagging. Your interrogation is required to settle the issue. Paul Reginald, Puckle, Colo.

Control yourselves. "The Good, the Bad and the Ugly" dates from 1977, and "The Outlaw Josey Wales" from the year before.

The symbol of affluence used to be two cars in every garage. Now it's one car with a full gas tank.
