Panel Recommends Only $90,636

Sheriff May Suffer Appeal Setback

By DARLENE JENNINGS Herald Staff Writer

Sheriff John Polk may have suffered a minor defeat in seeking an additional $330,000 for his budget from Seminole

The state Office of Planning and Budget (OPB) will recommend to state Cabinet's aides that the Cabinet approve, requiring the county to give the sheriff $90,636.

Polk is appealing to the state and asking it to order the county to add $330,000 above the $5.8 million budget already approved by the county for him to operate during fiscal 1981-82. Polk maintains he needs the $330,000 to hire 14 more correctional officers to man the county jail, as well as for other crime-fighting aids. But the OPB, before which Polk and county representatives testified last week, said today it will recommend the Cabinet authorize only the $90,636, determining Polk needs only six more correctional officers.

"The sheriff has the flexibility to re-allocate personnel positions as necessary to meet Seminole County's needs in order to continue a good-faith effort in meeting state department of corrections recommendations," said Ed Wood, OPB senior governmental analyst. Wood implied the sheriff can adequately man the new jail with just six more corrections officers and still be up to state standards at the facility by using other personnel already on the payroll,

"Six more corrections officers just doesn't fill the bill," said Pelk today.

The sheriff indicated he would not drop his appeal effortsthere is a Nov. 3 meeting of the Cabinet to consider his appeal and the OPB recommendation-unless he and the county can agree on a compromise, but apparently for more than the 190,636 the OPB is recommending

Nikki Clayton, County Attorney, when told about the OPB recommendation, indicated it would be satisfactory to the County Administrator Roger Neiswender said it is his opinion that the county will not want to talk with the sheriff about a possible compromise.

Our position is that the county, keeping the taxpayer in mind, has funded the Sheriff's Department adequately. We are not the ones who are appealing. If the sheriff wants to continue his appeal, we'll go with him to Tallahassee in a defense posture to see to it that if he's awarded any money, it won't exceed the $90,000 recommendation. And, of course, if that's what he's to get, he already has that in carry-over money so the county won't have to come up with extra funds," said

Ms. Clayton had said the county could not afford to give the sheriff the 13.8 percent increase he wanted. And she had said, the county might have had to borrow money at current market rates, dip into the county's already conservative contingency fund, or raise taxes next year, to come up with the $330,000.

There is about $670,000 in the contingency fund, according to figures from the county's Office of Management and Budget

Just this week the board rejected a $180,000 compromise offer from Polk, and the commissioners did not pursue suggesting a counter offer to him

However, Commissioner Sandra Glenn and Chairman Bob Sturm did consider giving the sheriff a compromise offer of $100,000 in lieu of the $330,000 he sought.

In his compromise offer, the sheriff figured the county could combine $95,000 in new money that has just been discovered in the sheriff's budget - and which he offered to return to the county - with $85,000 the board could approve.

The sheriff said the $95,000 in new money is due to an overestimate of fuel usage.

This way, the sheriff reasoned, the board would have to come up with only $85,000, which is still less than the $110,000 See POLK, Page 2A

Driver Programs For Teens Will Stay

B) TENIYARBOROUGH Herald Staff Writer

Ah, the anticipation of every child approaching his or her 15th birthday and oh, the dismay of that child's parent as the question," Can I go get my learner's driving permit today?", is asked repeatedly.

How long ago was it that you asked your parents the same question with the same amount of unrestrained enthusiasm? Longer than you'd like to think, perhaps, but you still remember it was a "big deal" finally to be allowed to drive the family car and maybe even, one day, actually own a car.

Few things have changed, today. Kids still look forward to getting their licen-

Anne Lucas was worried. She and her husband had moved out of an apartment last May to a two-bedroom, one-bathroom, 30-year-old home on Palmetto Avenue in Sanford.

The old house had charm: As you opened the front door, sunlight gleamed off well preserved wooden floors and glistened on a pine ceiling in the foyer varnished to a high shine. An addition by the previous owner to the rear of the house provided a screened porch that shaded the kitchen window and sent cool breezes into the dining room.

But falousie windows to the right of the entranceway let air-conditioned cool air seep out no matter how tightly they were cranked shut, and small weathering cracks in door lintels and window frames let slivers of daylight through. Mrs. Lucas reasoned they were letting her precious cool air through, too.

Expecting her first child in November, Mrs. Lucas feared the cost of keeping the house warm enough for the new baby during the coming winter would be astronomical

Last winter in the apartment when the heating bills started getting too high we just shut the heat off, and put on sweaters and added blankets to the bed," she explained. Her brown eyes frowned with concern. "But this winter, with the baby here, we won't be able to do that."

Seminole Students Again Top Test Average

BY DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County high school graduating students have again scored higher than the national average in a nationwide testing program. Average scores of the 337 graduating seniors in Seminole on the American College Test (ACT) was 18.9, while students nationally scored an average of Robert King Jr., testing assistant with the county school administration, said the ACT is becoming increasing popular among seniors since Seminole Community College (SCC) has been recommending that students planning to attend SCC take the test.

The 137 students taking the test included 199 girls and 138 boys. The students on various parts of the test made the following average scores; English: boys, 19.0, girls 17.4; math: boys, 19.1, girls, 17.3; social studies: boys, 18.7 and girls, 17.2; natural science: boys, 22.1 and girls, 20.4; with a composite score of boys 19.4 and girls 18.6. Seminole County's students scored higher than the national average in all areas of the test.

Some 800,000 graduating students across the nation took the battery of tests. King said the scores of particularly bright students could indicate those students should take the College Level Equivalency Program (CLEP) test to gain college credit in some courses.

Along with the tests, graduating seniors with the class of 1981 in Seminole were asked a series of questions on their evaluations of public education in the county and their future plans.

Some 24 percent of the boys taking the test preferred a career in engineering, while 24 percent of the girls preferred a 9 percent felt it was inadequate. career in the health professions. Fifteen percent of the boys and 19 percent of the girls said their career field will be business and commerce. Only four percent of the boys and girls chose the education profession for a career in life.

Seventy-five percent of the students said they will go to Florida colleges. Fifty-eight percent said their college choice is the University of Central Florida; 52 percent chose SCC;28 percent the University of Florida; 25 percent Florida State University, and four percent Rollins

The students also were asked to rate their high school educations in Seminole. Thirteen percent felt their high school education was excellent; 47 percent felt it was good; 27 percent felt it was average; four percent felt it was below average, and

The percentage of students satisfied and dissatisfied respectively were as follows: Instruction, 62 percent, 16 percent; course offerings, 65 percent, 21 percent; grading, 56 percent, 17 percent; guidance, 62 percent, 21 percent; tests, 57 percent, 8 percent; school policies, 42 percent, 28 percent; library facilities, 44 percent, 28 percent; laboratories, 33 percent, 32 percent; special need assistance, 27 percent, 15 percent; gifted-student assistance, 59 percent, 13 percent;

Of those taking the test locally, a total of 47 percent were "very sure" of their educational major, while 36 percent were "fairly sure." A total of 40 percent aspired to a bachelor's degree, while 51 percent aspired to at least some graduate school or a professional degree

Need for special help in college was expressed as follows: educational and vocational plans, 46 percent; writing, 26 percent; reading 27 percent; study skills. 42 percent; math, 38 percent; and personal counseling, 33 percent.

A total of 40 percent expressed interest in independent study, 26 percent in honors courses, 26 percent in foreign study, and 55 percent in some kind of advance placement.

Some 58 percent of the students said they expect to work at a job during the school year, and 58 percent said they would need help in finding a job. Seventy-one percent expect to apply for financial aid.

Did Stolen Coffee Spark Prison Race Riots?

BUSHNELL (UPI) - A bag of stolen coffee may have been the spark that touched off Thursday's racial riots at Sumter Correctional Institution, where an uneasy calm reigns today after the transfer of 84

"troublemakers." Racial ; rioting broke out at the facility for hardened youthful convicts after lunch Thursday and continued on-and-off through the night. After the fighting was quelled early Friday morning, no further incidents were reported.

Ten inmates and one staff member suffered minor injuries in the fracas.

Stowaway Freezes

MIAMI (UPI) - A young man froze to death after stowing away in the wheel well of a jetliner on a flight from Colombia to Miami, officials said.

The temperature in the wheel well was 73 below zero as the Avianca sirliner cruised at 23,000 feet, officials said, and oxygen was scarce.

Dade County police said the victim, who appeared to be in his 20s, carried no identification or money.

...Polk Doesn't Get All

Polk had said his compromise offer was not a "show of weakness" for his case, and that he made the offer because a week ago, after the OPB hearing, state officials asked both sides to try to reach an agreement before the Nov. 4 final

Polk had said the $180,000 would allow for phasing in moded personnel during this fiscal year.

But personnel priorities have become an issue between the county and the sheriff.

Neiswender said Monday the sheriff has continued to change his personnel priorities and changes now have been made not on the basis of what's best for the community but what's best for the outcome of the sheriff's budget appeal.

Nelswender said that two years ago the board was committed to a three-year program of hiring corrections officers. "Suddenly eight deputies and the corrections people go to dead last on the priority list," Neiswender said. "The board is confused about the sheriff's constantly changing his priority

During the Oct. 14 OPB budget hearing, the sheriff told the state the county has not given him enough money to fight

The commission had approved a $5.79 million budget for the sheriff's department, but Polk had said he must have the $330,000 additional money to do the job.

Bringing in new testimony on his behalf to the hearing, a witness for the sheriff presented a surprise 50-page report that caught county representatives off balance, and attempted to illustrate to the state why the sheriff needs the additional

Glen R. Murphy, a member of the National Sheriffa Association in Washington, presented the report on the "Analysis of Personnel and Organization Requirements of Seminole County."

Murphy told the OPB officials, according to the model the national association has set for the county, that Polk's staffing, especially in the unincorporated areas, is "inadequate."

Neiswender said the county asked the state officials not to consider this report when making the recommendation to the

The sheriff also was represented by a different legal consultant during the first hearing rather than the lawyer he had earlier reported would be his consultant.

Douglas Stenstrom, the sheriff's announced representative, remained in Sanford the day of the OPB hearing.

Representing the county were Neiswender, Ms. Clayton and Mack Cleveland as co-counsel for the county, and OMB Director Eleanor Anderson also represented the county in Tallahassee.

As an elected official, Polk can ask the governor and the Cabinet to rule on his budget request if he is not satisfied with the amount granted him by the county.

In 1976 the sheriff appealed his budget to the governor and the cabinet and lost by one vote. The vote was six to one in favor of the sheriff, but the governor, Reubin Askew, cast the negative vote, representing a veto, so the sheriff lost.

Polk, a Democrat, was appearing before a Democratic state administration appealing a budget request made by an all-Republican County Commission.

was entitled "Teens and Autos: A Deadly Combination." In the report, issued Oct. 12, the institute says drivereducation programs actually increase the number of teen-age driver accidents instead of serving as a deterrant. The institute said the program tends to instill a false confidence in the drivers and that confidence leads to cockiness behind the

The study also showed 18-year-old drivers are most often involved in fatal crashes, but 16-, 17- and 19-year-old drivers are the next highest groups in death rates.

"Did anyone bother to look at the number of teens in the driving age bracket in this country?", Ganas asked. "I haven't seen the institute's study, but I would wonder about that factor. Also, I disagree that students in our program are cocky. Kids who have driver education are going to have better attitudes about driving."

If the driver-education program is as ineffective as the institute study says, "Why are insurance companies still willing to offer a diacount to drivers who have a certificate for driver-education course completion?", he saked. Approximately 2,000 students go through the Seminole County driver-education program each year, Games said. The course is taught at six county high schools.

"We have six schools that offer the program, and fine driving instructors teaching the course," Games said. "Some of our instructors have been teaching it as long as 36 years or

In mite of Ganas' positive feelings about the program, a 1980 study by Yale University's Center for Health Studies agrees with the recent institute study.

The Yale study said, after studying eight municipalities and one regional school district in Connecticut that eliminated the program, that it found "little change in the accident rates in communities that retained driver-education programs." The institute maintains that "fewer younger drivers may clearly result in fewer accidents." The institute study says that of teenagers completing the program," a significant minority became cases while

I had a student come up to me this morning while we were out at the range resurfacing it, and he walked up and said, 'You're Mr. Brewer, aren't you!', I told him yes, and he said he had had me for driver education years ago and he ham't ever had an accident."

"It may be possible the cocky attitude exists in some areas, but it is probably because of a lack of careful supervision," Lyman High School Assistant Principal Jack Heisler said. Heisler said his school teaches 10 driver education classes with about 24 to 25 students each semester. The acheol employs two certified teachers to instruct the class.

"The students in the program spend about 38- to 40 hours in the classroom learning the specifics of driving," he said. They spend & hours on the range actually driving the care under simulated driving conditions, and then about six hours

Sanford Police Looking For Ways To Spend Grant

The Sanford Police Department is looking at expanding its computer system and a new micro-wave radio systemas possible items on which to spend a "one-time" state grant of nearly $24,000 received by the city this past week. The $23,794.66 grant is part of $10 million allocated by the Florida Legislature earlier this year to city and county governments statewide for crime control.

Sanford Police Chief Ben Butler said Friday the funds could be used to computerize all police records. Or, Butler said, the money could be used for a new microwave police radio unit to overcome "dead spots" in the current radio system. Butler described the "dead spots" as areas in the city where attempts to transmit or receive communications via police radios are unsuccessful.

To acquire the new radio system would cost more than the grant, Butler said. "It would take some extra money to go with the radio system" the chief said, adding he and his staff "kind of lean toward the new radio system."

Butler noted an exchange of police information is "pretty well connected" between Seminole Sheriff John Polk's office and the Sanford Police Department.

City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles is to inform the Sanford City Commission at 7 p.m. meeting Monday that the city has received a check for the grant from the state. In other business, Knowles will recommend to the commission that it approve the purchase of three "sideoading, two-man, refuse packers at $75,000 each.

Knowles, in a memo to the city commissioners noted the city's plan is to go to the two-man units to reduce labor costs. Both men would be drivers and loaders, he said, and receive a higher hourly pay rate than the present refuse collectors but less than a driver's pay scale.

City sepervisory personnel have recommended that the city scrept the high bids of $75,733 each for the packers submitted by Container Systems of Daytona Beach.

Knowles said the three units were budgeted at $65,000 each on a five-year payment plan with $30,418 budgeted for the first payment this year.

He also said the city's two packers can be traded in for a total of $5,500. It would take 60-00 days for the equipment to be degreed.

Inflation-Fighting Plan Set Back By CPI Hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The tight money policy designed to wring inflation out of the economy was dealt a setback in September when the Consumer Price Index jumped again, some economic analysts said.

The Labor Department reported Friday that the price index was up 14.8 percent when the rate was seasonally adjusted and compounded for 12 months. September was the third consecutive month of "double digit" inflation - a rate of 10 percent or more.

Florida Tops EPA's 'Worst Site' List

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Environmental Protection Agency has identified what it called the 114 worst chemical dump sites in the country, with Florida and New Jersey showing more hazardous sites than any other states.

The dumps are the ones which will be given priority treatment for cleanup under the so-called "superfund," a five-year, $1.6 billion program created by Congress last year and funded by both government and industry.

The state with the most sites on the list was Florida with 16. New Jersey had 12; New York and Pennsylvania eight each; Minnesota five; Massachusetts, Texas, Arkansas and Ohlo four each; California, New Mexico, New Hampshire, Rhode island and Delaware three each; and Virginia, Oklahoma,

Indiana and Missouri two each. EPA cautioned that the list is only a first attempt at identifying those waste sites which need priority treatment. It said a later list will be developed which would change with the

The superfund law requires that states contribute at least 19 percent of the actual long-term costs of cleanup per site, unless the area is publicly owned. In that case the state pays half of the cost. The fund provides that the federal government and industry as a whole contribute to cleanup expenses when the parties responsible for the dump sites cannot be found or cannot afford to do the job.

The agency said it did not know how much money would be required to clean up the 114 sites on today's list.

Koreans In Zimbabwe

The upcoming joint military exercises involving the United States, Egypt and the Sudan, are timely measures designed to prevent the subversion of a vast territory south of Egypt.

Libya, which menaces the Sudan, serves as a Soviet surrogate in the region of Africa. It already is the controlling force in adjacent Chad, only recently a country closely allied with France.

This part of Central Africa is not the only area in which a new revolutionary threat is developing. Zimbabwe, the former Rhodesia, now has a North Korean military contingent based on its territory. This is an ominous development, for it suggests that the revolutionaries in charge in Zimbabwe plan to turn the country into a base for surrogates of the Soviet Union.

This development followed the visit to Pyongyang by Zimbabwe's ruler, Robert Mugabe. While in the North Korean capital, he signed a solidarity agreement with the North Korean government.

Under the circumstances, it isn't surprising that the South African defense minister recently warned of a military threat on his country's northern border. In all likelihood, the forces of Marxist revolution are planning to open a second front against South Africa within a year or so. My sources in Washington suggest that the North Koreans may be used to infiltrate the northern Transvaal to strike Pretoria and Johannesburg. South Africa is a vast mineral treasure chest on which the Western world depends. It is the ultimate target of the Soviet Union in Africa. If the USSR were to succeed in detaching South African resources from the West, the strategic balance would change in the world. The West would be in enormous peril.

Ironically, the president of Zimbabwe, Dr. Banana, will be the featured speaker at the fall meeting of the United Methodist Board of Global Ministries in Minnespolis. He is opposed to capitalism and is on record as saying, "When I look at a guerrilla, I see Jesus Christ." The global Marxist movement is making good use of muddleheaded people.

The Soviets also are establishing solid military ties with the revolutionary countries of southern Africa. During the past year, "Pacts of Solidarity" were signed between Angola, Zimbabwe and Mozambique. These are similar to the defense agreement between the Marxist states of Ethiopia, Libya and South Yemen.

The Soviets also are pouring money into the region in the form of arms. Only a few months ago President Kaunda of Zambia, who was feted in the White House during President Carter's term. bought $50 million worth of jet fighters from the Soviet Union.

These items make clear that the situation in Central and Southern Africa is deteriorating, with the Soviet Union and its Marxist surrogates widening their base of power. In the meantime, of course, the economic conditions in the new. revolutionary African countries worsen. The lot of the African people suffers as their revolutionary leaders plan war, not peace.

While American people worry about a shift in Egypt's policies, in the wake of the assassination of Sadat, they should be equally concerned about the presence of the North Koreans in Zimbabwe. At stake in the Egyptian situation is the ultimate security of Middle East oil resources. The South-Central African developments, in Zimbabwe and in Namibia, point to a developing threat with respect to equally important mineral resources.

October is a many spiendored thing.

Some would probably doubt my sanity at making such a broad statement. Really, now, what's so splendid about Monday Night Football, the World's Series and witches and goblins being primed for their best Halloween manners.

But, just think about Nature's change of color when lush green foliage changes into dazzling shades of gold, orange and red.

Add United Way Inc. and you come up with a rnorth that really has something on the agenda for everyone.

I keep thinking about all the agencies who will receive funds when the United Way October Campaign is complete. I think about the thousands of individuals United Way serves annually. And I am thankful that I can contribute to this reputable cause and not have to be on the other side of the fence...in need.

Attending the United Way report luncheons is quite an inspirational and motivational experience. Everybody seems high on what they are doing - trying to help.

Last Wednesday, the Sanford Optimist Club was host to the UW report luncheon. Members' optimism rubbed off on those attending.

In fact, UW campaign president Dave Joswick said he was so impressed with the Optimist Creed that he passed it on in his management job. Dave's favorite excerpt from the creed is: "To think only of the best, to work only for the best and expect only the best."

"Optimistic" is the word for all the UW workers who seem to thoroughly enjoy what they are doing.

Campaign chairman Dick Fess is optimistic that the Seminole County UW will reach the goal of $305,000. Sharing his optimism and enthusiasm at the Wednesday luncheon were Margaret Ganas, Catherine Ray, Dr. Sara Irrgang, Dave Chacey, Margaret Jones, Maxine Marsh, Doris Bacon-Elses, Larry Strickler, Bruce Cox and many, many others.

For years, I have had my arm twisted into helping collect funds for the United Way, And all's not that optimistic when digging into the pockets of others. Some folks just don't have a thin dime to give to the cause. Many are just plain hostile and rebellious. Others just don't care. I am very grateful that we have a Salvation Army in Sanford to board and bed folks down on their luck. I remember the time when transients combed neighborhoods for handouts. You don't see much of that today. It seems fairly universal and taken for granted that the Salvation Army is there for that purpose.

And who helps finance the Salvation Army? United Way, for one.

Maybe those who have not given to the UW Campaign might reconsider. It really works. I know. My family is benefactor of one of its services - the adoption of a beautiful little girl - all our own.

Woman For All Seasons

There's a lot written about the '80s woman: A woman who takes a stand on issues in Washington and presides over the washing machine: a woman who understands the male ego but must wait patiently for her ego needs to be understood; a woman who wants to be a marvel at marriage and mothering, a marvel at managing a house and-or a job.

But it's not easy. Today's woman often bumps into reality and falls short. Along the way, she makes and collects some ob-

The most ominous words that can be said to the first woman department head are; "We've never had anyone like you before and we're going to see if it works out."

As women we are urged to keep our priorities in order. Dust on the refrigerator top, for example, is not suppose to be high on the list. That works fine most of the time and I schlep around the house content with things the way they are. Then I get a phone call that house guests will arrive in a week. All of a sudden I have X-ray vision, and find myself shuffling priorities. I suddenly see gravy splatters on the wall, the rain spots on the windows and the dark traffic path on the light carpeting.

Overheard in a restaurant: "I told my husband I wanted a little life of my own and now I'm pregnant."

Early in life I was trained to be a listmaker. Every day I make a list of things to be done. Of course, I never make it through all the items and the following day's list invariably includes leftovers. My list unending, and I get depressed. In my next life, I want to be an unlisted number.

A feminist says there are more whooping cranes in the country than there are women in Congress. And we all know who oping cranes are an endangered species.

A woman who owns a company in Chicago writes in Savvy magazine: "I've seen secretaries run to restaurant carryout counters for the boss's lunch, make barbershop appointments for him and even buy candy for his desktop candy dish.

What will these same secretaries do for women? Type manuscripts that read like Egyptian hieroglyphics and forget to make corrections on the memo sent to the company

A title I read and like: "Why little girls are sugar and spice and when they grow up become cheesecake."

I read that neither Jane Pauley of NBC nor Marlene Sanders of CBS News considers the time right yet for a woman to co-anchor a major TV network evening news show. Says Ms. Sanders: "The male is still the authority figure in this country. To change that, we need a female president."

Kirkpatrick's Shocker

Jeane Kirkpatrick, our U.N. ambassador, is turning out to have been one of President Reagan's most felicitious appointments.

Just recently, she had the temerity to tell the truth in the vicinity of the United Nations, and, my god, the reaction was one of shock and disbellef.

supply around there, and ritualistic attitudes so firmly established - especially in Third World matters - that any touch of reality produces a trauma.

Last September 28, after a meeting in Havana, representatives of the "non-aligned" nations produced a 21-page communique purporting to describe the state of the world. It dripped with anti-Americanism. It paid no attention to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan or the Vietnamese invasion of Cambodia. Reading the surreal summary, one would gather that the only threats to the security of the non-aligned countries are the United States, South Africa, and the government of El Salvador.

This was too much for Ambassador Kirkpatrick, who, on October 6, fired off a letter to the representatives of 40 of the nations which had signed the Havana canard.

She singled out two of the document's assertions for special attention; 1) the claim that the United States had committed aggression in August when its Navy planes shot down two Libyan jets after being fired upon over the international waters of the Gulf of Sidra; and, 2) the assertion that the United States is attempting to de-stabilize the governments of Nicaragua and Grenada.

In her letter, Ambassador Kirkpatrick spoke of "base lies and malicious attacks upon the good name of the United States."

Her language is perfectly accurate, "Your Excellency," she wrote, "I think you no more Movie Hee than I not believe they are an accurate reflection of your government's outlook. And yet what are we to think when your government joins in such charges, for that is what you have done in falling to disassociate yourself from them.

This is the language of fact and reason. It is good to have had it said, even if it will probably do little good.

At least we have come a long way from the U.N. ambassadorship of Andrew Young, who must have slipped a disk so sedulously did he kiss the feet of Third World demagogues.

The truth is that the language of Third World diplomacy has no relationship to actual events in the real world. It never attacks the Communist countries for the simple reason that the Third World nations are afraid of the Soviet Union. It is ritualistically anti-American because Third World nations require a villain — they need one to explain why things are going so hadly in the mis-ruled Third World nations

And America is a safe villain. Unlike the Soviets, we are not cranking up any insurgencies in the Third World.

So the Third World will continue to emit its rhetorical gas.

Question: What do you say to a single working mother whose eligibility for food stamps and Medicaid has been cut? What would you like to say to her today about how she cannot provide medical care for her children or feed them with food stamps?

Answer: I don't believe we are doing that. (Presidential Press Conference, The White House, Oct. 1, 1961)

Actually, Mr. President, you are. You did it when you dropped 875,000 families from the food stamp program and reduced the benefits for 5 million others.

Your budget cuts made school lunch prices rise by 20 to 30 cents this fall. Some school systems dropped out of the program altogether.

By the way, Mr. President, you were wise to stop calling ketchup a vegetable. Even first graders know better than that.

On the same day that you expressed ignorance about the effect your aggressive austerity would have on the working poor, 400,836 families were lopped off the Aid to Families with Dependent Children rolls. Another 258,528 will have their AFDC checks sharply reduced.

tended unemployment compensation on Oct. 1, and 234,000 more who lost their jobs because of foreign competition now have lost their benefits too. And 314,000 CETA workers have already cashed their final paychecks. If those numbers are too large and the explanation too abstract, try this living

Some 1.5 million workers lost their ex-example offered by the Washington Post: Connie Wilson of Sioux City, Iowa, is a 36year-old mother employed for $722 a month by the local community-action agency. Her oldest son brings home $120 a month by working after school in a sports store. Until Oct. 1, Ms. Wilson qualified for a $481 monthly payment from the AFDC program. That also made her family eligible for Medicald. But now she has lost her AFDC payments and with it went her Medicald coverage.

She has some company in her misery. She is one of 5,217 Iowans to have been stricken from the AFDC rolls in a 15 percent reduction of the state's welfare population.

Ms. Wilson would be better off today if she quit her job.

The $575 monthly payment that she would receive from AFDC would be roughly equal to her current take-home pay. Return of the Wilsons to the Welfare rolls would reinstate their Medicare coverage and provide them with $250 a month in food stamps.

You'll be happy to know, Mr. President, that Connie Wilson intends to stick it out at her job. But what do we say to her?

You did remark at your press conference that "some may be hurt more than others." Connie Wilson must be one of the "some." I'm sure she'd like to hear from you.

Reagan Misled On Social Security

BERRY'S WORLD

"According to my horoscope, I will not be able to make my mind up about the AWACS deal with the Saudia."

WASHINGTON - President Reagan wisely backed down on his proposal to eliminate the $122 minimum benefit for Social Security recipients. It was a political lower that put him in the unenviable position of picking on the elderly poor. Congress wasn't going to allow it to happen anyway, and it hasn't.

What's not generally realized is that the president was misled by his own advisers in the Office of Management and Budget. OMB Director David Stockman's justification for the cutback was based on a serious misreading of the money figures involved.

Here's what happened: OMB justified knocking out the minimum benefit by claiming it provided a "windfall" for 450,000 recipients who also received other federal or state pensions. The agency cited a 1979 report by the General Accounting Office, which recommended that the new minimum be eliminated — but only for new beneficiaries.

A GAO official explained this to investigators for Rep. Jake Pickle, D-Texas, saying, "Our study was directed at beneficiaries just coming onto the rolls - not those already on the rolls for an extended period of time ... Our recommendations applied only to future beneficiaries."

Misreading the GAO data, the OMB circulated a "fact sheet" claiming that, "based on General Accounting Office data, 460,000 minimum beneficiaries receive federal pensions averaging $16,000 per year."

This estimate was shocking - but it was crazy. Investigators for the respected Congressional Budget Office and the Congressional Research Service concluded there was no way the OMB figures could be substantiated.

In fact, the Social Security Administration reports that in 1976 minimum beneficiaries had total federal pensions - including survivor and disability payments - averaging less than $6,000 a year. Fewer than 4 percent had pensions amounting to more than $14,000. In testimony before Congress, Social Security officials estimated that the median amount of federal pensions received by minimum beneficiaries is now $9,480 a year a far cry from the OMB estimate of $16,000. Furthermore, the Social Security Administration and the two congressional agencies put the total of supposed "windfall" beneficiaries at only 300,000, not the OMB's 450,000.

The administration's budget-cutters also mided the president on the humane - and politically inportant - point of just who would be affected by elimination of the $122 minimum. The 70-year-old president should have been told what Alice Rivlin, head of the Congruentional Budget Office, had to may on this point:

"People receiving the minimum benefit are not representative of all Social Security recipients. They are disproportionately likely to be women and to be over 80 years old." At Another point the OMB was less than frank about was its contention that minimum beneficiaries would be caught in the "safety net" of welfare programs, particularly the Supplemental Security Income program. What OMB bucksters falled to mention in their hard-sell pitch was that there are already $00,000 minimum-benefit recipients who qualify for SSI payments, but don't apply for them. The reason, social science experts told my associate Tony Capaccio, is that these people discern a "welfare" stigma to the SSI payments.

least 80,000 of them are 90 or older, she said.

The OMB appeared to be counting on this perceived stigms to make its elimination of the minimum work out fiscally. Otherwise, the cut made no sense. Analysts for Rep. John Burton, D-Calif., have estimated that if all the eligible Social Security recipients decided to jump into the SSI safety net, it would cost the government $1.7 billion more than it would save by eliminating the minimum payment.

EXECUTIVE MEMO: William M. Bell's nomination as head of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission is in trouble. I've already reported that he claimed to have been active for years in the Detroit NAACP though the chapter anys he's never even been a member. Now the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee is holding up his confirmation until he answers an 11-page list of questions. Among the things the constors want to know is whether he agrees with a recent Justice Department announcement that it will no longer fight job discrimination through class-action suits; why his "executive recruitment agency" in Detroit is not licensed to recruit executives in Michigan, and why he apparently operated his agency for two years without any kind of business license.

- Despite the austerity called for by the Reagan administration, the Army is preparing to spand up to $236 million on new handguns. It wants to acrap the Colt .46, which has been an effective sideerm for American troops for decades, in favor of 9millimeter pistols that will match those used by our NATO allies. Each new automatic will cost from $300 to $400, but spare parts and manuals could double the cost of the 800,000 pistols the Army wants to buy. Rep. Richard C. White, D-Texas, suggested the Army might better put off its changeover, pointing out that the minimum cost of $118 million for the $millimeter game "would be sufficient to equip an armored hattalion with new M-1 tanks."

- Education Secretary Terrel Bell, sent a complimentary stuffed doll called "The Bureaucrat," responded to the doll's makers with a note that gladdened their hearts: "The Bureaucrat, in all of its nothingness. brightened an otherwise dull day of (I'm sorry to say) government bureaucratic

Herald Informs

This letter concerns a comment in Sam Cook's column concerning an investigation by the Sentinel Star of the hapless U.C.F. athletic program.

Nobody, in my opinion, can accuse the Sentinel Star of biting the hand that feeds it. In the years since the Chicago Tribune bought out the Sentinel Star this will bring to a grand total of two the number of investigations it has conducted, at least in my opinion.

The first was some land deal out in the middle of nowhere whose main crime appeared to be it contributed nothing to the advertising income of the Sentinel Star. The U.C.F. Athletic Program appears to be guilty of the same "crime".

The rest of the Central Florida business, professional and political community seems to be leading simonpure lives, at least in the last few years as covered in the Sentinel Star.

Which brings us to the fact that our family has discontinued our subscription to the Sentinel Star and are now subscribing to the Evening Herald.

You people are to be congratulated on keeping Central Floridians informed on our community. Thank you!

Billions For Forced Busing; Hundreds For Stops

One has to wonder how many billions of dollars it has cost the people since forced school busing was first started.

From 7 until 9:30 a.m. school buses litter the highways when people have to get to work. Every time the bus stops to pick up students, 10-to-12 cars and trucks from each direction have to stop, burning fuel for 14 minutes. The average time of a bus stop is from 1-to-34 minutes.

Only last Friday morning a bus stopped to pick up about 10-to-12 students and just when the last of the waiting students was getting on, a youngster and his dog came running from across the street and boarded the bus and his dog with him. The woman driver and the boy tried to get the dog off the bus. The time elapsed was 31/2 minutes.

The amount of fuel used during this time was about 1 pint for the bus. Five trucks waiting burned about one pint each and eleven cars waiting burned about 4 pint each. At that rate if the bus stops 10 times on the run the amount of fuel wasted would add up to 14 gallon and J pints. Then there is the afternoon run to pick up the students.

Each county has several hundred buses and at that rate the amount of fuel wasted becomes enormous. If the school bus schedule could be adjusted so that the buses would be on the road from one to one and a half hours both in the morning and afternoon the savings to both the people and counties would be astounding.

If Sheriff Polk gets the funds this time, he will ask for even more next year. It's time we put a limit on this budget. There are a lot of good officers in the communities such as Sanford, Longwood, Casselberry, ect., who handle their communities just fine without the Sheriff trying to completely take over.

Due to the tightening of money all departments seem to be cutting back, tightening their belts, biting the bullet. Well, it's time our Sheriff bites his own bullet or steps down. Remember the cards.

Elected PSC Supported

The Coalition of Florida Consumers (CFC), based in Port St. Lucie, firmly believes that the members of the Public Service Commission should be elected by the people, not appointed. To this end, we are joining with other volunteer consumer groups in Florida to try to collect enough signatures on petitions to force the question to be put on the ballot so the people can decide.

We are addressing this letter to all Florida newspapers in the hope of persuading like-minded groups to join us in our campaign.

The CFC was organized in 1976 to represent consumers before the PSC on utility rate increase requests. All members are unpaid volunteers and the organization has been financed exclusively by contributions from individuals and community groups.

Our organization has been active in rate increase cases involving Florida Power & Light and General Development Utilities, a subsidiary of General Development Corp. which provides water, sewer and gas service to GDC communities. It has received recognition for its efforts from Jack Shreve, public counsel before the PSC, and collaborated actively with Mr. Shreve in the most recent FI'L case. We feel that our work in that case contributed significantly to the PSC decision to grant only $256 million of the $476 million requested by FPC in increased rates.

We ask that interested organizations and groups get in touch with us by writing to the CFC, Community Center, 200 West Prima Vista Boulevard, Port St. Lucie, Fla. 33452. I may be contacted by telephone at (305) 878-0904. We are hopeful that the response to our request may lead to eventual formation of a statewide consumer organization. Robert Brunton

Military Manpower, Equipment Shortfalls

By SEN, GORDON J. HUMPHREY

R-New Hampshire The unnerving conclusion of senior three and four-star commanders of our armed forces is that their forces are not sufficiently attanned or equipped to carry out our nationad strategy.

Last February, over a four week period, the Preparedness Subcommittee of the Armed Services Committee held nine hearings to determine the military's ability to carry out the broadest "one and onehalf war" national guidance, and to support and sustain military operations. The testimony we received was most disturbing. The Army remains constrained by serious manpower and equipment shortfalls. The classified details had to be provided in a closed session, but senior commanders were willing to conclude publicly that we currently lack the capability to simultaneously fight one and one-half wars.

The Commander of the U.S. Army,

VIEWPOINT

Europe, General Krossen, described this command as a "high risk force" which could well be "expanded" in combat for lack of sufficient reenorcement and support. The utter poverty of our current condition is Illustrated in reports that the Army has identified units for potential use in the Rapid Deployment Force that are aiready earmarked for NATO. Requirements, even commitments, can materialize overnight; divisions ennnot. The Navy's situation is just as serious. Admiral Train, the Atlantic Fleet Commander, testified that in a general war we would be dealing with a 'high risk situation" in the Atlantic. Moreover, the Atlantic Fleet is spread thin. Discussing the need to protect U.S. interests in the Caribbean, Admiral Train assured the sub-committee that the U.S. Navy could prevail in this area, "but this will be at the expense of forces which have been allocated to the North Atlantic, the Mediterranean, and the Indian Ocean."

Can't we generate more naval assets on short notice if a crisis arises? No. The surge capability within the Atlantic Fleet remains shallow due to ordnance, more parts, and skilled manpower deficiencies. Admiral Train rates overall logistics support as "marginal" for wartime operations.

With regard to the Pacific Fleet. Admiral Davis concluded that success in any direct conflict with the Soviet Union would depend on unpredictable situations: "You just cannot guarantee winning at sea today, with the balance of forces themselves." The Pacific Fleet, and the Navy generally, is stretched to the limit of its peacetime elasticity, Said Admiral Davis: "We are not able to fully support our peacetime missions in all parts of the Pacific and Indian Oceans simultaneously. We cannot handle another crisis without shifting naval forces (away) from the Indian Ocean, unless we deploy and push the fleet to a wartime basis."

Like the other services, the Air Force has been busy meeting new commitments and responsibilities it didn't have two years ago with roughly the same size force structure. General Huyser of the Military Airlift Command estimated that, in a pinch, MAC can meet an estimated 62 percent of its wartime requirements, but over a sustained period that would drop to $6 percent.

Our current inability to meet national security objectives not only reflects the lack of sufficient force structure, but it also reflects a weakness in the readiness posture of the forces we already have. Inadequate defense budgets and inefficient management have caused cycles of readiness at-theexpense-of-modernization, and then modernization-at-the-expense-of-re-

As described by General Creech. Commander of the Tactical Air Command, this problem has "never been worse." Within TAC, an average of three wings (outo of 23) are grounded each day as a result of spare parts or other problems. In 1980 there were an estimated 21,000 separate cases of "cannibalization" to support current airlift requirements. Much of the overall problem is driven by age. The average age of an Air Force aircraft today is 14 years; and 77 percent of the inventory is 9 years or older. The increasing demand for spare parts and depot maintenance reflects this trend.

Clearly readiness should be enhanced to realize the maximum capability of the forces we now have. But just as clearly, with or without enhanced readiness, current forces are inadequate to execute national strategy. Make no mistake, our armed forces are capable of responding, and would respond effectively, to a range of conceivable threats to our interests. However, as things now stand, such response would be at considerable cost. and would represent considerable risk. For the foreseeable future, in order to bring these costs and risks down to acceptable levels, the U.S. must either increase spending on defense or pare down its commitments.

One of the leasons we learned from the Carter Administration is that we cannot remain a superpower by trying to play it cheap in the pines of defense spending. The fact is the United States military forces in many ways are increasingly stretched to the point of potential failure. We owe it to our young men and women in uniform, if not to ourselves, either to reduce our commitments around the world or to fund defense adequately. The fallure to make a choice is to invite inevitable That amendment would give City Manager Jeff Etchberger the power to hire and fire department heads and would deny those department heads the right of appeal to the Personnel Administration Board. That board became a thorn in former Mayor Norman Floyd's side when it refused to

If the amendment passes, Etchberger won't have to worry that he'll face a similar problem.

Jobs For Senior Citizens

Did you ki w that the first week of September was designated "Older Americans Employment Opportunity Week"?

The purpose of that observance was "to expand employment opportunities for older Americans by encouraging employees to recognize the great untapped potential of the older worker's tremendous experience and knowledge."

A highlight of the week was the release of a report citing the benefits — to older Americans and to the nation as a whole -of increasing the number of elderly in the U.S. labor force. The report was prepared by Data Resources Inc. for the forthcoming White House Conference on Aging.

The study found that a "modest" increase in the employment of people over 65 would raise the average older person's income far more than would tax cuts like those enacted earlier this year. The addition of more senior citizens to the work force would also strengthen the national economy and case the pressures on Social Security, according to the report.

Perhaps these findings will start to open up more work opportunities for older Americans in the months ahead. But what success did you have if you recently went out looking for full-time or part-time work? Chances are good that your job-hunting didn't pan out. You were just too old. When I was forcibly retired, prospective employers used a cuphemism as a rejection. I was told I was "over-qualified."

For many retirees who have wanted to work, the jobs open to them have been demeaning or have required heavy physical work that aging bodies cannot

Many of those who are lucky enough to find work will have to give up $1 in Social Security benefits for each $2 they earn over $5,500. There is no limitation on outside earnings of those 72 or older; that age is scheduled to drop all to 70 next

You may also have to pay Social Security taxes on your earnings. And if you are one of the better-heeled older citizens, the extra earnings may put you into a higher tax bracket. However, many older citizens still want to work. They don't want merely to vegetate or listen to their arteries harden. They believe they have special talents and long experience to contribute to their nation or their community.

Mature Temps Inc., a nationwide temporary employment service that specializes in placing the older worker, advises: "Don't be defensive about your age. Promote your experience, work skills, reliability and maturity."

America's work force is getting older Prospective employers may eventually be faced with the prospect of hiring older men and women who were once considered unemployable. Perhaps someone wants you and your skills.

If you can't find or don't want a fulltime job, temporary work may give you the satisfaction of keeping busy and earning money to keep pace with the rising cost of living.

SHS Music Department Going Places

What department at Seminole High has received the most recognition this year? No, not sports. No, not the administration. Give up? It is the music department.

This year, under the direction of Mrs. Laurel Elimore, chorus director, and Sylvester Polk, band director, the SHS music department is making headlines.

On Oct. 16, 13 chorus members left SHS to attend a weekend "Honor Choir" at Stetson University. The students were picked to go on the basis of talent, interest and experience. The students who attended were: Fran Dowdy, Lois Owens, Sultana Goodman, Sheryl Jones, Patti Gray, Alethea Williams, Latrina Stephens, Steve Grey, Richard Grey, Bill Jeffries, Tandy Youngblood, James

Smith, and Jimmy Wright. The purpose of the trip was to give our students a chance to sing with other students from the Central Florida area.

"It was a fabulous experience for all who went. We met others with similar interests and learned and performed great music," Elimore said.

The band is also going strong this year. Under Polk's direction, SHS has the largest band in the county with a total membership of 149 students.

"This is the first time that I have seen the students give a standing ovation to the band in a long time," School principal Wayne Epps said at the open house in

If you have been going to the football games, you might have noticed how the band is shaping up. If you haven't seen the band yet, I encourage you to go to a game and get a surprise.

Pakistan Pushing Nuclear Program

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI) - Two years ago two French diplomats who wandered too close to a Pakistan nuclear plant near Islamabad were brutally beaten, reputedly by security agents.

A week after that incident, which the government blamed on bandits, a British journalist received a severe beating when attempting to see a prominent nuclear scientist in Islamabed.

Today, the security veil is wrapped tighter than ever around this Islamic country's nuclear development

Trying to induce government officials to merely comment on steps undertaken to produce atomic energy for peaceful purposes is akin to prying open a giant clam. There are concerns in South Asia, the United States and elsewhere that Pakistan will soon explode a nuclear device. Desperately in need of $3.5 billion in economic and military aid, including the advanced F-16 jet fighterbomber offered by U.S. President Reagan, the martial law government of President Mohammad Zia ulHaq has pledged to the United States it will not set off a nuclear test.

To ease these fears held by members of the U.S. Congress, Undersecretary of State James Buckley said Zia "categorically assured" him Pakistan "has no intentions whatsoever of manufacturing nuclear warheads or acquiring nuclear weapons."

Western diplomatic and other informed sources here, however, beg to differ. In their view, Pakistan is vigorously pushing ahead with its nuclear program and probably will explode a nuclear device in the near future. Most of the research which would give Pakistan the capability of eventually doing this is being conducted at the top secret, military-operated uranium reprocessing plant about 25 miles southeast of Islamabad. Adding impetus to this is Pakistan's nuclear energy program, aimed at easing the nation's mushrooming imported oil bill which will reach a whopping $13 billion in 1981-82.

"Zia has certainly given assurances to Washington that we understand the American position," said a source close to the government who asked not to be identified by name or nationality. He added that Washington "can't ask us to close our options" regarding nuclear development.

No Recession In Florida, Economists Say

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) - State government economists don't believe Florida is in a recession like the nation as a whole, but they do see a slowdown and possibly a worse one than expected.

The major indicators of the health of the national economy have declined for two straight quarters now, meaning the country is in a slight recession. There hasn't been a decline in Florida's indicators, but there has been a noticeable slowdown in growth.

'Florida has not really been hit as badly as the country as a whole and that's something we have expected all along," said Gary Cooper, acting state economist. "We haven't seen the same kind of downturns. Housing is not as bad and our employment isn't as weak. Of course, everything hasn't been a bed of roses."

Tourism is down or as Cooper puts it, "it's crummy." The number of tourists for the 1980-81 fiscal year which ended June 30 was down 3 percent over the previous fiscal year.

Tourism figures are up now, Cooper believes, but if there is a total growth in 1981 over 1980, it will be minor.

The population growth, a significant sign of Florida's economic well-being, continues, but the rate is slightly less than expected and much less than the rate which has been normal for the last decade.

State economists last met in a formal "revenue estimating conference" in May. They predicted then a slowdown in the Florida economy beginning in October, but lasting only briefly with major growth occurring again by the end of the year. They also had projected the national downturn currently making itself shown.

They meet Friday to revise their forecasts and they will have several significant factors to consider. For one thing, the concensus last May was that mortgage interest rates would be down to 13 or 14 percent now, but they are still up at 18 or 19 percent, and that's bad news for the critical housing industry. In addition, the downturn in the Florida economy started a month early with sales tax revenues and other tax monier slowing slightly in September.

Lakeland Kathleen running back Victor Riddle spoiled Sanford Seminoles' coming home party Friday night by scoring on a three-yard run in the last period to lift the Red Devils to a 12-7 victory at Seminole High's field.

The victory puts the Devils at 3-6 for the season and snaps a three-game losing streak. It also broke a Sanford four-game winning streak. The Tribe has dropped both games at home during its 4-2 season.

Costly penalties hurt the Seminoles as they were called for offsides penalties five times during the night.

"We were too anxious, too jumpy. They might have been changing the cadence," was how Tribe chief Jerry Posev explained the setback.

Posey was right, "We changed the count and delayed it to draw them offsides," confirmed Devil coach Gary Spruce. "We delayed to draw them off because they're so aggressive." The Tribe got off to a great start, taking the ball into the end zone on their first drive on a two yard sweep by Victor "Quick Vic" Williams, Running back Johnnie "Bull" Littles was a key part of the drive, gaining 34 yards in two carries. The drive, which began at the Seminole 30-yard line, was ended by an Alan Cahill extra point attempt, which hit the right upright, then dropped over the crossbar, giving Seminole a 7-0 advantage.

The Devils got a drive going towards the end of the first quarter, but were stopped at the Tribe 34 at the beginning of the second.

Seminole's bullish fullback, Lenny Sutton, started the drive off with a 10yard gain to the 44. All night long, however, Sutton could only manage 43 yards in 16 carries, way off his usual 100yard game. According to Spruce, "We felt he was the key to the game."

Sutton's gain was followed two plays later with a Williams 10-yard dash. Then Littles broke loose again, cutting upfield for a 23-yard pickup. But a Seminole holding penalty negated the gain, and three plays later, the Tribe was forced to punt.

Jeff Litton, quarterback and punter of the Fighting Seminoles, got off a great kick to the 15 of Lakeland, But, it too was called back on a Tribe Infraction, Litton came right back, however, and booted the ball to the five.

This opportunity, of having the Devils deep in their own territory, vanished. Two offsides penalties in a two gave Lakeland's drive some momentum, which carried them only to the Tribe 43 before it sputtered and died.

By the time the end of the half arrived. it was still 7-0 Seminole, and it looked as though the Tribe defense would stick it out the rest of the game.

Lakeland's first drive of the second half brought them as far as the Seminole 34 yard line, and went no further. But Seminole began to lose some of its offensive striking power, being unable to penetrate Devil territory.

A Kathleen drive at the end of the third period saw them reach the Tribe 22. Quarterback Pat Pinner, who finished with 10 - of - 24 for 94 yards, picked up another 10 on the ground this time around to bring the Devils to the Tribe 12 by the beginning of the fourth quarter of the

This time, the Devils decided to put the heat to the Tribe, when, two plays later, running back Dexter Williams burst through an open hole for five yards and a score. Pinner attempted to pass the ball for a two-point conversion, but linebacker Antonio Davis, who turned in yet another superb defensive performance, forced him into an inaccurate throw, leaving Lakeland trailing, 7-6.

This time, it was a turnover that killed the Seminoles, as, on the kickoff, Seminole's return man lost the handle on the ball, and Lakeland's John Williams found it for a first-and-10 on the Seminole 39 yard line.

Luckily for the Tribe, nothing came of this, and the Devils were again forced to punt the ball away.

The Seminoles were held in check deep In their own territory by a toughened Devil defense, and Litton was called upon again to get them out of trouble. His punt, from the 12 yard line, travelled to the Tribe 45, where Lakeland was given another golden opportunity for a score.

A Pinner pass of 10 yards to Ricky Barnum, and a 15-yard penalty on Seminole, moved the ball down to the 20. Then a Lakeland penalty moved the ball back to the 40. All was not lost, apparently, as five plays later. Pinner connected on a 29-yard strike to John Williams, to the Tribe six.

Another Seminole offsides moved it to the three, then Riddle scored the goahead TD with just 3:10 to play on a plunge-up the middle. Another Pinner pass attempt for conversion fell away incomplete, but it didn't matter, as the Seminoles now were behind, 12-7.

Seminole showed a strong spark of hope when kick returner Vince Edwards took the Lakeland Kick Off, and brought it 65 yards from his 16 to the Devil 19, A Littles dash to the 10, and two 2-yard gains by Litton and Sutton put the ball on the six. An additional one-yarder by Littles put the ball on the five with 1:18 left on fourth down. Litton threw the ball desperately to Joe Calloway, who caught the ball two yards over the end line out of bounds, preserving the Devil win.

In explaining Pinner's passing performance, Spruce said, "They were giving it to us. We needed that one; but it was too close, too tight." The Seminoles stay home next week to take on the Lake Brantley Patriots, while Lakeland will face Eustis.

World Series

Baseball Undisputed Centerpiece

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - The World Series is baseball's undisputed centerpiece, as paramount in importance as the Super Bowl is to football and the ky Derby is to horse re many of those making a good living from the game are passing it up, their rationale being they can see it better on TV at home, anyway,

A man like Preston Gomes, who has devoted virtually his entire life to baseball, applying every single fiber he has in him to it, whether he was playing, managing or coaching, as he's doing now for the California Angels, prefers being at an event like this in person because he honestly enjoys it so much and figures there's always something more he can learn first

Gomez would be a sculptor's delight. He has what they call the perfect head. His even, sharply chiseled features set off a pair of deep-set, penetrating dark eyes that give unmistakable evidence of the intensity behind them. Coupled along with that, Comez has a quiet old world manner which accurately reflects his rigid correctitude and unfailing no-nonsense outlook on life.

When Preston Gomez tells you he's going to meet you at nine o'clock, he doesn't mean five minutes after, he means punctually at nine. That was the first thing his ballplayers learned about him when he managed the San Diego Padres, the Houston Astros and the Chicago Cubs.

Some of them, coddled and appeared by their previous managers, felt he was "too strict."

"I take that as a compliment," says the always immaculately dressed, Cuban-born Gornez. "That's right, I arm a disciplinarian. I respect the players for themselves and for their ability, but I feel they get paid to do a job. When I was managing, I asked the players only two things - show up on time and give me their best on the field. Was that asking too much? I don't think so, if a guy works in a factory and shows up late, he's docked for the time he missed, no? And if he's late too often, he finds he doesn't have his job anymore. That's the way I was taught, anyway, I believe in working hard and having

Gomez piloted the Padres for nearly four seasons and the Astros for nearly three. With the Cubs, in 1980, he was let go and replaced by Joe Amalfitano after less than four months - partly because once again he insisted on running the players and not having them run him.

"I have no resentment toward the Cubs," Gomez says, "They did what they felt was right. You know what they say, if you can't take the heat, get out of the kitchen. If you don't want to get fired, don't take the job. Every time I was fired, though, it hurt. As a baseball manager, I understood. It comes with the Job."

Curiously, perhaps, the pendulum is swinging the other way now on managers of Gomez' type.

Previously, one of the chief prerequisites for a managerial candidate was that he had to be able to "get along with the players." To a degree, that still holds true, but ballclubs are going the other way more. They're looking more for a manager who can keep the players in line, not let them walk all over him, and the club owner most responsible for that change is George Steinbrenner.

Gomez isn't here hunting around for another managing job. He'd take one again, he says, but only on certain conditions.

"The only way I'd manage again would be if I had a club that I thought had decent personnel," he instita. "Players make the manager, not the other way around and never let anyone tell you anything else. I don't want to butt my head against the wall."

Gomez, who has been in baseball for nearly 38 of his 58 years, 15 of them as a coach with the Dodgers, with whom he appeared in four World Series, is doing some commentary in Spanish for the Dodgers' Spanish network in Los Angeles and Mexico.

His feeling is that Fernando Valenzuela, the Dodgers' 20-year-old Mexican rookie sensation, could give the Yankees trouble in Friday night's third game of the Series.

"I assure you this much," Gomez says about the chubby southpaw. "He's for real, and he'll get better unless he hurts his arm. He has four pitches - his screwball, fastball, curveball and slider. You could even say he has five because he throws two different kinds of curveballs - fast and slow."

As for his feelings about himself, Gomez says after close to four decades in baseball, he still loves it.

"It's my whole life. I had a lot of sad moments, but I had more great moments and I've met some wonderful people because of it."

Gomez' biggest kick was being a coach with the Dodgers' world championship team of 1965, the year they beat the Minnesota Twins in the World Series, and next to that he rates managing the Havana Sugar Kings to the International League title in 1959 when they beat Minnespolis In the Little World Series.

Gene Mauch was the Minneapolis manager then. Now he's Gomez' boss as manager of the Angels.

Sanford's Victor "Quick Vic" Williams scoots for two yards and a touchdown in Friday night's loss.

Brannon's FG Gives Patriots Heartache

Patriot Fred Baber put on a dazzling Homecoming show for the Lake Brantley faithful, but it wasn't enough to avert a 23-21 setback. Above, Baber nails wideout Paul Watson just as he touches the ball to break up a pass play. At the right, Baber slips past the last man to complete a 49-yard punt return for a touchdown.

Homecoming 1981 turned to late-game heartache for Lake Brantley's Patriots Friday night.

Mainland's David Brannon provided the heartbreak with a 40-yard field goal with 1:48 remaining to erase a 21-20 Patriot lead and boost the Buccaneers to a 23-21 come-from-behind Five Star Conference victory.

The win lifts Mainland's record to 4-2 overall and 3-1 in district play while the Patriots slipped to 3-4 overall and 2-2 in district competition.

"We didn't expect anything less than a tooth and nail doglight with lake Brantley," confirmed Buccaneer coach Bob Wallace. "Our young kids kept their poise at the end against a very good football team."

Lake Brantley's Fred Baber put the Patriots in front early much to the delight of a pumped-up homecoming crowd with just one of several flashes of brilliance. Midway through the opening stanza Baber fielded a Buccaneer punt at Mainland's 49-yard line and zipped down the right sideline for a six-pointer. Kevin Besaw's conversion kick was wide, leaving the Patriots with a 6-0 advantage.

The Buccaneers struck early in the second quarter on Ashley Mitchell's eight-yard run. Brannon hit the PAT to push the Bucs to a slim 7-6 lead.

The Buccaneer defense set Mainland up with its second scoring opportunity midway through the period by covering a bobbled lateral pass at Lake Brantley's 17-yard line. Sophomore quarterback Eric Childs found Rich Preis with a 10-yard scoring strike five plays later to push the Bucs in front 13-7 after Brannon had his PAT kick blocked by Lake Brantley's interior line.

A short Buccaneer punt set Lake Brantley in position for Kevin Besaw's 37-yard field goal with just 10 seconds remaining in the half to help the Patriots close the gap to 13-9 at intermission.

The Patriots and Buccaneers slugged their way through a defensive third period before the visitors put together a 12-play drive, capped by Childs' second scoring strike to Preis, a 15-yarder. Brannon made good on the PAT to push Mainland in front 20-9 as the third quarter came to a close.

Lake Brantley struck right back four plays later. Baber, who contributed in everyway imaginable to the Lake Brantley effort, connected with tightend Mac Lantrip on a 67-yard halfback option pass for a score. The Patriots attempted to go for a two-point conversion, but Baber's effort came a yard shy, leaving Mainland in the lead at 20-15.

Thanks to a stiffening defense led by Mac Lantrip, Kyle Davis and Baber, the Patriots put together another fourthperiod drive, capping it at 5:03 when quarterback Al Rollison connected with, guess who, Fred Baber on a 40-yard touchdown strike. The Pats again tried for the two-point conversion but failed when halfback Kevin Besaw was forced to ditch a pass attempt on a halfback option, leaving Lake Brantley with a precarious 21-20 advantage.

The late game fireworks set the stage for one more Buccaneer blast, however. Mainlandused a pair of 15 yard penalties and a tipped pass for a drive sustaining reception on a fourth-and-nine situation to move within range for Brannon's field goal, a high and wide gift from the referees. The kick came with just 1:48 left in the game and seemed to take the wind out of Lake Brantley's sails. Only for a moment, however.

Aided by a late hit penalty against Mainland on the ensuing kickoff return, the Patriots marched behind a 19-yard connection from Rollison to Otis Cliatt. A personal foul infraction against the Bucs moved the Patriots to Mainland's 20-yard line with 1:17 showing, setting up a possible field goal attempt. The Patriots elected to go up top and were victimized by Rod Wallace's theft from A1 Rollison in the end zone, killing the Patriot comeback effort.

Lake Brantley

"We were trying to get closer," explained Lake Brantley coach Dave Tullis. "Just because you line up for a field goal doesn't mean you're going to make it.

"We went with a pass route that their defensive back had been biting on all night. We wanted to pass once, run a couple of times up the middle and then throw out of bounds to stop the clock because we were out of time outs."

Tullie was understandably dispar-

Tullis was understandably disappointed at the loss, but not at the Patriot effort.

"I'm proud of the way our kids came back. We were down 20-9 and they played as hard as possible at the end of the game."

"I'm happy to get out of here with this one," added Mainland's Wallace. "Last week Lake Brantley beat Spruce Creek everywhere but on the scoreboard and we knew coming here and winning would take a super effort. Right now I'm looking at Sanford and Spruce Creek, we still have a lot of football ahead of us.

still have a lot of football ahead of us.
"And," pointed out the Mainland coach, "we finish our season a week ahead of everybody else so we can just sit back and let the chips fall."

Despite the loss, several Patriots turned in noteworthy efforts.

Lantrip led the Pats with 11 solo tackles and four assists and was closely followed by Davis with nine tackles and a pair of assists.

Baber chalked up a number of impressive plays. The lanky senior came up with an interception and fumble recovery from his safety spot, returned three punts for 71 yards including his 49-yard touchdown return, latched on to eight passes for 130 yards including his 40-yard touchdown reception from Al Rollison, and hooked up with Lantrip on the 67-yard touchdown pass.

Lake Howell's Joey Perry gets set to swat a forehand.

Lake Howell's Perry Wins Big Tourney At Cocoa

Joey Perry, a 16 and under Florida junior standout for the Lake Howell High School tennis team, is setting the local tennis scene on fire. Joey has left the junior tournament circuit for a while and has ventured out into the much tougher men's circuit and is doing quite well.

Last weekend, Joey played in the Sun Bank sponsored Mens' Tournament at Cocoa Beach and although seeded only 12th, came off with the winner's trophy.

Along the way to winning this prestigious title, Joey defeated some really good players including No. 1 seed Mike Pernfors of Seminole Community College, No. 2 seed Mike DeFranko of University Central Florida and No. 6 seed Andy Castle of Seminole Community College. This was perhaps the biggest win in Joey's tennis history and could well just be a sign of things to Craig Perry, No. 1 player at Rollins and long time area tennis standout, is Joey's older brother. Craig, acknowledged as perhaps the best player in the area, said yesterday that his younger brother has really been working hard at his game and now has the confidence to possibly move even higher up on the tennis ladder. Rollins Coach, Norm Copeland, who has worked with both Joey and Craig for years, feels that Joey has perhaps the best chance of any area player of making it really big in tennis.

From this writer's point of view it's a pleasure to see young men like Joey and Craig Perry do well. They are both fierce competitors but are always gentlemen on the court and always exude the ultimate in good sportsmanship. A tip of the hat and good luck in the future to the Perry boys of Winter Park.

The new tennis coach at Lake Mary High School is local pro, Doug Maliczowski. Doug works well with young people and will be a real asset to the athletic department at LMHS. By the way, the tennis courts at the school are some of the finest in the area. The use of these facilities on a daily basis should give Lake Mary a nice edge when it comes to competing with other schools.

Up and coming Seminole High stars, Patty Edgemon and Angle Barley did well in a recent tournament at Ormond Beach. Both girls reached the semis in singles and won the doubles. Patty has only been playing tennis for a few years and has done really well. She is also a talented exterior decorator.

A city sponsored tournament for 12, 14 and 16 year olds will be put on by the Sanford Recreation Department and Optimist Club of Sanford November 7 - 8. For more information or entry forms, contact the City of Sanford Recreation Department. The phone number is 322-3161.

Tenals Tip Of The Week: When going out to practice, take as many tennis balls with you as possible. If you can save enough old balls to have 30 or so practice balls you will hit a lot more and chase balls a lot less. After all, in moving up the levels of tennis, it's not how many years you have played but how many balls you have hit that determines your progress.

Bird Battle

Creek Hawks Flush Away Lake Howell, 34-14

Lake Howell's Carlos Payas hauls in a pass from sophomore quarterback Troy Quackenbush for a first down against Spruce Creek. The Silver Hawks Tost, 34-14.

Herald Sports Writer

There was finally something for the Hawks to cheer about Friday night at Daytona Beach's Memorial Football Stadium. Unfortunately, it was the Spruce Creek Hawks who did the cheering and not Lake Howell.

Coach Terry Manfredi's Hawks won the battle of the birds, 34-14, and avenged a setback to the Silver Hawks in last year's District 4A-9 playoff at Apopka.

"We played a tough all-around game," said disconsolate Howell Coach Mike Bisceglia. "It was obvious that the game would have been different if it weren't for the four long passes and the one burst by (Kenny) Flowers."

Sophomore quarterback Mike Elmore tossed four long scoring bombs of 80, 35, 25 and 56 yards and Flowers, a senior sprinter, had a graceful burst of 64 yards for a TD.

Bisceglia felt the game's momentum switched on Lake Howell's first drive which resulted in a fumble on the goal line. The Silver Hawks marched the ball down the field after halfback Scott Grant returned the kickoff to the Hawk 35 yard line. The senior slasher picked up 35 yards on the opening drive

The drive, nevertheless, stalled when Lake Howell coughed up the ball on the two yard line.

Spruce Creek quarterback Elmore, who is a fine young passer, put the ball in the air six times Friday, but he made the best of it by tossing four for scores.

Creek scores first after Lake Howell fumbled at the two. Elmore hit Willie Wingfield who crossed all over the field for the first score with less than a couple minutes gone. The play

Elmore then hit John Lavin for scores of 35 yards and 80 yards. Each time he just beat the Hawk secondary and had no trouble finding the end zone for a 20-0 first half lead.

Elmore ran around the outside for the PAT for the conversion. After the Hawks failed on their first two attempts. The Orange and Black fans had something to cheer about early in the second half as their outstanding runningback Kenny Flowers raced for a 64-yard burst.

Silver Hawks

Grant returned ball for 15 yards to the Silver Hawk 33 yard line, after the Silver and Blue defense held Flowers on two straight runs, they forced Creek to punt.

Neither team moved the ball on the ground their opening possession, so Hawk punter Scott Grant booted the ball away to sustain his 45 yard average.

Creek wasted no time, as on the opening play, Flowers ran up the middle and looked as if he were stopped, but then he broke for the sideline and found 64 yards of opening to give his team a 27-0 lead with Paul Ching converting the PAT.

With 7:36 remaining in the third quarter, sophomore quarterback Quackenbush controlled a nice drive, which led to the other Hawks first touchdown.

Quackenbush connected on a 35 yard gain to Eugene Boyle, moving the ball across the midstripe line. On a third and three call, "Quack" hit Jeff Hughes across the middle for a 13-yard pickup, moving to the Creek II. A draw play to sophomore Jay Robey for nine yards and a fourth down pass interference call gave the Silverbirds their first opportunity at the five-yard

Quick-footed tailback Bill Mosblech sneaked his way through the Orange and Black line for the touchdown with 3:22 left. A pass to Robey for the PAT failed.

A fourth Creek touchdown pass lifted the Hawks to a clinching score and gives Spruce Creek a very good shot at the conference title.

The Silver Hawks, who attempted an onside kick after their score, watched in a matter of minutes a 56 yard toss from Elmore to Stacey Mobley with 2:13 left.

Ron Has Dodger Cey, So LA Dumps Yanks

Dodgers' Ron Cey gets set to wallop a homer.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - It was not one of Fernando Valenzuela's better games. In fact, the Los Angeles Dodgers' rookie left-hander called it one of his worst.

But showing more courage than control, Valenzuela righted himself after a staggering start Friday night to pitch the Dodgers to a tough 5-4 victory over the New York Yankees in Game 3 of the World Series.

The 20-year-old Mexican retired the side in order only twice while throwing a career-high 145 pitches as the Dodgers narrowed the Yankees' series lead to 2-1.

In the third game of the World Series, with his Los Angeles Dodgers trailing two games to none to the New York Yankees, the rookie left-hander found himself without his control, without much of a fastball and even without his forte, the screwball,

But he hadn't lost an ounce of his courage. And in the end, it was that courage that impressed the Yankees.

Valenzuela went the distance, giving up nine hits in the Dodgers' 5-4 victory. He walked seven batters, the most in a game in his career, while striking out six.

"I've never seen anyone with so much heart," Dodger manager Tom Lasorda told Valenzuela while hugging him in the Dodgers' festive clubhouse.

Despite yielding nine hits and walking a career-high seven batters, Valenzuela allowed the Yankees to score in only the second and third innings.

"The big problem in the first six innings was that I kept falling behind the hitters," said Valenzuela. "After the first six innings I finally got my rhytum and started pitching the way I'm capable of. The big thing is I started throwing strikes."

Dodger third baseman Ron Cey, who gave the Dodgers a 3-0 lead with a threerun homer in the first inning, also made the big defensive play of the game. In the eighth inning he made a diving catch in foul territory of an attempted sacrifice bunt by Bobby Murcer and doubled Larry Milbourne off first base.

"The only way I could have gotten to that ball was to dive at it," Cey said. "The big thing though was that Milbourne left first base early,"

Cey said he hit a fastball off Dave Righetti for his home run.

World Series

'We haven't been bringing men home when we've had them in scoring position," Cey said. "When I went to the plate I was hoping I could get us off to a big start and I did, at least temporarily." Asked if he expected the three-run lead to hold up with Valenzuela on the mound, Cey said, "Normally it would but we haven't been doing things easy lately." Dodger first baseinan Steve Garvey suggested the team's highlight film should be entitled "Fate and Destiny." "We get ourselves in a hole but we manage to battle out of it most of the time," Garvey said.

As they did in their National League West Divisional Series against Houston, the Dodgers have won the third game after losing the first two.

"We've gotten to feel comfortable in this position," said Cey, "We still think we can win this Series."

Asked if he felt vindicated by the victory, Lasorda replied, "I don't know what vindicated means but Fernando and the rest of the guys just made me feel a whole lot better."

"Valenzuela settled down and got stronger after the fifth inning," said Cerone. "I'm suprised he stayed in so long, but he's their are and they have a lot of confidence in him."

Cerone, who also had a double in four at-bats, said the home run came on one of Valenzuela's classic screwballs while the double came on a fastball.

"We got some hits off him and a lot of teams didn't even do that," said Cerone. "But Valenzuela is a good pitcher and he hung in there through the tough times. That's the sign of a real good pitcher."

Watson, who drilled his second homer of the Series over the 395-foot mark in center field, said he didn't expect Valenzuela to be around after the fourth

"Valenzuela is a battler," said Watson. "We got the hits early and he could have given up but he didn't. He didn't have his great control but he went out there and sucked it up and did the job."

Right fielder Lou Piniella, who singled in five at-bats and scored one run, echoed his teammates in praising Valenzuela.

"He's a tough pitcher and he showed me a lot with his style," said Piniella. "He doesn't give you anything real good to hit, but we got the hits in the second and third inning and I figured that might be the end of him.

"But he got stronger as the game went on. In the last few innings, we hardly touched him."

Yankee owner George Steinbrenner blamed the loss on a number of things, including his team's mental mistakes, the condition of the Dodger Stadium infield and the poor showing of his highest paid player. He also singled out Aurelio Rodriguez, who was playing in place of the injured Graig Nettles.

'We lost today because of the damn mental errors," Steinbrenner said. "Rodriguez made a couple of them and I guess it's just because he hasn't plaved much. That lousy infield sure didn't help. You'd think they'd put in a half-decent infield in this park.

"And maybe the worst thing of all is that Dave Winfield isn't hitting at all. He's got two hits in the last two weeks and he's just not doing the job. He's had a real bad Series and he's the guy we depend on."

By George,

'You'd Think That A Team That Made So Much Money Could Afford A Half-Decent Infield

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - Ron Cey and looks exciting. George Steinbrenner Introduced a new type of tremor to Southern California Friday night.

Cey led an awakening of Dodger bats with a three-run homer and added a key defensive play to give Fernando that cut the Yankees' World Series lead to 2-1 and brought a tantrum from owner Steinbrenner.

The Dodgers, who already have made two remarkable comebacks in the postseason, send righty fireballer Bob Welch against veteran righthander Rick Reuschel today in Game 4.

"There were tremors today in Southern California and maybe that was our bats falling out of the rack and waking up," said Dodger first baseman Steve Garvey, who singled and scored the tying run in a decisive two-run fifth.

While the Dodgers were making comeback rumblings on their side of the field, the Yankee owner issued his first blast of a World Series that suddenly

"We lost this game because of mental mistakes, because of a lousy infield, and because the guy we depend on the most, Dave Winfield, just isn't doing the job for us," said Steinbrenner.

The Yankee owner was also incensed Valenzuela a 5-4 victory over New York at third baseman Aurelio Rodriguez, who replaced the injured Graig Nettles. Both Nettles and outfielder Reggie Jackson figure to play today.

"Rodriguez made at least two mental mistakes but I guess he hasn't played that much," continued Steinbrenner, who then ripped the Dodgers. "You'd think that a team that made so much money could afford a half-decent infield."

Rodriguez and the hard infield became a factor in the fifth with New York leading 43. With none out, Garvey singled and Cey walked off loser George Frazier, Pedro Guerrero, who had struck out after failing to sacrifice in his previous at-bat, faked a bunt, drawing in Rodrigues. He then bounced a double over have been able to stop the ball. "Nettles

GEORGE STEINBRENNER ...down on Winfield

Rodriguez to drive in Garvey and send Cey to third, from where he eventually acored on Mike Scioscia's double-play grounder. "The ball wasn't far from his glove," said Guerrero, who said Nettles might is a little taller than Rodriguez."

Cey certainly stood tall throughout the game, hitting his homer in the first inning after Dave Lopes doubled and Bill Russell bunted for a hit.

"We haven't been bringing men home when we've had them in scoring position," said Cay. "When I went up to the plate I was hoping I could get us off to a big start and I did, at least temporarily."

The lead lasted just three innings. Bob Watson hit a solo homer and Rick Cerone doubled and accred on Larry Milbourne's single in the second. In the third, Cerone hit a two-run homer. But Valenzuela stiffened and finished the game, striking out Lou Piniella to shove the Dodgers right back into the Series.

"He's a tough pitcher and he showed me a lot with his style," said Piniella. "He doesn't give you anything real good to hit but we got the hits in the second and third inning and I figured that might be the end of him." Instead, Valenzuela received some spectacular defensive support from his In the ninth, Winfield flied lazily to mates, who are gradually beginning to right for the second out, giving him 0-formake the above-average fielding play. 10 for the Series and bringing wrath from Cey made a gem in the eighth with two out and none out. Bobby Murcer batted for pitcher Rudy May and attempted to sacrifice. But his bunt angled over the third base line in front of Cey, who dove about two weeks. Two hits!" to catch the ball. He then threw to first to double off Larry Milbourne.

"Cey's play took the wind out of the Yankees," said Garvey, "It's nice to see the other team suffer on a play at third Garvey's remarks rang only too true to Steinbrenner, who criticized Milbourne for being caught off first and Murcer "for one of the worst bunts I've ever seen." If Steinbrenner agonized over the double play, he must have felt even worse on the next play. Willie Randolph sent a bouncer to third that he probably would have beaten out. However, Cey alertly avoided the throw to first by Steinbrenner.

"We've had no production from the No. 3 spot," said the owner, a reference to his $20 million man, "He's got two hits in

Maybe it's the Dodger comeback pattern that has Steinbrenner worried. He often blasts his team when he thinks they need it. If you listen to the Dodgers, maybe the Yankees should be a bit worried.

"I would be worried if this were a bestof-three series," said Dodger manager Tommy Lasorda, "But it's a best-olseven. They have to win four. It reminds me of the story about the guy who's 100 yards from shore and his boot cansizes. He swims for his life then drowns two feet from shore. Hey, he should have drowned right at the beginning."

What that has to do with baseball, only tagging out Rodriguez, who was trying to Tommy Lasorda knows. But hey, the man is doing something right.

Football For Everyone, Nelson Likes Dallas

Last Sunday's games had a little something for every fan, no matter what his tastes. There were upsets, scoring by every way in the book, last minute-wins, and last second reprieves from sure defeat. I was unset 5 of 14 games, as were HARRAH's, for a 64 percent winning average.

Since PHILADELPHIA bit the dust,

there are no unbeaten teams left in the NFL, and it is far too early in this season of upacts to predict any Division winners. The game of musical chairs will continue for about another month. The match ups this week look more reasonable than any week this season, with only 5 potential upsets in the forecast. I have predicted both MIAMI and DENVER of the AFC to lose, and all present leaders in the NFC to win,

but the leadership of all six divisions should remain essentially unchanged. MEANS (5-1-1) AT DALLAS (5-8) The DOLPHINS lead the AFC EAST while the COWBOYS are right behind PHILADELPHIA in the NFC EAST. Besides being a half game ahead of the COWBOYS, the DOLPHINS have won all of their games by 6 points more than DALLAS. They have both won victories over common enemies by essentially the same difference, and both teams are playing below their predictions by several points the last three games.

The COWNOYS, however, are fighting for the lead in their Division and are playing on their home turf where they have a 3 point per game advantage. All in all, this is a fine match and if the DOLPHIN defense starts clicking again they might stun the world by handing DALLAS their first home game defeat in a long time. The statistics overall do favor DALLAS, and I expect them to win by 4 points of more.

CINCINNATI (5-2) AT NEW ORLEANS (14)

The BENGALS load the AFC CEN-TRAL DIVISION by a game and will have no intention of allowing a slip up on this one. They lead the SAINTS in every imaginable statistic, and short of the team coming down with messive cases of Creole food polsoning, should win this one handlily by 18 points of

SAN DIEGO (34) AT CHICAGO (14) SAN DIEGO is in a three way tie for first place in the AFC WEST with KANSAS CITY and DENVER. After their rout by DETROIT, CHICAGO is in last place in the NFC CENTRAL. The powerful offence of the CHARGERS has averaged 34 points per game, and the team seemingly works on the theory of "to back with the defence, gimme the ball so we can score again," If their defense improves, they will be world champions. They have the BEARS outclassed in this event, and I expect SAN DIEGO to win by about 31

KANSAS CITY (52) AT OAKLAND (3-

The CHIEFS have improved during the last three games and are hot on the trail to victory in their Division. They shut out OAKLAND week before last, and beat TAMPA by 7 points more than the RAIDERS. The RAIDER defense appears to be better by 13 points per game than the CHIEFS, while the offenses are reversed. OAKLAND is playing 12 points off during the last three games, while the CHIEFS are playing 3 points better than predicted. The major question seems to be whether or not the re-formed OAKLAND offense with a new quarterback can put more than 25 points on the board this Sunday. There are upset indicators, and this game could really go either way, but I had to pick the CHIEFS to win by 10.

UPSET CLIPPHANGER OF THE WEEK

DENVER ($4) AT BUFFALO (44) These teams index out very close. The defenses are about even, but the BILLS offense at home is 11 points better than the BRONCOS. The BILLS have also come out 11 points better per game over common enemies than DENVER, although both teams have been scoring less than predicted the last three games. Both teams are fighting to gain the lead in their respective Divisions.

This looks like a real CLIF-FHANGER right to the bitter end, but I expect the BUFFALO spectacular offense to prevail by 14 points. TAMPA BAY (6-3) FRILADELPHIA (6-1)

The BUCS are a game behind MINNESOTA for the lead in the NFC CENTRAL after a heart breaker loss to OAKLAND last week! While the EAGLES are still out in front in the NFC EAST after suffering an upset at the hands of surprising MINNESOTA. PHILADELPHIA has a 8 point per game better offense than TAMPA, and a 9 point better defense.

All other state favor the EAGLES, and there are no uppet indicators. Its tough to go against a Florida team, but the formula gives this one to PHILADELPHIA by 8 points. MINNESOTA (54) AT ST LOUIS (8-5)

MINNESOTA leads the NFC CEN-TRAL by one game, and have amaned the world by playing 14 points per game better than predicted for the last three games. The defends of both these teams are equal, but the VIKINGS have averaged 8 points per game better then the CARDENALS in offence.

The CARDS have a 8 point home field advantage for this game, which I fear will not be stough. There are no upon indicators, and the formula has MINNESOTA to win by 6 points, or CLIFFHANGER HUMDINGER OF THE WEEK LOS ANGELES (43 AT BAN-

FRANCISCO (52) The evers have a one game lead over the RAMS in the NFC WEST, and this BUFFALO game promises to be a struggle right to the end. Amesing SAN FRANCISCO has a 9 point per game better defense and a 7 point better offense at home than LOS ANGELES.

The effers have also whipped common enemies by an average of 5 points per game maps than the RAMS and have been playing 4 points per game better for the last three games. It looks like SAN FRANCISCO has the best chance for a playoff borth that they have had in many years, and they don't want to blow it.

Grapefruit Juice Sales Climb 1% Above 1980's

Paced by good increases for frozen and chilled forms, total retail volume sales of processed grapefruit juice during June and July climbed one percent above sales for the same two months of 1980.

The latest food index report submitted to the Florida Department of Citrus by the A.C. Nielsen Co., indicates that total sales of grapefruit juice at the retail level amounted to 16 million single-strength equivalent gailons. In that same June-July period, dollar sales of $54 million represented the highest mark ever and a gain of 12 percent over last year.

Spearheading this performance was frozen concentrated grapefruit Juice, with retail buying of 25 million single-strength equivalent gallons, bettering June-July a year ago by 10 percent. This was a record, as were dollar sales of $6.6 million for a gain of 21

Century Joins Sun Banks

Shareholders of Sun Banks of Florida have approved by a wide margin the proposed merger of Century Banks into Sun Banks. Shareholders, represented in person or by proxy, voted approximately 66 percent of the total shares outstanding for the merger.

Earlier, at a special meeting of shareholders, Century Banks announced that its shareholders also approved the merger.

'The process of obtaining the necessary approvals from regulatory authorities to consummate the merger is well on its way," said Richard F. Livingston, Sun Banks' chairman and chief executive officer, and Joel R. Wells Jr., Sun's president.

Gas Prices Drop .4 Cent

Gasoline prices across Florida dropped four-tenths of a cent per gallon over the last month, the latest AAA Clubs of Florida Fuel Gauge report shows.

The average price for all grades of gasoline at fullservice pumps is now $1.425, the lowest average since February. The latest fuel-gauge report also shows motorists can save 11.5 cents per gallon at self-service pumps. That is a half-cent-per-gallon improvement in savings since September.

The latest survey showed that Naples had the highest price on any grade of gasoline, with premium selling for $1.528. Port Richey, with regular selling for $1.329, had the lowest price for a single grade of full-service

What About Adjustable Mortgage Loans?

"If you don't like the idea of a mortgage interest rate that varies every few months, with all the other interest rates, don't blame the Federal Home Loan Bank Board that approved it. Blame the inflation that raises interest rates."

So said a newspaper editorial on the board's recent decision to authorize federal savings and loan associations (S&La) and federal mutual savings banks to issue home mortgages with interest rates that can rise or fall with changing interest rates in credit markets.

For many consumers who are familiar only with mortgage rates remaining the same during the life of the mortgage, the new Adjustable Mortgage Loans (AML) may come as a shock. There are always something comforting about knowing that, no matter what, the morigage payment was a fixed expense. But, as the editorial observed, mortgage rates "kept ticking away at their accustomed rates" (five or six percent in the '60s and seven or eight percent in the early '70s) in spite of 15 years of rapid inflation which escalated consumers' other costs and their incomes in most cases. It is no wonder that mortgage lenders have been reluctant to make loans that committed their resources for 25 or 30 years.

The argument has been made that AMLs are not good for consumers during inflationary periods when interest rates fluctuate so fast and increased monthly mortgage payments could result in massive foreclosures. However, the effect of longterm fixed mortgage rates is that the rates paid by current borrowers must subsidize long-term mortgages at lower rates granted years ago. There are signs that banks will voluntarily set limits to the amount of change, the frequency of change, and the maximum amount of change in monthly payments. The market will demand that such assurances be included in a bank's mortgage offerings.

But the Reagan administration is committed to reducing inflation, our number one consumer problem. And the positive steps that are being taken should eventually result in lower mortgage rates. If we want mortgage lending money available to us, there has to be a profit incentive in times of high interest rates as well as low, and consumers must pay a competitive rate if mortgage loans are going to be within reach.

Here are some highlights of the AML rule which the Board put into effect on April 30:

- Although there are no limits in periodic interest rate adjustments, the adjustment must be based upon the movement of an interest rate "index." Among the indices the Board has suggested are three-month and sixmonth Treasury bill auction rates and the national average contract mortgage rate for the purchase of existing homes. Whichever index is finally chosen, it must be readily verifiable by the borrower and not under the control of the lender (although the selection of an appropriate index is left up to the lender). If the index goes up, the lender may increase the interest rate by the amount the index goes up, but if the index goes down, the lender must decrease the interest rate correspondingly. The lender may also decrease the interest rate voluntarily.

- The lender must give an AML borrower a disclosure form with an AML application. The form must describe the adjustable elements of the loan, its key terms, and an example of how it will work.

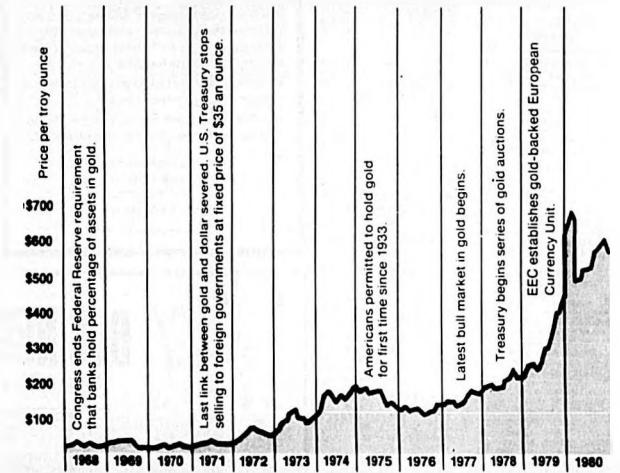

- The lender must notify the borrower of interest rate adjustments at least 30 days but not more than 45 days before the adjustment

- Borrowers may not be penalized for loan prepayments. This prohibition is intended to provide borrowers maximum flexibility to look for more favorable financing sources during the term of an AML. The term may never exceed 40 years.

The new regulation does not affect Graduated Payment Adjustable Mortgages (primarily for younger people who expect to have greater earnings in the future) or Reverse Annuity Mortgages (primarily for older people where the equity in a dwelling is used to let the owners live in their homes until they die or decide to sell their interest).

Time will tell how useful and popular these new mortgage instruments will be.

GOLD AND MONEY

Gold prices have had their ups and downs during recent years which also have seen significant developments in the metal's age-old relationship to money. The U.S. government has been downplaying gold's monetary role since 1933 when gold coinage was discontinued, but the last links between the currency and gold were not severed until almost four decades later. The Federal Reserve dropped requirements that member banks hold some reserves in gold and the Treasury ended sales to foreign governments at the fixed price of $35 an ounce.

State's Water Situation Far From Normal

Item: Irrigated land produces more than 80 per cent of the total value of farm products in Florida annually.

Item: Restrictions on using water are already inevitable for South Florida this winter.

Putting those two items together seems to certify that farmers and consumers will suffer to some extent before Florida's water situation returns to normal.

The combination of items lends importance to a recent agreement dealgnating the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services as the lead agency in alleviating agricultural pollution-or renders the agreement hollow. Normally at this time of year there is plenty of fresh water for crops and people in South Florida, where most of the fresh vegetable crops are grown for winter consumption in the northern U.S. and Canada. Lack of rain in areas that drain into Lake Okeechobee has left South Florida in a borderline water

Farmers around the southern border of the big lake have been told that releases of water will be controlled during the winter in an effort to keep the level of the lake from falling below 10 feet above sea level.

Counting anticipated evaporation losses from the present level of just under 12 feet means that farmers will be allowed to use about a foot of take water between now and next June 1, unless there is some unusual rain this winter.

By comparison, in one month last spring farmers drew more than a foot of water from the lake as the summer drought raised irrigation demand. And to compound the problem, the lake already is dropping.

For the moment, most of the midstate citrus area appears to be in better shape because summer showers raised the groundwater table, but not by enough to give clear relief to growers who are having to irrigate some citrus groves

Some Firms Try 'Issues Management'

Consumers and consumer organizations are becoming more aware and active in corporate issues that affect their lives.

Talk of insurance affordability and availability, alleged financial institution redlining and inequitable delivery of goods and services is no longer confined behind closed doors, but is also heard over kitchen tables and in living rooms and neighborhood meeting places across the country.

Consumers and consumer organizations have learned to draw and use corporate, government and media attention to resolve many of these topics through a system called the public policy process.

In response to this public policy process,

Florida Slowdown

Means: Be Careful

While economic data shows the Florida economy is still advancing against last year's growth rates, slowdowns in the important areas of lourism and construction urgs a very cautious economic outlook through the remaining months in 1981, according to Southeast Banking Corp. economist Earl M.

which affects the operations of many companies and institutions, several corporations have developed "lasues management" areas within their organizations. Such issues management areas help companies adapt in an era of rapid social, economic and political change, and participate in the resolution of many of these public policy issues.

"Issues management translates into managing a company's talent and resources so that it can participate in the public policy process," says Ray Ewing, Allstate Insurance Co.'s director of issues management. "A company should go in knowing that it is not going to manage these issues, but participate in the resolution of

At Allstate, issues management is closely linked with the senior management policymaking process. It deals with emerging issues that may become current issues in the near future and helps develop a corporate policy or response to these issues.

Issues management at many large corporations like Allstate operates under a committee-type structure. There are two subcommittees under the main issues management committee - a trend analysis committee and a steering committee. A trend analysis committee identifies emerging issues from various sources, including business and general publications, and committee assigns priorities to the emerging issues identified by the trend analysis committee. The steering committee decides which issues should be taken to the main issues management committee for senior management consideration.

Issues management committees often deliberately restrict their attention to four or five of the highest priority issues relative to the corporation.

That isn't always easy, according to Ewing. "For example, at Allstate, we began with public policy insues, but we learned very quickly that many internal issues have public policy implications, "

Steven Kohn Gets Telephone Co. Post

The Winter Park Telephone Co. has announced the appointment of Steven G. Kohn to the position of customer and network services manager for the Orange City Telephone Co. Kohn will assume the responsibilities of Rodger E. Seney, vice president of Orange City Telephone, who has announced his retirement as of Jan. 8, 1982, after 30 years of service with the Winter Park and Orange City companies.

Kohn comes to Orange City Telephone from United Telephone of Florida (Fort Myers), where he served in plantand commercial operations of various capacities of nine years. A 1989 graduate of the University of Florida, he taught in the Surnter County school system until 1972, when he joined the United Telephone System.

Sency began his telephone career in 1946 with the New York State Telephone Co.

"The degree of gradual deterioration in the Florida economy is indicated by the the declining momentum of key economic indicators," said Foster.

"For instance, mirroring national housing trends, construction in the state has dropped to a new low. August's construction contracts were the lowest since February 1978, and considerably below the level of activity needed to meet Piorida's long-range housing needs," he said.

"The longer mortgage retes linger in the 15 to 17 percent range, the more construction and the overall Florida economy will be hurt. Though developers are currently "buying down" mortgage rates (negotiating a reduced interest cost for buyers) or lessing completed units until market conditions improve, these are only "aspirins" for the construction problems," Foster commented.

"The tourism industry has demonstrated both ups and downs," he explained. "Some hotels and motels point to higher occupancy rates, but domestic air travel continues below last year's levels and international traffic growth is marginal. Set against the announced cutbacks in the number of domestic flights for this winter and the overall deterioration in the national economy, an early surge in winter tourism could be quite restrained.

"The two strongest sectors of Florida's economy currently are manufacturing and the retail service trade areas. Manufacturing is strong across the middle of the state and particularly in Jacksonville with increases in defense spending already being felt. The retail service trade sector showed expansion in August, with sales up 15.1 per cent from last year and with particular strength showing in West Palm Beach, Orlando and Sarasota," said Foster.

Gibberellic Acid Helps Tree Citrus

Specialists have known for many years that gibberellic acid - a natural hormone found in plants - applied to citrus "stores" the fruit on the tree.

The method saves growers storage space and cooling costs. Additionally, the application delays the fruit's "growing older" by maintaining peel quality, keeping it yellow and therefore more appealing to the consuming public.

But while results of this acid application are known, extensive research in what the acid actually does in the fruit has not been studied.

Sciences doctoral candidate is studying these effects, trying to determine why the acid acts as it does, where and in what form it accumulates in the fruit.

A University of Florida Institute of Food and Agricultural

For the next year Louise Ferguson will be working with Dr. T. A. Wheaton of the IFAS Agricultural Research and Education Center in Lake Alfred to assess the movement of gibberellic acid in fruits.

Through her studies, the 34-year-old student in fruit crops hopes to find a way to manipulate the entire effect, making application of the acid even more advantageous to the grower.

In her experiment, Ms. Ferguson will spread the acid on the fruit and leaves of potted trees kept in a greenhouse. At various times, she will examine all parts - leaves, twigs, fruit, peel and seeds - to see what the acid has done.

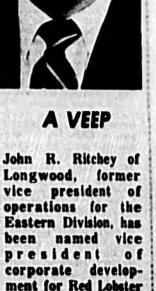

keep the peel looking nice - an important quality for the export industry, where shipment of fruit abroad can take weeks. By being able to "store" fruit on the tree, the grower can optimize his crop, allowing marketing flexibility, Ms.

Ferguson says. Once a fruit is picked, it must be marketed, so

Disaster: Call Red Cross

American Red Cross provided an impressive in Washington, D.C. to military stations and number of community services to the Central Florida area during the past year. Two of the most important were disaster relief and around-the-clock service to military families.

Red Cross is a United Way agency and the military. Seminole County office is located in

In both major and minor disasters, Red Cross assistance can consist of medical care. food, clothing, shelter and other necessities. Later, it can include replacement of occupational tools, bedding and household furnishings, emergency home repairs, grants of rent money, counseling, referral to various social agencies, and communication with relatives. There is never any charge for digaster assistance.

Red Cross Disaster Action Teams responded to 34 one-family fires in Seminole County involving 117 persons during 1980. They also met the immediate needs of those burned out in the St. Johns Village Apartments fire in Fern

The main function of Red Cross' Congressional Chartered Service to Military Families Department is the worldwide communications link between members of the Armed Forces and their families, During 1980 alone, over 3,000 messages were sent via safety and elementary disaster training

The Central Florida Chapter of the American Red Cross National Headquarters ships all over the world.

Since World War I, the Red Cross has been working to enable veterans and their families to have the same assistance as the active

Red Cross Water Services are important to Seminole County because of the vast number of lakes, rivers and ponds here. During 1980, 3,048 certificates were Issued in the 133 classes conducted locally in awimming, lifesaving and water safety instruction.

The Chapter's First Aid Services continued to be active with 110 classes taught in Seminole and 2.232 certificates issued. The Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) classes and demonstrations have tripled in demand. Emergency First Aid Stations are provided for public events.

There are more than 1,550 volunteers in the Central Florida Chapter who donated 63,000 hours in Ked Cross service. Volunteers at the Life Care Center in Altamonte Springs alone gave more than 6,000 hours of care to patients.

The Red Cross Teen Corps for youth 13 and up successfully completed its third year by certifying members in CPR, first aid, vital signs, swimming, basic rescue and water

"They were in obvious need of attention," he said while working on the reatorations. "They couldn't be moved out of the room or I would have packed and shipped them to my studio."

The six-by-eight-foot paintings will be on exhibit from November through February at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, which paid Olin $20,000 of the $23,700 he is charging to restore the works. Before being returned to Charleston in June, the portraits also will be displayed at the National Portrait Gallery in Washington for several months.

"They were receiving the typical care most art gets unless it's in an institution with professionals," the 48-year-old conservator said in an interview while working on the

"They never had been restored properly in the past. The major amount of time I've spent has been undoing the past restorations. In the old days, some of the restoration was good, but preserving it was incidental."

Washington's portrait was painted in 1792 by Trumbuli, but a four-inch-wide strip added at the bottom in 1805 was discovered by Olin when he removed the work of previous restorers. It has an appraised value of $3.5 million. Jackson's portrait was done in 1834 and is appraised at $1.5 million.

"They are substantially important paintings, historically and financially," Olin said. "They are top quality paintings."

Restoring the works in the council chambers as tourists stopped to talk and ask questions posed several problems. A large, flat surface to reline the portraits had to be set up, the paintings had to be taken outside in the hot run

"No good conservation should be done this percent variance. The room has no humidity way - working under a deadline - but that seems to be the way it always happens."

At least five repaintings of the Washington portrait had been done by restorationists before he began working it, Oline said.

Olin, a conservator for two decades who trained in physics before taking graduate work in art history, painting and museum history, considers himself a technologist, not a painter.

He uses synthetic paints now because they do not discolor with age as the linseed oil and resin paints did.

When Olin worked on the back of the paintings, he placed mulberry tissue paper and wheat flour paste on the front to protect the paint film on the front from flaking off.

"The backs were glue-lined," Olin said. "George had two canvases and a thick layer of animal glue between them that had become brittle and was stronger than the oil paint on the surface, causing the paint on the front to come loose."

Previous restorers never bothered to remove earlier restorations, and some of that paint was difficult to remove, Olin said. The retouchers painted in broad strokes, sometimes covering the original paint as well, he said.

Olin has made recommendations for humidity controls and a security system for the paintings, and Mayor Joseph P. Riley Jr. said the suggestions are being reviewed.

"It will be a waste of money to restore the paintings and then put them back into a room without relative humidity control," Olin said. He also has recommended restoration of four more important works in the City Hall

IN BRIEF

Life in The Fast Lane For Actress Lisa Hartman

The last place anyone would expect to find Lisa Hartman is behind the wheel of a souped-up clunker in the grimy arena of a demolition derby.

A lot of people hope they never find her there again, but don't count on it. The beautiful, blonde, blue-eyed rock-singing costar of the recent CBS version of Jacqueline Susann's "Valley of the Dolls" is hooked on the sport and recently won a third place trophy at Houston's Astrodome for her sheer aggression in the motorized hayhem.

She won nothing but whiplash in another contest but that isn't stopping her. Says she, "It's great. You get all your things out. It's serious bumper cars." And she adds, "My manager hates it, my mother hates it, my boyfriend hates it, but there's something about getting behind the wheel of a car that I love. I'm really good."

New York's Odd Couple

Manhattan's "odd couple" designer Halston and choreographer Martha Graham (she's older by more than 30 years) had their big night at Bloomingdale's department alore last week-"A Halston Night for Martha Graham.

It cost $300 a ticket to sit in what is normally the rug department and view Halston's new fashion collection and scenes from very old Martha Graham ballets, including "Mary Stuart."

Then some 700 party-goers enjoyed a champagne dinner in the furniture department. The party really took off when the die-hards traveled on to -where else?-Studio 54 for a disco finale to the evening.

Star-Crossed Stars

Lucille Ball and Steve Allen headed the guest list as some 300 of Hollywood's top stars, prooducers, directors and writers who turned out for a recent party at CBS's old Columbia Square studios to honor Bob Carroll Jr. and Madelyn Davis on their 35th anniversary as one of television's most successful comedy writing teams.

There were personal commendations from President Reagan and Nancy, California Gov. Jerry Brown and Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley. The writing team's biggest success was "I Love Lucy," whose pilot was launched at CBS. Columbia Square and which premiered in 1961. Currently Carroll and Davis are writing two series, "Alice" and "Private Benjamin."

NOW Nomination

Louise Crawford Receives Honor

By DARLENE JENNINGS Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County Chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW) has named Louise Crawford, an equal opportunity officer for Seminole Community Action, the recipient of the 1981 Fannie Lou Hamer award.

This award, named in honor of the civil right's activist, is presented annually to an individual who has worked to improve the "condition of women," according to a prepared statement released by NOW.

Ms. Hamer was the first black female to register to vote in the state of Mississippi and a charter member of the Women's National Political Caucus.

"Hamer is one of my outstanding women herolnes," said the recipient of the award named in Ms. Hamer's honor," and she was one strong feminist leader. I'm very happy to have received the award."

Mrs. Hamer died in 1977.

Asked if she is a feminist, Ms. Crawford responded, "Yes, I am definitely a feminist," said Ms. Crawford with an air of self-confidence. "And I should hope that all women are feminists."

"To me the definition of a feminist — and they can be male or female — is someone who cares about people and would like to make changes to keep people from being oppressed."

The authoritative woman with her dark hair streaked with lines of silver said she was in the third grade when she first realized there is a difference in how men and women are treated in society.

"I was playing baseball with some boys at school and I got a spanking for it," she laughs as she recalls the incident, "I just couldn't understand why it was all right for them to play and not for me."

Ms. Crawford has come a long way since that first incident that riled her sense of equality between the sexes to where she is today.

Besides belonging to NOW and working for Seminole Community Action — a community service organization which seeks to elevate the quality of life for individuals — the Sanford activist is also a member of the Florida Association for Community Action, she is chairman of the State Equal Oppprtunity Commission, is a life-time member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), and for three years she has also been a member of the Central Florida Legal Services.

A very outgoing person, Ms. Crawford also attends state conferences on equality issues and she participates in rallies, parades, and she pickets to demonstrate her concern for an issue.

Ms. Crawford was in Miami, this past week, to discuss with state equal opportunity offices federal cutbacks in community service agencies' funding.

And in fact, she was scheduled to participate in a Pro Choice Parade in Orlando to protest the Pro Life's state convention and that organization's beliefs, but she regrettably did not attend because of demands on her schedule.

One of those demands was her interview with The Evening Herald.

However, the mother of three children says she is not only seeking equality for women only, she says she is concerned with all people.

"I'm concerned with any oppressive condition that keeps people from reaching their potential," she said. Ms. Crawford says she has been a civil rights activist for 16 years.

Married to her husband Woody for 30 years, the browneyed woman with the large amethyst-colored rimmed glasses said her family is "very supportive" of her endeavors.

"My kids, Chip, Connie, and Cathy all love it and my husband is very understanding," she said in a loving tone. "I think my children are themselves and they are independent — maybe as a result."

Preferring to be referred to as Ms. Louise Crawford rather than Mrs. Woody Crawford and deciding not to wear her wedding band, she is committed to her beliefs and these choices have had no ill effects on her marriage.

"I don't see why I should have to be referred to as Mrs. Crawford," she said evenly but with strength in her voice. "A man is called Mr. whether he is married or single."

"Also, I don't think I should have to be identified as a married person," she said. "I took off my wedding rings 15 or 16 years ago when I needed to have a diamond remounted in my ring, and at that time, I started thinking about whether I wanted to put them back on again.

"It was not intended to be a put down to my husband, but I didn't feel like I should have to wear a ring to tell the whole world I'm married. It hasn't taken anything away from the security of my marriage — we have a real cool relationship," she said like a woman who is happy with her life.

Ms. Crawford said her mother doesn't necessarily understand why she is so active in her campaign for equality.

"My mother tells me that she loves me, but she doesn't always like everything I do," she said with a laugh.

Ms. Crawford says even with the laws currently on the books that prohibit discrimination against women, and even though these are the 1980s, inequality in the working world still exists.

"Women are still oppressed even today. And with the present Reagan administration we're going to see all women are feminists.'

regression in everything we have worked for in equality for women," she said with sad acknowledgement.

"We realize we (NOW) have very little time to try to get the Equal Rights Amendment passed, but without it, women will see a return to opportunities being lost and promotions dealed in the working world," she said. Speaking always in a robust manner about her involvement with issues, Ms. Crawford said she is opposed to the Right-To-Life Movement, and as a member of the Pro Choice group, says she believes a woman should have the right to decide whether she wants to have an abortion or not.

"Every child has a right to be wanted," she said emphatically.

"Saying "women are victims of society," Vincent Murray teaches a course to help them fend for themselves in the male world of carburetors and leaky radiator hoses.

His Wednesday night class at Seminole Community College (SCC) includes men and women of all ages. What may take the casual observer by surprise, however, is the unaccustomed sight of a young woman with long hair and greasy hands, changing her own oil or gapping her car's spark plugs.

Most women know very little about their car when they enroll in Murray's course.

"Ninety percent of the women beginning the course know nothing beyond where the steering wheel is, where the brake pedal is, and where the gas pedal is. Some of them don't realize their wheels are turning when they're driving on the road," he said. Those who do know something about their cars, such as changing an air filter or checking oil or transmission fluid, often do not know where the master cylinder is located on their car, explained. Murray.

A woman's ignorance about her car leaves her vulnerable when repairs become necessary.

"If one of these women were to go into a garage with a defect in the engine and the mechanic would say 'Lady, you need an engine,' the woman would ask 'How much?' The mechanic would say "It will cost you $75". The woman would say 'Put it in.' She wouldn't know the difference between an engine problem and a spark plug," Murray says.

Murray's course helps a woman to be able to deal more intelligently with a mechanic by familiarizing her with the basic parts of her car, and giving her a general idea of how the car works. His course is not designed to turn a woman into a mechanic. It is structured to give her sufficient knowledge to know if a mechanic says, "Lady you need a new carburetor,"

she should perhaps seek another opinion.

During his class, Murray holds a carburetor up for the class to see, then tells them it should last five to ten years before needing replacement.

"You should not tell a mechanic to replace a carburetor," he cautions. "It costs $100, and is the first place a mechanic will go to when something is wrong with the car." Murray says unless you are aware of how your car operates, you may be paying for replacement parts you do not really need.

Ask for the old parts whenever a repair is done, Murray advises. How else do you know the mechanic replaced the part? he argues. Murray's course not only helps a woman to relate to a mechanic and understand some of the jargon uses, it also helps her understand when she should take a car to the garage and how to interpret the repair bill.

"Women have become victims of society, especially concerning the automobile, which is the most costly item they will ever own aside from a house," Murray asserts. "They are dependent on their car. If it doesn't work properly they have to have it fixed, they have to pay whatever it takes, because they they have to have the car to go to work, to go shopping, to survive. Especially here in Florida. You get instructions with your refrigerator, with other household appliances, and you learn to use them. Why not learn how to use your car?" he

With more women joining the work force and women outliving their husbands, Murray sees women dependent on their cars to a greater extent than ever before. And with garage labor and part charges skyrocketing along with the rest of the cost of living, Murray said a woman simply cannot afford to bring her car to a garage for a simple repair or maintenance operation she can do herself at home.

Nor can she allow herself the luxury of destroying an engine for a $3 piece of radiator hose when the car overheats and the engine freezes, damaging the engine block. Women, especially widows living on fixed incomes, cannot afford this type of ignorance, Murray maintains.

The course has very little complex theory. It is a hands-on course designed to get students out into the garage, working with their cars.

Topics covered include the parts and functioning of the engine, cooling system, lubrication, brake system, shock absorbers, and preventative maintenance such as oil change and lubrication and a basic tune-up. Although brake repair is not taught in the course — there are not enough hours to teach it — students learn what to look for if their brakes mailunction so they can communicate accurately with a mechanic.

Interpretation of tire wear is taught to help students save themselves a trip to the garage for front end alignments. Knowing the correct inflation of your tires, and keeping the pressure to the recommended specifications, will make tires last twice as long and save a student money.

Women once afraid of the sound of air equipment now learn how to balance their own wheels in Murray's class. A smile of self-confidence is across their face as they pick up a wrench and turn the bolt holding on their oil pan. They know what they are doing. And they are proud of it.

Murray has not lost a single female student so far in this course.

course.

Lucille Fauth, of Altamonte Springs, one of three neighbors who joined together to take the course, put her feelings succincils:

cincily:
"I've been a widow for one year and one-half, and this is what I have learned: someone has to do these things. They have to get done."

She grasped a wrench in her hand and walked underneath her upraised car.

Church Of Nazarene Welcomes Pastor

The Church of the Nazarene, 171 Crystal Lake Drive, welcomes its new pastor, the Rev. Drexell Baker.

Rev. Baker transferred from New Cumberland, W. Va. He was with the W. Va. District for 11 successful years. Prior to that, he spent five years with the Pittsburgh District. He graduated from Wierton High School and attended Mt. Vernon, Nazarene College in Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

He and his wife, Patricia, have four sons, Larry, Robert, Kent and David at home. They are living in the parsonage at 224 Seminole

He would like to extend a welcome to the community to attend worship services. Sunday School begins at 9:45 a.m., 10:45 is morning worship and Evangelistic services are held at 6 p.m. on Sunday, Bible study is at 7 p.m. on Wednesday.

Sunday, Oct. 25, at the morning worship, special emphasis will be on the teens. A boy and girl will be selected to represent the church as the outstanding teen-ager. The following week, special emphasis will be with the bables.

Rev. Baker asks anyone wanting to contact him, may call Tuesday-Saturday, from 8:30-11:00 a.m. at his office at 323-8983. We all would like to extend a very special welcome to the Bakers. Gail and Don Cook honeymooned in Daytona Beach following their wedding on Oct. 17. The ceremony took place at 154 W. Crystal Lake Drive. Mald of honor was Kathy Cook and best man was Richard Lane.

A reception was held immediately after at the Fire Hall. Deli sandwiches and various hors d'oeuvres along with the beautiful cake, were served to the guests attending. They received many lovely gifts.

The new Mrs. Cook is the former Gail Ramsey. Don is a fireman for Orange County and both Gail and Don are volunteer fireman for Lake Mary.

City Treasurer Madeline Papas has returned to work following surgery, Coworkers say she is doing well.

Madeline's aunt and mother came down from New York to be with her during surgery. They plan to stay for awhile to also enjoy the Florida sun.

Frank Liberatore spent the weekend in Lake City visiting with his son Frankie and daughter, Angela. Toby Olvera went along with Frank to help Frankie celebrate his 6th birthday.

Between 30 and 40 Cub Scouts from Lake Mary Pack No. 242 were guests, Oct. 8, for a Fire Safety Program, presented by Public Safety Officer Bob Stoddard. A talk on Fire Prevention and Fire Safety was presented. A equipment and a tour of the fire station took place and was climaxed by a demonstration of the department's new pumper.

Assisting Stoddard were Fire Chief Jim Orioles and firefighters, David Dovan and Tim

Any group or organization that would like a demonstration on Fire Prevention or Fire Safety or who may be interested in the basic life support CPR course, are invited to call Bob at 323-7029 for information.

Dr. Robert Bevier spent the weekend in Witchita, Kan. He was there to attend the wedding of his son Richard and Melody Appleby on Oct. 17. Richard is in the Air Force, stationed in Witchita and he and Melody will make it their home for the two years he has left with the Air Force.

Barb Gorman and Cindy Lane attended the first year anniversary for Single Again-Single Parents Class. The class is held at the Ravenna Park Baptist Church.

A pot luck dinner was served. George Dunn, Director of Missions for the Seminole Baptist Association, was there to speak to the class.

On Sunday Oct. 25, City Hall is having its open house. For those attending and for those who can't be there, they may find it interesting knowing a little of the history of the building and what was done to renovate it.

It was built in the mid 20s and used as a community building. It was the Chamber of Commerce headquarters and dances and social events were also held there. At one time demonstration of various items of fire fighting the Nativity Catholic Church, now on SR 427, held services there. It was the home of Lake Mary Pioneer Nights, where early settlers from the county met. On Christmas, it was Santa's home to distribute toys to the children of Lake Mary. More recently, a picture frame shop was there and prior to the city acquiring it, was an antique shop.

When the city decided to make it their "new" home", many things had to be done to turn it into what it is today. They leveled the building, replaced wood, completely rewired and replumbed. They also insulated and installed air conditioning, fans and lights. The floors and walls were refinished.

Many hours have been put into the "Old," New," City Hall and Mayor Walt Sorenson and city employees would like to extend their thanks to the following people for their help in making it happen:

Bob Bailey and Frank Liberatore, carpenters; Ed Suggs, donation of his labor in hanging the wallpaper; Sam Noble, carpeting and vinyl floor labor donation; and Jim Gehr., donation of the fence.

They would also like to thank the following. for their donations of plants: Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce, Lippincotts Ink Spot, Future landscaping, Crystal Lake Nursery, Contemporary Gardens, Redlon Nursery, Com Bank, Flagship Bank and Larry Dale.

Also, Mrs. P.D. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. R.M. Ball, Mr. and Mrs. H.M. Cochran, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Glesson, the Rev. and Mrs. James Thompson, Mrs. Aarolyn True and Mrs. F. Zimmerman. A special thanks to the Garden Club for the landscaping done.

Everyone is invited to attend the open house and see the beautiful work that has been done,

Reception Opens Season For Concert Association

A gala membership reception ushered in the new season of Seminole Mutual Concert Association. Patti and Bobby Brantley were reception hosts at their Longwood home.

Dr. Sara Irrgang, president of SMCA, headed the receiving line when patrons formed a steady stream during the appointed hours last Saturday night.

Ruth Gaines, membership chairman, and her husband, Fred, signed up members to the tune of nearly a full house of subscribers. Ruth says that the membership has nearly reached its quota. She says that she is concerned that many previous members have not yet renewed this year as a sellout approaches. Ruth suggests that those planning to renew, please do so before seating capacity runs out.

Back to the reception. SMCA Board members prepared and served the potpourri of marvelous foods - make that cuisine. Martha Yancey was the reception chairman. Her committee included Kay Bartholomew and Rubye and Leo King. Among those serving as floating hostesses were Carol Kirchhoff, Marilyn Denton, Betty Gramkow, Cathy Harrison and Carrie Greene. First time SMCA subscribers seemingly enjoying themselves in the luxurious surroundings were Cuca and Douglas Brown and Irms and Alfred Kirschstein.

Bride-elect Kathleen Larson was honored at the traditional bridesmaid's luncheon at the home of Mrs. G.S. (Shirley) Blake on Oct. 3.

The hostess served a delightful luncheon including Chicken crepes, cold broccoli mold and peaches 'n cream cake. An arrangement of lavender and white mums centered the table which featured a hand-embroidered table cloth.

The hostess presented the honoree with a silver water pit-

Others attending were: Sandy Vogel, Trudy Lee, Carol Larson, Debbie Roberts, Kathy Williams, Mrs. Ralph Larson, mother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. Carem Gager, mother of the bridegroom-to-be, Wayne Gager, and Mrs. W.W. Brown, the bride elect's grandmother.

The Woman's Club of Sanford will hold the annual Membership Coffee Wednesday, at noon, at the clubhouse. Light refreshments will be served at no charge. Highlighting the event will be a fashion show and door prizes.

According to Pat Foster, all members and guests are invited to the annual event,

Ms. Crawford recently became involved with Seminole Community Action's (SCA) budget request to the county when SCA asked for $17,000 in county funding but was only granted $6,500 by the county.

"I felt this decision was irresponsible and that it reflected overtones of racism," she said. "And can you believe a County Commission that would give $343,000 to Animal Control and only $110,000 to the entire Health and Human Services budget?", she asked.

Finishing up with the interview, Ms. Crawford, ever alive and slort, said goodbye and checked her purse for her flight tickets to Miami for her conference.

Weatherva Even with a weathervane and with the help of the latest report from the weather bureau, it's certainly presumptuous to make predictions about the weather. The no forces which govern nature are so complex and changeable that we can never be sure.

The forces which govern our life are even more complicated and variable. How can we know what the next day may bring - happiness . . . sorrow . . . good luck . . . love . . . fear? No one knows — until the time comes.

Despite uncertainty, we must prepare for whatever we may have to face. We must learn to take in good stride the uncertainties that life will bring. In other words, we must have FAITH.

Where do we get this faith? We can't buy it, nor can we have it simply for the wanting. We have to earn it - by study, by perserverance, by understanding. Your church stands ready and anxious to help you. Here toward the House of God we must turn for those truths which will lend stability to lives that are as uncertain as the changing wind.

All Saints Celebrates Centennial

Historic All Saints' Episcopal Church of furnished some of the lumber for the church Enterprise will commemorate its 100th anniversary with special events on Oct. 31 and

An open house for the public will be held on Saturday 1-4 p.m. On Sunday, the Right Rev. Henry I. Louttit, retired bishop, will pontificate at the 10 a.m. eucharist. The church rector, the Rev. Robert W. Phillips, came to All Saints in 1979.

The Rev. and Mrs. Ernest Pugh, will be honored guests. A former rector of All Saints, he retired June 30, 1978. Other former priests have also been invited to attend.

A parish picnic on the grounds and parish hall will follow the service. There will be games for the children.

In conjunction with the centennial celebration, the Bishop will consecrate a new Memory Garden on the church premises for the cremated remains of deceased members. All Saints had its inception in Brock House, a hotel on the north shore of Lake Monroe, which was the mecca for winter visitors who traveled up the St. Johns from Jacksonville by steamboat.

The history of All Saints Church, one of the oldest original Episcopal Missions in Central Florida, is tied closely with the history of Volusia County, for the town of Enterprise was the county seat of then Mosquito County from the time of the county's creation in 1854 to 1868 when the seat was moved to DeLand.

The Rev. Samuel B. Carpenter, vicar of Holy Cross Episcopal Church, Sanford, who conducted the first services in the Brock House, had to row across Lake Monroe to get there. Among the worshipers were notables and well-known sportsmen. A mission was formed and those attending contributed funds and furnishings for the "Florida Gothic" church building begun in 1883. It was built on property donated in the 1870's by a grove owner named Lester Clark. At the time it was built to serve Orange City as well as Enterprise and in later years DeBary and Deltona.

Count Frederick DeBary, the champagne distributor who had his winter home nearby,

The church proper, constructed entirely of virgin timber, long-leaf and curly pine and cypress, is in its original state except for the change in exterior color and two additions - a small sacristy built on the rear in the 1950's and a front porch added in 1971. A parish hall and social hall were completed in 1960 in a separate building which also includes classrooms, kitchen and offices. They were anniversary celebration because he is on a sabbatical in Europe. The walls and high vaulted roof of the old church are supported by scissors trusses of natural cypress and the floors and woodenpegged pews are of pine. Contrasting with the dark walls are the 15 stained glass windows.

National Register of Archives in Washington, D.C. The church is lighted by hammered aluminum lanterns fitted with green glass panels hanging from the ceiling. They were designed, made and presented by Mr. and Mrs. William A Nye, DeBary. Almost every ornament in the church was given a memorial. The Rev. Carpenter served as a vicar until 1884, when he was succeeded by the Rev. Edward S. Tourquand, who came from Toronto, Can. in 1885. He served the mission until his death in 1894.

The Rev. Melvin Honeyman was vicar until 1896 and from then until 1925 the church had no official priest, it was served by several area priests. The priest who served the longest was the Rev. John Goodrich Litch, a medical doctor who came from Boston and became a priest. He served as vicar at All Saints from 1925 until his death 20 years later.

Shortly after that one of the last communicants Mrs. John Sauls, died and services were discontinued. In October, 1944, when a hurricane felled a huge oak tree damaging the church roof, the building was condemned by authorities and ordered razed.

Herald Pheto by Tom Vincent

All Saints Episcopal Church in Enterprise celebrates its 100th Anniversary next weekend. The church building is a national historical site.

Through devotion to the church by the Enterprise citizens and the intervention of a relative of its founder, the Rev. Mark Carpenter of Sanford, and of the Rt. Rev. Henry Louttit, then Suffragan Bishop of South Florida, it was saved. Funds for restoration were made possible through the foresight of the first treasurer, Frank Storer, who had given so generously throughout his life and upon his death left a legacy for the church's upkeep in memory of his mother.

Services were begun again in 1946 and in February 1947 the Rev. LeRoy D. Lawson, rector of St. Barnabas Episcopal Church, Delland, was appointed priest in charge of the mission by the bishop. He served with the help of the following priests until 1958: Lansing Putman, 1951-52; David L. Leach, 1953-55; Edred May, late 1955; Lee Heaton, 1956; William Anthony, 1956-57; and Paul E. Schultz, 1958-1963. The Rev. Michael J. Koppenbrock came in 1963 and served until 1969 when the Rev. Ernest B. Pugh came from Schenectady, N.Y. to assume the vicarship.

In 1974 the vicar said "We have 175 communicants, but minister to 200," adding, "the edifice seats 120."

Although All Saints' had been a mission since its beginning it was not recognized as duly "organized" mission in the Diocese of South Florida until an application was sent to the Rt. Rev. John D. Wing, blshop, in 1946 and approved on Jan. 1., 1927.

In 1950 a new rectory was dedicated to the memory of the Rev. and Mrs. Litch. In 1957, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Alling of Orange City, renovated the old Volusia County Jail (built in 1869), back of the church, for a parish house. Mr. and Mrs. Alling had previously placed a rose window from St. Marks Episcopal Church, New Britain, Conn., in the sacristy of

More Than You Ever Wanted To Know About Sex

I did a TV commercial yesterday for National Family Sexuality Education Week. I do not know why I was picked to promote sex education. I seem like an odd choice.

A clergyman in my town has characterized me as a "highchurch Unitarian with a Puritan morality," and we Puritans are not ordinarily called on to contribute anything to the topic of nex. We are put in the class of the Victorians who, if you believe the history books, never had any fun.

Some recent studies, however, revealed that it was the Victorians' passion for privacy - rather than prudishness that gave them the reputation of being sexually repressed.

The same may be true of the Puritans. Instant candor is not our game. We are shy when it comes to discussing sex. This does not mean we do not recognize a need for sex education, only that we ourselves feel uncomfortable talking about it.

On the other hand, I am not sure that our problems with sex have much to do with a lack of adequate information on the subject. This is true, at least, if we are discussing adult sex. We know all there is to know about sex. We have left no pillow unturned in learning about the joys of sex.

Yet human relationships have never been more precarious and sex therapists have never been busier. It isn't only that they are having to deal with male impotence. They are seeing growing numbers of men and women suffering from something called "sexual anorexia" (lack of sexual appetite),

SAINTS AND SHINERS

George Plagenz

One therapist blames this on sex-orientated magazines. "Many men," he says, "fulfill all their fantasies at the newsstands for $2.50."

Another finds the culprit in women's lib: "We know men's sexual appetites dwindle in direct proportion to the professional success of their mates."

The povelist D.H. Lawrence warned us 50 years ago about sexual anorexia. He said a too-free intimacy between the sexes is sterilizing, "It makes neuters," said Lawrence, "Later on, no deep, magical sex life is possible."

Acurrent writer, commenting on our sexually liberated age, says we may have fewer complexes today "but we also have less of the beauty of sexual love." The romance is gone, she

We have become a nation of sexually stuffed, emotionally starved people. And sex without affection does not make for lasting, satisfying relationships.

If we have overestimated the joys of sex without love and romance, we are also seemingly unaware that sex without fidelity produces its own form of sexual anorexia.

There is something on the market called the "One-Night-Stand Kit" for women to carry in their purses in the event they meet up with a man they never met before and end up spending the night at his spartment.

The contents of this kit are innocent enough - toothbrush with toothpaste built into it, razor, comb, a packet of shampoo, mouthwash and shower cap.

I am not a moralizer, so I will not shake a disapproving finger at the one-night stand. I simply doubt it will produce anything more than a one-night high. Meanwhile, we are imperiling what makes sex ultimately satisfying - fidelity.

It may be the height of male arrogance to say that "a man wants a woman who is hard to get - by everyone except himself," Still, it is true. Women also want fidelity - in courtship as well as in marriage.

To know, or even suspect, that someone else was in your place last night - or may be tomorrow night - is often all it takes to destroy "the beauty of sexual love" and make what D.H. Lawrence called a "deep, magical sex life" impossible. What is destroying us today is not sex. It is casual sex. If sex education can teach us that lesson, bring it on.

Invest Time In The Kids In Seminole County there are numerous groups that work with children. These include everything from the public and private schools to programs in sports, arts, scouts, as well as church and religious organizations. All these are worthy endeavors of the community.

One thing that many people do not realize is this: When all the groups working with children and youth are considered, there are more children reached by the churches of Seminole County than any other organization outside the public schools. If the potential for good could ever be realized by the person-inthe pew in our churches, there could be a tremendous amount of benefit spread among children right here in our own community.

The sad fact, however, is that in most churches, the children's and youths' programs are only half functioning because of a lack of adult leaders. It is so easy to criticize the young when they go wrong. It is quite another thing to get in and help where it could really do some good. What a revolutionary change for the better would happen in our community if only half the adults who are concerned about children were to volunteer to their own church to help with children's or youths' ministries

The key to progress is to volunteer. Most churches resort to begging for help, and they still are under staffed. The faithful few who end up working so hard quickly burn out.

Why not consider making a call right now to your church's youth director or pastor and saying, "I'm available."

You're Never Too Old To Make Music

WILMETTE, III. (NEA) -Dr. Frank Wilson of Walnut Creek, Calif., began taking piano lessons at age 40.

At 73, violinist Georgia Cobb founded a chamber orchestra in Fox Lake, Ill. Her Chain o' Lakes Orchestra consists of 29 amateur musicians; among them are 13 members of the Wolff family & mother, father and 11 of their 17 children.

Businessmen, clergymen, cab drivers, artists - adults in a variety of professions gather in New York and Chicago restaurants each week to make music together during "jazz at noon" programs.

These are just a few examples of the growing number of adult amateur musicians in this country.

While playing an instrument has always been a popular pastime, music educators and retailers are noticing an increase in the number of adults either taking up an instrument for the first time or brushing up on skills they had when they were young.

More than 50 million Americans say they can play a musical instrument. That number is rising at a rate of about 6 percent each year.

While most people learn to play as children, there is a new trend toward beginning music lessons in adulthood. Some of these musical newcomers get involved to have a common interest with their children. Increasing numbers of parents are enrolling for lessons along with their youngsters.

Some school districts encourage parents to participate by making band rooms available during evenings, so the adults can use some of the same instruments as their children. Washington Elementary School in Alexandria, Minn., conducts such a program. Parents participate in a recorder ensemble, a handbell choir and a community chorps. But the booming adult in ville, Okla. to parents. In fact, one of the fastest-growing groups of amateur musicians is senior citizens.

Music classes and organizations geared specifically to the elderly are beginning to appear in greater numbers. The senior citizens who join - many learning to play the instrument for the first time cite a variety of reasons for getting involved in music.

In many cases, being able to play along with others in local bands and orchestras is a way for the elderly to contribute to the cultural life in their communities. Through classes, they are able to meet peers who share their interests as well as younger musicians with whom they might not otherwise have anything in common.

El Camino College in California offers keyboard classes for students over age 55. The popular program has had a long waiting list since it began in 1979.

Those over 50 in Lexington, Ky., can get free leasons on guitar, autoharp, dulcimer and recorder sponsored by the Council on Aging of the University of Kentucky. Some 100 people gather for they've learned a few notes, they can join a jazz ensemble, orchestra or chorus for seniors.

In Arkansas, musical seniors can join the Hot Springs National Park Adult and Senior Citizens Concert Band, Farther north, the Minnesota Over 60 Band provides an outlet for the talents of the elderly.

For those still in the work force, many major U.S. and refinement of their skills corporations sponsor employee bands, orchestras and choruses. Among these companies are Goodyear Tire says Wilson. and Rubber of Akron, Ohio; Allen-Bradley of Milwaukee; 3M of St. Paul, Minn.; and Phillips Petroleum of Bartles-

While a large number of business people are involved in music, research reveals that the most avid amateur musicians are those who work in the medical field. There have even been symphony orchestras in New York and Los Angeles composed entirely of physicians.

Some musically minded physicians have conducted studies into the psychological and physical elements of playing.

Dr. Jules Masserman, a Chicago psychiatriat-violinist, asserts that music has psychological values, that it "offers harmonles to living."

"If we are remote," says Masserman, "it draws us into a group. It gives us a chance to express ourselves." Neurologist-planist Wilson is convinced that human musical interests are innate. He concludes that with careful training, the muscular activity required for playing an instrument becomes the weekly classes. Once smooth, consistent and completely unconscious and that such progress tends to be long-lasting - at no matter what age the student begins.

Many adults fear that it is too late for them to reap the benefits of musical instruction. But Wilson emphasizes that we are "never too old" to play an instrument

"Musicians can look forward to continued maturation well beyond the age at which even the most durable athlete has retired to the sidelines,"

Medical evidence aside, the fact remains that more adults are discovering that they can perform with confidence in a year's time if they are offered to Metropolitan Life developing professional-level

> However, most adults are not looking for careers in music, but instead are seeking something they can share with family and friends. They are looking for an outlet for their creative abilities and an enjoyable, relaxing leisure-time activity that they can continue throughout life and in which they can find the satisfaction of improvement over the years.
