

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES SANFORD HIGH SCHOOL WILL OCCUPY THE WEEK

BACCALAUREATE SERMON SUNDAY ENJOYED BY A GREAT NUMBER

The all important events of the closing days of school are in progress and the joys and pleasures of Commencement Week claim the attention of faculty and pupils, parents and friends alike.

Baccalaureate Sermon

The High School auditorium was filled with the congregations of the Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian and Congregational churches, besides many others from various sects, and non-sectarians on Sunday morning to hear the splendid Baccalaureate sermon that was preached by Rev. Bunyan Stephens, pastor of the First Baptist church of Ocala and to enjoy the exercises in full.

The beautiful service opened with the theology by the congregation followed by the invocation of Rev. F. E. Steinmeyer. The "Coronation" and "Nearer My God, to Thee" were included in the congregational singing. Scripture reading by Rev. J. A. Davidson and prayer by Rev. J. A. Davidson.

The Commencement sermon delivered by Rev. Bunyan Stephens was a fine, practical, up to date address, ideal in its simple logic all the way through, delivered with ease and impressive in its appropriateness.

Collage Play A Big Success "The Kingdom of Hearts Content" which was presented at the High School auditorium recently by the Senior class with assisting talent was a pronounced success and was received with the most enthusiastic applause by a large audience.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Tolar and family are the guests of home folks.

HOME GUARDS PERSHING WILL LEAD U. S. TROOPS

SPECIAL MEETING CALLED TONIGHT FOR EXTRA DRILL

The Sanford Rifle Club or Home Guard company had their first real drill last Friday night with about fifty men in line and they were given the preliminary tactics in the lobby of the court house for about one hour, after which they were taken into the street and for another hour were palloped over the hard bricks and put through their paces with a snap and vim that surprised those who were looking on from the side lines.

Special meeting should be held of the Home Guard company at 7:30 o'clock in the High School auditorium will be held the Grammar School graduating exercises for which has been prepared a very fine program.

School Exhibit

Thursday afternoon, 3:30 to 5:30. Visitors cordially welcome.

Junior Reception

The Junior reception on Thursday night is to be very much more informal than usual. All the under classes join in paying their respects to the graduating class.

William Henry Fox

Circuit Court Meets

The spring term of the Circuit Court in and for Seminole county meets this morning and the light docket will not occupy the attention of the court very long.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Tolar and family are the guests of home folks.

HOME GUARDS PERSHING WILL LEAD U. S. TROOPS

WHEN OLD GLORY GOES ACROSS THE WATER

Washington, May 21.—United States regular troops, led by Major General Pershing will carry the Stars and Stripes to the European battle front.

Under orders from President Wilson, a division of approximately 25,000 troops will go to France as soon as possible to cooperate with the British and French forces.

President Wilson will not use the authorization given in the war army bill passed by Congress, which would permit Colonel Roosevelt to raise a volunteer expedition for the European front.

The draft army will not be called to the colors until about September 1st, but the first 100,000 men will be sent to France in the next few weeks.

General Pershing and his staff will be in Europe within a few days. He has been here for some days in conference with War Department officials and British military officers.

President Wilson expressed regret that he could not employ volunteers nor avail himself of the "finer vigor and enthusiasm" of Colonel Roosevelt for the expedition.

Among The Theatres

Blanche Sweet
Blanche Sweet will be seen at the Star on Monday in the Jesse L. Lasky production "The Silent Partner," a thrilling drama of business life written from the story by Edmund Goulding and prepared for the screen by George DuBois Proctor. Miss Sweet is seen as a clever young private secretary of a broker who saves him not only from his own wife but from ruin. In the cast supporting Miss Sweet are such distinguished artists as Thomas Meighan, etc. It is a Paramount picture.

"We had a great time while we were filming 'The Page Mystery' in the Adirondack Mountains," said Carlyle Blackwell upon returning after the trip to the mountains in the dead of winter, "but several members of the company sustained frost bitten fingers and toes and noses while we were there. The weather was bitterly cold, so many degrees below zero that I hardly dare tell just how far below, but it was decidedly enjoyable. One of the most enjoyable times was when we went down the long toboggan slides they have at a popular winter resort. Those people who see 'The Page Mystery' will see us enjoying this festivity and will understand just why it was so very enjoyable."

"The Page Mystery" with Carlyle Blackwell at the star role and with June Elvidge and Arthur Ashley in important parts will be the splendid attraction at the Lyric tonight.

Mae Murray Tonight at the Star
The charming Lasky-Paramount star, Mae Murray will be seen at the Star tonight in the Lasky-Paramount production of Ruth Sawyer's whimsical story, "The Primrose Ring," which was especially prepared for the screen by Marian Fairfax and produced under the direction of Robert Leonard.

The story has to do with a little nurse in a children's hospital, and wonderful fairy stories. Many of the scenes were filmed in the children's hospital and the picture was shown to the children immediately upon its completion—the first time that many of the littlefortunates had ever seen a motion picture. In the cast supporting Miss Murray are Tom Moore, Little Billy Jacobs, etc.

When Col. Page, as played by Arthur Ashley in "The Page Mystery," is shot, he falls as a man really does when he is shot. He falls straight forward into a tree trunk. This is the first time in any picture that a man has ever been shot in this manner. It is the most dramatic thing he has ever seen. See this feature at the Lyric tonight and learn why it was that Col. Page was shot and what was the reason for the shooting. "The Page Mystery" is one of the most fascinating pictures of the season. It is a long story.

Taken from the well known novel by Frank R. Adams entitled "Who Is Sylvia" the newest World Picture Brady Made which bears the fascinating title of "The Page Mystery" will come to the Lyric Theatre tonight. There is more than one mystery in this mystery story. The first one that develops is when Alan Winthrop steps a beautiful girl just as she is about to commit suicide. This girl refuses to reveal her identity or to tell him why she wished to take her life. Long secures a position for her as housekeeper at Sylvia lodge where he is employed as caretaker. There another mystery develops. While cleaning up the lodge preparatory to the arrival of the owner Col. Page, and his house party, Winthrop chances upon a mysterious secret bedroom. What is the reason for the presence of this room in the house. What secret does it hold. All of these mysteries are solved in a strange and startling manner when the house party arrives. Carlyle Blackwell is seen in this new World Picture in the role of Alan Winthrop. June Elvidge appears as the mysterious girl who tries to commit suicide. Arthur Ashley takes the part of Col. Page. Assisting these film favorites is a splendid cast of real players. Many of the scenes were taken in the Adirondack Mountains where the company went in the dead of winter, and these snowy scenes are of wonderful beauty. You will thoroughly enjoy "The Page Mystery." See it at the Lyric Theatre tonight by all means.

Hastings Potato Shipments
 Hastings, Fla., May 16.—With the end of the potato season in sight at the last of this week, it is interesting to note that more carloads of spuds have been shipped out of this section in the last two weeks than have usually been shipped out of the whole state of Florida in the entire season. In the week extending from April 30th to May 5th, 962 carloads were shipped, and in the week extending from May 7th to May 13th, 920 carloads were sent out from this great potato center. This means a total of 1882 carloads in fourteen days, and as stated above, exceeds the usual production of the entire state during the potato season. The grand total in carloads for this section since the beginning of the season will be about 3,200 carloads.

South Carolina is sending out its quota of spuds now to a northern market that is still more ready to receive the shipments, despite Florida's heavy contributions. A dispatch by wire from Liggetts, S. C., from the representative of the Office of markets at that place reads as follows: "Cool. Demand exceeds supply. Market strong. Stock green. Carloads f. o. b. usual terms. Cloth-top barrels, Irish Cobbler, firsts, $8.25; seconds? $7.25; thirds, 15.00."

Great Difference.
 Bishop Sanford Omland of Denver was urging, in a holiday address, Christianity of the militant, active, beneficent sort. "Why, my dear friends," he said, "there is almost as much difference between being good and doing good as there is between being a man and doing a man."

RIDING THE PAPER MAN
Tye following from Gilbert Leach, editor to the Leesburg Commercial is apropos just now in the face of the high tax on everything connected with the newspaper.
What do we care for the price of space?
Why scheme out a costly plan?
We can just sit tight and set the pace
For we'll ride the paper man
It doesn't matter what goods we have.
Shrapnel or bird seed or pan,
We'll write him a line o' sugar salve
And we'll ride the paper man!
We'll tell him it's needed by Uncle Sam
(Ne'er then will he dare it ban)
He'll stand just as docile as any lamb
While we ride the paper man
So come right along, boys, take a ride,
Come join us while you can
Some day he'll rise; our graft is piled
We can't ride the paper man

The Test of Faith
Editor Sanford Herald:
With your permission for space the writer desires to call attention to what appears to him the real issue involved in the question of the appointment of the men nominated in last year's primary for offices in this state; most of them being judicial offices and those of like kind.
It all might be likened to a great drama, with the people of the great state of Florida as an audience; the governor is leading man; the curtain is rung down on the first act which was pronounced good; the second act is staged with all eyes intently fixed upon the governor in his role of leading man. All men love a leading man when on the ring down of the curtain on the final act the part played by him portrays a plighted faith sacredly kept, a strong character made stronger, or a noble manhood unsullied; but the opposite to these no man admires or cares to see. It matters not whether the act staged is a comedy, a tragedy or a farce, if it fails to develop the things that men admire and love the actor is soon forgotten. Plighted faith sacredly kept, a strong character made stronger, or a noble manhood more ennobled, leave their impress upon men, though the actor dies he still lives and has being in the part he played so well. Men of character, thinking on the part he played, seek to become like him. Shall the act thus staged before the people of Florida become a comedy, ending in a farce; shall it be a tragedy in which the leading man portrays a breach of faith, a character sullied by greed for power, a manhood lowered to the level of the patronage monger grovelling at the feet of a few political place hunters; or, shall it be a great drama commensurate

This manner of selecting such officers has been in vogue in the state for a number of years, and seemed satisfactory to the people—in fact the people had demanded that method of making the selection.

The present governor was sufficiently satisfied with the method to adopt it and exercise his privileges in such primary to seek his present office, the highest within the gift of the people of the state. These men nominated for the judgeship, and kindred offices were candidates for nomination for appointment in the same primary with the governor. In his contest for the governorship our present governor strongly contended that he was the Democratic nominee, and that the opposition were trying to steal the nomination which the people had given him. He appealed to the people of the state upon that issue and convinced enough of them of the truth of the charge made, that they elected him governor.

During the primary, and between that time and the general election it was charged that the governor was not a Democrat, and that if elected he would not appoint the nominees of the primary. But the people of the state believing that a man who came before them asking fair treatment at their hands could not be other than fair to such people when it came their turn. It was because of this faith in the fairness which the governor preached to the people, and which he led them to believe he had in them, that they placed him in the governor's chair. These same people nominated the men who now are to be appointed by the governor if he is to keep faith with the people who elected him. If the governor now refuses to appoint these men thus nominated his is a breach of faith, and he repudiates the doctrine which he taught last year and because of which he is now the governor of our fair state. Will he do it?

Again, the governor's friends and supporters said their candidate was true and could be depended upon at all times to keep inviolate his faith with the people. So strong was their faith that their candidate could be trusted that they gathered their friends and rallied them to his support, pledging to those who did not know him that if they placed their trust in their candidate and voted for him it would not be misplaced. In refusing to appoint the men nominated by these same people at the time they voted for the governor, what must be the position of the people who put their faith in the governor, and pledged to their friends that their trust thus reposed in him was being placed in safe hands? What must be their position now when their opponents, who were skeptical at the time, knowingly say to them, I told you so. Will he do it?

Again, about the 8th of November last in a signed statement to the people of Florida the governor told them that he would appoint all of the nominees of the primary, including the judiciary, without exception, that he was a good Democrat and would prove it. When this statement was made many men, who still skeptical as to what the new governor might be expected to do, felt that they might have been mistaken after all, and that may be the new governor was a real big man, and would prove all that his supporters had claimed for him. Surely his was a manly statement and portrayed a calibre of man of which his friends might well feel proud; and men began to have faith who had not had it before.

At all might, be likened to a great drama, with the people of the great state of Florida as an audience; the governor is leading man; the curtain is rung down on the first act which was pronounced good; the second act is staged with all eyes intently fixed upon the governor in his role of leading man. All men love a leading man when on the ring down of the curtain on the final act the part played by him portrays a plighted faith sacredly kept, a strong character made stronger, or a noble manhood unsullied; but the opposite to these no man admires or cares to see. It matters not whether the act staged is a comedy, a tragedy or a farce, if it fails to develop the things that men admire and love the actor is soon forgotten. Plighted faith sacredly kept, a strong character made stronger, or a noble manhood more ennobled, leave their impress upon men, though the actor dies he still lives and has being in the part he played so well. Men of character, thinking on the part he played, seek to become like him. Shall the act thus staged before the people of Florida become a comedy, ending in a farce; shall it be a tragedy in which the leading man portrays a breach of faith, a character sullied by greed for power, a manhood lowered to the level of the patronage monger grovelling at the feet of a few political place hunters; or, shall it be a great drama commensurate with the intelligence of the great audience, the people of Florida, in which the leading man rising to his strength of character, manhood and faith stands forth in the center of the stage as an inspiration to men teaching them of the better and nobler things of life and as an example for them to follow. Will he do it?

Once upon a time there was a man named Neighbor who owned a beautiful and valuable horse. Living near Neighbor was another man who strongly coveted Neighbor's horse, and had tried in every conceivable way to come into possession of such horse by fair means but had failed. He then lay on the roadside and when he saw Neighbor riding toward him on his horse he feigned illness and called to Neighbor for assistance. Neighbor being a kindly man dismounted, and with much difficulty placed the sick man on his horse to take him home. As soon as the rascal was balanced in the saddle he put spur to the horse and galloped off. When at a safe distance he turned and called to Neighbor, the man who had befriended him, that now he had a horse and that he would never see it again. Seeing that he could not overtake the thief who had stolen his horse, Neighbor called to him to stop, that he had something to say to him before he departed. Sure of not being overtaken the thief halted, when Neighbor admonished him never to tell anyone how he obtained the horse. "And why not?" asked the thief. Whereupon Neighbor replied, that another man might really be in distress and need assistance, but that men would be afraid to assist him for fear of being duped as he had been. This was too much for the thief, though a thief he was, for he dismounted, led the horse back to where his friend stood and cried out, "Take back your horse, Neighbor; we unto me if I by this act of mine shall stop the flow of love in men's breasts."

Might not the governor draw a lesson here when he is attempting to run away with the people's confidence. Might not the governor well say, "we unto me if I by this act of mine shall hasten the day when men will cease to have faith in their fellow man. Might not the governor well say, we unto me if I by this act of mine shall destroy the faith of men in the religion which he professes, and the Word of which he poses as a teacher. Many men have lost in the governor already, but the loss of faith in the governor amounts to very little as compared with the loss of faith in the things that make life worth while. Will the governor do it?

And, too, the leading men must have proteges, who, in the act now being played before the people of the state are the men trying to have themselves appointed to offices to which others have been chosen by the people themselves. Why did not these men submit themselves and their fitness for office to the people they seek now to serve without their consent? Were they afraid they could not get a square deal at the hands of the people, or was it their judgment that the people were not competent to judge as between the fitness of themselves and the others whom they have chosen. Are not these men too trying to rob the people of their dearest privilege, that of choosing for them selves who shall serve them. Who is he that hath wisdom to set at naught the will of his people, and seeks to set himself up as their master. Has he too not sought and been given the confidence of those people which he now seeks to destroy by running away with that which they retained for themselves? What manner of man is that that would seek to force himself upon a people who do not want him, and what manner is he who must know that in the doing of it he is destroying the faith of men in the laws of his state, and in the courts that must administer them; and all for the sake of place and pelf? When the curtain falls on the final act shall there be applause from the audience, or shall there be hisses and cat-calls? Shall the faith of men be thus destroyed by the hand of men who have posed as teachers of it.

Will they do it?

Red Cross Notice
First Aid Class No. 1 has been organized with Dr. Puleston as instructor and will meet each Monday and Friday at 4:00 p. m. at the Woman's Club rooms.

A second class is now being formed and those who wish to enroll as members will please send their names by postal to Mrs. W. L. Morgan, chairman of this committee. A registration fee of fifty cents must be paid, upon entrance, to the chairman (Mrs. Morgan). There will be a charge of 35 cents each for manuals. The fee for instruction and instructor will be decided upon the organization of this class.

It should be remembered that, while according to Red Cross rules, "The course in First Aid for Women supplies useful and practical knowledge which all women should have," it "does NOT provide the qualification necessary for service as a 'nurse's aid' in time of war." No applicant for membership in these First Aid classes, therefore, is in danger of being "ordered to the front" or to serve in any Red Cross Hospital as such limited experience or knowledge is not sufficient for admission.

It is hoped that men will enroll in First Aid Classes, and information necessary will be given those who may think of taking up the course.

Save the Food Supply
A good move towards conserving food supplies and human life is to kill rats. In the United States it is estimated that rats alone destroy food and property amounting to approximately $100,000,000 per year, and they are known to be carriers of bubonic plague, infantile paralysis and infectious jaundice, as well as many other deadly maladies. Every one should do his bit in this nationwide conservation movement—teach the people to kill rats.

The Government is not only making every effort to have people raise bigger crops, but at the same time is urging conservation of the food supply and preventing its destruction by rats, mice, etc.

A high official in the medical service at Washington recently sent out a notice that people kill rats advising that the best means of exterminating these offensive pests was by using a phosphorous paste such as could be obtained at almost any drugstore.

In many parts of the country, rat killing clubs have been formed and general rat killing days decided upon. Something of this sort would help in this section.

The Cry of Rachel is a notably fine song number though sorrowful in the lament of a mother's broken heart. The musical setting to the poem is considered the most excellent of the many beautiful compositions of Mary Salter.

Through storm and rain, I come, I find you before. Death, let me in. He was the bough of the almond tree. You broke it. He stands no more by the stars.

I that was rich do ask of you alms; I that was full uplift empty palms. Back to me, give the child that I had. Give to my arms my sweet little lad. Death, let me in.

Are you grown so deaf that you cannot hear? Unclose the dim eye, unstop the dull ear? Let me in! I will call so loud, I will cry so sore; You must in pity come open the door. Death! Death! let me in!

Mother's Day at Presbyterian Mother's Day at the Presbyterian church was most fittingly observed at the morning and evening services.

The choir being especially enjoyed. The origin of Mother's Day was given in a few words by R. J. Holly and C. H. Dingee gave an interesting reading on "Mother" and Miss Kitty Dulboe recited "Mother's Love."

The sermon by Dr. Brown during which he read a letter from the cross, giving the personal encounter between rival airmen and the killing of a young German with his mother's picture clasped to his bosom brought tears to the eyes of the congregation.

No observance of Mother's Day has been of such deep significance as that of last Sunday and the large congregation present at the Presbyterian church at both morning and evening services attested to this fact.

WILL CONTROL FOOD

Government Will Draft Bill to Fix The Case

Washington, May 16.—Redrafting of food legislation pending in congress to meet the views of the Administration was forecast today in the request of the senate agricultural committee that the house committee substitute amendments to a bill in drawing, now pending.

The Administration program calls for three measures, one to promote food production, another providing regulatory measures, and the third giving authority to insure preferential shipments to food supplies. The first two bills are pending in the house and the third was introduced today in both houses.

The first house bill probably will be allowed to stand as it is, but the second will be changed to give to the President regulatory powers vested in the bill in the Agricultural Department.

The second bill also will authorize creation of the emergency food agency, to operate under direction of the President. It would be headed by one man, with a staff of assistants, many of them business men working without pay and would be authorized to utilize the services of other government departments and agencies.

Herbert C. Hoover, in all likelihood will be named to head this board. The President, it is understood has about made up his mind that Mr. Hoover is the man for the place and will name him as soon as the bills are passed.

The main thing sought in the Administration program of legislation, outlined by Secretary of Agriculture Houston are:

Power to increase production; regulation of exchanges; power to fix prices and to requisition hoarded supplies; power to regulate use of grain in the manufacture of alcoholic liquors; prevention of speculation; licensing of distributing agencies; authority to create an emergency food agency to enforce food control measures.

Minneapolis, May 16.—Declines of as much as $1.40 a barrel in flour prices were registered in the Minneapolis market today. Fancy patents dropped seventy five cents to $15.50, while first clear were quoted at $13.50 a barrel, $1.40 under Saturday's price.

WAR PREDICTED IN DETAIL

Remarkable Allegory Written Over 2000 Years Ago

New York Herald.—In a full-length volume of the Great War the following remarkable allegory, written by Brother Johannes 2000 years ago, appears. In deciphering the allegory it must be remembered that France is represented by a Cock; England by a Leopard; Russia by a White Eagle; Germany by a Black Eagle; and Austria by the "Other Eagle," while the Lamb stands for justice, mercy and truth.

"Toward the year 2000 the Antichrist will manifest himself. His army will surpass in numbers all that can be imagined.

"There will be Christians among the legions and there will be Mohammedans and savage soldiers among the defenders of the Lamb. "For the first time the Lamb will be all red. There will not be a single spot in the Christian world that will not be red, and red will be the Heavens, the Earth, the Waters and even the Air for blood will flow in the domains of the four elements at once.

"The Black Eagle will throw himself on the Cock, who will lose many feathers, but will strike back heroically with his spurs. He soon would be crushed were it not for the heel of the Leopard and his claws.

"The Black Eagle will come from the country of Luther, will surprise the Cock from another side and will invade the country of the Cock up to the middle of it.

The White Eagle coming from the north will surprise the Black Eagle and the "Other Eagle" will invade the country of the Antichrist from one end to another.

"The Black Eagle will see himself forced to liberate the Cock in order to fight the White Eagle and the Cock will pursue the Black Eagle into the country of the Antichrist to help the White Eagle.

"The battles fought up to then will be as nothing compared to those which will take place in the country of Luther, for the seven Angels will together pour in the smoke of their censors on the impious Earth which signifies that the Lamb will order the extermination of the race of Antichrist.

"When the Beast sees that he has lost he will become furious and race of Antichrist.

"When the Beast sees that he is lost he will become furious and of many months the beak of the White Eagle, the claws of the Leopard and the spurs of the Cock will furiously strike at him.

"They will cross rivers over the bodies of the slain, and these, in places will change the course of the waters. They will bury only the men of noble families, and leading commandants and the princes, because to the carnage made by the armies will be joined the wholesale death of those who will die of hunger or the pest.

"The Antichrist will ask many times for peace, but the seven Angels who walk in front of the three animals defending the Lamb have declared that victory will only be granted on the condition that the Antichrist be crushed like star on the barn floor.

"The executors of the justice of the Lamb cannot stop fighting as long as the Antichrist possesses soldiers to fight against them.

"That which makes the decree of the Lamb so implacable is that the Antichrist has pretended to be a follower of Christ and to act in His Name, and if he does not perish, the fruit of the 12th century would be lost and the doom of Nefes would prevail against the Savior.

"The fight which will take place where the Antichrist forges his arms will not be in any way a human fight.

This may have reference to Essen, where the Krupp works are, and many authorities believe that the decisive battle may take place in Westphalia.

"The three Animals defending the Lamb will exterminate the last army of the Antichrist, but they will be forced to erect on the battlefield a pyre as large as a city, for the bodies of the dead will change the aspect of the country side, as there will be mounds of the slain.

"The Antichrist will lose his crown and will die in solitude and madness. His empire will be divided into twenty-two states, but none of them will any longer possess fortresses, armies or vessels.

(Curiously enough, this number coincides with the number of German states.)

"The White Eagle, by the order of St. Michael, will drive the Crescent from Europe and will install himself at Constantinople. Then will begin an era of peace and prosperity for the earth and there will be no more wars, each nation being governed according to its desires and living according to the rules of justice.

"There will be longer Lutherans or Schismatics.—The Lamb will reign and the supreme happiness of humanity will begin. Happy will be those, who escaping the perils of that period will be able to enjoy the fruit of the reign of the Spirit and of the purging of Humanity, which can only come after the defeat of the Antichrist."

ORLANDO WANTS MARKET

Board of Trade Committee Will Visit Our Market Tomorrow

Orlando is also imbued with the idea of a city market where the country people can bring their vegetables to the city and sell them out of the wagon to the consumer. The Orlando Board of Trade recently appointed a committee to investigate this idea with the view of having such a market on one of the streets of Orlando. Hon. H. H. Dickson was here yesterday and in conversation with the editor of The Herald spoke about the city market and was urged to bring his committee here tomorrow and see our city market. Mr. Dickson will endeavor to do this as his committee meets tomorrow morning and they can get a good idea of the plan from the Sanford market.

In fact this market stunt will be pulled off by many of the Florida cities this summer in the effort to reduce the high cost of living by bringing the producer and the consumer together for the profit of each other.

Orlando has many market gardeners close to the city and they could have a fine market in that city this summer and it would be especially profitable in the winter when the tourists are anxious to purchase fruits and vegetables fresh from the field.

Call for Silence.

Jack, who was expecting some of his little friends for his fourth birthday party, was told by his mother to play quietly, so as not to wake his little sister. He was proud that he could entertain his friends, so when the boys came Jack immediately greeted them by saying: "We can have all the fun in the world, but everybody please talk on their tiptoes, so as not to wake sister."

CURING of MEATS

Many Good Receipts For The Farmer

I wish to say that I am mailing out as fast as possible the bulletin on "Home Canning of Vegetables" (which is only just received because of delay at Washington on account of pressure of applications), with a number of others selected for the kitchen library, as being particularly suitable for present needs. All those who do not receive these within a week please apply by postal as it is impossible to know and decide as to each and every housekeeper who would care for the set without formal application.

More recipes from the bulletin on meats will be given in next Tuesday's Herald.

C. M. Berry,
County Agent.

Curing Meats

Meats must be properly and thoroughly cooled to insure good keeping qualities. If salted before the animal heat is out, the shrinkage of the muscles causes the retention of injurious gases, giving an offensive odor to the meat. It is important also that curing should begin as soon as the meat is cooled and while it is still fresh. Tainted meat may be cured so that it will keep, but nothing in the line of preservatives can bring back the natural flavor when it is once lost. The safest rule to follow is to salt meat as soon as the animal heat is out, and before it freezes or starts to decay. Ordinarily 24 hours to 36 hours after slaughtering will allow sufficient time for cooling.

Preservatives

Salt and sugar or molasses are the preservatives most commonly used, and are considered the only ones necessary for perfect curing, and the finest quality of cured meats. Borax, boracic acid, formalin, salicylic acid, and other chemicals are sometimes used in preserving meats, but they are considered by so many authorities to be harmful to the health of the consumer that their use should be avoided. The proprietary preparations put on the market are also dangerous to health. They are more active than salt, and the chief reason for their use is to hasten the curing process.

Salt is an astringent, and when applied alone to meat renders it very hard and dry. Its action is first to draw out the water juices. In a few days it will contract and harden the muscle fibers, thus shrinking the volume of meat. Salt-peter is used to preserve the natural color, but it is harmful to the health. It is even more astringent than salt. Sugar is not an astringent and its presence in the pickle softens the muscle fibers and improves the flavor of the meat. Saleratus (baking soda) is used in small quantities to sweeten the brine. In warm weather a small quantity will aid in preventing the brine from spoiling.

Recipes for Curing

Salt-peter in small quantities is included in these recipes because its use has heretofore been customary. Inasmuch as it is objected to by some hygienists as being injurious to health and is thought to be useful only for preserving or adding color, it is considered advisable to make experiments to see if this ingredient cannot be dispensed with.

Corned Beef—The pieces commonly used for corning are the plate, rump, cross ribs and brisket, or in other words the cheaper cuts of meat. The loins, ribs, and other fancy cuts are more often used fresh, and since there is more or less waste of nutrients in corning, this is well. The pieces for corning should be cut into convenient sized joints, say 5 or 6 inches square. It should be the aim to cut them all about the same thickness so that they will make an even layer in the barrel.

Meat from fat animals makes choicer corn beef than that from poor animals. When the meat is thoroughly cooled it should be corning as soon as possible, as any decay in the meat is likely to spoil the brine during the corning process. Weigh out the meat and allow eight pounds of salt to each 100 pounds; sprinkle a layer of salt one quarter of an inch in depth over the bottom of the barrel; pack in as closely as possible the cuts of meat, making a layer 5 or 6 inches in thickness; then put on a layer of salt, follow with another layer of meat; repeat until the meat and salt have all been packed in the barrel, care being used to reserve salt enough for a good layer over the top. After the package has stood over night add, for every 100 pounds of meat, 4 pounds of sugar, 2 ounces of baking soda, and 4 ounces of saltpeter dissolved in a gallon of tepid water. Three gallons more of water should be sufficient to cover this quantity. In case more or less than 100 pounds of meat is to be corning, make the brine in the proportion given. A loose board cover, weighted down with a heavy stone or piece of iron should be put on top of the meat to keep all of it under the brine and the brine would spoil in a short time.

It is not necessary to boil the brine except in warm weather. If the meat has been corning during the winter and must be kept into the summer season it would be well to watch the brine closely during the spring as it is more likely to spoil at that time than at any other season. If the brine appears to beropy or does not drip freely from the finger when immersed and lifted, it should be turned off and new brine added, after carefully washing the meat. The sugar or molasses in the brine has a tendency to ferment and, unless the brine is kept in a cool place there is sometimes trouble from this source. The meat should be kept in the brine from 28 to 40 days to secure thorough corning.

Plain Salt Pork—Rub each piece of meat with fine common salt and pack closely in a barrel. Let stand over night. The next day weigh out 10 pounds of salt and 2 ounces of saltpeter to each 100 pounds of meat and dissolve in 4 gallons of boiling water. Pour this brine over the meat when cold, cover and weigh down to keep it under the brine. meat will pack best if cut into pieces about 6 inches square. The pork should be kept in the brine till used.

Sugar cured Hams and Bacon—When the meat is cooled, rub each piece with salt and allow it to drain over night. Then pack it in a barrel with the hams and shoulders in the bottom, using the strips of bacon to fill in between or to put on top. Weigh for each 100 pounds of meat 8 pounds of salt, 2 pounds of brown sugar and 2 ounces of saltpeter. Dissolve all in 4 gallons of water, and cover the meat with the brine. For summer use it will be safest to boil the brine before using. In that case it should be thoroughly cooled before it is used. Before winter curing it is not necessary to boil the brine. Bacon strips should remain in this brine four to six weeks; hams six to eight weeks. This is a standard recipe and has given the best of satisfaction. Hams and bacon cured in the same spring will keep right through the summer after they are smoked. The meat will be sweet and palatable if it is properly smoked, and the flavor will be good.

Dry Cured Pork—For each 100 pounds of meat weigh out 5 pounds of salt, 2 pounds of granulated sugar and 2 ounces of saltpeter, and mix them thoroughly. Rub the meat once every three days with a third of the mixture. While the meat is curing it is best to have it packed in a barrel or tight box. For the sake of convenience it is advisable to have two barrels, and to transfer the meat from one to the other each time it is rubbed. After the last rubbing the meat should lie in the barrel for a week or ten days, when it will be cured and ready to smoke. To cut nicely it is desirable to have a cool and rather moist place in which to keep it.

This recipe should not be used where the meat must be kept in a warm and dry place, as the preservatives will not penetrate easily and uniformly.

AFTER BLIND TIGERS

Bone Dry Law Does Not Prevent Liquors Coming Into County

The Bone Dry law instead of keeping liquor out of the county seems to have caused a larger bunch of blind tiger cases than before, if the county court this week is any gauge. The manner of bringing the liquor in now is for a party to go to Jacksonville or Tampa and bring it to the county in trunks and suit cases and getting off at some smaller station transport the liquor to the tiger's lair and there dispense the refreshments as per se. But Sheriff Brady is also on the job and has succeeded in tagging quite a number of the commercial travelers who are carrying suit cases for the first time.

In the county court yesterday, with Judge Housholder presiding and County Attorney Schelle Maines at the bar there 18 liquor cases and two larceny cases. Yesterday seven of the tigers were convicted and fined and the county road will have plenty of workmen in a few days.

The wheels of justice are grinding today and it will probably take all of tomorrow to find out if the suit cases contained liquor or clothing and why.

The county officials are certainly on the alert and if any one slips across the line with booze he will be a good one if he escapes punishment.

Good Health Waits on Digestion.

Cheerfulness and stoutness are generally found together. Fat is probably the result of good digestion, because food eaten is readily changed by the processes of the body into living tissues. The flesh of your body may be measured by the ability of the digestive structures to get the full measure of worth out of the food consumed.
