

REACTIONS TO BRITISH MONEY CRISIS NOTICED

Britain Shows Signs Of Adjustments To New Conditions Under New Standard

(By The Associated Press)
Great Britain entered the second day of its six months' suspension from the gold standard with signs of a slow adjustment to the new conditions and the London Stock Exchange prepared to reopen tomorrow. Trading on the New York Stock Exchange went back to normal prices rallying slowly from yesterday's reaction to the British step.

An official ban against short selling remained in force. The British pound sold at 164 and 103 francs, about four dollars and seven cents to 11 cents at the opening of the Paris money market.

The Amsterdam bourse reopened. A banker's conference in Brussels decided to constitute a committee with resources of $200,000,000 to support the local market.

German stock exchanges and metal markets remained closed. The bank of Bombay raised its discount rate from seven to eight percent. England planned to enforce anti-profiteering measures. Purchases of foreign exchange were restricted.

Unity for action in dealing with Great Britain's dramatic suspension of the gold standard, latest phase of the national crisis, was pledged yesterday by the House of Commons as national differences were submerged to meet emergency.

Arthur Henderson, as leader of the opposition, declared that the labor party would not obstruct the government's program and act in the "gold standard" committee. It was three minutes to 11 when the bill passed its final stage. Flowed a check in the House of Lords to give the bill three readings and pass it, and immediately after this members of the committee were summoned to House of Lords to hear the bill receive royal assent.

In spite of Henderson's pledge it was submitted to several attacks in the commons from labor back-benchers and there were many complaints of "rag rule."

There was no division on the final vote but the successive closure motions were carried by majorities of approximately 100.

French Premier Is Planning Visit To Talk With Hoover

PARIS, Sept. 22.—(A.P.)—Official circles believed today that Premier Laval will visit Washington next month and discuss with President Hoover urgent problems with the hope that France and the United States by cooperation may ease the world's plight.

An official communique in which terms voiced France's appreciation of the cordial wish of President Hoover, presented through Ambassador Edge yesterday, that the French premier visit Washington.

While an official invitation has been extended, Ambassador Edge's call on Premier Laval was considered tantamount to one, and it was expected a formal bid would be forthcoming before the cabinet meets Friday.

Officials unambiguously proclaimed the cabinet would approve the premier's acceptance.

The opinion of the press was summarized in L'Information, which said it would be a good thing for the president of the United States and the chief of the French government to establish a frank understanding between themselves.

It was thought Italy Premier Mussolini would present French ideas of international aid, and that France would only be able to strengthen the cooperation of peace.

Three Fliers, Given Up For Lost, Are Found And Put On New York-Bound Ship

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—(A.P.)—The Associated Press today received a radio message from the steamer, Stavangerford, that Willy Rody, Christian Johannsen, and Fernando Costa Vieira, three Atlantic airmen, who were picked up after 106 hours on the floating wreckage of their plane by the Belmonts were taken aboard the Stavangerford today and will arrive here Friday. They were picked up yesterday off the Newfoundland coast.

The rescue of the daring pair of German airmen and a Portuguese sportsman, who had been given up for dead, was reported by wireless a week after they were due in New York.

First came a terse message from the Belmonts saying the wreckage of a plane had been sighted about eight miles off Cape Pine, a treacherous section of the Newfoundland coast.

Later advice told of the finding of Willy Rody and Christian Johannsen, the German fliers, and their Portuguese companion, Fernando Costa Vieira.

Still later Johannsen messaged the Junkers airplane works in Dessau, Germany, of the abandonment of their plane and subsequent rescue.

The trio set out Sunday, Sept. 14, from Juncal do Sul about 100 miles from Lisbon, Port gal, with New York as their destination. They were sighted twice, once at 11:30 p. m. and again at 1:30 p. m.

While most of the world was still on mourning the aviation tragedy, Great Britain had not yet prepared to suspend her gold standard. The financial emergency was not yet averted.

The suspension of the government's gold will be the first step in the restoration of the gold standard.

This being the case, it seems to me to be a hopeful and not a discouraging event and one which brings the great work of the government much nearer to accomplishment.

The statement was solicited from the banker and was not volunteered by him. He discussed the financial situation for awards of an honor and the president left with an expression that which Morgan did not dissent the very essence of Great Britain's predicament he was convinced that the world was.

The out-rush took place in the financial private office in the London headquarters of Morgan, Grenfell & Co., near the Bank of England.

Although it is not permitted to quote all he said, he did not express any pessimism and he called it a "good omen for the future of the English pound."

Several other financiers expressed similar opinions. Without exception they held the view that it was with considerable probability that the government's latest step in the right direction and that Britain will weather her crisis.

International Banker Breaks His Rule To Comment Upon Gold Standard Abolition

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
LONDON, Sept. 22.—(A.P.)—J. P. Morgan broke his almost iron-clad rule against talking about the financial situation of other countries in his private office here and expressed his opinion.

"The suspension of the gold standard is a hopeful and not a discouraging event and one which brings the great work of the government much nearer to accomplishment."

WALKER IS HOME AFTER VACATION SPENT IN EUROPE

Mayor Shrugs Shoulders When Queried About Investigation

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—(A.P.)—Mayor James J. Walker returned home last night wearing a look which hinted at a Japanese envoy. He was greeted by a throng of all questions of the municipal government.

His favorite motto is "I don't know." The mayor and his wife, Mrs. Helen, were seen in the city streets.

With the news and rumors of Europe still coming in by the hour, the mayor, who was abroad for a rest and found a cheering welcome referred to a matter concerning the Seaboard investigation of the bank and the charge of disorderly conduct.

Asked about Russell F. Stewart, his personal accountant whom the Seaboard men have been seeking for weeks, he said:

"I don't discuss any of these subjects. There is a place for that and that place was to be a secret to you newspapermen."

David Mace, once convicted of bribery and now prominent in a fraternal society here, also returned on the Seaboard. Mace refused to discuss the Seaboard investigation of the bank and the charge of disorderly conduct.

"If Mr. Seaboard asks me any questions," he said, "I will answer them but I will not discuss the queries of newspapermen."

He said he had not been subpoenaed to appear at the Seaboard inquiry. Some of Seaboard's chief counsel of the legislative investigating committee.

The mayor, who said that he expected to be on the job today, said the depression was worldwide.

"It will require the best statesmen in the world to lead all countries out of this wilderness," he said.

He paid tribute to Prime Minister MacDonald, declaring that "there is any man who can get England through, he is the man."

The mayor arrived home at 11:30 p. m. but this time it was not his fault but the weather. He was wearing a smoke blue suit with a light blue pinstriped shirt and a dark blue tie.

UNITED WAR ON JAPS HINTED IN SHEK'S SPEECH

Chinese Nationalist Head Says Country Is Ready For Final And Supreme Fight

NANKING, Sept. 22.—(A.P.)—Addressing a mass meeting today Chiang Kai Shek, head of the Chinese nationalist government, said that if the Kollig pact signatories and the League of Nations fail to uphold justice between China and Japan regarding Manchuria the nationalist government is prepared for a final and supreme struggle.

"I shall lead an army of the Chinese nation in a fight for preservation of our race and to annihilate the enemy of our people. If we must die I shall stand side by side with my country. I shall go to the front and if necessary fall with other patriots."

His speech was previously circulated here and in Canton, but it was about to be made between Nanking government and the insurgent regime in South China in order that the nation might present a united front to deal with Japan.

It is reported that the nationalist government is preparing to send a mission to the United States to appeal for aid in the fight against Japan.

Washington Takes British Economic Situation Calmly

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—(A.P.)—A calm watchfulness for the results which will attend Great Britain's temporary suspension of the gold standard is apparent in Washington.

No alarm is felt as to the effect of the United States' expression of sympathy for the restoration of the gold standard. It is pointed out that England has been on a gold basis for only six of the last 17 years.

Secretary Mellon and Undersecretary Mills, of the treasury, both were out of the city.

While deprecating the situation in the British Isles that resulted in the drastic action, the feeling among government officials and members of Congress generally was that it would result in a stimulation of business for the empire.

The raising of the redoubt rate from 4 to 6 percent was viewed as a step to attract foreign business and money and was considered by some as a move to indicate British money.

Government experts suggested that abandonment of the gold standard at this time would not result in as dire an effect as the action would have during a period of prosperity. As far as the United States is concerned, they noted that the American stock markets were affected only slightly.

With Great Britain's gold supply the lowest in years following a drain of about $1,500,000,000 in recent months, suspension of the gold standard is expected to result in keeping the supply intact and in attracting reserves from South Africa.

Suspects Taken In Pirate Murder On Long Island Sound

HUNTINGTON, New York, Sept. 22.—(A.P.)—District Attorney Alexander Blue announced today that two suspects in the pirate murder of Benjamin Collins had been placed under arrest at Wilmington, Del. Blue refused to reveal their names or the circumstances of their arrest. He said Mrs. Collins' description of the two Long Island Sound pirates, who boarded her husband's cabin cruiser as it lay anchored at midnight and threw him overboard, is being forwarded to Wilmington.

The prosecutor held several long distance telephone conversations with Wilmington authorities before the arrests were made. Meanwhile assistants prepared to question Mrs. Collins again.
