Eckstein resting comfortably

SANFORD — Kenny Eckstein, 22, son of Sanford City Commissioner Whitey and Pat Eckstein, is resting comfortably after undergoing a kidney transplant Friday at Shands Hospital, Gainesville.

"He feels good but he's anxious for the kidney to kick in," Eckstein said this morning.

Pat, who has remained by her son's bedside since the six-hour surgery, will arrive home in Sanford later this afternoon. Eckstein said he and Pat will return to Gainesville tonight.

It could take up to three weeks before doctors will be certain Kenny's kidney is not rejected.

"All we can do is wait and see," Eckstein said. "He is out of a lot of the pain he was in just after surgery."

Three of the Eckstein's five children have been plagued with severe nephritis. Daughter Susan, almost 20, received her mother's kidney in 1988. Christine, 21, remains on the national computer donor list, waiting for a transplant match.

Winning ticket sold in McIntosh

TALLAHASSEE — A ticket bought in Marion County gives its lucky owner sole claim to the estimated $7 million jackpot in the latest Florida Lotto game.

The ticket, purchased last week in the McIntosh community north of Ocala, was the only one that had the numbers 17-29-30-32-42-45 drawn late Saturday.

In addition to the grand prize winner, more than 228,000 other tickets won cash prizes, ranging from $5.50 for the 216,055 tickets with three of the numbers, to $103 for 11,745 tickets with four of the numbers and $3,214 to 257 with five of the numbers.

Next week's Lotto jackpot was estimated Sunday at $6. If paid to a single winner over 20 years.

Small squad has spotless record

WILDWOOD — Big-city drug smugglers driving through this mid-state area might snugly dismiss local police as country cops.

But they obviously don't know about the Griffin brothers, Monte and Noel, and other members of a small but special drug-busting squad.

The brothers, fourth-generation Floridians from Eustis, are part of Sumter County narcotics bureau-highway interdiction team, which claims a 100-percent conviction rate.

The rest of the team is a drug-sniffing dog, Bogey, and his handler, Officer Kim Guernsey of the Leesburg Police Department, and the Sumter County Sheriff's Department's dog, Shadow, and his handler, Deputy Gene Evans.

Monte Griffin, 32, is a sergeant with the Wildwood Police Department. He prowls the Florida Turnpike extension leading to Interstate 75 for speeders and possible drug dealers.

Utility tax under fire

Commissioners vote Tuesday on tax increase

By J. MARK SANFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Although Seminole County commissioners have decided to lower the property tax paid by non-city residents, they are considering digging into unincorporated pocketbooks through monthly utility bills.

Tuesday at 7 p.m., commissioners will consider adopting a 10 percent utility tax for unincorporated residents. The meeting will be held in the commission chambers of the County Services Building, 1101 E. First St. If approved, the tax will show up on October utility bills.

The tax will apply to electricity, water, gas, and local telephone service. There will also be a four-cent per gallon tax on fuel oil. The first 300 kilowatts of residential power usage will be exempt from the tax to help low-income residents.

County officials have estimated the "average" resident will pay about $112 a year for the tax, based on a monthly electricity usage of 1,300 kilowatts. That figure has

Researcher opposes tax hike issue

By J. MARK SANFIELD

SANFORD — Fred Harris said Seminole County may have finally won a battle he has fought with them for 18 years.

"They have insisted since 1977 they are right," said Harris, 87, of Sanford. "They are going to put this in."

If Seminole County commissioners approve their proposed 10 percent tax on water, electricity and other utilities Tuesday, it will be the second time in nearly 20 years they have tried to tax residents through monthly utility bills.

The first time, the county imposed the tax illegally, courts and the Florida Public Service Commission decided. This second time, they do so with the powers of the Seminole County Home Rule Charter, approved by voters in 1988.

In Florida, only cities and chartered counties can impose the tax. Harris said the utility tax was the incentive for commissioners to seek the charter.

Environment Gregg driving force behind study center

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Richard Gregg of Sanford has been the driving force behind getting an environmental study center constructed at Hamilton Elementary School, 1501 E. 8th Street, in Sanford.

Now he is working at getting as many other people involved as he can.

"I've called congressmen and senators and I've called nursery owners and plant experts," Gregg said.

With the assistance of Dan Donelin, Dr. Joe Schaefer and Dr. Linda Jones, a group of landscape architects, wildlife specialists and educators from the University of Florida have drawn up a plan for the physical layout of the center which includes the numbers and locations of more than 30 types of native Florida plants.

The plants, intended to help Hamilton students learn about botany, will also serve as a habitat for animals and birds which the youngsters will observe.

Gregg said that some non-indigenous exotic plants will be put in place along the eastern border of the facility to attract butterflies and hummingbirds.

"Everything else can be found growing wild around Central and North Florida," Gregg explained. "Most can't be found much around Sanford any more."

A $5,000 grant from the Hamilton Elementary School PTA will help Gregg purchase materials to build a 20 by 30 foot educational pavilion at the center.

On Aug. 5, Gregg will receive word from the Urban Forestry Center on the $18,000 grant for which he has applied.

"When we get that...I'm confident we will, so I say when we get it, not if we get it...we will use that money to purchase the plants," Gregg said.

He estimated that $21,000 of the total $40,000 needed to

Art gallery to spotlight photographs

By NICK PRIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The First Street Gallery will open its first invitational photographic show Saturday. Seven of the top Central Florida photographers will exhibit their artistry.

The list of artists to display their works reads like a "Who's Who" in Photography. They include: Anna Tomczak of Lake Helen, Bob Eginton, Patty Margerum, Steve Vaughn, Randy Smith, Linda Bulmer and Peter Schreyer.

Schreyer, director of programming at Crealde School of Art in Winter Park, has exhibited his works statewide, nationally, and even internationally. His work, captured mostly on black and white film, reflects the mood of a town, a moment in time or a character study. One of his photos, exhibited at North Georgia College recently was entitled, "Sanford, Florida, 1986".

Tomczak, presently teaches Creative Photography at Stetson University's art department. As for her photos she says, "I use found objects such as botanic and artifacts, and randomly arrange the objects to alter their meaning."

Among other works, Steve Vaughn, who for the past few years has specialized in scenes of the St. Johns River, is presenting his four-paneled view of "Just Down from Lemon Bluff". One of his photographic works received the "Best of Show" award at the Orlando Airport Show.

Prior to the opening Saturday, Gallery co-chairman Bettye Reagan has announced a reception to honor the various artists. The event will take place at the First Street Gallery, 203 E.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Mayor apologizes to Florida journalists

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Mayor Emanuel Cleaver ordered an investigation of police conduct after four convention-goers said they were mocked by officers after they reported being accosted outside a bar.

Four Florida journalists, among 1,300 here for the National Association of Black Journalists convention, said police officers scoffed at their story of being mugged early Saturday by about a dozen youths in the popular Westport nightclub area. None of them was seriously injured.

One of the officers reportedly said, "Welcome to Westport," the journalists said.

Mayor Cleaver apologized to the visitors after the incident. "We basically couldn't get the cops to react," said Terry Neal, a reporter at The Miami Herald. "They weren't even going to write a report until I said, 'Hey, look, I'm not some punk off the street. I'm here on business.'"

Police find body of St. Pete counselor

HONESDALE, Pa. — State police Sunday found the body of a St. Petersburg counselor who never returned from a trip to a waterfall on her day off from a children's camp.

Police called the death of Laura Ronning, 24, a waterfront director at Cayuga Camp in Dyberry Township, "suspicious" but had not determined by late Sunday the cause of her death.

Wayne County Coroner Dr. Yoo Lee is scheduled to perform an autopsy Monday.

Camp officials told police that Ms. Ronning had not been seen since 11 a.m. Saturday, when she set off on a hike to Tanners Falls, two miles away.

Police found her body in a wooded area near the waterfall Sunday morning. Fazio said there was little visible evidence indicating how she died.

Future of "Pee-wee's Playhouse" iffy

SARASOTA — CBS Television officials will decide today whether the network will continue airing Saturday-morning reruns of "Pee-wee's Playhouse" following the weekend arrest on indecent exposure charges of Paul Reubens, known to children as Pee-wee Herman.

The diminutive television and movie star, whose real name is Paul Reubens, is to be arraigned next month on a misdemeanor charge of exposure of a sexual organ. He was arrested Friday after an undercover police officer twice watched him masturbate inside an adult theater here.

Reruns of "Pee-wee's Playhouse", which CBS canceled in April, are scheduled through August, Ann Morfogen, CBS' vice-president of media relations, said Sunday.

"Obviously, because this is the weekend, no one's had a chance to discuss it," Morfogen told the Sarasota Herald-Tribune for an article in today's editions.

Reubens, who also has starred in such films as "Pee-wee's Big Adventure" and "Big Top Pee-wee", is to be arraigned Aug. 9 in Circuit Court in Sarasota. But the actor doesn't have to appear in person to enter a plea on the misdemeanor charge, sheriff's deputies said Sunday.

Sugar worker exploitation investigated

WASHINGTON — A House panel is investigating the circumstances under which $10 million was deducted from the wages of 10,000 Florida sugar cane cutters for a mandatory savings plan that paid them no interest.

The House Committee on Education and Labor has been looking into the alleged exploitation of foreign sugar cane workers for the past 18 months and was sending a letter to the General Accounting Office today requesting an audit involving the group of 10,000 workers from the Caribbean.

In a report issued in conjunction with the letter, the committee's staff listed several alleged violations of federal labor laws and questioned the Labor Department's commitment to enforcing federal wage standards.

Gulf War pharmacist faces court martial

TAMPA — A Gulf War pharmacist faces more than 40 years in prison if convicted of illegally distributing drugs to desert troops, but he claims he's being made the scapegoat for rampant drug abuse during Operation Desert Storm.

Air Force Capt. Roger E. Mansfield, 30, is set for court martial today in a tiny military courtroom at MacDill Air Force Base.

The proceedings, originally scheduled in June, have been delayed twice as Mansfield's civilian attorney pressed the military for a "paper trail" accounting of prescriptions filled for every drug involved in the case.

Mansfield contends he's taking the blame for extensive drug use by U.S. troops wrecked by months of stress, boredom, frustration and a ban on alcohol in Muslim Saudi Arabia.

"There was a widespread problem out there and one officer should not take the blame for the military's inability to cope with the problems created by another country's demands on our military men and women," Mansfield wrote in a letter to Florida's congressional delegation in May.

HRS: Falling addicted babies

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — State social service agency workers have little success in convincing mothers of drug-addicted babies to complete treatment programs, according to reports recently made public.

The Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, strapped for resources and solutions to the drug baby problem, is encouraging addicts to use more birth control, said Secretary Bob Williams.

"The most effective thing we can do in those situations is help that mother not have baby No. 2," Williams said.

The HRS documents, released following a lawsuit filed by The Tampa Tribune, also indicate that social workers rarely devise a workable, long-term solution for the family involved.

Typical among the reports was a finding

The most effective thing we can do in those situations is help that mother not have baby No. 2.

-HRS Secretary Bob Williams

directed to the district headquartered in Jacksonville. Agency teams of nurses, child abuse investigators and drug treatment experts performed according to plan only in the first days after babies were born.

"After the child and mother are released from the hospital ... the communication network breaks down. Consequently, most clients are neither complying with their child abuse counselor's case plans nor participating in drug treatment programs."

the report by the HRS quality assurance office found.

The reports, written between August and October 1990 on a sampling of cases closed since January 1990 for each of HRS' 11 service districts, reveal:

—Of 231 cases reviewed in-depth by the HRS quality assurance office, the agency could document that only 63 mothers either were in treatment or had successfully completed a program.

—Workers in several HRS districts scurried to make required home visits and fill out forms without truly evaluating a family and considering what help was needed. Reviewers labeled such efforts "paperwork exercises."

—In Dade County, the district couldn't find 48 cocaine baby case files out of the 84 requested by the reviewers; 16 of them later turned up in a county social services office.

Smith's attorneys to argue for delay

By Bob Stewart, Associated Press Writer

WEST PALM BEACH — With one week to go before William Kennedy Smith's scheduled trial, his attorneys plan to argue for a postponement "until the situation cools off."

The prosecution disclosures one week ago that three other women claim Smith sexually attacked them has generated so much prejudicial publicity that even a change of location probably wouldn't help, Smith's attorneys said in a motion for continuance late Friday.

They also said the added work of investigating the women's claims and delays in pretrial evidence-gathering they blame largely on prosecutors mean Smith doesn't have time to present an adequate defense. They want the trial pushed back at least 90 days.

There are no hearings yet scheduled before Wednesday, when Smith's attorneys said they would argue their motion to dismiss the case against him. He faces Aug. 5 trial on charges he raped a 29-year-old Jupiter, Fla., woman March at his family's Palm Beach estate.

The defense attorneys, who have summoned police officials and court administrators to testify Wednesday along with representatives of more than 30 news organizations, charge prosecutors' misconduct and prejudicial publicity have ruined his chances for a fair trial.

Smith's attorneys blasted the release of the three women's statements as more proof of the defense charges. In an emergency motion still pending, they asked Circuit Judge Mary Lupo to seal future court filings and to punish prosecutors for trying to "sandbag" Smith.

Prosecutors replied that Smith's attorneys were told four weeks ago they were investigating "Williams Rule" evidence on past criminal behavior, and were given three hours' notice last week to block the disclosures.

Judge Lupo must decide whether to allow the three women to testify, just as she must rule on what evidence about the Jupiter woman's past conduct is admissible for the trial.

Douglas Williams, a Miami attorney and former Dade County prosecutor, said a judge must balance the relevance of a defendant's alleged past crimes against the likelihood it would be "so prejudicial, so likely to mislead or inflame the jury and become the major feature of the case that the defendant's fair trial rights would be obliterated."

Expert: Accounts of Smith's behavior have some 'remarkable consistencies'

By Bob Stewart, Associated Press Writer

PLANTATION — Four women who claim William Kennedy Smith sexually attacked them describe behavior "not inconsistent with" that of repeat sexual offenders, a forensic psychologist says.

Dr. John Spencer, frequently called to evaluate suspected criminals in Broward County, stressed that he couldn't make conclusions without personally interviewing Smith or the women who claim he attacked them. But Spencer, who has counseled hundreds of sexual offenders in rehabilitation therapy, reviewed more than 200 pages of sworn statements in the case for The Associated Press.

He agreed to compare the accounts to behavior commonly exhibited by those he's counseled.

"There are startling similarities among sex offenders,"

Spencer explained.

With Smith facing Aug. 5 trial on a 29-year-old Jupiter, Fla., woman's claim he raped her at his family's Palm Beach estate, prosecutors last week released statements from three women who claim Smith attacked them in the past.

Smith's attorneys, who want a three-month delay in his trial, criticized the disclosures as prejudicial release of evidence they say will be inadmissible.

State: Few rules for radium waste disposal

Associated Press

JAY, Fla. — The 150 barrels of low-level radioactive waste at an old natural gas plant in this Panhandle town stand in mute testimony to a state disposal policy that has drawn questions from federal regulators.

Under an agreement with the federal government, the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services regulates the disposal of radioactive wastes that in Florida are byproducts of both the phosphate and oil industries.

Both industries scrape radium-contaminated deposits from their processing or drilling equipment.

HRS has allowed hundreds of tons of radioactive debris to be buried by phosphate-fertilizer companies in man-made mounds across Central Florida — unaware another state agency identified many of the sites as ground-water polluters.

A science adviser to the U.S.

Environmental Protection Agency's radiation control program said he was surprised Florida allows radioactive materials to be buried in leaking phosphate-gypsum mounds, and that it didn't keep better tabs on potentially hazardous materials found in oil.

"It needs to be monitored and controlled because of the potential danger," Gordon Burley told The Tampa Tribune in a story published Sunday. "It's not a material that should just be thrown on the trash heap."

In Jay, HRS officials weren't aware until just a few days ago what or how much of the radium-tainted residue was being stored behind a locked fence in a field about one mile south of Jay.

HRS' radiation control chief, Mary Clark, said the department isn't sure what Exxon Corp. was told to do with the barrels because key documents had been placed in storage.

Only one state, Louisiana, has formal guidelines for disposing of naturally occurring, concentrated radioactive material. State officials there prohibited dumping after a survey found 1,100 radium-contaminated sites.

Seven other states are considering similar action. But Florida's HRS hasn't adopted any rules for disposing of low-level radioactive waste either from oil drilling or from the phosphate-fertilizer industry.

Inspections that are often up to five years apart force Florida regulators to rely on the private companies themselves to alert HRS to any changes. In the Exxon case, HRS didn't keep an active file detailing terms of the agreement.

"We had an understanding as to how the material would be stored," Clark said. "We would have to be informed of changes." Clark ordered a new examination of the Jay site last week.

Exxon spokesman Dean Peeler said the company hasn't found any records telling it to move the barrels but is trying to decide whether to transport them to Utah to a licensed dump.

"This is not hazardous," said Peeler. "The material we have is not a health risk. It's little radiation compared to what's being transported across the country."

HRS first became aware that radium residue was produced by the oil industry after reports that it had been found in drilling fields in nearby Alabama. An HRS consultant, Floyd Hoch, inspected the Jay site in April 1989.

Hoch reported finding 125 steel, 55-gallon drums of radium contaminated waste in the field outside an inactive natural gas plant. In a separate report, Hoch wrote that HRS should contact other oil companies "to determine whether there is a problem" with radium waste.

Retail theft charged

Dustree Blanche Whiston, 18, of 1301 Cedar Creek Cir., Apt. 1301, in Sanford, was arrested on Saturday and charged with retail theft.

The Sanford Police officer who arrested her reported that Whiston took several items from the Winn-Dixie store on Airport Boulevard in Sanford. She was observed taking the items and detained by store security, police reported.

She was transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where she was held on $100 bond.

Violation of probation alleged

Henry Leon Hunsuckle, 40, of 430 E. Warren Ave. in Longwood, was arrested on Friday on a warrant for violation of his probation.

According to the sheriff's department arrest report, Hunsuckle was arrested at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility when he was found, at the time of his most recent arrest, to be in violation of the terms of his community control confinement on previous aggravated assault charges.

He had been found to be carrying a concealed weapon when he was arrested on July 11 for loitering and prowling.

He continues to be held at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility without bond.

Shoplifter attempts to elude police

Phillip Alfred Robinson III, 31, of 915 1/2 Park Ave., Apt. A, in Sanford, was arrested on Friday and charged with fleeing and attempting to elude police and for driving with a suspended drivers license.

Robinson's vehicle was being followed by Sanford Police on the suspicion that he had stolen $70 worth of shrimp from the Winn Dixie on U.S. 17-62 in Sanford.

When police approached the vehicle, they said, he drove from 15th Street to Park Avenue and continued northbound "disregarding both traffic signals and (the officer's) lights and siren." He was eventually stopped at the intersection of 8th Street and Sanford Avenue.

He was transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was held without bond. The charge of retail theft was added when the shrimp that Winn Dixie employees had reported stolen were found in his car, police said.

Cigarettes stolen

Samuel Pierce, 66, of 1702 Hawkins St., in Sanford, was arrested on Friday. He was charged with retail theft.

The arrest report states that Pierce was arrested at the Winn Dixie store on Airport Boulevard after he left the store without paying for a package of cigarettes.

He was transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was held on $100 bond.

Battery theft leads to battery charge

Daniel Shelby Shy, 20, of 139 Academy Ave., in Sanford, was arrested on Friday and charged with retail theft and assault. He had taken a four-pack of AA batteries from the store at the Winn Dixie store on Airport Boulevard in Sanford, police said.

The Sanford Police Department arrest report said that when store employees tried to restrain him until police arrived that he was violent and shouted threats at employees.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was held on $500 bond.

Man on bike tries to elude police

Joseph C. Kremseritter, 24, of 112 Cory Lane, in Winter Springs, was arrested in Lake Mary on Saturday morning.

He was charged with obstruction by dangerous resisting arrest without violence and loitering or prowling.

At 2 a.m. Saturday, officers found Kremseritter, also known as Jody Jay Krems, standing in the doorway of Kelsey's Pizza at Victoria Square in Lake Mary, the Lake Mary police arrest report stated.

Police said that as they approached him, he started to leave the area on a bicycle. He ignored their demands to stop, police said, but stopped the third time he was asked. He had a strong odor of alcohol, police said, and noted that he made obscene gestures at them.

He was transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was held on $500 bond.

Battery charged

Thomas Edward Winterer, 38, of 337 Palmetto Ave., in Longwood, was arrested on Saturday morning and charged with aggravated battery.

The victim, police said, had left the home after a fight with Winterer. She was found at a neighboring house with bruised and swollen cheeks and bloody clothing. Her eyes, they reported were swollen shut.

The Longwood Police officer who filed the report noted that Winterer admitted to fighting with the victim but, police said, he said it was in self defense. He had a couple of minor scratches, they noted.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was held on $4,000 bond.

Probation violations charged

Gregory Wendell Tillman, 20, of 3031 W. 23rd St. in Sanford, was arrested on Thursday and charged with violating the conditions of his probation on charges of robbery with a deadly weapon, according to a police report.

He was arrested in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility. He continues to be held without bond.

Parents: Lift ban on IQ testing of blacks

By BYRONELLE LOGAN
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — Five years after black parents won a statewide ban on using IQ tests to assess their learning-disabled children, a second group of minority parents is suing to bring the tests back.

The original litigants say the tests are culturally biased and resulted in huge numbers of black children being misclassified as retarded.

The new plaintiffs, backed by the conservative Landmark Legal Foundation of Kansas City, Mo., say the black-only ban is discriminatory and denies black parents the option of having their children tested.

The new case was sparked when Mary Amaya was told her mixed-race son could be tested if she re-registered him as Hispanic, rather than black, said Landmark lawyer Peter Hutchinson.

Earlier this month, some parents won a preliminary ruling allowing them to arrange testing for their children. The lawsuit has not yet gone to trial.

Education Department lawyer Barry Solotar said state officials are considering how to respond to the July 15 ruling. One option would be to ban tests for all races, which would knock the props from the discrimination claim.

The case is being followed closely by national activists, who considered the California ruling a landmark decision.

In 1979, U.S. District Judge Robert Peckham prohibited the use of IQ tests for diagnosing blacks as retarded or placing them in classes for the retarded. In 1986, he further forbade the use of IQ tests to identify blacks as learning-disabled or to assess blacks who had already been assigned to special education classes.

The current lawsuit charges that second order was improper.

If the ban is repealed, "they will use these tests once again for deciding black children are not competent intellectually to do regular work. They'll put them in classes where they will get an inferior education and they will fall further and further behind," said Monty Neill, associate director of FairTest of Cambridge, Mass., a leading critic of standardized tests.

Blacks represent 16 percent of the nation's public school students but 37 percent of those labeled retarded, according to 1987 statistics from the U.S. Office of Civil Rights.

Critics say the tests are grounded in white cultural values and are a poor tool for diagnosing other children.

For instance, Neill said, the commonly used revised Wechsler Intelligence Scale for Children asks what should be done for a cut finger. Children get two points for responding "put a Band-Aid on it," one point for "go to the doctor (hospital)" and no points for "suck blood ... don't panic."

Minority children usually pick option two, Neill said, and a study found that was because the children assumed "cut" meant a big cut.

"The cultural assumption was, in effect, if some stranger's going to ask me about a cut it must be pretty bad," he said.

Supporters of such tests maintain that a standard measure is necessary to evaluate children.

"Nothing you have is culture-free. You try to look at something that's culture fair," said Loeb Aronin, director of psychological services for the Los Angeles school district.

SANFORD — The first step of construction is underway at Central Florida Regional Hospital. Work on the $6 million expansion project is expected to be finished in early 1992.

The only inconvenience, may be in the doctor's parking area to the east, but there will be no change in patient services during the construction project. The parking lot is being bulldozed for the addition of underground utilities. Some bricks are also being removed from the eastern and northeastern side of the existing building.

The project involves an addition to the present hospital. In all, over 26,000 square feet covering 2 floors is being added. It will house an expanded obstetrics department, short stay surgery, and medical records areas.

The added area will allow for renovation in portions of the existing building which will allow room for an expanded endoscopy department and VIP suites.

Roy C. Vinson, CFRH Administrator said, "All of this expansion is designed solely to better serve our community. We know our patients want the highest level of quality care and we are determined to provide it in comfortable, ADA, pleasant surroundings."

When the expansion is finished, the obstetrics area will have 8 labor/delivery/recovery rooms on the first floor. Five board certified obstetricians are presently on the staff and will be utilizing the new facility.

During recovery, the mother and new baby will move upstairs to new private patient rooms and a 23 bassinets nursery, with a comfortable viewing area for family and friends.

The short stay surgery expansion will make room for more patients who want to take advantage of same-day surgery. The unit will be doubled in size, and expanded from the present 6 to 13 recovery rooms.

Hospital officials are planning a special groundbreaking ceremony Thursday, August 8. The event will begin with a project overview in the hospital's boardroom at 10:30 a.m. The official ground breaking ceremony will take place at the actual construction site, beginning at 10:45.

Defibrillator issue unsettled in Lake Mary

By MIKE PFEIFER
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary Fire Department does not have a heart defibrillator. Whether it will have one in the near future is still up for consideration.

During a budget workshop meeting Monday night, Dante Gattoni, of 625 W. Plantation Boulevard in Lake Mary, was allowed to address the city commission on the problem.

"You took the money to buy a heart defibrillator out of your Fire Department's budget," he said. "I'm speaking for a number of citizens in The Forest, and we don't think you are helping meet the needs of the people of Lake Mary by doing that."

City Manager John Litton however, said, "No request for money with which to specifically purchase a defibrillator was made in the initial budget, so the city never actually rejected it."

He explained that the Lake Mary Fire Department is presently listed as a BSL unit, that is, one which provides Basic Life Support equipment. "In order to be moved up to ALS, Advance Life Support, we would have to add a number of trained paramedics to the department," Litton said.

Near the conclusion of Monday's meeting, Mayor Randy Morris suggested the defibrillator matter be looked into, and the commission be advised of the situation.

Police Chief Charles Lauderdale said this morning, "I've prepared a statement on the matter, and it will be forwarded to the City Manager today." He added, "What I'm suggesting is that if we decide to look into a such an operation, we should go all the way and start working on it." The chief explained that he is also reporting on training that will be required for firemen to use the equipment.

The mechanism is best known as an electric shocking system, which is used on heart patients whose heart has stopped beating or is making irregular beats. Several of the units are used in various departments at both Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford, South Seminole Community Hospital in Longwood, and other hospitals in Central Florida. Almost all ambulance services also use the defibrillators or units which provide a similar result.

The Sanford Fire Department also utilizes a heart defibrillator unit, Fire Chief Tom Hickson said. "They are common in fire departments which provide an advance life support operation."

The Chief explained that operation of the machines requires the use of specially trained paramedics.

Lauderdale said, "Right now, whenever we receive a call for such assistance, an ambulance is also notified, and generally they will get to the scene within minutes after we do." He added that at times if personnel are on another scene, "the ambulance may even get there at the same time or before we do. So the people in the Lake Mary area have excellent responsive service."

The next meeting of the Lake Mary City Commission is scheduled for this Thursday evening. It is not known at this time whether or not the matter will be brought up for further discussion.

Parental break

The millions of American kids in desperate straits found an advocate in the National Commission on Children.

The 34-member panel of politicians, scholars and other experts on children's issues released a sweeping proposal, designed to "improve the opportunities for every young person — regardless of social, economic and cultural circumstances — to become a healthy, secure, educated, economically self-sufficient and productive adult."

A noble goal. Yet the timing is unfortunate. The ambitious agenda recommended by the commission would cost $56 billion. But the deficit-plagued federal government has little to spare.

The centerpiece of the commission's program — a $1,000 tax credit for each child in a family — would cost about $16 billion, even with the elimination of the current system of tax deductions for children.

Still, this part of the proposal stands the best chance of enactment. It would reorder tax breaks in a way that would benefit middle-class and working-poor families. Families not on welfare but too poor to pay taxes would actually get $1,000 per child from the government.

It's not a panacea for poverty. But, as the commission noted, "For all families, it says that we think the job of raising children is important and valuable."

The commission's study noted a lot of other programs that deserve support, from Head Start to expanded health insurance for pregnant women and young children. These programs are worth supporting, to prevent more children from sinking into poverty, eventually costing us even more.

Reality constrains what we can invest at this point. But in an era of limits, the commission's proposed tax credit for families would do the most good, for the most children. It merits serious consideration.

Wars in perspective

Those who saw it were a little breathless. The sight of the patriarch of the Russian Orthodox Church blessing with the sign of the cross the new president of Russia while a chorus sang the Russian (not Soviet) anthem in the background and a picture of Russia (not Lenin) commanded the stage was a first for Moscow.

Boris Yeltsin has been inaugurated (coronated) the first freely elected president of Russia. Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev looked on demurely.

As little as three years ago, any of the above was barely conceivable. But these are heady times in the soon-to-be Union of Sovereign Socialist Republics, whose second city is soon to become St. Petersburg again.

Patriarch Alexey II of the Russian Orthodox church warned Yeltsin that he was assuming responsibility for a "gravely ill" nation, one that had suffered from "70 years of the destruction of spirituality. Three generations of people," said the prelate, "were raised in conditions stripping them of the will and ability to work."

Americans should not ignore these developments, nor take them for granted. With our attention focused on the Persian Gulf for most of this year, we have given short shrift to the far more significant developments under way in Russia. Yeltsin's swearing in July 10, another step in wiping away 70 years of Marxism-Leninism, should leave us rubbing our eyes.

The collapse of communism in the Soviet Union, accompanied by the rebirth of religion and human rights, is the main event of our age. Yet we have trouble coming to terms with it because victory in the Cold War was a moral victory, not a military one. The Cold War produced no famous battles and no historic surrenders. It has no heroes.

It was a triumph of Western values over communist ones — of hard work, of piety, of individuality, of frugality and common purpose. It was above all a social victory.

So while we don't need flagwaving and parades to celebrate Yeltsin's inauguration, let's not be blasé about it. Victory in the Cold War was as famous and important as any we have ever fought — and fewer people died.

In the history books, the gulf war will rank in importance somewhere along with the War of 1812.

The Cold War will be up there with World War II.

My first thought when I saw the nude photo of Demi Moore on the cover of Vanity Fair magazine was, "What on earth?" I admit, I was none too proud of my reaction.

After all, my co-worker, a nice young churchgoing man in his mid-20s who had been a missionary to China, thought it was just fine. "I don't see anything wrong with it," he said. "I think pregnant women are beautiful."

OK, OK, I groused, feeling the red start to creep into my ears. Here this conservative young salt-of-the-earth type thought a photo of a nude pregnant woman with her hands strategically draped over essential parts was perfectly proper for the cover of a national magazine. And here I am, the first one in my crowd to buy a subscription to the magazine when I was his age, being shocked. I tried to explain myself, hoping my words would paint me as less a dinosaur than I felt.

"Well, of course you're right, there's nothing wrong with a pregnant woman's nude body," I told him. "I guess I just ... well, I guess it's just that I, uh ... well, it makes me uncomfortable!"

He looked at me with amazed intrigue. "Really? Why?"

"I didn't know, but I decided to think out loud, hoping my verbalized thought process would begin to sound like a coherent explanation. "Well, for one thing, Vanity Fair is my favorite magazine, and I'm used to seeing some classy portrait of one of the people featured in the magazine on the cover."

"You mean just head-and-shoulder shots?" he asked.

"No, not always. Think about it this way: What if it was Woody Allen standing there naked, his hands draped over his chest and crotch?"

He wrinkled his nose. Ah, I was starting to make a point, I thought.

"Or, John Candy?"

He wrinkled his nose and stuck out his tongue.

"Or any other woman who wasn't pregnant?"

His tongue went back and his nose un-erred, but he conceded the point and I pressed it. "Then if you'd just as soon not see men or non-pregnant women naked on the cover of Vanity Fair, why is it OK for a pregnant woman to appear in the all-together?"

He looked even more confused but nodded his head, and I slunk off feeling a lot like I'd just manned the picket line that got this Vanity Fair issue banned in all the Winn-Dixie stores. Jeminy, I didn't need this.

The previous Friday night the family 19-year-old had flounced out of the living room where her father and I were watching a Country-Western dance show trying to pick up a new twirl, announcing, "I'm going into my room and listen to some REAL music!" A half hour before that she had pronounced nothing in our closets fit to accompany her to the night club where her boyfriend was playing "straight-edge punk," or at least I think that's what she called it. If I'd written it down, I could tell you.

And now I want to shove poor pregnant Demi off the cover of Vanity Fair just because she's naked.

He looked at me with amazed intrigue.

Bush doesn't have clear view

Washington's rarest plague — hypermetropia of the highest order — has struck again.

This epidemic afflicts only the most powerful, those who get so close to the action they become blind to things that seem obvious to the rest of us. Hypermetropia, defined as an inability to clearly see objects that are close, explains why, in the old days, LBJ couldn't see the folly of his unpopular war and why Richard Nixon was blind to the futility of his Watergate lies and crimes.

Mercifully, today's outbreak of Hypermetropia-on-High is a bit more benign: President Bush merely cannot see that his nominee for CIA director, Robert Gates, must have bought his confirmation suit from the same tailor who once made an emperor's new clothes.

Thanks to a guilty plea by one of Gates' ex-CIA subordinates, Alan D. Fiers, most of us on the outside think we can see through Gates' old denials that he didn't know the central truths about the Iran-contra crimes. We can also see there must be more to the story than Gates says there is. Even the Senate Intelligence Committee he stroked with political skill for years saw enough in Fiers' plea to know it had to postpone Gates' confirmation hearing.

But Bush alone seems blinded to the changed reality. Standing his ground in Kennebunkport earlier this month, Bush wagged his finger at reporters as though it were a white cane with a red tip. He belittled the Senate panel whose chairman, Sen. David Boren (D-Okla.), had been palsy-walsy with the hyper-political Gates, saying: "They ought not to panic and run like a covey of quail. ... In his meandering stream of unprejudicial consciousness, Bush emphasized: "I just don't think it's the American way to bring a good man down by rumor and insinuation."

Rumor? Bushwash! It was a public confession, made by Fiers in court. Fiers admitted that Ollie North told him about the Iran-contra scam in the spring of 1986; that Fiers told his superior, ex-Deputy for Covert Operations Clair George, who reported directly to Deputy CIA Director Gates and seemed to already know about it; and that, on George's orders, Fiers misled Congress on Iran-contra that fall.

So Gates' underlings knew laws were being broken — and, of course, so did Gates' boss, CIA Director William Casey. If Gates told the truth in 1987 when he said he knew nothing of the Iran-contra lawbreaking, he had to be the most uniquely disconnected No. 2 in CIA history.

Gates' story, originally tailored in 1987, has undergone major alterations: When an aide said he'd warned Gates of his Iran-contra suspicions in the summer of '86, Gates said he'd forgotten the conversation. When another aide said he told Gates on Oct. 1 he thought laws were being broken, Gates says he took no prompt action.

Now that Fiers has brought the scandal to the base of Gates' pedestal, the key questions for Gates confirmation are clear:

(1) If Gates was in on the Iran-contra scandal, should he be disqualified from becoming CIA director?

(2) If Gates wasn't a major Iran-contra player but misled Congress about what he knew and when he knew it, should he be disqualified?

(3) If Gates wasn't a scandal insider and didn't technically mislead Congress, because he chose to ignore evidence of lawbreaking to preserve his deniability, should he be disqualified?

Washington outsiders, being unafflicted by hypermetropia, know there is but one correct answer to all of the above: Yes.

To convince us of his innocence, Gates must convince us of his ignorance; he must show he couldn't have known of the lawbreaking going on around him. Then he must convince us of his intelligence; he must show that despite what he's just told us, intelligence analysis is his strength.

We know how the Gates nomination must end.

There must be more to the story than Gates says there is.

NRC chief likes his office plush

WASHINGTON — One of George Bush's newest political appointees says he didn't ask for much when he moved into his new high-rise office — only about $20,000 worth of renovations to make a perfectly good office even more perfect. And if anyone complains, Ivan Selin is quick to point out that federal regulations entitle him to a private shower and his own dining room too, but he didn't ask for those.

Selin became the chairman of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission on July 1, and since then the agency has been buzzing with talk about his digs. In 1988, Selin donated $20,000 to the Republican Party when Bush was running for president. It looks like Selin has gotten his investment back in office furnishings and renovations, although for most presidential appointees, the job is thanks enough for their donation.

Selin had special lighting installed in his NRC office in a suburb of Washington because he found the old lights to be too dim. He had a refrigerator installed in his personal bathroom — the one without a shower. He had a new wall built to make his office more soundproof. He put in oak shelves to show off his art collection, and he even had his toilet seat replaced and a seat cover added.

Apparently the chief regulator of the nation's nuclear power industry has an image to maintain, and the office that was good enough for his predecessor, Kenneth Carr, is not good enough for Selin.

Carr may not have had the best of offices, but he also is wringing the most out of public service. He has remained on the NRC payroll on a special project. The assignment will last 60 days, just long enough to allow Carr to qualify for a retirement package. NRC officials justify it, saying that Carr, a former Navy vice admiral, sacrificed a portion of his military pension to go to work for the NRC.

Our associate Scott Sleek got the grand tour of Selin's office after obtaining an internal memo that spelled out Selin's desired list of furnishings. The office is adorned with a collection of decorative masks and other art. Selin has collected in Africa and elsewhere, all sitting on the $1,950 oak shelves that replaced Carr's book cases.

The new refrigerator in the bathroom cost $1,038. Selin needed some place to store his private stock of Diet Coke. A new water line had to be installed for the ice maker. Selin also got a new bathroom sink with a Formica counter to match the floor tiles. The internal memo notes that Selin needed a new kind of soap in the dispenser because the old brand was "brownish looking."

Other additions to the office include a new desk chair and mat, a TV and a radio. The NRC spent more than $4,000 tearing down an old wall and putting up a new one. The new lighting cost several hundred dollars. Selin also ordered new flagpoles for his office, and three clocks to match his oak office furniture.

Selin told us the changes are the least an agency head should expect out of his office, but staff members have been complaining behind his back that the changes are presumptuous.

Selin, whose new salary is $125,100 a year, ran his own computer consulting firm before he went to work at the State Department — his last job before Bush plucked him out and put him in the NRC. He says his doctoral degree in electrical engineering and math give him a solid background for the job. But he also knows what to put between the lines of his resume. His donation to the GOP in 1988 certainly didn't hurt his stock with Bush, who has been very grateful in victory.

The office is adorned with a collection of decorative masks.

Bats are good and are our friends

By ROBERT L. BARBER
Associated Press Writer

ROCKVILLE, Md. — Most people see bats and say "Eeesh!" Tom Valega and Heidi Hughes see bats and say, "Ooooh! Cute!"

Valega and Hughes love bats and wish everyone did. Forget what you've heard about Dracula's blood-sucking vampires, winged harbingers of death and all that stuff, the married couple say.

"The truth is that bats are cuddly, friendly little critters who work furiously every night, all summer long, gobbling up mosquitoes and other backyard pests that make life miserable for humans.

Although bats have gotten a bum rap in Western culture for centuries, the Chinese are more enlightened. Their word for bat is "fu," which means good luck. In China, having bats in your belfry is considered a blessing.

"If you look at a bat eyeball-to-eyeball, you can't help but fall in love with them, they're so cute," says Hughes, who keeps a couple of furry brown bats as house pets.

"They're marvelous creatures and they do great and wonderful things," said Valega. "If they are ever exterminated, we'd be in dire straits."

By day, Valega is a grants administrator at the National Institute of Dental Research. By night, he's "the Batman of Rockville," rescuing bats trapped in neighboring homes and leading twilight hikes through the Washington D.C. suburb in search of bats and owls.

Valega uses a magic bat detector, an electronic gizmo the size of a pocket radio, to tune in to the ultrasonic chirps, clicks and pings of bats whose built-in sonars enable them to fly in the dark and target their prey.

Valega became a bat enthusiast when he met his wife, the owner of a bird supply store in Rockville who fell in love with bats nearly 20 years ago.

Together, they founded the non-profit American Bat Conservation Society to protect bats and improve their public image.

Valega and Hughes fear that millions of North American bats are being killed annually by pesticides or by trespassers who disrupt their winter hibernation in caves.

Spent gun shells collected from streets

ATLANTA — Robert L. Barber likes to collect shells — not seashells by the seashore, but gun shells that crop up on the city's streets.

He keeps a heavy bag in his office filled with everything from .22-caliber castings to an AR-47 assault rifle cartridge. He has collected the shells while wandering the streets during his lunch hours over the past four years.

"There's everything in the world in there," Barber said, emptying more than 10 pounds of lead and brass onto a table. "All were found within five blocks of the office."

Barber, a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service biologist, works in the federal building downtown. The area isn't exactly the battlefield his collection suggests.

"If each one of these was fired from this location, it would sound like a war zone, and it's not," Atlanta Police Capt. Wesley Derrick said.

Weapons owners could be firing their guns elsewhere and tossing shells out of car windows downtown, Derrick said.

High school coach suspended

SUSANVILLE, Calif. — A high school coach accused of verbally and physically abusing students was suspended from coaching for five years.

Edward Frank Murin, a football and basketball coach at Lassen Union High School, must take cultural awareness training, school officials said. A notice of unprofessional conduct will be placed in his personnel file.

The settlement came after four years of complaints against Murin from parents and students who said the coach used racial slurs, slammed students' heads against lockers and threw chalk, keys and erasers at them.

Murin could not be located for comment. He has denied the charges.

The school board vote 3-1 Friday night to suspend Murin, saving the district from possibly losing state funds for violating racial discrimination laws.

Attorneys for the state Department of Education had suggested the district be denied state funds following its earlier refusal to suspend Murin and prohibit him from coaching.

Garden produces ring lost years ago

XENIA, Ohio — A man hoeing his carrot garden unearthed a ring a friend lost six years ago on a farm six miles away.

"I didn't know what it was right away," Barry Stroop said. "I hit something metal and picked it up, brushed the dirt away and brought it in."

Stroop, who made his discovery July 21, remembered that his friend, Woody Lott, had lost a man's gold diamond ring. He wore the band to Lott's home that evening.

"I couldn't believe it," Lott said. "When he handed it to me, I knew right away it was my ring."

Lott lost the ring, a family heirloom, in 1985 at his mother's farm.

"The only thing I can think is one of the cows either ate it or picked it up in its hoof and carried it away," Lott said.

Lott twice a year carts manure to Stroop's garden for fertilizer.

Advertising may be too influenced

UNIVERSAL CITY, Calif. — Special interest groups wield too much power in the television advertising business, said the executive producer of NBC's "Law & Order" series.

Dick Wolf, who has been investing in the mid-1970s for an entertainment career, said advertisers who cancel commercials under pressure from special-interest groups reflect "the tip of the tail wagging the entire dog at about 90 mph."

Wolf said Saturday that "Law & Order" will continue to tackle controversial issues in its fall season, despite advertiser defections last year over episodes about abortion, child abuse and the Irish Republican Army.

Wolf wouldn't divulge many plot specifics but said his series' off-beat format will remain untouched.

Two women characters, who have not been cast, and actor Paul Sorbino will join the all-male cast this fall.

Jet lands after windshield shatters

BOSTON — The co-pilot of a Pan Am shuttle took the controls and landed the jet after its cockpit windshield shattered, obstructing the pilot's vision, authorities said.

The plane, a Boeing 727 that took off from LaGuardia Airport in New York City, touched down at Logan International Airport on Sunday afternoon without injury to the 33 passengers or seven crew members, authorities said.

The cause of the accident was under investigation.

The plane's altitude at the time was not immediately known.

Lake Mary, County to air 'Gateway' financing

By NICK SPINAKOFF
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Details on the specific funding of the $783,208 Lake Mary Beautification project are expected to be finalized Tuesday.

The money is for landscaping and design of what is known as the Boulevard Gateway Corridor.

The Seminole County Commission and Lake Mary City Commission will meet in a special joint session Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. in the County Services building to go over the specific details of the interlocal agreement executed on Feb. 14 of this year.

In a memorandum written Thursday to the County Commissioners, County Manager Ron Rabun said, "The County has let the contract for multi-laning of Lake Mary Boulevard from Martham Woods Road to CR-15 (Country Club Road). The contractor is proceeding expeditiously and is expected to complete the project on, or ahead of schedule."

Rabun continued, "It is essential that the City and County quickly reach agreement regarding implementation of the Gateway Concept in order to prevent impediment to the contractor."

According to the February agreement, and based on the estimated costs of implementing the model Gateway Concept, Seminole County has agreed to pay $230,807 of the total cost, while Lake Mary will pay $552,701.

Among the items for which the County has indicated agreement to assume financial obligations are the following: roadway engineering design, initial purchase and installation of all landscaping within the right-of-way, one-half the cost of mainstem traffic signals, and the installation of pavement markings including colored asphalt.

Lake Mary has assumed responsibility for all costs associated with an irrigation system, landscape maintenance, half of the costs of mainstem traffic signals, reimbursement to the County of half of the cost for special pavement markings, and all legal fees.

Included in the project, is Lake Mary's agreement to assume full maintenance and operational responsibility of Country Club Road from CR-427 to Lake Mary Boulevard. Within five years, the maintenance agreement is to extend further northward on the road, to Rantoul Lane.

During a budget work session Thursday night, the Lake Mary

City Commissioners elected to hold off on finalizing a major capital bond issue. The $5 million bond is to include funds for financing the city's portion of the beautification project. The commission chose to wait until after the results of the joint city-county meeting were known before continuing in the preparation of the bond resolution.

If time permits, the commissioners are hoping to discuss several other issues including drainage on Country Club Road, drainage problems on the Longwood/Lake Mary Road, and municipal signage.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 3:30, in room 300 of the County Services Building. The exact start of the joint meeting is based on the expected conclusion time of an earlier County Commission meeting also set for Tuesday afternoon.

Oppose

"There is no question in my mind that was what was on their minds when they put it through," said Harris. "Somewhere down the line, we need to get the citizens of this county aware of what is happening to them."

But in 1988, prior to the charter vote, two current commissioners said they had no intention of imposing the tax when they supported the charter.

"I have no plans to even think about such a tax, said commissioner Bob Sturm in 1988.

"I certainly have no ulterior motive in presenting the charter to the voters to get to that end," said commissioner Fred Streetman then.

Streetman couldn't be reached Friday but Sturm said he meant what he said in 1988.

"The circumstances have changed since then," Sturm said. "Since then, we have had the costs of the capitol improvement (for growth management) element and the possible effects on concurrency management."

On Oct. 28, 1975, county commissioners imposed a 3 1/2 percent franchise tax on private water and sewer companies operating in the county, 17 of them at the time. The tax was passed on to customer's monthly bills, collected by the companies and paid to the county.

But Harris said the county imposed the tax despite turning all utility licensing and control over to the Florida Public Service Commission on Sept. 23 — a month earlier.

No one challenged the county's imposition of the tax until 1977, when Harris learned of the possible wrongful action by the county. He said he was in the process of challenging Sanford's right to collect a tax on unincorporated "electricity" bills to help pay for the Sanford Marina. As a result of Harris' challenge to the city, city residents now pay the full amount.

Harris filed a complaint with the PSC in 1977, questioning the county's right to collect the water and sewer tax when it had relinquished control of utilities. Following Harris' complaint, the PSC sued Seminole County in January 1978, saying the county didn't have the right to impose the tax, subsequently renamed a "fee."

In May 1978, former Seminole Circuit Judge Kenneth M. Leffer ruled the county acted illegally in imposing the tax. The county appealed and the appeals court sent the case back to the PSC. The county dropped the fee in 1981.

Harris said during the challenge to the tax and fee, only three of the 17 water and sewer companies collected the assessment. After the county dropped it in 1981, two companies refunded collected fees to customers. Not until 1985 did Sanlando Utilities return fees it had held for four years to customers — without interest.

Center

complete the center will be needed to buy plant materials.

Gregg has been working with Torbett's Nursery in Geneva on acquiring the plants.

Celeste White, Seminole County Urban Horticulturalist and other members of the Seminole County Extension Service staff are working with Gregg and Urban Forester Mike Martin on a project of creating signs to place along the wooden path near each group of plants.

"We've worked with Dr. Linda Jones of the University of Florida on developing a curriculum for environmental studies," he said. "She has developed a curriculum for kindergarten through 12th grade."

According to Gregg, the plan allows for kindergarten students to learn to recognize a squirrel that lives in one of the trees, for example and for the older students to study not only the anatomy of that animal, but also the details of the environment in which it lives.

"The center will have something for everyone," Gregg promised.

He hopes that involving the students in the planting of the trees and the upkeep of the facility will instill a sense of pride in the project in them.

"We hope it will cut down on vanalism from the community," he said.

Gregg is in the process of applying for additional grant money from other sources.

He has received letters of support from the Seminole County School Board, senators Richard Langley and 'Bud' Gardener, as well as the Sanford Chamber of Commerce.

Though the center is primarily designed to serve Hamilton Elementary students, the community will be given access to it at some times.

"This is really a community project," Gregg said. "It has really bloomed."

been disputed by commissioner Larry Furlong, who says unincorporated taxes will double, and others.

Sanford resident H.D. Hood, in a letter this week, wrote the utility tax will cost unincorporated residents nearly $200 more a year, despite the $13 "savings" in lowered property taxes for the owner of a $60,000 home. Commissioners have recommended lowering the unincorporated fire and road maintenance tax from $3.13 to $2.82 per $1,000 in taxable value.

The countywide tax, the one paid by city and unincorporated residents alike, will increase slightly from $5.53 to $5.75. Most of the countywide increase is to pay for the $20 million bond voters approved last year to buy environmentally sensitive lands.

Boyd goes 'on the road again'

By LASY BOWEN
Herald People Editor

LAKE MARY — Harriett Boyd wasn't worried when Kay Thomson decided not to return to Lake Mary immediately following the U.S. National Senior Sports Classic III, the senior olympics, in which both women competed in New York earlier this month.

Boyd hitched a ride home with a truck driver.

Two of the most physically active seniors in Lake Mary in the 65-69 age group, Boyd captured a silver medal in basketball, a bronze in shotput, and ribbons in discus and javelin throwing while Thomson said she qualified for the various racewalking events and dashes, but didn't win any medals.

"I don't even deserve to touch one!" she said. "I just didn't practice enough after I qualified here (in Sanford's Golden Age Games). Those people really meant business in Syracuse," she said of the estimated 5,200 participants from all over the country.

Boyd was proud that the Florida basketball team, whose members included Dr. Benni Bendler, formerly of Lake Mary, DVM Marcia Fleming, DeLand, Joan Dash, DeLand, Allee Rogers, Haines City and Ann Loya, Lake Placid, placed second.

"The team from Baton Rouge that whooped us was pretty professional. They had a big traveling motor home and their own coach. Their T-shirts matched. Our team had never played a game together in their lives. We did pretty good," Boyd said.

Thomson praised Boyd for her tenacious practice sessions and for the awards she won.

"Isn't it great?" she questioned her friend.

"Not unless I got a medal it ain't," Boyd, being hard on herself for placing fifth and seventh in two events, said.

When the games ended, Thomson helped Boyd arrange a ride with Eva Oldham, who would be traveling as far as Pensacola. Boyd, a retired Seaboard Coastline employee who can travel on an employee pass, had not been able to coordinate train transportation back to Florida with her schedule. At a Harrisburg, Penn. truckstop, Boyd decided, she didn't want to go to Pensacola.

"So I asked the lady at the counter if any of the truckers were going to Florida. She said because it was 4th of July she doubted it but she made an announcement on the P.A. system and sure enough some trucker headin' for Jacksonville answered," Boyd said. Boyd said she wasn't nervous about her truck trip, which crossed several state lines, with a perfect stranger.

"It took us half a minute to sit each other up. I wasn't nervous because he was such a young fella. He thought he was safe because I'm such an old lady," Boyd explained.

She said the trucker, Walt Wiseman, and the "old lady" became fast friends and plan to stay in touch.

"We talked the whole way. We was readin' mushy cards he got to send to his wife, cause she was leavin' him. Those cards brought a tear to my eye. But let me tell ya, that ride was bumpy. If I had been made out of cement, I'd be bitter by the time I got to Jacksonville. It shook the daylight out of me," Boyd recounted.

Wiseman dropped her at the Jacksonville Amtrak station where she hopped a train for Sanford, arriving home five hours before the original train on which she could not get a seat.

Thomson said she wasn't really worried about Boyd.

"If we hadn't found her the ride with Eva, she would have continued to travel with us. I wasn't worried about her riding with the truck driver. The young man was safe! Hattie's a great gal," Thomson said.

Thomson and Boyd are both planning to compete again in the olympics, which occurs every two years. Thomson admitted that her recent bout with cartilage cell cancer had kept her from practicing.

"I just didn't feel like it, but I'll be back in two years. I have to practice that long against that kind of competition," Thomson said.

"Well that'll give me time to find out more about that group from Baton Rouge," Boyd said, planning her basketball strategy for 1993. "Maybe we can even get some matching T-shirts."

Summer recreation program may expand

By NICK PFEIPAUF
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Should summer recreation be a full day program in Lake Mary next year? The question will be asked of area parents during this week.

Lake Mary Parks and Recreation Director John Holland said, "We had a number of requests before we started this year's program, to run it for a full day." He added, "We couldn't do it at that time, but we want to see how popular it may be for this coming year."

Holland said a survey will be sent home to the parents of students presently involved in the city's summer recreation program. He requested other parents who may be interested to contact him by phone or in writing, preferably during the remainder of this week.

In the request for funds in the 1991-92 fiscal year, Holland has asked for $4,557 with which to expand the summer recreation program to full time. The budgeted amount includes hiring of three special employees, only for the eight week long sessions. The final budget has not yet been adopted.

For the next fiscal year, the budget message suggests, "The Summer Recreation Program shall be expanded to full days. This year's program can utilize Liberty Park and the Community Center."

Holland is very pleased with this year's summer recreation program. "At the peak, we had 58 children enrolled," he said. "Right now, the figure is lower, with some returning to school because of the new summer sessions, and others gone off on vacation."

He suggested the proposed full-time program for next year, if approval is granted for the funding, may be well received. "With the half day program," he said, "Some children couldn't take part in it, because it would

Happy Birthday

Lake Mary Seniors take a break from business to wish originator many happy returns

Lake Mary Seniors called time out at a meeting about the upcoming Japanese students exchange program to honor Paulce Stevens on her birthday July 23.

"We never mention the year, it's the day and month we celebrate," fellow senior Alta Dombres said. "We all feel so young, I know I'm going to be terribly surprised when I realize how old I really am." Alta confided.

"Her feet somehow got tangled in the chair. But that doesn't stop Paulce. She's made the best of it and had her cast decorated. Everyone at the senior center is helpful. We see she gets food," Alta jokingly explained.

Alta said the seniors are very excited about the upcoming exchange program with Japanese students between 15 and 20 years of age. They are anxious to learn about Japanese culture and expose the students to American culture. Three weeks of activities are planned, according to Leslie Compagne, representative of Pacific American Institute in San Francisco. Leslie informed the seniors of their role regarding the students at the meeting last week. After a welcome party Aug. 3, the students will spend the three weeks traveling to Altamonte Mall, St. Augustine, Disney World, the beach, Wekiva Springs, Church Street Station and Sanlando Park. Other activities are scheduled for the senior center and with host families.

Lake Mary Seniors call themselves "supporting grandmothers" to the students, Alta said.

"We like to think we reach out to all children, not just our own," she said.

Contradictions arise, plague Baptist preacher under fire

By STEPHEN L. ARTERS
Associated Press Writer

RICHARDSON, Texas — A Baptist preacher whose rags-to-riches rise was contradicted in a newspaper article used his sermon Sunday to attack the story, calling it "the most devious and sinister" he had ever read.

Darrell Gilyard, 29, who gained national prominence with his story of growing up homeless under a bridge, actually was reared in a comfortable Florida home. The Dallas Morning News reported in a copyright story Sunday.

He became one of the nation's most sought after black Baptist evangelists after frequent appearances on Rev. Jerry Falwell's nationally televised "Old-Time Gospel Hour."

But, recent charges of sexual misconduct with female members of his congregation began a fall from grace highlighted in the newspaper article.

Gilyard, whose voice cracked toward the end of his 50-minute sermon, questioned the article's accuracy.

"I read this story and I was crushed; crushed because they have taken half-truths, half-facts and innuendos and put them together in such a way that I have to stand before you this morning and ask, 'Who is trying to destroy me and why?'"

"Is it the people for whose ministries I have raised millions of dollars? Is it the pastors who envy or resent the fact that hundreds were saved every time God has used me to minister in their churches? Is it the legalistic Baptists who fear that the great multi-racial experiment is working? 'Who is trying to destroy me?'"

The News questioned Gilyard's repeated claims that he was forced to sleep under a bridge from the age of 13 on.

For more information call 330-5697.

SOUTHERN LEAGUE

Merchant stars in loss

ORLANDO — Pat Bangston struck out nine batters, leading Orlando to a 4-2 victory over Jacksonville in Southern League play Sunday.

Oviedo High School graduate Mark Merchant scored on a double by Ken Pennington to give the Jacksonville Suns the first run of the game in the top of the second.

Orlando scored three times in the bottom of the third, including runs by Shawn Gilbert and Jay Kvasnicka on a single by Cheo Garcia.

Torrential rains forced an end to the game with two outs at the top of the eighth inning.

AUTO RACING

Earnhardt wins

TALLADEGA, Ala. — Dale Earnhardt is known as the Intimidator — and nowhere is that nickname more appropriate than Talladega Superspeedway.

Earnhardt won for the third time in his last four races at the Alabama track, holding off Bill Elliott by less than a car length to win the DieHard 500 on Sunday.

Several Ford drivers lined up and took a shot at Earnhardt's Chevrolet after it moved to the front with 27 laps to go in the 188-lap event. Davey Allison pulled alongside on lap 185, but Earnhardt shot back ahead on the backstretch.

Elliott then took over second and tailed Earnhardt until the final turn on the 2.66-mile tri-oval. Elliott made his move to the inside, but no one passes the Intimidator at that stage of a race.

Elliott had to be concerned with both catching Earnhardt and holding off Mark Martin and Ricky Rudd, who were right on his back bumper in a fitting conclusion to a race that had more than 100,000 fans on their feet all day.

Martin finished third in a Ford and Rudd took fourth in a Chevrolet. Sterling Marlin, whose Ford started from the pole, finished fifth and Allison dropped back to ninth. Fifteen cars were still on the lead lap at the end of the highly competitive race, in which 12 drivers exchanged the top spot 32 times.

Compiled from wire and staff reports.

Top-seeded Mudcats bounced after being blanked twice

By ROBBIE STOKK
Herald Correspondent

LONGWOOD — It's impossible to win baseball games without scoring runs.

The top-seeded Lake Mary Mudcats fell victim to that basic baseball premise Sunday, being eliminated from the National American Baseball Federation district tournament after suffering shutout losses to the Bullets (2-0) and Altamonte Springs Dodgers (5-0).

In 14 innings, the Mudcats — Lake Mary High School's summer team — managed just three hits and advanced just one runner as far as third base.

"We haven't hit the ball well all summer," said Mudcat coach Allen Tuttle. "We played against three good pitchers (today)."

Indeed, the Bullets' Jason Goodpastor and the Dodgers' Frank Harmer and Brett Black all threw

Bullets	000	000	2	—	2	4	0
Lake Mary Mudcats	000	000	0	—	0	1	0
Goodpastor and Porter, Marotta and Bullock, WP — Goodpastor, LP — Marotta, 2B — None, 3B — None, HR — None.

Altamonte Springs Dodgers	210	000	5	—	0	13	1
Lake Mary Mudcats	000	000	0	—	0	2	1
Harmer, Black (4) and Soranzo, Hudick and Ebbert, WP — Harmer, LP — Hudick, 2B — Dodgers, Harmer, 1B, 3B — Dodgers, Andino, HR — None.

well Sunday, giving the Mudcats fits at the plate.

The Bullets (Lyman High School's summer team) and the Dodgers (Lake Brantley) square off for the title tonight at 6 p.m. and, if necessary, 8 p.m. The Bullets need just one win for the title while the Dodgers, who lost to the Bullets earlier in the tournament, must win twice.

In Sunday's opening contest, David Marotta of the Mudcats and Goodpastor both carried no-hitters into the late innings. Marotta eventually gave up three singles in the fifth and two runs in the seventh to suffer the hard-luck loss. He whiffed five and issued two walks.

Goodpastor, meanwhile, came within two outs of no-hitter before Chris Barfield singled to left field with one out in the seventh. Goodpastor, who will be a senior at Lyman this year, faced just 22 batters (one over the minimum), striking out four and walking just one.

Donnie Bazler scored the winning run for the Bullets, crossing the plate on a two-out, pinch-hit single by Jeff Bouley, who just recovered from a finger injury. Shane Odom then drove in Bouley with another single.

"We're playing well," commented Bullet coach Bob McCullough. "Defensively, we played as well as we're capable of playing. I'm pleased."

In Sunday's second game, Harmer and Black combined for a two-hitter for the Dodgers. See NABF, Page 2B

DOUBLE TAKES

The family that jumps together . . . for example, 15-year-old Christina (left) and 13-year-old Angle (right) Olson both competed in several events. This year's series will wrap up tonight at Lake Mary High School's Don T. Reynolds Stadium.

Goal within reach for Goodpastor

By ROBBIE STOKK
Herald Correspondent

LONGWOOD — When he was a sophomore, Lyman High School's Jason Goodpastor was regarded as a project, someone who with hard work, teaching and a stroke of luck, might turn into a good pitcher.

Now, as he prepares to enter his senior year, Goodpastor is well on his way to achieving that goal.

On Sunday afternoon, Goodpastor upped his summer record to 9-3 after flirting with a no-hitter in a 2-0 win over the Lake Mary Mudcats that vaulted the Bullets (Lyman High School's summer squad) into the National American Baseball Federation finale tonight against the Altamonte Springs Dodgers (Lake Brantley).

Goodpastor limited the Mudcats to just one hit, a one-out single in the seventh, and faced a mere 22 batters (one over the seven-inning minimum).

He was quick to share the credit with his teammates.

"We played pretty good defense," said Goodpastor. "We made some good plays."

Although he struck out only four hitters, Goodpastor threw early strikes on hitters, making them more defensive and forcing plenty of ground balls.

"He's not a strikeout pitcher," stated Bullet head coach Bob McCullough. "He's in control of the strike zone and if you don't swing the bat, it's going to be strike three."

Goodpastor has four saves to go along with his nine wins this summer. In fact, he threw in both of the Bullets' other tournament victories, hurling three innings against Bishop Moore and the Dodgers.

Under the tutelage of former Atlanta Brave relief pitcher Dave Campbell (now McCullough's assistant at Lyman), Goodpastor has been determined to make himself better, trying to develop a change-up to go along with his slider, curveball and fastball.

But his biggest improvement has been his spotting of pitches.

"Last year, I sometimes got the ball up (in the strike zone) and this year I'm keeping it down," Goodpastor said.

Should the Bullets advance to the NABF World Series (scheduled to See Goal, Page 2B)

Oviedo Jrs. open state tourney with win

From Staff Reports

PORT ST. LUCIE — Despite being out-hit 4-2, the Oviedo Little League Junior All-Stars rallied to defeat Fort Myers 3-2 in the opening round of the Junior (13-year-olds) League state tournament being played at Sportsman Park.

Trailing 2-0 in the bottom of the fifth, Oviedo put together a three-run rally to pull out the victory.

In Sunday's other first-round game, Homestead romped past Pine Castle 11-4.

Oviedo and Homestead are scheduled to play at 8 p.m. this evening in a winners' bracket contest while Pine Castle and Fort Myers are to play in an elimination game at 6:30 p.m.

On Sunday, Fort Myers built its 2-0 lead with single runs in the fourth and fifth innings. In the fourth

Fort Myers	000	110	0	—	2	4	2
Oviedo	000	030	0	—	3	2	2
Travis, Cain (5) and Sousa, King and Jackson, WP — King, LP — Cain, Save — None, 2B — Fort Myers, Travis, 3B — None, HR — None, Records — Fort Myers 8-1, Oviedo 10-1.

inning, Fort Myers starting pitcher David Travis doubled, stole third and scored on an Anthony King wild pitch. Two Oviedo errors led to Fort Myers' run in the fifth.

Kevin Jackson started Oviedo's rally by leading off the bottom of the fifth with a walk. After he stole second base, Ryan Livingston walked. When Jackson and Livingston attempted a double steal, the Fort Myers catcher overthrew third base, allowing Jackson to score and Livingston to advance to third.

Will young stars become great high school players?

If this summer is any indication, we may be at the dawn of one of the most competitive periods in Seminole County high school baseball in well over a generation.

Take a look into the horseshoe ball . . .
● Sanford's Babe Ruth All-Stars, a team made up almost entirely of 14 and 15-year-olds, finished second in the Class A state tournament earlier this month in Sarasota. On that team were Seminole High School rising sophomores Todd Braden, Dean Daniels and Quentin Hunt.

● Last week, the Seminole Pony Baseball League Colt All-Stars advanced to the Southern Zone championship. This is basically the same team that went to St. Louis earlier in the summer and won the Hinky Minny Invitational.

Rising Seminole juniors on that Colt team were David Eckstein, Scott Ferguson, Matt Freeman,

SPORTS

TONY DeSORMIER

Jeremy Chonat, Rob Morgan and Corey Gochee. Representing Lake Mary High School are underclassmen Matt Diemer, Chad Kessler, Brian Milner, Mike Warner, John Lugering and Jay Black. Rob Bologna will be a senior at Lake Howell.

● They had to do it the hard way, but Oviedo Little League's Senior League (14 and 15) All-Stars swept Jacksonville-Arlington on Friday to claim a berth in the state tournament beginning today.

starting pitcher for Oviedo High School in the Lions' first game of the 4A-District 9 baseball tournament this past spring as a freshman, heads a group of Oviedo underclassmen that includes Ted Brown, Jay Busse, Jason Fore, Brian Hendrix, Andy Hynes, Brian King, Mark Metcalf, Mike Rugienius, Tim Slavik and Andrew Taylor.

Attending Lake Howell from that team are Rich DiTore, Mike Duncan and Kevin Stephenson.

● Other than Arlington, the team that gave the Oviedo Seniors the most difficult time were the Altamonte Springs Senior Americans, a team that draws equally from the Lake Mary, Lyman and Lake Brantley districts.

● That's not taking into account "established" high school players who are only going to be juniors this year — Lake Mary's Dan Anson and Scott Johnston; Lake Brantley's Frank Harmer, Brett Black, Gary Czachowski and Keith Sims; Lyman's Chad Siemer and Kevin Stuckey; Lake Howell's Paul Giambalvo, Jaron Proulx and Mike Hernandez.

By no means is this list inclusive. Whenever you try and compile a list like this, names will be left off inadvertently. But you get the idea.

Certainly, there are many variables that come into play, not the least of which is luck, good and bad. Some of Seminole County's best baseball players have never appeared in a high school game because of academic difficulties.

The margin of error gets greater as you try and look further into the future, but all you have to know about the group of players coming up behind this group is one name: Raines. The sons of Tim, Ned and Levi Raines, who played on Seminole High's great teams in the early and mid 1970s, should begin to hit the high school scene in four to five years.

Pacemaker controls her fainting spells

DEAR DR. GOTT: My mother is 85 years old and had numerous syncopal episodes for nearly a year. Last spring she had a pacemaker implanted because of low heart rate, but she does not have a heart condition. Tests, X-rays, a CT scan of the brain and a visit to her dentist and ear doctor were of no value. Why would someone, normally with an abundance of energy, have such a distressing problem?

DEAR READER: Syncopal means fainting. This has many causes but, in the elderly, it is often due to an irregular or slow pulse. When the heart rhythm changes — especially if it slows below 60 beats a minute — the blood supply to the brain diminishes.

experience cardiac syncope, her energy level should improve and she'll be able better to maintain her independence.

In older patients, this often leads to lightheadedness, weakness, temporary confusion and — in severe cases — actual fainting. Called "cardiac syncope," the affliction is almost always a consequence of arteriosclerotic heart disease, blockages in the coronary arteries that reduce oxygen supply to the heart's electrical system. Cardiac syncope may be the only manifestation of underlying heart disease: the usual signs of chest pain and shortness of breath may be absent.

The treatment for cardiac syncope is an implanted, demand pacemaker: a battery-driven, mini-generator that is surgically placed under the skin of the chest and wired to the heart. When the natural pulse falls below a pre-set figure — say, 60 beats per minute — the artificial pacemaker is programmed to maintain a more suitable heart rate — for example, at 72. Thus, the battery-operated pacemaker sits idle unless it is called upon, by a slow pulse, to perform.

Your mother appears to have received excellent medical care. Now that she will no longer

By Phillip Alder

From 1965 to 1970 the top-ranked TV show was "Get Smart," a sitcom spy spoof. An organization called Control fought for order and niceness against the forces of evil from Kaos.

Government cutbacks closed Control early in 1970, leaving Kaos unchallenged. The two organizations agreed to carry on their struggle for supremacy by playing bridge. For the first rubber, Control was represented by the Chief and Maxwell Smart, Agent 88. Siegfried and Shtarker played for Kaos.

Today's hand was the first one played. Siegfried, West, opened one club, but the Chief and Max cruised into three no-trump. Siegfried led the club seven. The Chief tabled his cards. "Good luck, Max."

"Thank you, Chief. Now let me see. I have to win nine tricks.

Yes, well, hrm. Low please, Chief."

Max won the first trick with the club nine, played a diamond to dummy's king and led a heart back to the king and ace. Siegfried returned a club.

Max won with the club queen, cashed the diamond ace and, when the queen didn't drop, played another heart. Siegfried won with the queen and led a third club, holding Max to seven tricks.

"Missed it by that much, Chief. You bid too much."

"No, Max," replied the Chief with a sigh. "If only you'd won the first trick with the club ace and overtaken the diamond king with your ace at trick two, you could have driven out Siegfried's diamond queen. You would have won two spades, five diamonds and two clubs."

"Sorry about that, Chief."

YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 30, 1991

A bit more drama than usual might come into your life in the year ahead. This could include exciting, romantic episodes, impressive friendships and a dynamite social calendar.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your abilities to investigate, probe and detect are likely to be sharper than usual today. If there is a matter you've been wanting to get to the bottom of, this is the time to do so. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail #2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, do this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Situations where you can bounce ideas off those whose intelligence you respect could be especially rewarding today. Exchanging concepts will prove enlightening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll be proud of your results today — if you focus on creative and imaginative projects. The dull or ordinary could turn you off.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your concern for the well-being of others will be very apparent to those with whom you'll be involved today. This is the type of behavior that makes you so popular with friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Finishing what you start will give you the greatest gratification today, especially if it is an endeavor you've been meaning to get around to but always found reasons to dodge.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try to do what Kipling suggested today: "Dream, but not make dreams your master; think, but not make thoughts your aim." Use your imagination for practical, productive purposes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Financial conditions look interesting for you today. There is a possibility you may turn a profit from selling something you don't have in inventory, but to which you have access.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A leadership role becomes you today, but timidity doesn't. Don't be afraid to assert yourself if or when conditions require you to do so.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Usually, you're a rather outgoing and gregarious individual, but today you may feel a trifle withdrawn. Nothing is wrong — you just need a bit of solitude to recharge.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be certain today's hopes and expectations aren't predicated on a selfish premise. Things will work out better for you if you yield to inclinations to share.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you're unobtrusive rather than obvious, you'll be more successful in achieving objectives today. Do what needs doing without broadcasting your intentions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Roll with the punches today and treat whatever occurs philosophically. If you don't take yourself or life too seriously, this could turn out to be a productive day. (C)1991, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

...Y-OU'D HAVE USED THAT THING ON ME?!

JUST A DEMONSTRATION, FRIEND...

ER...OKAY! I CAN'T TELL YOU WHERE THE KID WENT WITH THE "TTT"... JUST WHICH DIRECTION SHE TOOK!

THAT'LL HAVE TO DO.

...SHRUGGIN' OFF TH' ASP 'CAUSE HE'S 'JUST' ONE BUY AFTER US MEANS Y' HAVEN'T HEARD WHAT I SAID ABOUT HIM, CHOPPER?

I HEARD YOU JUST FINE, KID!
