Game results

SANFORD — There has been some difficulties in obtaining and compiling statistics regarding some of the Golden Age Games held last week in Sanford. As a result, the Sanford Herald has not had a list of winners in some of the games, especially those held during the last few days of the competition. They include swimming, bowling, and other competitive events.

Games officials hope to make the statistics available in time to include them in the Tuesday, Nov. 21 edition of the Herald.

Georgia fatality

SANFORD — Sanford resident Donna Medders, 28, was killed on Nov. 10, as the result of a three car collision on U.S. Highway 82 approximately three miles from Sylvester, Georgia. According to the Georgia State Patrol, Medders vehicle was struck by a vehicle on the eastbound lane of the highway. The collision caused the vehicle to travel into the westbound lane where it was struck the second time by another vehicle. Both of the other drivers required hospitalization for their injuries.

Medders, who lived on Wild Elm Court in Sanford, was a lifelong resident.

County presidential straw poll tags Clinton, Dole

From staff reports

CASSELBERRY — Seminole County voters spoke out last night in a presidential straw poll taken by local area chambers of commerce. If the poll typified the average voter, the county would go for President Bill Clinton and Senator Robert Dole in next year's election primaries.

The voting in the Seminole County Hob Nob was done by both Democrats and Republicans. It was a prelude to Presidency III, on a statewide basis, underway beginning today in Orlando.

The two-hour forum is being sponsored by CNN's "Larry King Live." It is scheduled to be held tonight, telecast from Orlando before 3,400 delegates to a Republican presidential straw poll scheduled for tomorrow.

To determine the leanings of voters in Seminole County however, a pre-show poll was taken last night. Over 500 people turned out for the straw vote at the Orlando Shrine Club, making their opinions known on DAYTONA BEACH — If compromise means making sure both sides are left unsatisfied, then a proposal to limit driving in Daytona Beach to save endangered sea turtles succeeds.

Officials stopped short of banning driving entirely on the county's 28 miles of beach. Vehicles would be prohibited on seven miles of beach, including areas in north Ormond Beach and south New Smyrna Beach during turtle nesting season.

Driving also would be restricted along another 11 miles by a 30-foot conservation zone measured from the eastward dunes. Six miles of beach would be designated "urban areas" and any turtle nests there would be moved.

"It's a balancing act," County Manager Larry Arrington said. "I believe it aspires to a lot of common, high ground."

The plan, spurred by a lawsuit charging the county with violating the Endangered Species Act, will be part of an application to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. The County Council still must give its approval to the plan.

The proposal has angered just about everyone. "I think driving on the beach is the lifeblood of Daytona Beach," said P.T. "Bud" Fleuchaus, a former Volusia County council member. "I think it would be wrong to suddenly say let's take all the cars off the beach immediately."

Shirley Reynolds, one of the women who filed the suit, said she won't compromise on her position that all cars should be removed from the beach. She said there is no way to account for nests whose locations are unknown or for baby sea turtles that wash back ashore after hatching.

Reynolds also was upset there was no plan to change the lighting ordinance. Lights shining on the beach can lure hatchlings to their deaths and were blamed for the demise of 78 baby turtles in Ormond Beach this summer.

"We're still seeing habitat preservation for cars," Reynolds said. "That's their top priority." □ See Beach, Page 5A

Lyons pushes fight against illegal drugs

By MICK PFEPAUF

SANFORD — City Commissioner Kerry Lyons wants the city to look into more stringent ways to combat illegal drug sales. Several proposals have been made which are being studied.

During this week's commission work session, Lyons suggested that property owners where continuous drug activities are reported, might be found in violation of the public nuisance laws. He suggested the city may be able to fine property or business owners who appear to allow drug activities to be conducted at or in front of their establishments.

In preparation for the discussion, City Attorney Bill Colbert presented an opinion on the subject developed by a co-attorney Judd Hedrick.

Hedrick opined that a statute exists which allowed a municipality, "to enact an ordinance creating an administrative board to hear complaints of public nuisances dealing with drugs, prostitution and youth and street gang activities."

Hedrick said a public nuisance is construed to be any place or □ See Drugs, Page 5A

Reward posted for missing girl

INTERCESSION CITY, Fla. — Law enforcement agencies searching for a possible kidnapper in the disappearance of a 4-year-old girl posted a $20,000 reward for information.

Also Thursday, police followed up a tip that a child resembling Shelby Marie Cox was seen in an Ormond Beach store. Authorities are enhancing a store videotape and would like to show a freeze frame to Heather Cox, the girl's mother.

"Right now, the quality of the tape is not good enough to make a determination," a law enforcement source told The Orlando Sentinel.

Shelby disappeared while chasing a puppy on the street outside her home just before dark on Monday. Police believe she was abducted and are looking for a man driving a dark-color Jeep, described as a military-style vehicle with a soft top.

Cops charged with stealing

HOMESTEAD, Fla. — Three police officers were charged with stealing three truckloads of expensive building supplies intended for homes built by Habitat for Humanity after Hurricane Andrew.

Arrested Thursday were James McLaughlin, 44, and Robert Courtright, 43, both lieutenants with the Homestead force and Thomas Helms, 42, a sergeant with the Metro-Dade police.

According to an arrest warrant, McLaughlin learned on Sept. 25, 1992, that three military trucks loaded with building supplies were in Homestead.

"Lt. McLaughlin placed a be-on-the-lookout for the three trucks," wrote Metro Sgt. John Collins. "The trucks were stopped and McLaughlin, along with Lt. Courtright and Sgt. Helms, convinced the Navy truck drivers to take the supplies to a farm belonging to George Suarez."

Givens to refund money

TALLAHASSEE — Financial guru Charles J. Givens Jr., who has made millions charging people for his advice, has agreed to refund up to $175,000 to unhappy customers under a settlement.

Givens, the author of the best-seller "Wealth Without Risk," also agreed to modify his business practices under the agreement to end a two-year-old lawsuit that accused him of fraud and deceptive trade practices.

Givens already has refunded about $145,000 to 121 customers who complained to Florida Attorney General Bob Butterworth's office and will pay $75,000 for the state's investigative costs.

In all, Givens will pay almost $400,000 in refunds and costs stemming from the state's action, said Jody Collins, the assistant attorney general who prepared the settlement.

Butterworth filed suit in December 1993 against Givens, his son, Charles Givens III, and the Charles J. Givens Organization Inc. in Seminole County, accusing them of making it difficult or impossible for dissatisfied customers to obtain refunds.

Phone messages to Givens' office seeking comment Thursday were not returned.

Infant deaths down: Project credited

By BILL BERNSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles credits one of his pet projects, preventive health care for hundreds of thousands of pregnant women and babies, with reducing infant deaths to a record low in Florida.

Florida's infant mortality rate dropped to 8.1 infant deaths per 1,000 live births in 1994, down 15 percent from 1990.

Surrounded by about 30 3½- to 5-year-old children in a preschool classroom at Tallahassee's First Baptist Church, Chiles said Thursday that much of the credit goes to the Healthy Start prenatal and infant care program.

"Thanks to Healthy Start and other efforts that have lowered the infant mortality rate, 760 children are alive today," he said.

The state has spent about $100 million on the program over the last four years.

The Florida TaxWatch research group has called the cost "relatively small when one totals the cost taxpayers absorb for the millions spent for health breakdowns which could have been avoided: illiteracy, teen pregnancy, low birth weight infants, school dropouts, unemployment, delinquency and crime."

Chiles said he'll ask the 1996 Legislature to spend more on the program, though he didn't say how much.

"We'll be asking for some more. It is such a true success story and the numbers are showing it," he said. "It is very cost-effective."

Healthy Start money goes to 30 community-based coalitions that promote prenatal care and health-risk screening for pregnant women and infants, regardless of income.

Hillsborough County's coalition, for example, worked with the county public health unit and local children's board to form the Sulphur Springs Healthy Families project, which offers home visitation, counseling, family planning, nutrition counseling and parenting classes to more than 850 women.

Healthy Start also operates a Healthy Baby Hotline (800-451-BABY) that received 10,204 calls last year for advice on health and social services such as childbirth education, immunizations and Medicaid.

Profs to add class hours

By The Associated Press

TAMPA — The state's nine universities are making plans to expand undergraduate teaching and the best blueprint will get the biggest chunk of a $5 million legislative incentive plan.

The plan is considered the Legislature's first step toward demanding more accountability from the university system.

"The bottom line is we need to show some increase — a marked increase — toward reaching our goal: more teaching by ranked faculty. That is the heart of the Performance Incentive Plan," said University of South Florida Provost Thomas Tigue.

The Legislature wants to examine ways to increase graduation rates, reduce most degree requirements to 120 hours and move more students through the system in four years.

The university that comes up with the best plan draws the largest share of a $5 million pot the Legislature has earmarked for the project.

South Florida's goal — increasing average hours in the classroom from 391 to 411 per faculty member — is the largest percentage increase, 5.1 percent, of all the universities.

Suspect in five slayings fell through the cracks

By MICHAEL FLERMAN
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — When Glen Rogers stood before a Municipal Court judge in September, he could have gotten a jail sentence of 2½ years for beating a girlfriend and violating probation.

Instead, he got two days for the beating, was credited for the time he had already served and was immediately released. Apparently, nobody at the Van Nuys courthouse knew Rogers was on probation for a conviction in a courthouse just a few miles down the freeway.

Over the next two months, when he could have been in jail, Rogers is suspected of going on a cross-country killing spree, murdering four women in California, Mississippi, Florida and Louisiana.

He is wanted for questioning in a fifth slaying in Ohio in 1993. And police across the nation are scouring their files to see if Rogers could be a suspect in other murders.

Interviews and records show that before the murder rampage, Rogers was arrested dozens of times, convicted at least twice in California alone, and managed to spend little time behind bars.

Arrested Monday in Kentucky after a nationwide hunt, Rogers apparently benefited from overcrowded jails, jammed court dockets and police budget constraints.

"It's incredible," said Joan Burkart, daughter of the 71-year-old Ohio man Rogers is suspected of killing. "I just about believed that this man could get away with everything he did and they wouldn't do anything unless he killed somebody important — or a lot of people."

Rogers, 33, who had a long arrest record in his hometown of Hamilton, Ohio, on charges ranging from arson to aggravated assault, is due back in a Kentucky court Tuesday for an extradition hearing. Authorities in four states are trying to decide who will charge him first.

Rogers left Ohio for California in 1983. In August 1984, he turned up in a Los Angeles jail on arson charges.

Los Angeles police notified authorities in Hamilton, who wanted to talk to Rogers about the disappearance of Mark Peters, a former roommate whose decomposed body was found tied to a chair in a shack in Kentucky owned by Rogers' family.

Hamilton Detective James Nugent made arrangements to fly to Los Angeles to interview Rogers. But the trip was deemed a waste of money and canceled at the last minute.

Hamilton's police chief, Simon Fluckiger, figured Rogers wouldn't talk. After all, he said, Rogers had been arrested 26 times in Ohio — and had never given a statement.

"I've been in the business for a long time, and I've never seen an attorney allow his client to talk, unless you've got an airtight case or they're looking for a plea bargain," Fluckiger told the Hamilton Journal-News. "We didn't know at that time (the arson charges) were going to be dismissed."

But they were. And Rogers was loose again.

Peters' family was outraged.

"He didn't fall through the cracks," said Peters' son-in-law, John Burkart. "Police just didn't do their job."

In June, Rogers was back in a Los Angeles County jail, this time on charges he attacked two men with a knife, trapping one of them in an elevator as he held a blade to his throat.

After pleading no contest to assault with a deadly weapon, Rogers was given six months in jail and three years' probation by Hollywood Municipal Judge Michael Mink.

But the financially pinched Sheriff's Department, which runs the jails, let Rogers out after just 43 days because the overcrowded jail needed his bed for more dangerous criminals.

In August, Rogers allegedly attacked his girlfriend, Maria Gyore, in their apartment in suburban Van Nuys, in the San Fernando Valley. The attack was the latest of many, the girlfriend alleged, and Rogers was arrested on suspicion of spousal battery.

As part of an agreement, Rogers pleaded no contest before Municipal Court Commissioner Rebecca Omens, who could have revoked his probation from the June conviction.

If she had known about the probation.

Omens declined to comment on the Rogers case specifically. But she said that in her high-volume courtroom — where justice is dispensed in a minute or less — all she has to rely on is the defendant's file.

"The court relies very heavily on the supporting agencies to follow through and know what their respective responsibilities are," she said.

"The court is not an investigative agency."

Municipal Court is so jammed, it takes up to 20 minutes just to get into the building through the lone metal detector in the morning. In Omens' courtroom alone, as many as 400 cases are heard a day.

"This volume speaks for itself," said Omens, who handles misdemeanor pleas and traffic violations. "We need more courtrooms. We need more attorneys. We need more bench officers. We need more jails."

POLICE BRIEFS

Triple arrest

Sheriff's deputies made three arrests Wednesday, as the result of a suspicious person call from a resident in the 600 block of Mimosa Terrace. The caller told deputies of seeing a man carrying a bag, jump over a fence into a yard.

When deputies arrived, they located one man, and subsequently located two others believed to have been connected with the situation. According to the police report, the man told them he was attempting to "take a pot plant (marijuana) from a back yard," but apparently jumped over the wrong fence into the wrong yard.

Arrested were Stephen Michael Waits, 18, of 114 Satsuma Drive, Sanford, Adam Becket McDonough, 19, of 408 Lake Emma Road, Lake Mary, and Gabriel Thomas LaCross, 23, of 303 Satsuma Drive. Each was charged with unarmed burglary to a structure.

Nothing in the arrest reports indicated that deputies were able to locate any yards which contained the reported marijuana plant. Officers recovered the bag mentioned in the complaint call, but said it did not contain any plant or burglary items.

Domestic cases

Michael Lee Shoemake, 26, 210 Meadow Hills Drive, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police at his residence Wednesday following a reported dispute with his wife. He was charged with aggravated assault with a motor vehicle, domestic violence.

Kevin F. Dougherty, 28, 907 W. 20th Street, was located by Sanford police at his residence Wednesday following a reported altercation with a female. He was charged with assault domestic violence, and resisting an officer without violence.

Warrants

Inez Trene Paige, 31, 30 Lake Monroe Terrace, Sanford, was arrested by deputies in Seminole Gardens Wednesday. She was wanted for failing to appear for bail on open container and possession of drug paraphernalia charges.

Stewart Allen Mines, 48, 1900 Eighth Street, Sanford, was located by Sanford police at Eighth Street and Laurel Avenue Wednesday. He was wanted for violation of probation on convictions of burglary to a dwelling and burglary to a structure. He was also wanted for failing to pay a fine.

Lenora Nelson, 38, 2600 Georgia Avenue, turned herself in at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility Wednesday. She was wanted for failing to appear for bail.

David Floyd Holcomb, 34, of Longwood, was served several warrants at the jail Wednesday. He was found to be wanted for violation of probation on a conviction of dealing in stolen property, failing to appear on four charges of worthless checks, and failing to appear on a charge of obtaining property with a worthless check.

Stephen Kent Stewart, 34, 802 S. Sanford Avenue, was served a warrant at the jail Wednesday. He was wanted for violation of probation on a conviction of burglary to a structure.

Senate panel OKs victim restitution

By MARY GORDON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — By a near-unanimous vote, the Senate Judiciary Committee approved a proposal Thursday that could compel criminals to compensate their victims in federal cases.

The committee voted, 15-1, to send the legislation to the full Senate. The bill would let victims of violent crime, fraud and product-tampering recover from the criminal their financial losses resulting from the act.

Only Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., voted against the measure. He said there were very good intentions behind it, but he was concerned that mandatory compensation of victims would put a big new burden on federal courts.

"We're imposing a mandate on the federal judges. ... You should give flexibility to the judges," said Simon, who also opposes mandatory minimum sentences.

Simon, noting that about 85 percent of criminal defendants are poor, said most of them would be unable to compensate their victims.

Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., who voted for the measure, nonetheless expressed concern that mandatory compensation could become "an exercise in futility" that would turn the federal courts into "a collection agency."

"You could have a million open accounts involved in the court system," Heflin said.

The bill, authored by Judiciary Committee Chairman Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, and Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware, its senior Democrat, would allow judges to revoke the probation of offenders who are 60 days delinquent in paying restitution or in default.

The House adopted a similar provision in February as part of a sweeping package — part of the Republicans' "Contract With America" — that would give $10 billion in anti-crime funds to local governments while ending President Clinton's program to help local departments hire 100,000 new police. Comparable anti-crime legislation is pending in the Senate.

Nine states currently have laws requiring compensation for crime victims: Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Delaware, Iowa, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Texas and Virginia.

At a hearing on the Senate compensation measure last Wednesday, a federal judge representing the U.S. Judicial Conference, the policy-making body of the federal judiciary, testified that the bill would hurt the fight against crime by putting a huge new burden on courts of determining and collecting compensation from offenders.

Federal Judge Maryanne Trump Barry of Newark, N.J., also said that because so many defendants are poor, mandatory restitution would result in little, if any, increase in compensation to crime victims.

But Biden said before Thursday's vote, "I quite frankly don't care whether it causes a problem for the courts."

Even if victims get nothing from the offenders, Biden said, mandatory compensation is "part of the healing process for the victim" and shows that victims "are not a number. Somebody out there knows what happened to them."

Hatch said that revisions he and Biden recently made to the original bill were designed to accommodate concerns about burdening the courts. In complicated cases in which it isn't possible to identify all the victims of a criminal, as happens in many drug cases, judges would not have to order compensation.

Hatch said the proposal also gives judges flexibility to order nominal payments from poor defendants, "even if it amounts to no more than a dollar a month."

Restaurant workers had throats cut; Reward offered

By The Associated Press

NAPLES, Fla. — The workers slain during a robbery at a Cracker Barrel restaurant had their throats cut.

And the Lebanon, Tenn.-based restaurant chain offered a $25,000 reward Thursday for information leading to the arrest and indictment of the killer or killers.

The Collier County Sheriff's Department released results from two of the three autopsies Thursday. The third victim died the same way, WNOX reported today based on information from the medical examiner.

Slain were night maintenance man Jason Wiggins, 31, of Naples, assistant manager Dorothy Biddle, 38, of the Naples area and Vicky Smith, 27, of Copeland. Their bound bodies were discovered in a walk-in freezer.

The medical examiner listed the cause of death for Wiggins and Biddle as "sharp force injuries of the neck." In a statement to the Sheriff's Office who didn't want his name used said, "You could say they had their throats cut and you wouldn't be wrong."

Meanwhile, the statewide search for the murderer or murderers continued.

"We have a lot of leads, we have had scores of people who have information in the area," said sheriff spokesman Damian Houseman.

Neither the sheriff's department nor officials for Cracker Barrel — which operates 231 establishments in 36 states in the Southeast, Midwest and Southwest — said they knew Thursday how much money was stolen.

Investigators did say they believe a good portion of the money stolen was found outside the restaurant, apparently dropped during the getaway.

The restaurant is located near an exit of Interstate 75, the main highway known as Alligator Alley that links South Florida's east and west coasts.

Celebrating gift of love

A low, gentle laugh. Evening walks by the lake. The 50th anniversary cake with candles that wouldn't blow out. Those kinds of memories sustain and enrich our lives — even after a loved one has died. Hospice of Central Florida invites those who have lost an important person — spouse, family member, co-worker or dear friend — to attend our Candlelight Serenade.

This 60 minute reflection of song, culminating with the audience joining in a candlelight hymn, offers the 13,000 families served by Hospice of Central Florida and the entire Central Florida community a chance to remember and honor those who have died by embracing the gift they left behind — love.

Police morale

Whoa now. Before anyone gets upset over what is taking place, let's look at both sides of the situation.

Last Monday, three members of the Sanford City Commission reported receiving telephone calls from persons complaining about morale problems within the police department. This isn't the first time commissioners, not only in Sanford, but in our other cities as well as in the county, have reported receiving complaint calls.

We must however, question how many calls, from how many separate individuals may have started this. Did only one or two people call each of these commissioners or did different people call different officials? Were the complaints justified or could they possibly be personal vendettas for one reason or another?

The point is, we don't, at this time, really know the answers.

On one side, there could, indeed, be some officers who have problems, but won't identify themselves because of the fear of retribution.

On the other hand, there could be just a few who may be perturbed because they didn't get a promotion or different assignment.

Mayor Bettye Smith said the entire matter should not be brought up for consideration at this time because of possible conflicts with personnel rules or union regulations.

Commissioner Lon Howell suggested an outside individual be obtained, to sit down and listen to complaints on an individual basis, and give the commission a true picture of what may or may not be a problem.

As has been alluded to a number of times in Sanford Herald editorials, the old axiom says, "If it ain't broke, don't fix it. As we see this situation, we don't know if it is broken or not. If it is, it must be fixed. If it isn't however, let's refer to another axiom and not make a mountain out of a molehill.

We have a great many outstanding law enforcement officers in our city and Central Florida area. They should be commended for their work. No doubt there are some who have problems.

There must be some way these officers can bring problems into the open without fear of punishment, so conflict can be resolved and we can get back to fighting crime as a cohesive unit, working together.

LETTER

On health care

With tax cuts, welfare reform, and changes to Medicare and Medicaid dominating the news out of Washington, it is easy to lose sight of some of the smaller but important issues that are being considered by our nation's lawmakers. One that deserves attention is an effort to save consumers $2 billion by closing a loophole in the GATT international trade treaty. The loophole is keeping generic versions of drugs that treat common conditions like ulcers and high-blood pressure off the market.

Lowering the cost of prescription drugs is particularly important for seniors. More than one-third of the $64 billion spent on prescription drugs come from seniors. If the GATT loophole is closed, seniors alone will save $900 million, and taxpayers will save $150 million in Medicaid without reducing the quality of patient care.

Florida's Senator Bob Graham was one of the nine members of the Senate Finance Committee who recently voted to close the GATT loophole. The Generic Drug Equity Coalition includes consumer, senior, health care and industry groups that thank Senator Graham for his efforts to save consumers $2 billion. We think that the people of Florida should thank him, too.

Polls mean almost nothing now

With Colin Powell out of the race, with President Clinton beating potential Republican opponents in head-to-head surveys, with Democrats doing better than expected in the Nov. 7 elections, with surveys showing voters believe the GOP budget proposals go "too far" -- it is now being said the Democrats are on the way back.

Don't count on it. We shall see. There are many acts yet to come in the drama of the 1996 election year. Some involve the inexorable logic of a campaign. One episode still to come will determine whether a free society can ever deal with the ratchet rhetoric of inextinguishability.

The polls mean almost nothing now. When there is a Republican nominee, we will likely see instant hagiography. The public will learn that the nominee-to-be, whoever he is, was born in a log cabin, chopped down a cherry tree but told his father about it, split rails, was a war hero, was a peanut farmer, has a wonderful family, stood up for his mom against an alcoholic father and has always responded heroically in moments of crisis. How will such a candidate do in a match-up against Clinton? No one knows, but Powell, who had been pre-canonized, was beating him by 10 points.

Moreover, Clinton has not yet been hit with an organized political attack campaign, which will surely come. By the same token, the Democratic counterattack of the anointed Republican has not yet come, and that too will be tough. (He told his father the neighbor kid axed the tree; he took bimboes to the cabin.) Forget the head-to-head polls for a while.

The 1996 elections were scattered and almost impossible to interpret. Thus, the Republicans were unsuccessful in capturing the Virginia Senate, but they did pick up several seats to gain a 20-20 tie. It's hard to call that a loss, even though the GOP had hoped to gain control.

More interesting are the surveys about policy. A recent USA Today/CNN/Gallup poll reported that by 57 percent-36 percent voters think the GOP budget proposals go "too far." But the same poll showed that 82 percent want a balanced budget and 67 percent favor a tax cut -- Republican staples.

It is now being said the Democrats are on the way back. Don't count on it. We shall see.

So we shall see. Surely, the Republicans in recent weeks have not done a good job selling their budget. They have been attacked by Democrats for savaging grandmas, grandpas, welfare moms and poor children.

I have a problem with the ratchet attack. Liberals believe social welfare spending can go up, and up, and up, taking vigorous umbrage at any cut, either absolutely or even as a decrease in the rate of increase. If any diminishment is proposed, for whatever reason, liberals attack the diminishers as primal feral brutes. They will finance liberal, Democratic phone banks telling elderly voters that Republicans will take away their Social Security and Medicare to leave recipients at death's door, starving and bankrupt. They will say that such policies push millions of poor kids into poverty.

Whether the Republicans can handle the simplistic liberal rhetoric of tears and travail is of great importance. If they cannot, then we will return to the mindset of yesteryear when the growth of the social welfare state was seen to be "inexorable."

Country needs grown-up leader

The recent election results and now the shutdown of the federal government make it all the more regrettable that Colin Powell decided not to run for president, depriving the country of a moderate, a leader -- and a grown-up.

The election results and every available poll indicate that the country desperately wants centrist policy, not the right-wing radicalism of congressional Republicans or the reactionary liberalism of congressional Democrats.

Even though President Clinton is currently reprising his 1992 election role as a centrist "new Democrat" -- speaking recently, in fact, to the Democratic Leadership Council he formerly headed -- the NBC/Wall Street Journal poll last month showed that only 28 percent of Americans think he has the "right set of personal characteristics" to be president.

Even D.C. president Al From disparages Clinton's 1992 election strategy of "triangulation," asserting it constitutes "passive" positioning between the Republicans and the Democrats, not active leadership in finding a "third way" to govern the country.

And now, thanks to stubbornness on the part of both Clinton and congressional Republicans, the country is on the verge of a government shutdown and a default on U.S. debt payments that may raise interest rates and damage the economy.

Instead of negotiating their differences on the federal budget like adults, both sides are playing "chickens" like irresponsible teenagers. Each gang thought it could cause the other to swerve, and now it appears there will be a crash.

The White House refuses to negotiate now because it wants the public to see Republicans as inept, divided, and extreme. Indeed, Republicans have been unable to pass appropriations bills or budget reconciliation on time -- partly because the Republican Senate won't buy the radical agenda passed by the Republican House.

On the other hand, Clinton is so interested in seeing the Republicans fail that he refused even to talk about the budget (or much of anything else) to House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., during the 20-odd hours they were aboard Air Force One together on the way to and from the funeral of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

White House aides claim -- implausibly -- that it was "inappropriate" for Clinton to talk budget policy on a funeral mission, although they also claim that he simply had nothing more to say on the subject than he'd already said to congressional leaders at the White House on Nov. 2. Namely, that he wouldn't negotiate until Congress had finished passing its budget and appropriations bills and he'd cast his votes.

Surely, a grown-up president -- say, Colin Powell or Harry Truman -- would have used his time with opposition leaders at least to try to inspire them to act in the national interest on so grave a matter as the country's financial health. He might have failed, but he could have tried.

Once back in Washington, though, it's the Republicans who have been behaving like spoiled children, with Gingrich complaining that he'd been "snubbed" by Clinton aboard the plane and made to depart by a rear exit at Andrews Air Force Base instead of the front.

Most recently, Gingrich whipped his minions into an anti-Clinton lather and encouraged them to pressure Clinton into negotiations by loading up a stopgap continuing resolution and a temporary debt limit extension with provocative items from the GOP's ideological kit bag.

The Senate has stripped out some of those items and tempered others, but it remains to be seen whether the House will accede. At the rate things are going, Clinton will veto the CR and the debt ceiling Congress sends him. The government was expected to shut down on Tuesday, Nov. 14 and possibly default on its debt service payments later in the week.

Clinton probably will benefit politically if the Republicans are seen as zealots more determined to close down the Commerce Department and bar lobbying by federal grant recipients than to enable the government to pay its bills.

This fits nicely with the Democrats' strategy of exposing the Republicans as ideological radicals. Polls and the recent election results indicate that the public is inclined to this view. The NBC/Wall Street Journal poll showed that by 64 percent to 28 percent, voters are more concerned that the GOP will go too far in changing the country than that they won't change it enough.

Sad to say, Powell's decision leaves the country's sane, centrist majority without a leader or a party for the foreseeable future. Maybe what's in order is a telegram bits to Congress and the White House with the message: "Grow Up."

The election results and every available poll indicate that the country desperately wants centrist policy.

Rift between Clinton, House

WASHINGTON -- At the rate he's going, House Speaker Newt Gingrich should be a shoo-in as the next chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

During the last three weeks of fiscal brinkmanship, the leader of the Republican revolution has done more to unify Democrats than President Clinton has managed during the first three years of his administration. By trying to balance the budget on the backs of Medicare beneficiaries -- while cutting taxes on the rich -- Gingrich has given Democrats a mission, a message and a modicum of hope for 1996.

But interviews with the major players on both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue indicate a pessimism about the future relationship between congressional Democrats and the White House. Most sources believe that Gingrich has provided fractured Democrats a respite more than a reconciliation. Even as Democrats marched in lock-step over Medicare, congressional sources were talking about Clinton's drag on Democratic challengers next year.

Most sources believe that Gingrich has provided fractured Democrats a respite more than a reconciliation.

"The Democratic challengers will be given a green light to say whatever they have to say to get elected," one Democratic strategist involved in the 1996 congressional elections told us. Sources say the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee is bracing for another drubbing next year -- which is why party leaders will fund challengers even if they criticize the commander-in-chief.

"The last thing they are going to do is tie their (challenger's) hands and say you can't criticize one of the most unpopular figures in the country, the president, especially in the hinterlands," said this source.

Even White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta, who has been the point man against Gingrich's government shut-down gambit, told us during an interview last month that it may boil down to every Democrat-for-himself come next year.

"There are times when they're going to have to zig and we're going to have to zag as we go through these issues," Panetta told us. "The minority in Congress can afford to do things that a president can't afford to do. ... There are some who think the best thing to do is just throw a lot of grenades. That can't be what the president is about."

On advice from his pollsters, Clinton has been lurching back to the center, disavowing much of his own domestic agenda and distancing himself from congressional Democrats and Republicans. Although Clinton and congressional Democrats are pummeling Republicans for slashing domestic spending, Panetta acknowledged that some of the seeds of today's fiscal woes were sown by Democrats unwillingness to tackle tough spending choices.

"Had Democrats recognized that, even in light of their concerns about people and education ... that at the same time they had reflected some greater discipline about the deficit and tightening up on those programs making sure that they work, they would have been ahead of this and probably would not have seen the results of the polls (last November)," said Panetta, who spent 18 years in the House before joining the Clinton administration.

Panetta noted that a strong showing by Clinton next year would yield dividends for all Democrats, but he also doubted whether "Congress has coat-tails for the president" because members "still have to fight their races in their individual districts."

Poll

only presidential hopefuls but several issues.

In the Republican presidential results, Dole received the majority, with 36 percent. Second was Lamar Alexander taking 23 percent, Phil Gramm 16 percent, Pat Buchanan nine percent, Charles Collins three percent, Richard Lugar, two percent, with Arlen Specter, Alan Keyes and Robert Doman taking less than two percent each. Maurice Taylor and Arthur Fletcher received no votes.

For the Democrats, the choice was between Bill Clinton, or another (but unnamed) candidate. Clinton received 70 percent of the vote cast, with the remaining 30 percent indicating they would support another candidate.

Among the issues included on the straw ballot, 66 percent of the voters supported replacement of the current federal income tax with a flat tax. For the remainder of the voters, 21 percent said they opposed the move, and 13 percent were undecided.

Regarding the need for support for a convention center in Seminole County, through private-public partnership, 62 percent approved the suggestion, 23 percent voted no, and 15 percent were undecided.

The need for a light rail mass transportation system from Seminole County to Orlando also received the majority of votes, with 56 percent in favor, 31 percent opposed, and 13 percent undecided.

Beginning today, as many candidates and their supporters as possible will be holding speeches and meeting with persons attending the Presidency III gathering.

This is considered as one of the last major political events of the kind in Florida, as candidates will be changing their focus to the Iowa Caucuses which will be held early next spring.

While the majority of candidates were expected to be on hand, some have now said they will be unable to attend.

In Washington, Dole, who is Senate Majority Leader, said a budget vote planned for tonight will most likely keep him from being in Orlando to participate in the debate. A rival campaign quickly accused the front-runner of ducking confrontation.

After a round of conversations with the campaigns Thursday, CNN officials said they would provide a studio in Washington to the senators, and perhaps California Rep. Robert Dornan, could participate in the forum.

But Dole aides on Thursday said the senator's duties as majority leader would make it difficult for him to leave the Capitol during the budget debate.

"Because of his responsibilities in this historic debate, as Senate majority leader, Senator Dole does not expect to attend the event planned for (Friday) evening in Orlando," said Dole campaign manager Scott Reed. He said Dole still hoped to travel to Orlando on Saturday to address the delegates before the straw poll voting. Other aides, however, said Dole was unlikely to attend if the budget impasse has not been resolved.

Gramm plans to participate from the Washington studio, with breaks if necessary to cast Senate votes, said his senior campaign adviser Charles Black, who accused Dole of rigging the Senate schedule so he would not have to debate.

While the Presidency III event is statewide, the local Seminole County Hob Nob held last night was presented by the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, Greater Oviedo Chamber of Commerce, and the Lake Mary/Heathrow Chamber of Commerce.

Sanford truckers can join in fun at family reunion

By VICKI BOGGS
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — The trucking industry has always been an integral part of the Sanford community.

Those who have been a part of that illustrious past will have an opportunity to celebrate with their brethren on Sunday at the first, and hopefully annual, Sanford truckers reunion.

When celery was king, there were trucks that brought the vegetable from the farms to market.

Other produce products were also transported by truckers in and out of the community.

"There have been lots of us throughout the last 45 or 50 years who have been a part of this industry," said Gene DeVilbiss of MSC Trucking in Sanford.

"Produce is just about gone here and people are going every which way. We want to be able to bring them all together."

DeVilbiss and Richard Wilber of Wilber's Farm are organizing the event which will take place at the farm beginning at 11 a.m. Sunday. They'll continue on until the last person is ready to go home.

Organizers are planning an event suitable for the whole family. They are expecting between 300 and 400 people to attend.

"We know Wilbur's Farm will be great for the families," DeVilbiss explained. "The kids can spend some time with the animals while the old timers sit around and shoot the breeze."

Truckers and their families are being asked to bring a covered dish or a desert. Table service, rolls and iced tea will be provided.

The organizers are hoping the truckers will bring their antique trucks and cars to the event in order to have a fine display of antique vehicles.

Wilbur's Farm is located at 8100 W. Highway 48, four miles west of I-4.

premises that has been used on more than two occasions, within a six month period, for prostitution, the unlawful sale, delivery, manufacture or cultivation of any controlled substance, or used in connection with street or youth gang activities.

Lyons suggested the city might consider holding property owners accountable.

The commissioners were also supplied with other information on how various locations deal with the problem: New York City handles similar problems by using attorneys to assist police commanders in making decisions against property owners who may be in violation of that city's nuisances.

In Georgia, problems were stopped when the managers of a restaurant where drug sellers and alcohol use was reported, started taking license numbers and names of undesirable, telling them they were not wanted or welcome on the premises.

Another suggestion by Lyons was to follow the city's recent ordinance regarding charging business owners for false alarm calls which produce police and/or fire department responses. Lyons questioned if repeated drug violation areas couldn't be fined for similar situations.

While no specific direction was indicated regarding Lyons' suggestions at the work session, the matter came up later in the evening, at the conclusion of the regular commission meeting.

Mildred Godfrey, a resident of W. 12th Street in Sanford, told the commission that she and her neighbors were continuously being disturbed by noise, loitering, sitting on streets and other problems connected with drug activities.

"What we want," she told the commission, "is some peace in our neighborhood. This goes on night and day, and even if we call the police and they respond, the drug gangs just hide for a few minutes, then get right back where they were."

She added that she had been voicing her problems to officials and the city since 1991 and very little has been done.

Police Chief Ralph Russell responded that the department has neither the manpower or money to devote strictly to Mrs. Godfrey's problems. "We have many other citizens all over the city who also deserve help in combatting this kind of activity," he said, "and we are doing what we can."

Russell alluded to the work underway by the QUAD Squad, a rapid response unit recently formed in the police department, which has proven very successful in combatting drug activities.

only hope is that Fish and Wildlife will see that it's a farce." Jay Ashton, a Gainesville turpert expert hired by the county, said the urban areas where the turtles will be "conserved and moved won't cause much damage to turtles."

"We set up the zones to protect the turtles where they are the most," said Ashton, whose records show few turtles nesting in Daytona Beach and Daytona Beach Shores, so most of that area is designated urban.

Another component of the plan includes extensive study of the turtles on Volusia beaches, to be completed within five years.

The county plans to hire a biologist with experience in protected-species management to oversee the turtle-protection efforts and to explore off-beach parking.

Those that would be hurt the most by the proposal would be concessionaires, who would still be allowed on the beach but only if they are not renting motorized vehicles in the driving-free zones.

For example, the University of Florida, Florida State University and the University of South Florida are comprehensive schools with emphasis on research, master's and doctoral programs.

The University of North Florida, West Florida and Florida A&M, on the other hand, are more undergraduate-oriented, Stonecipher said.

Florida State is at the bottom with 383 credit hours per professor; South Florida is next to last with 391 credit hours; University of West Florida has 402; North Florida has 439; Florida Atlantic University has 448; Florida International University has 455; Florida A&M has 468 and the University of Florida has 439. The University of Central Florida ranked first, with faculty members spending an average 602 hours in the undergraduate classroom last year.

"We want a snap shot to give us an idea of where the school was during the last school year and see the targets for improvement," Stonecipher said. It doesn't necessarily mean professors have to teach more hours.

Shutdown continues, bill debated to balance budget

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — With broad sections of the government closed for a fourth day, Congress is beginning final debate on the sweeping Republican plan for balancing the budget and cutting taxes.

In the face of certain veto by President Clinton, the House planned to approve the package today, with the Senate likely to follow by Saturday morning. The bill, the cornerstone of GOP efforts to shrink government, would reduce taxes by $245 billion over seven years for families and companies while promising a balanced budget by 2002. It would also overhaul Medicare, welfare, Medicaid, and payments to farmers while allocating hundreds of other programs.

Although the budget-balancing measure is the highest-profile bill in Congress this year, it is overshadowed by the bitter budget duel between Clinton and congressional Republicans that has seen the forced idling of 40 percent federal civilian work force of about 2 million. The two sides have refused to budge in that standoff, realizing it is a prelude to likely bargaining later this year on the balanced-budget package.

"I think we all know what the endgame is here — it's the negotiations on a budget agreement," White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta said in a brief interview. With that in mind, the Senate gave final congressional approval, 60-37, to a bill Thursday that would reopen shuttered agencies through Dec. 5, but only if Clinton agrees to balance the budget in seven years, using congressional economic forecasts.

Clinton has vowed to veto the temporary spending bill because of that requirement. He says the GOP timetable and overly pessimistic congressional economic projections would force spending cuts that are too harsh.

"Holding the government, the federal employees, and the millions of Americans who depend upon them hostage to the congressional Republican budget is not the way to do this work," Clinton said.

Republicans countered that Clinton's refusal to sign their stopgap spending bill demonstrated he was not interested in eliminating federal deficits — a criticism the GOP believes damages Clinton with the voters. "He's made it pretty clear he doesn't want a balanced budget," Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said.

In the Senate vote Thursday on the temporary spending bill, seven Democrats voted with the Republicans. Although that left the final tally seven votes short of what the GOP would need to override a Clinton veto, it signaled that many Democrats are eager to back the GOP's timetable for eliminating deficits, if not its details for doing so.

The message was similar late Wednesday in the House, which approved the temporary spending measure 277-151, with 48 Democrats in favor.

Dole said the stopgap spending bill would be sent to Clinton for his signature as early as today. But GOP aides, speaking on condition of anonymity, said it might not go to the White House until next week, to keep the public focused on Clinton's refusal to endorse the idea of a balanced budget in seven years.

Either way, the partial federal shutdown — already the longest ever — seemed likely to extend into next week.

To ease its effects, Clinton announced Thursday that 1,700 Veterans Affairs Department workers and 54,000 Social Security employees would return to work Monday to help process benefit claims.

Meanwhile, Republicans have embarked on a strategy of reopening the government one piece at a time. One by one, they have begun sending some of the 13 annual spending bills to the president for his signature. Four have been signed into law, meaning the departments and agencies they cover can operate at full strength, and three more are ready to go.

But GOP leaders say not every agency may reopen. Dole said some agencies, like the Department of Housing and Urban Development, have sent most of their workers home with little noticeable public effect.

"Why don't we just close it down?" he asked.

Senior Safari celebrates zoo friends, health, classic cars

From staff reports

SANFORD — It was a big day for the Central Florida Zoological Park and members of the Model A's of Greater Orlando, Inc. It was the celebration of a Senior Safari Day at the zoo, sponsored by Premier Health and Heart Institute at Florida Hospital. The health fair provided health screenings such as cholesterol, hearing and blood pressure. Chamberlin's Market and Cafe provided refreshments, and Fairwinds Federal Credit Union took free photos of their members.

Over 30 of the classic Ford Model-A cars, courtesy of the Model A's of Greater Orlando, built in the late 20s and early 30s were displayed at various parts of the zoo park. Members of the club were on hand to answer any questions regarding the vehicles.

Negotiators reduce amount to be saved from Medicaid

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — House and Senate Republicans resolved a difference over how hard to squeeze Medicaid spending by putting almost $7 billion back in the pot that would be divided among the states.

The compromise struck by House and Senate conferees Thursday reduced the target for savings from the health program for the poor to $163.5 billion over seven years.

That's down from $170 billion in the bills that passed both houses last month and from $182 billion in the original GOP blueprint to balance the budget in seven years.

The Republicans settled a dispute by basing the grants on whichever allocation came out best, the one in the House bill or the one in the Senate bill, for each of the states. But for the long run, the House distribution formula would be written into the law.

The GOP overhaul would end federal entitlements to health care for the poor and give states broad flexibility to decide how to spend their "MediGrants" on caring for the needy, including poor children, the disabled and nursing home residents.

The negotiators' resolving differences between the chambers' bills also agreed to call for a new $3.5 billion fund to help 15 states cope with the costs of emergency care for illegal aliens for five years.

Almost half that money would go to California, and New York,

Florida and Texas would get much of the rest.

Details of the final GOP plans for Medicaid and Medicare were obtained Thursday by The Associated Press.

The changes in the health programs represent about half the savings sought under the GOP blueprint for balancing the budget in seven years.

Hospitals had lobbied strenuously against the Senate version of the Medicare reductions, which targeted them for $46 billion in savings by reducing the hospital fee increases; the House version looked for $75 billion in such savings.

The compromise appeared to fall right in between.

The Medicaid grants would climb by an average of 7.1 percent in 1997 and by 4.5

percent or less in the following years under the proposal. Medicaid, which covers 36 million people, had been projected to grow by 10 percent a year by the Clinton administration.

The GOP plan calls for most of the Medicare savings to come from imposing strict spending limits on the program for the first time. Medicare, too, has been growing at almost a 10 percent annual rate. The GOP reforms would limit its growth to 6 to 7 percent a year.

All 37 million Medicare beneficiaries would pay higher monthly premiums, and the premiums would escalate sharply for those with incomes above $50,000 for individuals or $60,000 for couples. They would lose some or all of the subsidy that now pays most of the cost of Medicare coverage for doctor bills.

The Medicaid provisions include some concessions demanded by Republican moderates in the Senate, but it was unclear how meaningful they would be.

For instance, the agreement would require states to keep providing Medicaid coverage for pregnant women and children under 13 in families with incomes below the poverty line. It also would require states to cover the disabled, but would let states define "disability" and how much income and assets beneficiaries can have.

But states would decide what benefits to give recipients, including the poor children and pregnant women. And no one except the U.S. secretary of health and human services could take any action against a state for failing to provide coverage.

While the Senate insisted on keeping federal nursing home standards, the compromise would place "the responsibility of enforcement with the states in order to ensure state flexibility and an end to federal micromanagement," according to a memo by House Commerce Committee Chairman Thomas Bliley, R-Va.

Democrats and some moderate GOP senators have warned that without strict federal standards for staffing nursing homes and protecting residents' rights, there could be a return to the era when operators freely used physical restraints and drugs to pacify residents.

Magic win again

ORLANDO — Anfernee Hardaway scored 30 points and Dennis Scott 21 as the Orlando Magic continued to win without Shaquille O'Neal, beating the depleted Indiana Pacers 89-80 Thursday night for its sixth straight victory.

Orlando improved the NBA's best record to 7-1, including a 6-0 mark at home.

The Magic extended its streak of consecutive victories at home against Eastern Conference opponents to 36 (dating back to April 1994), but not before squandering most of a 25-point lead.

Hardaway finished 8-for-10 from the field and made 13 of 14 free throws. Nick Anderson hit four 3-pointers and Horace Grant contributed 16 points and 15 rebounds for Orlando.

Eddie Johnson and Ricky Pierce scored 18 points each for Indiana. Derrick McKey added 17 points, while Antonio Davis grabbed 11 rebounds to help the outmanned Pacers to a 43-37 advantage on the boards.

AROUND THE STATE

Lightning fall in OT

ST. PETERSBURG — Benoit Hogue scored in the final minute of regulation and added the game-winner at 32 seconds of overtime as the Toronto Maple Leafs beat the Tampa Bay Lightning 5-4 Thursday night.

Hogue wristed a shot from the slot past Lightning goaltender Daren Puppa for the winner. Hogue's goal with 55 seconds remaining in regulation, off a scramble in front of the Lightning net, had forced overtime.

The two goals equaled the season total for the right wing, as Toronto avoided its second consecutive loss.

Chris Gratton's power-play goal with 2:26 remaining had given Tampa Bay a 4-3 lead.

Toronto is 5-1-2 in its last eight games, while Tampa Bay has only won twice in 12 games.

Lightning center Brian Bradley had a goal and two assists, while Dave Andreychuk had a goal and an assist for Toronto.

Panthers rally to tie

MIAMI — Scott Mellanby scored a pair of goals, and the Florida Panthers staged another third-period rally to tie the Vancouver Canucks a 2-2 tie Thursday night.

The tie snapped Florida's seven-game winning streak, but allowed the Panthers to remain unbeaten in their last eight contests.

Mellanby scored both goals on tip-ins from slap shots by teammate Jason Woolley.

Mellanby's second goal tied the game 2-2 at 6:46 of the third period.

The Panthers twice rallied from third-period deficits last week to win.

A potential game-winning goal for Florida was waved off midway through the third period. Jody Hull slammed in a loose puck, but the officials denied it when Florida's Brian Skrudland and Vancouver's Jeff Brown dislodged the net while battling for the puck.

By DEAN SMITH

M.A. Erectors wrapped up a 12-2 campaign with a 13-4 victory over Crazy Wings at Chase Park. In the other game at Chase, Ken Rummel Chevrolet wound up in fourth place with a 19-3 shellacking of Sanford Tire.

Ken Rummel Chevrolet started with a three-run first inning, but Sanford Tire came back to tie the game with three runs in the top of the second inning.

Let's talk turkey FUNdamentals

Okay, so it's your turn to host the annual Thanksgiving feast for the entire family. You've known for three years that your time was coming, but the advance warning hasn't increased your comfort level. Aunt Sara has been cooking turkeys for 40 years, and Cousin Rachel is a gourmet cook. Can you tackle a turkey without being traumatized?

Believe it or not, taking care of "Tom" isn't that tough. Just follow the "Turkey FUNdamentals" and your bird will turn out fine without a lot of toil and trouble. The experts at USDA's Meat and Poultry Hotline say that each November, both novice and experienced cooks have the same basic questions on preparing a turkey. Here are the answers.

How Big a Turkey Should I Buy? You'll need about one pound per person, or a pound and a half if you have hearty eaters or want ample leftovers. If you're having an "open house" and you're not quite sure how much meat you'll need, you could cook and carve an extra bird a few days ahead.

What Kind of Bird Should I Buy? There are basically two types of raw birds to choose from: pre-basted bird (typical ingredients include vegetable oil, broth, spices) or an unbasted bird to which nothing has been added. Personal preference usually dictates this choice.

Is Tom Better than a Hen?

CONSUMER FOCUS

BARBARA HUGHES/GREGG

Age, not gender, is the determining factor for tenderness.

How Long Will It Take to Defrost a Turkey? It's best to defrost your turkey in the refrigerator. The rule of thumb is minimum of 24 hours of defrost time for every 5 pounds of turkey.

How Long Should I Roast the Turkey? Roughly 15-18 minutes per pound for an unstuffed bird, and 18-24 minutes per pound for stuffed bird. Have your oven preheated to 325 degrees F.

USDA highly recommends use of a meat thermometer to determine doneness. A whole turkey is done when the temperature reaches 180 degrees F. in the inner thigh. A breast is done at 170 degrees F. The juices should run clear. Stuffing temperature should reach at least 165 degrees F.

What Do I Do If the Turkey is Done an Hour Ahead of Schedule? It is safe to hold a turkey in the oven at a reduced temperature. First, use a meat thermometer to verify that the bird is done - dark meat has reached 180 degrees and the stuffing 165 degrees F. Keep the thermometer in the meat. You will need to lower your oven temperature. Start by moving your oven temperature to 200 degrees F. Adjust the temperature of the oven to assure that the temperature of the turkey never drops below 140 degrees F. Check meat thermometer at several intervals to assure that 140 degrees F. is maintained. Keep the bird covered so it doesn't dry out.

Can You Roast the Turkey the Day Before? Yes, in fact, more and more people are taking this route. However, for safety reasons, the cooked bird must be deboned before being refrigerated. The carved meat should be stored in shallow containers. The meat can then be reheated in the regular oven the next day for approximately 10 minutes per pound. To prevent meat from drying out, add either the leftover meat droppings, gravy or turkey broth and cover with foil.

To Keep Things FUN, Not Frantier? Decide how much turkey you will need before you shop. *Get a meat thermometer. *Make sure you have a roasting pan large enough for your turkey, or roast 2 small birds versus 1 large bird. *Allow an adequate number of days to refrigerator - defrost a frozen bird. *Wash hands, sink, counter, utensils and platters thoroughly with soap and hot water before and after working with bird. *Remember to remove the bag of giblets from inside bird. *Wash the inside and outside of the turkey in cold water and drain well. *Stuff right before roasting. *Place the turkey breast side up in shallow roasting pan. You may want to brush with oil or melted margarine. *Insert meat thermometer in inner thigh. *Cover loosely with aluminum foil. *Roast the bird 15 to 18 minutes per pound for an unstuffed bird, 18-24 minutes per pound for a stuffed bird. *Remove foil 20-30 minutes before roasting is finished to allow the bird to brown. *Remove turkey when dark meat reaches 180 degrees F. and the stuffing reaches 165 degrees F. *Allow the cooked turkey to sit for 20 minutes before carving. *After dinner, carve leftovers from bone and refrigerate promptly. Remember, you have only 2 hours from the time you take the bird from the oven. *Smile and enjoy!

For more information, for additional questions on cooking your holiday bird, call USDA's Meat and Poultry Hotline at 1-800-538-4558.

It's best not to film some sacred events

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Flash in New Hampshire," who was all bent out of shape because a minister refused to allow flash photos during a wedding ceremony to capture those precious moments on film.

My minister and I fully support that minister's refusal. No sacred religious ceremony should be disrupted by flash photos - they are an intrusion upon the dignity of the occasion.

As for understanding the need to prevent guests from doing this, a professional photographer must take many shots, thus intruding on the ceremony so that one or two memorable moments may be captured.

We are in the personal intrusion/information age when photographers and journalists tend to become part of the ceremony, thus detracting from the intimacy of the occasion.

If "Flash" thinks so little of the religious beliefs of the couple, perhaps a justice of the peace would have been a more appropriate option. Your suggestion to "shop around" for another church or elope shows a disturbing lack of understanding of the deep meaning of a religious ceremony.

What will be next? Capturing the last moments of a person's life on film? Or, heaven forbid, the actual birth of a child? I suggest that "Flash" should try another business.

NO FLASH, PLEASE

DEAR NO FLASH: Both the "last moments of a person's life" and the actual birth of a child have already been captured on film. What can we expect next? The conception?

DEAR ABBY: Marie E. Limmer

of Baltimore asked, "Would it be the worst thing in the world if he (a husband) were fat and paunchy?"

I can testify that it can be. Last summer, my husband died of an abdominal aortic aneurysm when the main artery from his heart ruptured. He was fat and paunchy.

Give Romeo one more chance to clean up his flirting act

DEAR MARY: Do you think there's any hope for us? My boyfriend is just wonderful for months at a time, and I start thinking maybe I can really trust him and maybe this relationship can go somewhere.

But it's like he reads my mind. Within a couple of weeks after I start thinking we've really got something going that might last, he goes off and flirts with another girl or makes a pass at her while I'm right there with him. It makes me furious!

It's happened more than once and this time (it just happened again last week) I was so mad I just left the party. Of course, he called my house before I even got home saying he didn't mean anything by it, etc. I called him back and told him off on the phone, but I stopped short of telling him goodbye. He apologized for his behavior but in my heart I know it will happen again.

FAMILY COUNSELOR

MARY BALK

Except for this, we are real well-suited for each other. We like to do the same things, eat the same kind of food, read the same kinds of books, and other things. How can I get him to stop flirting with other girls.

FURIOUS GIRLFRIEND

DEAR FURIOUS: In a word - you can't. You can't make everybody else do anything or stop doing anything. You can only determine what your actions and behavior will be based on how he acts. Since you've obviously made it clear to him that it makes you angry when he does this, he either doesn't care or doesn't think you will notice. Either way it's a put-down to you. You have to decide how much pain and aggravation it causes you and whether the pain is worth the "gain" of continuing the relationship.

Give it one more try. Since trust and mutual respect are the cornerstones of any successful relationship, if he wants to continue seeing you, he's going to have to do his part to build trust. Then you will know if he continues flirting, that he's really not interested in you or your feelings. From there, you can act accordingly.

All Souls hosts mission week

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — All Souls Catholic Church, 800 South Oak Ave., will host a mission week of November 27, to be led by John Delelos from the Archdiocese of Baltimore, Maryland.

According to Father Richard Trout, pastor of the church, one of the goals is to continue to spark spiritual renewal. "We hope to charge their batteries," he said. "We need to get ready for Christmas in a more spiritual way instead of just shopping. We want people to come back to the church to welcome and fellowship with all the parishioners."

He continued, "As baptized Christians we all have a job to do not just those leading the church. We don't just want to make the church better but also the community. We hope to energize many so they can use their talents for the needy."

Each evening's mission will begin at 7 p.m., starting with Monday, November 27. The mission will run through, and include, Friday, December 1.

The theme will be "Carrying Christ into our World." Plans are

Sharing our uniqueness with others

SANFORD — As I celebrated my daughter and mother's birthday yesterday I had to chuckle at the difference in the two. My mother, a senior citizen, is quiet, meek and reserved, yet my daughter is vivacious, outgoing and talkative.

Normal birthday events usually feature the duo side by side at a restaurant with my mother begging for no attention and frills while my daughter puts because the whole assembly of customers haven't chimed in with party greeting when she appears on the scene.

Although God made each of us different and unique, family members at times do tend to resemble in personality traits as well as physical traits. Praise be to him that we are all created as individuals with a special flair all our own.

It's wonderful to see the individuality and take heart that another year has passed and all is well. Counting the joys in life make this hard, cold world a little easier to bear.

I'm just so very thankful for both of them and their differences. God is good. He helps us appreciate that we all have talents and abilities to share with a lost world. May we all use them to his glory.

Ask the preacher Bible questions

Question: How can a person be sure that he finds God. It often feels like God is playing "hide-and-seek."

Answer: Many people have a fuzzy or no real relationship with God. They seek God in the wrong ways for the wrong reasons. Such a journey leaves one empty and frustrated. Be assured that God wants everyone to discover him.

The Bible promises that if we earnestly seek God we will find him. Moses told Israel to "seek the Lord, your God, and you will find him, if you search after him with all your heart and with all your soul." (Deuteronomy 4:29)

You may ask, why does God seem so remote? The answer is simple. He insist on being God. That is what he really is, rather than what we expect him to be.

We have trouble finding him because we have a false picture of him. We want him to fit our expectations.

J.E. Phillips wrote a book, "Your God is Too Small." It was a tongue-in-cheek rebuke about our small vision of God. He listed a number of petty views we harbor about the God of Heaven. He noted that some view God as a "resident policeman, grand old man, Mr. Fix-it" or some sort of "celestial babysitter," but few see God for what he is...divine.

We are like the ancients with their idols. God must be something tangible. Something that fits into the "box" we have constructed within our own minds. But, God refuses to be molded by human expectation.

His work and world transcends our being. When God revealed himself through his Son, it was not what mankind expected. Where was his sword and power? Why did he let his enemies win? God refuses to be anything but God. You must seek him with a sincere and humble heart.

Tony Black is the minister for the Sanford Church of Christ. He will answer any Bible related questions by writing Minister Tony Black to him at 260 N. French Ave., Sanford, FL 32772.

Head injury led to seizure disorder

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Following a motor vehicle accident eight years ago, during which I suffered a severe concussion, I began experiencing auditory and visual hallucinations. I was diagnosed with schizophrenia and given powerful tranquilizers.

DEAR READER: Probably. Chemotherapy refers to treatment of malignancies using powerful anti-metabolite drugs. In essence, these compounds are extremely poisonous and affect cells' ability to reproduce and grow.

It wasn't until last year, when I became ill, smelling odors that weren't there, that I saw a neurologist. After an EEG and MRI, he diagnosed temporal lobe epilepsy caused by a scar on the brain. Also, I have cortical atrophy. He prescribed anti-convulsants. Was my condition caused by the car wreck?

Because cancer cells divide and grow uncontrollably and much faster than normal cells, the theory is that chemotherapy selectively alters and kills cancer cells. However, healthy cells are unavoidably poisoned as well. This leads to malaise, nausea, hair loss, anemia, and a host of other expected complications, including neuropathy (nerve damage).

DEAR READER: Very possibly. At the time of the accident, your brain was badly shaken up, causing a concussion. Because of the injury, you may well have developed a brain injury, with scar tissue and shrinkage (atrophy) that could have led to a seizure disorder involving the injured side of your brain.

Your wife, who has completed a course of chemotherapy over what I assume to be several weeks, may well be suffering from drug-induced neuropathy. In general, it's the nerves of sensation, not muscular movement, that are affected; thus, she is experiencing numbness, tingling and pain, without weakness or loss of coordination.

You should ask her doctor about this, but in my experience, the neuropathy of chemotherapy usually disappears in a matter of weeks after the cancer treatment has been stopped.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Trust that lead

By Phillip Alder

As H.G. Wells pointed out, "Not one is altogether noble nor altogether trust-worthy nor altogether consistent; and not one is altogether vile." At the bridge table, players can be trusted most of the time, especially early in the play. And you cannot get earlier in the play than the opening lead. You are in a no-trump contract and receive a low-card lead from length. You can be confident it is a fourth-highest lead. Almost no one fakes cards on opening lead; it is just too dangerous. South should have borne that in mind on this deal.

among queen. When East correctly withheld his king, declarer continued with three rounds of clubs. No luck - East won with the jack and switched to the spade king. However South wriggled, he couldn't win nine tricks. The best line is deceptively difficult to spot. If West's heart four is an honest card, he has at most five hearts. So, the first trick should be won with dummy's heart ace. Then declarer continues with the ace and queen of diamonds, East holding up his king. Now South plays a heart to his king! (True, with spades 4-3, a spade to the ace works too, but the heart play is slightly safer.) Then South continues with the diamond jack. The defenders may cash three heart tricks, but South has the rest.

Bridge hand diagram showing North, South, West, and East cards and tricks.

Our Birthday Saturday, Nov. 18, 1985 Your confidence in your abilities will continue to grow stronger in the year ahead. Once you start to utilize your gifts, your approach to life will change for the better.

positive attributes. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You won't go wrong today if you desire to do good deeds for a large number of people. Unreliability is the key to success. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You may receive something you have secretly desired today. If not, you will at least get a firmer indication as to when you can expect this to occur. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Use your powers of observation constructively today. Carefully study a colleague's style and learn all you can. ARIES (March 21-April 19) Success will be probable today in areas where you have a strong desire to succeed. You must stay aware and maintain a high level of motivation. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A partnership arrangement should work out rather well today for you and your associate. This union could be stronger than you realize. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If someone wants to hire your talents or services today, don't underrate your skills. However, make sure to keep the price fair. CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your best asset today will be your ability to synchronize with others on a one-to-one basis. You don't need a big team, just a few competent allies who can deliver when needed. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You will be a delightful companion today because you'll instinctively know how to inflame people's egos. Making friends look good will reflect favorably on you. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will have more power and influence over your peers today than you think. Your inherent trustworthiness will be the reason for your effectiveness. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Finances continue to look very encouraging. Increases could occur in situations in which you're trying to provide additional support for loved ones.
