Soviet Lasers Said To Damage U.S. Spy Satellites

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet laser attacks have damaged super-sophisticated American spy satellites watching missile and spacecraft launches from the Soviet Union, administration sources say.

The sources said U.S. intelligence believes the Soviets fired ground-based lasers to cripple optical equipment attempting to snag launches at the major launching facility of Tyuratam to obtain sensitive military information.

Administration intelligence sources told United Press International in recent interviews that they fear other vital U.S. reconnaissance satellites will be endangered soon because six new Soviet laser battle stations are being built in the remote Caucasus Mountains.

The suspected Soviet laser "hosings" of costly satellites, details of which remain classified, occurred in recent years and have left U.S. scientists scrambling to shield the space surveillance system, the sources told UPI.

"There is no way you can protect the optical sensors on satellites (from laser attacks)," said one Air Force official, speaking like the other sources on the condition of anonymity.

Intelligence experts said the United States has electronically jammed Soviet satellite transmissions of surveillance data from U.S. weapons tests.

These sources acknowledged the Pentagon also has trained ground-based lasers on Soviet spacecraft, sometimes in attempts to disrupt their sensors. U.S. laser firings have not been designed to cause permanent damage, they said.

Attempting to counter the mounting Soviet space threat, the United States recently installed laser warning receivers on its newest generation of low-orbit spacecraft, intelligence analysts said. The receivers can allow time for evasion action and can assist ground controllers seeking to prove that the Soviets inflicted the damage, they added.

One analyst said experts disagree as to whether the U.S. satellite malfunctions are because of Soviet attacks, noting some skeptics in the intelligence community put the blame on "natural causes."

"Proof of what has happened to something in space is actually hard to come by," the source explained.

But Angelo Codevilla, former Senate Intelligence Committee chief of staff, said he believes the Soviets "regularly pulse," or target lasers on, U.S. satellites. Codevilla, now a senior research fellow at the Hoover Institute, a California organization, acknowledged "there is no hard proof" of attacks.

The Air Force officially declined comment about the alleged attacks on grounds that all such information is classified.

But a knowledgeable Air Force source told UPI the government has decided to keep evidence of the laser attacks hushed "for a variety of reasons."

The official said the disclosure "makes U.S. equipment look bad, but more important, the U.S. wanted to use the collected evidence of

Grand Jury Will Continue Yankee Lake Investigation

By Richard Whittaker
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County grand jury will resume its investigation into alleged improprieties in the 1985 Seminole County Commission purchase of 2,867 acres at Yankee Lake from developer Jeno Pauhael after handling several other cases today.

Ralph Eriksson, of the felony intake division of the State Attorney's Office in Sanford, said several local cases will be presented to the 18-member grand jury although he declined to say which specific cases.

However, earlier last week Eriksson said the SAO was preparing to go to the grand jury sometime next week to request a first degree murder indictment against Roger E. Maynard.

Maynard is charged with attempted first degree murder in the shooting death of Orlando

Attorney Murray Lee Gay Jr. on Jan. 12. Since Gay died just hours after Maynard was charged with attempted murder, Eriksson said the grand jury must return an indictment for first degree murder.

Maynard allegedly shot Gay in the head with a .25 caliber revolver at the conclusion of a meeting in the Longwood office of Dr. Thomas Brodrick. The Should Sanford Become Bat Capital?

Will Sanford become the bat capital of the world? This is the dream of Blind Mosquito Task Force Chairman Bob Daehn, who says bats eat more bugs than the Purple Martins he had previously promoted.

When the blind mosquitoes (midges) became the scourge of the lakefront in downtown Sanford several years ago, Daehn was one of those in the forefront in the drive to build condos to lure the purple martins to Sanford. The birds are notorious for their abilities to consume large quantities of the insects while on the wing.

However, Daehn reported to those attending the annual banquet of Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Friday night, while purple martins can eat 300 bugs a day, the bat consumes 3,000. He even suggested converting the martin houses along the lakefront to bat houses.

Daehn, who may become known as Sanford's Bat Man, said a side benefit to having bats would be the guano fertilizer they produce.

He even speculated by summer's end the city would be able to hold a Bat Festival and crown a Guano Queen.

Daehn said bats would be enormously beneficial in the battle against blind mosquitoes and even distributed pamphlets extolling their virtues.

Parents Approve Sex Education

Surveys Show Support For AIDS Education

By Brian Hedberg
Herald Staff Writer

Sex education surveys returned to the Seminole County School Board sound a clear message: "This county definitely wants sex education," in the words of Sandy Traeger.

Traeger, president of the Seminole County Council of PTAs, and other volunteers Friday finished tallying results of a random sample of about 10 percent of parents of children in the county school system. Less than half of the 2,920 surveys in the random sample were returned.

A whopping 934 parents favor sex education, in response to one question, while 100 are opposed. Most parents feel sex should be taught in a combination of home and school and a large number would like the availability of parenting courses on the birds and bees.

Middle school and high school students should be taught about everything on the survey's gamut of sex education topics, according to the majority of returned surveys. However, most parents felt elementary school children should not be taught about abortion, birth control, premarital sex, sexually transmitted diseases (STDs), and teen pregnancy.

While elementary students should not be taught about STDs, they should be taught about AIDS, a narrower margin of parents felt.

Survey results will be first discussed and interpreted by the county's Curriculum Advisory Committee at a meeting tentatively set for Feb. 3 or 4. A series of CAC meetings is to produce a sex education recommendation for Superintendent Robert Hughes before the school year's end. That endorsement will take into account not only the survey results, but sex education curriculum used in other districts and other factors.

From there, Hughes and his staff is to formulate a recommendation on sex education curriculum for the school board, which has the last say on what exactly will be taught. Seminole schools spokeswoman Karen Coleman said any curriculum decided upon would probably be in place during the course of the school year, as opposed to the first day of the fall semester. If parents strongly object to their children being taught a sex education subject (as some surveys imply), they may take advantage of the board's appeals process, Coleman said. She said a parent should first review the curriculum and request a parent conference.

"With regards to AIDS education, we're going to give parents the opportunity to have their children withdrawn from the classroom during the time that subject is taught," Coleman said. Because of the serious nature of AIDS, Jim Dawson, the

DER Files Suit In Pearl Lake Case

The Florida Department of Environmental Regulation has filed a suit in Seminole County against a Clearwater company that refuses to pay a $10,000 fine for not obtaining a permit to conduct fill operations on Pearl Lake.

Named as defendants in the suit are Miller M. Cooper and Regent Investment Group. Cooper is a representative of the group, which has been cited by the DER for the unauthorized placing of fill dirt along the shore of the lake located in Forest City.

DER spokesman Rook Cleary said the defendants are involved in the construction of a structure on the north shore of the lake near the Lake Brantley Shopping Center. The structure is to be placed on 98 one-foot pilings above the lake, and will house a restaurant and several shops when completed, according to Cleary.

The company's troubles with the DER started last year after a complaint was made to the agency by Seminole County officials that fill dirt was being dumped straight into the lake. Cleary said his department had been previously told the company wouldn't be doing any filling in the lake.

"We contacted them (Cooper and Regent Investment Group) and told them they needed a permit before they could do any filling, and they told us, 'We're not going in the water at all, so we don't need a permit from you,'" Cleary said.

The county filed their complaint against the filling on Jan. 10.

Eaton's Goal Of Being A Judge Is Finally Realized

By Richard Whittaker
Herald Staff Writer

O.H. Eaton Jr. said his main professional goal was to become a circuit court judge in Florida's 18th Judicial Circuit. On Jan. 6 he celebrated his first anniversary of the fulfillment of his wish.

Eaton was elected as a circuit judge for the 18th district, which includes Broward and Seminole Counties, in November 1986. He noted that he was the first person in Seminole County to be elected and not nominated to the position.

Eaton feels he accomplished a lot during his first year on the bench, but is looking forward to 1988 as a year in which he will do even more.

Eaton was born and raised in the Orlando area and graduated from Edgewater High School. He now lives in Longwood with his wife, Cindy.

Receiving his law degree from the University of Florida in 1968, Eaton went on to spend two years in the army, but didn't work in the legal field during that time. He said he was assigned with a special forces unit.

After leaving the army, Eaton went to work for the State Attorney's Office in Seminole County. He was an assistant state attorney from 1970 to 1973, at which time he left for private practice.

Eaton stayed in the private sector with the firm of Eaton and Ervin of Altamonte Springs, until he left to take his current judge's post.

"I really enjoy my job," Eaton said of his first year. He added that he really wanted to be a trial judge and that he feels the 18th circuit is the best place to be assigned.

Eaton is also pleased with the entire state's court system, calling it one of the best organized in the country. "The people in Florida's court system are really involved and working to make it better all the time," he said.

Eaton said he also liked the interaction of people working in the state's courts. "I like the way ideas are passed around. That makes for a healthy system I believe," he said.

As he starts his second year as a judge Eaton couldn't say which of his almost 80 cases in 1987 was the most difficult for him to hear. "I can't say any one of them was more difficult than another," he said.

During the past year Eaton heard two first degree murder cases, but hasn't given out a death sentence yet.

The case involving Robert Ellis Blakley, who was found guilty of killing his wife with a sledge

Suspect Linked To Robbery For Abortion

The robber who hit the Record and Tape Outlet, 515 E. Altamonte Drive, Altamonte Springs, on Dec. 9, told the clerk he didn't mean to hurt him, but he needed the money to pay for an abortion for his girlfriend, Altamonte Springs police reported.

In addition to cash from the register, the suspect took four records he selected before approaching the clerk.

In investigating that and several other similar robberies Altamonte Springs police identified a suspect. Police reported that that led to the clerk's identification of a suspect in a photo lineup.

William Russell Brown, 19, of 291 E. Altamonte Drive #3-C, Altamonte Springs, was arrested at a Publix, Altamonte Springs, at 4:35 p.m. Thursday. He has been charged with armed robbery and was being held without bond.

Altamonte Springs police reported that Brown was also arrested on Dec. 22 and Jan. 14 in connection with other robberies.

In other police action within Seminole County, Lavsher Williams, of 806 W. 11th St., Sanford, was slashed with a piece of glass from the broken window of her front door when she refused to let another man into her home at about 7:20 p.m. Thursday, Sanford police reported.

When Williams refused to let the man into her home, the man allegedly kicked and broke the glass of the door and reached in to unlock the door and enter the home. Once inside the home the suspect allegedly picked up a piece of broken glass and slashed Williams' right wrist and then hit her in the head with his fist.

Larry Eugene Snell, 24, of 21 Cowan Moughton Court, Sanford, was arrested at the scene on charges of aggravated battery, burglary and criminal mischief. He was being held in lieu of $8,000 bond. Williams was treated at the scene.

Sanford police who made a traffic stop of a Honda motorcycle found that the vehicle identification number of the cycle had been tampered with. The rider was cited for that. Later, Sanford police learned through Seminole County sheriff's deputies that the cycle had been reported stolen.

Sheriff's deputies reported that the owner of the motorcycle, Ewelyn Hopkins, wanted charges filed in the case. That led to the arrest at 1:13 p.m. Thursday at Lake Mary High School of Leroy Jenkins, 19, of 2008 Southwest Road, Sanford. He has been charged with grand theft and offenses involving vehicle identification numbers. Jenkins has been released on $2,000 bond to appear in court Feb. 8.

A 23-year-old Sanford man who allegedly presented a fake prescription for a controlled drug to be filled at Valu Drug Store, 503 E. Frist St., Sanford, reportedly ran out of the store when store workers began to check on the validity of the prescription.

Sanford police reported catching the fleeing suspect at 504 E. Frist St. Christopher Scott Carter, 23, of 500 Oak Ave., Sanford, has been charged with forgery of a document. He was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Casselberry police reported pursuing a van from the C & S Bank, State Road 436, into Orange County after bank officials notified police that a woman in that vehicle had just tried to make a $7,000 withdrawal from the bank account of another woman.

Police reported stopping the van on State Road 436 at Aloma Avenue. Witnesses from the bank were brought to that location and reportedly identified the suspect.

Cheryl Renee Shaw, 25, of Orlando, was arrested at 12:36 p.m. Thursday on a charge of uttering a forgery. She has been released on $1,000 bond to appear in court Feb. 8.

Workers for Foster's to Clinic, Longwood, who using torches to take apart a partially filled underground fuel tank, set off an explosion that swept flames and fuel through the surrounding area and damaged 10 vehicles parked at Insight Auto Sales, 2600 W. State Road 434.

The incident occurred at about 6 p.m. Tuesday. There were no injuries reported by Seminole County sheriff's deputies.

Two shotgun-armed robbers ordered the clerk of Subway, 2632 State Road 434, Altamonte Springs, out a backdoor before they fled with about $613 taken from the store's cash register and safe Thursday.

The door locked when the clerk was shut out and he fled to a nearby 7-Eleven to report the robbery, a sheriff's report said.

Two Jailed For Rape

Two men were being held without bond today charged with sexual battery, false imprisonment, carnal intercourse with a minor, committing lewd and lascivious acts on a child and aggravated child abuse.

The charges stem from the men allegedly having forced sex with two Sanford girls, one 14 and the other 15. The assaults reportedly occurred at the Cavalier Motor Inn, 3200 S. Orlando Drive, between 8:30 p.m. and 9:15 p.m. Sunday.

The men were arrested at the motel by Sanford police after a motel security guard questioned the girls after finding them in the lobby crying, following the reported assaults.

Sanford Police Chief Steve Harriett said today that the girls told police that the men, who are apparently cousins, allegedly picked them up at the Circle K on First Street at Persimmon Avenue. The girls were taken from there to the motel, where they were given alcohol. They said that the suspects had a gun which intimidated them. However, Harriett said there has been no report of threats being made with the gun.

After the girls were allegedly sexually assaulted they left the motel room and went to the lobby. Sanford police were called to the motel and arrested Christopher Charles Allegri, 22, of Ft. Lauderdale, and Frederic Allegri, 23, of Coral Gables, there at 9:37 p.m.

Investors Trust 'Home Town Boy,' Stand To Lose $99 Million

WINTER HAVEN (UPI) — Investigators say as many as 700 investors may have lost $99 million in a scam set up by a well-respected businessman who attracted capital although he distributed no information on his company.

"It was a blind trust," said lawyer Mason Wines. "Winter Haven is a funny town. When you know a man's parents and grandparents and he's been here all his life, you ought to be able to trust him."

Investigators say Stephen Smith's SH Oil and Gas Exploration Co. was a scam from the start.

Smith, 36, a third-generation Winter Haven resident, established the company in 1977. He peddled two "contracts," one for "partial assignment of lease" for a gas drilling project and the other for a share of oil pumped from a well.

Smith and his wife Heather were well-respected in the community of more than 22,000 residents. He was a former stockbroker on the board of directors at the Cypress Gardens tourist attraction and the city hospital. She was president of the city's Junior Women's League.

Landfiller Stalls Filling

TAMPA (UPI) — More than five months after a judge appointed Pinellas County's hand-picked contractor to clean up a controversial landfill, the company has not removed any of the soil that the owners contend was never contaminated in the first place, a newspaper reported.

Instead, the court-appointed company has excavated and sold $18,350 worth of clean soil the judge said it could take to pay for the cleanup, according to court records.

In August, Circuit Judge Fred Bryson gave the company four months to complete the cleanup. James "Bobby" Martin, owner of the property, missed a similar deadline last summer and Bryson jailed him for more than two months on a contempt-of-court charge sought by the county.

"They've torn out 10 acres of oak trees, and they still haven't removed one stick of that debris," John Berry, a New Port Richey attorney representing the Martin brothers, told The Tampa Tribune.

The five-year legal battle that led to the cleanup order was punctuated by dire warnings from county officials that pollutants from the pit were seeping into a major, underground source of the county's drinking water.

No 'Three's A Charm' For Killer

TAVARES (UPI) — Circuit Court Judge John Booth says he will pronounce sentence this week on convicted policeman killer Carl Ray Songer, 37, who has spent 14 years on Death Row after twice being sentenced for the same murder.

An eight-woman, four-man jury recommended Saturday that Circuit Court Judge John Booth sentence Songer to die for the 1973 slaying of Florida Highway Patrol Trooper Ronald Smith.

Booth, who has sentenced Songer to death twice before only to have the sentence overturned on appeals, said he would pronounce sentence this week.

Songer showed little emotion as the verdict was announced. Smith's family expressed relief at the verdict.

Election offices in Seminole County will be open the next two Saturdays to accommodate those who cannot register during working hours on weekdays.

Sandra Gaard, elections supervisor, also said voters who have changed their address since they last voted should notify the election office of their new address so they know where their polling place will be in March.

We've mapped out a new area code to meet Florida's growth.

Introducing Area Code 407. Beginning April 16, 1988.

The number of new Florida residents has grown so much that we're creating a new area code—407—for the region north of the Broward/Palm Beach line to just north of Orlando. The creation of the new 407 area code means we'll be able to continue serving customers by providing new phone lines well into the next century.

Area code 407 will take effect on April 16, and there are a few things we suggest you do by then.

If you live inside the portion of area code 305 that will change to 407, you can tell friends and relatives about the upcoming conversion. (Your 7-digit telephone number won't change—only the area code.) And if you live outside this area, but call any numbers inside area code 407, you can correct your records to reflect the new numbers.

If you have any questions or you'd like a free brochure about area code 407, please call us toll free at 1-800-331-2355.

One more helpful tip about this change: It's easy to remember when area code 407 will be in effect—it starts one day after a date that's unforgettable to all taxpayers.

Eastern Airlines' Safety Problems

When the Federal Aviation Administration slapped Eastern Airlines with a record $9.5 million fine for safety and record-keeping violations in March, 1986, the Miami-based airline suggested it was being made a scapegoat for an industry beset with problems. Yet, accumulating allegations against Eastern suggests the financially troubled carrier may have even greater safety problems than previously documented.

Eastern mechanics based in Miami, Atlanta, Boston, Washington, D.C., and Kansas City say the airline frequently glosses over equipment deficiencies to keep its planes flying on schedule. The charges range from deferred repairs on items that directly affect the jetliners' airworthiness to outright falsification of safety reports.

The FAA, for example, is investigating an allegation that a Boston mechanic was ordered by his supervisor to use a sealant to plug a fuel leak that, in fact, required major repairs.

Another Boston mechanic found 12 problems requiring repair during a routine service check on an Eastern 727 and informed his supervisor the plane would be unavailable for its scheduled flight the following day. Whereupon he was informed by his supervisor: "This is the real world here. This plane is flying out in the morning. Take care of it."

Last May, a Miami-bound Eastern plane aborted soon after takeoff from New York's LaGuardia Airport because an engine failed to attain full power. A senior FAA inspector, who happened to be aboard, discovered the mechanics had not logged an engine problem detected hours earlier.

And an Eastern pilot was reprimanded and suspended by the company's vice president for flight operations after he refused to fly out of Washington National Airport because of inoperable navigation equipment. Other pilots have reported similar pressures from management to fly defective planes.

For its part, the airline insists such allegations are "scare tactics" by recalcitrant employee unions. Perhaps. Yet, we are reminded of the Eastern DC-9 that broke nearly in half in December after a hard landing at an airport in Pensacola. This near-disaster could have been sheer coincidence. Or it may be further evidence that Eastern is, indeed, playing fast and loose with the lives of its passengers and its personnel.

The FAA is obliged to determine what exactly is going on at Eastern Airlines—and soon.

Let It Shine

A woman we know sometimes leaves her Christmas tree up until the middle of March. By then, of course, every day is punctuated by the gentle, pin-drop sound of needles falling on the parquet. No matter. If the tree isn't ever green, it's ever so cheerful to have around.

When is the proper time to take down a Christmas tree? The day after Christmas? As soon as the presents are tucked away? The first week in January? The second?

If the fire-hazard issue could be ignored, which it can't, we'd side with the Ides-of-Marchers. In postponing the separation of luminous glass balls from still-resinous boughs, the procrastinators defy the awful ritual of leave-takings and endings. Amid a season of darkness and ice, they have found a way to let even the most bedraggled symbols of warmth shine on a little while longer.

BERRY'S WORLD

JEFFREY HART

Hart's 60s Sensibility Isn't A New Idea

Watching Gary Hart campaign in New Hampshire is like entering a time warp. He really does think that he's a candidate of "new ideas"—such as a more streamlined military—but he is not a candidate of ideas at all. He is a candidate of the 1960s sensibility, a soul-mate of George McGovern, whose 1972 campaign he managed, and the confreres of '60s types like Warren Beatty and Shirley MacLaine.

The other day, before an interested college student audience in New Hampshire, Hart delivered an address on 21st century American foreign policy.

He led off with the blazing new idea that people about the students' age, on our ships in the Persian Gulf, might get shot at and actually killed.

The idea that young men serving the U.S. armed forces stood at some risk seemed to strike him as an appalling idea—as, indeed, it struck many of the college students in his audience. Shot at? Killed? The notion that this is what may happen when you put on a uniform did not seem to invade the sensibility of Hart or his youthful admirers. A similar sensibility informs the spate of recent Vietnam movies. Big news from the Warren Beattyites: you could actually get killed over there. It's as if, all along, the rest of us thought the Marines were conducting bird-watching tours in the Mekong Delta.

Of course, soldiers and sailors risk death. The question always must be whether the goal is worth the risk. Presumably we are in the Persian Gulf to keep the petroleum flowing to the industrialized world, and in this, we have been supported by all of our allies, including Japan.

As I write this, I have before me nine .58 caliber slugs picked up on the Gettysburg battlefield. Fifty-eight caliber. A .45 caliber bullet can tear your arm off, blow a hole in you the size of a football. And at Gettysburg they were shooting .58s at each other. Would Gary Hart and his '60s friends come out against Gettysburg, against the Civil War? Apparently.

Ernie Pyle saw the bodies of the young floating off the Normandy beachhead, along with dead tanks and half-tracks, Bibles, cigarette cartons, mirrors, even tennis rackets and banjos that never made it into France. He writes of the peculiar "stare" of men who have seen action: "It's a look of dullness, eyes that look without seeing, eyes that see without conveying any image to the mind. It's a look that is the display room for what lies behind it—exhaustion, lack of sleep, tension for too long, weariness that is too great, fear beyond fear, misery to the point of numbness, a look of surpassing indifference to anything anybody can do."

One recalls that Ulysses S. Grant himself was so sickened by the slaughter at Cold Harbor that he had to retire alone to his tent, where he had a temporary emotional breakdown.

Yet, the Union was worth preserving, and Hitler was worth defeating, and it is a good bet that the oil in the Persian Gulf is worth protecting. It keeps the motors running in the Volvos the students drive, not to mention the motor in the good ship Monkey Business.

We do not need these '60s sensibilities to instruct us that soldiers sometimes die. The '60s sensibility is an insult to the human intelligence.

Will Dole Revert To '76 Tactic?

By Arnold Bevilacqua
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Those who watched Bob Dole the vice presidential candidate in 1976 are wondering if the same Bob Dole is going to emerge as the presidential aspirant of 1988.

The Dole of 1976 was, in baseball terms, the political version of Ty Cobb on the bases and Bob Gibson on the pitcher's mound: flying spikes and dustoff pitches. In short, hardball politics.

In 1988, Dole and Vice President George Bush have had some skirmishes, but compared with what went on 12 years ago between the Kansas Republican senator and his Democratic opponents, the GOP nomination contest to date has been patty cake.

Gerald Ford's original strategy in 1976 was to run for president from the White House Rose Garden, remaining in Washington and appearing only in official functions to demonstrate what a bang-up job he was doing. This approach had been used four years earlier by Richard Nixon and harvested a landslide victory for the GOP.

No more than a few days after he was tapped by Ford to run for vice president, Dole was out in front of the television cameras describing Democrat Jimmy Carter as a "Southern-fried (George) McGovern"—a line originally written for Ford but rejected as being out of character for the lofty role the president was to assume. For Dole, with his well-honed razor wit, it was a perfect fit.

Then Dole went up against Walter Mondale in the first of that odd permutation of national politics called the vice presidential candidates' debate.

But as the 1988 campaign approached, observers got a glimpse of the 1976 Dole. Comparing his legislative and electoral accomplishments to Bush's list of high appointive jobs, Dole said the Republicans needed a presidential candidate with "a record, not a resume."

And, in a New Hampshire debate when he was asked if as Senate Finance Committee chairman he had "fixed Social Security," Dole turned to Bush with a wicked smile, waved a piece of paper and replied, "I thought I had, but I see from his brochure that George says he did it."

Some High-Quality Shrillness

WASHINGTON — Everybody needs an image maker these days. House Speaker Jim Wright hired one with a specific mission — to clean up the little "inaccuracies and misimpressions" circulating in the media about the misunderstood Democrat from Texas.

But Wright's image maker has run amok, peppering national news organizations with amateurish, poison-pen letters that have left Wright looking absurd. Now his image maker needs an image maker.

Wright's hit man is his new chief press officer, George Mair, and we have become one of his targets. The Washington Post reports that we are in good company. Mair has also aimed his pen at the Los Angeles Times, the Wall Street Journal, the Knight-Ridder newspaper chain, Newsweek and U.S. News & World Report.

We got under Wright's skin when we were the first to report nearly a

ROBERT WAGMAN

Texas Politics

HOUSTON (NEA) — The Texas primary, which is set for Super Tuesday, March 8, has turned into a major battleground of Campaign '88.

With 183 Democratic and 111 Republican delegates up for grabs, Texas has the largest block of delegates at stake in any of the state primaries that day.

As so often happens in Texas, presidential politics have become entwined with state Democratic politics.

Many experts here see this presidential primary campaign—and the gubernatorial race in 1990—as a kind of last-ditch effort by conservative Democrats to retain control of the state party. They have dominated for more than 40 years.

But conservative Democrats in Texas have suffered numerous blows in recent years. The latest was the 1986 defeat of incumbent governor Mark White by his old Republican adversary Bill Clements.

Now a host of young, liberal-populist politicians stand ready to emerge and banish the conservatives. Conservatives can prevent this by delivering a majority of presidential delegates to their man and by controlling the 1990 gubernatorial nomination. To a great extent the latter may depend on the former.

The withdrawal of Gary Hart from the race in Texas changed the dynamic of this Democratic primary. A conservative-liberal alliance had formed behind Hart, and he probably would have swept the state. But his withdrawal shattered the alliance and left the factions scrambling to find a candidate.

The conservative Democrats' choice for president is Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee. He was not their first choice. In fact, he was probably not their fifth choice. Clearly the conservatives would have been happy to back Mario Cuomo or Georgia's Sen. Sam Nunn or Virginia's Chuck Robb or New Jersey's Bill Bradley. But the only available candidate who fit the conservatives' image of a man who could be elected in Texas and the South was the newly born-again "conservative" Gore.

In recent years the conservatives have not proven they can elect candidates. But they can raise money. Gore has been given a substantial war chest with which to finance his campaign here. The question is whether he can translate dollars into votes and delegates.

With Hart out of the Texas contest, many liberal Democrats swung their support to Sen. Paul Simon.

However, the real story here is the emergence of Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis. As a New England ethnic, especially one who is considered "anti-domestic oil" because he does not support an oil import fee, Dukakis's growing appeal here is hard to understand. But the Spanish-speaking Dukakis has wide support in the very sizable Texas Hispanic community and among Jewish Democrats in Houston and Dallas. He has started to cut into Simon's liberal support.

Hart's re-entry into the national campaign has had little effect in Texas. Most insiders believe Texas will be a contest between Gore and Dukakis with Simon and Jesse Jackson getting some support.

public relations. George Mair is a graduate with honors (The school apparently does not emphasize spelling skills. In his letters to various publications, Mair consistently misspelled several words.)

It doesn't take a college degree to figure out that the hot-headed approach does more harm than good. If you want to win friends and influence people, you don't tell them that their mother wears army boots.

Remember the old adage about avoiding politics and religion if you want to stay out of a fight? Mair wades hip deep into both subjects. In his letter to us he says, "Well, I didn't realize you were so desperate for material that you would stoop to using this kind of trash ... The Church of the Latter Day Saints must be particularly proud."

Jack Anderson is widely known to be a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. We assume that is the church Mair is talking about. If he had a dictionary, he would find the proper name in there.

DICK WEST

Don't Say It On Camera

WASHINGTON (UPI) — I have never set foot on the campus of Fairleigh Dickinson University in my life, a record I hope to keep intact as long as a certain professor is a member of the faculty.

According to Forum magazine, Dr. Robert Francoeur teaches "human sexuality," whatever that is. Regardless of what excuses you use, how do you explain to your parents that you failed one of his courses?

"Dear Dad," a student might write forthrightly. "Looks like I'm flunking human sexuality. Got an 'F' this semester."

"Can't you do anything right?" your father, or mother, or whoever controls the family purse strings, might reply.

I'd like to see your answer to that. The publication assures us Francoeur doesn't fail students merely because they neglected to read his magazine column called "Future Sex." But how can they be sure they are being treated fairly, or Fairleigh?

Take the periodical's word for it? Don't make me laugh.

The plain, harsh truth is that anyone who writes or speaks the plain, harsh truth these days runs a risk of being accused of spreading the plain, harsh truth. The First Amendment be damned.

My advice is: Make sure the nukes are turned off before speaking a plain, harsh truth, in or out of the classroom.

Might as well conduct a survey.

Be warned, however, that the study may confirm your worst suspicions, as one poll I saw recently did for its sponsor.

This one was a product of Epyx Inc., identified as a "computer software company."

As a spokesman pointed out, "The study shows that people are wasting literally millions of man hours on personal business."

Above all, don't jump to conclusions, as I did recently.

I assumed a brochure captioned "Help Abolish BO" was a soap advertisement. It turned out to be a press release prepared by a national safety organization. The "BO" was a reference to "bureaucratic over-regulation."

The Epyx survey also revealed a majority of the nation's teenagers would rather watch television than play sports.

We were unable to reach Mair to ask him if we have committed a sin worthy of confession by taking on Jim Wright.

We are used to getting our share of angry letters. That comes with the territory and it is often the only way the average person has of standing up to the powerful media. But Mair's letters have left us and others scratching our heads about why a savvy politician like Wright put a loose cannon on his deck.

The congressman released a statement when news of Mair's hare-brained letters hit print. "Regrettably, I did not see George's letters before they were mailed. If I had, I'm sure I would, in at least some cases, have tempered their tone and content."

We apologize to Mair for what must seem to him to be a breach of confidence. He did, after all, end his letter to us with a postscript:

"Naturally, these personal opinions of mine are not for publication."

Sorry, George, no deal. And welcome to the major leagues.

NATION

IN BRIEF

Reagan's 'Last Hurrah' Tonight, To Set Goals For Legacy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — As more than a dozen others vie to succeed him, President Reagan goes before a joint meeting of Congress tonight to tout his record of the last seven years and chart a course for his final 12 months in office.

Eager to avoid the label of lame duck, Reagan will fulfill a constitutional obligation in delivering a nationally televised State of the Union address described by aides as long on reflection and short on bold new proposals.

The 9 p.m. EST speech will be his last such address, shaped by a sense of realism about what he can expect to accomplish in the next 12 months given the role election-year politics will play in the twilight of his presidency.

In recounting achievements of the last seven years, Reagan is sure to take credit for the longest peacetime economic expansion in history while warning further action must be taken by Congress to sustain that growth.

Due to receive equally prominent attention are the new Intermediate Nuclear Forces Treaty, which awaits Senate approval, and prospects for a dramatic cut in strategic superpower arsenals, which could become a substantial part of the Reagan legacy.

100th Congress Resumes Work

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Returning today to open the election-year close of the Reagan era, the 100th Congress faces a full and divisive calendar of foreign and domestic challenges.

The best way to get through it, according to Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia, is for President Reagan himself to cut back on "veto threats, finger pointing" and general confrontation with Capitol Hill.

The House and Senate each planned to convene briefly at noon today before returning for a joint meeting at 9 p.m. EST to hear Reagan's televised State of the Union address, a speech that could set the tone for his approach to the lawmakers during his final year in office.

While there was little legislative business on the first day's agenda, two Senate committees decided to open the crucial hearings on one of Reagan's most trumpeted achievements, the Intermediate Nuclear Forces Treaty.

Mecham Recall Election Looms

PHOENIX (UPI) — Today is the deadline for the secretary of state to certify the signatures on recall petitions seeking to oust Gov. Evan Mecham, who is expected to testify soon before a House impeachment committee.

Secretary of State Rose Mofford is expected to announce that she has certified enough signatures to force a new election. When she does, Mecham will have five days to decide whether to resign or face the voters again in May.

Mecham, who pleaded innocent last week to criminal charges that he concealed a $350,000 campaign loan, has repeatedly said he will not resign.

County recorders who checked the petitions against voter registration lists late last year said they contained far more than the 216,746 valid signatures needed for a new vote.

Mecham has had people working on a recall campaign since late last year, and he told reporters Saturday that he will ask the Legislature to pay part of his campaign costs if a new election is held.

WORLD

Prince Andrew, 'Fergie' Announce Baby Expected In August

LONDON (UPI) — The duke and duchess of York — Prince Andrew and the former Sarah Ferguson — are expecting a baby in August, Buckingham Palace announced today.

"The duke and duchess of York are very pleased to announce that the duchess is expecting a baby in August," the palace statement said.

The news confirmed weeks of speculation in the British press that the popular 27-year-old red-haired duchess, more commonly known by the nickname Fergie, was pregnant.

Andrew is fourth in line to the throne. Sarah married Andrew in a Westminster Abbey ceremony seen on television by millions of people worldwide on July 23, 1986.

Demjanjuk Trial Summations Start

JERUSALEM (UPI) — An Israeli prosecutor began his summation today in the trial of accused Nazi war criminal John Demjanjuk, reciting a poem and reading vivid accounts of Treblinka death camp where 850,000 people perished in World War II.

"The memory lives in the hearts of those who survived," said prosecutor Michael Shaked, who read at length from eyewitness accounts of Treblinka, the camp where Demjanjuk allegedly served as "Ivan the Terrible," the sadistic guard who pushed thousands of Jews into gas chambers.

Reading from Holocaust survivors' testimony, Shaked described the gas chambers into which the prisoners were shoved, the pits into which their bodies were piled, and later when the earth inside the camp could no longer hold the bodies, the cremation of the dead in burning piles.

Demjanjuk, 67, looked on impassively from the prisoner's dock in the packed movie theater that has served as courtroom since the trial opened in February. At one point, Demjanjuk, a former Ohio autoworker, clamped his hand over his mouth and yawned.

1 Dead In Campaign Violence

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Thousands of troops backed by helicopter gunships and World War II-era planes prevented widespread violence in delayed local elections today, but at least one man was slain after casting his ballot.

Turnout was heavy in most of the five provinces where elections for local and regional offices were delayed because of fears of massive bloodshed. The rest of the nation voted Jan. 18 for local and regional offices.

The delay gave the military time to concentrate its forces to protect voters, and officials in most areas reported "very peaceful" conditions when polls closed at 4 p.m. today.

The only death was reported in mountainous Quezon province, just east of Manila, where the 23-year-old son of a local official was shot by six men as he left a voting place in Lucena City, said police Col. Francisco Lequin.

The killing brought the death toll in election-related violence to at least 120 since November.

Soviet Economy Falls Short Of Growth Goals

MOSCOW (UPI) — About 2.4 million Soviet workers lost their jobs last year in a drive to improve productivity and the economy grew only 2.5 percent, falling short of the government's target, according to year-end statistics in Pravda.

The figures published Sunday showed 2.4 million workers lost their jobs in 1987 due to mechanization and a government-sanctioned drive against low productivity.

The economy, while growing 2.5 percent in a year marked by stock market crashes and uncertain oil prices, failed to meet its target growth rate of 4.1 percent and fell short in most areas, the figures in Pravda show.

Western diplomats said the statistics probably reflect "a more accurate indicator of true performance" compared to previous year-end statistics that normally boasted of dramatic but artificial world pace-setting growth rates.

"We have to look more carefully at the statistics but at first glance they appear to show an adequate growth rate for the economy," one diplomat said.

He said the economic targets may have been set too high, or if they were achievable "the reorganization in the economy is causing confusion and hurting performance."

News of the below-target growth rates followed a series of newspaper reports last week warning that up to 16 million Soviets could lose their jobs in the next few years. The reports said plans had been drawn up to ease the social burden of unemployment on the state and the individual.

The statistics in Pravda listed the size of the Soviet work force at 131.3 million, and Pravda said it was the first time "in many years" a rise in industrial output was due solely to increased worker productivity.

The average monthly wage of the Soviet industrial and office worker rose slightly from $333.20 to $341.70, while farm wages went up $6.80 to $283.90, reflecting Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's policy that wages should be tied directly to productivity.

Exceedingly poor performances were recorded in the engineering and machine-building sector, consumer goods industry and quality control — areas singled out by Gorbachev as needing improvement.

"I don't see this as a crisis situation for Gorbachev," the diplomat said. "With the exception of the consumer goods industry and machine building it looks like it was an acceptable year overall. Gorbachev himself warned that it might get worse before it gets better."

In 1987 the Soviet Union allowed the introduction of limited private enterprise in direct competition with state-run industries in the light manufacturing and service sectors.

Beginning this year, 60 percent of industry is to change to a profit-loss system, introducing for the first time the possibility of state firms going bankrupt.

The government plans to cut back on subsidies to non-profitable, non-essential firms.

Foreign trade fell 2.2 percent to $217.6 billion in 1987. A lower volume of trade with capitalist countries accounted for most of the downturn, according to the official State Committee for Statistics.

The slowdown reflected Soviet concern over unstable oil prices and the dramatic decline in the value of the dollar, the currency used to price oil. The Kremlin earns up to 60 percent of its foreign exchange on oil exports.

The production of consumer goods fell 1.1 percent short of its target growth rate of 4.5 percent.

Despite a reasonably good grain harvest in 1987 of 211.3 million tons, marginally up over 1986, the increase of 0.2 percent was far below planned growth of 2.2 percent.

Democratic Debate Still Shows No Clear Leader

DURHAM, N.H. (UPI) — The seven major Democratic presidential candidates each hoped to break from the pack in their latest large-scale debate, but they all walked away still tied in a knot.

A two-hour, televised forum at the University of New Hampshire Sunday was marked by pointed exchanges on taxes, the economy, defense and foreign policy, but the fireworks did nothing to clear the air for leaders to emerge.

Afterwards, state Democratic Party Chairman J. Joseph Grandmason would not name even two or three candidates he thought came off better than the rest.

Kirkpatrick Will Campaign For Mack

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Rep. Connie Mack, a Republican Senate candidate, said Friday former U.N. Ambassador Jeanne Kirkpatrick will campaign for him in Florida, the second major GOP figure to support his candidacy.

Kirkpatrick will appear at a fund-raiser March 28 in a still-to-be-selected Florida city. The candidate disclosed earlier that U.S. Education Secretary William Bennett will participate in a Tallahassee fund raising event Jan. 29.

"My campaign for the United States Senate is viewed as an important one for Republicans," Mack said. "I'm proud to have the support of top Republicans who believe I will win in November."

Mack, from Cape Coral, insisted that continued endorsements by prominent Republicans from outside Florida will deter other GOP candidates thinking about entering the race.

Rep. Bill McCollum of Altamonte Springs continues to explore the possibility of a Senate bid. Some of his associates have said they are confident he will become a candidate.

Other Republicans considering the race include former U.S. Sen. Paula Hawkins of Winter Park; state Commerce Secretary Jeb Bush, son of Vice President George Bush; and Tom Gallagher, secretary of the state Department of Professional Regulation.

Two Democrats are in the race for the seat of retiring Sen. Lawton Chiles: former Gov. Reubin Askew of Orlando and Rep. Dan Mica of West Palm Beach.

And aside from expected praise for their own performances, the candidates were equally noncommittal. Declared former Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado, "I'm getting too old to start judging these things."

The debate was marked by an effort from Hart to inject a new spark into his reborn candidacy, which apparently failed to benefit from his first debate with the others in Iowa Jan. 15.

Delegation Wants Citrus Ban Lifted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Florida's congressional delegation has asked the Department of Agriculture to lift a ban on the export of Florida oranges and grapefruit to other citrus-producing states.

Staff members from the delegation met with Assistant Secretary Kenneth Gilles to present the request for an end to the ban, imposed in August 1984 after a bacterial canker disease was detected in an Avon Park tree nursery. The delegation also sent a letter to Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng with its appeal.

Canker, which is highly contagious, causes lesions on fruit and leaves and, in certain varieties, can infect trees. It is not harmful to humans.

The drive comes in response to a USDA decision at the beginning of the year to withdraw a proposal that would have allowed the shipments of fresh Florida citrus to resume by mid-March. "The delegation wants the department to stick to the original timetable."

"The meeting did not really take us anywhere," said Ken McKinnon, a press aide to Rep. Tom Lewis, R-Palm Beach. "We stated our case and they stated their case and that was that they would proceed within the next six months to put a second plan into action."

McKinnon said the new proposal was expected to involve a gradual lifting of the ban by each region, as it is determined to be canker-free, a plan the delegation considers too slow.

"There's no need to go back to the drawing board to draft another protocol," said Rep. Andy Ireland, R-Winter Haven, in a prepared statement. "The citrus industry and the scientific community are confident that the procedures set forth in the rejected proposal would ensure the safety of Florida fruit. The USDA has offered no adequate, scientific explanation as to why Florida citrus should be quarantined."

Flag Waving

The city of Sanford recently purchased a new, large American flag to fly at Veteran Memorial Park. The new flag dwarfs the smaller one at the Sanford City Hall.

Drivers Angry About Grit

A number of persons who left their cars in the parking lot adjacent to the State Attorney's Office in Sanford Thursday returned later that afternoon to find a gritty, sooty film covering most of the vehicles parked there.

Steve Plotnick, head trial attorney for the SAC, said he discovered the film on his car, which he'd only purchased three days earlier. He said that after finding the film on other cars in the lot he tried to locate its origin.

Plotnick found that workman on top of the building accidentally sprayed the lot with polyurethane foam they'd been spraying on the roof.

While the soot could be washed off the cars, most of the grit from the substance seems to be embedded into the surface of the cars and their windows, according to Plotnick. He said the finish of the cars will either have to be buffed out or the cars will have to be re-

Painted. Plotnick said Apex Roofing and Insulation, of Longwood, was the company who's workmen were responsible for the damage done to the cars. The company was informed of the situation and asked to do something about it, he said.

Thus far, no reply from Apex has been given on the claims of the vehicle owners. Plotnick said the car owners are all a little annoyed by the lack of response.

Plotnick said everyone with a damaged car is also annoyed about the fact that the whole problem could've been avoided if advance notice of the spraying had been given, or if the parking lot had been closed down while the work was in progress.

"All of us would have been happier with just a slight inconvenience of parking in the large municipal lot and walking a few blocks to work rather than having the finish of our cars damaged," he said.

Raiders Fall To Stars

Late Surge Lifts FCC-J In Key Conference Clash

By Mark Blythe
Herald Sports Writer

Basketball

A late second half surge finished off by a pair of free throws by Phil Stitt enabled Florida Community College-Jacksonville to slip past Seminole Community College, 110-108, in a Mid-Florida Conference battle before 201 fans at the SCC Health Center Saturday night.

Seminole, 15-6 overall and 4-2 in MFC action, will return to action Wednesday on the road to Lake City Community College. FCC-J improved to 11-9 overall and 4-2 in conference play.

In other MFC action Central Florida Community College downed Valencia Community College, 82-89. Daytona Beach CC whipped St. Johns CC, 74-49, as Santa Fe CC slipped by Lake City 83-78.

"We're not a running team and we got into a running game," Seminole coach Bill Payne said. "The faster we go the worse we play."

The action was definitely quick as the Raiders came out and established control of the game early in the opening half.

Malcolm Houston, who finished with a game-high 28 points, led Seminole's early surge with nine points in the first five minutes of the game.

Houston was aided in the early going by the inside play of Vince Emerson and point guard Holly Keller. The Raiders scored seven straight points to open the game capped off by a three-point field goal by Houston.

Seminole went on to build up as much as an 18 point lead, 45-27, off an acrobatic layup by Houston off the break. FCC-J made a short surge right before the halt to pull within 12 points of the Raiders 56-48.

Houston finished with 20 opening half points to lead all scorers Emerson added 14 and Keller chipped in nine.

The Stars kept their cool, though, and slowly worked themselves back into position to win the ball game.

"It was a pleasure to see FCC-J's team play that hard," Payne said. "The hungriest team always wins and tonight they were hungrier than we were."

Seminole led, 74-58 with 14:38 remaining, before FCC-J began to make a serious run. Glen Oliver netted a short jumper to start off a 12-1 spurt by the Stars.

Larry Hall, who led FCC-J with 27 points, then connected on a layup inside. Hall was a constant threat throughout the night as he found ways to get open in the middle and shot a nice 13-16 from the floor.

Oliver then made a steal and finished off the break with a short bank shot to cut the lead to 74-64 with 12:46 to play.

Houston then sank a free throw as it appeared the Raiders were going to re-take control of the game. Hall then hit consecutive baskets to keep the Stars momentum going.

Juwanna Only sank a soft banker to pull FCC-J to within 75-70 with 11:19 remaining. Only and Artie Sinclair then hit consecutive hoops to narrow the lead to 79-76 with 9:52 left.

Seminole managed to hold off the surge as Terrell Barnes score four straight points to up the lead to 83-76 with 9:23 to play. Barnes scored 23 points in the second half for the Raiders but even his performance could not prevent the effort of FCC-J.

Seminole didn't help itself any in the late going as poor shot selection and a poor offensive scheme contributed to the Stars comeback.

"We didn't shoot the kind of shots we needed to win in the second half," Payne said. "We were out of control and didn't continue to execute the way we did in the first half."

FCC-J made a final surge to get back in the game with just 4:34 remaining. Jack Skipper connected on a short jumper in the paint to open an 11 point scoring run by the Stars.

Stitt then sank a three-pointer to cut the lead to 98-94 with 4:07 to play. Hall connected on another inside hoop as FCC-J began to bother Seminole with its fullcourt pressure defense.

Sinclair then took control as he zipped a 15-foot jump shot to even up the score, 98-98, with 3:25 to play. Sinclair then connected on a pair of free throws as the Stars took their first lead of the game, 100-98, with 3:11 to play.

San Fran Wants '96 Olympics

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Nine members of the committee hoping to land the 1996 Olympic Games in one of four U.S. cities launched its effort during the weekend with a tour of facilities in the San Francisco area.

"The group was favorably impressed," said Richard Harkins, president of the Amateur Athletic Union.

He said members of the U.S. Olympic Site Selection Committee have yet to visit the other potential U.S. sites — Atlanta, Nashville and Minneapolis-St. Paul. He said the Bay Area had most of the required facilities.

The U.S. site will be chosen at the end of April and will compete with foreign sites. Harkins said Athens, Greece, is a "sentimental favorite" because the 1996 event will mark the 100th anniversary of the modern Olympic Games.

Toronto also is a formidable contender, he said.

The International Olympic Committee will choose the site by 1990.

Committee members examined facilities in the six Bay Area counties where the events would be held, including the Stanford University campus, the International Swim Center at Santa Clara, San Francisco's Candlestick Park and the Oakland Coliseum.

Among the hosts of the tour was state Sen. Quentin Kopp, I-San Francisco.

"No better place than the Bay area exists for facilities," he said. "We have ideal weather. We have the population. We have the transportation. The only Olympics facility we don't have is a velodrome (for cycling.)"

Broncos Enjoy Private Moments

DENVER (UPI) — The Denver Broncos spent a quiet day Sunday, enjoying their final private moments before stepping into the round-the-clock scrutiny and hoopla that accompanies Super Bowl week.

The players took the day off while the coaching staff spent a couple of hours studying film. The Broncos will leave Monday for San Diego, where they will meet the Washington Redskins in Super Bowl XXII next Sunday.

The team's first practice in San Diego is scheduled for Tuesday, following a media picture day.

Unlike a year ago, when more than 60,000 fans attended a send-off pep rally at Mile High Stadium, the Broncos will depart for California without fanfare. The team, which lost last year's Super Bowl to the Giants, declined to participate in a similar rally this year to minimize distractions.

"The organization wants to concentrate on the game," team spokesman Porter Wharton said. "We have more business to do, just getting there is not enough this year."

Fans are even being discouraged from going to the airport to see the Broncos off Monday. The team will embark on a chartered jetliner at 1:30 p.m. in a United Airlines hangar in a restricted area at the airport.

"I think we can send ourselves off OK, and hopefully we can have a big celebration after we come back," Broncos coach Dan Reeves said.

The Greater Denver Chamber of Commerce will hold a win-or-lose, welcome-home parade and celebration for the team the day after the Super Bowl.

Reeves said he was satisfied with the Broncos' first week of general preparations, and said the team will be much more focused on the Redskins next week.

"I think we've had three good days of practice," Reeves said. "but everything we do next week will be much more football-oriented."

This will be the Broncos' third trip to the NFL title game, and they are still looking for their first championship. Reeves said the only difference between the Super Bowl and any other game is the build-up.

"It's two long weeks, and by the time the game rolls around it's almost a relief to play the game," Reeves said. "You're excited about getting it over with, playing it and see who's going to win it. Everything is built up, built up and built up. You're just ready to play and get on with it."

The Broncos should be close to full strength for the game. Tight end Orson Mobley was back in pads and practicing at full speed Saturday. Mobley, who suffered a shoulder contusion in the AFC championship game, had been held out of the first two days of practice.

Wide receiver Vance Johnson, who missed the AFC championship because of a partially torn femoral artery in his right groin area, has been cleared to resume practice this week and Reeves said Johnson would start the Super Bowl if the injury is sufficiently healed.

SKINS LIFT OFF

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The Washington Redskins lifted off from Dulles International Airport Sunday afternoon for a cross-country flight to San Diego and their Super Bowl clash with the Denver Broncos.

After a pep talk Saturday from Ollie North and complaints from American Indian activists about their nickname, the Redskins packed their bags and departed the chilly east coast for balmy Southern California, where temperatures pushed their way into the mid-70s.

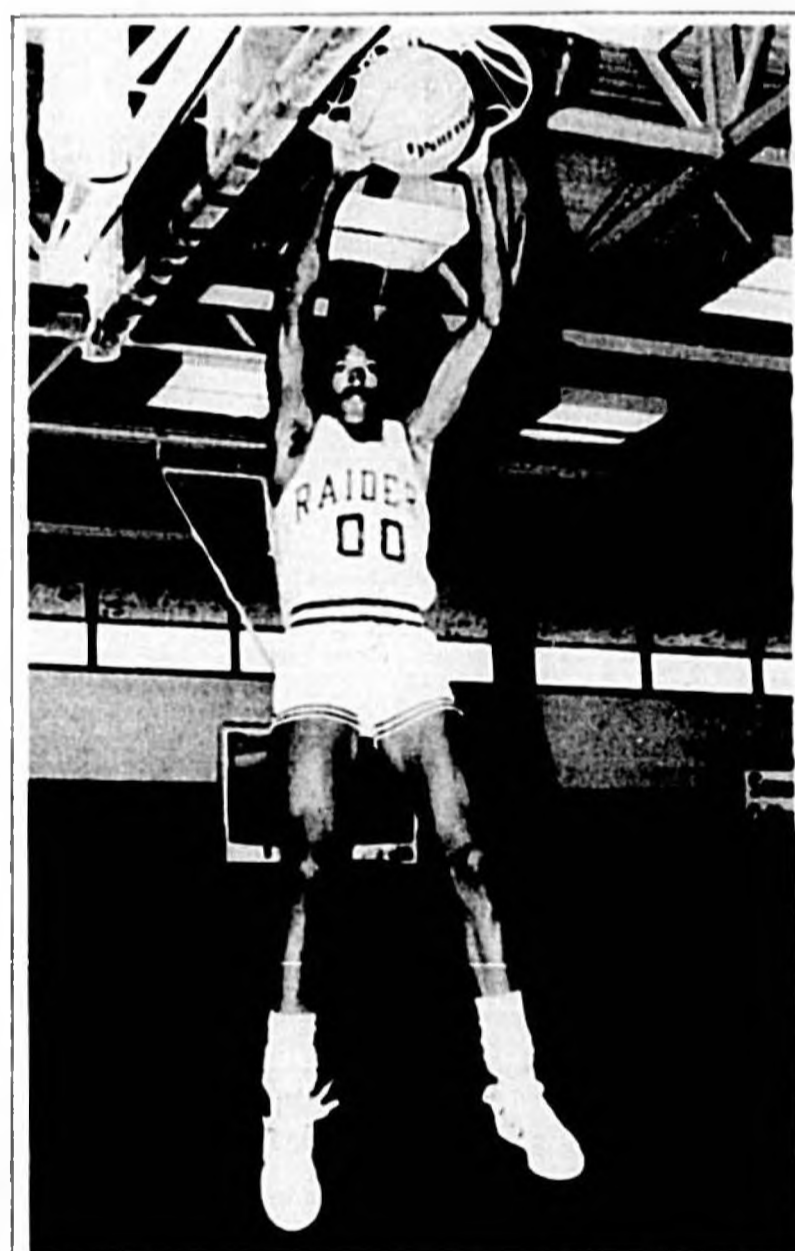

"I think the guys are ready," Coach Joe Gibbs said Saturday. "I think it's been a little hard this week to concentrate the way you'd like. Hopefully what we're going to do is get out (to San Diego), get everything out of our system and on Wednesday really get back to serious hard work."

Washington was expected to arrive in San Diego at 8:30 p.m. PST and immediately head for its hotel on Mission Bay.

The Redskins will hold their first San Diego practice Monday on the closed field at the University of San Diego about the same time the AFC champion Denver Broncos arrive in town. There will be no practice for Washington on Tuesday, but regular workouts resume Wednesday.

Making the trip to San Diego will be wide receiver Art Monk, who Thursday practiced for the first time since tearing a ligament in his right knee six weeks ago.

Monk is the No. 2 pass receiver in Redskins history and should give the Denver secondary someone else to worry about.

Houston Control Savvy Sophomore Leads In Many Ways

By Mark Blythe
Herald Sports Writer

Malcolm Houston, Seminole Community College's well known scoring machine, has changed his style of play this season to fit the Raiders' needs.

Houston, who was the state's leading scorer in the first half of the season, has taken the leadership role for SCC and has been concentrating more on keeping the offenses and defenses flowing rather than putting points on the board.

"I'd love to lead the state in scoring," Houston said. "But I will sacrifice my scoring if it means winning a game. I'd rather score four points and win a game than score 30 and lose."

Raider coach Bill Payne is happy with the way the sophomore guard has responded and stepped into the leadership role for his squad this season.

"He's still learning right now but he'll progress as we go along," Payne said. "Every now and then he'll get a little out of control but he's learned that we don't need a large amount of points from him."

Houston made a name for himself last season by being a tremendous long-range shooter. Teams have used set de-

Lake Mary Stings B. Moore, 40-21

By Mark Blythe
Herald Sports Writer

Lake Mary's wrestling squad came up with a big victory Friday night over Orange County power Bishop Moore, 40-21, before a packed house of 801 fans at Lake Mary High School.

Lake Mary improved to 8-1 with its only loss being to the state's top ranked team Sarasota. Bishop Moore fell to 8-1.

"It was a great match in every weight class," Lake Mary coach Doug Peters said. "We had some nice performances to get us going in some very key matches."

Rob Torres gave the Hornets a quick, 3-0, lead as he battled the Rams Erin Cobb in the 103 pound weight class. Torres came up with a narrow, 2-1, decision over Cobb who wrestled for the first time this season for Lake Mary.

Bill Bassett and Rob DoNero then hooked up in a tie at the 112 pound division. The match went back and forth before ending with a 6-6 deadlock.

"That was a key matchup there because our regular 112 pounder (Scott Flores) is out of town and I think Bishop Moore was expecting a pin there," Peters said. "Rob (DoNero) has been doing a tremendous job for us all season and came through again."

Wayne Clayton then went into battle with Al McKenchie and the Lake Mary senior kept rolling. Clayton came up with a tough, 4-1, decision to tie the match at 5-5, for the Rams.

Enrique Carbia then gave Lake Mary some momentum as he pinned Rob Gentelli at the 4:35 mark in the 125 pound matchup. Carbia is everything Peters wants in a wrestler and has been a team leader since the beginning of the season.

"He exemplifies a true Lake Mary wrestler," Peters said. "He's in great shape and is exciting to watch, if he has the opportunity to pin someone you can bet he will."

"He's (Enrique Carbia) has been our team leader and is our sparkplug," Peters added. "I can't say enough about him."

Ralph Salazar then made the match interesting as he took a 4-0 decision over Lake Mary's Dan Sacco. Sacco, a new face to the Rams lineup held his own against Salazar, who finished third in state in class 3A a year ago.

Jose Carbia then took a hard fought, 7-6, decision over Paul Greeno in the 135 pound weight class. Carbia used an escape in the last few seconds to come up with the win.

Rob Richards then pinned James Courter sticking him at the 3:21 mark as the Rams had taken a commanding 27-8 lead. Richards is another wrestler Peters is proud of and hopes will continue his winning ways.

Shane Stanley kept Lake Mary going with a 10-9 decision over Ron Willis in the 145 pound bout. Stanley, who dropped a one point decision at Lyman the night before came back strong for the Rams.

"He's (Stanley) been working hard all season and it looks like it's just paying off right now," Peters said. "He'll turn some heads later in the season."

Eric Greeno then gave the Hornets some momentum as he took a 10-5 decision over Kent Lovvorn in the 152 division. Greeno led from the beginning, but Lovvorn worked his way back into the match late in the second period before Greeno regained control.

Tracy Turner returned to the Rams lineup after being held out Friday with a shoulder injury. Turner made his season debut at the 160 pound weight class and won the match by a penalty default as Bishop Moore's Will Hunkiker was whistled for stalling.

Jake Nelson then took a 14-6 decision over Lance Stewart in the 171 pound division. Nelson controlled from the beginning as Peters began to think about the match.

Ori Kantor put the match out of reach for Lake Mary as he came up with a decisive pin over Jason Ray taking him down at the 3:18 mark in the 189 pound matchup. Kantor, a first year wrestler, has come around as of late for Lake Mary though he's still learning.

"He's (Kantor) a first year wrestler so it will be an up and down season for him," Peters said. "He did a great job using a roll we've been working on in practice to set up the pin."

John Cumble then gave the Hornets a quick six points as the stuck Dustin Simms at the 1:10 mark in the 220 pound weight class. Cumble is known as one of the state's top wrestler in both 3A and 4A schools.

Chris Isreal finished off the night with a pin for the Rams. Isreal took Sean Morrill down at the 3:20 mark.

Waisanen Hat Trick Lifts Lions

By Mark Blythe
Herald Sports Writer

Oviedo's Scott Waisanen came up with a hat-trick as the Lions easily tamed Father Lopez, 5-1, in prep soccer action at Oviedo High School Saturday afternoon. Oviedo ran its record to 11-4-1 and will return to action Thursday against Lyman at Lyman High School. Father Lopez fell to 4-8-4.

"We're playing real well right now and the kids feel it," Oviedo coach Dave Jekanowski said. "We've been coming together real well as of late."

Waisanen opened his day with an unassisted goal with 27:14 remaining in the first half to give the Lions a 1-0 lead.

Eric Dullmeyer added another unassisted goal with 22:22 left to give Oviedo control of the game. Derek Bates added a goal off an assist from Jeff Griffin with 5:25 remaining in the opening half for a 3-0 lead at halftime.

The Lions only downfall of the game was they lost forward Jimmy Guggenheim for a week as he's out with an ankle injury.

"We've been full strength for less than one half this season," Jekanowski said. "We'll be glad to get Guggenheim back as we have some tough matches in front of us."

Waisanen gave Oviedo a 4-0 lead early in the second half scoring off a Rob Seltzer assist with 35:51 remaining.

The Waves' lone goal came when Argelio Cruz slipped through the defense and sent the ball plunging in the Oviedo net with 25:47 to play.

Waisanen capped off his performance with a goal of a Duncan Jones assist to complete the scoring with 17:56 to play.

Third-Quarter Surge Lifts LA Over Sonics

Basketball

The Los Angeles Lakers, handed their worst loss last season by Seattle, waited four months to show their superiority. Challenged again Sunday, they needed just 24 minutes to reaffirm it.

The Lakers, routed 125-101 by Seattle on Jan. 28, 1987, responded with a four-game game sweep of the SuperSonics in the Western Conference final en route to the NBA title.

Down by 12 points to the Sonics in the first half Sunday, the Lakers countered with a 29-7 third-quarter run and snapped their Pacific Division rival's six-game winning streak with a 116-109 triumph.

"We played like champions today," said Magic Johnson, who led Los Angeles with 34 points. "We had to. It feels good that we did it."

The loss also snapped Seattle's 16-game home winning streak. "Our guys knew it was a big game and our priority is to keep the best record in the league," said Lakers Coach Pat Riley, whose team improved to 30-8. "The homecourt advantage will be vital in the playoffs."

Seattle Coach Bernie Bickerstaff would not concede dominance of the West.

Basketball

Minister Has To Be Putting Lady Love On

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am deeply in love with a wonderful man who loves me as much as I love him. I don't see anyone but him, and he doesn't see anyone but me. He is brimming over with life, love and passion, and we're in seventh heaven when we're together.

He has been married twice and was hurt both times. He has teenaged daughters. He is married once and has three small children. I am a respectable woman and I work outside my home.

Now the problem: We've been seeing each other for more than two years and have kept our relationship a secret because he's a Baptist minister and fears that if his congregation learns that he has a girlfriend, they might kick him out of his church. He has been the pastor there for many years.

To further complicate things, his daughters don't want any woman close to their daddy. They give him a hard time at home and snub me at church. I see him only at church and on rare occasions when our kids aren't home and neither one of us has to work. It's hard for me to deal with caring for him and not being able to be with him. I don't want him to lose his church and I don't want to lose him. Is there anything we can do?

LONELY LADY

DEAR LONELY: Yes, you two should come to an understanding. There is no reason why you should be "sneaking around" to see each other. You are both unmarried, respectable adults. If his congregation will "kick him out of his church" because he is keeping company with a lady he loves, he's in the wrong congregation. And if his daughters snub you in church and don't want any woman close to their daddy, Daddy should straighten them out instead of hiding from them.

Keeping your relationship a secret is dishonest, childish and wimpy. And unless your man is willing to bring you out of the closet, don't count on a future with him.

DEAR ABBY: In 1981 my husband drove a semi for a living and I worked as a salesperson in a women's apparel store. We have two children. Most of my husband's money went toward his truck payments and repairs on his truck, plus expenses for his trips. He destroyed his receipts and logs.

won't take a regular job because he's afraid they will garnish his wages. What if he disappears? Am I stuck with this, too? If I go back to work, will they garnish my wages? I can't afford an attorney. Help me!

GOING CRAZY

DEAR GOING: I suggest that you contact the IRS. The people there will be able to tell you all you need to know. I wish you luck.

DEAR ABBY: You keep hearing about how hard women work to stay trim and slim until they get married, then after the wedding they let themselves go.

Well, how about the men? I'll bet if the truth were known, men put on just as much weight—maybe more—than their wives after the wedding. Check it out.

FAT AND BABY LADY

DEAR LADY: I checked it out with the American Dietetic Association. I was told that after 13 years of marriage, the average American woman will have gained 23 pounds, while her husband will have put on 18.

Zeppelin Fans, Take Heart

Die-hard Led Zeppelin fans, take heart. The band will sort-of-most be reunited soon on guitarist Jimmy Page's solo debut, due out this spring from Geffen Records. Robert Plant will be doing guest vocals on some of the tracks, and drums will be banged by the late John Bonham's son, Jason.

No word yet on any participation from bassist John Paul Jones in the project, which is as yet untitled and said to have a pop-bluesy feel.

(BU) The Sunset Strip billboard being erected to promote the new David Lee Roth album, "Skyscraper," is a replica of Half Dome peak in Yosemite National Park, which Roth likes to climb. Scaling the billboard will be real live women dressed as mountain climbers. They will be stationed on the papier-mache mountaintop above Tower Records 24 hours a day.

(BU) Putting his money where his mouth is (literally), metal monger Ted Nugent is countering the Howard Jones vegetarian-restaurant phenomenon with an all-steak eatery of his own. To be called Red Meat, the dining spot will be located in the Los Angeles area.

(BU) Rock-to-Film Update: — Madonna is set to co-star with another teeny-bopper sex symbol, Matt Dillon, in "Bloodhounds of Broadway," a series of vignettes based on short stories by Damon Runyon. Madonna plays — surprise! — a showgirl. "Dirty Dancing" a sensation. Jennifer Grey also appears.

— Music-video geniuses Godley and Creme will direct their first full-length motion picture, "Howling at the Moon," the story of gunslinger John Wesley Hardin's last days. Gary Busey is set to star.

— Whatever happened to Dave Wakeling, beloved blond front man of the English Beat and General Public? He's still around, and just signed solo to IRS Records. His first offering will be the title track for John Hughes' upcoming movie, "She's Having a Baby."

— Donovan Leitch, son of the '60s singer (he uses the surname instead of a "Junior"), catapults to stardom from an American Bandstand-like TV show in the upcoming movie musical "The In Crowd." It's set in 1965.

— Dennis Hopper plays a rock promoter/manager who will stop at nothing, not even murder, to make his latest protegee a star in the nicely titled "Let It Rock."

— Rocker Adam Ant plays an art dealer who conspires to kill a painter in order to increase the value of his work in "Trust Me," a black comedy due out in late February. At around the same time, Ant will also be seen as a post-Apocalyptic villain in "World Gone Wild."

Your Body's Cells Release Energy

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 76, and for my whole life I've been wondering: Where is the "stove" in our bodies that keeps us warm?

DEAR READER: Our cells burn glucose for energy. In the process, heat is liberated. Therefore, we are really a collection of billions of little stoves, all controlled by a "thermostat" in the brain.

No one knows exactly how we maintain our body temperature — or what precisely happens when we become feverish. Body temperature is raised by exercise, dehydration, anxiety, infection, nerve diseases, cancer, anemia and many drugs. When fever is present, the body demands more food to supply calories for the increased metabolism. Hormone deficiency, such as hypothyroidism, can cause low body temperature. It's a fascinating subject about which knowledge is lacking.

DEAR DR. GOTT: During a CT scan, cysts were found on my right kidney and liver. My doctor says this is not uncommon in persons my age (61) and not to worry. Do you agree?

DEAR READER: One of the problems of new medical testing is that doctors often discover more than they need to know. Tests are more accurate and sophisticated than they were years ago.

For example, computed tomography, or CT, can show small abnormalities that were easily missed by older, more traditional X-ray examinations. Case in point: kidney and liver cysts. These small, benign, fluid-filled structures rarely cause problems. They are common and may inadvertently be found during scanning for other, more serious conditions.

Your doctor is correct.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Three years ago I had a cervical fusion. A bone chip fell into my spinal cord, leaving me paralyzed. I can now walk to some extent and have partial use of my left hand. If the chip were removed, would my problems be over?

DEAR READER — Possibly. This is a complicated issue, something like hitting a malfunctioning telephone

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

A careful declarer takes nothing for granted, unless his name is Willy Nilly. That worthy won the ace of spades and immediately played a low diamond and ducked it. East's seven-spot won that trick, and East led a trump Willy won the ace, played ace and ruffed a diamond, and trumped a spade back to his hand. But when he played the second high trump, disaster struck. West had a sure trump trick, the defenders had already taken one diamond trick, and East held on to his Q-J-9 of clubs to eventually score two club tricks to set the contract.

Willy would have been successful if he had provided for the possibility that he might just need to score all of his small trumps by ruffing. At the second trick he should ruff a spade and then play a low diamond. Whatever the opponents do next, declarer would be able to play ace of diamonds, ruff a diamond and trump another spade. Playing the high trumps would disclose the defender's trump trick, but Willy would get to dummy with the club ace to ruff the last spade. That would be 10 tricks and the defenders would have to play two winners on the 13th trick, the jack of hearts and a high club.

The defenders could have done better looking at all 52 cards. If West opens a trump away from the jack and then plays a second heart when he gets on lead with the king of diamonds, declarer comes up a trick short.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
JANUARY 26, 1988

You have been fortunate in making some friends who are extremely concerned for your welfare. In the year ahead you will see ample evidence of how much they like you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Strong self-doubts will have a deleterious effect on your progress today. If you don't think you can win, you'll find ways to prove yourself right. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't make the mistake today of going to someone for advice who previously gave you poor counsel. Figure things out for yourself, or seek a person who's more competent.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you're trying to help another sort out his/her affairs today, work with this person's resources. It's vital you show this individual how to be self-sufficient in the future.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Before participating with others in certain events today, try to give them the benefit of the doubt. If you are judgmental going in, it could prove to be disruptive.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This could be a reasonably productive day for you, provided you don't attempt to do more than you can comfortably manage. Don't overload your agenda.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In your social involvements today, make an extra effort to treat all of your pals equally. Feelings will be hurt if you play favorites.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be optimistic regarding your objectives today, but don't set your sights so high that you can't possibly reach your goals. The reasonable can be accomplished.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Guard against tendencies today to turn friendly discussions into serious debates. If someone makes statements with which you don't agree, it's no big deal.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be mindful of your financial circumstances and try to avoid taking on any new, long-term obligations at this time. Make do with what you have.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Important personal relationships will have to be handled very skillfully today. If you say or do something without thinking, you could offend an ally.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll be more prone to doing things for others today if you feel you are doing them voluntarily. You're likely to be unresponsive when demands are made.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone you've been trying to avoid may attempt to intrude on your social arrangements today. Be alert so that you can fend him/her off.
