STATE HEAD CONSERVE U. S. FOOD

WILL SPEAK HERE NEXT SATURDAY NIGHT

Hon. Braxton Beacham, recently appointed the official Florida head of the U. S. Food Conservation Bureau of the United States representing the state of Florida, will speak to the people of Seminole county in a ten minutes talk at the Lyric Theatre here Saturday night. Mr. Beacham is too well known in Sanford to need any introduction to the people. He is one of the true philanthropists of Florida who made a fortune in timberlands and other enterprises and rose from a poor man to one of wealth by his own individual effort and foresight and who is using his money for the good of the people of Florida in many ways.

He is one of the first men in Florida to see the possibilities of the state, has been one of the pioneer good roads boosters, is and has been one of the first men to plant extensive orange groves and engage in general farming and last week purchased a large shipment of pure bred hogs and cattle for his immense farm near Forest City in this county and is known far and wide for his faith in Florida.

He was chosen for the great work of food conservation on account of his broad minded policies, for his intimate knowledge of the people and the resources of the state and his whole hearted manner of taking hold of these benefits for the people and placing his time and money at the disposal of the state and the United States.

Mr. Beacham does not receive a cent for his work in this line and having sufficient of this world's goods to carry out this great enterprise is giving it all his time and attention

COMMISSION GOVERNMENT DISCUSSED

MASS MEETING LAST NIGHT WAS WELL ATTENDED

The Sanford Board of Trade at the behest of many of the members called a mass meeting last night to discuss the commission manager form of city government and the Board of Trade and the citizens were fortunate in being able to have City Manager Miller of the city of St. Augustine and Harry Brown, editor of the St. Augustine Record here to tell of the wonderful development that has been made in the Ancient City under the new form. Both of these gentlemen left their business and came here upon the invitation of the Board of Trade and they deserve the praise of Sanford people for their interest in the matter of better government and their unbiased attitude toward both plans.

Sanford is fortunate in having an up to date charter and a working board of aldermen and the condition of some cities can hardly be compared to our own and it was a source of pride to every one present that Sanford compared favorably to other cities even though we have not the advantages of the city manager. President Dutton called the meeting to order and explained the situation and Dr. T. A. Neal was elected chairman of the mass meeting and H. C. DuBose secretary. The chairman then called upon Harry Brown who gave a most interesting talk on the commission manager form as his city, St. Augustine now has it and was followed by George A. DeCottes, city attorney of Sanford who represented the city of Sanford and gave a brief outline of the city affairs and charter under the aldermanic form.

City Manager Miller of St. Augustine followed with an outline of what a commission manager means and a history of the cities who have adopted the new form. The meeting then resolved itself into a family circle and Mr. Miller was asked many questions about the various ramifications of the commission manager form and particularly as to whether Sanford should have it or have the aldermanic form with a city manager.

Mr. Miller displayed several sketches of St. Augustine civic plan for a beautiful city along the lines laid down by the civic committees working in conjunction with the commissioners.

Chairman Neal then called for an expression of the citizens and it was decided to ask the chairman to appoint a committee of five business men of Sanford to investigate the situation here in Sanford and report on Wednesday night, Oct. 17th at another mass meeting where it will be definitely decided whether it is best to call an election to change the present charter and have the commission form of government.

The meeting last night was well attended and shows that the people are taking an added interest in city affairs and that the majority of them are in favor of a city manager for Sanford and that everyone will have the opportunity of talking it over and then voting on the matter.

Royal Arch Masons Regular convocation Thursday evening, 7:30. Royal Arch degree. Work will begin promptly at the opening hour in order that chapter may close not later than 10 o'clock. Light refreshments will be served after work. All visiting companions are cordially invited to be present. O. L. Taylor, High Priest. Secretary.

and therefore the people of this section should join him and give him all the support possible and come out and hear him for ten minutes next Saturday night at the Lyric. He will not tire you but will place the matter before you in a comprehensive manner and make it plain as to your duty in this great idea of saving the waste and wining the war.

Mr. Beacham is Herbert Hoover's special envoy and we should give him our time and attention while here.

COMMITTEE SAYS CONTROL PRINT PAPER

SENATE WANTS UNITED STATES TO TAKE OVER MANUFACTURE

Washington, Oct. 8.—A report recommending government operation of the print paper and pulp industries during the war and arraiging what it calls the defiant attitude of print paper producers was filed today by the senate printing committee. It will await action at the December session.

The report says the federal trade commission's findings "show beyond any question that the print paper industry in its greed for excessive profits has imposed a most unjust burden on the American press, which faces a serious disaster if relief can not speedily be had from the oppressive prices now exacted for print paper." It adds that the commission, in its recent investigation, exhausted every resource at its command to obtain relief for the publishers, but has been able to get only a small measure of relief, "owing to the defiant attitude assumed by the principal producers of print paper and lack of authority of the commission to enforce its findings as to a fair and reasonable price."

Under a resolution, introduced by Senator Smith of Arizona and reported by the committee for passage, the trade commission would be empowered to control the production and distribution of print paper and mechanical and chemical pulp in the United States. All print paper and pulp mills and agencies would be operated on government account and their products pooled in the commission's hands during the war emergency and equitably distributed at a price based on production and distribution cost plus a fair profit per ton, to be determined by the commission.

The committee report points out that as a result of the commission's investigations seven leading news print manufacturers have been indicted for violating the Sherman anti-trust law and the commission has entered formal complaint against the book paper manufacturers bureau of statistics and twenty-three members companies of that bureau, but that up to this time neither the indictments nor the complaints have afforded any measure of protection to the publishers.

Most of the newspapers of the country, the report says, are now up to the point where they must soon renew contracts and if adequate relief is to be had it must be without waiting for the prosecution of the indictments and complaints.

"The committee," it concludes, "submits to the senate whether it is better to safeguard the continuance of a free press in this country by assuring it an adequate supply of print paper at a fair and reasonable price or whether to permit a further increase in the excessive profits of the paper industry, which the federal trade commission declares is about to exact $17,500,000 more in excessive profits from the American publishers, who are loyally and patriotically supporting their government in this fateful hour."

Doctors Are at Work Dr. Calvin Young of the state board of health is in the city working in conjunction with Dr. Oliver J. Miller upon the cases of trachoma discovered in the schools. An examination of the school children will be made in the city schools and while a few cases have been discovered and sent to specialists for treatment it is not thought that the disease will be found here in a prevalent form. Dr. Miller will inspect the city schools and Dr. Denton the county schools and all cases will be isolated and the proper treatment applied. Wherever possible light cases will be treated here and preventatives applied to keep it from spreading. The doctors have the disease well in hand and will have no difficulty in eradicating it entirely from the schools.

Police Do Good Work The night police force caught several negroes carrying off groceries from G. W. Spencer's store and Hardman's store Friday night and promptly arrested them finding them with the goods on. Acting Mayor Dinglee after hearing the evidence bound them over to the county court where they will have time to ponder over the disadvantage of working in a town where the police are on the job.

Longwood Officers Elected At a recent mass meeting of the citizens of Longwood the officers for the year ending in December, 1918, were chosen, as is provided for in the bill passed at the last session of the legislature and they are now filling the offices of the newly incorporated city.

The officers as chosen are: Mayor, O. Frain; Clerk, Treasurer and Assessor, C. W. Entzinger; Marshal and Collector, T. J. Holloway; Council, G. B. Searcy, E. W. Driggers, J. M. Waitz, C. E. Hartley and J. A. Bistline.

Longwood is the second city in the county to incorporate and it is believed that the new city government will prove a fine thing for the little city.

Get Ready for the Federation

At the Methodist church on Sunday the services will be held as usual, except that in the Sunday school the annual promotion and graduation exercises will be held. This is designed as a rally day, a 100 per cent in attendance is the slogan for the day.

The motto "Get Ready for the Federation" will be prominent in all the services. The pastor will speak at both hours on themes which will be both inspiring and helpful. Every Methodist in Sanford should be in attendance in all the services on Sunday to catch every announcement and be ready to do his part to make the Federation a great success. This meeting means much to Sanford and Methodism.

AMERICA ORGANIZED HIGH SPEED

TRANSITION FROM PEACE TO WAR NATIONAL SENSATION

Washington, Oct. 8.—The transition in America from conditions of peace to those of war, from the standpoint of rapidity and thoroughness is without precedent in the history of democracies, says a statement issued tonight by the committee on public information. It details the nation's achievements since the declaration of war, six months ago.

"American industry and the people of the entire nation," the statement says, "answered speedily and efficiently the call to arms. Six months from the day war was declared finds the United States mobilized for the supreme task ahead." Congress, the committee's resume says, has enacted more important legislation during the extraordinary session ending today than in the preceding session in history.

Referring to the war department, the committee notes that without accident or disaster a large expeditionary force has been sent to France. More than a million drafted men and National Guardsmen are under training and the army has 80,000 trained officers instead of 20,000 six months ago. "Development of the Liberty motor which has withstood every aviation engine test is one of the major achievements of the war department and the aircraft production board. This was followed by the designing of a standard military truck."

Referring to the navy the statement says there are more than three times as many men and nearly three times as many vessels in service as when war was declared.

"The largest ship construction program in history is being carried out by the navy, comprising hundreds of vessels of various types from super-dreadnaughts to submarine chasers." The shipping board has under construction and contemplation a total tonnage of nearly 11,000,000 dead weight capacity, requiring a total authorization of $1,799,000,000.

The treasury department has disposed of more than $15,000,000,000 of government securities within a few months when the second Liberty loan campaign is completed.

The agricultural department and food administration have done effective work to increase the food supply, and the food administration to encourage proper production and distribution.

One of the accomplishments of the council of national defense and its advisory committee pointed to is the mobilization of 262,000 miles of railroads and of wire communication, and the systematic scheme of purchasing wheat the statement says has resulted in great economies. The exports administration "is now engaged in conserving the food supply of this country and regulating its exports so that the products of America will not reach her enemies."

Among The Theatres

"Betsy Ross"
At the Lyric tonight.
"Take thy knitting with thee and go downstairs and see John Ross. He hath come to ask thy hand in marriage."

Betsy Griscoom made a wry mouth at these words of her mother's, but as she was an obedient young Quakeress she did as she was bid. But to her sister, Clarissa, she said: "He shall get my hand in a slap rather than in marriage."

Downstairs big, awkward John Ross greeted Betsy shamefacedly. His love making made but little progress, owing to Betsy's careful efforts to prevent its progress, and finally John took his departure without proposing.

Betsy Meets Joseph
From her home Betsy stole forth to meet Joseph Ashburn, her sweet heart.

"Dearest Joseph," she murmured as she felt his lips upon hers.

"When I return from my next trip to the Indies," said Joseph, who with his maiden aunt owned a large fleet of merchant vessels, "we shall be married."

Report of Library War Council
The committee of ten who assisted in the Library War Council fund did excellent work and found the public most generous in contributions.

The small allotment of $50.00 was very easy to raise. In fact not half the territory of each member of the committee was covered.

As there are so many calls for the various war activities the committee felt it best to make no effort beyond the sum allotted.

The sum of $58.17 was forwarded, her instructions, by the treasurer, Mrs. A. B. Key, to the Library War Council headquarters in Washington, last Monday.

The committee who so willingly served is as follows:

- Mrs. A. D. Key, Treas.
- Mrs. E. McC. Galloway, campaign director
- Mrs. W. E. Scoggan

CURBSTONE GLEANINGS

BUDGET OF OPINION "JUST BETWEEN YOU AND ME."

EVEN THE GATE POST NOT IN IT

A CHIEF IS AMONG YE TAKING NOTES AND FAITH, "HE'LL PRENT 'EM"—SO SAYS SAUNTERER.

There is a question as to who first conceived the idea that people hurrying through the country in autos and railroad trains would stop to read and remember advertisements, but the fact that a lot of business concerns have more money than brains in their advertising departments is attested by the growth of the signboard pestilence throughout the country.

There may be persons who will be impressed with the advertisement of a product flaunted across a signboard which disfigures and uglifies an otherwise beautiful roadside view, but the average man who enjoys Nature unadorned and unlettered is more likely to boycott the article so advertised than to use it.

Within the last year, many of the beauty spots along the Dixie Highway have been ruined by the erection of large and monstrously ugly, glaring signboards, and at their recent rate of increase there is real danger that this famous drive, unequalled for beauty anywhere in the world may soon become a mere alley between fences of signboards.

The signboard man sees in the beauty of a roadside dell, meadow, vale, hammock or lake, only a spot in which he may display his prostitution of art and the evidence of his success in having blackmailed some trusting and gullible manufacturer. If nobody suffered but the advertiser, who thus wastes his money, nobody would object to the signboard man getting his money. The worst of it is, that the desecration of Nature and disfigurement of the highway is as lasting as the lumber on which it is built, and as if that was not bad enough, some ghouls have recently contrived the idea of galvanized iron signboards, which threaten to last even longer.

Taxpayers who have bonded and taxed themselves to build and beautify the Dixie Highway should find a way to put a sudden and lasting stop to this despoiling of America's most wonderful boulevard. If there is law to keep the highway free from the signboard vandals and their eyesores, a little night work by a few committees of vigilantes will probably be sufficient to discourage the continuance of the dirty work.

As I understand it this new wrinkle of the commission form of government is no new thing that is being sprung for other cities have tried it with success. And then it will not be forced upon anybody for it will take an election to decide whether the people here want to adopt the new form or not. There are several getting excited about it but the best thing to do in war times is to keep your shirt on and take everything calmly.

Some of the dog lovers are sore about the recent crusade started here to get rid of a lot of worthless curs and keep the balance of the dogs off the street unless they are accompanied by the owners and to keep them out of places of amusement. There is a place for dogs just as there is a place for hogs and neither have a place in the parlor. Let those who have fine dogs keep them at home where they will not bother other people and where there is no danger of any children being bitten by them. All of us remember several cases here of children being bitten and having to take the pasteur treatment, entailing a big cost to the parents aside from the fright and nervous shock and all from the bite of some tupenny flea that was not worth the powder and shot it would take to kill him. When dogs interfere with people the dogs should be kept in their place.

There are a lot of changes that will have to be made this winter if Sanford is to take her rightful place among the commonwealths of the state and while the operation may be painful to some they will be much better after it occurs. No great movement was ever made without giving pain to a few but they always get over it.

Remarking on the annual spring cleaning up time that the American public generally emphasizes so heavily the Orlando Reporter-Star is strong for a fall cleaning up. Clean-up weeks have become popular, according to the Reporter-Star, but they have usually been urged in the spring—and the greatest need for a clean up is in the autumn. "One of the incidental benefits of the garden movement," declares the newspaper, "should be that it has accustomed more people to work out of door. Formerly most men were lazy about doing anything around their homes. At the same time the loafing habit was strong and prevalent." Theidea was popular during the spring and summer, but now many places show great need of attention. The men may not have as much time and less inclination to clear away the wreck just now but the training secured earlier in the year will come in handy and a great many people will find, when they try to hire a yard man or boy to do a little of the work that the supply of extra help is very limited. The best thing to do is to get a start on the work, and perhaps the helper will come along, and if he doesn't, then after awhile the work will have been done anyway, and the householder will be no worse off for the exercise. The need of a fall cleaning up week or day is imperative. The summer accumulations are neither picturesque nor healthful, and besides, if the amateur gardener will inquire at the seed store he will find that this is the time for getting the winter garden started.

America is at war with Germany and any German in this country who insults the flag, the national anthems or any other American institution by word or act should be summarily dealt with and it matters not who this German may be. The time is past when we are supposed to stand for these studied insults to our flag and our country and if an example could be made of some of these Germans it would have a good effect on them. If there is any German here who is against the United States let him get out of the country that has fed him and made him what he is and get back to the autocratic empire that he left because he could not stand for the same autocratic principles that he now condones.

A carload is made up and shipped. When the returns come in from the buyer, the receipts are apportioned among the farmers according to the grade and weight of anomia ship. Should an animal die in transit, the loss is prorated among the shippers. The same is true of any commission, yardage or terminal charges. These charges are deducted before the division of the price received is made.

The scheme has been worked for a good while in that Mississippi community and the farmers are all satisfied. There was some dissatisfaction at first with the grading but the farmers have learned that there is a difference in hogs and cannot see the necessity of it. Also, most farmers can now grade their own hogs, which is conducive to the raising of better hogs.

This plan does away with the middleman. It serves to make the lot of the itinerant buyer hard; and such fellows don't visit a community often after the practice has been established.

In this plan of marketing, no effort is made to standardize the shipment. That is, no one particular breed or size is shipped. Everything is taken. But better prices would be had if enough farmers could be found to make up a standardized shipment.

Destroy the Cotton Stalks
Regardless of all measures thus far used against the cotton boll weevil its advance has not been stopped. But there are measures which if used in time will check the advance or reduce the infestation for the following year. One of these measures recommended by the University of Florida extension division is to destroy all cotton stalks in the fields at the earliest time practicable.

Cotton is the only plant upon which the weevil is known to feed. It is important therefore to take steps to starve the insect. This can be done most effectively by growing other crops. The only way to check its spread and still grow cotton is to grow early varieties and to destroy the stalks as soon as the crop is harvested.

The weevil winters in the adult stage. If cotton is available for it to feed upon it will begin hibernation late and will be able to exist through the winter. If the cotton is destroyed so that nothing is left for it to feed upon it will go into winter quarters earlier and so is apt to die. It has been shown that weevils go into hibernation in December have a much better chance to live than those going into hibernation in November. Fifteen per cent of the former will live where but one per cent of the latter will survive the winter.

It is for this reason that the burning of all cotton stalks as soon as the crop is picked is recommended. Cut the stalks, or uproot them, preferably, pile on the row and burn. Then plow the land. If the farmer will not stop growing cotton for a few years; he can at least grow a crop which will mature during the early August so as to escape the weevil. The practice of destroying the old stalks must be observed in any case.

Just for far the weevils have advanced this year has not yet been determined, but many of them have reached Alachua county; so many in fact that the county may be said to be generally infested.

Standardize Farm Products
In these days of high prices the market will be very particular. While food of all kinds is sufficiently scarce to bring good prices, it will be just as true this year as during normal years, that the carefully selected, graded and packed product will command the highest price. Just any old thing will not find a market.

Perhaps sweet potatoes are not scarce; they certainly are not in Florida. Yet the same conditions are true—the man who handles his potatoes carefully from the field to the market will get the best prices. And if they are bought for shipment, only the best will be taken. A bruised potato is worth nothing as a shipper.

Standardize your products. That is one of the secrets of finding a good market, says the University of Florida extension division. Standardized products mean a square deal. Farmers must establish brands and grades and live up to the labels put on the packs. If the buyer can go to the warehouse or write to a grower for a certain brand and quality of produce and be sure of getting it, the process of marketing is simplified and made less expensive.

Standardization is best effected by an organization of some sort. A community can establish a brand but small farmers cannot. Each will have his own standards and grades and the products will be of all degrees in regard to size and quality. Furthermore, an association is necessary to have efficient inspection to see that honest packs are given.

The value of standardized product. The value of standardized products is greater than those just as good. They have a name, and are packed with the idea of making that name stand for the best. The citrus growers know this and go to great expense to have their products just right. The added expense is returned to them in increased prices. Marketing organizations are the thing, and many Florida communities are finding it out.

Harden Hogs for the Market
Packers object to peanut-fed hogs because the meat and lard are soft and oily. This objection is most frequently found with hogs that were in poor condition when they were turned on to peanut pasture. If they have been fed well all summer before pasturing on peanuts the meat and lard will not be so oily, says the University of Florida extension division.

In any case it is well to feed corn with the peanuts. Sweet potatoes will also produce a firm fat, and it is a good practice to use peanuts and sweet potatoes in adjoining fields so that the hogs can harvest the two together. Without some such provision the hogs cannot be marketed advantageously and may be discriminated against so seriously as to make their production a loss.

Packers require that the animals be finished on corn or sweet potatoes during the last few weeks before they are placed on the market. It is best to give some of these feeds along with the peanuts, and the final change to the finishing feeds should be made gradually over sixty or more days.

Compost Saves Fertilizer
Commercial fertilizers do not build up the soil. They act merely as stimulants. The best means of increasing the fertility of the soil is by the addition of organic matter. The compost pile is one means of supplying good organic material for the farm. The materials which can be used are ordinarily wasted, and the expense of making the pile is slight when compared with its fertilizing value.

C. K. McQuarrie of the University of Florida extension division gives the following direction for building a compost heap: Make a water tight foundation by puddling clay. Spread the clay about ten to twelve inches thick, molten and tramp. A train of logs or of lumber should be started around the pile and gradually built up as material is added. The size of the pile must be determined by the amount of manure produced in a week. This will depend on the number of animals kept. The pile should accommodate the accumulation of a week, spread five or six inches deep.

A layer of leaves, straw, grass or weeds even, 15 to 18 inches deep should be placed on the clay. It is probable that the heat generated would kill any weed seeds. Then place a layer of manure five or six inches deep over the trash. If raw phosphate is available sprinkle fifty to eighty pounds over the manure. Then add another layer of trash, followed by a layer of manure. The pile should be kept moist. Sprinkle if rains do not occur often enough and keep it well tramped. Some farmers make the pile under a shed where they can regulate the moisture to suit the need.

It takes about a year for the pile to rot sufficiently for use. It should be spread on the land in the late fall. Another pile should be started as soon as the year is up. The compost pile will add materially to the fertility of the land and will furnish better fertilizer than the commercial product.

Thornwell Orphans in Need
The death of Dr. W. P. Jacobs, founder and president of Thornwell Orphanage, leaves the orphan family of over 300 without a president. The vice president, Rev. B. J. Branch, resigned effective October 1st, which leaves the institution without an official head.

The responsibility of the care of the children is on the Board of Trustees, who are unfitted to do the work.

A new president has been elected, but it may be some time before he can come. In the meantime the children need bread and clothing and school books. There is no money in the treasury, none whatever. The property of the institution cannot be hypothecated to borrow money. The charter prevents that.

Will the reader try to realize these hundreds of bright, beautiful orphan children actually without the means to buy bread? For that is exactly the situation. When Dr. Jacobs found the institution in such a situation he always told it to the good people. He trusted that God would put it into their hearts to send the money or the food or the clothing, and God never forsook him and never forsook the children.

We are not competent to present the matter as he did, but we tell the story without any gloss and without adequate language. It is literally true that these children whom Dr. Jacobs always called "God's children" are without fathers and without a president, and without money and without food, and they are in need of winter clothing and school books for the new term. Everything costs more than it has been costing. The dollars which are coming in are spent as carefully as possible, but they are too few to meet the bills. The institution is therefore face to face with the fact that it cannot furnish the children with nutritious food and with warm clothing unless the gifts of God's people are greatly enlarged and quickly forwarded.

If the reader could only pass from cottage to cottage and get acquainted with the beautiful girls and the fine many boys and talk with them about themselves, and about the institution, their work, the love of the children themselves would bring all that they need, but only a few of those who read this have opportunity to visit the institution and know the children personally. To such it is only possible to realize the situation if they can imagine their own children without a father, without mother, without money, in many cases without friends, housed in a wonderful home where the leader, the adopted father, is dead, and where there is no one to provide.

We are trying to lay the matter upon your hearts, gentle readers, that upon your hearts, gentle readers, that you may be the more willing to share the responsibility with us. "Inasmuch as ye did it upon one of the least of these, my brethren, ye did it unto me."

All donations should be sent to Board of Trustees, Thornwell Orphanage, Clinton, S. C.

Farmers and Fruit Growers

Items of Interest for the Man Behind the Plow

"The farmer with one or two hogs to market may think that he is at the mercy of the itinerant buyer, but he is not. All he needs do is find enough more farmers with small lots to sell and combine with them to make a carload shipment." That is the opinion of F. W. Farley of the U. S. Department of Agriculture who addressed the livestock round up at the University of Florida.

And to prove that his statement was not one of theory, he told how cooperative marketing was done in one Mississippi community. There the county agent sets a time for hogs to be brought in. As the hogs arrive they are weighed and graded. Each farmer is given a receipt for so many hogs of one grade or another, or for so many pounds of certain grades.

A carload is made up and shipped. When the returns come in from the buyer, the receipts are apportioned among the farmers according to the grade and weight of anomia ship. Should an animal die in transit, the loss is prorated among the shippers. The same is true of any commission, yardage or terminal charges. These charges are deducted before the division of the price received is made.

The scheme has been worked for a good while in that Mississippi community and the farmers are all satisfied. There was some dissatisfaction at first with the grading but the farmers have learned that there is a difference in hogs and cannot see the necessity of it. Also, most farmers can now grade their own hogs, which is conducive to the raising of better hogs.

HOG RAISING IN FLORIDA

By A. P. Spencer

Hogs can be made a cash crop on Florida farms. They are specially adapted to this purpose on small farms where they can be raised in stead of cotton. Properly handled, it is easily possible to produce 1,600 pounds of meat a year from the offspring of one sow.

At present meat prices there is a wide margin of profit to the farmer who produces well bred, growthy hogs. If a rotation of pasture crops lasting through the entire year is provided in addition to sufficient corn, peanuts, cowpeas and chufas to supplement the pastures and fatten the hogs for market, the work will be profitable. Owing to the abnormally high prices of all grains, starchy feeds such as sweet potatoes, cassava and dasheens, and kitchen slops should be authorized to supplement grains.

Pastures Not Sufficient
Stock hogs can be kept thrifty largely on pastures; however, they will not grow rapidly without some grain. Hogs should be supplied with suitable green forage and so managed as to consume as much of it as possible, since forage is by far the cheapest feed that can be used. One or two pounds of grain daily in addition to pasturage for every hundred pounds live weight is sufficient for young hogs. It is better to feed this from troughs than to allow the hogs to gather grain from crops in the field, for in the field the hogs will like entirely off the grain since they prefer it to the pasturage. By feeding in this way pork can be produced on Florida farms at low cost.

Fattening Feeds
Corn, peanuts, chufas and velvet beans are the best grains for fattening. Sweet potatoes, cassava and dasheens when boiled and mixed with grains give excellent results in fattening hogs. Where all of these can be grown on the farm, giving a variety of feeds, good results may be had. Corn and sweet potatoes are the best finishing feeds for the production of firm meat and lard. Packers cull out peanut-fattened hogs and discount the ones and discount the price. Hogs should be fed chiefly on corn for four weeks before slaughtering.

More Hogs Needed to Create Good Markets

If it were possible to secure a carload of finished hogs in any community once a week throughout the year, the price paid for them should be the same as for the same grade of hogs near the large packing centers, less freight charges. The low prices paid in Florida are due largely to the lack of a number of hogs sufficient to furnish a regular supply. In order to have a steady market there must be competition among buyers and a sufficient number of hogs on the farm to warrant the business of the packers. While light hogs may sell best in local trade the packers demand an average of 175 to 300 pounds live weight. They cannot use the smaller ones profitably except at a lower price. A steady supply of the marketable kind would insure uniformly higher prices to farmers.

Improving the Quality

Those who intend to engage in the hog business should procure pure-bred or high grade breeding stock at the start. It has been hard to get them, but now there are enough breeders throughout the south raised or high grade breeding stock to furnish most of what is needed. Well bred hogs grow uniformly and dress out better than scrubs, consequently the buyers discriminate against the poorer ones. Where it is desired to grade up native stock one can cross them with any of the improved breeds and produce good hogs. This is an expensive method since it takes two years or longer to improve the quality so that it will compare favorably with better bred hogs. While the breed is largely a matter of personal choice it is to the advantage of any community to adhere closely to one breed for the sake of uniformity in marketing.

Keeping Hogs Thrifty

It is a common complaint that hogs become unthrifty and that many die from diseases. This trouble is not confined to Florida; many states have suffered more from hog cholera than has Florida. Nevertheless, too many hogs become unthrifty or die because of neglect, disease, lice and worms. The general use of the anti-cholera serum has changed the attitude of farmers who hesitated to buy good hogs because of loss from cholera. By using vats and wallows hogs are kept free from lice. Medicines and a change of pasture keep them free from worms. A still more important consideration is the necessity of keeping hogs confined to pastures. Hogs that are allowed free range cannot avoid coming in contact with sick animals or grazing over pastures that are badly infested with worms. A business as important as hog raising requires careful management and if handled properly can be made more profitable under a greater variety of conditions than most other general farming undertakings.

Ranson Visits Sanford

St. Augustine, Fla., Sept. 25, 1917
Editor Sanford Herald:
About once every two years since 1885 I have had occasion to visit Sanford and with the exception of the lean years following the 1895 freeze when things stood still for a while, I not only note each time I come here the rapid advance of the town and surrounding country and the great improvements but I have to be shown around as if in a new location. The country has to be learned all over again.

For intensive farming this section of Florida surely takes first prize and I am expecting some time to go down there and find that you have taken our climate insurance by covering Seminole county with blue grass at a cost of ten thousand dollars an acre and getting back twenty thousand annually.

Each kisit is marked in my mind with some new effort along the line of real utility and now having conquered the perfect task of perfect irrigation and drainage, attention is being turned to a real substantial improvement of the soil tending to eliminate the constant application of commercial fertilizers, the aviation prices of which have about reached the back-breaking point. Parenthetically it may be noted from the reports of our State Agricultural Department, that Florida uses about ten million dollars worth of commercial fertilizer annually. Of this probably two million dollars worth is a home production in the shape of phosphate and cotton seed meal and the problem our farmers and investigative men have to solve, is to see if Florida does not possess sufficient raw material from which to make the other eight million.

Of this at least two-thirds are nitrates or ammoniates and on account of the demand caused by the need of explosives in the war, the prices of these ingredients have more than doubled since 1914.

Sanford is surrounded with vast bodies of muck, peat or decayed vegetable matter, or whatever other name may be applied to it, containing in each dry ton about fifty pounds of ammonia or its equivalent in nitrogen. As the average depth of these deposits insures a yield of one thousand tons to each acre we have a potential yield of twenty-five tons of ammonia per acre, the equivalent of one hundred tons of ammonium sulphate or one hundred and twenty-five tons of nitrate of soda.

Besides its actual chemical value some 53 per cent of this with proper treatment soon develops into soluble humus, the very essence of plant life and in its way just as necessary to successful farming as the more expensive chemicals before alluded to.

From what I can learn no Sanford grower has ever applied muck to his land during the past few years that has not been richly rewarded and in proportion to the amount applied and the care used in thoroughly mixing it with the soil, results have been more or less satisfactory.

Impressed by the great possibilities of good to Sanford and the neighborhood, different men have spent their time and money to develop the business of collecting and preparing muck put in the best possible shape for application to the soil with varying success.

On this my last visit to Sanford I was pleased to see Messrs. Chappell Bros. had undertaken this problem in an intelligent manner and have a suction dredge at work pumping up the equivalent of about twenty thousand cubic yards of this material for application to the land. This experiment is not without its difficulties and represents a considerable outlay in work and money. From an experience of more than ten years of actual work and observation of different methods of excavating, drying, and preparing this material for soil enrichment, I feel safe in endorsing their procedure up to date.

There can be no question of the great value of their work to the whole trucking community and the solution of the high priced fertilizer problem by the use of Nature's preparation now dawning, will ere long be as much a recognized part of the Celery City's assets as her wonderful system of drainage and irrigation.

"I Never Have to Break in a Bookkeeper"

How Machine Methods Benefit Our Customers

Handling over a million crates and hampers of fruits and vegetables that find their destination in all corners of the United States and Canada was the record established last year in our business of supplying North-American markets with choice Florida-Grown produce. And this great volume of trade was carried on with a minimum of delay and with satisfaction to our customers.

With the large growth in volume of business and the consequent increase in the bookkeeping work, old-style, hand methods proved inadequate to carry the bookkeeping load. This condition pointed us straight to Burroughs Direct-to-Ledger Posting. The Burroughs Bookkeeping Machine which we installed not only put our figure work on a basis of mechanical accuracy, but it solved for us the costly problem of every year having to break in a new bookkeeper. Our experience has proved to us that no previous training is necessary to operate a Burroughs; anyone in our office can quickly take the place of our regular operator, if necessary.

The Burroughs Adding Machine Co., has published a two-page advertisement in the October issue of "System" magazine, telling about our business and how the Burroughs Bookkeeping Machine has helped us to surmount the difficulties that pen-and-ink bookkeeping could not overcome. A facsimile of the advertisement is reproduced above. We are glad indeed to have our progressive business methods featured in this manner.

Burroughs Direct-to-Ledger Posting has benefited our customers as well as our selves by the fact that their accounts are always posted up-to-date, making it easy to find how they stand at any time. Moreover, there is no danger of posting items to the wrong account because the posting work is checked positively. Our customers are also given a better statement service, thanks to the Burroughs, and statements are now mailed out promptly at the first of the month.

The installation of machine bookkeeping is only one of the ways in which we have modernized our business so as better to take care of our customers. Since its inception, mechanical means have been used to save time and labor in all departments of our company, from the fleet of automobiles used in delivering goods, to the various appliances in the office. And this, we feel, has made for quicker handling of customers' orders and improved service all along the line.

The Commission form of government is simply changing the order of things to conform with advanced methods and progressive ideas of city management and is no reflection on the present city officials.

Dr. Lincoln Hulley, president of Stetson University and one of the big men of the state will be a candidate for state senate in Volusia county next spring and has already made his announcement.

The editor of The Herald left last night for Tallahassee to attend the meeting of the Florida Highway Association and with the cooperation of other good men will endeavor to have Sanford placed on the Dixie Highway where the good roads and progress in all public affairs should give her the rightful place.

ORGANIZED FOR USE

Doubtless it has occurred to many people that a company of County Guards that cannot be ordered for service out of the county in which it has been raised falls a good deal short of being an efficient substitute for the departed National Guard.

NOT SO SLOW

By CLIFFORD HILLMAN.

Douglas Jones had always nourished a secret desire to visit Ocean Beach during the winter.

After he had settled himself comfortably in his seat in the Pullman car he rather regretted his hasty decision.

His eyes rested upon her face. He could not tell exactly what it was that held his gaze.

The light in her eyes told him the reason. (Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

men, lolled on the over-stuffed divans and read the evening papers. From around the corner came the sound of clattering dishes.

Douglas lighted the biggest cigar he could buy and, seating himself before the closed window against which the rain pattered ceaselessly, gazed out over the deserted boardwalk.

A few minutes later, having fought his way against the biting wind and rain, he entered the natorium.

"Well, if it isn't Douglas Jones! What in the world are you doing here?"

"Tom Burbank! What do you know about that?"

"Four girls! The dying hope in Douglas's heart revived suddenly.

"You must mean Evelyn Davison," he answered finally. "She couldn't get here until late."

"I should say so; she's my sister's chum."

"Come on, let's get on our suits."

It took Douglas a remarkably short time to don his suit, but when he entered the pool, the others were before him.

"I have an idea that I've seen you somewhere before," she remarked.

"You did," Douglas answered happily. "I sat opposite you on the train for two hours."

It was perhaps forty minutes later when Mildred Terrill, hostess of the house party, suggested that Douglas remove his belongings from the Ocean House and join the others at her cottage.

"Do you know," he said to Evelyn on the way home, "I thought that Ocean Beach in winter was the slowest place on earth. But now, it doesn't seem such a slow place after all. I wonder why!"

cases, which are the most urgent. In the old days such wounds, because of the delay before they could be treated and cleaned, were generally considered to be fatal; but under the new conditions, by which a man so hit is placed in an ambulance and sent off immediately, if necessary, without waiting for other wounded to be placed in with him, the dangerous delay is overcome, and the wound kept aseptic and more amenable to treatment.

Cobb Buys Cigar Store

Claude C. Cobb has purchased the old Maxwell stand on West First street and the business was opened today under the new manager and will be conducted by him in the future under his personal management. The Maxwell store is a good stand and has always enjoyed a fine patronage. Cigars, magazines and newspapers are handled in connection with a soda fountain. Mr. Cobb needs no introduction to the people of Sanford as he has lived here for a number of years. He was in the mercantile business at Monroe for several years since which time he has been in the produce business and automobile business in Sanford. Being an energetic young man and one with a host of friends, he will make good in his new business venture.

Paul is a North Carolinian by birth but his parents moved south many years ago and while he does not expect to do much Palm Beaching during his absence nevertheless he is confident he is going to have a good time. While quite a lot of people "cussed" Paul when he was "speed top" he enforced the speed ordinances strictly to the letter and played no favorites.—Lewiston, Montana, News.

HAPPENINGS OF INTEREST IN AND AROUND SANFORD

In the absence of Mrs. Norma McLaughlin, Miss Virginia Brady will have charge of this department. Any assistance rendered Miss Brady will be greatly appreciated.

Bowler—Deal Nuptials

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Deal, in Taylorsville, N. C., was the scene of a quiet but beautiful wedding yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when their daughter, Ruby, became the bride of Mr. Allen Thurman Bowler, formerly of this city, but now of Raleigh, N. C. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Bowler of Jacksonville, and since making his home in North Carolina has frequently visited here.

The reception hall and dining room and drawing room were opened en suite and were beautifully decorated in autumn colors, the color motif being exquisitely carried out with masses of goldenrod and other autumn flowers in shades of yellow and gold, together with autumn foliage. The hall and dining room were adorned with quantities of yellow dahlias, used to advantage with palms and ferns. In the drawing room where the ceremony took place goldenrod, hydrangea and greenery. At one end of the room was an improvised altar, covered with white and with white satin pillow on the kneeling bench. Over the altar was an arch of goldenrod and hydrangea. The daylight was excluded, and the lights were shaded with yellow, which with the glow of myriads of candles presented a striking effect.

Rev. H. Pressley of Statesville, N. C., officiated, and was assisted by Rev. J. J. Edwards, the bride's pastor.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Mabel Bowler of Jacksonville, sister of the bridegroom sang Cadman's At Dawning, after which the bridal party entered to the strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin, rendered by Miss Mary Sharpe at the piano. During the ceremony Miss Sharpe played softly Love's Confiding by Farrar.

The bride was attended by the Misses Estelle Flowers of Durham, N. C., and Ethel Wood of Spartanburg, S. C., as bridesmaids; Miss Florence Hildebrand of Winston-Salem, N. C., as maid of honor, little Miss Sarah Miller as flower girl and Master William Dale, Crownson, nephew of the bride as ring bearer.

The bridesmaids wore white net dresses and yellow tulle hats and carried yellow chrysanthemums.

Miss Hildebrand was attired in yellow tulle over gold cloth and wore a gold lace hat and carried yellow roses tied with pink and blue tulle.

The flower girl wore a frock of white organdie and yellow hair ribbons. She carried a basket of yellow dahlias and ferns.

The bridegroom and his best man Mr. H. S. Newbold entered from a side door and met the bride and her attendants at the altar. The bride entered with her father, who gave her in marriage.

The bride was charming in a girlish gown of old ivory satin, with draperies of lace and tulle embroidered in silver. With this she wore a short bridal veil of tulle, and her flowers were an arm bouquet of bride-roses, with a shower of valley lilies.

Following the nuptial ceremony a reception was held during which the couple received the congratulations of their friends.

During the reception Miss Bowler sang O Perfect Love by Burleigh.

Early in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Bowler left for a trip to include various northern cities of interest. On their return they will reside in Raleigh.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Deal, and is a granddaughter of the late Congressman R. Z. Linnoy. She was educated in the State Normal College in Greensboro, N. C.

Mr. Bowler is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Minor H. Bowler of Jacksonville. He is the secretary of the chamber of commerce in Raleigh, N. C., where a cordial welcome awaits the couple on their return there to reside.—Times Union.

Funeral of Mrs. Wiley E. Edwards

The funeral of Mrs. Wiley E. Edwards occurred from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Williams, Saturday afternoon at 2:30. The Revs. Brownlee and Steinmeyer conducted the services. The pall bearers were Clarence Mahoney, Ernest Housholder, Arthur Yowell, W. J. Thigpen, L. P. McCuller and B. L. Perkins.

Saides Williams was born in Gadsden, Tenn., Dec. 13th, 1890. Her parents moved to Sanford two years later. The people who knew and loved her watched her grow from babyhood to girlhood and bud into womanhood. The 29th day of last November these same friends gathered around to bid her good-bye—up Saturday and stayed until Monday with her parents.

Tobacco Fund Growing

Big Hearted People of Seminole Come Through With the Money

If you ever were homesick, you don't need to have the sensations described to you. If there's any worse sickness than that, nobody has discovered it; and nobody knows any cure for it.

here; or some girl who is more dear to him than any other; or friends who know and think of him; who will eagerly scan the newspapers for any news that they may tell of him, either of joy or disaster, and he

he doesn't want cigarettes, the next man to him does; and every whiff he takes of this good tobacco "tastes like home." He finds a postcard in the package, with your name; maybe he doesn't know a soul in this city.

Never mind; he knows that somebody "back home" has sent him a package of smokes; it tastes like home to him; it smells like home, to him and those around him. If you sto0 and think a minute you'll say that its worth a good deal to give such a man, who is fighting your fight far from home, that sort of a taste. But it only costs a quarter; 25 cents; the price of a couple of cigars.

Don't miss it; bring or send to our soldiers' Tobacco Fund, a quarter or as many quarters as you can spare. Give the boys at the front a taste of home.

The big hearted people of Seminole county have been responding nobly to the call for the tobacco fund for the boys and many a boy and many a Seminole county boy will be tickled in the future to receive a Sanford Herald comfort kit in faraway France and to know that his own folks sent it to him. We left a kit at the banks and several business houses and did not have any idea that any of the men would go out after subscriptions but Warren Tyler of the First National and O. L. Taylor of the Peoples could not keep still when there was something for the soldiers and Warren kicked in yesterday with the big sum of $15 and Oscar Taylor with $7.75 and this is a great big help to the fund. Mirrors of Twelfth Century.

From the twelfth to the fifteenth century small mirrors, carried in the pocket, or attached to the girdle, were regarded as indispensable adjuncts to ladies' toilets. The pocket mirror was a circular plaque of polished metal fixed in a shallow box and covered with a lid.

Queer Ideas About Snakes.

The people of Uruguay have some queer ideas and superstitions. One is that, if one throws a live snake into a fire, it will stick out its legs, which it keeps concealed under its scales. This idea probably arose from the scales sticking outward as the snake felt the heat. Another idea is that for every snake one kills during Easter week one is let off a year in purgatory.

Man's Mind Like a Garden.

A man's mind may be likened to a garden which may be intelligently cultivated or allowed to run wild; but whether cultivated or neglected, it must, and will, bring forth. If no useful seeds are put in, then an abundance of useless weed seeds will fall therein and will continue to produce their kind.—James Allen.

First Step to Greatness.

"The first step to greatness is to be honest."—Johnson.

If your imagination is in any kind of working order, you can easily imagine the feelings of an American soldier somewhere in France, far from home, in unfamiliar surroundings, confronting an enemy who will take his life if possible.
He may have a wife and children knows what they think and feel about him; a knowledge which does not make him any less homesick or any less unhappy.

And into this trouble and despondent existence comes a package from home—anywhere in the United States seems like home to him. If Desirable Design for a Bathrobe.

It is simple to make and easy to launder.
As easy to make as it is to launder is this very desirable bathrobe, made of Turkish towelling with a pretty blue border. It is made with an open neck, finished by a square collar and the long sleeves are in one piece. The front and back of the bath robe are cut in one and the pattern also provides for slippers which can be made of the same material. Medium size requires 4 1/2 yards of 36-inch towelling.
The home dressmaker pardons the emphasis put on the study of the cutting guide, because unless this is carefully followed mistakes are almost certain to occur. First fold the towelling on the cutting table, then place the back of the robe on the lengthwise fold as illustrated in the cutting guide. Lay the front to the right of it, then follow with the slipper, pocket, collar and sleeve, placing the collar on a lengthwise fold of the material. If bordered material is used cut-off lower edges of the front, back and sleeves along small "o" perforations and place patterns on material with lower edges.
Satin ribbon makes a pretty blind ing for the upper edges of the slip pers.
