Board to vote on new leaders

SANFORD — The Seminole County School Board will vote this evening on a new chairman and vice chairman to lead them through the next year.

The vote will come just prior to the regularly scheduled meeting at 7 p.m.

Board members themselves will nominate possible chairmen and vice chairmen from among their ranks.

Though none of the board members contacted were prepared to speculate on who the new board chairman might be, the leadership traditionally changes annually.

Presently, Jeanne Morris is the school board chairman and Sandy Robinson is the vice chair.

It is the chairman's responsibility to oversee the operations of the meetings and to lead the superintendent's executive committee. The vice chairman will act in his or her place if the chair is absent.

Each of the board members has an equal opportunity to serve in the top leadership spot.

This evening, the board will also vote on the time and dates of their regularly scheduled meetings.

It is not expected that there will be any change in that regard.

The board has, since 1989, met on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month at 3:30 and 7:30 p.m. respectively.

The meeting times coincide with those of other school districts around the central Florida area.

FDEP recommends approval

SANFORD — The Florida Department of Environmental Protection is recommending the National Park Service approve the county's training facility at Sylvan Lake Park, county officials said this morning. No longer oriented solely toward soccer, the facility's weight rooms and showers will be available as part of a soccer, tennis or racquetball package, said deputy county manager Kevin Grace. The changes, if accepted, will not require a change to the county contract with the U.S. Soccer Federation. The USSF intends to use the facility as its main training center for coaches and players.

In August, DEP's Florida Park Service notified the county the USSF contract violated a state and federal grant agreement requiring the park to remain open to the public. Grace said the proposal assures anyone may use the facility if it's available.

Waterfront meeting set

SANFORD — The Waterfront Master Plan Steering Committee will meet this Wednesday, Nov. 17, in the city manager's conference room at Sanford City Hall.

Items on the agenda include a report from the design subcommittee, report from the function/organization subcommittee, a report on the waterfront banner project, and discussion of the joint waterfront-Main Street project.

Other items may also be brought up for discussion.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 4:30 at Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue, in Sanford.

Cop's sex trial begins

With jury in place, testimony on 84 counts underway today

Guy Brewster in an earlier court appearance

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Testimony is expected to get underway today in the trial of a former Sanford policeman charged with 84 counts of sex with a minor.

Before jury selection began Monday morning, it appeared the eleventh hour filing of another count against Brewster and a statement of particulars might delay the two-year-old case from going to trial as scheduled.

A mistrial was declared in September when the chief witness against Brewster testified to a sex act which the former policeman was not charged with committing in the criminal information. Judge Alan Dickey chastised assistant state attorney Meryl Allowas for the last minute filing of the new charge, noting she had two months to do so. She said a computer glitch between the Brevard and Seminole offices of the state attorney's office delayed the filing.

Defense attorneys Jeff Deen and Bob Fisher argued Brewster was entitled to a 24-hour delay under the trial rules to answer the charge and reasonable time to prepare for trial.

Brewster is charged with having sex with a young boy over a two-year period. Brewster met the youth while serving as the school resource officer at Lakeview Middle School. The boy later joined the Police Explorers group which Brewster led.

High schools encourage reading

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — In a nationwide survey, it was found that 17-year-olds think it is more important to learn math and computer skills than to read. And only 42 percent spend time each week reading books other than homework.

"Yes, I think that may be true," said Verna Jackson, an assistant principal at Seminole High School. "We try to encourage the kids to read, but I don't think there's enough emphasis on reading in high school."

She said, however, that administrators at Seminole were trying to change that. The school is presently searching for a reading teacher to help those students who are reading below their grade level.

"But we are also encouraging our teachers to informally talk to students when they have a few minutes and see what they're reading outside of school," Jackson said. Nine-year-olds are twice as likely to read books as are 17-year-olds, the survey found. Some 86 percent said they do so at least a few times a week. The survey was released today by the American Federation of Teachers, a union, and Chrysler Corp.

Many Seminole County elementary schools encourage their students to "drop everything and read" at various times throughout the school day and try to see to it that the students read at home as well.

"We know that reading is very important and we try to do whatever we can to encourage our students to learn to love reading," Dave Scott, principal at Hamilton Elementary School said. "We try to encourage the whole school from the students to the teachers to the clerical staff to drop everything a read at different times in the school day."

Longwood: New board in business

LONGWOOD — Borrowing a line from the title of Bob Dylan's classic, "The Times They Are A Changin'," in Longwood as newly elected city commissioners participated in their first meeting and the city attorney and administrator in their last Monday night.

Mayor Paul Lovstrand began giving a brief glimpse into the future when he called for work sessions followed by special meetings on Nov. 22 and Nov. 29 to deal with budget cutting and solid waste disposal.

The commission by a 4-to-1 vote also welcomed on board interim city administrator Gerald Korman and city attorney Richard S. Taylor. Commissioner Iris Benson suggested candidates for the two positions, even for an interim period, should be selected in accordance with the city charter selection process.

Lawmakers to address freshwater protection

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — The fate of Geneva Bubble protection now goes to the Florida Legislature.

Members of the Geneva Freshwater Lens Task Force completed their six-month review of regulations affecting the 25-square-mile bubble area Monday. The report must be submitted to the Senate president and speaker of the House by Dec. 1.

The group OK'd a 45-item list of recommendations which could affect every resident, business and land owner in the Geneva area if adopted.

If directed by the Legislature, the state, county and St. Johns River Water Management District will be required to pass rules and regulations designed by the task force to protect the bubble water quality and assure plenty of bubble water will be available for present and future Geneva residents.

Task force members interviewed Monday said they were pleased with the results. One member called the work precedent-setting and said he will recommend the report be used as a model for statewide water-protection regulations.

"It is very good," said Rodney DeHan, manager of statewide groundwater programs for the Florida Department of Environmental Protection. See Bubble, Page 2A

Timber-r-r Two Lake Mary residents want trees cut down

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Two Lake Mary residents will plead similar but separate cases to the Lake Mary City Commission Thursday night. The city won't let them remove trees which they say could pose a threat.

Joseph Williams, 168 Oakview Circle, in Country Club Oaks, says there is a tree adjacent to his driveway, beginning to uplift the concrete. He feels that the eventual damage to his driveway will be costly to repair, and would like permission to have it removed before the damage becomes significant.

The city has previously said no, because the removal does not comply with Chapter 94 of the city codes regarding trees.

Charles Simpkins 176 Van Buren Avenue, applied back in September, for permission to remove a tree that he fears may fall onto his home during severe weather.

The city had denied his request because the removal does not comply with Chapter 94 of the city codes regarding trees.

The code lists conditions under which a tree may be removed from personal property in Lake Mary. In summing up the document, city Associate Planner Susan Deines said a tree may be removed:

• If it is less than six inches in diameter See Trees, Page 5A

Man's roommate accused of abuse

SANFORD — An elderly man was recovering at a hospital Monday after police answered a call about an injured man and found him with maggot-infested bedsores, unable to get up from a sofa.

James Johnson, 70, was listed in fair and stable condition at Florida Hospital-Altamonte Springs.

Roommate Willie C. Edwards, 41, was charged with abuse and exploitation of an aged person. He was being held Monday in the Seminole County jail in Sanford with bail set at $2,000.

Sanford police officer David Semones said in an arrest report he discovered Johnson on a living room sofa Saturday. Rescue workers had to wear air tanks to protect themselves from the stench in the home, officials said.

A board holding food had been placed across his chest but had fallen to one side, and the food and utensils had fallen between Johnson and the sofa. He suffered from severe bed sores, and his mouth was stuffed with food, Semones said.

Bubble

"The commitments made, if implemented, will be very protective of the lens (the technical name for a freshwater bubble). It will set a precedent for protecting sensitive areas such as this."

DeHann also serves on a statewide task force that is examining protection regulations for recharge areas throughout the state. Land that allows rainwater to flow quickly to the natural underground drinking water reserve is called a recharge area.

"It's policy, so it's good," said Mike Rich, representing Geneva's Save Our Bubble organization. "It looks pretty good. We'll be working on the Legislature next."

"It has some real good recommendations in it," said task force chairman Pat Harden. "I'm certain the bubble folks would've wanted something stricter and the business and ag folks would've liked something more lenient, but that's the way it goes with these kinds of efforts."

Among the major recommendations of the task force are:

- Defining the bubble as a 25-square-mile area 20 feet or above sea level.
- A prohibition against pumping water away from the 25-mile area.
- Encouraging effluent sprayfields such as Sanford's to replenish the bubble.
- Imposing tough guidelines on high recharge areas.
- Requiring drainage standards which do not affect recharge quantity or quality.
- Requiring all well-owners to register with the county and water district.
- All wells, regardless of diameter, would be required to a district construction permit.

• Creation of new well construction design criteria.

• Development of borrow pit excavation guidelines by the district.

• Studies to monitor the fresh-salt water "wall."

• The county is to develop a hazardous materials program designed to educate the public about handling toxic materials and to respond faster to spills and leaks.

• To encourage the county to purchase Heath Springs and a Snow Hill Road sinkhole and shield them from contamination which could pass into the bubble through them.

A last-day attempt to freeze land changes in the area until the new regulations were approved failed. Jeff Jones, director of planning for the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council, recommended no land-use change requests be approved until the Legislature and other agencies adopt the Geneva Bubble protection program. Jones said the county's existing five- and 10-acre land uses in the area were adequate and shouldn't be changed.

The request was opposed by county planning director Tony VanDerworp, who said such a proposal would prevent schools and other development which might be needed.

"There's nothing binding on the county if this passes," said Henry Bittaker, a state planning director with the Florida Department of Community Affairs. "There might be a PR problem if the county wants to do something out there."

The task force agreed to recommend the Legislature encourage the county to limit hikes to development intensity to protect the bubble.

Henley on the assurance the Lyman High principal would seek election next year.

Perry, 51, ran for District 7 of Congress last year, but lost the primary to Dan Webster of Daytona Beach. She was elected to the city commission in 1989. In 1991, she was elected mayor, a position she held until resigning a year later to run for Congress.

In a statement, Perry said she planned to run for the seat.

Perry is director of student teaching at Stetson University in Deland.

Perry has lived in Seminole County since 1974. During that time, she commuted to University of Florida in Gainesville and in 1979, received her doctorate degree in philosophy. She is a native of the tenements of New York and spent much of her life in New York state until 1973, when she and husband James Perry, a law school graduate, moved to Augusta, Ga.

The Perrys have three children.

Since moving to Seminole County, Perry has chaired the state College Level Academic Skills Project which required minimum competency skills for college sophomores. In 1990, she was named Educator of the Year by the Florida Developmental Education Association.

Perry currently serves on the county Charter Review Commission and the state Community Health Purchasing Alliance.

Women's health issues

Concerns rise over drug testing involving women

By IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

LAKE BUENA VISTA — Drug companies are concerned about ethical and liability issues raised by new federal guidelines that call for more female participation in drug testing programs.

Women with childbearing potential pose special problems when taking part in the initial drug-testing phases, industry officials said Monday at a convention of American Association of Pharmaceutical Scientists.

This is true not only because of possible damage to fetuses but because of differences in metabolizing drugs during menstruation and pregnancy, according to the industry researchers.

"It was very narrow minded of the Federal Drug Administration not to look at such issues when it revised its code earlier this year," said Dr. Bonnie J. Goldmann of Merck Research Laboratories.

But she and other speakers said they welcomed the changes and looked forward to developing drug testing programs under the guidelines.

The FDA had prohibited the participation of women of childbearing potential from the initial phases of drug testing since 1977.

The FDA now will require the industry to analyze each drug for gender differences in its effectiveness and safety. This will mean more costly, long-term studies, officials here said.

Goldmann and Alice E. Till, program committee chairwoman, cautioned that what is politically and socially correct for women is not necessarily good science.

"It is important for the FDA and the industry to separate politics from the issue" of testing women, Goldmann said.

Doing the right thing for women and carrying out complex scientific studies will be "a difficult balance," said Till, who also is an official of Merck. "You have to have a scientific basis for whatever you do."

The conference, bringing together AAPS members employed by the drug industry, research institutes, government and academia, has made women's health issues its principal theme.

Gainesville slayings

Motion heard to suppress Rolling statements

By RON WORD
Associated Press Writer

GAINESVILLE — Gainesville slayings suspect Danny Harold Rolling asked to speak to investigators earlier this year, saying he wanted to "confess his sins to God and man," an agent testified.

Edward Dix, an agent with the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, testified Monday he was notified the 39-year-old Shreveport, La., drifter wanted to talk to authorities.

"He had been praying all night, and he wanted to confess his sins to God and man," Dix said during a hearing on defense motions to suppress statements Rolling gave to investigators this year and in 1991.

Rolling is expected to go on trial in January for the August 1990 slayings of five Gainesville college students.

Dix and other investigators visited Rolling on Jan. 18 and reminded him he was represented by Public Defender Rick Parker. "He said Mr. Parker would have to re-direct his efforts," Dix said.

Investigators were given a letter written by fellow inmate Bobby Lewis and Rolling outlining conditions under which Rolling would talk. One was apparently a visit from writer and now-fiancée Sondra London, 45.

Dix said he made no promises to either Rolling or Lewis in exchange for information.

Most of Monday's hearing was closed to the media and public when tape-recorded statements from Rolling were played before Circuit Judge Stan R. Morris. The information on those tapes was withheld.

Dix said Rolling asked to have Lewis with him when he made the statements. Lewis, the only person to have escaped from death row, is a Rolling confidante.

The hearing is expected to last the week. "We hope the judge will say the evidence we gathered is admissible at trial," State Attorney Rod Smith said Monday.

The statements the defense is seeking to suppress are those Rolling made in which he passed information to investigators through Lewis.

Lewis said in earlier interviews Rolling admitted being responsible for the killings and said he wants to pay for the crimes he committed in a violent and intentional rage against society.

Lewis has been subpoenaed to testify, along with inmates Danny Leo Reichert and Russell Binstead. Their testimony also will be closed to the public.

Florida against NAFTA

By BILL KACZOR
Associated Press Writer

PENSACOLA — Rep. Earl Hutto, D-Pensacola, has declared his support for the North American Free Trade Agreement, but that still leaves Florida's U.S. House delegation strongly against the treaty.

As of Monday, Florida representatives were lined up 14-4 against NAFTA, with five undecided. The House is scheduled to vote Wednesday.

The 23-member House delegation was scheduled to meet today in Washington to discuss NAFTA and the impact of side agreements the Clinton administration signed last week to protect Florida citrus, sugar and vegetables from low-priced Mexican competition.

Hutto's decision, however, was based on such other factors as his district produces no citrus or sugar and few vegetables. Chemical and paper plants are major industries in his Florida Panhandle district.

"I have no doubt that opening markets will benefit Florida industries, particularly chemical and wood products," Hutto said in a news release. "Additionally, ports in Pensacola and Panama City stand to gain from increased traffic."

Other Floridians supporting the treaty are Reps. Sam Gibbons, D-Tampa; Harry Johnston, D-West Palm Beach, and Jim Bacchus, D-Merritt Island.

Reps. Tom Lewis, R-Palm Beach Gardens, and Porter Goss, R-Santibel, planned to vote against it but remain open-minded, their press secretaries said.

Florida was bucking the national trend as Sunshine State Democrats were more supportive than Republicans. All four pro-NAFTA Floridians were Democrats.

Nine Florida Republicans and five Democrats were against the treaty while the remaining four Republicans and one Democrat were undecided.

Boy blames co-defendant for death

By JESSICA BALDWIN
Associated Press Writer

PRESTON, England — One of the two schoolboys accused of killing a toddler told police his co-defendant battered the child with bricks and a heavy iron bar, according to an interview played in court today.

The boy, who can only be identified by the media as Child A, is heard saying that he tried to restrain Child B from hitting 2-year-old James Bulger in the face with a brick.

Child A claimed he ran away at that point, but under questioning he said he saw Child B hit James with a second brick and then knock him out with the iron bar, which weighs 20 pounds.

When a police officer asked if the toddler's face was "mashed" by the brick, Child A first asks to have the word explained, then said: "I couldn't see because he'd fell onto the floor and blood was just pouring everywhere."

Although the child refers to a floor, the battering took place near a railway line, where James' body was found.

The two 11-year-old boys are charged with the abduction and murder of James Bulger, who was taken from a Liverpool shopping mall Feb. 12. The 2-year-old was led about two miles to the track.

Both boys, who were 10 at the time of the crime, have pleaded innocent. Prosecutors say Child B has confessed to the crime while Child A told police he only watched. Since they are under age 14, the prosecution must prove they knew right from wrong.

As the trial resumed today, jurors heard the tape of the fifth police interview with Child A and part of the sixth. As the interviews continued, police became increasingly firm with Child A, confronting him with forensic evidence such as blood on his right shoe.

Child A said James was crying for his mother. He started crying when Child B threw paint in his eye, and continued to cry until he was knocked out.

A police officer is heard explaining to Child A how blood samples and other evidence are gathered by a pathologist in the hospital, where the body was taken.

"So you've taken him to try to get him alive again?" Child A asked.

Child A is heard crying at several points. The first time his sobs were heard today, his mother began crying in the court room.

Child A's lawyer, his mother and two police officers were present during the interviews, which were conducted at a police station Feb. 18 and 19.

Last week two psychiatrists testified that the boys know right from wrong and probably did so at the time of the crime. Two teachers from the boys' school said they would have known it was wrong to take a small child from his mother and wrong to injure the child.

If convicted, the boys will be held indefinitely.

How do visitors remember Sanford?

Out of town participants for the Golden Age Games have left. We wonder what impression of our community they took home.

It's too late to do anything now, but what about other prospective visitors?

How is our area being pictured by local residents? Many people are in contact with friends and family in other areas on a regular basis. Are only the bad things being discussed, or is pride in the city expressed?

Certainly, it is easy to bad-mouth Central Florida. We can expand on crimes against tourists, residential burglaries, car-jackings, blind mosquitoes and midges. None of this is doing our community any good in attracting visitors.

Many out of state people have taken part in Sanford's Golden Age Games for a number of years. Several of them spoke highly of the city during interviews last week. An Ohio man, a participant in the canoe races, said he had been coming to Sanford for 10 years to join in the games and always enjoyed himself.

When asked about any concern over crime, he responded that it's impossible to find a city which is crime-free. "If you worried about that all the time," he said, "you wouldn't enjoy going anywhere, even outside your own home."

Unless someone was mistreated during the events, or disappointed in any aspect of the competition, there was little to give them anything other than a good feeling.

As for friends and relatives, what we tell them about Sanford and Seminole County, will be taken as the truth. If we tell people it's a dangerous place to be, they will go somewhere else on their vacations.

Tourists will continue to flock to Central Florida from all over the nation and the world. They are attracted to the theme parks and beaches however, and Sanford has neither.

Out-of-towners know that no place is perfect. When asked about the area, tell some of the good points.

If we want people to be our guests, and continue putting tourism dollars into our local coffers, we had better start painting our community in brighter colors.

Commissioners' pay

The Seminole County Charter Review Commission appears to be overwhelmed by their choice of topics to discuss. Why not live things up a bit?

How about discussing a change in the way salary levels are set for county commissioners. The current salary of over $40,000 per year was set by the state of Florida based on population or something. We taxpayers have no voice in the matter at all. How about a charter change so that we can?

California's Wilson should scramble

Aside from maybe Jim Florio's wife, Lucinda, no one could have been more depressed about the Democrat's failure to retain the New Jersey governorship than California Gov. Pete Wilson.

Wilson had to be hoping that Florio would prevail and prove that there is political life after preading over a huge tax hike. Election Day vote in the Garden State should disabuse Wilson of that whimsical notion.

As recently as two years ago, the Republican Wilson was thought to be presidential timber. Many expected that he would glide through a term and a half in Sacramento, before following George Bush into the White House in 1996. Oh, how the mighty are fallen.

Wilson not only has less than zero chance of being elected president for even nominated by his party three years hence, odds are that he won't even be re-elected to a second term as governor. For while Florio at least had the support of his own state party, Wilson faces growing opposition within the ranks of California's GOP.

Barely a fortnight ago, the California Republican Assembly, a grass-roots organization of conservative political activists, urged Wilson not to seek re-election next year "for the good of the Republican Party." The CRA is persuaded that Wilson will be a liability to GOP candidates if he runs again.

It's not a matter of some fair-weather Republicans wanting to throw Pete from the train simply because his poll numbers are bad. Wilson is governor non grata to GOP conservatives because he talks like Ronald Reagan and governs like Bill Clinton.

A state budget crisis during Wilson's first year in office provided him an opportunity to show what he was made of. He could have followed the lead of two other Republican governors, William Weld of Massachusetts and John Engler of Michigan, both of whom refused to raise taxes, thereby forcing their Democrat-controlled legislatures to accede to spending cuts.

But what did Wilson do? He allied himself with the Democratic opposition, agreeing to a record $7.7 billion in new taxes. This drain of more than $1,000 per California household was the very last thing the state economy needed. It already was mired in recession and shedding jobs.

It was clear that Wilson learned absolutely nothing from George Bush's ill-fated budget deal of 1990.

If the Wilson tax hike were his only sin, maybe some of the conservatives within the state party could forgive him. But the governor has demonstrated consistently that there isn't a principle he isn't willing to compromise if he thinks it will profit him politically.

Take Wilson's flip-flop on homosexual rights. In 1991, he vetoed a civil rights bill that would have given new protective status to gays. A year later, he signed into law almost identical gay rights legislation.

Why the change of heart? Wilson never explained.

Wilson had to be hoping that Florio would prevail and prove that there is political life after preading over a huge tax hike.

How healthy are U.S. rivers?

Rivers are the arteries of natural ecosystems. After suffering years of neglect and outright abuse, the health of the nation's rivers has become one of the environmental community's principal concerns.

Cleaning up our rivers began in earnest with passage of the Clean Water Act. The Wild and Scenic Rivers Act, now 25 years old, protects many miles of free-flowing rivers and streams, while securing wildlife habitat and wetlands and providing recreation from trout fishing to running the rapids.

But this headway is all too often countered by continuing or even worsening river abuse. It is in this subject that the national conservation organization American Rivers brings its attention.

Each year American Rivers lists North America's most endangered rivers, "those that are under serious threat but for which there is still time and the means to save them," says spokesman Randy Showstack. This year's five most endangered rivers are:

Rio Grande/Rio Concho River system of Colorado, New Mexico, Texas and Mexico. A combination of cyanide-leaching mining, acid draining and water diversions for farming damage the Rio Grande in its upstream flow through Colorado and New Mexico. Along the U.S.-Mexico border, American Rivers says the Rio Grande in places "is a virtual cesspool of untreated human waste, industrial pollutants, and pesticides" coming from both countries. While the organization takes no position on the pending North American Free Trade Agreement, Showstack says the $8 billion it could bring for border cleanup will be "positive" for the Rio Grande.

Columbia/Snake River system of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Canada. The tragedy of abundant salmon stocks once running to 18 million wild salmon each year and now dwindled in some cases to endangered status has been played out along these rivers and their tributaries. While the salmon's decline has several causes, the main one is the damming of the rivers to provide hydroelectric power to the region. Federal, state and regional agencies have proposed a myriad of solutions, but real action "to improve the situation has been minimal" this year, according to American Rivers.

Everglades in Florida. The national park portion of this world-renowned River of Grass is already verging on ecological collapse due to years of water diversion, on the one hand, and the runoff of agricultural phosphates, on the other. Throughout the Everglades, wading bird populations are in drastic decline.

Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt has attempted to forge a solution -- some call it a negotiated truce -- among farm, city and environmental interests. His plan is based on increasing water flows into the Everglades and setting aside 40,000 marshland acres to filter out pollutants. While some environmentalists criticize Babbitt for not going far enough, American Rivers credits his basic approach, which is to attempt an ecosystem-wide restoration of the Everglades.

Anacostia River in Maryland and the District of Columbia. The Anacostia is a prime example of a river placed in extreme stress by urbanization. For decades, it served as little more than an open sewer line to the sea for waste from the nation's capital. Recently the Army Corps of Engineers agreed to restore 30 acres of Anacostia River tidal wetlands, thus doubling what had once been 1,000 tidal wetlands acres within the District.

Virgin River in Utah, Arizona and Nevada. While now one of the few remaining undammed rivers in the country, 12 dams are planned for the Virgin. The Interior Department has agreed to sponsor a conference next spring on the Virgin River's future.

One promising development for the nation's rivers is the changing attitude of the Federal Energy Regulation Commission, which licenses some 1,400 privately owned hydropower dams. Four of the agency's five commissioners have been appointed by the Clinton administration. With its new makeup, the agency appears to be more willing than in the past to consider environmental concerns alongside those of the utility industry.

The commissioners have already ordered that policies be drafted on decommissioning dams that have outlived their usefulness, and on considering the cumulative environmental effects of all dams on a given river.

Those policies will be useful as the commission decides new licensing arrangements for 231 dams up for renewal this year for the first time in a half-century.

The health of the nation's rivers has become one of the environmental community's principal concerns.

Packwood has right to privacy

With libraries and bookstores filled with steamy fiction, why on earth would the Senate Ethics Committee need Bob Packwood's diaries?

If they hope to obtain correct information to see if Sen. Packwood, R-Ore., committed any ethics violations, they'd do just as well to pick up the latest Danielle Steel novel with Fabio tearing the bustier off a woman on the cover. Men who go through life trying to paw and plant liplocks on co-workers are about as trustworthy as boys in a high-school locker room when it comes to relaying their sexual memoirs.

And if the senators are trying to get a look at what Packwood supposedly reveals about his fellow legislators' affairs, shame on them. Packwood's co-workers aren't being investigated, and they should be fully protected from anyone seeing what he wrote in a personal diary. What they are observed doing in reality is light years away from what is written about them by a man whose expansive view of reality runs the gamut from "I didn't realize my actions were offensive" to "I responded, warts and all."

If the senators are trying to get a look at what Packwood supposedly reveals about his fellow legislators' affairs, shame on them.

But let's, just for the sake of argument, assume that every word in Packwood's diary is true. And then let's assume that all the committee wants is to see if Packwood used his influence to get his wife a job.

First, criminal prosecutors can't demand to examine personal records unless a crime has been charged. There are no criminal proceedings going on now, as there were when Nixon's White House tapes were sought. The ethics committee is only in the investigatory stage.

Second, a diary is a personal journal in which every American believes he or she has the privilege to confide without others' perusal. Some leaders have always kept diaries to record events for historical reference and autobiographies. If diaries become the tromping grounds of every committee that thinks it has sniffed out some misconduct, no one is going to have much fire in the belly to keep the valuable behind-the-scenes information that enhances history.

Bob Packwood's is a pathetic story, but a familiar one in politics: a man whose public life is as champion to groups needing protection, but in private a man from whom others need protection. Ironically, it is among one of the groups he best protected that he stumbled worst. While he was fighting to keep the Senate from eroding abortion rights, female co-workers say he was groping them in offices and cloakrooms.

The other great irony in the Packwood saga is that the constitutional right to privacy, the underpinning of pro-choice law, is exactly what the Senate Ethics Committee is trashing to go after Packwood.

Syndicated columnist William Safire writes that the Packwood ethics investigation "is not about accusations of one senator's past boorishness. It's about satisfying the need for vengeance in the minds of so many women workers who have had to endure the demeaning domination of lecherous bosses."

There may be some truth to what Safire charges. Sexual harassment of those less powerful in the workplace, whose jobs often depend on the whim of the harasser, is something the whole country has had a belly full of. As is the case with child abuse accusations, it has almost become politically incorrect to ever question such allegations. Even the American Civil Liberties Union, late the champion of the likes of the Ku Klux Klan, looks the other way while the Ethics Committee paws at Packwood's diaries.

Two-legged dog makes comeback

By ROGER MUNNIS
Associated Press Writer

GREENFIELD, Iowa — Rusty isn't supposed to overexert himself, but the sight of the cow was too much.

"Grrr."
The cow whirled to face his tormenter, then relaxed, perhaps sensing that a little dog with only one good leg wasn't a threat.

Rusty limped closer, leaned on a fence post and growled again, more to stay in practice than to challenge. The cow loped away.

"He's some dog," said owner Bill Davis, 39. "Right after that first accident, he showed he had a will to live. He's not ready to die yet."

In fact, Rusty seems to be recovering nicely from his second accident. But even if he recovers completely, he'll still have just two good legs.

His story has traveled worldwide over the years — "I even got a call from Australia last time," said Davis — and scores of children write him letters.

"If I had an extra leg, I'd give it to you," wrote David Gersema of the Miller Middle School in Marshalltown. "But I don't, so I'm sorry."

Rusty is an 8-year-old, 40-pound Australian red heeler who spends most of his time with Davis, who spends most of his time farming 600 rented acres of gently hilly land about 50 miles southwest of Des Moines.

That's where the farm dog ran in front of Davis' mower four years ago. Rusty lost half of his left front leg and the pad from his left rear leg, leaving a skinny stump on which he catches his balance.

Remarkably, Rusty relearned to walk and run, even to jump into the pickup, using just the two right legs. Then the second accident happened Sept. 19 when Davis put ice cubes on the ground for Rusty to enjoy — too near to a neighbor's pickup.

As the neighbor moved the truck, Rusty's good right rear leg was run over. "I knowed it was broke," said Davis. There were three major fractures below the knee.

Source: Cops want Jackson strip-searched

By JEFF WILSON
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — Police have a warrant to strip-search Michael Jackson to corroborate a 13-year-old boy's allegations he was molested, a source says.

Jackson's lawyers, meanwhile, said the pop superstar was not trying to duck the criminal investigation when he checked into a drug rehabilitation center overseas.

"If Michael Jackson wanted an excuse to stay out of the United States, all he had to do is stay on his tour," lawyer Bertram Fields said. "This is his home. He's coming back. ... He doesn't intend to desert the United States."

A source speaking on condition of anonymity said Los Angeles police had obtained a warrant to check the boy's description of spots on Jackson's genitals. In February, the singer revealed he had a skin condition known as vitiligo, which can produce white patches.

"We know nothing about it," Jackson lawyer Howard Weitzman said Monday. "We are not concerned about those issues in the case. We don't believe it, period."

The boy's attorney, Larry Feldman, refused to comment.

Jackson canceled his "Dangerous" concert tour Friday, saying the pressures of the investigation led to an addiction to the painkillers he was taking after recent scalp surgery for burns he suffered while making a Pepsi commercial in 1984.

Fields said a U.S. drug rehabilitation center would not have afforded the privacy Jackson needs to treat the addiction. The lawyer refused to say where Jackson was, although the singer's last stop was a hotel in the French Alps.

The boy sued the 35-year-old Jackson in September, claiming he was molested. No criminal charges have been filed, and Jackson's representatives say the allegations stemmed from a $20 million extortion attempt by the boy's father.

Fields said the addiction mentally incapacitated Jackson.

"His life was in danger if he continued taking these massive quantities of drugs," he said. "He was barely able to function adequately on an intellectual level."

However, Los Angeles lawyer Howard Manning Jr. said he spent seven hours with a seemingly healthy Jackson in Mexico City last Monday and Wednesday for a deposition in a copyright infringement case against the singer.

"We had taken (Jackson's deposition) in 1989 and he was a smart, informed witness, and we didn't find him any different last week," Manning said in an interview. "He's a bright guy. He responded to the questions."

After cutting short the tour, Jackson left Mexico on a private jet with Elizabeth Taylor for the Hotel Les Dromonts in Avoriaz, France, hotel officials said. A French consular official in Los Angeles said late Monday that Jackson had left the hotel.

Joey Buttafuoco: 'Sometimes lust takes me over'

By PAT MILTON
Associated Press Writer

MINEOLA, N.Y. — Joey Buttafuoco is bedding down all by himself these days.

The 37-year-old Long Island auto body mechanic was sentenced to the maximum — six months in prison — for having sex with an underage Amy Fisher.

He was put in an 8-by-6-foot cell by himself while officials decide whether he can safely mix with the 1,700 other inmates at the Nassau County Jail.

"We have to determine whether he's going to be a hero or whether the other inmates are going to be hostile to him," sheriff's Lt. Robert Anderson said.

Judge Jack Mackston handed down the sentence Monday after Fisher, her hair pinned back like a schoolgirl, came before him and portrayed herself as a young innocent in braces who was swept away by a man with money and flash. A smirking Buttafuoco, dressed in a maroon suit and lizard skin boots, was led away in handcuffs.

In an interview with the TV program "A Current Affair" scheduled for broadcast tonight, Buttafuoco described a casual affair driven by "strictly lustful sex. ... Sometimes lust takes me over. It's very painful."

"I'm not proud of it. It was a big mistake," he said in the interview a few days ago.

Fisher took their relationship much more seriously — so seriously that she is serving five to 15 years in jail for shooting Buttafuoco's wife, Mary Jo, outside her Long Island home in 1992.

In addition to six months in prison, Buttafuoco was fined $5,000 and given five years' probation.

For months, Buttafuoco denied having an affair with Fisher. He finally pleaded guilty to statutory rape rather than face a physical to test Fisher's assertions that he has a mole on his thigh and that she got herpes from him.

Mrs. Buttafuoco, however, remains in denial. Asked on "A Current Affair" if she believes her husband had sex with Fisher, she said: "I choose to believe, based on the person that I know and the person that I live with and the person that I spent many, many years with and the person whose bed I share, that he did not."

Mrs. Buttafuoco, 38, still has a bullet lodged next to her brain.

Fisher, now 19, said the affair began when she was 16. The age of consent in New York is 17.

"I know with all my heart that if Mr. Buttafuoco had permitted me to cross the bridge between adolescence and adulthood unmolested, I would not be where I am today," she told the judge as Buttafuoco glared at her.

Her voice barely audible, she said: "This man took me to expensive restaurants and cheap motels. I am sad to say that he taught me well. He taught me to disrespect myself and to deceive my parents. Unfortunately, these were lessons that I learned too quickly."

Fear of hunger found widespread among elderly

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — It's expected that the old and poor worry about going hungry. But a new survey said today even elderly people slightly above the poverty line have a nagging concern they won't get enough to eat.

The fear of hunger afflicts 2.5 million to 4.9 million of America's elderly, according to a survey by The Urban Institute. It has a name for the worry: food insecurity.

"The official poverty line predicts food insecurity very poorly," the survey found. "Food insecurity certainly is highest among the officially poor. But it does not drop off substantially until incomes rise to at least 150 percent of poverty."

The official poverty line is an income from all sources of $7,143 a year for a single person and $14,335 for a family of four.

The Urban Institute is a research organization in Washington specializing in social and economic problems. It said it undertook the study "because we suspected that a significant, yet undocumented, problem exists."

The study was paid for by Philip Morris Companies Inc., which makes cigarettes and owns Miller Brewing and Kraft Foods among other holdings.

"An individual experiences food insecurity when they worry about getting enough to eat — when the home does not always have adequate food, when the individual cannot always afford to buy enough food, and/or when the individual cannot always get to markets and food programs," the study said.

"In the case of the elderly, the definition also includes circumstances where the elderly person cannot prepare and gain access to the food available in the household."

The institute surveyed people 65 and older, asking four questions about food.

One was: "Have there been days when you had no food in the house and no money or food stamps to buy food?"

The others asked about making choices between food and medicine, between buying food and paying rent or utility bills and whether meals are skipped because there was no money or food stamps to buy food. About 10 percent answered affirmatively to each question.

A fifth question was posed only to seniors in 18 communities with high concentrations of low-income elderly.

They were asked whether they had taken actions to help themselves out of a no-food, no-money situation. About 30 percent said they had taken such actions as borrowing food from friends or relatives, working extra hours, eating at a soup kitchen or asking restaurants for leftover food.

Food insecurity is highest among Hispanic elderly, lowest among whites.

Films try to get jump on holiday season

By JOHN HORN
AP Entertainment Writer

LOS ANGELES — They were one for all and all for one, and this week "The Three Musketeers" were also No. 1 at the box office.

The movie made $10.6 million in its debut weekend. It is expected to face a stiff challenge for the top spot next week, however, from "Addams Family Values," which opens Friday.

"The Three Musketeers" was one of three films making their weekend debut in wide release, and they finished one-two-three at the box office.

"Carlito's Way" earned $9.1 million for second place, reversing fortunes for director Brian De Palma whose other recent films, "The Bonfire of the Vanities" and "Raising Cain" had been clunkers.

The third new film in wide release, "My Life" with Michael Keaton, made $5.536 million for third place.

In limited release, the sequel "Ernest Rides Again" broke down, playing to near-empty theaters for a total gross of $905,000.

Fourth place went to "Tim Burton's the Nightmare Before Christmas" with $5.47 million. "Cool Runnings" collected $3.4 million for fifth place. "The Beverly Hillbillies" was sixth with $2.7 million and "Look Who's Talking Now" netted $2.4 million for seventh place.

"Robocop 3" finished eighth on a gate of $2.1 million and "Rudy" was ninth with $2 million. Receipts for "Flesh and Bone" plunged 59 percent in its second weekend, bringing in $1.9 million for 10th place.

Here are the weekend's top 20 films, according to Exhibitor Relations. Estimated ticket sales are from Friday through Sunday, with distributor, weekend gross, number of North American theater locations, average per location, total gross and number of weeks in release.

Figures are based on actual receipts and projections where actual figures were not available.

1. "The Three Musketeers," Disney, $10.6 million, 2,069 locations, $5,134 per location, $10.6 million, one week.

2. "Carlito's Way," Universal, $9.1 million, 1,615 locations, $5,645 per location, $9.2 million, 1 1/2 weeks.

3. "My Life," Columbia, $5.536 million, 800 locations, $6,920 per location, $5.5 million, one week.

4. "Tim Burton's The Nightmare Before Christmas" Disney, $5.47 million, 1,657 locations, $3,301 per location, $34.5 million, five weeks.

5. "Cool Runnings," Disney, $3.4 million, 1,647 locations, $2,057 per location, $48.3 million, seven weeks.

It was a bitter pill to swallow. He didn't realize that most homes over a year old could take advantage of FPL's free Home Energy Survey and cash incentives. "Get this," I told him, "FPL will give your home a real once-over to uncover ways to reduce your electric bill. Plus they offer cash incentives to help pay for energy-saving improvements. But you gotta call FPL right now."

Lions repeat history

Oviedo makes playoffs with two overtime wins

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

DELAND — Despite the fact that the Oviedo Lions made their first playoff game, they had to repeat a Kansas City Breaker from the 1980s.

Monday night at DeLand's Sports Mart Stadium, it looked like 1988 again as the Lions used a two-point conversion to beat Spruce Creek 22-21 in double overtime, and then overcame a 14-0 deficit in DeLand in some yard run on the down to win 21-14.

DeLand gets the runner-up spot in Class 3A after a 14-0 victory over a trip to Jacksonville

Friday night to take on No. 2 state-ranked Terry Parker, which won Class 3A District III with a 10-0 record starting at 7:30 p.m.

The kids did not want to go to school on Friday, kidded Oviedo coach Jack Blanton about his team's effort. "They did a great job because DeLand came to play."

The Lions' defense stopped the Bulldogs three times from reaching the end zone and had a game plan out in regulation that held the game to overtime.

"We were very fortunate to hold them," said Blanton, who has announced his retirement after the season. "I was already trying to figure out how we were going to win. We had to win with less than a minute on the clock."

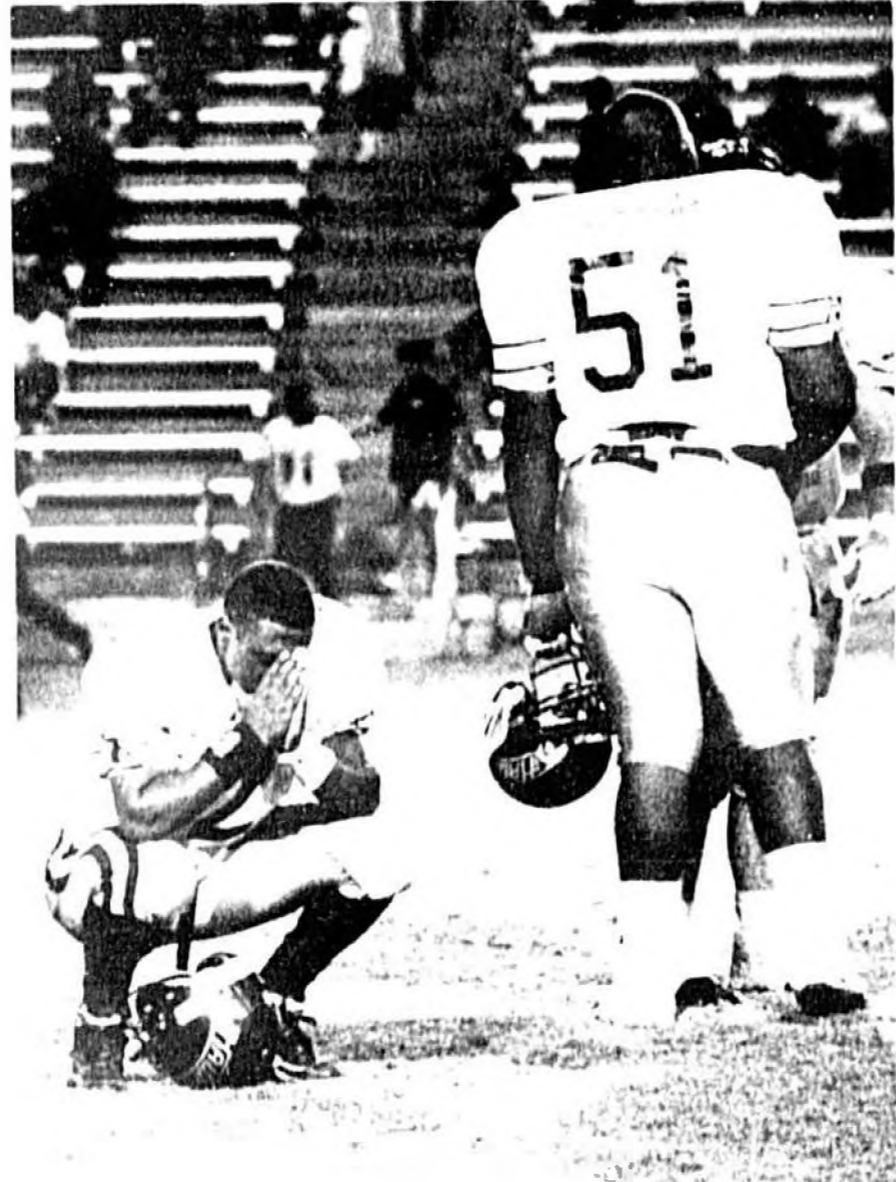

DeLand, which had eliminated Lake Howell 10-0, had the first shot to score. But was called for a holding penalty on first down, and then had a pass intercepted by the Lions' Shawn Langford.

Blanton went for the win immediately, setting up for a field goal. The try was blocked, but because it was only first down, the Lions maintained possession, a holder Brian Buchanan fell on the loose ball at the 17.

After another penalty, most of the ball back to 22, Duncan ran 12 yards to the 10 and then went nine yards plus down to the two-yard mark to set up fourth and goal. Blanton never hesitated in going for the run behind, and Langford pulled his

Defense, Defense

By DEAN SMITH

OVIDO — When you sit in the stands at any sporting event you are liable to hear the phrase, "defense, defense," shouted quite often.

Friday night at Richard E. Evans Stadium the Oviedo Lions got the message loud and clear as the defense almost completely shut down a good Lake Howell offense to get the Lions into the tie-breaker for a state playoff berth.

Defensive back Brian Pettaway put an exclamation point on the effort by intercepting a pass and returning it 24 yards for a touchdown with 5:48 left in the contest to give Oviedo its final 21-7

Brian Pettaway

Oviedo's Brian Pettaway, who had a 24-yard interception return for a touchdown, is this week's Sanford Herald Player of the Week.

- Also considered were:
 - Seminole's Robert Rutlin, who scored two touchdowns on 30-yard pass reception and a 50-yard punt return.
 - Lake Brantley's Jeff Butler, who rushed for 260 yards and three touchdowns.
 - Lake Mary's Dexter Graham, 108 yards rushing.
 - Lynn's Mike Krupa, who punted for a 45.5 average.
 - Lake Howell's Jackson Parkus, who rushed for 46 yards and caught a 34-yard touchdown pass.

CASSETT HERRY — A furious comeback effort by the Paddy McGee's soccer team from Oviedo came up just short as the Ball Busters edged them 3-1 to claim the championship of the Seminole County Recreation Department Women's Monday Night Fall Slowpitch Softball League at Red Bug Lake Park.

The Ball Busters (9-1) jumped out to a 5-0 lead before Paddy McGee's (8-2) rallied for three runs in the sixth inning and one in the seventh to cut the lead to one run.

See a specialist about dizziness

DEAR DR. GOTT: I fell and knocked the crystals out of my inner ear canal. Is there now any treatment for the dizziness?

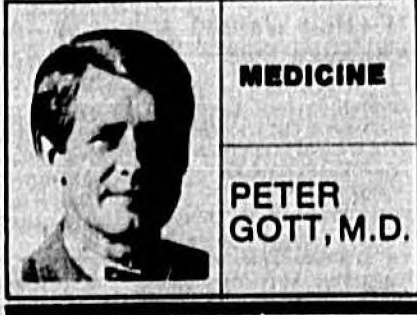

DEAR READER: Although there are no "crystals" in the ear, severe head trauma can disrupt the organs of balance within the ear and lead to vertigo. Fortunately, this is usually a temporary symptom. If you are experiencing continuing dizziness, you should be examined by an otolaryngologist because an unrelated disorder, such as infection or Meniere's disease, may be to blame. After examining you and obtaining tests, such as an audiogram (hearing test) and an MRI (special pictures of the inner ear), the specialist may be able to offer appropriate therapy.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a band of pain around my upper arm diagnosed as a frozen shoulder. Why is it estimated that it could take as long as a year to heal? I'm unsure just what causes the pain and immobility of the arm. Would exercise promote healing?

DEAR READER: Frozen shoulder, a loss of shoulder mobility, is caused by a variety of disorders and almost always leads to marked disability, unless treated. Basically, the condition results from scar tissue that binds the shoulder joint, restricting motion and causing pain. The affliction may be associated with prolonged inactivity, injury or inflammation of the tendons, joint covering or other structures in the vicinity of the shoulder.

Fortunately, physical therapy -- such as ultrasound and special mobility exercises -- usually frees the shoulder and permits the patient to return to normal. However, the course of therapy is lengthy -- perhaps as long as four to six months. If this treatment is ineffective for if previous trauma has caused permanent damage to the shoulder), surgery may be necessary to repair the injury.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Today's deal from the world championship finals exhibits some of the changes in bidding at the top level. But before getting into the play, here are three questions: What would you bid as dealer with the East hand? What is the best defense against both five clubs by South and four spades by West?

In the NEC Bermuda Bowl, the Norwegian East passed and ended up doubling five clubs. The Dutch East opened two hearts, a weak two-bid! Eventually South reached five diamonds -- but West didn't double.

In the NEC Venice Cup, the German East passed. After one club by South, one spade by West and a negative double by North (showing hearts), East raised to four spades, doubled by South. The defenders began with two rounds of clubs. Now the heart-queen switch by South would beat the contract by two tricks as the defense scores three trump tricks. However, understandably South played the ace and another spade for one down.

Finally, Karen McCallum opened four hearts, which, I hate to admit, would be my choice, despite the four low spades. Then, after five clubs came back to her, she made a Lightner double, showing a void somewhere.

Now West might have found the best lead of the diamond three. East ruffs, returns a low(!) heart and receives a second ruff. West waits for the A-Q of diamonds: three down. However, Kerri Shuman-Sanborn led the heart king. East played the three, suit preference for diamonds. Now a low diamond from West produced two down and 500 to the United States.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Nov. 17, 1993

You've just been through a very interesting learning cycle and you're not apt to repeat previous mistakes. Success in several venues is a strong probability in the year ahead.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Associates might lack your drive and foresight today and not be motivated by the same situations from which you see you can derive benefits. If necessary, go it alone. Scorpio, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your intuitive perceptions and hunches are x-plus qualities that can be utilized to your advantage today. The ways they should be used will be rather obvious.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A relationship can now be reinforced with a friend with whom you once had strong emotional ties. Now more than ever before you'll appreciate the values in this alliance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You are presently in a good achievement cycle, so don't let your industriousness be appeased by nominal efforts. Aim for several objectives simultaneously.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A special talent or knowledge you presently possess has considerable value for yourself and others. However, it will be up to you to make potential prospects aware of it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Critical conditions might be subjected to unexpected changes and reversals today. Things could take an usual, positive turn, so be alert for opportunities.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This is a good day for you to enter into significant agreements. You'll be very thorough where details are concerned and this will help make the instrument fair for both parties concerned.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you do not restrict your imagination today, you might discover better procedures for doing a repetitious task that has slowed you down previously. Be progressive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's best not to bring someone with whom you're involved socially into one of your commercial endeavors today. This relationship is a trifle fragile and may not fit into another venue.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Desirable end results are likely today if you keep your focus on the objective you hope to achieve. Once you take an aim on a target, don't toy with alternatives.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try not to let your emotions and feelings govern or cloud your judgment today. It's imperative you analyze situations from an objective, logical perspective.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Continue to expand upon and develop situations that are meaningful to you in financial and material ways. These are your strong areas where you can generate substantial returns.
