Witnesses sought

SANFORD — Police are asking for the public's help in determining whether a woman was abducted by two men in the parking lot of K-Mart last night.

Lt. Dennis Whitmire said an employee of the Food Lion reported seeing a woman forced into a black van, possibly with an Illinois license plate, at 9:57 p.m. The woman is described as white, five-feet, six inches tall with shoulder-length blond hair. She was wearing a white midriff tank-top. The two men were described as either black or hispanic. One of the men was described as six feet tall, 235 lbs., with a muscular build. He was reportedly wearing a white shirt and black pants.

Whitmire said police are uncertain if an actual kidnapping was committed or the employee witnessed a domestic squabble. Anyone who witnessed the event is asked to contact Inv. Carlos Monti at 323-3030.

Hagood sentenced

SANFORD — An Atlanta man was sentenced to five years in prison and 10 years probation Wednesday for attempted manslaughter and false imprisonment.

Alfred Johnny Haygood, 37, was sentenced by Judge Vernon Mize for shooting his estranged wife, Linda, with a crossbow June 8 at her Altamonte Springs apartment and holding her, and her nephew, William Bourne, hostage. A jury found Haygood guilty of attempted manslaughter and two counts of false imprisonment in February.

During the trial, Haygood, who worked as an Atlanta apartment security guard at the time of the incident, claimed he was in Orlando making an attempt to reconcile with his wife.

Little girls arrested

6 and 8-year-olds charged in school vandalism

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Two little girls were arrested yesterday and charged with attempted arson and burglary after allegedly damaging four classrooms at Hamilton Elementary on Sunday.

Two others may also be arrested later on similar charges in the same case.

The girls, who are 6 and 8 years old, have not been identified by police because of their age. They were booked into the Seminole County Juvenile Detention Center yesterday and then released to their parents' custody.

“They're just little girls. I don't know that they even understand what they've really done wrong.”

—Investigator Barry Little

Dave Scott, principal at Hamilton, said he hopes the girls have an opportunity to learn from their mistakes.

“The electronic media has given people the impression that we want punitive action taken against these children,” he said. “Quite the opposite is true. We would like the consequences to be more like 30 hours of community service.”

He said he believes the students need to not only have the opportunity to clean up the mess they made, but to also learn about the consequences of their actions.

Police believe the girls are not really bad children, rather they are youngsters who took advantage of an opportunity to get into a little trouble.

“They're just little girls,” said Inv. Barry Little of the Sanford Police Department. “I don't know”

Let's meet on Main Street

Family fun will aid downtown resurgence

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — Sanford is no mousy town, the organizers of the Main Street program say, but on Saturday and Sunday they will make an exception.

In an effort to raise money to finance the Main Street program, organizers are bringing in Mickey Mouse and some of his other Disney character friends to help celebrate the city with a pair of family days in Ft. Mellon Park and along First Street.

Working with Walt Disney World, the Main Street organizers have prepared a celebration of the City of Sanford that will be fun for the whole family.

While Mickey and his friends rarely venture outside of the Disney World confines, they have made an exception in the case of Sanford because they have many friends here in town.

The Main Street project is designed to renovate and rejuvenate the downtown historic district and bring

Thwarting domestic violence

By SANDRA ELLIOTT

SANFORD — In recognition of National Victims Rights Week this week a fund-raising reception is scheduled Friday at State Attorney Norman Wolfinger's office. The money raised will be used to roof the proposed Safe House of Seminole, a shelter for abused and battered women.

Currently, the county has no shelter of its own. Orange County receives Health and Rehabilitative Service money allocated for Seminole County residents, but victim witness coordinator in the state attorney's office, Linda Kuhn said the Orange County facility operates at capacity so local abuse victims are sometimes placed in a Daytona Beach shelter through a networking agreement.

Since 1988, efforts have been underway to establish a local shelter for women and children spearheaded by the Seminole County Victims Rights Coalition. Although a building has been obtained from the county, it needs a new roof. The location of the building is being kept confidential to protect the clients when it begins

SANFORD — A final push is on to build an Interstate 4 interchange at County Road 46-A before a federal grant for the project is lost.

County and state road officials fear a federal audit this year could wipe away the $11.1 million pledged to the project by Congress in 1987. Congress agreed to finance construction of the interchange to demonstrate how

Sanford Amtrak unaffected by $1.3 billion high-speed plan

SANFORD — Amtrak lines coming through Sanford will not be directly affected by a new high-speed rail plan. The Clinton administration and members of Congress proposed a $1.3 billion, five-year plan Wednesday to develop rapid railroad links between major cities.

One of the suggested routes would be triangular, between Orlando, Tampa and Miami. At present, it is the only route considered in Florida.

The plans are being closely studied by officials of Amtrak in Washington, D.C. Amtrak spokesman Howard Robertson said this morning. “These are just suggested routes. It would eventually be up to each state and the rail

Gay activist's home set ablaze

TAMPA — A gay activist said she received weeks of threatening telephone calls before her mobile home was set ablaze while she was attending the gay rights march on Washington.

Fire officials have ruled Saturday's fire at the home of Darlena DeBerry, a 28-year-old member of the group ACT UP and an outspoken proponent of AIDS prevention, was arson.

Police investigators said the home also was burglarized, but they said they don't have enough evidence to deem the incident a hate crime.

But DeBerry, who says she is HIV positive, can think of no other explanation.

"I believe I was targeted because we've got a lot of intolerant and ignorant people and there's a lot of hate in this town," DeBerry said.

She began receiving threatening, obscenity-laden telephone calls several weeks before the fire. DeBerry reported the calls to police April 13 and quoted one caller saying, "If you do the march, your house will parch."

4 women sue for alleged harassment

SHALIMAR — Four women ambulance workers have sued Okaloosa County for alleged sexual harassment by the former director of Emergency Medical Services and his assistant, as well as a sheriff's investigator.

The women charged they were subjected to unwanted touching and harassment by director Nick Stager and Rick Stevens, both of whom resigned last October.

The suit also alleges county officials should have known about the men's propensity for sexual harassment.

One of the women, Revida Kelly, who no longer works for the agency, said she told sheriff's investigator Mike Stewart about the allegations.

The plaintiffs are seeking more than $15,000 for common-law battery, intentional infliction of emotional distress, invasion of privacy, negligent retention and, in Kelly's case only, false imprisonment.

Last October, former EMS office manager Delphine Flennagh received a $52,000 settlement from the county and Stager after she alleged he had sexually harassed her and propositioned her teen-age daughter.

Nudity violators subject to arrest

TITUSVILLE — Keep your bathing suit on if you visit the Canaveral National Seashore, including the remote area of Playalinda Beach where nudists traditionally gather.

Under special arrangement with the state, federal park rangers have received authority to arrest violators, said Superintendent Wendell Simpson of the park adjacent to the Kennedy Space Center.

But Arne Eriksen, executive director of the American Sunbathing Association, said Tuesday he will meet with park service officials to overturn the new policy.

Eriksen said state laws on nude sunbathing are vague and, when challenged, do not hold up in court.

"This does not mean the beach will be closed to us. It is just a temporary setback that I think we can clear up," said Eriksen.

Public nudity is illegal under Florida law but not under federal law. To resolve the situation, Gov. Lawton Chiles has signed a document authorizing the federal rangers to make arrests under state law.

Study: Landfill not cause of pollution

PENSACOLA — Studies by a university and an independent laboratory show a Florida landfill cannot be blamed for polluting the Perdido River, an Escambia County official said.

The study announced Wednesday showed tests performed by Toxikon Corp. showed water samples from landfill ponds near the river had levels of fecal coliform well below Florida's maximum standard, said Perdido Landfill director Charlie Miller.

Test on the same water samples that were conducted by the University of West Florida, using another testing method, found a fecal coliform level of 230, double the Toxikon reading of 110, but still well below the state standard of 800, Miller said.

County commissioners paid $27,000 for the Toxikon study in response to allegations by Baldwin County, Ala., officials and Friends of Perdido Bay, an environmental group, that the landfill was polluting the river.

He said a complete analysis of the study may not be finished until next week.

Dade building code put on hold

MIAMI — Eight months after Hurricane Andrew, the new Dade County commission has postponed the most important local reform to grow out of the storm's devastation — a tough new building code.

The changes set to take effect Saturday were aimed at strengthening walls and roofs to prevent a repeat of the widespread destruction caused by the Aug. 24 hurricane.

Registration may be made during the preview hours tomorrow, or on the day of the sale Saturday at the Public Works Complex.

The city reserves the right to refuse bid offers if they are determined to be not in the best interests of the city.

Daughters get day off to visit parents' workplace

By Associated Press

Schoolgirls across the Sunshine State were playing hooky — but not to go to the movies or the mall or the beach.

They went to work.

From restaurants to the state capitol, the hallways of workplaces were swarming Wednesday with girls, between the ages of 9 and 15 as they accompanied their parents during the first "Take Our Daughters To Work" national campaign.

The sponsors of a noon luncheon at the House of Representatives office building ran out of food and T-shirts in the face of an overflowing crowd of girls accompanied by a cross-section of state workers.

At the capitol, the 10-year-old daughter of the governor's communications director was busy answering telephones in the press office.

"Good afternoon, this is the governor's press office. How may I help you?" asked Samantha Bachs, who claimed to have handled more phone calls than anyone else in the office.

"She's keeping us on task here," said her father.

Elsewhere in Tallahassee, a fourth-grader argued against year-round school in a mock Supreme Court case.

Monica Cuyler said year-round school could keep children from visiting both parents where there has been a divorce. She was one of four students sponsored by the state's high court to take part in the day's activities.

LaTondria Carter, 9, accompanied her mother to a Department of Revenue meeting but didn't have her mind totally off school.

"This is the first time she's ever missed school," said Leola Carter, a tax conferee for the agency. "She was really concerned about having an absence on her record."

In Pensacola, Norma Murray brought her two daughters to the restaurant she owns, Norma's Cafe.

"I think it's important for them to see what I do when I leave home, to see that things we're fortunate to have at home happen because mom and dad work hard," she said. "And fortunately we also enjoy it."

Daughter Meghan, 13, said she enjoyed all aspects of the restaurant business.

"I'm getting to run the cash register — that's the best part," she said.

The enthusiasm of Caitlin, 10, was more measured.

"The fun part about it is cooking — the boring part is cleaning up," she said.

The exodus of schoolgirls to the workplace Wednesday was partially offset by visits from teachers' daughters.

"We definitely have fewer girls in school today," said Henry Fraind, spokesman for Dade County schools. "And our own headquarters is swarming with daughters. Superintendent Octavio Viatedo has two girls, and they're both here."

Most parents and daughters were in agreement that Wednesday's program was probably here to stay.

"I did not want my job to be a mystery to her," said Bachs, who described the promotion as a terrific idea.

"Everybody is accepting our children being here," he said. "It has always seemed like it might not have the sanctions of the workplace."

And the youngsters seemed to enjoy their adult surroundings.

"It really gives them an idea of what the workplace is like," said Mrs. Carter. "She wants to be an attorney and I think this has been an interesting day."

Teen-ager snatched by abductor

By Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG — A 13-year-old girl leapt from a truck to escape a kidnapper.

Pinellas County sheriff's detectives searched Wednesday for the man who tried to abduct the girl as she rode her bicycle just west of St. Petersburg Friday evening.

The girl told police a candy-apple red pickup drove by, circled the block and returned minutes later. The driver told her he needed to talk to her. She dropped her bike and ran.

The man chased and caught her, then carried her back to his truck.

"See the gun down there?" he asked, pointing to a handgun on the floor. As he drove, the man told her he was going to rape and kill her, the girl said.

The man stopped the truck in woods and fondled her, authorities said. Soon after, she was able to jump from the slow-moving truck.

The girl, who suffered a scraped knee in the escape, ran home and told her mother, who called police.

The girl described her attacker as a muscular black man in his early 30s, 6 feet 3 and 230 pounds. He had razor ridges cut in his hair, eyebrows and mustache.

An officer passing by reported seeing Barriner riding a bike, but 30 minutes later, the deputy said he saw Barriner standing behind a dumpster on school property at approximately 3:30 in the morning. The deputy said Barriner told him he was waiting to be picked up to go to work. A search uncovered what the deputy said was a 12-inch long screwdriver with a broken tip, hidden in Barriner's clothing. Barriner was charged with loitering and prowling.

Battery arrest

Sanford police arrested Lawrence Davis, 30, 2450 Byrd Avenue, Midway, on Tuesday. Police said he had been in an altercation with a female at #28 Seminole Gardens, and had struck her in the legs and back of the head with an aluminum baseball bat. Davis was charged with aggravated battery, domestic.

Tourist crime examined

By CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Violent crime against Florida's tourists must be curbed to safeguard the state's economy, said the chairman of a Senate committee conducting hearings on the issue.

"We have an image in Florida we have to protect and preserve," said Sen. Gary Siegel, chairman of the Select Committee on Tourist-Related Crime. "The image of Florida has been tarnished."

The panel, which was to begin two days of hearings today, was appointed by Senate President Ander Crenshaw, R-Jacksonville, following several incidents of violent crime against tourists.

Six tourists have been killed since December, the most publicized being the April 2 murder of 39-year-old Barbara Meller Jensen of Germany in a Miami robbery.

About 16 percent of the 42 million visitors expected this year will be from foreign countries. Because of wide publicity about Florida crimes, Canada, Germany and Great Britain all have issued travel advisories.

"We want to do whatever is necessary to preserve, protect, develop and enhance the lifeblood of our economy," Siegel said.

The hearings come as Gov. Lawton Chiles is pushing for a 21,000-bed prison construction program and a rewrite of sentencing guidelines to keep violent offenders in prison longer.

Mrs. Jensen's two alleged killers would likely have been behind bars if Florida didn't have a prison overcrowding problem, according to state records.

Chiles planned to testify today and Siegel, R-Altamonte Springs, said the panel could take a vote on whether to recommend the prison plan and its 25-cent-a-pack cigarette tax increase to the Legislature.

"It's possible during the course of the discussions, we'll get into that subject," said Siegel, who initially proposed the tax hike for prisons.

The cigarette tax was approved in committee during the legislative session but was blocked from reaching the Senate floor by Crenshaw.

Officials say 624 beds were properly removed from prisons

By CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The Department of Corrections ordered 624 beds removed from four prisons amid debate at the Capitol over how to tackle prison overcrowding, but officials say it was a proper decision.

According to department memos obtained Wednesday by The Associated Press, Ron Jones, chief of operations and management at the department, ordered the beds removed March 10 from Jefferson, Madison, Liberty and Holmes correctional institutions.

The order came as legislators were debating a 25-cent-a-pack cigarette tax being pushed by Gov. Lawton Chiles to build 21,000 new prison beds over five years and keep criminals behind bars longer.

Even though Florida's prison system must remain at 133 percent of its design capacity under state law, Deputy Corrections Secretary Bill Thurber said an individual institution can go as high as 150 percent.

The 624 beds at the four prisons put them at the 150 percent level, and Thurber said the decision was made to remove the beds. The double bunks were unoccupied and were blocking the view of some guards.

"We had some sight-line problems with our staff," Thurber said.

The move has caught the attention of several state senators who asked the Senate Corrections, Probation and Parole Committee to check it out. The staff director, Ray Wilson, said questions were raised about whether it was a move to "pull beds out of inventory as more are being requested."

"We're trying to understand the process," he said.

Two senators contacted Wednesday, Republican Gary Siegel of Altamonte Springs and Democrat Pat Thomas of Quincy, said so far it appears the beds were properly removed.

"I don't think there's an HRS thing there," said Thomas, referring to the computer problems and errors that have cost taxpayers millions of dollars at the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services. "I think they're doing right."

Ron Sachs, the governor's communications director, said the story is being floated by people seeking to discredit Chiles' tax plan.

"We're at (legal) capacity every single day," Sachs said. "There is no question we need more prison beds. They're trying to float a story that's an untruth."

Another tax burden on Floridians?

State Representative Alzo Reddick (D) Orlando, wants to place a $1 per night tax on hotel and motel rooms, condominiums and campground spaces. Hardly any hotel operator is in favor of it.

We believe it is one of a chain of poorly conceived proposals to raise money. Although being labeled as dollars needed to promote tourism, less than half would be used for that purpose.

Reddick, chairman of the House Tourism and Economic Development committee, has admitted that only 40 percent of the money would go to promotion, with the remainder to be used for economic development.

His proposal reportedly has replaced an earlier suggestion made to the Florida Tourism Commission. It called for added taxes to be obtained from restaurants and attractions.

Had it gone beyond the discussion stage, people certainly would have rallied against that proposal. Adding a tax at restaurants would have affected many permanent residents, including a vast number of senior citizens who eat out on a regular basis.

Now Reddick wants to obtain tax money from owners and operators of condominiums and campgrounds. Again, this will have a direct effect on Floridians.

With Reddick's admission that 60 percent of the money would go to economic development, we fail to see why he wants to single out the overnight lodging industry as a tax source.

Jack West of the Seminole County Tourist Development Council agreed that some parts of the state may need tourist dollars for promotion. Such is not the case for Central Florida.

Few people elsewhere in the nation need to be informed where DisneyWorld, the Kennedy Space Center, Daytona Beach raceway and other attractions are located.

Money for economic development, and tourist promotion should not be lumped together. It should come from only those who would directly benefit.

Let us not allow this to end up as another tax burden on Florida residents.

Prison problems

I believe some ideal solutions to our nation's prison problems are as follows:

1. Contract with the Russians to house all our convicted criminals in Siberia. I'm sure the Russians can use the money.

2. Build a very large prison complex as far north in Alaska as land permits and ship them up there and forewarn them if they escape the polar bears will probably have them for dinner.

3. Since the Florida Lottery is controlled by the State of Florida how about an extra drawing each week with the money coming in used to build prisons.

It does not seem fair to punish or tax Joe Public who has worked at his job all day and wants to enjoy a beer and a cigarette.

There are ways to get the garbage off the streets and keep them off the streets if we sincerely try without putting hardworking people into the streets.

Traffic problems

Enclosed are two ticket stubs from the air show in Sanford last Apr. 3. The air show was terrific, no complaints. But somewhere in the price for these tickets, someone must have included the cost of "police direction" for getting traffic into and out of the airport. It's obvious that "someone" pocketed the money and ran! Unless you were there you cannot imagine the traffic. What a fiasco! No one should have to endure anything like that — and with small children, the misery was compounded. An hour or more to travel a mile in and out of the airport is unreasonable.

If you cannot print this letter, at least send a copy to the promoters who obviously pocketed the funds designated for traffic direction.

It'll be a long time before I return to a Sanford air airport!

WILLIAM A. RUSHER

Clinton will lead U.S. into Bosnia

There's no reason why a hundred days into a new president's term should be a particularly good time to make a preliminary assessment of his performance, but it's become sort of traditional. In the particular case of Mr. Clinton, what's more, he has revealed — mostly inadvertently — enough about his true self to make certain bleak conclusions justifiable.

We know now, for example, that his whole contention, during the campaign, that he was a "new Democrat," sincerely dedicated to economic reform, was a brazen lie. He broke his promise to cut taxes on the middle class before he was even sworn in. His budget package calls for sharp tax increases in the immediate future, and spending reductions in the sweet bye-and-bye, during his putative second term.

Meanwhile his wife is secretly cobbling together a grandiose and hugely expensive national health plan, based on the bet that the American people are too dumb to tell the difference between the technically true statement that "57 million Americans currently have no health insurance" and the blatantly false implication that they therefore have no health care.

I nominate that health plan, by the way, as the probable Waterloo of the Clinton administration.

Mr. Rodham Clinton has already alienated the entire medical profession, the pharmaceutical industry and the insurance companies, and the nation's taxpayers will join the queue as soon as they get wind of the fleeing they're in for. Last aboard, but deadliest, will be the patients themselves — the medical consumers — who will fight like Kilkenny cats the government's efforts to ration their care, dictate their choice of doctors and treatments, and drag the whole field of medical care down to the level of the U.S. Postal Service.

Worse yet, in the long run, is the price we are paying for having briefly agreed, during the campaign, that Mr. Clinton's well-known character defects "don't matter." We now know that he will cave in to any pressure group that can convince him it means business. From gay activists to Western ranchers, and will lie to cover up his own involvement in fiascos like Waco (where he covered for 24 hours behind the skirts of Attorney General Reno).

That vulnerability to pressure, by the way, is about to induce Mr. Clinton's worst single blunder to date. Nobody has ever accused him of being unintelligent — he was, after all, a Rhodes Scholar — and he senses, correctly, that the United States has no business barging into the Balkans to square the black accounts of Croats, Muslims and Serbs. At a minimum, if the matter requires outside involvement at all, it ought to take the form of a genuinely multinational operation, with the chief European powers accepting the lion's share of the burden.

Instead they will offer token help at best, and confine themselves largely to holding America's coat while encouraging us to wade in and "save Srebrenica."

Mr. Clinton simply doesn't have the kind of guts it would take to stand up to that sort of pressure. So American bombers will soon be raining death from the Balkan skies — quite possibly before this column can even see print.

That vulnerability to pressure, by the way, is about to induce Mr. Clinton's worst single blunder to date.

Underachiever: the first 99 days

As I prepare this critique of Bill Clinton's first 99 days in office (I'm trying to get a jump on the 100-day rush), I feel like a frustrated teacher filling out a report card on an underachiever. He's good, but he could be much better.

I give him high marks for personal traits and style — brains, personality, compassion, salesmanship, energy, fervor, courage, self-assurance. I also give him good grades for the forthright manner in which he has taken on thorny issues that other presidents have found it more prudent to avoid: Health care, the most obvious; campaign finance reform, a subject that even his fellow Democrats would prefer to ignore; the energy tax, an economically and environmentally beneficial device that we have needed for a long time; and foreign affairs, an arena in which he had little experience but seems to be improving fast.

That's the good part. Here's the bad:

— Clinton seems to have vision, a virtue in which his predecessor was totally deficient, but it lacks definition. Where does he want to take us? And if he does have a definite and grand destination in mind, why aren't we off and running?

Perhaps I put too much credence in his campaign rhetoric. "I intend to have an explosive 100-day action period," he promised last June. "We'll send to Congress ... a 100-day plan to revitalize the economy ... control health-care costs ... open the doors of college education to all Americans," he vowed in July. "The vast bulk of ... initiatives will be in there ... in a hundred days," he said in November.

Well, where's the beef, Bill? FDR laid down a fusillade of ideas during his first 100 days. He rammed 15 major pieces of legislation through Congress, delivered 10 speeches, held dozens of press conferences. The nation was throbbing with energy. And now? There's a pulse, but it isn't thumping.

— Clinton has been trying to play major-league politics with minor-league skills. When he decided to drop relief supplies into Bosnia, the Republicans heard about it on the news. When he was putting together his economic package, the Republicans watched from the sidelines. When he tailored the plan to woo only Democratic votes, the Republicans fumed — and brought the speeding Clinton train to a screeching halt. Only when it became markedly apparent that his "stimulus" package had been stymied did he visit with the opposition and pose for pictures with them. The man clearly needs to work on his game.

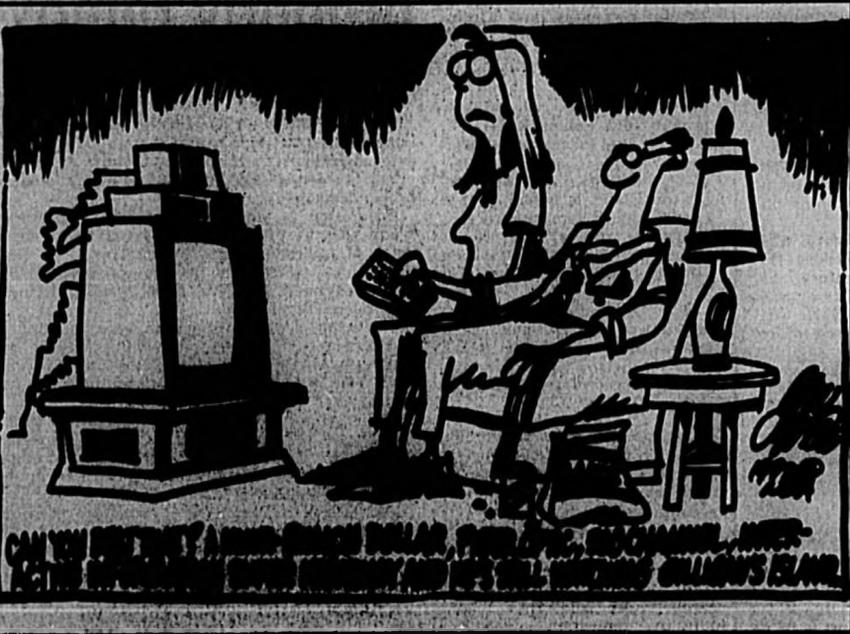

— Clinton's relationship with the military has been grim from the get-go. He may have been correct on principle to push for a homosexual's right to wear the uniform, but he certainly botched the handling of it. Why did he not invite the Joint Chiefs to Little Rock during the transition and ask for their help in keeping his campaign promise?

— For all his carrying on about cutting the deficit, Clinton's heart is not in it. His new budget calls for an additional $937 billion in deficit spending over the next four years — a staggering sum that will put him in the Red Ink Hall of Fame with Ronald Reagan and George Bush and take the overall debt well over $5 trillion. It will cost us $295 billion to service that debt this year, $310 billion next year, and on and on.

William Jefferson Clinton's inaction await at the deficit monster is far and away his greatest failing. He has about 1,300 days left to fix it. If he doesn't, I fear, a Wee Daddy Warbucks from Texas is going to get a whack at it.

I feel like a frustrated teacher filling out a report card on an underachiever.

MARTIN MULL

Henry would have been proud

Tall, courtly Henry Rens, legendary police reporter for The Miami Herald, had been my competition for all of an hour and a half in this, the last morning of the summer of '88. The day had begun as did the other six in my week-long newspaper career: I was on the obituary desk of the Miami News, preparing funeral homes. But suddenly, the city editor was growling. Said he'd looked up. Nobody's covering cops. Can I handle the job?

Sure, I'd said — and I dashed out, carefully radiating know-it-all confidence. I drove to a phone booth, found a telephone book and looked up the address of the police station. That's how I came to be sitting in the cramped police press room next to the legendary Henry Rens, who knew every cop's first name and probably their home address.

Rens was tall, even sitting at his desk, and his gray semi-circle of fringe was immaculately combed. He was friendly to this greenest of rookies — until the easy-moving, easy-speaking man developed the stints. He left, returned, disappeared again. It happened just as the police radio chatter about a certain traffic accident fell silent. The desk sergeant assured me it was only a silly fender-bender.

Still, Rens seemed to be up to something, and the cops seemed to be hiding something. Using a special book listing phone numbers by street address (not last names), I called people who lived near the accident. They said a cop fell asleep at the wheel and drove his squad car through a storefront window. My Miami News photographer got there in time to make our afternoon paper, a day before Rens's morning Herald could print the story.

"Nice job, son," said Rens, a smile strapping across his face. My competitor became my friend and mentor. Consequently, he taught me the finer points of this craft.

Rens's best advice: Always be a straight-shooter; be fair with anyone you're covering; your reputation will stay with you long after today's news story is forgotten. "A no-son, no-bull reputation can be your greatest asset," he said. "It will see you through tough times."

Rens's biggest source of pride: his daughter, Janet, who graduated last year from Harvard Law School. Today, 30 years later, Janet Rens showed she learned her most valuable lesson not at Harvard but at home.

"No-son, no-bull," Attorney General Janet Reno is conducting herself with such grace under pressure. In the wake of Waco, that one wonders how she got inside the Washington Beltway. This is a city unfamiliar with the concept that blame can be shouldered, not shifted.

The day the Waco cult compound burned, Janet Reno, anti-pol, made the rounds of the media, late into the night, answering all questions, shouldering all blame. Meanwhile, Bill Clinton, super-pol, hid in the woods, hoping we'd never link him to the tragedy.) Rens's candor caught many of my pals in the media off-guard. Sharpened to a fine Pavlovian piano by years of Watergate and Iran-contra reporting, some journalists — mainly TV anchors and multi-media pundits — pounced rather than probed. They acted as though this was another case of deep-sixing, shredding, lying and covering up. It is instead a case of a now, under-rated attorney general who made a tough decision that ended in tragedy.

ABC's Ted Koppel asked if she might resign (his AO's bags aren't even unpacked). NBC's Tom Brokaw pounded her for not having talked to Clinton since the first time she'd met her deputy boss.

The news media, in its misguided attempt at balance, seemed intent upon quoting someone (anyone) to cast some doubt (any doubt) on every report of fact. Example: An FBI agent inspecting the ruins said he saw a couple of charred corpses that had been shot. But reporters found a chatty coroner who cast doubt on a doubt, saying only he could know and he'd seen no bullet holes. Left unsaid: The coroner had only autopsied one or two bodies. Days later, he saw corpses that indeed had been shot. Never mind.

Today's new age fact-finders could learn a lot from the late Henry Rens. Getting the official truth need not require getting an official cutout.

Rens's best advice: Always be a straight-shooter.

Waterfront plans taking shape

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The initial four meetings for the Waterfront Master Plan have ended. The final gathering of the Steering Committee was held yesterday morning at the Holiday Inn conference room.

"I would consider it as a very successful meeting," said City Planner Jay Marder who has been organizing the gatherings. "Almost everyone on the committee was able to attend, and we have agreed to begin the development of an initial project."

The complete re-development of the Lake Monroe lakefront will not evolve immediately. "We will begin with a short term effort that combines several ideas into an affordable starter project," Marder said. "But it will all lead toward improving the eventual overall development of the entire lakefront area."

The entire development work could eventually involve the lakefront from eastern Sanford, to the Interstate-4 overpass area. "Initially," Marder explained, "we hope to create some form of banner along the lakefront, sort of developing it into a scenic historic lakefront drive situation." "Our lakefront is already attractive in its present form," he said, "but what we want to show is that it is an existing asset that needs to be incorporated into the overall image given by Sanford, not only to our local people but to visitors as well."

He said the project is being called "Vision," and may include promotional t-shirts depicting the waterfront area. "It would be good publicity," he said, "and who knows, we may even obtain some development funds through the sale."

Ed Preston and several of his associates are presently developing the overall package. Marder said it may take possibly 100 working days to complete the compilation of the total project, in such a way as to include the various ideas.

"When this is completed," he said, "it will be the result of direct discussions with over 100 people who attended our public meetings, gave us input, and served on the Steering Committee."

"This isn't the first time the city has looked into downtown waterfront development," Marder concluded, "but I believe this is the most public support the project has ever had, and I believe the opportunities for development to best serve all of the people, are stronger than ever."

services to determine exactly where they would go."

Robertson said he did not believe the high-speed train operation in Florida would directly affect Sanford. "I'm sure we will have improved travel from Sanford to the Orlando area for people using the high-speed train," he said, "but that's about as far as this concept would allow to go."

The plan includes $1 billion to improve conventional steel-wheel rail travel and some $300 million to develop the new magnetic levitation technology, or maglev.

The $1 billion investment is intended to generate a matching sum from states seeking federal funds. The money would be used to put down modernized tracks on existing rights-of-way, install new signals, eliminate grade crossings and improve bridges.

In addition to the Orlando/Tampa/Miami triangle, other routes include Chicago to St. Louis, Detroit and Milwaukee; San Diego to Los Angeles and the San Francisco area; Eugene, Ore., to Portland, Seattle and Vancouver, British Columbia, in Canada; and Washington, D.C. to Richmond, Va., and Raleigh and Charlotte, N.C.

more business to the area.

While project organizers hope to garner financial assistance from state and national sources, they are still looking for community support in getting the program off the ground.

There will be children's games, Disney-themed carnival booths, visits by the Disney characters, food and refreshments, free entertainment and balloons.

"There'll be lots of fun activities for everyone from little babies on up," said Audrey Ogden, one of the organizers of the event. "This is really family fun."

Among the other events that

Ogden has helped to put together is an arts and crafts fair.

Some of the city's finest artisans and crafters will have their works on display and for sale at the event.

A raffle and a silent auction for valuable items donated by local merchants will help bring in money for the project.

Students from the ten Sanford public schools as well as from All Souls Catholic School will be displaying samples of their artwork at the event as well.

"We want to show off some of the talent that our young people have," Ogden said.

The event will take place on both Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day.

that they even understand what they've really done wrong."

The 8-year-old was a student at Hamilton, but her 6-year old accomplice was a student at Goldsboro Elementary School.

The Hamilton student had never had an office referral, according to Scott.

"There was nothing to indicate that she might have done this sort of thing," Scott said. "She may have been spoken to by her teacher about minor things, but certainly she's never done anything to indicate this."

Little added that the younger girl was staying with the older girl for the weekend and they "took advantage of the opportunity to get into some mischief."

Little said the vandals entered the kindergarten classroom group through an unlocked door. They spread glue over tables and the floor. They overturned chairs and scattered toys and equipment around the room.

A computer printer was damaged in the incident.

School officials put the damage estimate at about $2,000.

Investigators also found a piece of paper with burned edges on the floor of one of the classrooms. Little said it was that evidence that led to the attempted arson charges.

"They made a big mess is all," he said.

Investigators said the story told by the 8-year-old as to why they chose to damage the classroom keeps changing.

"She told us they did it because one of the other children was angry with one of the teachers and she said they just got carried away with some mischief," Little said. "We don't know exactly what happened."

The two are scheduled to appear in court on June 1. Two additional arrests are expected soon.

Interchange

quickly an interchange can be designed and built. That was six years ago, and no interchange exists today.

The main obstacle to the project has been the land needed for the interchange. The Florida Department of Transportation doesn't want to pay the nearly $3 million for the property for the project because CR 46-A is too close to State Road 46 interchange and the proposed site of the Seminole County expressway interchange.

The Hahn Co., which wants to build a mall near the southwest quadrant of the proposed interchange, has actively solicited property owners in the four corners to donate land to the state for the interchange, said County Engineer Jerry McCollum.

The negotiations have bogged down because the land needed in the northwest quadrant is owned by about a half-dozen people. And the property in the southeast quadrant is owned by a group of banks that have not completely agreed to the donations, said McCollum.

Hahn, along with partner Arvida Corp., have redesigned the interchange to move a ramp from the the northwest corner to the southwest corner, reducing the need to negotiate with multiple individuals.

But the design change has increased the costs and increased the drawdown of the $11.1 million, said Bob Cortelyou, project engineer for the Florida Department of Transportation. FDOT idled work on the project more than a year ago because of the failure of the property owners to contribute land.

Cortelyou said the state has already spent about $500,000 of the $11.1 million for the original design study. The changes will require another $200,000 feasibility study and a $600,000 redesign. The current design is expected to cost about $10.8 million. Total cost: $12 million, about $600,000 in the hole.

"It's real close," echoed McCollum and Cortelyou.

Violence

operating. When completed, the shelter will accommodate 42 people. The need for a shelter is evident. For 1992, Kuhn said, there were 1,700 injunctions for protection filed in the county which was a significant increase over previous years. There have been 18 domestic violence related deaths in the last five years.

"Our (fund-raising) goal is $100,000. We have currently about $47,000 on hand but the building is in need of about $92,000 worth of renovation, specifically a roof, right now. That is our first priority," she said.

Luncheons and candlelight vigils have been held in the past to observe Victims Rights Week but this year, the effort is being focused on fund-raising for the shelter. Monetary donations will be accepted and the reception is open to the public. About 1,500 invitations were sent to civic and community leaders.

"We are hoping to get the community involved and to recognize we're still out there, we're still working and we have a building, but that we are in need of money to get it open," Kuhn said, "and also to recognize Victims Rights Week."

No formal speeches are planned but Kuhn said they are hoping to raise community awareness that this is a real going problem. Through research, Kuhn said, they have found that domestic violence is a progressive crime.

"It starts with maybe some verbal abuse, a shove, a slap, a hit, and works up to more severe injuries. Then eventually, after years of physical abuse, you're going to see deaths one of two ways," Kuhn said, "either the abuser will kill the victim or the victim, out of frustration in seeing no assistance from the system, will end up killing the abuser. What we are trying to do is break that cycle."

A change in the law in 1992 enables law enforcement officials to pursue domestic violence cases that threaten the lives of both men and women who are abusers.

"We don't advocate divorce, we simply advocate violence-free relationships," she added.

Ultimately, the victims' advocate decides what intervention is taken in domestic violence cases, either counseling or prosecution, whatever the best alternative is.

"It takes two to fight," Kuhn remarked. "Unfortunately, historically, it has been socially acceptable for a man to beat his wife but it is not socially acceptable no matter what the relationship or no matter what preceded the violence."

Once the county's shelter is operating, HRS money will help fund the shelter. Money distributed by HRS for domestic violence shelters comes from marriage license fees.

The reception Friday will be from 4 to 8 p.m. in the state attorney's office, 100 East First Street. Donations for Safe House are tax deductible.

taking it on a tour of the nation, so people can see what we plan in the future," said Amtrak spokesman Howard Robertson.

Amtrak plans to have the train on public display at various stops across the nation, but not to the extent that the Sunset Limited accomplished when it made its inaugural run from Los Angeles to Miami last month.

The X-2000 is capable of speeds up to 155 miles per hour. "Usually we only run it about 135 mph," Robertson commented. "and when it comes through Sanford, it won't be traveling anywhere near that speed because we have to be concerned about safety and other operations when we use tracks and crossings not specifically designed for this fast train."

"We will be announcing more plans as they develop," Robertson said, "but as it stands now, the X-2000 will be going through Sanford on May 31, and be on display in Orlando June 1st and 2nd."

The right stuff Women fliers rarin' to go

By BRIGITTE GREENBERG
Associated Press Writer

SAN DIEGO — The swashbuckling fraternity of fighter pilots known to most Americans by way of the movie "Top Gun" will soon have to make room for women. And the women fliers say they've got what it takes.

"I mean, why can't I go fly an F-14?" Lt. Kelly Jones demanded Wednesday, the day Defense Secretary Les Aspin ordered the military to drop restrictions on women flying combat missions. For the first time in U.S. history, women soon will be taking the challenge of flying fighter jets, bombers and helicopters.

Jones, a 26-year-old who is stationed at the North Island Naval Air Station in San Diego and flies a C-2 Greyhound transport plane, can set her sights on piloting an F-14 Tomcat and perhaps becoming a Top Gun herself.

Jones and other women pilots spoke with reporters Wednesday at the Miramar Naval Air Station in San Diego, home of the Navy Fighter Weapons School, the "Top Gun" school where the elite of the elite hone their skills on the F-14.

After the public relations disaster of the Tailhook scandal, the Pentagon took advantage of Aspin's announcement by making women fliers available to reporters around the country.

"It's a timeless thing in war — that absolute trust," said Lt. Col. Suzanne Gehri, who served with the Red Cross in Vietnam and now commands a logistics and operations group at Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama. "Don't tell me it can't happen between men and women, because I think it can happen."

Until now, the 826 female pilots now in Air Force, Army and Navy have been restricted to support roles, like flying transport and refueling missions — which pretty much relegated them to second-class status in the military.

"The top people have combat experience and this is certainly good for a career," said 2nd Lt. Sara Ann Beyer, 23, stationed at McClellan Air Force Base near Sacramento. Beyer, one of seven women selected by the Air Force to enter combat training soon, has her sights set on a F-16 Fighting Falcon.

The Navy said it, too, would move quickly to get women in the cockpits of such combat aircraft as the A-6 Intruder bomber. And the Army said it would clear the way for women to fly Apache and Cobra attack helicopters.

The Marine Corps will lag behind the other services since women Marines have not been trained as flight instructors or helicopter pilots and none stand ready to switch to combat aircraft.

There were doubters, like Cmdr. Jim Barnett, 40, an F-14 flight instructor who said it could years before a woman qualifies for his alma mater, the Top Gun school.

Rep. Randy Cunningham, R-San Diego, a former Top Gun instructor and decorated Vietnam veteran who serves on the House Armed Services Committee, fretted about requirements being downgraded.

"Women are going to die just like anybody else, and they need to be just as prepared," he warned.

No need to warn Capt. Deborah Mooradian, based at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in North Carolina, about the dangers of combat. A member of the 344th Air Refueling Squadron, she flew missions in the Persian Gulf that took her within 75 miles of the fighting and is aware of the risk of being taken prisoner.

"I'm ready to take that risk," Mooradian said.

Navy Lt. j.g. Amy J. Brooks, also based at North Island and until now limited to flying a Greyhound transport, said flying combat missions is all she ever wanted.

"I'm ready — always have been," said the 28-year-old flier, eyeing an E-2 Hawkeye reconnaissance plane.

Amid push for Bosnia air strikes, military demands clear strategy

By ROBERT WIELAARD
Associated Press Writer

BRUSSELS, Belgium — The world's generals are pushing politicians to decide exactly what they want to achieve in Bosnia before they turn from diplomacy to force.

The Yugoslav president, echoing the fears of U.S. and European leaders who are contemplating military intervention, warns that anything but a political settlement would lead to "a long and permanent war."

Frustrated by the refusal of Bosnian Serbs to end the war, President Clinton said Wednesday he is determined to take tougher action. He is considering air strikes against Serb artillery sites and exempting Bosnian Muslims from a U.N. arms embargo.

Pentagon leaders, however, doubt that air strikes would stop Serb aggression. And there is growing concern in Congress that the use of American military forces would get the United States bogged down in a Vietnam-style entanglement with an escalating commitment of troops.

Yugoslav President Dobrica Cosic warned against the possibility of Western air strikes against Bosnian Serb gun emplacements and supply routes.

"I still live in the hope that political rationality will prevail," he said. "Everything else would lead to an unforeseeable tragedy (and) a long and permanent war in the Balkans."

Adm. Mike Boorda, a NATO commander in charge of U.S. Navy Forces in Europe and also the chief of allied airdrops in Bosnia, said he wanted detailed objectives for air strikes.

"At least we would like a mission we could write down, break into parts, give it to someone to do and know when he is finished," Boorda said at a meeting of the Royal United Services Institute in London. "I do not know how to plan without that."

U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali said NATO should consult with the United Nations before taking military action and any kind of intervention should be coordinated by the world body.

Britain's Prime Minister John Major is hesitant about air strikes, but his defense minister, Malcolm Rifkind, indicated that the government is giving that option serious consideration.

"Specific kinds of military action, particularly from the air, can sometimes eliminate sources of aggression and deal with particular threats," said Rifkind.

Major is opposed to lifting the arms embargo against Bosnian Muslims — heavily outgunned by Serbs — on grounds this would open a rush of arms into Bosnia, including shipments from Islamic countries such as Iran.

France also has been wary of starting a bombing campaign, reflecting European reluctance to intervene with military forces in Bosnia. Air strikes would involve U.S., British and probably French bombers.

Serb leaders have threatened to attack peacekeepers if an air operation is mounted, and fears for their safety have been an argument against the strikes.

France's defense minister, Francois Leotard, threatened Wednesday to withdraw French peacekeepers from former Yugoslavia unless their mission is better defined.

France's contingent of 5,000 troops, about half of whom are in Bosnia-Herzegovina, is the largest among the 22,000 U.N. soldiers in former Yugoslavia. Britain has 2,500.

The United States and its NATO allies Wednesday authorized their warships in the Adriatic Sea to pursue vessels carrying banned goods to Yugoslavia in violation of the new, tighter U.N. sanctions.

The warships may fire on sanctions-busting ships only with inert munitions, which do not explode on impact, but can still cause material damage.

The naval blockade is part of new U.N. sanctions designed to punish Serbia for its hand in continuing the war in Bosnia-Herzegovina.

The U.N. Security Council was to meet today to consider more measures. It could banish Yugoslavia from the Economic and Social Council — the Serb-dominated federation already has been excluded from the U.N. General Assembly.

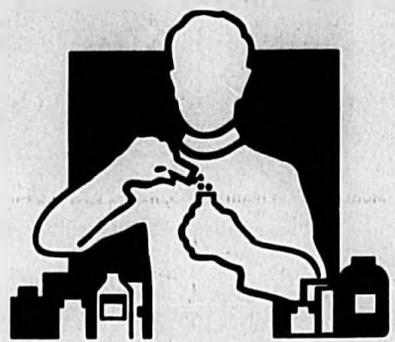

The sanctions took effect Monday after Bosnian Serbs rejected a peace plan. The new measures also include a freeze on Yugoslav assets abroad, cutting of all air links, a reduction of Yugoslav diplomatic representations abroad and tightening a ban on the movement of goods on the Danube River.

Cosic, who became president last year, said the sanctions were unfair because the Yugoslav leadership had done all it could to pressure Bosnian Serbs into signing the peace plan.

Cosic proposed an international summit on Bosnia to be attended by leaders of Bosnia's three warring factions, Yugoslavia, Croatia, all U.N. Security Council members and U.N. Secretary General Boutros Boutros-Ghali.

War broke out in Bosnia after the republic's Muslims and Croats voted for independence from Yugoslavia. After a year of fighting, Serbs control some 70 percent of the republic, and more than 134,000 people are dead or missing.

Bucs to open with Chiefs

TAMPA — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers will open the 1993 season against the Kansas City Chiefs in what could be Joe Montana's debut for his new team.

The San Francisco 49ers, Montana's old team, also are part of the most attractive home schedule in Bucs history.

The season begins Sept. 5 against the Chiefs. Home games follow against Detroit (Oct. 3), Green Bay (Oct. 24), San Francisco (Nov. 14), Minnesota (Nov. 21), Washington (Dec. 5), Chicago (Dec. 12) and San Diego (Jan. 2).

The road schedule includes NFC Central Division rivals Chicago (Sept. 26), Minnesota (Oct. 10), Detroit (Nov. 7) and Green Bay (Nov. 28). The Bucs also visit the New York Giants (Sept. 12), Atlanta (Oct. 31), Los Angeles Raiders (Dec. 19) and Denver (Dec. 26).

Miami face four playoff teams

MIAMI — The Dolphins 1993 schedule features home games against four of last year's playoff contenders and a historic date with the New York Giants.

The Dolphins host AFC Champion Buffalo (Dec. 19), AFC Central Division Champion Pittsburgh (Dec. 13) and Wild Card teams Washington (Oct. 4) and Kansas City (Oct. 31).

Also highlighting the schedule is a Dec. 5 meeting with the New York Giants — the first time the two teams have played in Miami.

Miami faces three other playoff teams on the road, including defending division champions Dallas (Nov. 25), San Diego (Dec. 27) and wild card playoff team Philadelphia (Nov. 14).

The Dolphins open their season Sept. 5 at Indianapolis. Other home games include the New York Jets (Sept. 12), Indianapolis (Oct. 24) and New England (Nov. 21).

The road schedule includes Buffalo (Sept. 26), Cleveland (Oct. 10), the New York Jets (Nov. 7) and New England (Jan. 2).

Suns shutout Memphis

JACKSONVILLE — Greg Bieknell threw a five-hit shutout to lead Jacksonville over Memphis 2-0 in a Southern League game Wednesday.

Bieknell (1-2) struck out five and walked one in a complete game victory. It was his first positive outing this season after coming into the game with 8.04 ERA.

AROUND THE NATION

Marlins knock off Braves

ATLANTA — Benito Santiago's infield single in the ninth inning drove in the go-ahead run Wednesday night, and the Florida Marlins went on to defeat the Atlanta Braves 3-1.

The victory was the Marlins' fourth in five games. The Braves, meanwhile, have lost a season-high four in a row and fell under .500 (11-12) for the first time since last June.

Cancer claims Valvano

RALEIGH, N.C. — Jim Valvano is dead, a year-long battle with bone cancer finally stalling the flash and sass of a gifted college coach who led his team to a miracle championship and left it after a messy scandal.

With his family by his side, the 47-year-old former North Carolina State coach died at Duke University Medical Center in Durham.

Valvano pulled off one of the great upsets in college history in 1983 when the Wolfpack beat Houston in the NCAA tournament final on Lorenzo Charles' buzzer-beating dunk. Seven years later, Valvano was forced out after an NCAA investigation determined his players violated rules by selling sneakers and complimentary tickets.

Offenses cool off in Wednesday men's play

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Is this the same league?

One week after combining for 88 runs on 119 hits, the Sanford Recreation Wednesday Men's Slowpitch Softball League played at a much more pedestrian pace last night, totalling just 43 runs on 78 hits.

Illusions started the evening by holding off Sportsmart 9-6. Score At Touchdown then rolled over Beer: 30 12-1 before Playtime Darts opened its season with an 11-4 decision over Heilig Meyers.

Through two weeks of play, Score At Touchdown leads the seven-team field with a 2-0 mark. Falling in behind the leaders are Playtime Darts (1-0); Beer: 30; Heilig Meyers, and Illusions (all 1-1). Crazy Wings (0-1); and Sportsmart (0-2).

Illusions jumped out to a seven-run lead in the top of the first inning, then scored single runs in the third and sixth inning to hang on to win.

Illusions	701	001	0	—	9	13
Sportsmart	021	003	0	—	6	18

Sportsmart scratched its way back into the game, eventually scoring three runs with two out in the sixth inning to cut the gap to 9-6. Two batters reached base for Sportsmart in the bottom of the seventh, bringing the tying run to the plate, but they would get no closer.

Ricky Wells and John Stewart each had two singles, one run scored, and an RBI to pace the 13-hit effort of Illusions. Bobby Wells hit two singles and scored a run. Bobby Garner also hit two singles. James Garner added a single, one run, and two RBI while Frank Stagg had a single, two runs, and one RBI.

Cub Scouts explore live wild animals and birds

By NERMAN SCHROEDER
Herald Correspondent

Cub Scout Pack No. 34 was recently host to several other packs at the Fellowship Hall of the First United Methodist Church of Sanford, the pack's sponsor.

The main event was Tiger Eye Productions' display of various wild animals and birds. They presented a parrot, lizards, gopher turtle, python snakes (one — 13 ft. long, one — 4 ft. long), a Tarantula spider, Lemur monkey, ferret, snow leopard and a Florida panther.

Tiger Eye is owned by David and Paula McMillan and is located in Oviedo. Paula studied art but she felt a higher power called her to work with wild animals. She came from New Jersey and said she has always liked children and pets. She is very concerned about environment issues and feels she can do more good by teaching others about safeguarding the environment.

In order to have a federal permit to handle wild animals, a person must have at least 1,000 documented hours studying with an accredited wildlife handler and have an accepted educational program where they teach others to handle wild animals. Tiger Eye puts on at least 160 programs a year, mostly in schools and churches. The school term is eight months and consists of 10 students at a time. It is licensed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Interior Florida Fish and Game Commission and others.

Flower show 'one of the best'

The Garden Club of Sanford Inc. held its annual flower show on April 24 and 25 at the clubhouse on Fairmont Avenue. A steady stream of patrons came to view the exhibits on both days for a well-attended event.

A panel of 12 judges, including nine accredited flower show judges and 3 students, judged the exhibits by club members as well as the public on Friday morning.

Wildflower Circle hosted a brunch for the judges in the newly-decorated quarters at the clubhouse.

One member noted the judges commented that this show was "one of the best" she has ever judged. It was also mentioned that horticulturist Tom MacCubbin plugged the show on one of his radio shows.

Among the numerous winners (including accompanying photos) were Mary MacTavish, club president, Creativity Award, and Fran Morton, Novice Award.

A complete list of winners will be announced later.

Chintzy employee cheats company

DEAR ABBY: When is stealing not considered stealing? I work for a large firm. We were all told that stealing from the company could be grounds for immediate dismissal, so I want to know what you think constitutes theft.

A few months ago, the company hosted a luncheon for about 30 employees from my department. The luncheon was held at a very fine restaurant in a private room (The restaurant provided "doggy bags" so the diners could take home their leftovers.) Each guest was allowed to order from the menu.

One employee with our group purposely ordered about three times as much as she could eat, and joked that she was having dinner guests that evening and the leftovers would come in handy. Abby, everyone there heard her — including the executives — and nobody said a word. Of course, the company paid the entire bill.

Now you tell me, Abby, was this stealing from the company or not?

CURIOUS IN ATLANTA
DEAR CURIOUS: It was cheap and chintzy of that employee to have taken advantage of the company's generosity, but since it was done in full view of management, and the employee made no secret of her chutzpah, I would not call it stealing.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please

	ADVICE

tell me how you size up the following? My wife recently had some extensive dental work done by her regular dentist, which involved numerous visits.

After the job was finished, my wife received six yellow roses with a card that said, "Thank you for being such a great patient!"

Abby, this action upset me. Isn't this a rather presumptuous thing for a dentist to do? My wife thought it was "sweet." I did not share her enthusiasm.

I am interested in knowing what you think of this.

ROSIE IN BROOKLYN
DEAR ROSIE: Sorry, I do not share your negative reaction to the gesture. I, too, think it was sweet.

DEAR ABBY: My parents were European, of humble origin, but their manners were impeccable. They taught me that in a theater, cinema, church, etc., when one is trying to reach an empty seat by sliding in front of people who are already seated, you are always supposed to face the people who are already seated.

I go to the theater a lot, and I have seldom seen this done. Instead, I see people's rear ends sliding past my face. Which way is correct?

RUDOLPH R. SPANDANO, HACIENDA HEIGHTS, CALIF.

DEAR MR. SPANDANO: Your European-born parents taught you properly. Apparently the theatergoing crowd you have recently encountered were not as fortunate in their upbringing.

DEAR ABBY: In 1966, you printed a wonderful piece by Rev. Martin Niemoller called "I Didn't Speak Up." Will you please put it in your column again, in view of all the trouble in Bosnia-Herzegovina? Maybe it will speak again to your readers as it did to me. God bless you.

KAREN PLATE, SNOWSBORO, WASH.

DEAR KAREN: Yes. Thank you for requesting that piece. It couldn't be more timely:

I Didn't Speak Up
"In Germany, the Nazis first came for the communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a communist. Then they came for the Jews, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, but I didn't speak up because I was a Protestant. Then they came for me, and by that time there was no one left to speak for me."

DEAR ABBY: That story about "Aunt Mary" finding her autographed book back on the shelf in the bookstore reminds me of this incident:

A friend's first ceramic project in art class was an ashtray that she had "signed." Being very proud of her new creation, she gave it to her sister-in-law as a Christmas gift.

Several months later, she saw her "work of art" in a thrift shop! Her retribution: She purchased the ashtray, had it gift-wrapped — and gave it to her sister-in-law as a gift again.

Herbal remedies don't cure polio, lockjaw

DEAR DR. GOTT: Barley Green is a wonderful product. You're just like all the rest of the doctors I deal with who give patients expensive drugs that kill people. I know you all would love to get rid of herbs that heal, but people are getting smarter and more educated about natural medicines. Sign me "disgusted with doctors."

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Herbs II -- Herbs and Healing Pads." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR READER: Don't be disgusted with doctors -- any more than you should be disgusted with plumbers or accountants. There are bad apples in any professional group. I don't believe you're being fair in blindly indicting doctors in general, especially physicians who use prescription and over-the-counter drugs to improve people's lives.

While I try to maintain an open mind about herbal remedies, I think you should remember that herbs didn't conquer polio and lockjaw; natural medicines don't cure strep throat and pneumonia; non-prescription medications cannot hold a candle to cataract extraction or coronary bypass surgery.

Let's face it. People are living longer and better lives because of traditional medical science. Rather than making a blanket condemnation of doctors, why not be more rational and selective?

Although some herbs produce health benefits -- after all, the heart medicine digitalis was first discovered in the foxglove plant -- herbal medicine has, by and large, been turned into a hoax perpetuated by charlatans whose main concern is making a profit at the patient's expense.

"Herbology," as practiced by alternative healers, is based on outdated concepts and folklore. Also, some herbs -- such as ginseng -- can be toxic.

The world is in a vicious circle. More and more babies are being born, yet with increased computerization and mechanization, industry requires fewer workers. Henry Youngman said of his brother-in-law, "I wish he would learn a trade, so we'd know what kind of work he was out of."

With extra leisure time, more people may take up bridge. It is a great game for keeping the brain from atrophying. And maybe these new players will recognize a good trade when they see one -- as in today's deal.

How should South play in five clubs, West leading off with two top diamonds?

North-South did well to avoid four spades. If the defenders attack diamonds, this contract would require a very favorable lie of the cards to succeed.

After ruffing the second diamond, South drew trumps.

He followed with a spade to dummy's king and a spade to his ace. West's discard stopped South dead in his tracks. No matter how he tried to wriggle, rigor mortis was setting in. Declarer had to lose a trick in each side suit.

Declarer should have been willing to trade one spade trick for a guarantee on his contract. After drawing trumps and playing a spade to the king, South should have finessed his spade jack.

Here it wins and declarer can ruff his two spade losers in the dummy for 11 tricks in all. But suppose the finesse loses. Then declarer has three spade winners in hand, on which he can discard three of dummy's hearts. This time South's 11th trick will be a heart ruff in the dummy. (C)1993, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
April 30, 1993

Joint ventures you'll have in the year ahead with people you love and trust should prove advantageous for all concerned. Alliances you make with those you don't know too well, however, might fizzle out.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your objectives are achievable today, but the road to success could be a rocky one. In order to fulfill your goals, you will require both ingenuity and persistence. Taurus, get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for Taurus' Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4485, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You might be privy to some helpful information today, yet not fully appreciate its worth because of a prejudiced feeling against the source. Don't be biased. CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you've accumulated a bit of surplus at this time, apply some of it toward old obligations. It is best to go to your creditors before they come to you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) Don't expose your bright ideas today to people who can't comprehend their value. Negative comments might discourage you and slow your progress.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 23) Be very careful to whom you repeat hearsay or gossip today. Talking out of turn might unwittingly damage someone who is undeciphering of criticism.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you are trading with or buying something from a friend today, you might not get as good a deal as you could if you went to a person or firm you didn't know.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23) Unless you are willing to cooperate and share today, it's not likely that others will be supportive of your interests. In fact, they might even try to impede your progress.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Strive to be complimentary, not critical, toward co-workers today. In order for all parties to be productive, there must be a convivial atmosphere.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you think you can get by trading on the resources or contacts of associates today, you could be in for a big disappointment. The only person you can rely on is you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Steer clear of situations today where one friend might try to manipulate you into taking a negative position against another pal. Don't be a pawn in this person's game.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your possibilities for personal gain look reasonably good today, provided you don't do something you shouldn't while attempting to feather your own nest.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you try to expedite a financial matter of importance today, you might be inclined to take risks you shouldn't. Don't be in a big hurry to do things that are counterproductive.
