Strolling In Sanford

Central Florida's first television station, WDBO-TV, Orlando, this week announced another temporary set-back in its scheduled opening, according to Walter E. Sickles, the station's technical staff. The station was originally slated to commence operation April 25. The station's technical staff, augmented by a private engineering consultant and two field service engineers from the equipment manufacturers, has been working around the clock for the last 60 days in an attempt to effect an immediate opening. The latter are, Sickles pointed out, of such a nature that it is difficult to set a definite date for opening. "It is hoped that by the first of July or sooner," he went on to say, "all of these problems will have been resolved and by that date we can begin full scale operations."

Dulles Says Nation Has Reign Of Terror

States Majority Want To Clean Communists Out Of Their Country

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said today there is no doubt a reign of terror is being carried out in Guatemala by its Red-tinged government.

Dulles also told a news conference the great majority of the people in that Central American country want to clean out the Communists but are having to face intense Communist terrorism.

He made the statement in commenting on reports that Guatemala army officers have told Guatemalan President Jacobo Arbenz that he must break away from the Reds or resign.

Dulles said the State Department does not have any information from a clearly dependable source. "There is no doubt," he continued, "that a reign of terror is going on in Guatemala and there is no doubt either that the great majority desire to clean their own house."

This is being made difficult, Dulles declared, by Communist terrorism which he said is dramatically pointed up by a recent statement of a Guatemalan cabinet officer.

He quoted the unidentified minister as warning the Guatemalan people that any disturbance would mark the beginning of the bloodiest of anti-Communist in Guatemala.

Dulles said he was unable to confirm but would not deny reports that the United States is prepared to ask for a foreign ministers' conference on the Guatemalan situation at a meeting tomorrow of the Council of the Organization of American States.

He recalled that an exchange of views is now going on among the American nations with respect to the possibility of holding a foreign ministers' conference in the near future. But he said he has no knowledge that the matter might be brought up at the OAS council meeting tomorrow.

City Officials Leave For Bond Action In New York City

City officials, according to City Manager Warren Knowles, left today for New York to complete transactions in the $1,750,000 city water and sewer bond issue with Shields and Co., New York financial firm.

The bonds have been signed by city clerk H. N. Sayer, but must be signed by Mayor Earl Higinbotham at the New York bank, according to Knowles.

The mayor was accompanied by A. F. Shishler, City attorney and the city clerk. It is expected that the group will return to the city Friday afternoon with the check for the complete amount.

At a recent meeting, the City commission decided to deposit the money equally in the Sanford National Bank and the Florida State Bank, according to Knowles.

The group had been scheduled to travel in New York last week, but the trip was postponed because the New York firm had been unprepared to take the action at that time.

Local Road Work Included In Bid

Among the 18 road and bridge projects bids received today by the State Road Department in Tallahassee was a contract price including surfacing of state road 46 in Seminole County east and west of the Lake Jessup bridge.

Manly Construction Co., of Leesburg, submitted a price of $13,068 for the project and minor work in Orange and Volusia Counties.

All told, the 18 pieces of construction in the current bid lot total $2,740,790 in expenditure, according to the current low bid.

Late Ex-Governor Called Embezzler

TRENTON, N. J. (AP)—Gov. Robert B. Meyner said he will announce today detailed charges of misconduct against the late ex-Gov. Harold G. Hoffman, whose daughter disclosed that he embezzled $300,000 in bank funds to finance his stormy political career and pay off a blackmailer.

Meyner told a news conference yesterday Hoffman wrote a letter May 1 to his daughter, Mrs. Ada Leonard of Madison, to say he embezzled the $300,000 to pay expenses during his four years in office from 1927 to 1931 and for his successful 1931 gubernatorial campaign.

Mrs. Leonard, in a letter to her father last night, pledged that the Hoffman family would pay 65 per cent of the money. Her father last Monday was voted Governor again by the State Legislature. The bill awaits Meyner's signature.

Hoffman, affable after a former speaker and president of the business convention and committee suspended March 14 by Meyner as director of New Jersey Division of Employment and Security, a $12,500 a year post he held last year, left the governorship in 1931.

At the time of the suspension, Hoffman said he had evidence of "embezzlement irregularities" in the purchase of irregular supplies and equipment.

An authoritative source said the charges against Hoffman include a reference to the $300,000 and $100,000 in bonds for the 1931-32 fiscal year, which Hoffman had been president.

The action was passed by a 3-2 margin, with Mayor Earl Higinbotham and Councilmen William Simpson and John Foster voting affirmatively, and Councilmen John E. Fisher and J. Denver Carlisle voting negatively.

UN Korean Allies Demand Ending Of Talks Deadlock

GENEVA (AP)—The 16 U. N. Korean allies drafted a demand today for an end to the deadlocked Korean peace talks, similar action on the stalled Indo-China talks may come tomorrow.

Delegates of the 16 nations planned to submit a statement to the 15-power conference on Korea today declaring that further talks on Korean unification are useless at this time and referring the theory back to the United Nations for further study.

The Indo-China phase of the conference was in recess until tomorrow when it will take up the Western demands that Communist-led Viet Minh forces get out of Laos and Cambodia.

Western sources said Communist rejection of the Western demands on Laos and Cambodia would determine whether the Indo-China talks will continue.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden made this clear at a news conference yesterday. He told the nine-party meeting that the Indo-China conference had made but one solid achievement in its seven days of deliberation—the start of military discussions between representatives of the French Union and the Communist-led Viet Minh.

Eden was understood to have added that if the talks fail to make progress tomorrow, the problem of Laos and Cambodia, he would not be sure it would be worthwhile to continue debate.

He suggested that a vote might be taken to suspend discussion of the military cooperation demands.

Informed quarters said the British was not thinking of any overtures, but of a considerable interval.

This was regarded as particularly significant since Eden in the earlier stages of the conference had been the most patient of the Western leaders.

Security Question

No sensible person objects to precautions designed to keep disloyal persons or possible security risks out of government positions or the armed forces. Subversives or security risks in such places could do great damage.

Granting this there should be a sensible and practical way to approach the problem without clouding the atmosphere with suspicion or causing embarrassment to innocent persons.

When the list of recent graduates of the Naval Academy was released it was discovered that three of the young men graduating have had their commissions withheld pending completion of security checks. In all fairness it should be said that they may receive their commissions at the conclusion of the checks.

The report raises several important questions. If there is adverse information on the young men in question why was it not discovered at the time they applied for and received admittance to the academy? Could not the security check have been started earlier and completed before graduation day, so that if the midshipmen are in fact they might have shared the indignity of satisfaction of their classmates in receiving their commissions?

Collective Security

In his speech Congress Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia said that free nations, large or small must meet aggression anywhere, at any time, regardless of the cost. He said that collective security must be a universal principle if it is to have any hope of preserving peace and preventing aggression.

The Emperor's words are wise. There is a certain logic for all nations which agree to participate in collective security programs; they may sometimes have to take a positive stand when it seems simpler to back down. But backing down before tyrants is no way

HAL BOYLE

Small Things Are Significant

BERLIN—There are cigarette butts on the streets of Berlin, the city with spirit of heroism.

There are hundreds of window flower boxes blooming in bright color.

To me there are more significant testimonies to the postwar recovery of the German capital, still the fulcrum of the East-West tug-of-war, than the sight of workmen raising tall scaffolding to repair damaged buildings.

In 1946 if a visitor flicked away a half-smoked cigarette, five hands grabbed for it before it hit the pavement. The collection of cigarette butts was a leading industry. Tobacco, coffee and sugar often took the place of money as a medium of exchange and a measure of value.

Even banknotes filled backyard gardens because food was so scarce, and few found time of money to raise flowers. The window boxes were barren of bloom.

The third most important sign of recovery is the disappearance of the look of fear and fawning from the eyes of the people who live here. In 1946 the typical Berlin look was that of a cowering animal, a homeless expression of cautious pleading that seeks friendship from a stranger. That look is gone altogether.

These signs of human recovery and a return to human dignity and self-confidence are far more impressive than Berlin's property recovery, the almost miraculous speed with which it is restoring its battered physical structure. No city its size in history ever took a more fearsome battering. Allied airplanes rained 75,000 tons of bombs on it, Russian artillery methodically shelled it for weeks in a calculated effort to reduce it to complete ruin.

As a result the city lost 500,000 lives, 38 per cent of the buildings in its 340 square mile area were destroyed, and an additional 38 per cent were damaged. The debris has been piled up but engineers recently estimate 100 million tons of rubble still remain.

But the streets are thronged, new shops stocked with food, clothing or luxury goods open regularly, and the squabbling gatherings of black market operators are gone.

The Allied-occupied Western sectors and the Russian-held Eastern sector are peculiarly different. The Russians dramatically symbolized Berlin's property revival with a concentrated show window reconstruction of Stalin Alley. Big yellow-lit apartment buildings and street shops, Russian in design and as impersonal as sardines in a can, line that thoroughfare for miles. But step one block away and you are back in uncleaned debris.

West Berlin has no single reconstruction job to equal this but has started a vaster building revival program throughout the entire sector.

The difference in the human rehabilitation factor is clear to even the most casual visitor. The people in the Western sector are better dressed, the shops hold more goods, the streets are better kept up than those in the Russian sector.

The problem of unemployment is greater in the Allied sector, of course, the chief reason being that 300,000 refugees poured across from the East in 1933, some 37,410 more in the first four months of this year.

Whether they come in quest of food or the political and spiritual nourishment of a (free) work, they come. Despite this flood of refugees, the Western sector authorities have cut their total of unemployed from 300,000 to 197,000. Each year West Berlin is living more on its own efforts, less on the cuff of help from the Allies and the Federal German Republic.

The sector remains as a redoubt island surrounded by a Red tide of Communism. But the air of hopelessness is gone, and nobody is busy pushing the panic button. People want to fix up their homes, open new businesses, grow flowers again in their window boxes. They pick their cigarettes from a packet instead of a pavement.

As one German told me: "Anything can still happen, of course, but at least we feel our allies won't just ride up to the almost one morning and fly away and leave us to the Russians."

Belgian Surrender, 1940

The surrender of the Belgian army on May 28, 1940, has always left soreness in the relations of that country with Great Britain. Belgians, British and French were hard pressed by the superior German forces that kept forcing them back. It was suspected that the Belgians, who had fought bravely, were near the end of their rope, and the British, as far as possible, took steps to minimize the effect of the expected Belgian collapse.

Yet on May 28, without warning to his ally, King Leopold directed his army to surrender. The Belgian premier wanted to keep fighting on, but was overruled. This Belgian withdrawal from the war exposed the British left flank, and contributed to the disastrous retreat from Dunkerque.

Leopold gave his reason the fact that his country could do no more, and he hoped to get better terms by yielding to the Germans. Yet his countrymen never forgave him, and removed him from office.

Now his son and successor, King Leopold III, tries to clear the record, saying, in a public address, that the Belgians made it possible for the British to get away safely from Dunkerque by fighting as long as they did. This may be true, but does not explain why, if they planned to quit, King Leopold could not warn his allies.

While stands the Colosseum, Rome shall stand;
When falls the Colosseum, Rome shall fall.

And when Rome falls—the world.
This old proverb, quoted so poetically in Byron's Childe Harold, but going back as far, at least, as the eighth century, shows the importance popularly attached to this huge amphitheatre, still one of the show places of Rome.

Now this symbol of Rome's greatness is threatening to crumble. Scaffolding is being erected so that the dreaded weakness may be investigated. Alarming cracks have already been discovered in the outer wall and the brick buttresses.

Many suspect that the villain in the piece is Rome's new subway, whose tunnels and a station were built a few years ago a short distance from the north side of the Colosseum. Its foundation may have weakened in the construction, and in any case it is likely to be endangered by the vibration when trains start running.

The following letter was brought up before the City Commission last night. Blake's license was revoked.—Editor's note.

City Commission
City Hall
Sanford, Florida

Gentlemen:
After receiving your "notice" mailed May 29, I consulted with our Company's New York attorney. I have been given carte blanche to go ahead and fight your ridiculous charge of "engaging in improper business practices." But frankly, I feel it a waste of company money and my time to wage a personal battle with Mr. Moore of Hill Bros. and Mr. Baggerly, which is really what it amounts to. It's very obvious they resent fair competition.

Automatic defrosters have been on the market since 1940, yet these men prefer to hide this fact and urge a customer to buy a new refrigerator with a built-in defroster or costing the buyer $200.00 to $400.00 instead of an attachment that will do as well for $12.95.

It is a fact that there are defrosters made to retail for less than $12.95 (like a cheap watch) and prices ranging up to $19.95. Mr. Baggerly has on display a defroster for $9.95, which he sells with only the manufacturer's guarantee against defective workmanship and no service whatever. He does not install them, adjust them, nor give service to the customer in any way before or after it is purchased. Recently, he is telling inquirers that he had a $5.95 unit on order. Father Zimmerman, whom I know you will have to admit is a worthy and reputable citizen of your city, as well as five other equally reputable citizens, have attempted to purchase a defroster for $5.95 as your release to the Sentinel stated was possible. They found only the above mentioned $9.95 unit available.

Our company feels that $12.95 is a very fair price for a unit with such mechanism as ours and with our service beyond the manufacturer's guarantee. A price of $15.00 was never quoted at any time.

I intend to service, according to our pledge, all defrosters sold to date and will brook no interference in so doing. As for my license, I have no desire to use it further in your town. Your method of notifying me of the revocation of my license thru the Newspaper four days before a legal notice was mailed to me and your obvious prejudicial attitude shows the caliber of your city management.

Kindly make this statement public thru your local press in the same manner as you saw fit to release the notice of the revocation of my license. (Free press item dated May 25th, 1954. I am sure you will find Mr. Perkins of the Herald very cooperative in this matter.) Also make known that there was no meeting held May 31st for my hearing as stated, but is being held June 14th instead. I feel this is due my many satisfied customers.

Note: No $5.95 unit available. S. JOSEPH A. BLAKE

McCarthy Looks For Suspects

WASHINGTON—Just as the old question of who threw the overalls in Mrs. Murphy's chowder has never been answered, Sen. McCarthy may never make up his mind on who "instigated" Army officials' charges against him.

Like a man hit when he wasn't watching, McCarthy has been looking around for suspects ever since, pointing to one individual after another as the cause of his troubles. Sometimes he found them in pairs.

He began by emphatically accusing two officials of the Eisenhower administration. As the testimony unfolded, he accused more of them, and has wound up pointing the blame on a pair of Democrats, just as emphatically.

The calendar tells the story. March 11, an Army report accusing McCarthy and his aides of trying to pressure it into giving preferential treatment to Pvt. G. David Schine, a consultant to McCarthy's staff before he was drafted.

March 12, McCarthy accused Secretary of the Army Stevens and Army Counselor John G. Adams of blackmail. He said they were trying to pressure him into abandoning his search for Communists in the Army.

Both denied his accusations and later, at the public hearings, took full responsibility for issuing the charges.

April 20, McCarthy accused H. H. Hensel, assistant secretary of defense, of masterminding the charge against him. He said Hensel wanted to discredit McCarthy's subcommittee and head off a probe of Hensel's own "misconduct" and possible law violations. Hensel called these accusations barefaced lies. On May 26 the Republicans on the subcommittee threw out the charges against Hensel and Army charges against Francis P. Carr, a McCarthy aide.

May 12, Adams testified at the public hearings that he created the image of God, created to be His children. A king or a dictator is no more important in God's sight than a commoner. All men are equal before Him. Furthermore, the Bible vigorously stands for social justice and righteousness; for the rights of the common man; for brotherhood and for fair competition without coercion.

It is clear that our faith, rooted and grounded in the Bible, has given to us our zeal for freedom. In these days of ideological conflict it is most important that we know what we believe. Religion is the strongest defense our nation can have.

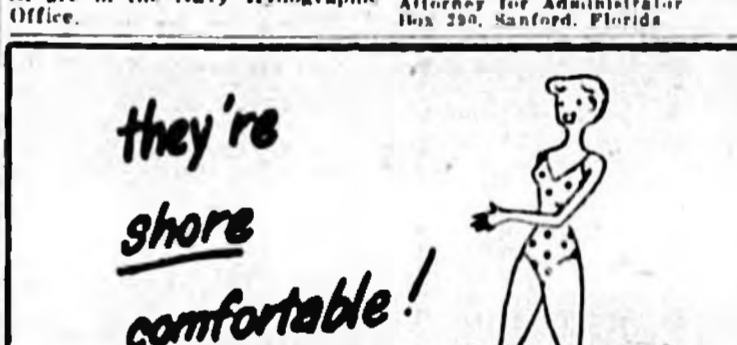

A Biblical faith has brought us the blessing of freedom. May we stand on that faith and do our part that America may be a land of brotherhood, and righteousness, a beacon and a hope to other peoples of the earth.

Let us heed DeToqueville's warning and continue to be God-fearing Bible reading, church going men and women, that America's greatness may not depart from us.

Stones in Male Gland

By NEWMAN N. DANFORTH, M.D.

There are kidney stones and gallbladder stones, but stones may also form in the prostate gland of man.

Usually, a man with prostate stones has some form of urinary difficulty. He complains about backache, a feeling of fullness over the bladder, frequent urination with burning, and even pus or blood in the urine. Many times he may have blood mixed with his sperm.

Indications of Trouble
If only a few stones are present in the prostate, with no other difficulty, there may not be any symptoms at all except a feeling of pressure. However, if a large number of stones are present, or a single large stone, there may be a great deal of discomfort. Sometimes one or two large stones may form which entirely replace the prostate gland. Usually the gland is infected and enlarged along with the formation of stones.

Methods of Treatment
Massaging and using certain drugs may help to relieve the stones in many cases. However, the prostate gland often must be removed surgically. If there are a great many stones, and the prostate is greatly enlarged, the gland may have to be removed by an outward incision. It is important for older males to have regular frequent examinations of the prostate gland so that disorders may be discovered early and promptly treated.

MRS. HAROLD A. D. STANLEY

Miss Nancy Crosby Is Bride Of Harold Arthur D. Stanley

In a double ring ceremony performed Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at Holy Cross Episcopal Church with the Rev. H. E. Zimmerman officiating, Miss Nancy Crosby and Harold Arthur D. Stanley were united in marriage.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sturgeon Crosby of Summerville, S. C. and the son of Phil C. Stanley and the late Mrs. Stanley repeated their nuptial vows before an altar and hand and hand with white gladstide and star jasmine. In front of the altar were seven branch candles. Alternate pews were decorated with gladstide and sprays of pink and white flowers. Mrs. Roy Sauer played the nuptial music at the organ while soloist, Miss Joyce Hitzel, sang "O Perfect Love" and "Ave Maria."

The bride was given in marriage by her father, who was attended by a groom of white embroidered organza fashioned with a round neckline and short sleeves and a three tiered skirt. Her veil of illusion fell to her shoulders from a tiara encrusted with seed pearls that were arranged to match the embroidered design on her gown. She carried a keepsake Bible top with a purple thray and a small bouquet of white flowers.

Mrs. Gordon Stanley, mother of the bride, wore floor length gown of pale blue organza over blue satin featuring a draped and gathered bodice. Her net held clusters of American Beauty roses on each side and she carried an arm bouquet of rich red roses. Phil C. Stanley served as his son's best man and usher, while Sturgeon Crosby Jr., brother of the bride, and Alfred W. H. Stanley, the groom's brother.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Crosby wore a gray silk tulle creation with an embroidered Juliet cap and a purple orchid. Mrs. J. A. Rogers, aunt of the groom, chose a dress of sheer printed silk and a corsage consisting of a purple orchid.

Following the wedding, a reception was held in the parish house which was decorated with gladstide and greenery. The bride's table was laid with a white linen cloth centered with a three tiered wedding cake. On each side were three branch silver candelabra surrounded by greenery.

Greeting the guests at the door was Mrs. Phil C. Stanley Jr. and keeping the bride's book was Mrs. Edward Willink. The cake was cut by Mrs. Alfred W. H. Stanley and Mrs. Ralph Wright Jr. presided over the punch bowl while Mrs. Charles McGill and Mrs. Henry Tamm Jr. were floating hostesses.

For her wedding trip, Mrs. Crosby chose a teal colored dress with the lining of the jacket designed to match the printed blouse. Her accessories were brown and white. The couple will reside at 2118 Summerlin Ave.

It's Hard Job To Film Life Story Of Man Scheduled To Die July 30

HOLLYWOOD in how do you film the life story of a man who is scheduled to die July 30? That is the problem facing producer Wallace MacDonald and writer Jack DeWitt who are charged with putting on the screen the life of Cyril Chesman. They are filming "Criminal" which Columbia bought for $150,000.

National attention has been brought to Chesman via his book in which he details his life in crime. He has confessed to felonies charged to him but not to others which brought him the death sentence for kidnaping. He has personally waged a long legal battle to escape the gas chamber but now is slated to die July 30. A committee that includes many writing people has been trying to get his sentence commuted, arguing that he has worth more to society alive than dead.

MacDonald emphasized that the film would take in the lives of Chesman's family. "We will present the story in a dramatic way like a Marx of Tom, the producer remarked. 'We will be really objective, building no case for human or society.' At times, but hasn't the audience tend to sympathize with the lead ing player, even in a crime picture." "Not necessarily in this case," remarked MacDonald. "Not if we tell the story as it was written in the book, and we are required to do so."

"There may be some sympathy evoked from his younger days. His family was very poor and he tells of how he was sick in bed and how his mother, who was paralyzed, called to say something was wrong. The boy went in the kitchen and found his father lying on the floor with the gas on."

"His first urge to steal came when he noticed other people's groceries were not the same as his family's which came from relief. He began to steal food."

"But then he began to steal more than he needed. It became a matter of brains with him. He stole a car, he stole a car, he stole a car. Every time he got out of a reformatory he would return to crime."

DeWitt called him "a precocious boy who became a precocious genius. You can tell that, the book that he studied until he knew all the tricks of a professional writer."

Africans Building School To Be Open To Whites, Indians

MOSHI, Tanganyika, P. — The CHAGGA tribes of African blacks are building a school which will be open to whites and Indians in the Chagga live on the southern slopes of 19,545-foot Mt. Kilimanjaro highest in Africa. They've grown rich in the last few years because their coffee crops have brought high prices. The Chagga number all told about 365,000. In 1922 they organized a cooperative society called the "Kilimanjaro Native Cooperative Union, Ltd." They were helped in doing so by Roman Catholic missionaries and district government officers. The union has about 35,000 members. Last year the Chagga's 6,000 tons of high grade "Arabica" coffee brought them more than 10 million dollars. The coffee is marketed cooperatively. Three years ago the Kilimanjaro coop group built a four-story community center — with its own all-ages public library, small hotel, shops and roof-top restaurant. The center, built at a cost of $200,000 — paid from cooperative profits — was itself a unique venture. It is used by all races. Last March the coop announced plans to build a new commercial school as an addition to the center. It will cost $140,000 and will also be paid from coop profits. Missionary schools have, in the same fashion, been open to all regardless of color of skin, but the Mushi School is said to be the first built and paid for by blacks. Teachers will be brought from England. The school will handle 100 students. The Chagga are one of the most advanced of African tribes.

Daring Rescue Made Of Boy

OMAHA, Neb. — I saw him standing by the rail on the right. We blew the whistle and sounded the bell. The child just stood there. I knew there was just one thing to do.

And in firm grip of Gibson of Falls City, Neb. — dropped from the cab of his locomotive and scrambled ahead to the railroad as the train slowed down. Leaping to the right of the rail Gibson braked the child under his arm and the two pulled to safety. Engineer Ray Exler brought the train to a halt 40 feet beyond. The rescue occurred on the Missouri Pacific tracks in South Omaha last night.

Commission

(Continued From Page One) spokesman for a committee representing retail gasoline dealers, made a further protest against C. M. Rytche, who is accused of illegally retelling gasoline from property which he leases from the city for the purpose of operating a motor transport business. Rytche, present at the meeting, said it was unnecessary to check the neighboring dealers but he submitted records showing he was only selling trucks owned or leased by himself. Mayor Higginbotham appointed Strickland and Charlie Brown to meet with Rytche and work out a satisfactory solution to the problem.

The frame center portion of the Anchor Restaurant, owned by the city, will be moved to Ft. Mellon Park to be utilized as a recreational facility, according to Commission designation.

The commission authorized City Manager Warren E. Knowles to advertise for bids to purchase a variety of sewer pipe, a billing machine for the water department and a budgetary accounting machine for use in the office of the city clerk.

A bill for $21,122.56 for services rendered by Robert M. Angus and Associates, consulting engineers to the city, was approved. Payment will be made when the City approved bonds are sold.

E. H. Holcomb Co., Clearwater was approved to handle the installation of approximately 2,500 feet of sewer line east of Summerlin Ave. extending from the railroad south to 24th St.

Fat Man Falls In Love: Girl Wants Slimming

ATLANTA, P. — Marvin "Fat" Samples, a parking lot attendant, fell in love — all 307 pounds of him. The object of his affections was attractive but adamant. One of 127 pounds, she said, and will see Samples did just that, going on a rigid diet and getting his weight down to 145 in only 8 months. Samples, a neatly brunette, said yes and they were married. The bridegroom didn't stop. He kept on dieting and now weighs a mere 110. How did he do it? "I just ate steak and tomatoes," Samples said. "I had steak all the black coffee I wanted. I was terribly hungry the first few weeks but then I got accustomed to eating less and it didn't bother me."

He used to wear size 56 pants. Now he wears 37's. His shirt size was 28 and now it's 15 1/2. Samples got rid of 192 pounds skin by climbing a pole and doing gym exercises on a filling station grease rack.

Plans will be submitted at the organization's next board of directors meeting on possible ways to remedy the situation, according to the president.

Late Ex-Governor

Mrs. Leonard told a reporter she has a good idea who the "elder candidate" is, but would not identify him because she didn't want to bring "grief" to his family. The blackmailing official, she said, "I'd tell you if I knew." Richman said his office has begun an investigation to determine the identity of the two men.

The affidavit told of Hoffman's making commitments "which I temporarily covered by drawing from inactive accounts at the South Amboy Trust Company." Hoffman, with the high cost of Washington living, the maintenance of two homes, and what I can only label as the expensive nature of a newswoman's things, instead of bettering, got worse."

At the news conference yesterday, Harry Green of Little Silver, Hoffman's attorney, said he had seen the charges brought against the former governor. Green said the charges were shown to him the day Hoffman died and that a tentative agreement had been reached to have the late governor submit a letter of resignation rather than face a hearing on the charges.

Meyer, Green and Richman told how Mrs. Leonard visited Hoffman at his Little Silver home last Wednesday and showed him the letter from his father. She later showed the letter to an of-

France's Crisis Spells Trouble For Defense Treaty

PARIS (AP)—France's current political crisis spelled new trouble today for the long delayed European army treaty. The controversial pact in turn posed a major problem for Premier Designate Pierre Mendes-France, whose criticism of government policy in Indochina was a major factor in Laniel's fall, accepted the mandate to form a cabinet yesterday. He is slated to seek confirmation before the Assembly tomorrow or Thursday.

His chances were considered slight. A big factor is the bad split in the Chamber over the scheduling of debate on ratification of the European Defense Community (EDC) pact, which has been languishing in committee for more than two years. Any successor to Laniel needs the support of both the Catholic Popular Republican Movement (MRP) and the Union for Republican Action (URAS). The latter made up of followers of Gen. De Gaulle. The MRP wants the army treaty debated as quickly as possible, the Gaullists bitterly any attempt to force debate. The new Premier will have to conjure up some formula to reconcile these views. Mendes-France's public statements have been more against than for the European army, a position which will probably cost him support among the MRP bloc.
